The many people in this city who are getting tax notices for 1913 taxes are just beginning to sit up and take notice. As a result a pretty general howl is going up over the increase in the taxes. People are beginning to discover that the pace set in the city, county and independent school district is much too fast for the average pocketbook and are looking around for officials in every case who will not be afraid to be called tightwads when expending the taxpayers' money. It is all very nice with some people to say that if a man objects to the taxes here let him get out of the country. Such a gospel if literally followed would make things mighty expensive for the people who stay and also mighty lonesome. It is getting too hard to interest settlers in this country and when the trouble is shifted down it is not because somebody knocked the country, but that the settler, well acquainted with the big factor taxes play in his existence anywhere, looks into that question very carefully. Twin Falls county or city cannot afford to get the reputation of being an expensive place in which to live. We have too many unutilized acres asking for settlers to play to the luxurious instinct so common with the whole class of people in this new tract. The officials who can show a decrease in the running expenses are going to have a big following next year when the elections take place. The extravagant official will have an equally hard time to convince the public that it needs his service longer.

The perpetual conflict between the business interests and those concerned with the beautifying of the city came up again this week when it was discovered that the poplar trees along Shoshone street were being killed under orders from the city council. Indignation over the killing of trees stopped the proceedings for the time being, but will not for any length of time stop the clearing of the trees along business blocks. The Times regrets that such order was issued by the council and questions both right and expediency of such order. It is true that the trees have injured the sidewalks in many places and that it will prove more damaging each year as the roots of the big trees force their way up toward the surface under the pavement. Sooner or later when Shoshone street is built up as a business street the trees will have to go, but it seems a pity to sacrifice any trees where trees are so scarce and hard to protect as in this city. If possible there should be some means taken by the citizens who want the trees cared for to see that the individual property owner whose paving is damaged is re-imbursement for the damage. For after all it is within the right of the property owner thus owning trees to cut the same out at any time and no one could stop him. In fact the property owner is one upon whom the citizens interested in saving the trees should work to save the trees and not the city council.

Twin Falls had its carnival, and after it is all over the question naturally arises, "What good did it do for the country?" The blow-out had no educational value, since no attempt was made to display the country's products. When we acknowledge the success of the entertainment as a sort of half-way leg show, with contraband booze on the side for everybody, we have said it all. The dancing exhibition given on the streets on two nights, and particularly the last, was nothing short of disgraceful. But if Twin Falls wants that sort of thing we suppose it is their business.—Kimberly Call.

WHICH ARE YOU?

The pessimist is a man who carries his face in a sling and a grouch up his sleeve in case of an emergency. He always has with him a magnifying glass through which to look for trouble. He'll meet trouble half way any time and if trouble runs he'll chase himself out of breath trying to overtake it. The sun hurts his eyes. The songs of birds sound to him, like filling a saw, and laughter gives him a headache. He growls and snarls and thus leads a dog's life. He doesn't know who made the world but he thinks it a bum job whoever did it.

He is never happy unless he is miserable. He is about as welcome in company as the smallpox. He carries a bottle of vinegar in one hand and a cork in the other, and he goes about spilling the vinegar in his wake. A lemon is sweet in comparison with him. The good natured man will go nine miles out of his way to avoid a pessimist.

The pessimist always predicts disaster. If disaster happens, he says: "I told you so." If it doesn't happen, he says: "Just wait, it will next time."

If he ever had any smile of humor in his soul it has turned to bitterness. He belongs to the "Worst-Is-Goin'-to-Happen League." He is the morgue of the Sunshine Sunshiners, and complaining secretary of the Wet Blanket Brigade.

An Optimist belongs to the "O Bo Joyful Brigade." He knows where there is a bright side to everything and he strains his eyesight looking for it. No matter how cloudy the day he says: "Cheer up, the sun is shining somewhere!" If he accidentally gets an arm taken off he says: "Gee, I'm glad it wasn't my head!" If he can't sing he whistles. You may knock him down, but he'll never take the count. If he makes a mistake, he says: "Look at the experience I got!" He has so many friends he can't count them. Everybody is always glad to see him come and sorry to see him go. He sheds trouble as a duck's back sheds water. When he sees you moping out here in the sun—it's great! Instead of crying over spilled milk he forgets it and resolves to keep the lid on the milk can not time. He believes a smile is a good thing, and for that reason passes it along. You can hear him a mile off, and you're sorry when the echo dies away—he's not afraid of breaking his face. Rich or poor, sick or well, full or hungry, tired or rested, day in and day out, from one year's end to the other, the optimist is full of joy, hope and cheer. Be an optimist. Shake your grouch. Be happy while you're here. Smile Friends, Smile.—Fraternal News.

