HUERTA MUST RESIGN

America Sends Ultimatum to Mexico's Dictator

President Wilson Makes Known in No Uncertain Terms The Position of This Country

Mexico City.—President Huerta must resign the presidency of Mexico without loss of time and must not leave as successor General Aureliano Blázquez, his minister of war, or any other member of his official family or the unofficial circle who might be expected to control the government.

This ultimatum from Washington was conveyed to President Huerta through his private secretary, General Rabago, by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American chargé d'affaires, acting under instructions from the state department.

General Rabago presented the memorandum to his chief last Sunday, but up to this evening President Huerta had returned no answer and as far as could be learned had guarded its contents from almost all of his official and intimate associates.

Those who learned of Huerta's position as one in which he will be forced to give one of two answers—refusal point blank to comply with the demand possibly going so far as to hand the diplomatic representative his passports or the elimination of himself officially.

Those most intimate with the president, insist that the latter course will not be taken for many reasons, chief among which is that such action would be tantamount to submission to the rebels. Official Mexico is no longer in

NO DESIRE FOR NEW TERRITORY

President Wilson Interprets United States Policy

MEXICO'S PEACE AND NOT TERRITORY IS THE ISSUE.

Mobile Speech Will Go Down Into History as the Modern Monroe Doctrine.

Mobile, Ala.—While avoiding any mention of President Wilson or any European influence connected with the Mexican situation, President Wilson delivered a speech here Monday before the Southern Commercial Congress which appeared to be freighted with significance and which served to point out further directness the policy of the United States not only toward Mexico, but toward all Central and South American republics.

A score of South American diplomats present at the convention, while he spoke and many of his remarks were addressed in conversational tones to them. The president spoke only in general terms, yet many of his sentences were pointed with a meaning so clear as to leave little doubt of his intent.

"Material interest," a phrase much in use internationally of late in characterizing the attitude of foreign nations toward Mexico—frequently was employed by the president. He declared the American republics had suffered long from the hard bargains forced upon them by holders of concessions, seeking "material interest" in the countries affected. The president declared that through motive of morality and not "expediency" the United States desired to help the Latin-American republics to an "emancipation from the subordination which has been inevitable to foreign enterprise."

The president's speech was uttered with a confidence which bespoke the dominant part the United States expects to play in the future of the American republics. Not through any idea of "material interest" he carefully explained, but through a love of the people of constitutional liberty.

"The United States never again will seek to obtain one additional foot of territory by conquest," he declared amid applause.

Mr. Wilson was breakfasted, driven about the city by automobile, taken on a sight-seeing expedition in the harbor and started back here where he was dining when his speech was given.

The president said:

"I come here because I want to speak of our present and prospective relations with our neighbors to the south. I deemed it a public duty as well as a personal pleasure to be able to express for myself and for the government I represent, the welcome we all feel to those who represent the Latin-American states. The future will be very different for this hemisphere from the past. The states lying to the south of us, which have always been our neighbors, will now be drawn closer to us by innumerable ties and I hope, chief of all, by the tie of common understanding."

"I wonder if you realize the significance of the idea of commerce. These great ideas which have been doing parallel of latitude now will swing southward at right angles to the equator, and that opening gate at the isthmus of Panama will open the world to a commerce that she has not known before—a commerce of intelligence of thought and sympathy between north and south—and the Latin-American states who to their disadvantage have been off the main lines now will now be drawn closer to us by innumerable ties and I hope, chief of all, by the tie of common understanding."

PRESIDENT BUSH WILL COME AGAIN

Western Pacific Head Wants Another Look

PERSONAL FRIEND RECEIVES WELCOME NEWS.

Wells-Turn. Falls Line May Be Part of Greater Feeder Line to Boise.

L. E. Saffady of this city, a warm personal friend of President Bush of the allied Gould lines, including the Western Pacific, received word this week that the latter would again visit this city on his return from Boise and his trip of inspection over the proposed Winnemucca line. According to the message received, President Bush should arrive in this city about the fourteenth of this month. Just what the outcome of President Bush's Idaho trip will be is but a matter of time. It is his idea to drop in at St. Louis in the summer after his visit here can be banked upon the railroad building is merely the question of successful financing of a bond issue. That he was impressed with the immense tonnage traffic will more surely lodged in his mind when the unsuccessful attempts of the Short Line to move the tonnage is considered.

COURT DECIDES ISSUES

Twin Falls Canal Company Given Title to South Side System

Plaintiff to Supervise Milner Diversion Works Under Court's Direction

Title to the entire South Side canal system on the Twin Falls tract is ordered conveyed to the Twin Falls Canal company by a decision handed down by Judge Dietrich in the United States district court Friday. The decision adjudicates a controversy over the rights to the Milner dam and establishes long contested points affecting the control of the irrigation system serving the great Twin Falls Caray tract. In the absence of authority or law by which to determine control of the issues involved, the court itself works out a scheme for the joint control of the Milner dam, supervision of which was one of the points involved in the case.

The action is entitled "The Twin Falls Canal Company against the Twin Falls Land & Water company, the Twin Falls North Side Land & Water company and the North Side Canal company." It embodies the many controversies that arose when it came to the settling forth of the rights of the various companies organized in the development of the Kuhn Caray act projects on the north and south sides of Snake river.

COAL SCHUTE FAILED TO WORK

Engine on Eastbound Passenger Friday Nearly Covered With Coal.

When the train from Buhl pulled into the yards last Friday evening, the engine was brought to a stop under the new coal schute, as is the custom, to take coal. The fireman pulled the apron of the schute down and filled the engine tank, but when the tank was full he endeavored to check the flow of coal but found it was impossible. The fireman and several of the train crew worked hard and fast before they got the flow stopped. Coal was scattered and piled up on one side of the engine for several feet. The section crew was called, the train being unable to move until the men had shoveled a way clear.

