DEMAND THIS LABEL

On all of Your Printed Matter. It represents Good Workmanship, Good Wages, and Good Conditions.

The present car shortage for this tract is again bringing up the question of storage advocated strongly by the railroads to relieve the urgent demand for shipments of perishable products. There is no question but what the one real tapping this rich producing country is right now unable to handle the crops in time to prevent the spoiling of much of the valuable crop. The Short Line must by this time have to agree that it cannot with its present facilities, handle the volume of business. It urged last year upon the farmers the need of storage, but offered no solution of the difficulty in building such warehouses for the farmers. It is out of the question for the farmers to build, owing to financial difficulties. The whole situation resolves into this: that the railroad or some private company can make good money by erecting a fire and frost proof warehouses on the track and rent space to the farmers who wish to care for the perishable stuff until able to ship. By all good rights this should be done by the railroad, which by reason of its lack of rolling stock cannot handle the stuff. But at any rate, the proposition would be a money-maker. The need for another railroad is very apparent and would for possibly two years be adequate to care for the crops on this branch. At the end of that time with the vast increase in the fruit production and the normal increase in the farm products, it will swamp two railroads and the warehouse question will again bob up. Then it will be a railroad problem to furnish the warehouse in order to grab all the tonnage possible, and the Short Line will probably see the point. But instead of waiting until forced to some such step by competition if the present system would inaugurate a chain of warehouses it could control freight traffic for a long time.

THE LOSS OF THE "VOLTURNO"

The destruction of the Volturno instantly calls up memories of the Titanic, and though the death list is shorter in the case of this second great sea disaster within eighteen months, it seems to the New York Sun that the details of the story are "equally tragic and perhaps actually more painful." The earlier catastrophe did not surpass the later in dramatic quality, across the New York Evening Post, for there was never before on the ocean such a scene as that of the night of October 2—a great steamer burning helplessly in a gale, which presented the safe launching of life-boats, with ten or eleven canoes, men rolling in the high seas nearby in the hope that the gale might abate in time to save some of the hundreds of lives menaced by the waves and by fire. The cry for a really "unsinkable" ship that went forth after the loss of the Titanic now rises place the demand for a ship that is truly "fire-proof." There was no lack of life-boats on the Volturno, but they were rendered useless, and became, indeed, a source of peril; and these circumstances call out many an interesting utterance on the need of better fire-fighting apparatus and more satisfactory methods of transshipping passengers in a heavy sea. The only cause for congratulation found by the press, save for their acknowledgments of the seamanship and courage displayed in the work of rescue, is the work of the wireless. It seems to be the unanimous opinion that, had there been no S. O. S. call, instead of the rescue of 532 from a total company of 657, there would have been none left to tell the tale of the loss of the Volturno, save by the rarest chance. As the Philadelphia Record remarks, "there was no confusion in the working of the wireless, no interference and breaking into the conversation between the calling vessel and those who answered, and every ship within hail responded with alacrity, so that at the time of the rescue there were ten steamers standing by." Evidently, concludes The Record, the lessons of the earlier disaster have been heeded, and the wireless has become a well-managed life-saving device.

But as the world realizes its debt to Marconi for his great invention, it is at the same time, as the New York Globe observes, compelled suddenly to recognize in the Volturno's loss the fearful menace of fire—fire at sea. According to figures compiled in Paris, we are told, "in the last seven and a half years a ship at sea has either been damaged or destroyed by fire," while "those that have been lost by shipwreck are comparatively few in proportion." Hence, to be safe, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, "we must have not only the unsinkable ship, but the fire-proof ship." Now, it continues:

"The Volturno was not only not fire-proof, but its supply of apparatus for fighting fire was woefully deficient. The fire-fighters were practically helpless, and the guilt that burdens the shoulders of the management of the line was in sending out a vessel so poorly prepared to cope with flames."

