AMERICA BREAKS WITH MEXICO

Note Drawn by President Sent to Huerta Authorities

THIS COUNTRY NOW AWAITS THE REPLY.

Assumption of Dictatorial Powers by President Huerta Characterized as Abhorrent.

Washington—The United States government informed President Huerta Tuesday that it looked with abhorrence and dismay upon his assumption of both executive and legislative powers in Mexico and that in view of his course, could not regard as constitutional the elections planned for October 25.

Two notes were sent, the one strongly phrased and written by Secretary Bryan, inquiring about the safety of the imprisoned members of the Mexican congress and the other drafted in forceful language by President Wilson himself and said to constitute practically the last effort of the Washington government to deal with the Huerta authorities by diplomatic means unless there is a decided change of spirit on the part of the officials in Mexico City.

The negotiations through John Lind had proceeded to the point where the state department accepted the resignation of Francisco Gamba for the presidency as meaning the elimination of Huerta, and where it was confidently hoped that a fair and honest election would be held on October 20. Now, however, President Wilson has made it clear that the Washington government had with the events of the last few days—the imprisonment of the deputies and the establishment of a dictatorship by Huerta—lost all hope of seeing a constitutional election held by the Huerta regime.

The steps taken by the United States were communicated to all foreign governments. No further negotiations are planned through diplomatic channels and it was not surprising if John Lind, who has been waiting at Vera Cruz to observe the manner in which the Huerta officials carried out their promises, should return to the United States. President Huerta's decree proclaiming himself as in charge of the departments of interior, administration, finance and war was received at the state department. The documents were read at the cabinet meeting and members of the cabinet expressed themselves as astonished at the audacity of General Huerta. They were appalled by President Wilson of the nature of the two communications sent to General Huerta through Charge O'Shaughnessy and all voiced approval of the vigorous representations. The cabinet meeting was about to close when dispatches announced that Senator Querido Moreno, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, had characterized the administration communications as "intemperate."

Official Washington awaits the formal reply being drawn by the Mexican government. Charge O'Shaughnessy reported that he had conveyed such communications and had been answered with respect to the latter that no violence would be done there, but that they would be tried for sedition.

It is the second note of the American government which is said to be only 150 words in length, practically breaking off negotiations with Huerta, which is believed to have prompted Foreign Minister Moreno's description "intemperate."

Administration officials hold that with most of the members of the Mexican congress in jail, a prominent member of congress who dared to speak adversely to the Huerta administration will be summarily executed, and the congress dissolved. It is impossible for the civilized world to believe the Huerta group capable of establishing constitutional authority in the southern republic. They also feel that the Huerta officials no longer are deservingly of such diplomatic relations as have hitherto existed.

As yet there is no concrete evidence that the Washington administration intends to use drastic measures. The White House has discouraged the heads of the army and navy from taking any steps that would give an alarmist impression.

Some officials said they would not be surprised if the failure of the Huerta government to comply with the promises made to the United States cause the Washington administration to throw its support to the constitutionalists of Mexico.

It might carry with it a lifting of the embargo on arms, and many senators think the constitutionalists soon would triumph and the Huerta regime would be overthrown.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan have both expressed such a view, but informal communications during the last two weeks with the

SHOULD ATTEND CHURCH

Three kinds of People Who Ought to Go to Church.

There are three kinds of people who ought especially to go to church regularly. For them absence from religious services is not only a mistake but a serious fault.

The first of these classes consists of those who are church members. Some of these, indeed, are absent from the services because it is impossible for them to attend but there are many others who are extremely irregular in attendance who could easily be present every Sunday. These are the ones to be in their places regularly.

One great reason why they are absent is that they are not sure that they may be helped by the church into a larger manhood or womanhood. If they come only now and then they are hindered when they are very necessary that they most need and those they hear are so infrequent as to be of comparatively small value to them. Of course, the church is not a place where they receive very little so that the very end of their church membership is missed. Paying school fees or enrolling in the school record doesn't give a man an education and giving financial support to a church and being a member of it doesn't insure religious sublimity. For his own sake the church member should go to church.

Then the preacher needs to see the members of his church in their places. In order that he may do his best work. Nothing so encourages the preacher as to see his regulars coming into the church door Sunday after Sunday, rain or shine. Nothing can so dishearten him as to read in the absence of the members of his church in their places. The members of his church, in other words, make it altogether easier to do than to stay away. So the members of the church add to the effectiveness of the preaching by their presence. From it by the regularity or irregularity of their attendance.

The third reason may be put in a sentence. Every time a member of a church goes to its service he is saying, "My church is worth attending."

There is a very real reason for this. The church is not worth attending. It takes a very attractive service to draw those who are attending church members. If you are a member of any church get all you can out of it. It is the very first thing you can do into the hands of your pastor by regular attendance. Move on! Move in! Clear the path that the church is the very first thing you are outside its membership may follow you and hear the proclamation of the Gospel, perhaps, to their salvation.

