On all of Your Printed Matter, it represents Good Workmanship, Good Wages, and Good Conditions.

Several times in the past three years the Times has advocated the placing of good strong are lights at each end of the O. S. L. depot in this city for the protection and convenience of the public. As the winter months approach the need for such lighting is pressing. Under the present inadequate system it is almost impossible for strangers to pick their way to the street and just as hard for people of this city meeting friends and relatives on the evening trains to identify them owing to the darkness. The Short Line has had all the area and material here for nearly two years for that purpose and speedy action would certainly be appreciated by the traveling public.

A THREAT TO OUTLAW A STRIKE

There may be "a head-on collision between Governor Foss and the New Haven engineers" to use a Springfield Republican phrase, or one of the two approaching battles may see a danger-signal and put on the brakes, or even back up. The engineers and firemen are considering a strike because of the company's new rules regarding promotion and discipline, and the governor threatens them with a state law "to prohibit all strikes of railway employees." In this the Massachusetts executive is, in the opinion of papers represented by the Detroit Free Press, occupying "wholly untenable ground" from which he will have to retreat. On the other hand, a number of dailies would like to inform the dissatisfied employees of the New Haven that they are the ones who will have to back down from what the New York Telegraph calls their "indefensible position." Whatever the outcome may be, the governor's idea of abolishing strikes by law interests the editors, while they also have a word to say about the union's insistence upon a "hard and fast majority rule" for promotion. A few weeks ago, as readers of eastern newspapers will recall, the new management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, "for the sole purpose of increasing the safety of our service," issued new rules regulating the advancement of firemen and engineers, putting more emphasis upon fitness and less upon seniority. These rules, explained General Manager Barde, "will not interfere with the seniority of the men except where the question of fitness, ability, and previous service are involved, and since these requirements can be definitely fixed by the record and service of the men involved, there is no opportunity for favoritism and none will be permitted." Yet the leaders among the men are hardly convinced of the truth of this last statement. The new order, too, supercedes the code agreed upon by the railroad and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and in the opinion of the adjustment committee "it would be only a short time before the rules and working conditions that have taken years of hard work to build up would be destroyed and the engineers and firemen would be in the same condition that they were in before the organizations were formed." Hence the strike vote now being taken that Governor Foss, firmly convinced that public opinion would be against these railway workers in the event of a strike, and determined to do all in his power to prevent the "public calamity" of a stoppage on the system connecting Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut with one another and with New York, sent an emphatically worded letter to the headquarters of the two unions concerned, from which we quote these significant sentences:

"A strike upon the New Haven system means the stopping of the wheels of industry, loss of employment to hundreds of thousands of laborers, interference with the regular supply of food and fuel, and a consequent high death-rate among invalids and infants. As governor of the commonwealth, I am bound to take such action as I can to prevent such a public calamity. The real issue is not between the railroad and its employees, but between the employees and the people of this commonwealth; and the question is whether the lives of the people shall be placed in jeopardy by the maintenance of the seniority rule, and whether, in order to enforce this rule, our people must submit to the evils incident to a railroad strike.

"If the strike is called I shall ask the council to join me in summoning a special session of the legislature for the purpose of enacting laws which, after providing effective remedies for all grievances of employees, shall absolutely prohibit strikes of railroad operatives employed within the commonwealth."

In this "clear note," says the New York Evening Post, "Governor Foss has so affected the situation as to break the backbone of the strike movement. Other papers are much less sanguine, though there are manifestations of approval from many who have hitherto been less than praise-thrivers in the governor's public acts. These supporters take a stand in this three-sided controversy, among governor, employees, and railroad managers, which is outlined in this paragraph from the New York Globe's editorial page:

"It is manifest that at a time when the public is aroused over the large number of preventable railway wrecks, talk of strikes to resist measures for assuring safety will not be tolerated. The right of the men to organize to secure fair wages and protection against capricious exercise of despotic power is denied by no one. Their right to put their personal interest above the safety of human life is denied by every one. If the management of railways is to be held accountable, as it should be held, for the maximum safety possible, it must be free to employ in passenger service none but men of whose entire fitness to assume grave responsibility it has ample proof. This is the essence of man-efficiency higher or up."