INVESTIGATE CAR SHORTAGE

Congressman Smith Has Taken Matter up With Commerce Commission.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—As usual, during this time of the year, many complaints are being received by the Interstate Commerce Commission on account of car shortage, especially of the refrigerator variety, which are badly needed for the shipment of perishable products.

Congressman Smith has, in compliance with telegraphic requests from the Commercial club of Twin Falls, presented the complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the chairman of the commission immediately telegraphed the Interstate Commerce Commission, requesting the earliest possible date.

The commission states that the delay in the shipment of cars is not entirely to be blamed upon the railroads, as in many instances the shippers hold cars longer than is necessary.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON SHORT LINE

Freight Trains Collide Near Soda Springs, Ida.

Soda Springs, Ida., Nov. 1.—Two firemen were killed and a brakeman seriously injured here this morning when westbound freight train No. 1061, owned by the Idaho and Oregon Railway, collided with eastbound freight train No. 1106 on the Oregon Short Line. The locomotives and cars were piled in a heap blocking traffic for hours. The accident occurred about 10:30 a. m. The westbound train had just cut off. The wreck is said to have been due to the failure of the brakes on the westbound train. The eastbound train was waiting on the main line for the other train to take a switch but being unable to slow down the westbound crashed into the train on the main line—Capital News.

TAYLOR & DANIELS AT COTILLION

Will Open Two-Night Engagement Commencing Tomorrow Night.

Tomorrow night, The Reynolds & Rose Players, with E. Forest Taylor and M. Ad. Daniels, open a two-night engagement at Cotillion Hall. In plays, the best these two favorites have ever played here, they are scoring the hit of their careers. Tomorrow evening the offering will be a great political play of the present day.

Do you know the present political conditions in most of the large cities? The respectable man of business, at that time, was asked, "What is the reformer who stands in the way of the 'ring' but is given a good straight position to stop 'battering'?" The answer was, "The reformer who stands in the way of the 'ring' but is given a good straight position to stop 'battering'?"

The plot of many affairs, whose hands are clean, but whose heart and mind plans the many frauds and schemes that have been played here, and this same party is in all communities, and generally referred to as "Honorable" so and so.

Well, the story of "The Gambo" shows you all these characters. The power of "The Political Boss," and how the boss can control the minds of the people of society this power reaches and controls.

"The Gambo" is a lesson to every man and woman.

Thursday evening a wonderful romance of the underworld. The Deep Purple, in which Mr. Taylor is doing his best work.

"It is a melodrama pure and undiluted" said one N. Y. critic after the first performance. "What a melodrama!"

"The Gambo" is a glorified dime novel written with splendid distinction, with charming grace, with red vigor, but still it is a story of crime now, there's the same tense situations—only it is all presented with such delicacy, such literary charm, one almost forgets the plot and characters of the underworld."

Mr. Paul Armstrong has given to the world a literary gem. True the characters are good, but the rough, but they are characters of everyday life.

"The Deep Purple" will fascinate you, and you will be reluctant to leave your seat at the final fall of the curtain.

THINKS WESTERN WILL BUILD

Such is the Opinion of I. D. Perrine in Salt Lake.

I. D. Perrine of Twin Falls, intimately associated with the O. S. L., recently held an interview with managers of that company in the Utah Hotel of Salt Lake, and their conversation was somewhat interesting. In the building of the road to Contact, in a portion of their conversation Mr. Perrine was heard to state that he was positive that the Western Pacific were going to build as soon as possible and that if they, the O. S. L., wished to build this road should that company consent, it was advisable to begin at once.

A portion of this conversation was published in the Salt Lake Herald.

This coincides with the statement made by Mr. Levee, general manager of the Western Pacific of the Pacific coast, who was in a recent interview with him at the Elko. Mr. Levee stated that in his opinion the Western Pacific would build as soon as possible. The money was over. Mr. Bush, president of the Gould lines, stated recently that money was very scarce, although he had a large amount of money in the bank. He stated that in his opinion all the money would be available that they required.

The road is coming, the capital is coming, the ore is here. The men will get to work. The payroll will be established. Now then keep your eye on the lower property and see it jump. Sugar bush will be relegated to the rear and in its place will spring up business which is needed to the root to meet the demands of the thousands of men with their families that will take up their abode in this town.

The playing across of the economy while will disturb the meadow river along the banks of the Salmon River and the murmur of habitation and civilization will break the stillness of the great mountain sentinels that have guarded the secrets of Contact's wealth for so many years—Contact Miner.

INTERESTING GAME OF SOCCER

New Foot Ball Game Attracting Attention in City.

Soccer is a new game in this country and it is the balls of several of the athletes in Twin Falls that a sport team can be had in this city. The next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, the students and graduates will play a game of Soccer. The game will be played at 7:30 o'clock.

GOOD ROAD TO FALLS

Lincoln County Finishes Road to Top of Shoshone Falls Grade.

We had occasion recently to go over the new road which has been constructed from the rim rock at Shoshone falls to a point within a short distance of the south line of the section. Those who have had occasion to use the old road, there's the same tense situations—only it is all presented with such delicacy, such literary charm, one almost forgets the plot and characters of the underworld."

Mr. Paul Armstrong has given to the world a literary gem. True the characters are good, but the rough, but they are characters of everyday life.

"The Deep Purple" will fascinate you, and you will be reluctant to leave your seat at the final fall of the curtain.

FILER NEWS.

Filer, Ida, Nov. 3, 1913.

Filer, Morro and the surrounding country were not given any credit for their donations to the car that was sent to the Children's Home in Idaho.