The second class who should attend church regularly, at least for some little time, is made up of those who are not members of the church. They are the ones who are outside its membership may follow you and hear the proclamation of the Gospel, perhaps, to their salvation.

The third class consists of those who are not members of the church. They are the ones who are outside its membership may follow you and hear the proclamation of the Gospel, perhaps, to their salvation.

Some officials said they would not be surprised if the failure of the Huerta government to comply with the promises made to the United States cause the Washington administration to throw its support to the constitutionalists of Mexico.

INSPECTOR WARNS FRUIT GROWERS

Spraying Laws Will be Rigidly Enforced

FEW OFFENDERS WILL BE MADE TO COMPLY WITH LAW.

Some Orchards of Tract Have Pests That are Dangerous to All Fruit Growers.

Inspector Brannan, in charge of the Twin Falls district fruit inspector, has been working energetically this year to impress upon the fruit growers and orchardists the need for thorough and constant care of the orchards as a safeguard against the formidable tree pests. In most cases the orchards this year have been fairly free from any of the more dangerous tree diseases. A willingness has been shown on the part of most all owners to comply with the state laws regarding spraying and the destruction of condemned trees. As a result the tract had a splendid crop of fruit, the greater part of which has been high grade.

With a few orchards, this, however, is not the rule, and the spraying which has been done was not effective. The idea of the owners being to comply with the letter of the law rather than the spirit. The outcome of such policy is shown this fall when in one or two orchards they lost the largest part of the yield through the devastations of the codling moth, which did not drop the fruit until the second of September. The fruit inspector Brannan stated to the Times that from now on every violation of the laws will be the subject of a warning with the second offense prosecuted to the limit. He says that Twin Falls is building up an enviable reputation this year for its fruit and that no grower has the right to hurt the whole industry by refusing to do the right thing regarding spraying laws.

APPLE TREE BEARS TWICE

Parma Man Has Freak Which Was Maturing Second Crop.

Dr. C. B. Allen, of Parma, has an apple tree that is not satisfied with the one crop of apples usual to its kind. The tree, which is a mature fruit tree, last of July to immediately return to blossoming, the fruit from the second blossoms maturing rapidly and reaching the market in good time. The doctor has not yet decided whether he is the possessor of a valuable apple tree freak or whether a freaky apple season has been a result of a cold and respectable fruit bearer into its one unusual stunt. ## PRESS CLUB MEETING SUNDAY

Eastern Idaho Organization Convened in Pocatello.

The October meeting of the Eastern Idaho Press club will be held in Pocatello next Sunday and Monday. The fall session is devoted wholly to business of the club and the discussion of practical matters of the general newspaper profession. The new secretary, Joe H. DeWitt, of the Rupert Pioneer-Record, has arranged for a number of papers to be read. To judge from the topics of live interest and expects a big crowd of the pencil pushers.

TENNIS MEN IN CONFERENCE

Plans for Next Year Laid Out by Enthusiasts.

The Twin Falls Tennis association held its annual meeting last night and laid plans for next year. Much enthusiasm was manifested among the members, which will be utilized to the best of the association's power. A campaign will be started during the winter for larger membership with the intention of providing permanent courts next year.

THE EDISON TALKING PICTURES

Twin Falls People to have Opportunity to Hear Wonderful Invention. The Kinetophone, or Edison talking pictures, will be seen here for the first time. It is a wonderful, as was his invention of the original moving picture, is the latest discovery of the great wizard Edison. It is a picture that is heard as well as seen. The pictures are exhibited on many stages in the various theatres throughout the country and will soon be the talk of the past. To judge from the little gasps of astonishment and the chorus of "Isn't that something wonderful," that one hears on all sides wherever the pictures are exhibited, the Kinetophone may be called an immense success.

POTATOES YIELD WONDERFUL PROFIT

Walter Parish Holds Record for the Year

POTATOES FROM TEN ACRES RETURN SMALL FORTUNE.

Marketed When Price Was Soaring, Parish's Crop Brings $2527.47.

Probably the best record of the potato industry this year and one that will stand for some time, was reported to the Times this week and confirmed direct by the holder of the record, Walter Parish, one of the early settlers in the Sucker Flat district. Mr. Parish, on ten acres, raised 302,365 pounds of marketable potatoes, and 18,865 pounds of culls or a total of 321,230 pounds. This would give an average of 656.1 bushels per acre for the total and would give a net total of marketable potatoes of 616.5 bushels.

Mr. Parish sold the marketable potatoes at eighty cents F. O. B. the price, nothing a check for $2473.72. The culls sold for forty cents and brought $474.75. The whole crop therefore returned an average of $2527.47 per acre of a good big dividend on land which Mr. Parish purchased as an original entryman for $25.50, including a perpetual water right.

This yield on a single acre has been beaten several times on this tract, but for ten acres, receiving only ordinary attention, Mr. Parish's record will stand for some time.

