Judge Lovett Steps on Burley Cut-off

PLAIN TALK FROM UNION PACIFIC PRESIDENT IN SALT LAKE.

Is Not Interested in What the Western Pacific Is Doing at the Present Time. Will Use Money for Double Tracking.

The Burley cut-off will not be built by the Oregon Short Line, Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive board of the Hariman system, gave his decision in the matter yesterday afternoon when he met the committee appointed by the Commercial club to present the matter to him. He followed out the interview which he gave to the Herald-Republic on Wednesday night, and told the committee that the Union Pacific system was not building any new roads unless they would pay for the start.

When the matter was presented to Judge Lovett he asked some very pointed questions as to the origin of the line in the Twin Falls district and as to what benefits would be derived from the building of the road. There seemed to have been no apprehension, Judge Lovett said, as the building of the Burley cut-off would only decrease the distance into Idaho from Salt Lake about thirty-five miles under the present trackage. "This," he said, "would only save about one hour in passenger travel and two hours and thirty minutes in freight haulage."

He asserted that the road would cost several millions of dollars and that it would not be a paying proposition from the start. He explained to the committee that what money could be spared by the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line would be used in building double track on the present lines of the company. The head of the Hariman lines said that the traffic could be handled with a double track system than by building short lines and short cut-offs.

While Judge Lovett was silent as to the reasons for refusing the request to start construction of the Burley cut-off, a Short Line official said yesterday that owing to the great number of lines which have been built into Idaho in the past few years by the Oregon Short Line which were pioneer railroads and non-productive of revenue, Judge Lovett has determined that the Twin Falls branch to Driggs, Idaho Northern to Payette Lakes, the Hillsdale branch, the Homedale branch and the low water grade line to Snake river bridge will themselves be well paid for by themselves.

The point has also been raised by railroad men that the cut-off would shorten the distance and might pluck the railroad into an argument with shippers, who would claim that the line should be built. Further it is asserted that the construction of the road would cost several millions of dollars, upon which there would be no returns for years.

Judge Lovett has a desire to see whether the United States government can build private corporations which are building irrigation projects in southern Idaho can complete their projects and operate them without having the government build into them. He notified the Utah river irrigation project.

If the line were built by way of promoting the railroad, it would be compelled. It is argued in some quarters that the line would be a good revenue with a decreased operation cost for the line built by way of Payette Lakes and Minidoka.

That the improvements recently made at Pocatello would not be needed in the event of routing freight over the cut-off.

The committee of the Commercial club explained to Judge Lovett that they wished to meet him and ask him to have the same personal interest in Salt Lake and Utah that was evidenced by the late F. H. Hariman. During the meeting Judge Lovett made very pointed questions of the committee concerning statistics on freight rates, mileage, time and the commodities which were being shipped.

Judge Lovett was asked what would happen in the event that the Western Pacific should build into Idaho by way of Pocatello, New, and furnish a whole line of transportation in the coast. It was pointed out that this might affect the whole line of houses of Salt Lake and divert business to that point.

Judge Lovett told the committee that was a matter which each of the cities had to take care of for itself, and that the Union Pacific was not interested in what the Western Pacific was doing at this time.

Shortly after the meeting Judge Lovett left for the east. He was accompanied by him were President A. L. Mohler of the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line; Traffic

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Governor John M. Haines Asks People of Idaho to Give Thanks.

Dating back practically to the first settlement of this continent, the custom has prevailed of setting aside one day in each year as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for his manifold blessings to our people.

This praiseworthy custom should ever be perpetuated. Each year brings its own blessings and rewards, and a grateful and devout people should ever be willing to voice their obligations to Divine Providence for His sheltering protection and abundant moral and material gifts vouchsafed to them.

But in addition to thanking God for our great material progress and for the blessings of food, field and mine, we should seek divine guidance in the proper use of that which comes into our hands.

We should pray to be delivered from that spirit of extravagance which affects not only our individual but also our collective actions, and which year by year adds to the cost of living. In its place we should seek to have inculcated that spirit of thrift which characterizes our forefathers, and upon which the permanent prosperity of the individual and of the State must ever rest.

In obedience to this long-established custom, I, John M. Haines, governor of the state of Idaho, do join with the president of the United States in designating Thursday, November 27, 1913, as a day of public thanksgiving for the people of this state. I ask that all business concerns be laid aside and that the day be observed in all our churches and homes as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed, at Boise, Idaho, this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

JOHN M. HAINES, Governor.
By the Governor—Attest:
WILFRED L. GIFFORD, Secretary of State.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB HERE

George S. Irving Coaches Commercial Club on Bigger and Better City

Week Will Be Devoted to Membership Campaign for Club and to Devising Publicity Plans for the Future

How to build up a bigger and better Twin Falls will be the work of the Commercial Club, according to George S. Irving, its president. Mr. Irving arrived in this city the first of the week and began his campaign by getting around among the members of the club during the morning. Monday noon Secretary McMillan authorized a number of the club members to meet in a social luncheon to meet Mr. Irving and Mrs. H. C. Beach, president of the Commercial Club League of the state. Mr. Beach was called upon to talk and briefly stated the object of the league and the desire to enlist the Commercial Club League of the state. Mr. Beach's hit a responsive cord in the gathering in the idea of getting pictures of the refrigerator cars being loaded at the stations in the county and showing the same to President Bush during his visit here this week.