While the final investigation may or may not substantiate The Inquirer's charge, there is now no disposition to question newspaper assertions that the disaster has its lesson for ship-owners and ship-builders. "The fact that builders virtually have violated the peril of tempest, that foundering in a storm is, for the great steamships, a danger not to be considered, makes it," in the Chicago Tribune's opinion, "the less excusable that they should be destroyed by man-made dangers." "The brains of the world" should now be enlisted in an effort to make ocean liners absolutely fire-proof, declares the Washington Post. "Cabin and gangway partitions should be built of steel on passenger ships as they are on battleships," adds the New York Times. Not are improved materials and methods of construction the only things needed, thinks the Syracuse Post-Standard, and it suggests "means of fire prevention by something at sea corresponding to the automatic sprinkler used in large buildings" as a necessary step in the direction of perfect safety.

If, in spite of all precaution, disaster does come, we may now feel assured that "in the ocean lanes other steamers can usually be brought to the spot by wireless"; but, asks the Springfield Republican, "is it not most heart-breaking to think of the way of providing apparatus for transshipping passengers." We must be prepared for any eventuality, The Republican reminds us:

"It is useless to try to predict what form danger will take—the thing is to be prepared for any contingency. If a ship sinks in still water, life-boats for all are needed. If she is destroyed slowly in a storm, with other ships standing by, a life-saving service in the vital thing, and should not go beyond the resources of inventors. The need of such an equipment seems to be the lesson most urgently brought home by this shocking catastrophe."

The wireless possibilities for rescue at sea should, in the Brooklyn Eagle's opinion, persuade all governments of the necessity of having liners supplied with guns or rockets for carrying lines to another vessel or to the shore. "When a line is thus thrown over a vessel, sinking or burning, a cable can be hauled aboard, a 'reeches-dug' service established, and one by one every burning being can be saved." It should be stated that American regulations compel the carrying of such equipment, and Captain Garden, of the United States Life-Saving Service, believes that in the light of this disaster the forthcoming international conference at London to consider safety at sea, "will recommend that each passenger steamer carry appliances of this sort."

But it may be well to turn from this discussion to consider the actual history of the Volturno's loss, as far as it may be gleaned from the mass of statements by survivors of the burned ship, and the officers and passengers on the rescuing fleet. The Volturno, a vessel of about 3,600 tons, built in 1906, owned by the Canadian Northern Steamship Co., but leased to the Transim Steamship Co., left Rotterdam for Halifax and New York on October 2. Beside her crew of 93, she carried 564 passengers, mostly immigrants. She carried also a miscellaneous cargo of freight, of an unusually inflammable character, as the New York World and Evening Post now point out. The latter paper is inclined to think that the perusal of the Volturno's manifest sheet goes far to explain what happened later:

"Among other things, she carried 50 drums and 740 casks of various kinds of oils, 1,189 barrels of paint-mess, 125 drums and 207 casks of chemicals, 1 cask of red-hot plates, 550 casks, and 1,062 cases of wine, 210 cases of gin and other liquors, 129 packages of straw envelopes, 150 bales of burlap, 878 bales of rags, 370 packages of straw envelopes, and 6 cases of cottons. There were plenty of things in her hold that might have exploded spontaneously, and a fire once started in such materials must have been almost impossible to check with the best fire-fighting apparatus in the world, let alone on a ship that was pitching violently, with a gale of wind to fan the flames."—Literary Digest.

HANSEN, IDAHO.

Hansen, Ida, Oct. 27, 1913.
Jack Craig sold a car of hogs Thursday.

E. P. Hinton had twenty acres of wheat that averaged seventy bushels per acre, and fifteen acres that averaged seventy-four bushels per acre. The addition to the postoffice building is moving along nicely.

If carriers desire to open new route on short notice we will gladly grant the necessary authority upon receipt of carrier's request therefor.—E. E. Clark.

"THE HAVOC"

At Cottillion Hall, Thursday Evening, October 30.

The excessive use of alcoholic stimulants is ordinarily to be quite severely condemned; it would indeed be difficult to imagine circumstances under which overindulgence in the cup that temporarily cheers might be condoned. But at this juncture, one rises to remark that this extraordinary circumstance has been discovered. Had it not been for the alcoholic tendencies of the leading man with Paul Gilmore's Associated Players, that individual might possibly have lived. He is now dead, and his body appears in "The Havoc" at the Salt Lake theatre last night. As it happened, his fondness for ardent spirits was his undoing. He was playing himself, after a fling trip across the continent, appeared in the part made famous by Leary Alford.