Treating Virtually Obligatory.

A man who prefers company when he drinks, or when he eats, is more unattractive than the man who prefers to eat or drink alone. But treating as a custom degenerates into ostentatious vulgarity and causes a great deal of interference and financial inconvenience. A deal of fun has been packed at the socially "Dutch treat" in this country, but if the custom of treating the social drinker were universal, the per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages would be much less than it is, and the evils of drink would be greatly diminished. Treating is so much the rule that it has ceased to rate as a peculiarity. It is now custom. The etiquette of the bar room makes it virtually obligatory to return the treat in an obnoxious like a poker debt, that no one who wishes to retain the respect of his acquaintances, acquaintances avoid. The custom of treating is being abandoned by the decadents, but that is its last will. It compels men who are not habituated to be inebriated to drink more than they want or need to have—exchange.

New Women of Pella.

Persian women are essentially feminine. They want our dress, our education, our freedom, our happiness. It will be observed, common first in the catalogue of feminine wants, but a change of dress or coiffure seems essential to all revolution any movements.

In Pella, in place of the face veil of white cloth the Persian now wears a small square of black net or woven horse hair; her shoes have high heels; a European skirt has taken the place of the short skirt and narrow trousers; the headscarf is being abandoned. One lady tried to introduce an outfit to take the place of the "chudidar," leaving the face heavily veiled; but it was too revolutionary even for Tehran, and, after being mistaken for the Shah in disguise, the wearer reverted to dress to more orthodox clothes. In her home the new woman wears a turban instead of the water pipe—Modern World.

Victim for Even Building.

The belief, illustrated in the ballad of "The Bridge of Arts," that a human victim is required to insure the stability of a bridge or building survives in Greece today. A. Lawson says: "There is no murder now. It suffices to obtain, preferably from an enemy or an old person, a hair, nail, paring, shred of clothing, old shoe or a thread of hair, and then the person's height or footprint measure, and bury these beneath the foundation stone. The victim dies within a year, but the building is safe."

Even a shadow will do. Mr. Lawson himself dragged back by a friend in Santorini so that his shadow might not fall across such a fatal spot; and the mayor of Agrigento told him that his four predecessors had all died from losing their shadows to fall on foundation stones laid by them.

Hard One on Hoiter.

William Hoiter, one of William Randolph Hoiter's right-hand men, is not quite as bald as he can be, but, at that, he is not displaying what might be called a "mop of hair." He is a little bit of a "mop" and a splendid set of dark-brown hair, Hoiter each morning devotes much affectionate care and painstaking devotion. No luxuriant locks were ever combed by Mr. Hoiter with care or skill than is lavished by Hoiter on those few strands which have withstood the disastrous onslaught of time. Hoiter's particular hair back-station. One day Hoiter was with a little girl. To be exact, her age was seven—like time of curiosity and other frankness. Suddenly she paused in her chatter and gazed with wide eyes at Hoiter's head. "What a mop of hair!" she said. "I saw a black streak on your head?"—Popular Magazine.

Cat Put Up Violent Fight.

While calling at a friend's ranch the other day, a young Italian nobleman, who is ranching near Monterey, Cal., was attacked by a huge Maltese cat, a pet of the household. He severely bit on the hand and in the back. He was walking up the steps of the house when the cat attacked him. The animal sank its teeth into the fleshy part of his back and clung to him with building tenacity. In attempting to pull the cat off his back, the victim was bitten on the hand. The cat followed him to the gate, and he was obliged to use a club to drive it off.

The President.

The president of the United States has nothing whatever to do with the making of the laws of the individual states or of the United States. He is purely and simply the national executive, his business being to carry out the laws that are made by the congress. In order to be able to make laws the president would need to be an absolute monarch, like the czar of Russia or the Sultan of Turkey. As it is, he is simply the head servant of the people, with his duties slowly laid down in the constitution; and from which he cannot deviate. Instead of making the laws the laws are made by the legislative servants of the people for him to execute.

"DIAMONDFIELD JACK" SHOT

Noted Character Shot by Things in Butte.