DELEGATES TO GRAND LODGE

I. O. O. F. Delegates Will Leave For Welser Sunday Morning.

The different branches of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows have elected their representatives to attend the annual meeting of the grand lodge which will convene next Monday. The following are those who will attend from this city: J. G. McAuley, W. Brashers, Subordinates—Sam Crismon, Geo. Schweiger, Golden Rod Rebekah—Mendames Wilson, Rudolph and Grossman, Primrose Rebekah—Mendames Starr, Brashers and Blasett.

NEW IRRIGATION PROJECT

C. W. Parks Starting Work on 12,000 Acre Project Near Artesian Spring.

C. W. Parks left Wednesday morning for Artesian City, where he was to commence work on the canal which will irrigate 12,000 acres of rich land around that place. The water will be secured from Cottonwood Creek and carried over clear from the source. Mr. Parks says that his company has secured a first class water right and that work on the canal will be pushed as rapidly as this fall if the weather will permit.

HIGH SCHOOL RECEPTION.

Juniors Entertain in Honor of Faculty and Alumni of School.

The high school auditorium was the scene of a gay party last Saturday evening, when the juniors held a reception in honor of the faculty, alumni and other classes. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion in the school colors. In the receiving line were David Blasett, class president, class vice president, Bessie Warner, and Wilbur Bolton, Carlisle Pickett and Miss Lucile Cameron of the class council. During the evening dainty refreshments were served.

RESOLUTIONS.

To the L. O. O. F., Twin Falls Lodge. The committee appointed to draft resolutions of condolence to Bro. Atkinson, upon the death of his wife, recommended the adoption of the following: "Whereas, Bro. Atkinson is not only a faithful and loyal member of this lodge; and Whereas, he has suffered the loss of his wife and is now bowed down with grief and suffering by reason thereof; Resolved, by Twin Falls lodge No. 612, Order of Odd Fellows, that we do hereby extend to him in the hour of sorrow and bereavement, our sincere condolences and brotherly sympathy, and extend to him assurances of our deep fraternal regard."

O'NEIL BEGINS SENTENCE

Brought to Boise With Four Other Prisoners.

Not even when the steel gates of the state penitentiary closed behind him, not to open again for at least two years, did B. F. O'Neil, former convicted banker, lose his nerve. With a smile and cheerful he faced the ordeal when he arrived in the city Monday night to commence serving his term. With him came four other prisoners on similar missions, and none exhibited more fortitude than did O'Neil, the man who had lost the most in the way of position. Of the lot, none was better fitted to position to feel the disgrace of conviction than O'Neil, yet he seemed more carefree than any of the five. O'Neil arrived in the city at 3 o'clock, accompanied by the four other prisoners. Dan Ackley, deputy warden of the penitentiary, was in charge of the party. Warden Shook, with an automobile, met the men at the station. They were taken immediately to the penitentiary.

Arriving there, O'Neil was at once given a complete change of clothing and shown to a cell. This morning he will be photographed in prison garb and his height and weight measurements taken. Immediately thereafter he will enter on the routine of prison life just like any other prisoner who has been convicted of a crime.

O'Neil declined to see the newspaper men, though he was given a chance to do so. He expressed a desire to get inside the prison walls and commence convict life at once.

Warden Shook has not yet decided what line of work his banker-captive will do. Just at the present time, with the harvest season over and the state road work not yet started, there is a lack of work for the men to do, and many of them are idle. O'Neil will be shown no partiality, however, and if there is work to be done he will help out for several months from ten to fifteen years. As president of the defunct bank of Commerce of Wallace he was convicted of making false reports to the state bank examiner.

Several other charges were preferred against him and are now pending. O'Neil was convicted of making a charge on which he never came to the penitentiary some time ago, but his case went to the supreme court and people of Twin Falls for several months in the Kootenai county jail at Coeur d'Alene, awaiting the outcome of it. What action will be taken on the other charges against him is not yet known, with the failure of the bank remains to be seen.

O'Neil does not seem to have suffered from confinement in the Kootenai county jail. He appears to be in good physical condition and does not show the prison pallor—Statesman.

"AN EVENING WITH RILEY"

At the Christian Church, Wednesday October 23, 1913.

Judge J. D. Fienner, of Boise, will give "An Evening with Riley," at the Christian church, under the auspices of the Ideal Bible class on the evening of Oct. 23. Judge Fienner is well known and favorably known in the literary circles of the city. He has been here before. No doubt he will have a large hearing. There is some doubt among those who know his drawing power as to whether the church will be able to contain the people but the committee having it in charge has no doubt as to the success of the affair. Extra chairs if necessary. Note the following:

"He Out-Riley 'Riley'—Washington, D. C. The best that has come down the pike."—St. Louis Republican.

Best Riley interpreter on the American platform."—Los Angeles Examiner.

"Interprets Riley with remarkable fidelity."—Sen. W. E. Borah.

"Judge Fienner understands Riley perfectly and interprets his best words with a fidelity and naturalness that captivates."—Ex-Gov. Hanley.