Mr. Gilmore has been playing the leading role in another company that is regarding "The Havoc" in the east. What he learned last Friday night the trusted agent of the western company had fallen off the water cart with a resounding bump. Mr. Gilmore has not only been and came home to Utah. As in the way, trunks on western railroads, it failed to arrive at the same time as the previous trip, and the audience required Mr. Gilmore to appear in the watery first act attired in the summer suit in which he had crossed the continent, also in the costume of the eastern actor and likewise still three years later. Up to the third act, Mr. Gilmore has not made any statement as to these circumstances, but he is giving an excellent wearing qualities of this suit of clothing inspired every man in the audience to seek and pay to confer with the star as to the address of the tailor. However, an appreciative audience demanded a certain speech after the second act, which gave Mr. Gilmore his opportunity to explain. While

ODD FELLOWS CLOSE SESSION

Meeting in Weiser Most Successful in History of Order.

The most successful grand encampment of Idaho Odd Fellows, Hebekeha and affiliated organizations in the history of the order came to a close after the election of grand lodge officers and the selection of Boise as the 1914 convention city.

Officers of the grand lodge are: Judge Allie, grand master; Tim Driskoll, Fayette, deputy grand master; Harry James, Boise, grand den; Presley Horne, Caldwell, grand secretary; William Coughanour, Fayette, grand treasurer. The board of directors remain the same as heretofore.

For the Rebekah grand lodge the officers are: Anna M. White, Rupert, president; R. Max Gilbert, Harrison, vice president; Florence Croason, Boise, secretary; Augusta Johnson, Clear Lake, warden; Edna Rom, Parma, treasurer; Bertha Bowley, Robert, marshal; Mrs. Henry, Idaho Falls, conductor; Agnes Thompson, Mullan, chaplain; Mrs. Farman, Sandpoint, inside guard; Frances Venable, outside guard.

The four days which the convention has been in session have been filled to repletion with secret work of the orders during morning and afternoon sessions, did hardly find a moment and the encampment is regarded as a success in every way.

NOTICE OF SALE

To Whom It May Concern: Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned, will sell at public auction, for cash, the following described personal property, to-wit: One (1) brown mason method mule, no marks, harness, Mark Datta, of Kimberly, Idaho, said animal being the property of one John Doe. Said sale is to be had for the purpose of paying the feed and keep since the 1st day of May, 1913, and for certain veterinary services rendered, amounting in all to the sum of Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, besides costs. Said sale to take place in the City of Twin Falls, County of Twin Falls and State of Idaho, and in front of the Court House, at 10 o'clock, A. M., on the 25th day of October, 1913, and at one (1) o'clock, A. M., of said day.

In the Probate Court, County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho.

In the matter of the estate of Mary C. Woodcock, deceased—Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made.

Nick Smith, the administrator with the will annexed, of the estate of Mary C. Woodcock, deceased, having filed a petition herein praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth.

It is therefore ordered by the said court, that all persons interested in the estate of said decedent appear before the court on or before the 21st day of October, 1913, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the court room of said probate court, at the court house in Twin Falls, County of Twin Falls, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Nick Smith to sell so much of the real estate of said decedent as shall be necessary.

That a copy of this order be published at least once a week for not less than four successive weeks in the Twin Falls Times, a newspaper printed and published in said Twin Falls County, Idaho, and that said publication be completed at least five days prior to said 21st day of October, 1913.

Dated September 30th, 1913. Judge of Probate.

ESSENTIAL ADJUNCT TO FRUIT GROWING

These Apples Were Sprayed—Three Times.

(By WM. STUART.) The codling moth, which is by far the worst apple pest, may be quite effectively combated by thorough spraying with some arsenical poison just after the blossoms fall. Arsenate of lead used at the rate of two pounds to fifty gallons of water is giving better satisfaction than Paris green, because it adheres better and does not injure the foliage.