Butte, Sept. 25.—The desperate fight that he engaged in last night with three "bad men," who had sworn to kill him, came near being a "diamondfield jack" Davis's last battle. A bullet plowed its way through his jaw and into his tongue, while he slashed and lunked at his assailants with his knife. The bullet was taken from his tongue with a pair of pliers.

Late last night the doctors declared that the picturesque character, whose gameness has never been questioned, would live.

"Diamondfield Jack" Davis was sentenced ten years ago at Albion, Idaho, to be hanged, but was reprieved and granted his acquittal. He is known from Old Mexico to Butte. In fact, wherever the mining industry has made great headway.

The shooting occurred in the Montana Auto Supply house, and during a scuffle Davis slashed two of his three assailants, one of whom the police arrested. He is shot Ryan of Butte, a well-known I. W. W.

"Diamondfield Jack's" last escape is probably as thrilling as any he has yet had in his adventurous career. He was told Wednesday afternoon by a tall man in Dave Morgan's saloon that his presence was not wanted.

and that he better get out. Davis is the owner of considerable mining property in several states, including some property in Montana. Outside of strikes which he had at Goldfield, Nev., when he had trouble with the I. W. W., he never took the warning coming from them, but as he had not concluded his business in Butte, he says, he informed the man that he would not leave Butte until he got ready.

"I had come into this store to see if I could not secure a job for a young friend of mine whom I knew in Goldfield," he said last night. "While I was talking to the proprietor three men entered. Two were middle aged, one of the two wearing a long coat and a cap. The one in the middle was only a youth. They came up to where I was talking to the clerk and asked for some 25 ammunition. As soon as the clerk turned to get it the man in the middle turned to me and said: 'Now, you—' He whipped out his knife, he spoke. I grabbed his arm and jerked my knife out of my pocket. We scuffled for a minute and I felt the floor. As I went down, I caught him a slash in the small of his back behind his kidneys. I thought my time had come. I kept hold of him with one hand and from the floor I saw the flash of the red streaked buttons of the I. W. W. I kept scuffling and lunging at the three men, the other two having run up as soon as I struck the floor. I kicked with all my might. After the shot I think I gave one of the men a good cut with my knife, and cut out a tooth with the bullet hit. Then I broke loose and ran out the back way."

Davis's entrance into the Flinn hotel created a sensation. His face was

GROW PLENTY OF ALFALFA

But Feed It on the Farm to Stock Is Cry.

A year or so ago indignant consumers in several cities of the United States, in protest against the high price of alfalfa, were organizing rallies and protesting themselves to alfalfa from beef, veal, pork and mutton. They were, however, the impression that the packing houses were buying cheap and selling dear, and their first unreasoning impulse was to start a movement that would so reduce consumption of alfalfa that the packing house trust would fall to its knees and lower prices to where they were a few years ago.

ACTION AROUSES INTEREST

Case to Test Right to Tax Unimproved Cured Aet Land.

The announcement that the King Hill Taxpayers' union proposes to test the right of the state to assess and raise taxes from the unimproved lands within the King Hill Carey area project on which they are settlers, has aroused widespread interest, particularly in the southern part of the state, due to the importance of the question involved. Additional interest will be created by the announcement that in all probability when the question is raised before the district court for Owyhee county it will be so presented as to involve a federal question, permitting a review of the laws of the federal court if it is deemed advisable.

When it is realized that there are hundreds of thousands of acres involved in Carey act lands in this state and that one of the projects, that of the American Falls, has been purchased by the federal government, and that the settlers on these lands are being annually assessed for taxation purposes, some idea of the magnitude and importance of the question involved can be appreciated. It is said that it is for this reason that care will be taken in perfecting the case so that it can be taken into the federal courts following hearings in the state courts.

A similar but not exactly the same question is involved in the case of Botwell versus Blingham county. There the government patented about 2,000 acres of land in the American Falls project to the state and the assessor of Blingham county assessed the lands for 1911, the year in which the government patented the lands. However the settler did not receive patent to his lands within the project until the following February. Both well contrasted the right of the county to tax his land until he had received patent. Judge Stevens held against his contention and the supreme court affirmed Judge Stevens.

Proceedings in error are said to have just been completed in this case on which to base an appeal to the supreme court of the United States from the findings of the supreme court of this state. The outcome will be watched with interest.