The article was sent to the Statesman and the contents papers could it, facts are, the car was here two days, three barrels of fruit sent, one being donated by the Memorial church. Two dry of goods were taken from the school house, among this were 10 sacks of potatoes. The merchants gave liberally from their stocks of goods and the farmers brought in produce from every surrounding district.

We may be small in numbers but we are not small in other things.

The Kanyu Gammu Literary society held its first meeting in the high school auditorium, Wednesday, October 23, 1913.

The teachers were the guests and refreshments of doughnuts, pumpkin pie, a la mode, and sweet cider were served by the domestic science girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Glasbrook have returned to Filer, which improved in health and have decided to locate here again.

A young son of A. A. Davis, who lives southwest of Filer, was taken sick with appendicitis.

He was rushed to Twin Falls hospital and an operation performed. At present writing his condition is very serious.

Miss Ganser, the seventh grade teacher of last year, has completed her six-month term of school in Shoshone basin and returned to Filer where she will have to return to her home at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Prof. Salice, Miss Kerr, Miss Ganser, Supt. and Mrs. Dooly, noted to Twin Falls today evening.

The Woman's club met at Mrs. Geo. Allen's last Wednesday. Members Allen and Dooly were hostesses. The following program was given:

CONSIDER ENGINEER'S REPORT

State Land Board Receives Report Regarding Salmon River Project.

It is probable that the state land board will consider the report submitted by Joe Burckett, one of the state's Carey act engineers, during the early part of next week, and that that report will be placed on public files by the last of the week, in which case The Herald will carry the same in next week's issue. Mr. Burckett, it will be recalled, is the engineer who spent several days on the Salmon a few weeks ago, making various investigations for the state land board.

A. M. Bowen, of Twin Falls, Special Counsel for the Salmon River Settlers' Association, has been in touch with John Gray of Three Creek, during the last few days studying the survey which Mr. Gray obtained some time ago when he contemplated irrigating some land on the Brunen tract, east of the Salmon. Mr. Gray made various filings on water sources there, and had considerable engineering work done. Financial obstacles finally obliged Mr. Gray to abandon his project for the time being, and he offers his rights for the benefit of the Salmon River tract at a mere nominal price, should it develop that they can be used to advantage here.

There has been a great deal of talk during the last year about switching the East Park of the state to the tributaries into the Salmon River reservoir, but there are many conversant with that stream that believed it would not deliver the quantity of water which would be required. Mr. Gray, however, proposes to divert the Brunen itself into the East Park of the Brunen, which he maintains is an engineering possibility. The elevations on the maps submitted would indicate that with the construction of a dam and tunnel, this might be accomplished, and with similar constructions and several cuts, both the Brunen and the East Park, thrown into the reservoir which now impounds the waters of the Salmon for the irrigation of this tract, thus making the present source of water, the waters of another entire river system. It is estimated that these waters would not only furnish sufficient water to irrigate that portion of the tract which it will be impossible to irrigate with the present supply, but will also irrigate enough additional land so, if sold at a slightly advanced price, that it will pay the cost of additional construction work.

As reported in The Herald last week, the State has had an engineer in the field studying various means of obtaining additional water for the Salmon.

It is known that Joe Burckett, one of the Carey act engineers of the state, has spent several days on the Salmon, and in its vicinity, measuring various streams and compiling data. He drove from Rogers to the Cedar and the Honey Creek countries, undoubtedly for the purpose of determining whether the proposition of diverting those streams and the east fork of the Brunen into the Salmon reservoir was feasible, and also to determine the amount of water that could be obtained from those sources. Mr. Burckett, a Twin Falls engineer, is known to have assisted Mr. Burckett in this work. It is also thought that Mr. Burckett investigated the proposition of pumping water from the Twin Falls high line canal to get water for the north end of the project.

The report of this engineer will be a matter of public record within the next few days. The state land board made special arrangements to obtain a copy of it at the earliest possible date, which it will publish in these columns.

It is hoped that the State Land Board will take up the matter with the least possible delay, and will proceed with enough efficiency and expedition to warrant holders of property on the Salmon to believe that the State of Idaho is going to give their guarantee of the Salmon River Project. Otherwise entrymen on the tract intend to proceed on their own account in a direct fashion. The resolution intends to put engineers in the field, if necessary, to look over the various sources of water, and when the most feasible plan has been worked out, action will be instituted to oblige the Water Company, which unfortunately is now in a position to refuse to do the necessary work, failing this, another line of action has been mapped out, and will be reverted to without delay.

Throughout the summer water investigations have been conducted by the federal government with a view of determining what amount of water constituted a water right, or the amount of water that can be beneficially used per acre. The reports obtained are correct, the maximum amount of water produced in nearly every instance the best crops. The opinion of those familiar with this line of investigation believes the water duty will be fixed around 2.4 acre foot for grains. Reports are now at hand for two or three years on the run off of the Salmon River, and with the seepage and evaporation tests conducted by the government, the exact amount of land the present water supply will irrigate will be determined. (Herald Herald.)

And, a condition always dangerous and apt to become intolerable. "What these states will see, therefore, is an emancipation from the subordination to foreign enterprise and an assertion of the splendid character which, in spite of these difficulties, have again and again been able to demonstrate. The dignity, the courage, the self-possession, the respect of the Latin-American states, their achievements in the face of all these adverse circumstances, are nothing less than the admiration and applause of the world. They have had harder bargains driven with them in the matter of loans than any other people in the world. Interest has been exacted of them that was not exacted of anybody, because the risk was said to be greater, and then securities were taken that destroyed the risks. An admirable arrangement for those who were forcing the terms.

"I rejoice in nothing so much as in the prospect that they will be emancipated from these conditions, and we might be the first to take part in assisting that emancipation. I think some of these gentlemen have already had occasion to bear witness that the department of state in recent months in the future they will draw closer and closer to us, because of circumstances of which I wish to speak with moderation, and I hope without indiscretion.