The moths emerge early and the female soon begins to lay its eggs. These are not as has been commonly supposed upon the fruit, but largely on the under side of the leaves. Careful studies have shown that about sixteen-twentieths of the eggs are deposited upon the leaves, the balance being upon the bark and fruit. The earliest deposited eggs hatch in about ten days. While the later ones take only about half as long. As soon as the larva hatches it begins to migrate toward the fruit, and having reached it usually enters at the point of least resistance, which in its mature stage of development is through the calyx opening. A knowledge of the life history of this pest enables the orchardist to spray his trees intelligently. His knowledge that the way to resistance is in the calyx or blow end of the fruit. Here then is the point of attack. If he can fill the calyx end of each apple upon the tree with a poisonous spray, the most of the larvae will be destroyed before they have an opportunity to gain access to the interior structure of the apple. Hence he should spray within the first week or ten days after the blossoms fall or before the calyx closes and the apple begins to point downward. The nozzle used should throw the liquid with enough force to drive the spray liquid into the end of each apple. One thorough spraying at this time has been found to give over 90 per cent. of worm free apples. A second spraying three or four weeks later is recommended. The first spraying for codling moth can be combined with the second for apple scab, by adding the arsenical poison to the Bordeaux mixture.

The curculio and apple maggot are much more difficult pests to combat. Frequent and thorough sprayings have demonstrated the possibility of very largely controlling the injury caused by the apple and plum curculio. Tillage and sunlight are two effective aids in the suppression of the curculio, as is also the destruction of all fallen fruit.

There is no known remedy for the apple maggot. Preventive measures such as the destruction of all fallen fruit are the only means of suppression that can be employed. Of course good tilage and judicious pruning and spraying materially aid in lessening the injury to the fruit. Arsenical poisons are not effective.

The sucking insects are best combated by spraying with insecticides. Kerosene emulsion, soap solutions or tobacco infusion for the sap-sucking insects.

the trunks of the trees. Most of the washes are of an alkaline nature consisting of soaps, or lyes to which sulphuric acid is recently added to give it an offensive odor. Many commercial washes have at various times been put on the market, the use of which it was claimed would secure immunity from the borer, in many cases these proprietary washes have been known to be harmful to the bark of the tree, in some instances the injury being so great as to kill the tree.

The latest and most effective method, all things considered, is that of going over the young orchard trees twice each season, examining each tree carefully for the presence of borers. When detected they should be at once removed with a sharp knife. The process of digging out a first season borer is a comparatively simple and easy process, as they are just beneath the bark; the second season, however, they begin to tunnel deeper into the tree and by the third season have penetrated almost if not quite to the heartwood. To remove a second or third year larva it is necessary to make use of a stiff, somewhat flexible wire. After removing the castings from the tunnel opening, the wire is pushed upwards or downwards in the tunnel, as the case may be, until the borer is encountered; in this way much cutting and consequent injury to the tree may be avoided.

LATE WORK WITH STRAWBERRY PLANT

Cultivation Should Be Continued Until Compelled to Stop by Cold Weather.

(By M. N. EDGERTON.) We should still continue to keep the cultivators going in the strawberry beds. In fact, we should continue to tillage until when compelled to do so by rains or freezing weather.

We consider this work of special importance if the fall season be in any way dry. Not only is this tillage necessary in order that proper moisture conditions be preserved, but the weeds should be kept down, so that air may be freely admitted, conserving those conditions favorable to the processes of soil life which change the elements of plant food from an insoluble to a soluble form, that is to say put it in such shape that it may be assimilated by the plants.

There are many who fail to recognize the importance of this late tillage, or, recognizing its importance, fail to put their knowledge into practice. Having started in well we believe in running well to the end.

Straw weeds should be kept out also. They are a nuisance. Even when the weeds are kept down, they will creep in, seeming the "Jonah's gourd" to grow up in a night.

With the matted rose Japanese weeds are likely to give no end of trouble if the soil is badly infested with weed seeds.

This small late growth, though seemingly not of any significance, assumes great proportions during the spring months if not removed, and there is a time, quite so favorable as the late fall months in which to do the work.

There is another task in connection with strawberry growing that should not be neglected at this time of the year; surplus runners should be removed. An unnecessary plant is a much out of place in a strawberry bed as a weed.

All of this work and care calls for stick-at-it-iveness. The grower must not become weary in well doing, if he would reap the greatest rewards.