In the King Hill controversy the land has not been pushed to patent or the government has not issued patent and the settlers claim that the county assessor cannot assess the land for state taxes. They are willing and have paid their local taxes but have refused to pay the state.—Capital News.

STOCKS SHIPMENTS ARE IN PROCESS

The crops in every line this season are exceptionally heavy, and in addition to the tonnage of wheat and potatoes being sent out, beet hauling is now in progress and the several districts in the state have to be supplied. As an instance showing the bulk of local business at this point, during the twenty-four hours between midnight Thursday and last night, just thirty-one freight trains left Pocatello. The trains would average 40 cars or better for each section.

Traffic is on the increase, and will probably continue throughout the month of October. There is strong demand from the east for Idaho potatoes, and much grain in bulk is being shipped.

Stock shipments are likewise exceptionally large, one item from a single company, the Wards Livestock company, comprehends the use of 210 cars before the season closes.—Pocatello Tribune.

ARGUE TWIN FALLS CASE

Judge Dietrich Takes Matter Under Advisement at Close of Hearing.

Arguments were heard by Judge Dietrich in the United States district court Saturday morning on a motion to re-open the case of the Twin Falls Canal company against the Twin Falls Land & Water company. The court took the motion under advisement.

The Twin Falls Canal company is the settlers' operating company and the Twin Falls Land & Water company the Carey act company, behind which are the Kuhn brothers. The relations of the two have been the occasion of considerable litigation.

The land and water controversy wishes to raise the height of the Minner dam 10 inches on one side, and has therefore moved to reopen the case for the introduction of more evidence. The canal company opposes the raising of the dam on the ground that it would make the structure unsafe.—Statesman.

BEAUTIFUL BUILDINGS OF THE WORLD

"Learn One Thing Every Day"

No. 1. TAJ MAHAL

Copyright, 1913, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

At the top of a precipice overlooking the River Jumna in India, stands the "most poetic mausoleum in the world. The Taj Mahal, "a dream in marble, designed by Titans and finished by jewelers," is the tomb built by

Shah Jahan, the Moslem emperor, for his wife Mumtaz Mahal, whom he called

Taj-ul-Hill. She was the loveliest beauty of the Indies, and Shah Jahan loved her so passionately that he thought of no other woman while she lived and was lost in grief at her death. He vowed that her tomb should be the most beautiful building on earth.

The Taj is of some-what costly outside and jeweled marble within. It was planned by a Persian, Ustad Isa,

who designed in the Persian style

the Indian style of architecture.

Twenty thousand men worked twenty-two years to finish it. In the center of a great square paved with white marble and having a slender tower of the same stone at each corner rises

the memorial of Taj-ul-Hill, not merely a masterpiece of architecture, but also a perfect interpretation of womanly nature. The spirit of Mumtaz Mahal seems to have been carved into the marble.

The marble work of the interior is the finest to be found in any eastern country. Precious stones are used invariably—jasper and agate, carnellian and chalcidony. Marble-lace work of wonderful fineness adorns the windows and doorways. In the center are the tombs of Mumtaz Mahal

and Shah Jahan; but their bodies, according to Indian custom, lie in a vault beneath the building. Shah

Jahan had begun a tomb for himself on the opposite side of the river, which he never finished because An-zarang, his son, rebelled against him and took away the empire. He was therefore buried by the side of his beloved wife.

Shah Jahan was a cold and haughty man; but he ruled India well, and his pride was softened in later life by the death of his wife. It is said that his reign he brought India peace and prosperity by putting all his rivals to death. Finally the Taj Mahal,

two other famous buildings, the Pearl

Mosque at Agra and the great mausoleum of Delhi, which were built by Shah Jahan have made his reign one of the most memorable in Indian history. The emperor's treasury must have been practically unlimited; for the perfect throne and the Taj Mahal were estimated by Tavernier to be worth fifty million dollars. The cost of the Taj Mahal alone is said to have cost eight millions.

There is a legend that when he had finished the Taj Mahal, Shah Jahan

made a will to the effect that if he over the cliff in the River Jumna, for fear he might plan another building as beautiful as the Taj.

No. 2. THE ALHAMBRA

The people about Granada have always held that the Palace of the Alhambra was built under a magic spell.

To their minds human workmanship

and the power of wealth are too feeble for the erection of a structure so enduring and magnificent. Indeed, great wealth is not nearly enough

the skill that balanced those halls and gardens and towers one against the other with perfect symmetry, or the patience that worked out each interlaced design without error in either the art or the coloring.