Governor Foss' threat "is radical," admits the Washington Post, "but possibly it is the only thing that suggests itself in a situation which threatens the health and comfort as well as the commercial prosperity of his state." The strike suggestion, according to the Providence (R. I.) Journal, really means "that the whole community shall be sacrificed to the domination of a single class," and "if there are no laws to meet such an intolerable condition, then new laws must be passed." New laws, but what new laws? The Wall Street Journal, which praises Governor Foss for taking the stand he does, doubts whether any legislature can enact a law, which, as the governor puts it, "shall absolutely prohibit strikes of railroad operatives employed within the commonwealth."

Yet perhaps this can be attained in a less direct way. As this financial daily observes:

"There is no doubt that the legislature of any state can apply the principles of the Sherman Law to labor-unions. It can, for instance, make the taking of a strike ballot, or the order from union headquarters to the men to hold themselves in readiness to walk out, or the final order to 'come work, evidence of a conspiracy in restraint of trade.

"Even without going to such lengths, the legislature could handle the situation as it exists on the New Haven very effectively. It would have only to pass a law compelling railroad corporations to select engineers and conductors in the order of their fitness and training for the responsible positions imposed upon them, providing a jail sentence for any employee or group of employees who should attempt to interfere with the rational and diligent efforts of railroad corporations to protect the lives of passengers and men."

that the Massachusetts legislature should memorialize congress and urge upon it the enactment of such legislation as may be needed for the prevention of strikes affecting interstate commerce, comments as follows:

"There must be some legislation which shall place railroad employees on a par with the railroad employees in conducting the business of transportation so far as the terms and conditions of employment are concerned. This would mean that another declaration of law, under the principles of the federal government should be made—a declaration that all wages paid, as well as charges for any services rendered in the transportation of property, passengers, etc., shall be reasonable and just. A declaration of this character would give the railroad employees the status of quasi-public servants, and it is obviously in this direction that any such legislation as Governor Foss has in his mind must take shape."—Literary Digest.

NO. 13—THE MENTAL EFFECT

OF SAVING.
"Saving deposits in a bank are like an anchor to a ship—useful in calm, vital in a storm."—J. Pierpont Morgan.

Without contentment and an easy mind no man can be really happy or successful in his work, and in this fact lies the psychology of saving.

It means just this—besides the actual amount of money you accumulate by systematic saving, you get very valuable mental effects.

The mind has a great influence over the body. Saving makes you think success thoughts. It creates in you a desire to get ahead, and desire is the first step toward attainment.

Saving frees you from worry about the present, and from anxiety for the future.

Therefore, the psychological effect of saving is that you are enabled to give your whole attention and best efforts to your work.

In short, when you save regularly you can do better work and more of it, and thus you will be happier both now and in the future.

There is a sure and simple way to provide for a comfortable old age. It consists of making the most of the active years of your life, not only in earning money, but also in saving it.

A savings bank account will make you save. Open one now and prepare for your comfort in that future time when falling strength and decreasing income will make money saved and working for you a great blessing indeed.

If any young man starting out in life will make up his mind to save twenty per cent of his income, and stick to this determination through thick and thin, he will have enough to retire on in his old age just from accumulated savings and interest, while judicious investments from time to time would put him in really comfortable circumstances.

PROTECTION FOR GERMANS

President Wilson Demands Their Protection in Mexico.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Without waiting for the German government to act about its 42 subjects, said to be forcibly detained in Torreon by General Villa, the United States, through Charles O'Shaughnessy, its minister, representations to the Mexican government, supplementing those made by Ambassador William representative, who demanded protection for the prisoners. Consular Agent Carothers at Torreon was likewise instructed to treat with Villa in behalf of the German, British, French and Spanish subjects detained after the caravan of some 300 Americans departed overland for Monterrey. It is reported Villa is holding these prisoners to prevent a federal attack.—Capital News.

LETTER TO ROBERTSON & JANKS, Twin Falls, Idaho.

Dear Sirs: Porterhouse, so much; ask, so much; all the way between. Just so with paint. Devos is the porterhouse. Nobody wants the neck; the Devos, some say, is a good enough for them.

But Devos costs less, not more, than between. Lead-and-oil is between; it is the old-fashioned paint. But zinc has come in. Zinc toughens white lead. Devos is the paint that wears twice as long as lead-and-oil.