FOR THE OLD SUBSCRIBER

For the old subscribers who have stood by the Times through thick and thin in its seven years' existence, we have an equally attractive offer. Every old subscriber paying up to date and a year in advance, will have the choice of the following propositions:

You can have the advance year at one dollar or you can have the choice of a splendid wall-map of this state, revised right up to date, or a pair of self-sharpening scissors.

If you take the latter offers you pay $1.50 instead of the dollar.

Remember, this offer is only for three months and we have no intention of making one dollar the permanent price of the Times. October 31st is the last day and if you come in November first or any other day after that time you will pay two dollars.

BETTER CONDITIONS IN WEST

Government Officials Say Speculation Reached Maximum.

"The fever of speculation in farm lands in the west which has prevailed for several years and which has reached its maximum and is now on the decline and irrigated lands in some localities are quoted today as prices that have not been reached since the boom of 1913," says C. J. Blanchard, chief statistician of the U. S. reclamation department in a report on conditions on the western lands, which has just been published. He continues: "Undue inflation of values has operated to give the development of the west a setback and has retarded settlement materially. The hunger for land on the part of home-owners has been but little diminished but there is evidence that buyers are growing more conservative and are giving more careful consideration of property before purchasing."

"There is in some localities a change on the part of land owners in their attitude toward the buyers. Prices are lower, terms are easier and the disposition is growing to accord the newcomer a fair chance to make good. Several communities have organized committees to secure operations on excess lands and to act in an advisory capacity towards settlers in order to safeguard the development of the west. These organizations are endeavoring to keep prices down, and are discouraging misrepresentation in the literature issued by the government to a square deal to the homebuyer will greatly stimulate the settlement of large areas in the west now vacant."

"The government is encouraging movement to secure co-operation between land owners and the settlers in order to promote a more rapid reclamation and cultivation of excess lands included in reclamation projects."

"Reports from field inspectors indicate that the crop of 1913 will be one of the most prosperous for settlers on reclamation projects since the initiation of the government work in the agricultural reclamation of the west. The planning to be conducted on a more solid and correct basis. More of the products are being consumed on the farm and the uneconomical production of excess crops for the market is being abandoned as the farmers are able to acquire live stock, and the growth of the dairy industry is most encouraging and predominate substantial prosperity for the settlers. co-operating in organizing creameries and in advancing money to purchase good dairy stock for the farmers. The year of 1913 was a trying one for many farmers on the government irrigated lands. There were large areas in potatoes, onions and alfalfa and prices were very low. Many acres of potatoes and onions were not even harvested. This year it is encouraging to note that the crop yields and prices are generally good and prices are such that farmers are promised satisfactory returns. The hay crop is good and prices are high. Many acres of stock on the farm than ever before, assuring a greater return than if the crop were marketed. The apple, peach and pear crops are used on an average with fair prices. Altogether the outlook for the settler is decidedly more encouraging than it was last year."—Sampa Leader.

OF INTEREST TO SUBSCRIBERS

Rules Governing Newspaper Subscription.

—Loss.

The supreme court of the United States has just published a ruling in regard to newspaper subscriptions which in substance makes a subscriber who takes his paper from the post-office and refuses to pay subscription, and upon receipt of the paper to arrest any other who defrauds.

The following is a synopsis of the decision in our final court.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscription.
2. Subscribers ordering the discontinuance of their periodical the publisher may continue to send it until all arrearages are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodical from the post-office they are responsible until they give notice of the time if they do not want to continue taking, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send, and the subscriber is liable for the amount of an express notice with payment is sent to the publisher.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and any papers used to the former address, subscribers are responsible.
5. Refusing periodicals from the postoffice or moving and leaving them uncollected is prima facie evidence of intention to defraud.
6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice if they do not want to continue taking, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send, and the subscriber is liable for the amount of an express notice with payment is sent to the publisher.

RECORD ONION YIELD

Artesian City Nuts Gets 4000 Sacks From Two Acres.

When it comes to growing the upstart onion, W. H. Day of Artesian City must be awarded the palm, the bun, and everything else that goes with the man who distinguishes himself.
Mr. Day planted two acres in onions early in the year, on the theory that the rotation of crops was good in Christian thing to practice. He harvested them the other day, and was surprised to find that he had a criffe of over 4000 sacks.