Free admission is within reach of all.

JUDGE LOVETT COMING

Head of Harriman System Will Inspect Oregon Short Line.

According to private advices received in Salt Lake today Judge Robert S. Lovett, chief of the Harriman system, will leave Kansas City for Salt Lake City next Monday, which will bring him here after Saturday night or Sunday. Judge Lovett will be here to attend in person the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Union Pacific, but the primary object of his western tour at this time is to inspect the Oregon Short Line and its proposed improvement and extension. While here, Judge Lovett will be taken over the line of the Oregon Short Line and visit into the new territories proposed to be opened up through extensions, particularly the Twin Falls district—Deseret News, Salt Lake.

Aggressive use of the classified code will rent good properties, in or out of season, and practically not out of season, and practically not out of season.

INVESTIGATING RAILROAD BONDS

Cutter, May & Company Sends Representative

BONDS FOR TWIN FALLS RAILWAY PLACED ON MARKET.

Representative Ransom of Chicago, Pleaded with Conditions on This Tract.

C. G. Ransom, head bond salesman for the Cutter, May Company of Chicago, has been studying for this city for several days looking very carefully into the conditions of the country tributary to the city. Ransom was sent on his mission, which purchased $50,000 worth of bonds from Twin Falls State Railway, to see the proposition in the eastern world while to handle. Every opportunity was given Mr. Ransom to see the actual conditions and to view the territory which the railway will work and his opinion, given freely, was that the whole tract was a wonderful surprise. He will return to Chicago, a hearty booster for the Twin Falls country.

Work of rehabilitating the right of way, laying down rails, will be pushed as fast as possible and the company expects to have the rails laid to the boundary of the city November first and will then push on to the falls before cold weather stops work.

BIG SEED SHIPMENT

5,000,000 Pounds Dried Peas Shipped From Idaho This Fall.

That over 5,000,000 pounds of dried peas raised in the Twin Falls and Idaho Falls country have been shipped out of Idaho this year to the eastern markets, is the report made by two traveling freight agents, who have been looking after shipments for their clients. The report is from the fact that the big seed houses in Michigan and New York have been furnishing seed to the ranches in that locality. The seed has been raised by them at a good figure until the industry has now been built up to an enormous one and is one of the spokes in the wheel of agricultural wealth which is being acquired by the Gem State as a seed producing commonwealth of the west. In the past several years the Twin Falls country has been shipping peas to the eastern market, a large amount of which is unexported and every year a heavier demand is being placed upon that section for the product. Alfalfa seed and seed oats have been shipped from the Twin Falls country to the eastern states and within a few years it is predicted by men acquainted with conditions that Idaho will be one of the leading seed raising states in the union.—Capital News.

STAMPING OUT CHOLERA

Dr. F. E. Freeman, Assistant State Veterinarian, Inspecting Cattle.

Dr. F. E. Freeman, assistant state veterinarian, was in the city yesterday from Butte. In conversation with the Times he stated that he was making a personal inspection of the cattle and assailing the farmers who have cholera among their herds. He said he found most of the herds more than willing to carry out instructions in regard to burning dead dogs and the quarantines those who refuse to follow such instructions will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

THE EDISON TALKING PICTURES

Most Wonderful Invention Ever Discovered.

The Edison talking pictures, which have been publicly viewed and heard, are the most wonderful invention ever discovered. It is a picture that is heard as well as seen. ## HEALTH AND HYGIENE

(By the Idaho State Board of Health.)

Crying Babies.

Baby cries only when there is a cause. Find the cause and remove it. Perhaps he has had too much food. Perhaps an enemy has given him candy. Perhaps an enemy has given him a pickle. Perhaps he is dressed too warmly. Perhaps he needs a clean diaper. Perhaps he needs a little water. Perhaps his bowels have not moved. Perhaps a pin is sticking him. Perhaps a bug bite is being pressed into his back. Perhaps he has been trotted or bounced. Perhaps he has been carried in the arms overmuch. Perhaps he has been taken ceiling, a cookie given him. Perhaps candy or smitten tea has been forced down him. Perhaps an enemy has given him a pacifier. Perhaps his feet are cold. Perhaps some enemy with decayed teeth and a bad breath has kissed him. Perhaps an enemy has given him a scolding. Perhaps he has not been fed regularly. Perhaps someone has been smoking in the room. See that your baby is registered.

Sleep.

Babies under two years old should sleep from 12 to 15 hours in 24. Babies should sleep alone. Every year many babies are unmothered to death, their mothers going to sleep with them in the big bed. Babies should sleep in a well ventilated room. Bad air makes bad and sick babies. Babies should be taught to go to sleep at 6 p. m. until three years old. After that gradually raise the limit to 8 p. m. Babies should not be put to sleep in the mother's arms. It is bad for mother and baby. Babies should not be rocked to sleep. Babies should be protected from all excitement. Babies should never be given soothing syrup. See that your baby is registered.