"We must prove ourselves their friends and champions upon terms of equality and honor. You cannot be friends at all except upon the terms of honor, and we must show ourselves friends by comprehending their interest, whether it squares with our interest or not. It is a very perilous thing to determine the foreign policy of a nation in the terms of material interest.

"Comprehension must be the soil in which shall grow all the fruits of friendship; because there is a reason which is deeper than anything else to the thoughtful men of America, and which is the basis of our national liberty in the world. Human rights, national integrity and opportunity, as distinct from the narrow material interests and gentlemen, is the issue which we now have to face.

"I want to take this occasion to say that the United States government will seek on additional foot of territory by conquest. She will devote herself to showing that she knows how to get the most out of her territory, and that she is not content with the material interests made superior to human liberty and national opportunity.

"I say this not with a single thought that anyone will gainsay it, but merely to fix in our consciousness that our real relationship with that of the United States is the property of a family of mankind devoted to the development of true constitutional liberty, as a synonym of individual liberty.

"Reference has been made here today to some of the national problems which confront us as a nation. What is it that we are to do about them? It is that we have seen the hand of material interest sometimes about to close upon our dearest liberties, and we have seen the material interests threaten constitutional freedom in America. Therefore we have tried to sympathize with those in America who have been content with that not only within their borders, but from outside also.

"I know what the response of the thought and heart of America to a program like that will be, because America was created to realize a program like that. This is the first because it is rich. This is the first America because it has not up for a great population great opportunities of prosperity. America is a nation whose sounds in the ears of men everywhere as a synonym of individual opportunity, as a synonym of freedom, as a synonym of individual liberty. I would rather belong to a poor nation that was free than to a rich nation that had ceased to be in love with liberty.

"But we shall not be poor if we love liberty because the nation that loves liberty truly sets every man free to do his best and to be his best and that means the release of all the splendid energies of a great great people who think for themselves. A nation of employees can not be free any more than a national of employees can be. So in emphasizing the palmy, which must unite us in sympathy and in spiritual interest with the Latin-American people we are only emphasizing the points of our own life, and we should give ourselves untrue to our own traditions if we proved ourselves untrue friends today. Do not think, therefore, that questions of the day are mere questions of policy and diplomacy. They are shot through with the principles of life. We dare not turn from the principle that morality and not expediency is the thing that must guide us, and that we will never concede injury because it is most convenient to do so.

get the ultimate view of the beauties of mankind, and we shall presently, it may be a generation or two, come out upon those great heights, where there shines unobscured, the light of the justice of God."

SONG OF CONFIDENCE AND FAITH.

Psalm 71th.
In the Lord do I put my trust.
For I know that He can save me;
A poor, weak worm of the dust,
From danger both on land and sea.

Be thou my strong habitation,
Where I may continually abide,
And in each and every tribulation,
Lord, keep me near thy side.

I'm glad I knew thee in my youth,
And learned of thy saving grace,
Thou hast let me in the way of truth,
So I long to see thy shining face.

Thy my troubles have been many and
Heavy, and I've been perplexed often,
Still I remember what Christ bore,
Our rebellious hearts to soften.

My lips shall continually praise thee,
Thy wonderful works will I declare,
For thou only Lord hast saved me,
From sin and eternal despair.

When old age shall come upon me,
And my strength is growing less,
With child-like trust I'll lean upon thee,
For thou alone my soul canst bless.

PORTLAND STOCK MARKET.

North Portland, Ore., Oct. 31, 1912. Receipts for the week have been: Cattle, 1719; calves, 60; hogs, 3813; sheep, 6521.

An enormous volume of business has been transacted in the cattle market during the last five days, particularly Monday and Tuesday. Receipts totaled a 1912 record for a short period, and as they followed an abnormal liquidation the week before, best outlet would have been hopelessly closed if prices had been firm. It was a buyers' market mostly, but good steers did not sell under $7.50. The bulk of steer transactions averaged $6.75 to $7.15. Butcher stock was weak only in spots. Cows and heifers sold sharply lower, but bulls and stags maintained some degree of firmness. A small lot of heifers selling at $6.75 featured. Lots of cow stuff brought $6.00 to $6.25 with occasional sales in smaller lots at $6.35 and $6.50.

Swine market suffered very little from an advanced liquidation and steady bear pressure. Best light hogs were sold at $8.25 at $8.30 right up to the close and demand was steady. The week's receipts have been above the average, both in quantity and quality. Smooth heavy stock brought good prices. Trade does not seem to be overhauled at present, but November receipts are likely to be heavy.

Sheep business came to life once more, the first opportunity it has had in a fortnight. Receipts were not record-breaking, but of fair volume and a good proportion was wethers, lambs and yearlings. Ewo stock was not choice, but demand is good for this class. Prime Yearlings are up a quarter to $4.75 and wethers at $4.25 to $4.50 and ewes at $4.00, with one load of extra fancy wethers sold off the care Friday at $5.10 and one load on the fill at $5.00, but they were exceptional, the best seen on this market. Lamb trade is firmer at $3.75, although few sales were made, due to short supply. Generally the lamb and sheep markets are steady to higher. Representative sales have been as follows:

27 Steers	1234	$7.50

Style Pays Big Dividends in Homes

When occasion arises for selling, buyers like character and individuality and homes that possess them frequently bring much higher prices than houses built merely for use. We've studied these little things carefully and find that they can usually be applied with but little extra cost. Particularly is this true when we are considering the original plans. And again in the selection of lumber, there are frequently ways of securing the desired results at lower cost than primarily calculated, and when this is possible we are keen to put our customers where to the saving. These incidents tell only a part of the building story you should know in full before spending your money. Ask us for more facts.