Mr. John N. Deltel, Fair Haven, N. Y., writes: "Mr. Charles Hallenbeck, of this place, painted his home three years ago with Devos; his father painted at the same time with lead-and-oil. Today the son's home looks as well as the day it was painted, while the father's house has all chipped off and needs painting very badly. The father says he will paint with Devos next time."

Yours truly,

Style Pays Big Dividends in Homes

When occasion arises for selling. Buyers like character and individuality and homes that possess them frequently bring much higher prices than houses built merely for use. We've studied these little things carefully and find they can usually be applied with but little extra cost. Particularly is this true when we are consulted on the original plans. And again in the selection of lumber, there are frequently ways of securing the desired results at lower cost than primarily calculated, and when this is possible we are keen to put our customers wise to the saving. These incidents tell only a part of the building story you should know in full before spending your money. Ask us for more facts.

BOOTH MERCANTILE COMPANY

EXTENSION WORK MOVING

Double Tracking of Oregon Short Line Moving East.

E. C. Manson, assistant general manager for the Oregon Short Line, returned this morning from Salt Lake and Ogden, where he was in conference with company officials for several days, during which time the question of line in Utah took place. He expressed himself as being well satisfied with the general conditions. The double tracking will be completed between Pocatello and Montrose, a stretch of 10 miles, by the end of the month and the next 20 days will see the completion of the double track west of Pocatello to Michael, a distance of about ten miles. The double-track work between McCammon and Lava is nearing completion, and the material, such as ties, rails, etc., is on the ground for the double track work between Dingle and Pocatello. This latter work will not be begun, however, until the completion of the Pocatello-Michael work. Speaking of the general conditions, Assistant General Manager Manson said today: "There is practically no congestion in the movement of the heavy crops of the west. Of course, here and there, and now and then, there is a shortage of a few cars, but nothing like the days of last year. We have plenty of cars and with our added power we are able to move everything that is offered us. The crops of Idaho especially, are heavy and everything is moving. The new and modern freight house at Pocatello is now in service and the foundations for the new shops are practically completed. The structural steel and iron work for the latter is coming from the east and upon its arrival rapid progress on the building of the new shops is anticipated." (Pocatello Tribune.)

Cars for Kansas Loaded With Hay With Banners on Each Side. Alive to its interests the residents of the Twin Falls county, who shipped a trainload of hay into the drought stricken section of Kansas, placed banners on either side bearing the inscription, "This hay raised in the arid section of south-eastern Idaho by irrigation." E. L. Gilbert, who recently returned from Kansas City, tells of the arrival of the hay into Kansas City and states that people crowded on both sides of the train, read the signs, examined the hay and began asking questions. In the crowds, he states, were many farmers, whose ranches had been practically burned up by the drought and they manifested more interest than others and inquired as to the price of hay in this country. E. L. Gilbert let the people know he was from this state where irrigation abounded and crops never failed and he soon had a large audience while he explained how the lands were developed, water taken from the streams through irrigation ditches and while practically no rain fell during the summer months there was always an abundance of water. WOMAN SHOTS STEPSON

Conflicting Reports and Statements Regarding How Tragedy Occurred. Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock Mrs. Joe Palmer shot her fifteen-year-old stepson through the right lung with a twenty-two rifle, at the Palmer home northeast of Oakley. At last reports the boy was still living but in a very serious condition. Conflicting statements by the woman and others who witnessed the tragedy make it impossible to state just how the shooting occurred. It is known, however, that there had been a disagreement and hot words had passed. Mrs. Palmer is a southern woman, and has the proverbial quick temper. She declares the shooting occurred and he prostrated with grief and remorse over the occurrence. (Burley Bulletin.)

GROW MORE POTATOES

Potato Experts Tell Why More Tubers Must Be Grown.

According to Eugene H. Grubb, the famous potato expert, this country next year will have to raise 10,000,000 more bushels of potatoes than it did this year. Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson has quarantined this country against potatoes from England, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Austria-Hungary and New Zealand, because the potato-canker is prevalent in those countries. That means that American potato growers will have to get busy and supply the deficiency that will arise on account of this lack of importation. What this means to the potato district like Montrose county, which is rapidly developing into one of the best in the state, may well be realized. It is necessary, however, for farmers to take heed to the warnings which was sounded by Mr. Grubb on a visit to Montrose a week ago. It will be remembered that at the time, Mr. Grubb stated we should be very careful to select seed free from disease. If possible, for planting in the valleys or extremely deleterious results would result to the district. Mr. Grubb also laid special emphasis upon the rotation of crops, as when that is observed the important few, a great result of potato culture will eventually result in a poor, unmarketable potato. Sorting and grading of potatoes for market is also considered a very important feature and emphasis was laid upon this by Mr. Grubb. (Montrose (Colo.) Press, Oct. 3, 1915.)