At a meeting, then occupied the rest of the time telling something of the aims of a city like Twin Falls. He paid a high compliment to the past boasting of the Commercial club in classing Twin Falls as a national city, because it has a national reputation. His chief plan for a better city was brought out in a series of suggestions for the Commercial Club Membership. A plan for an industrial guaranty fund was touched upon as a means of getting business and increased pay roll. A call was made for volunteers to meet that night in the club-rooms and plan the campaign.

Sealy Mattress Sales

Are Increasing

There are certain goods that advertise themselves by their own merit. Such goods by virtue of their noticeable superiority over similar goods will be sought out by the public as surely as water will find its level.

Such an article is the Sealy Mattress. Its superior construction, the long staple cotton used in it and the resulting luxurious ease from the way it is made, without tufting, makes it a mattress to be talked of, praised and asked for by discriminating buyers. Our sales of Sealy Mattresses are constantly increasing, and that with little advertising. If you want the most luxurious mattress you ever slept on, try a Sealy; sleep on it for 60 days and if it is not the best bed you ever rested on, send it back.

FIRST MILITANTS ON RECORD

Amazons Undoubtedly Were the Original Fighters of Their Sex in Warlike Bands.

The Amazons were fabled tribes or warlike communities of women in Scythia, Asia and Africa. They were said to be descendants of Scythians of Cappadocia, where their husbands, having made incurious, were all slain in ambushes. The women formed a feminine state, declaring matrimony a shameful servitude. They were said to have been conquered by Theseus, about 1231 B. C. According to Homer, they were allies of the Trojans in the siege of Troy, where their queen, Penthesilea, was slain by Achilles. Theseus and Hippolyta, queen of the Amazons, are characters in Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." The Amazons were constantly at war; and for ease in handling their weapons, their right breasts were destroyed, from which they derived their name. They were supposed to have worshipped the moon. About 330 B. C. their queen, Thalestris, visited Alexander the Great, in Asia, with 300 women in her train.

ROADS SHOULD BE DRAGGED

Systematic and Persistent Use of Drag Will Result in Very Great Amount of Improvement.

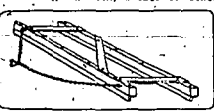

The great benefit to dirt roads from the systematic and persistent use of the road drag is certainly so plain in Illinois and other states this year that no sensible person can doubt that the use of the road drag should be provided for by law. Says the Illinois Farmer, "The systematic dragging of earth roads will result in much greater improvement than any other work on them costing this year. The road drag makes a very great improvement on all roads except those that are quite sandy. This year has demonstrated that nine-tenths of the roads of Illinois, Iowa, etc., can be made, by systematic dragging, as good as could well be desired for at least nine months of the year. Roads in Illinois and neighboring states that have been well dragged for three or four years past have been in better summer better for both heavy traffic and automobiles than the brick or stone paved streets of the cities. It takes several years of systematic dragging to make earth roads as good as they can be made with the drag. Each year toughens and hardens the road and also lessens the necessary work with the drag.

Certainly every state with soil similar to that of Illinois should have a law requiring road officials to have the roads dragged whenever needed, of course providing for the payment for this work out of the road taxes. Both farmers and towns people should begin work at once to secure such a law. It will take real work to get such a law for it will not make necessary high-priced engineers and consultants, or give room for big graft in any one spot. Fortunately the roads can be properly dragged by farmers and others and this road improvement can be made without taking it out of the hands of local officials who can be watched closely.

ROAD DRAG IS ALWAYS SHARP

Angle-Steel Frame of Worn-Out Grain Drill, Blinder or Other Machine Will Answer Purpose.

The principle of the split-log road drag is a good one, but through its structural imperfection it fails to apply the principle effectively. It is crude, heavy, and the cutting edges soon wear dull. A good drag may be made from the angle-steel frame of a worn-out grain drill, blinder or other machines, writes Clyde W. Miller of Mahaska, Kan., in the Farmers' Mail and Review. Usually these frames have a number of holes in them and it is not much work to make the pieces into blades for the drag. The blades are bolted to 4 by 4 in the proper shape in the drawing. When made about seven feet long a team of horses will pull it handily, the driver riding.

MEANS OF PREVENTING DUST

Proper Spreading of Tar on Macadamized Roads Will Do Work Effectively—Roads Last Longer.

At the recent road conference in Peas, Ill. as decided that the proper spreading of tar on macadamized roads is an effective means of preventing dust. The method is largely used in France. About one-third of a gallon of tar is used for each square yard of surface. The roads last longer, and the cost of maintenance is reduced. In the United States oil is employed to a considerable extent to prevent dust and preserve the surface of roads. The oil is spread from carts, during the making of the road, to the amount of one or two gallons per square yard. The French road engineers recommend the planting of preventing dust. In France all roads not less than 32 feet wide are required to have a single line of trees on each side, at distances apart varying from 16 to 32 feet—Youth's Company.