Exercise.

Babies should play. Babies should play in the open air when possible. Babies should not be tickled. Babies like to romp. Romp with them. Babies may be gently rolled and kneaded in the bath a little for exercise. Babies like to romp and play on the floor. Be sure to spread a sheet or washable rug on the carpet, for carpets hold dirt and germs tracked in by dogs, cats and human feet. Babies should not play on the floor in cold weather. Let them play on the bed. Babies should not be fastened for a long time in their high chairs or go-carts for then they will not develop. Babies' playthings should be frequently washed and kept in the open air. The kitchen stove to kill any germs which might be on them. See that your baby is registered.

Clothing.

Babies should be dressed lightly and loosely in clothing fitting the season. Babies' underwear should be cotton and wool mixed goods. Babies' feet must be kept dry. Babies' socks should be knitted or crocheted of soft, woolen or cotton and wool yarn. Babies' throats must not be tied up except in severe weather. Throat protectors make weak throats. Babies should have broad, soft and loose shoes. Babies should never have their faces protected with veils, except in severe weather. They need the air which veils keep away. Advice to Nursing Mothers. Don't worry. Cultivate calm. Get full eight hours sleep. Sleep in a well ventilated room. Take a walk out of doors every day except when the weather is inclement. Take a daily bath. A sponge bath is good. Eat only plain foods. Pass salads, pickles, gherkins. Eat moderately of meats. Eat freely of fruits and vegetables. Don't become constipated. Relieve constipation by attending to nature's calls, by cultivating a regular habit, by eating very freely of fruits and drinking plenty of pure water. Don't take patent medicines of any kind, except as the doctor directs. Take a nap every afternoon, or at least lie down on a rest for half an hour. Don't drink tea or coffee. The tannin they contain causes constipation, and the caffeine they contain is a nerve whipper, and is bad for mother and child. Don't allow yourself to become angry. Fits of temper injure the breast milk. Nurse your baby only five or six times daily, and cut down the milk supply if the baby vomits it. Don't nurse your baby at night after it is six months old. See that your baby is registered.

HE TOOK A CHANCE

Thrilling Experience of American Miner With Mexican Revolutionists.

By WALTER JOSEPH DELANEY.

I opened the door of my room at the little Mexican hotel at Guyara at the summons of an unexpected knock—rapid, nervous, appealing—so face the most beautiful woman I had ever seen.

She was trembling visibly. Those deep dark blue eyes were scintillating with a seeming terror. She glanced up and down the corridor as if momentarily expecting some hovering doom. Then, breathlessly:

"Senior, in the name of humanity, as a friend, as a brother, as—," she glanced at my gray wig (I used) at the mature obscuring colored spectacles I wore—"as a father," she added more assuringly; "let me in. Allow me to hide—to occupy your room for the next thirty minutes."

It was a period of war's alarms, of unusual happenings. All that portion of the republic was in a turmoil. I was engaged upon a peculiar mission, hence disguised. She was pretty, she was pleading. I stepped past her into the hall, lifted by hat and said courteously:

"With pleasure. It is your apartment—at your will," and I heard the door closed on the inside and went down to the lobby, applauding myself for a kind deed. In a very few moments two men in uniform accompanied by a servant came bustling down the stairs and up to the desk of the hotel clerk. They were red, perspiring, angry.

"We have not found her!" spoke one of the officers.

"The lady you describe, register name Hermosa. Alivina was given room 41 this morning."

"It is unoccupied; we have visited other rooms. She is not to be found. One apartment was bolted on the inside."

"Observe!"

"He was 49," spoke the servant. "Ah! that is your room, is it not, senior?" interrogated the clerk, and I arose and came forward.

"Kine," I bowed with alacrity, for it was not a time to falter or arouse suspicion. "I just left it."

"And locked it?"

"No."

"Kine?"

The clerk reached behind him and handed a check and a hammer to the servant with the added words: "It is under process of the law, and there fore legal. Force the door."

I followed the group up the staircase. From what was said I estimated that my lady Hermosa was running away from a rebel guardian, to join a patriot lover in the City of Mexico. Once at the rail station fifty miles away she would be beyond the limit of legal detention.

"Empty!" pronounced the head officer in a sour, disappointed tone as the barrier was forced, and he darted a swift glance about the room.

"Observe!" shrilly called but his comports, lifting a slimy dainty dress from a chair, "Again," he added, and pointed to the open window.

A sheet twisted into a rope dangled into the shallow court below. The leader paused momentarily to direct a scowling glance at me.

"If I thought you were a party to this escapade—" he began.

"I followed the group up the staircase calmly, with an indifferent shrug of the shoulders. "I am the loser, as I miss a suit of clothes."

This was true. Just before the fair applicant had appeared, I had laid out from my wardrobe a suit which I intended to wear the remainder of my journey. I took my loss philosophically. I had lost a good deal lately, I and my partner, back at the mines. In a wholesale way I suffered the pretty creation of lace and silk into my satchel as a memento of an episode truly Mexican, and in the hurry of departure in the stage coach temporarily forgot all about my fair lady Hermosa.