Plans and expense were not spared

in the construction, and it is no wonder that the Spaniards should have thought the work superlatively. Still pillars of the rarest white marble give grace to every corner of the palace.

The carvings and designs are everywhere, and where these are not related between the ceiling, the red,

and yellow, the purest colors only are used. The blue is ultra-marine, made from a precious stone, a lapis lazuli

of the Egyptians, which never fades.

Besides warmth of color and grace of form, the Moorish architects worked with fire. The thousands of carvings, the richness of the colors, the supply of water from the mountains to fill those baths, fountains, and marble-bordered ponds for which the columns and pavilions of the Alhambra

are famous. In spite of earthquakes

the columns and arches have nearly all held their place and their perfect form. The palace that Charles V.

built there in a vain effort to rival the Moorish masterpiece, and for which he made room by removing part of the Alhambra palace, stands today an un-

NEW BAREBACK RIDERS

Barnes Animal Circus Has Thrilling Stunts With Lions and Leopards.

Every circus of any size is important. It has a corps of equestrians, no less than the Al G. Barnes Big Show Wild Animal Circus. In fact, the Barnes circus probably has more of them than any other circus. But, as in almost every department of this circus—the conventional has been upset, and wild animals are used for horsemen instead of human.

For instance, a full grown Russian bear, cougar, leopard, an African lion, some dogs, monkeys, etc., ride galloping horses.

Not only do these animals ride galloping ponies, but while so engaged, they perform astonishing feats of balancing, juggling, back somersaults, leap over hurdles and jump through hoops of fire.

Most remarkable and amazing are the feats performed by Tom, Dick and Harry, juggling, monkey, ball playing sessions. This act is one of the most remarkable animal training successes known.

More than 250 trained animals are exhibited with the Barnes circus. Great groups of man-eating lions, tigers, leopards, and other ferocious beasts are presented in a large steel arena by a coterie of famous men and women trainers.

Clean-cut, clever comedy is provided by a troupe of ten clowns. Comedy elephants, mules, monkeys, bears and dogs will also make you laugh. You can't keep from it.

A four band, glittering mile-long street parade is presented at 10:30. Two performances will be given here Saturday, October 4.

T. R. AFTER TAMMANY

Makes Appeal to Citizens of New York to Down Tican.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27.—In an address before the state convocation of the Progressive party today, Colonel Roosevelt declared that in the election in New York state this fall the "dominant concern of the people should be to prevent Tammany from obtaining complete control of the state, and that to this the lesser issues must give way."

He argued that "the preponderance in which the state funds its political affairs is due to the failure of Tammany, however, Roosevelt urged voters to support Progressive party candidates to the end that they might defeat Tammany "without enthroning the Republican machine" in its place.

"This year," Colonel Roosevelt said, "there are four quarters of supreme political importance for decision before the people. First, the election of the assembly, stands for itself. The other three are of the greatest importance, the impeachment of the governor of the state; the election in the great city of New York; and the election of two judges of the court of appeals. At this moment that which contains the most menace to all the state is Tammany Hall."

"In New York city we Progressives are doing all that we can to elect a non-partisan ticket headed by a Progressive Democrat, a tried and excellent public official, John J. Mitchell, so as to keep the municipal government out of control of Tammany Hall."

"In the state, we are doing all that we can to elect a Progressive ticket, a ticket which will be a battle against Tammany Hall in the governorship, fight because Tammany is attacking the governor, not for what he may have done before his election, but because since the election he has stood for honesty and the rights of people."

"I wish to call upon conservatives, who have been the chief support of the Progressive doctrine of the small, to consider whether you prefer the result exercised by the people themselves at the polls, and the strength of the political machine at the end of a telephone. Capital News.

JARBIDGE MAN INVENTOR

Has Invented Case to Dampen Sound of Typewriter.

J. F. O'Hryne, the Jarbridge city engineer, after spending the past two days in Elko, Idaho, tomorrow for Oden, where he will spend a day or two conferring with a representative of a Springfield, Mass., manufacturing firm, Mr. O'Hryne is the inventor of a case to dampen the sound of typewriters, having secured a patent upon his discovery from the United States patent office on October 19, 1912. Articles dealing with his invention have appeared in the Scientific American, Popular Mechanics and other magazines dealing with mechanics.