SWEET POTATOES ARE QUITE PROFITABLE

Sweet Potato Farm in Delaware That Nets About $200 Per Acre.

(By C. A. MILLER.)

Time was when it was generally believed that good sweet potatoes could only be grown in a certain section of New Jersey, and owing to this belief people are yet buying "Jersey Sweet" stock of which are grown in Delaware, Virginia and other southern states.

The Jersey potatoes are of very fine quality, but some grown in Delaware, Georgia, and those parts of Texas are almost, if not quite, as good.

Climatic conditions do not appreciably influence the quality of sweet potatoes, that is due, very largely to soil and methods of culture. This potato requires a sandy soil, with very little clay in the first six inches. The soil should be rather compact, high, dry, and well-drained. It can be used for sweet potatoes from six to ten years without any rotation, but growers find that after the first and second years the crop improves on the same land.

If the plot is clean we do not plow the land, but cut it up with the harrow three to four inches deep, thoroughly pulverizing and leveling it. In order to have the proper size, shallow preparation and culture must be observed.

We use slipseed for bedding potatoes from which to grow plants, which is the first crop from the vines, or slips cut off the growing plants and set out about the latter part of July. Our potatoes grow from three to four inches long, and about one and a half inches in diameter.

To assure success in bedding they must have kept perfectly, and there must be no rotten ends or black spots. The sprouting is done in the hot-bed, either with manure or fire heat, so as to raise the temperature of the soil to good summer heat. About three inches of good loam is placed in the bottom, the potatoes laid carefully on this and covered with three inches of clean sand. When the plants are from four to six inches long above the sand they are ready to set out.

We plant in ridges three feet apart, four inches above the level of the land. To insure a full crop we plant between May 1st and the 15th. The plants are set 15 inches apart in the row. It is rather slow work planting by hand, but with a machine, a steady team of horses, a man to drive and two boys to place the plants, we can plant about 50,000 or five acres a day.

While the plants are young cultivation and hoeing should be very shallow, and just often enough to keep the soil clean and loose. If cultivated deeply the potatoes will be stringy, long and of poor quality. Then again, shallow cultivation permits the soil to dry out more quickly after a hard rain, and dries it so essential to quality that every effort should be made to insure it.

The only manure we use is a mineral fertilizer, applied in the row at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre. This contains 3 per cent. nitrogen, 7 per cent. phosphorus, and 8 per cent. potash. We use fine ground fish or tankage, nitrate of soda, acid phosphate, and sulphate of potash. We mix our own fertilizer.

The nitrate of soda is applied when the vines are from 6 to 20 inches long, at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre, and it is placed on the row near the plants. This gives the plants a quick start, causing the crop to set at one time, and makes the roots of uniform size, with few small ones.

Thus, in connection with the mineral fertilizer we use, and in the absence of organic matter, we prevent the tendency sweet potatoes have of setting all through the season, which is very detrimental to successful cropping.

Proper handling is just as important as cultivation. For the first sales in August we do not take the potatoes out of the ground any farther than we can sell them. When stored in sheds and barns the exposure to the light and changes in temperature quickly ruin the product.

Proper grading is also important. We have three grades. The firsts are prime, the seconds are good, but of smaller size, and thirds are too small for food, and used for stock feed.

PRODUCTIVITY OF SOIL MAINTAINED

Most Important Object of Green Manuring Is the Addition of Needed Humus.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Green manuring, or the plowing under of green crops, is one of the oldest methods used to maintain or to increase the productivity of the soil. The effect of green manuring is to increase the original character of the soil. In general, sandy or gravelly soils are made darker in color and become more retentive of moisture. Clayey soils are made more porous and friable, so that they are less likely to puddle or bake, and are less subject to washing. Loamy soils are less noticeably affected than others.

The most important object of green manuring is the addition of humus to the soil. Other things being equal, the best green manure is that which furnishes the largest amount of material which will readily decay in the soil and thus form humus. There are, however, additional ways in which such a crop may be beneficial.

Deep-rooted plants are decidedly preferable to shallow-rooted, because they penetrate into the subsoil. In this way air and water find entrance, especially after the roots decay. Thus, in a way every deep-rooted plant is a subsoiler. It is also supposed that such plants, especially when plowed under, tend to enrich the surface soil with potash and phosphorus from the subsoil, thus bringing these substances within the reach of shallow-rooted plants.

Leguminous plants are more valuable for green manuring than others, because they not only provide humus, but also have the ability to use the nitrogen of the air, which upon decaying they add to the soil. For this reason green manure crops should always be legumes if the crops are adapted to the particular locality where needed and can be sown at the time desired.

Cause of Dry Rot.

The dry rot of potatoes, in storage, is caused by a fungus. It may be controlled by dipping the tubers in a solution of one pint formalin in a barrel of water and leaving them immersed for two hours. They must be dried before being stored.

EXCELLENT METHOD OF FILLING A SILO

There is Greater Danger of Putting Up Silage Too Dry Rather Than Too Moist.

(By WALTER B. LEUTE.)

Corn is ready to be cut for silage when the grain is in the dent and glazed, but can still be broken with the thumb nail. At this stage, under normal conditions the top or "chute" bottom leaves will be turning brown and the shuck will be turning yellow at the end. There is greater danger of putting up silage too dry rather than too moist. In a silage silo the stalks should be lightened up to exclude the air and generally loosened a little after the silage swells the stalks. The inside wall of a concrete silo should be washed with this mixture of cement and water every two or three years. This fills the pores and keeps the air from the silage.

It will take at least six teams to keep the average silage cutter busy. Corn should not be cut down too far ahead or it will dry out too much. Two men should work in the silo distributing the silage with forks. Where a silage distributor is used one man is sufficient. They should keep the silage higher at the walls than in the center and should continually tramp the all age next to the walls. The tramping is especially to keep out the air. When possible, allow the machine to stand two or three days, then tramp to make use of all the capacity. Finish filling the silo by running in a lot of grass or weeds. This will rot and seal the top and prevent having to throw out the same amount of spoiled silage.