"I have said that I was disguised. There was a reason. Briefly, my partner and myself had just got our grant over on the range painting out great when the revolution came along. The province was against us as Americans. We knew what to expect—anyway, incendiarism, looting, probably a massacre."

"We held a concession from the central government. Fortunately, the governor of the province had approved it. This would hold when peace came around again, provided it was filed at the capital. We decided to abandon working the mine, but we determined to validate our concession. Spies were watching us. I slipped away, disguised, with the previous agreement. My partner, after settling up affairs at the mine, was to join me at the capital city, where we were to wait until the trouble blew over. I noticed two of the coach passengers—suspicious looking fellows whom I seemed to have seen before. I wondered if they were watching me on account of the fugitive girl. That could not be, however, for they had appeared a station back. At all events, three hours on the steep climb over the mountains I awoke from a daze, with the ominous words ringing in my ears: "Senior, alright!" One of the men held the driver at bay with a revolver. The other, similarly armed, marched me to the door of the room, carrying my satchel with him. He roughly burst it open, vent over its contents and arose to search me.

"Not your watch, nor your money," he observed, as I started to tender him these. "A certain document, a mining concession—we know you have it. We want it."

I felt dismayed, and then in a flash I laughed—laughed outright! "I added it occurred to me that I had placed the precious document in a pocket of the clothes appropriated by my lady Hermosa."

"Save yourself the trouble of a search," I told the leader. "This paper in question was taken with a suit of clothes stolen from me, and doubtless cast to the winds as worthless."

"I was allowed to resume my journey. My partner joined me in the capital city a little later. We had abandoned all hopes as to the mines."

One evening we were seated in an outdoor cafe enjoying some really creditable music, when my companion touched my foot and whispered: "The lady at the table to the left seems greatly interested in you."

I changed my position to view—my lady of the hotel episode! She was radiant with youth, beauty and happiness. She arose, a distinguished young man in uniform her escort.

"Senior, my friend!" she cried spontaneously, clasping both of my hands. "My husband, Colonel Henderson, Alivina, it is my great friend, he whose—whose clothes I stole. Oh, sir, to you I owe a lifetime of happiness. I have sought to locate you."

"To exchange the apparent question for a certain dainty gown I treasure as a memento?" I asked gallantly. She blushed divinely, and added: "And also to give you a receipt. The paper I found in your coat, Senior—I saw its importance, a concession. It is filed with the government."

"How can I ever thank you!" I cried, truly delighted.

"Oh, senior, it is I who am the debtor, I and Alivina. Then she whispered in her husband's ear: "May I!" He bowed, with an indulgent smile. And then the beautiful girl threw her arms around my neck—and kissed me. (Copyright, 1914, by W. O. Chapman.)

CAT SOLD ITS LIFE DEARLY

Pussy's Extinction Cost Connecticut City the Price of One Perfectly Good Gas Tank.

The old theory that the only way to kill a cat for sure is to put it under a pile-driver for a week or "sic" a bulldog after it was vindicated for the 12,117,649th time at New London, Conn., when Herbert A. Dean, city dog and cat officer, threw an almost good cat into a tank of gas. The tank is one which is kept at the pound to asphyxiate cats, and dogs who are under indictment, and it has been useful until the other day, when it exploded as soon as the cat touched it.

Engineers, who were called in to diagnose the case, said that it was a case of electric ignition, the current having been furnished by the batteries carried in every cat's back. The carburetor of the gas tank, they said, was especially good and there was no fault to be found with the cat's ignition.

Evidently it was a two-cycle cat, and the compression was just right when it was thrown in. There were evidences that the animal's ignition was of the make-and-break type, as there was no trace of carbonization and no magnetism was used. As in the case of any reliable internal combustion engine, the cat simply sparked when the compression was highest, and there was an impulse which cost the city the price of one good gas tank.

This is the third time similar tanks have exploded, every time while they contained a cat. Mr. Dean ascertains hereafter he will use the tank exclusively for dogs and will try some other sort of treatment for electrified cats.

LOST RIVER PROJECT

State Land Board Inspecting Defunct Project.

Boise, Ida., Oct. 15.—The Big Lost river irrigation project, located in eastern Idaho, now involved in litigation and a failure so far as delivery of water to the settlers is concerned, with the result that they were forced to leave their land and improvements, is to be officially inspected for the first time by a state land board, included in the party, which left yesterday, are Gov. John M. Haines, Attorney General J. B. Peterson, Secretary of State W. L. Clifford, and State Auditor Fred L. Huaton.

Four days will be spent in making the trip, the greater part of that time being used to carefully go over the project and consult with the few remaining settlers on it.