FOR EARLIER THANKSGIVING

Would Make It Same Day As Gettysburg Speech Anniversary.

Thanksgiving day may be proclaimed for November 19 this year instead of the last Thursday in the month, the day "time has been borrowed" as Thanksgiving ever since the pilgrim fathers declared a day for giving thanks for bountiful harvests.

The movement that may result in the changing of the date for Thanksgiving this year originated in Chicago. It is spreading all over the United States. November 19 will be the fiftieth anniversary of the delivery of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address and the plan is to have the holiday serve the dual purpose of commemorating Thanksgiving day and the world of the great emancipator's masterpiece as well.

The movement toward the changing of the Thanksgiving date this year reached Boise Saturday, and Idaho officials immediately fell in line with it. Governor Hinchman gave his hearty endorsement.

Chief Justice Allah, who is also division commander of the Sons of Veterans of Idaho, was one of the first to take up the plan. He issued the following statement:

"I can see no objection to the proposed change of Thanksgiving day from the date we have been accustomed to observe to November 19. As at present observed, Thanksgiving has degenerated into a mere feast day when we try to run how much we can eat. It is high time we get back to the early significance of this American holiday and reflect somewhat upon the hardships of our country and its institutions and how we may best devise that these harvests of plenty and prosperity of which we boast may be more equitably distributed so as to enable all who grow and all who eat to abound and enjoy some comfort. Lincoln's great classic, the Gettysburg speech, delivered on November 19, 1863, ought to inspire not only patriotism, but also justice and fair treatment.—Idaho Falls Times.

TO SPEAK HERE

Daniel Toole, of New York City, to Close L. H. S. A. Series.

Pastor Daniel Toole, of New York City, will give the last lecture of the L. H. S. A. series, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the high school auditorium.

Considerable interest has been manifested in this series of unorthodox lectures. The subjects have been attractive, and the speakers able men.

The subject of the closing lecture is: "Two Salvations, but no Second Chance." Many are commenting on the "Second Chance" theory, some claiming that those who live wickedly here will get another chance hereafter, while others think that only one change will be afforded to anyone. This is said to be the most interesting lecture of the series. With an able public speaker for the speaker, and a lively theme for discussion, a good turnout is expected.—Adv.

SUGAR FACTORY STARTS

Burley Plant Begins Cutting Beets—Employs Over Two Hundred Men.

The local plant of the Amalgamated Sugar Co. will begin to cut beets tomorrow—Friday. Over 200 men will be employed in and about the factory, while 150 Japs and 25 Mexicans are working in the fields topping and loading the beets. The hauling furnishes employment for a large number of additional men and teams.

The opening of the campaign in the local factory was delayed by the recent storms and cold weather. Now, however, several thousands tons of beets are on the ground ready to be run into the factory, and these in the fields have all ripened so that the work of digging need not be delayed. The capacity of the factory this year is 500 tons per day, and it is estimated that the campaign will last for 90 days.—Burley Bulletin.

CONSTRUCTION BEING PUSHED

Work on Idaho Northern Will be Rushed Before Winter.

Nampa, Oct. 21.—The splendid weather of the past week on the Idaho Northern extension has greatly facilitated the track laying crew which is now rapidly prosecuting work between Gold-Fork and Lake Fork. The large bridge at Gold Fork has been crossed and they expect to reach Lake Fork today or tomorrow. The distance between the two places is six miles. Lake Fork, which is 11 miles from McCall on Payette lake, 35 miles north of Smith's Ferry, and 188 miles north of Nampa, it is now thought will be the winter terminal. It will take about three weeks to build the track, and the snow will be too deep to prevent further work.

ho Northern extension has greatly facilitated the track laying crew which is now rapidly prosecuting work between Gold-Fork and Lake Fork. The large bridge at Gold Fork has been crossed and they expect to reach Lake Fork today or tomorrow. The distance between the two places is six miles. Lake Fork, which is 11 miles from McCall on Payette lake, 35 miles north of Smith's Ferry, and 188 miles north of Nampa, it is now thought will be the winter terminal. It will take about three weeks to build the track, and the snow will be too deep to prevent further work.