As early first-class onions are worth about $1.50 per sack, Mr. Day's crop will bring him about $6,000, or at the rate of $300 per acre.
If anyone over the state can beat this showing, let him chirp.
Another record onion crop was raised by J. Tolman of Murtaugh. He harvested 1600 sacks from 6 1/2 acres. L. W. Swanson of Kimberly, got 2974 pounds of red onions from 2 1/2 acres. J. W. Hardin had three-quarters of an acre in potatoes that gave one of the best yields yet reported. He harvested 2500 sacks from the acre. This is the opening market price of 80c, means $276 per acre.
Mr. McKintire, who lives "two miles southwest of town, reports a yield of 870 bushels of Dickson on 11 acres or 80 bushels to the acre. While this is not a record crop, it is a very satisfactory one.
A. G. Shaden, who lives over on the Guyse Creek tract, harvested 35 tons of wheat on 14 acres of spring wheat. This is a record for the year for the first time.
Frank Bellverlie has threshed 35 acres of peas, from which he got 42 bushels to the acre—Kimberly Call.

PORTLAND STOCK MARKET.

North Portland, Ore., Oct. 24, 1913.
Gentlemen: Receipts for the week have been: Cattle, 1788; calves, 57; hogs, 5347; sheep, 2535.
Reaction in the market set in Wednesday after an auspicious opening Monday. Receipts have been abnormally large and killers are temporarily well supplied. Prime steers dropped to $7.50, cows $6.50 and trade was slow the last half.
Market sharply lower this week; most native and foreign and ewe values were shaded from $8.75 to $8.50. By Friday the trade was very sticky. Buyers indifferent and $5.35 was the limit of bid; a liberal quotation was $5.00 at $8.25.
A very slow and uninteresting sheep market. The market for mutton and lamb to the lamb section, owing to very poor quality these did not bring more than $5.10.
Generally the mutton and lamb markets are steady to firm.
Representative sales have been as follows:

	Weight	Price
56 Steers	1256	$8.00
57	1146	7.70

MANY TRESPASSERS KILLED.

Great Majority of People Killed on Railroads Are Trespassers.

A total of 103,566 persons have been killed on trespassers off railroad property in this country in the last two five-year periods.

That is over 53 per cent of all the deaths on all railroads from all causes but that length of time. Over thirty times as many as passengers killed in accidents to trains, which, until recently, have been prevented by the adoption of such modern methods of prevention as steel cars, automatic stops and signals.

Statistics showing these astounding disclosures, legislatures, both state and national and railway commissions do very little to minimize the slaughter of trespassers, while constantly insisting on more rigid discipline for the prevention of train accidents.

This table of statistics showing the fatalities by classification charged to the railroads of the United States from 1908 to 1912 inclusive is conclusive as to the need for state and national legislation calculated to prevent trespassing and co-operative with the railroads in the great progress they are making:

	Percent of Killed Whole
Trespassers	53.7
Employees, through their own fault or mischance	49.497
Other persons, through their own fault or mischance	13.228
Employees, in accident to trains	13.630
Passengers, own fault or mischance	4.219
Passengers, in accidents to trains	3.202
Total	132,542

Of the 132,542 employees killed in accidents to trains, the statistics show that at least 50 per cent of such fatalities are due to the victim's own negligence.

From these figures, which are compiled from official records kept, it appears, then, that of the 132,542 persons killed on train or tracks in twenty-three years, 175,610 or 91.2 per cent came to their deaths through their own fault or mischance.

Herbst & Rambo's high-quality candies cost a little more than otherwise, on account of purity of ingredients, but you get the benefit—the satisfaction of eating the best.

HERBST &amp; RAMBO, Confectioners

The railroads, in other words, are left unaided by law and public sentiment, and but for their own resources, powerless to prevent the great majority of fatalities laid by a ruthlessly unjust discrimination, at their door.

HOTEL ASSURED

Burley to Have a New $75,000 Hotel Soon.

That Burley will have a new and up-to-date hotel is now assured. The business-end of Burley are back of the movement and are subscribing to the stock.