Preparing Garden Soil. In preparing garden soil for late cabbage, celery and other late crops, work it down very fine and compact. Use the harrow, drag and roller for this purpose. If the soil is made very fine and compact, it will hold moisture to nourish the roots of the newly set plants.

Benefits of Good Roads. Good roads unhampered distance and cancel space. They bring the farmer nearer the market and place the city man in closer touch with nature.

ANCIENT AND MODERN WAR

Idle to Make Comparison as to the Courage Required by the Soldiers of the Period.

Much is written of the terrors of modern war. Little is written of the terrors of the wars of old. Yet it is doubtful if war today makes greater demands on human courage than war in the time of Grant, at Washington, of Turenne, of Caesar, of Alexander.

Consider a stand-up infantry fight in the days of the revolution. After the preliminary cannonade and long distances musketry practice, the two regiments marched toward each other in close ranks. At a given distance, frequently at thirty yards, there was a halt, a smashing volley, and then a bayonet charge through the smoke. Bullets those days were large and of soft lead, and the man who was hit went down. Over him tramped his comrades or the enemy, shooting and stabbing.

That was the type of infantry battles for 150 years. To minimize the courage needed to make a good soldier under such circumstances is to fly in the face of common sense.

Modern war requires a different type of courage from that needed of old. The old touch of elbow is lacking. The old feeling of companionship is gone. The modern soldier must be more alert, better taught, keener witted than the olden soldier of equal value. But it does not follow that the modern soldier is the braver man.

The man who fought at the "blood-angles" of Chippewa and Spottsylvania, at Bull Run and Gettysburg, at Rivolt, Zorndorf and Mollath, had no need to learn heroism in any modern school. It was there already.

HELPLESS WITHOUT THE DOG

Seemingly Owner of Cows Had Not Thought That He Himself Might Go After Them.

An Atlanta man tells of an amusing experience he had in a mountainous region in a southwestern state, where the inhabitants are notoriously shiftless. Arriving at a dilapidated shanty at the noon hour, he inquired as to the prospect for getting dinner.

The head of the family, who had been "feasting" on a fallen tree in front of his dwelling, made reply to the effect that he "gussed ma'd hev suthin' onto the table putty soon."

With this encouragement the traveler, disheartened. To his chagrin, however, he soon discovered that the food set before him was such that he could not possibly "make a meal." He made such excuses as he could for his lack of appetite, and finally besought himself of a kind of nourishment which he might venture to take and which was sure to be found in any locality. He asked for some milk.

"Don't have milk no more," said the head of the place. "Folks dogs dead."

"The dog?" cried the stranger. "What on earth has the dog to do with it?"

"Well," explained his host meditatively, "them cows don't seem to know enough to come up an' be milked their selves. The dog, he used to go for 'em an' fetch 'em up."—Lippinbott's.

American Style.

New Yorkers are so accustomed to seeing things done in their own way that they never stop to think how they are done until somebody else makes a virtue of doing them that way. Two American women who had always accepted everything at home as a universal custom were astonished to see in a London drug store window this notice:

"American drugs and drinks. Par-cels fastened American style."

They were sufficiently interested to step in and inquire what the American style was?

"With rubber bands," said the clerk, and deftly snapped a band around a bottle in the familiar way.

"But how else would you fasten it?" they asked.

"With sealing wax," he said. "No conservative English firm would dream of using anything else. It is only the stores that make a bid for the American trade that will use rubber bands."

Urgent Need of More Water.

If a reason is sought for the hold which beer drinking has on people it may be found in part in the difficulty of getting water to drink. That also gives the soda fountain business. The New York Tribune has published a letter from a citizen of New Jersey, who complained that he could not get a drink of water in New York city. His complaint is just; and it applies to every town and city. The person who wishes a cooling draft must pay money, five cents at least, for it, and he can rarely get water even then. Various attempts to meet the lack have failed, and the discovery of the germ theory has contrived to render the failure apparently final.

Profanity Once Indispensable.

Swearing was at one time regarded as an indispensable accomplishment. Evelyn Ashley once told Sir Algernon West that on his father becoming Lord Shaftesbury, Lady Caroline Neeld, his sister, said to him, in all seriousness, "Now that you have come into the title, you must learn to swear. Your father always did, and gained great respect by it in the country." Those were the days when the archbishop of Canterbury, calling upon Lord Melbourne to discuss some business, said: "Now, my lord, it will save time if, before we begin, we assume that everybody and everything is damned."—London Chronicle.

Some Tasks Are Hard and Some Are Easy For Want Ads---While Few Indeed Are Impossible

The easy want ad tasks are usually accomplished through one publication of the ad. The want ad tasks may require repeated publications of the ad---sometimes growing into the dignity of "want ad campaigns."

And, while purely "transient" classified advertising may not complete the task set for it, a "want ad campaign" does not fail, if sensible persistence is used. This means that such difficult want ad tasks, as that of finding for your property, or the man who will be glad to invest in your enterprise, or the best possible tenant for that store or business property, are

if you enter upon suitable want ad campaigns.