Engineers believe the line will be turned over to the operating department as far as Arlington, a point 10 miles below Lake Fork and about three miles above Roseberry. This would make the winter terminal for trains 24 miles north of Smith's Ferry. Concrete abutments for the steel bridges, one at Crawford, one two miles and one six miles above, will be completed this winter. The depot and section buildings at Cascade, 16 miles north of the Ferry, will be done in another week. It is reported that the line will be taken over by the operating department of the Oregon Short Line as far as Cascade at once, thus making that place the present terminus instead of Smith's Ferry. The water station at Bellville, 12 miles north of Smith's Ferry, is well under way and the larvae for building the track is about up to the tracklayers.

Local trainmen expect considerable trouble this winter in keeping the new line open on account of the heavy snows in the Payette river canyon and the loose conditions of the earth in the embankments, which may cause landslides. However, a large revolving snow plow has been secured for the Idaho Northern which will be kept in that section all winter and thirty trips will be made over the line if necessary to keep it open.—Capital News.

STATE OFFICIALS ANSWER BOMB.

Nor is this all Mr. Bohn will find in his mail bearing bearing on his recent communication to the Irrigation Age.

M. I. Church, who was register of the state land office at the time of the opening of the Big Lost river project, takes decided objection to some of the statements made by Mr. Bohn involving him personally. "In a communication addressed to the gentleman Mr. Church says: 'Edward Bohn, Esq., care Irrigation Age, Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sir: I ask you to correct the statements made in your letter to the governor of the state of Idaho, and published in the Irrigation Age in the last issue of said publication, in respect to the Big Lost river project.'"

In my opinion there has been entirely too much publication now, in relation to this project, for the good of all concerned. Publications which are not confined to the exact truth are detrimental and injurious to those concerned as well as to the community affected thereby, as in this case. I quote from your letter as follows: 'I put a question point blank to the gentleman who, at that time, occupied the honorable position of state land register, and was told without qualification or reservation, that the entryman's first payment upon the Big Lost river tract would be held in escrow by the land board. Was this a case of deliberate falsification by a trusted official of the state, or was it not?'

In the first place, your question was not asked of the register, as he was not present at that opening, being detained at home on account of illness. In the second place there is nothing in the minutes of the state land board to show that the board ever authorized the first payment upon said tract, received at this drawing, to be held in escrow, and therefore cannot believe the gentleman representing the board made such answer to your question.

Do you not believe the truth regarding this unfortunate opening is sufficient? I trust you will direct a letter to the governor of this state correcting the statements made in your published letter, to which I have referred above.

I was register of the state land board at the time of the above mentioned opening, and therefore resent the accusations made by you in said publication.

Yours truly, M. I. CHURCH.

term as governor made me a clear student of the social conditions of the country and I feel that I understand the struggle that is going on between capital and labor. If I should have the honor of representing Idaho in the United States senate, I shall work with those who are trying to bring about a higher respect for the law and a spirit of fairness to the toiling masses of the nation.

Again I ask my friends and all those who have confidence in my ability and in my integrity to represent Idaho in the United States senate to give me their hearty support for this high office.

Very respectfully yours, F. R. GOODING.

STATE MONEY SAFE

All Money in Defunct Nampa Bank Will be Recovered.

Boise, Oct. 18.—State Treasurer O. V. Allen said Thursday that even after conferring with State Bank Commissioner Reid he could say little regarding the failure of the Bank of Nampa.

"The bank," he said, "is now in the hands of the state bank department, and all I can do is to await developments. I am confident the state will get every dollar of its deposit in the bank, even should it develop that the bank is not able to pay out in full, because any dollar will be made up by sureties on the bond."

"There is no special significance in the fact that the Globe Security company withdrew from the bond the bank gave the state to protect its deposits. The Globe withdrew from the state entirely after sustaining a heavy loss in the Boise State bank. It cancelled all the bonds it had in the state, including the one in Nampa. This made it necessary for us to substitute personal bonds. In my judgment, those personal bonds will be found good so that the state should not lose a dollar by the failure."

Mr. Allen expressed deep regret over the failure of the bank. He was surprised, too, he said, as he looked upon the bank if Nampa as a safe and prosperous institution.—Portland Tribune.