A. N. Sprague and E. C. Warren have circulated a stock subscription and secured sufficient funds to warrant the continuation of the proposition. The Townsite Company, it is stated, has agreed to give the location to anyone who would rebuild the hotel.

It is planned, with this site and $15,000 already raised among the business men, to secure additional funds, sufficient for a $75,000 building. Beyond all question a hotel is Burley's greatest need. Since an article, which appeared in this paper some weeks ago about the necessity of a hotel, there has been much talk of Tuesday, but nothing was done until Tuesday, when Messrs. Sprague and Warren decided to see what could be done. The result of their canvass of the town has been highly satisfactory. Now is the time for action. Come to the meeting Friday evening and boost for a new hotel.—Advocate, Burley.

FIRST SECTION OF ROAD

27 Miles of State Highway West of American Falls to Be Built.

Next Saturday the first shovelful of dirt that has been turned under the supervision of the new state highway commission will be dug on a section of the proposed state highway as mapped by the state engineer, and will be at a point near American Falls, and will follow the old Oregon trail.

It will be an epoch-making period, the event of the day, and a occasion for a simple ceremony that will perpetuate the posterity the start of Idaho's great system of state highways.

Chaiming Turteltaub and other members of the commission, as well as a good delegation from Pocatello, will participate in the ceremony, and it is the intention to make the first work commenced on the system by the placing of a simple stone monument, suitably inscribed and inscribed with the date and character of the undertaking.

The section of road that is to be constructed by the commission consists of twenty-seven miles west of American Falls and follows directly the old Oregon trail, so that there is something of sentiment, as well as of utility, in the undertaking. Engineer Smith of the commission, has been on the route some days, and has the route well plotted, and within a few days a considerable force will likely be engaged in the work of building the first state highway under state supervision.

It is the intention of the commission to meet in American Falls either Friday evening or Saturday, and the ceremony will be arranged later.

In the line with general road program a delegation of local citizens last Saturday afternoon before the county commissioners of Bannock county, and asked for an appropriation of $2000 for the construction and repair of the road leading from Rose Fork to the Blackfoot dam, and as the bulk of this road is in Bannock county, the commissioners agreed to give the purpose. Bannock county will also contribute its share, and the project will be put in good shape. This is really a section of the old Oregon trail, and originally there were but two roads leading through the reservation—one towards Idaho Falls, and the other north toward Idaho Falls, and it is the purpose of the commission to secure the co-operation of the government so that these highways can be kept in first class condition and will never be a burden on the pockets of any officials. The best of co-operation is evidenced at this time. Coincidentally this commission have purchased right of way through what is known as the "pole line" territory, and upon the filing of a petition for the same will again be opened up.—Pocatello Tribune.

SUIZER FOR LEGISLATURE

Nominated by Progressives of New York City.

Albany, Oct. 21.—What will be the outcome of William Suizer's race for the legislature was the question foremost in the minds of politicians today. It is generally agreed that he will make much trouble for the organization. His fire will be directed against the machine, and he will be a big factor in the race for the speakership candidacy.

Accepts the Nomination.
New York, Oct. 21.—William Suizer, impeached as governor of the state, was nominated for the assembly last night by the Progressive party of the assembly district. Mr. Suizer in 1889 became his public career as a member of the branch of the state legislature.

Mr. Suizer was nominated to accept the nomination. It was announced at the meeting where he was chosen as the candidate. Max Steinfeld, Progressive leader in the district, usually district who placed the former governor's name in nomination, said Mr. Suizer reached him by telephone from Albany inquiring if he had been designated. Mr. Steinfeld replied in the affirmative. He said he asked Mr. Suizer if he was interested in the nomination. Mr. Suizer replied he would gladly do so.

The nomination of the impeached executive was brought against the decision of the state and county leaders of the Progressive party. The sentiment among the Progressives throughout the state and other states generally was in favor of the nomination. To State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson and County Chairman Francis W. Bird.

Mr. Bird in a letter to Mr. Steinfeld before the meeting began cautioning him regarding "the unwisdom of nominating Mr. Suizer."

"Of course it is a fundamental Progressive principle that the settled will of the people in any district should govern in the making of nominations," Mr. Bird said. "Progressives everywhere will recognize that the committee must perform act in accordance with the settled will of the people of that district."