The invention is one of several now being perfected by O'Hryne and has the possibilities of being just what the typewriter manufacturing firms have been seeking for years. The typewriter, with the exception of the keys, is enclosed in a case, the bottom being composed of iron or steel, and the top of glass, permitting the operator to see the work of the keys. The top fits snug and with the aid of a small electrical pump a vacuum is created within the machine. As soon as the vacuum is created the machine is noiseless. It can be operated in a court room, convention hall, or in fact any place, and not the slightest bit of noise will result.

A small vacuum tank is necessarily connected with the machine, and the pump is operated by electricity. In every large, modern business building, each individual office has electrical connections for vacuum cleaners. This same connection can be used to operate the pump. Within a second after the machine is closed the vacuum is created. The covering is opened or closed with the aid of a key attached to the keyboard. Should the operator desire to open the covering and press a sheet of paper, the key is pressed and the cover opens automatically. The paper once inserted another key is touched and the machine closes. The vacuum conditions is secured in less than a second's time, for the air is instantly drawn into the vacuum chamber attached and extended from the receptacle by aid of the pump. Elko Times-Press.

to the open where one has a clear view opportunity to study them, is certainly something out of the ordinary. A full three hours time is afforded to make this study at every performance given. Also, each afternoon after the performance one can witness the feeding of these wild animals.

During the feeding hour the lions, tigers, leopards and other ferocious flesh-eating animals are in uproarious activity. Their ferocity and great strength is equally shown. To witness their feeding gives one a better idea of what it means to be a trainer of jungle beasts.

The 350 wild animals with this menagerie are all actors—every one of them have a stunt to do—they all earn their keep. The show program is almost entirely given by them. Fifty big numbers are encompassed in the program.

You'll have at least thirty big round laughs, too, provoked by clown—ten in number, and Danger, Dynamite, and Hurray, fun making antics. A troupe of comical clowns also troupe in provoking laughter.

A four-band, mile-long street parade is given at 10:30. Two performances will be given here Saturday, October 4.

MOVE CROPS WITH TRUCKS

Farmers of American Falls Employ Engines to Draw Wagons.

The wheat crop produced on the dry land farms in the vicinity of American Falls, Idaho, is so heavy and so extensive that the producers of that section, despairing of ever getting it to market by the conventional methods, have adopted modern methods and have bought a number of caterpillar engines of big horse power to which they will hitch a number of heavily loaded grain wagons, hauling the wheat to market a car load at a time. Such a system of moving crops has been built to carry the heavy grain loads and wagons alone weighing 2200 pounds, each equipped with six-inch tires and solid steel axles. The wagons are equipped to carry 10,000 pounds each and there will be several wagons to each train. The county commissioners have found it necessary to have all bridges along the line of travel strengthened in order to sustain the great weight. Idaho Falls Register.

BOY'S NECK BROKEN

Fall From Horse Ends Life of Ashton Youth.

Last Sunday evening, Hamlet Hanson, 12-year-old son of Mrs. T. H. Moneyham of Drummond, was thrown from a horse which he was riding out to turn to pasture. The boy was not missed for about half an hour after he went with the horse, his mother and step-father thinking that perhaps he had stopped to talk with some boys who were camping near by.

When it began to get dark and the boy did not return they set out to look for him and found him apparently lifeless body. Dr. Price was called and he stated life was gone and that the boy's neck was broken, he having died instantly.

The remains were shipped Wednesday morning to the old home at Mt. Pleasant, Utah, where all that was earthly of the young man will be laid to rest. Mr. and Mrs. Moneyham accompanied the body.

We knew young Hamlet and always found him to be pleasant and well-mannered, exceptionally bright and a boy with high ideals. The Enterprise joins the many friends of the family in extending sympathy to them in their sad bereavement.—Ashton Enterprise.

A Little Talk on Home Affairs

There are hundreds of swindlers in this land who take people's money for subscriptions and move on to the next town to spend it. Usually these confidence men offer magazines at greatly reduced prices.

No standard magazine, that is, no magazine you really want, permits anyone to reduce its price. You cannot buy the kind of subscription you want, cheaper than through your newsdealer.

Don't pay money for subscriptions—goods not delivered—to people you do not know. Your dollar buys rent and taxes and guarantees that your subscriptions will be properly placed with the publisher. Also he is on the spot as the publisher's agent when anything goes wrong.