The purpose of the present trip to the all but deserted project, on the part of the state land board, is to ascertain the actual conditions that exist and to reach some conclusion and formulate some tentative plan by which it can be restored and water delivered to the rich land that is included within its boundaries. When interviewed, members of the board declared that something must be done to reimburse the state and the company their money in lands on the project but were forced to leave it because the promoting company was never able to deliver water for irrigation purposes.

The Big Lost river project is located in Custer county, above the town of Mackay, and is composed of three tracts located in valleys, the soil of which is very rich if supplied with water. There were 22,183 acres segregated into the project, the state entering into contracts with the company for its irrigation on April 30, 1907, during the administration of ex-Governor Frank H. Gooding. Later a second contract was entered into between the state and the company under date of May 27, 1909. The estimated cost of the project under the first contract was $2,100,000 and under the second $3,000,000. The project tract, comprising approximately 80,000 acres, was opened for entry on September 4, 1907; the area and area tracts of approximately 70,000 acres on September 14, 1909. A total of 661 entries were filed on the land, entering 37,517 acres. To secure fulfillment of its contract with the state the company gave a bond through the Title Guaranty & Surety company for $175,000. The company was to deliver water to the settlers.—Salt Lake Telegram.

MORE RAILROAD PROSPECTS

Report That Northwestern Is Building Into Idaho.

Since taking up the matter of the building of the proposed Idaho Falls Inter-Urban, and the building of that road is promulgated, there has been a great deal of railroad discussion, with Idaho Falls the central point of interest. It has been stated that the Northwestern, with Lander, Wyoming, as their base, is building a line from that point and has let the contract for grading of sixty-five miles and that the material is being put on the line. It is claimed that Idaho Falls is the objective point of the road and that it will be built into Idaho Falls to connect up with the proposed Inter-Urban.

According to the railroad talk which is prevalent, the Western Pacific will build into Idaho Falls from Twin Falls, to which point that road is in build from Nevada. The Pittsburg and Gilmore is also associated with Idaho Falls railroad rumors, as is also the Hanaburger interests of Utah as well as the Utah Light and Power company, which has one of its largest plants here in the property which formerly belonged to the L. P. T. company. It is hoped that a good deal of realization will come of all these current rumors, and that the proposed Inter-Urban will be the means of attracting so much interest in Idaho Falls that all will want to come this way and that Idaho Falls will be a railroad center, as well as the great commercial center which it now is.—Idaho Falls Register.

BOOTH MERCANTILE COMPANY

bury are planning for the completion of the Raft-River cut-off from the valley through Colton pass to Salt Lake City. An article in the Salt Lake Telegram stated that representatives from Hurley and Twin Falls were in the city urging action by the Salt Lake business men. As far as Hurley is concerned there is no question but what this article was true, but there were certainly no Twin Falls citizens in the bunch. Twin Falls is not keen for that line. It does want, however, a road which according to the promises made by the Short Line from time to time. Every effort of this city and county is being directed toward a southern outlet for the Twin Falls products. The Raft river cut-off does not fill that want. While wishing the city of Hurley all success in her efforts, the use of Twin Falls influence by Hurley boosters is unfair to say the least.

CONTEST FOR NORTH AMERICA

Interesting Chapter of the Battle of Quebec.

The capture of Quebec from the French by the English in 1759 is one of the episodes of modern military history. Quebec was supposed to be absolutely impregnable, and was the stronghold of France in America. If the English had not been able to capture Quebec, Canada might have been French today. And this brilliant military feat was accomplished by a young major general only thirty-two years old. The leaders on both sides of the battle were killed; but the glory of their heroism has lived to this day. After General Amherst had captured Louisbourg in 1758 he took charge of the American campaign of the Seven Years' War between England and France. Under him was Major General James Wolfe, who was but thirty-one years old. Amherst ordered him to attack Quebec, while that general himself led a force to capture Montreal.

Wolfe's command consisted of seven thousand men; while Montcalm, the French commander of Quebec, had under him a considerably larger army. The British sailed up the St. Lawrence River and ramped on the Isle of Orleans, facing the city. There were three ways of attacking Quebec—from the St. Lawrence river, from the St. Charles river, and up the steep cliffs to the Plains of Abraham. On the St. Lawrence side it was impossible to get near enough to the city to launch an attack. The French decided to cross the St. Lawrence on a mill below Quebec, and to fight his way to the city by the St. Charles side, but the British, who had great loss to the English.

However, although he was outnumbered, the stout heart of General Wolfe never faltered. He began immediately to plan another way of getting into Quebec. He learned that the impossible could be accomplished, the heights to the Plains of Abraham, could be gained.

ed. From a little cove in the river, Wolfe's Cove, a steep path led up to the cliffs. It was a desperate chance; but it was worth taking. He only had thirty-six hundred men that could be spared for the attempt, and on the evening of September 12, 1759, these embarked on the warships and sailed upstream. Montcalm was a wary warrior, and sent some troops to watch the movements of the English. The British troops landed some distance above Wolfe's Cove; but at one o'clock in the morning Wolfe and his force dropped downstream in boats, and landed at the cove.