However, Mr. Bird pointed out that although 3500 voters in all parties, as he has informed, a total of 5000 voters, had signed a petition favoring Mr. Suizer's nomination, such a nomination "if brought about in this way would be more of a neighborhood than a party nomination. It would not be a strictly Progressive designation but a nomination by the voters of all parties in the district, and the danger that happens to be on the Progressive ticket for their purpose."

After Mr. Suizer had been nominated last night, there was a meeting of the institution in the East Side meeting hall. Bands in the street, outside played national airs. The nomination was made unanimous.—Capitol News.

COLLEGE HEADQUARTERS OPENED

Vice President Padgham Arrives in Gooding to Take Charge of Work.

Geo. W. Padgham, vice president of the board of Trustees and secretary of the field work for the new Gooding college, arrived in Gooding the latter part of last week to take up his duties in connection with the institution.

Mr. Padgham resigned the office of prosecuting attorney for Lomeli county to devote his time to this work. He is a well-known and successful lawyer of the institution and says that the movement is much further advanced than the people of Gooding realize. It must be remembered that this is a small undertaking, and that this college will not be a little, one-horse institution, but a university of the first class and on a par with the Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois.

A systematic campaign will be immediately inaugurated through the entire United States to raise money for the institution, and Mr. Padgham says that the prospects are not only encouraging, but highly flattering, and that movements are now under way that he is not able at present to divulge which will produce a fund even greater than was in any way anticipated in the beginning of the movement.

There is a bright future to store for Gooding. More is being done here than any other place to realize and anticipate. But there is no doubt that it is destined to become the seat of learning for the Pacific northwest. With its excellent public and high school, its state school for the blind and deaf, the state experiment station and above all its great university, Gooding will become the most attractive place for home, business or investment. We have about reached the dawn of a brighter day.—Gooding Gazette.

OREGON WILL LEAD

Will Have Honor of Being First to Develop Through Canal.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Secretary Daniels formally announced Tuesday that the historic battleship Oregon, which made the famous voyage to Cape Horn in the early days of the Spanish war, would lead the great fleet through the Panama canal when the waterway is opened in 1915. While plans for the event have not yet been formulated, Secretary Daniels will be aboard, as will President Wilson, in all probability. It has been suggested, too, that all surviving officers, who served on the Oregon in the 1898 cruise, be again at their posts when the battleship leads the armada through the canal. In this event the Oregon will be commanded by Rear Admiral Charles E. Clark, retired, now living in Washington.

The acceptance by the British foreign office of the invitation from the United States to send a squadron of British warships through the canal with the international fleet was conveyed Tuesday to Secretary Bryan through Ambassador Page. Great Britain is the first of the nations to accept the invitation to participate in a mobilization which will bring together at Hampton Roads the greatest fleet ever assembled in American waters.

A NEW INDUSTRY

Wooden Shoes Made in the United States.

In this country beech is the favorite material for wooden shoes; the manufacture of which has reached considerable proportions in the United States, according to the department of agriculture, which has just issued a bulletin on the use of the wood. These shoes, the department says, cost from 60 to 75 cents a pair and are good for two years. They are worn by those who have to work in cold or wet places, such as lumber, breweries, and livery stables, and by workmen in steel mills and glass factories who must walk on hot grates or floors. Farmers, too, are classed among the users.

Beech wood is put to a very much wider range of uses than the average person would be likely to suspect. The department says beech enters into hundreds of articles from hobby horses to cutters' blocks. We walk on beech floors, eat off beech picnic plates, carry beech baskets, play with beech toys, sit on beech chairs, and in dozens of other ways use articles made of beech almost every day of our lives. Its freedom from knots fits the wood especially for articles which come in contact with foodstuffs, and beech bent boards, skewers, lard tubs, butter boxes, sugar hoppers, refrigerators, dishes, spoons, and scoops are widely used.

Only one species of beech grows naturally in the United States, but fewer trees in this country have a wider commercial range. It extends from the gulf of Mexico into eastern Canada, and in practically every place where it grows it is cut for market. The total area of beech wood in the United States is approximately 500 million board feet.