The silage should feel wet after it is cut in the silo. If the corn is very mature when cut, and is therefore too dry, add water. A small stream may be run into the blower from a barrel or tank. It is especially important that the silage be well tramped. The blower should be run a few minutes every morning in order to clear the atmosphere before any one enters the silo.

Barley makes a fine feed for the hogs. The cheapest lot of pigs the writer has ever brought up to 120 pounds had barley as their main ration.

ROAD BUILDING

COST OF ROAD MAINTENANCE

Test in Southeastern Nebraska Shows Satisfactory Work Can Be Done For Less Than $10 Per Mile.

By C. F. CHABER, North Dakota Agricultural College.

At the home farm in southeastern Nebraska there is a stretch of land, one-half mile in length that we have dragged for seven years. Only once during this period has this road been worked with anything but a drag. Two years ago the side ditches were cleaned with the common road grader. A careful record of the time taken to drag this road has been kept. Two trips for one man and one team requiring one hour's time for a single dragging is the basis taken. The first year we dragged it 15 times, the second 13, the third 12, and the fourth 12 and the fifth 14 times or 71 draggings of one hour's time in five years. This is 30 cents an hour for a man and team is $2.25 a year for the one-half mile. For a mile it would be $3.52 annually. Another road in the immediate vicinity cost less than $10 per mile annually. A case is noted in Public Roads Bulletin No. 48, United States department of agriculture, where the cost of similar maintenance of roads in Arkansas was $11 per mile. State Engineer Gearhart of Kansas puts the range of cost for dragging at from $4 to $10.

The cost for North Dakota should not cost more than $10 a mile, while in most cases it would be much less, the cost depending upon the character of the soil, the rainfall, traffic, and grade. As an average for all dirt roads I would place the annual cost of maintenance at $7.50 per mile or $460,740 to drag in a satisfactory manner the roads in North Dakota each year. The total expenditure on public roads of North Dakota, outside of towns in 1911 was $691,540. If properly organized, and if the people were educated, we could properly maintain our earth road with the present road funds and have $220,800 left for bridges, new construction, etc.

The national office of public roads recommends that a system combining dragging. The Nebraska legislature passed a law that is not unlike the patrol system. The substance of the law is as follows:

The graded roads in each county are to be divided into road dragging districts by the county boards. One person to each township is to be appointed superintendent of dragging, and is to receive not more than $3.50 per day.

Roads shall be dragged whenever necessary, and all the sections of the highway shall be dragged at once. County boards may levy a tax on each section of road for dragging. Where four horses are used on an eight-foot drag, the rate of payment is 75 cents for each mile of highway dragged both ways. Where a seven-foot drag and two or three horses are used, 60 cents is the prescribed rate.

On rocky highways or stretches of road that cannot be improved by dragging the county boards are not required to put the act into effect.

EXHIBITION OF ROAD MODELS.

Greatest Display Ever Shown in Any Part of World Will Be Seen at San Francisco in 1915.

Arrangements are to be made by the United States department of agriculture, through Logan Waller Page, director of the office of public roads, to place on exhibition in 1915 the greatest collection of road models ever displayed in any part of the world. The models will furnish exact duplicates of the old Roman roads, French roads, and all of the various types of modern roads, together with miniature models of road machinery operated by electricity.

The office of public roads made an exhibit of road models for the first time at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The plan was to put on view such striking examples in miniature of road models that visitors would not only appreciate the beneficent effects of improved highways, but would maintain, and also be able to understand the methods of their construction.

Since the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition closed, the exhibition has been displayed at various other expositions and fairs. Since that time the collection has been greatly augmented, until every single type of road is now represented and every known device used in the making of roads has been reproduced in miniature.

As a result of the instruction furnished by these road models, many farmers have joined forces to improve their own highways, and the road building movement has had a great impetus.

Must Be Paid For.

If we are to have good roads, we must be willing to pay for them and we must be willing to pay for their maintenance, and also remember that the maintenance is of as great if not greater importance than the original construction.

New Paris Pavement.

Many durable and better than ordinary macadam is said to be a new pavement laid in Paris with a bottom layer of concrete, an intermediate one of concrete mortar reinforced with iron rods, and a surfacing of crushed stone and mortar.

"MINUTE MEN" ARE SCARCE

Wireless Telegraphy Is Practiced Very Extensively by British Flag Waggons.

How many readers of Answers knows what a "minute man" is? He is an army signaler who is so skilled at his work that, with the ordinary signaling flag, he can "send" the seven letters, sign, and figures which the Morse code contains in six seconds. As some of the letters have to be expressed by four movements of the flag, you can guess that he has to be pretty smart. As a matter of fact, he has to be a flag to and fro at an average rate of five times a second.

"There is a tremendous amount of competition for the distinction," said a minute man to London Answers in a distinction so hard to obtain that minute men are very scarce.

"The regiment which has more than one or two of them in its body of signallers is lucky indeed. As a matter of fact," he went on, "though people know so little about them, signallers are of the greatest importance to an army in times of war. Telegraphic wires are rarely available and field telegraphs are much too clumsy for use when a large stretch of country has to be covered by mobile forces.

"It was the signaler who has the hot time. He has to choose rising ground for his work. He cannot take advantage of cover as other troops can. The flash of his hells or the waving of his flags makes a fine target and the enemy knows that it is good policy to shoot signallers.

"One signaler I know who was attached to a mounted infantry corps had three hollow glassed broken by bullets while he was sending messages in South Africa.

"Another man had his flag shot from his hand on two different occasions.