Then came the scramble up the cliffs in the inkly darkness. Slowly they worked their way to the top. At the summit the French had a weak redoubt guarded by a handful of men. This was the last place at which Montcalm had expected an attack. The darkness was easily driven from the redoubt, and by daylight the entire English force was upon the Plains of Abraham.

Montcalm drew up his men, and the warships, French and English, stood face to face on the narrow battle-field. The French advanced and began to push the English back; but Wolfe rallied his men. He held back his fire until the French came within close range, and then at his order one volley decided the battle. With great gaps in their lines, the French halted, and Wolfe led on his men to complete victory.

But the brave English general, wounded twice already, now received a shot through the breast that was fatal. Montcalm too was mortally wounded, and died the next day. Quebec surrendered on September 18, 1759.

HELPFUL HINTS.

One may boil a pudding in a double boiler instead of the old-time pudding bag. Line the upper part of the bowl with old paper, turn in the pudding and it will come out in good shape. A good habit to follow is folding the string which came round the parcel in the wrapping paper, then when a paper and string is needed the string will fit the paper.

Wedding plates used for engraving cards of invitation or announcement may be made into useful articles. Some have them made into trays, others into small stands for toilet or vanity by having small balls soldered to each corner.

Make a list of medicines, antidotes for poisons and keep it fastened inside the medicine closet; where it can be quickly glanced at. Such a precaution may save a life.

Have your kitchen table made to fit you, high enough to work at it without stooping.

When it is necessary to beat upholstered furniture and it cannot be taken on out doors, a good way is to cover it with a damp cloth and beat; the dust clings to the cloth.

When a finger is cut while working, wrap a thin piece of cloth over the end and slip on a thumb nail the time to attend to it properly.

When using a dish pan, turn the handles so that the wishes will not be nicked by striking against the handles.

Covers and paper kept near at hand will save much scraping of dishes which are scorched.

When hemming children's dresses on the machine, use very fine thread, then who will times come for lengthening, a pull will break the threads.

Under skirts made of the same kind of goods as the work dress are neat, and always look better than a petticoat of another color.

When gold fish are sluggish, a salt bath does them good. Let them lie in the water not longer than five minutes, and they will be as lively as ever.

NEVER and over again.

No matter which way I turn I always find in the back of life, some lesson that I must learn. I must turn at the mill. I must work at the wheel. I must work at my task with a resolute will.

Over and over again!

HURRY-UP DISHES.

This is a simple dessert which may be prepared in short notice.

White Pudding and Chocolate Sauce.—Beat together until smooth, three-fourths of a cup of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and a cup of milk; when smooth, add three more cupfuls of flour, and cook twenty minutes in a double boiler. Then turn into a pudding dish and serve with chocolate sauce. Mix in a saucepan a cup of sugar, one and a half squares of chocolate grated, and four tablespoons of boiling water. Stir and cook until smooth and glossy. Then add a cup of hot milk, flavor with vanilla and serve hot.

Current Cookies.—These are cookies which will keep a long time. Cream a cupful of butter, add a cupful and a half of sugar, then three eggs well beaten, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in half a cup of hot water; stir in three cupfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of nutmeg and finally a cupful of currants. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet and bake in a moderate oven until the cookies are a good brown.

Curried Rice.—Wash a cup of rice and put to cook in a quart of boiling water with half a teaspoonful of salt. Roll rapidly until the rice has absorbed all the water; set back and cook until dry. Let stand covered in a warm place for an hour. Remove curry, put one and a half tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan and add a sliced apple and onion; stir and cook until brown, add a tablespoonful of sugar, one of flour and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Stir until mixed, then add a quart of stock; if no stock is at hand, use water with a teaspoonful of beef extract. Season with salt. Meat and fish may be added to this sauce, and the rice may be put as a border to the meat and sauce on the platter.

The Pugnacious Arctic Dog. Arctic dogs seem to love fighting for their own sake, and so long as it is a fight they are said to be indifferent as to why they fight, how they fight and who they fight. Two dogs, seeing another dog enjoying a meat can that has been empty for months, will spring on him, roll him over and seemingly tear him to pieces. Fortunately, the wool is so long and thick that the attacking dog gets his mouth full of bait to be able to bite his antagonist's flesh. The dogs know that their vulnerable points are the ears and belly. When a dog is attacked by two or three of his companions he will run into a snow bank, shove his head in and, lying on his stomach, let his feet choke themselves with the hair they tear out of his back.—Harper's.

A careful and intelligent use of stable manure will build up the fertility of any farm. The trouble with the average farmer is that he wastes his manure. The habit of regarding manure as valueless is one of the most extensive of farmers can have.

Rotation of crops is one of the simple, practical methods of increasing the productivity of the farm and distributing labor. If you are not already practicing rotation in your farming, here is a good plan to adopt: a systematic cropping scheme for your farm. A practical system of rotation can be worked out for every farm.