"But in times of peace the signaler is rather to be envied. It is true he has to work hard, but the war office does not think much of him, and his only cash reward is a bonus for passing his annual examination.

"But as a rule, unless a regiment is well equipped, he is not called upon to perform any fatiguing duty. Until a few years ago, at any rate, he only carried a cape on route marches. Instead of the heavy kit of the ordinary private, then, in many regiments, the signaller has a room to himself, and only those who have lived in big barracks know what a comfort that is.

"When a regiment is on the march the signaller goes last. Then comes the pioneers, then the signallers, then the band, followed by the rest, and soldiers think a lot of little points of precedence like that."

When Leaves Fall.

The call to the country is never so strong as in autumn. Custom and commerce and society have conspired to call men back to the city just when the heat has passed, and the mellowing autumn air is so pleasant. It is alluring in the country. When the haze hangs over the hills, and leaves are green and gold and scarlet, and soft sunlight of Indian summer fills the world, the west wind stirs in man the half extinct memory of his hunting ancestors and he longs to strike the trail for the unknown woods. Then it is his primal instinct prompt him to build a wood fire and sleep under the starry skies. But, alas! stern necessity or feverish night of winter gaily call most men back to the nervous grind of the world as it is. But only if we could strike the long trail and answer the call of Indian summer, what wonderful high adventure, what keen delight, and restful wonder we might find over the rim yonder—from whence the west wind comes.—Harper's Weekly.

Uses for Gold-Filled Wire.

Since the advent of gold-filled wire in the commercial jeweler's trade it has been put to an almost countless number of uses. Its durability and the pliancy with which it may be handled has made it an especial favorite in many classes of work which heretofore were considered arduous and necessarily were expensive.

Gold-filled wire is equal to gold in durability. In fact it has many qualities not possessed by the "solid" alloyed products. Especially has gold wire been found of unusual value in the manufacture of spectacle rims. It is easily worked.

As evidence of the great amount employed it is well to recall that one factory alone uses $1,000,000 worth of gold a year and about half of it finds its way into gold-wire spectacle rims. "Gold-filled" is in reality filled gold, for it is a gold shell filled with an alloy. Filled gold generally is made by pressing gold sheets upon either side of a sheet of base metal.

Sentenced for His Doory.

Much as the labors of poets are decried in the United States, poem writing has not yet come to be regarded as a crime punishable by the courts, and the sentence "found guilty of a poem" is yet to be pronounced in the halls of justice of our country. Not all lands, however, are blessed with this benevolent tolerance toward the poet. He is recent trial in Cairo made evident. A young native of the country, Abdul Halim El Maari, was sentenced to serve three months in prison for having written a poem. The court, decreed that some of the remarks in the poem in reference to the Khedive were of a subversive character, and that the offending lyricist should be punished and at the same time be given an opportunity to repent of his crime.

"HOW TO KEEP HUSBANDS"

No Copyrighted Rules for Their Retention—Matter of Feeding Important Feature of Work.

"How to keep husbands" is coming to be a more important subject with magazine writers than "How to get husbands." And perhaps it deserves more consideration. The topic is not copyrighted. Nearly everybody is taking a hand in the discussion. It's our turn.

Ninety-nine times out of 100 a husband can be kept by feeding him. When he comes home, tired, feed him; when he finds fault with things, feed him; when he complains about business, feed him; when he has the blues about the hopes of the home team—feed him; when he laments the poor quality of the last set of tires, feed him; when he's cross, feed him; when he's angry, feed him; when he's sick, feed him; always feed him.

No husband who yaddies or stalks into his home of evenings, tired, worried, disgusted, half angry, out of sorts, can remain so after he has filled up on a juicy steak and warm pumpkin pie. No husband will object to the prisms of the children that have torn his magazine, or lost the sporting section of the evening paper, when he has had a good supper. No husband will go to his work with the blues if he has had the right kind of breakfast.

When great deeds are to be done the well-fed man must be depended upon to do them; when great ideas are to be thought out, men with satisfied stomachs are the ones to think them; when skill is demanded, when strength is required, when intelligence is needed, it is the well-fed men who come forward to fill the demands.

On the one of a great battle either for his country or for his personal welfare, the conqueror is the man who eats good food and then marches forth to victory. Depend upon it, feeding the men of the world is as much a social as an economic problem, and the women upon whom it devolves to feed their husbands, by doing it not only keep their husbands, but keep the world moving.

Base Ball Story.

Here is a little story told recently by Christy Mathewson, and it may cast a side light on some inside baseball that will be interesting to our fans: "One of the most serious things that can happen in a game of ball," said the mighty twirler, "is for the pitcher to double cross his catcher. It was not so very long ago that I did this to 'Chief' Meyers. In fact, I have been guilty of that breach of baseball etiquette on several occasions, but always unwittingly. Now here's the reason for my lapses: Meyers is naturally a man whose head is as hard as his skin is unusually so. When he puts his hand against his glove to give the signal for the kind of a pitch he wants, it is hard to tell whether he has one or two fingers extended. One finger might be the signal for a curve and two for a fast one. After giving a signal the catcher, naturally, is looking for what he called, and if the twirler throws something else, the catcher might easily be injured. This is the first time in my long career that the color of a catcher's hand played such an important part in baseball games. Every fan knows that the face of a backstop's glove becomes a dark brown, and what in addition, the catcher's hand is tanned to an unusual degree, it is some job for the pitcher to tell the difference between one and two fingers."—Leslie's.

"Uneasy Lies the Head."

A German princeling is reported to have been "nominated" to the throne of Albania. "Uneasy lies the head," etc., and it is difficult to imagine a much more uneasy proposition than the leadership of a people whose chief occupation, at any rate whose chief interest, lies in murderous feuds. Imagine the Highlands of Scotland as they were in the middle ages, with the Mcintoshes and Camerons at war, and other clans or party of clans following suit. Imagine the introduction into this hilly-burly of warring religions, not two but three, all bitterly opposed to each other. Imagine, further, that two foreign nations are perpetually intriguing among these distraught Highlanders trying to win clans over to their respective sides. There you have the condition of Albania at the present moment, with this additional complication—that those who have been included in the territory of Montenegro, Serbia, and Greece will be perpetually fighting against the prizes.—London Evening Standard.

Relation of City and Country.

With us, cities are as certain to spring up with the increase of country population as the forests are to disappear. City and country are organically related. Crops cannot be grown without fields, nor exchanged and manufactured under the present system of division of labor without cities. Only in the rudest pioneer settlements do men dispense with this division of labor by doing everything painfully and badly on the farm. Such settlements are retarded and hampered until they have towns for the city to get the work. When we estimate that the average inhabitant of New York may have but a few score square feet for his own use, we are apt to forget that he has only eight on them, because somewhere in the country there are acres of ground producing for him, we really and definitely for him, as if he owned them and hired the labor on them, what Professor Pomak has called his "sustenance space."—Mark Jefferson, in the Atlantic.

Why the Glow Worm Glows.

Many animals possess the power of becoming luminous at will. Glow worms are the most striking example of this curious phenomenon. Many folk that live in the deep woods possess this same power of becoming luminous. Scientists have vainly tried to explain the mechanism of this luminosity. Prof. Armand Gautier of Paris has just communicated to the Academy of Sciences a notice of MM. Ville and Donien of Montpellier, who explain this production of light by the oxidation of a substance secreted by luminous animals, called lophine. This organic matter, when in contact with the influence of oxygen, emits a visible luminosity. Potash, in the presence of catalytic elements, such as the ferruginous matters of the blood, likewise provokes the oxidation of the lophine, and consequently forms light. Oxygenated water has also the same property. In the organisms it is unstable oxygen of the tissues catalyzed by the ferruginous elements of the blood that produces the oxidation of the lophine and renders animals luminous.

Carlisle's Interest in the Middle.

Carlisle's interest in domestic details, as shown by his letter (just published by Dr. Hegerbert Wright) about taking the house at Carlsbad, was always fairly well confined. He would on occasion find relief for one of his moods or take a pleasure in sweeping down with broom and water the path of his "dear old home" in a "garden." Nor did he disdain personal concern about the furniture. One of the most vivid little notes to his wife preserved in the Carlisle collection at Chelsea is the scrap of paper dated December 24, 1819, in which he scribbled Christmas wishes to his wife and the promise of a wash-and-aud as his Christmas gift to her.

THE REAL FRA DIAVOLO

DESERBED BY MEN, BETRAYED
BY HIS PHYSICIAN.

Memoirs of Gen. Hugo Tell Story of Campaign Against the Brigand Who Fought for Bourbons Against Napoleon.

General Hugo's memoirs tell the story of his campaign against Fra Diavolo, alias Michael Pessa, the Italian brigand who fought for the Bourbons against Napoleon. The general transforms his adversary into a kind of hero and puts his personal prowess in such dramatic light that his son, the poet Victor Hugo, found it necessary to add little or nothing to the account to raise it to the level of an epic.

However, M. Jacques Rambaud publishes in the Revue des Paris some new documents which make this campaign to more prosaic proportions. These documents are the very letters written by Commandant Hugo, the future general, to Caesar Berthier, his commander-in-chief, as well as the formal report of his operations drawn up at Naples on November 4, 1808.

In his memoirs Hugo from the outset affects a wonderful confidence; his letters prove that he was mighty perplexed how to deal with an enemy with whom the whole population was in sympathy, and he frankly confesses that in the work of conquest he looks rather to bribery and treachery than to force of arms.

His memoirs describe a real battle, the fight at Bojano, in which his soldiers are represented as making 30 prisoners after killing or drowning hundreds of brigands. His letters are more modest and speak only of a skirmish in which "several" brigands were killed and only six were taken prisoners. Where is, too, in these letters nothing about the shot in his right leg which he afterwards mentions in his memoirs; on the contrary, he seems to have moved about with remarkable agility.

This does not mean that the campaign against the famous brigand was not decidedly strenuous, but the military operations would have been singularly fruitless and Fra Diavolo would have continued to range the country for many years had he not been deserted by his men and in his solitary condition recognized by a village doctor, who won his confidence and betrayed him.

Hugo assures us in his memoirs that he interceded with King Joseph to grant Fra Diavolo a pardon. There is no evidence of this and it is not very likely. How could he have had the face to claim that this captured brigand should be treated as a prisoner of war when from his own showing he was a man more celebrated for crimes than for deeds of military daring, more accustomed to take a flight than to stand his ground and fight? He compared him, indeed, with Maudin and Cartouche. That means that the hangman's rope was too good for him.

THE COMING LECTURE COURSE

Something of the Attractions For This Winter.

"The first number of the Lecture Course will be the Kollogg-Halnes Singing Party. No introduction is necessary for this splendid musical organization. They opened the course in Twin Falls several years ago. They come with more experience and with a better program than ever. They give a number of scenes from grand opera, one from "Dolly Varden," one from the "Bohemian Girl" and one from "Il Trovatore." Several numbers of the program are given in costume.

Mr. John F. Chambers, one of the most effective readers on the Lyceum platform, will give the third number of the course, "The Grand Army Man." Chambers is one of the strong interpreters of the great masterpieces. A splendid number.

The fourth number of the course will be the Weather-Wax Brothers Quartet. This is the great quartet since the Whitneys disbanded. They have been singing together since '96. One of the pleasing features of the program will be the "Trumpet Quartet." Two of the brothers are also
