TOTAL SHIPPING IS ENORMOUS

Four Stations Ship Out Thousand Cars in October

TOTALS FOR WHOLE TRACT WILL RUN 1250 CARLOADS OUT GOING.

Scenes Along Loading Trucks Worth While to Cheer the Boosters of This County.

The Twin Falls county should prove a slight worth while to President Bush of the Western Pacific if he can get shown something of the shipping activity going on at present. Records made in four towns out of the nine on the short-line branch within the county show a grand total of 1000 carloads shipped out for October. If the totals for other stations of Hansen, Murtagh, Rogerson, Hollister and Minner with that of the smaller shippers could be obtained the outgoing shipments alone would approximate 1250 to 1500 carloads. The average in the month of October is twenty-five and the total shipping from the Twin Falls country would make about two trains a day for every day in the month of October. This does not take into consideration the incoming freight, which will show up decided surprises. The following table will show the amount and the character of the shipping from the towns Duhl, Piler, and Kimberly.

	Kimberly.	Duhl.	Piler.
Hay	58	56	87
Spuds	25	22	29
Wheat	10	27	46
Oats	6	8	10
Flour	10	15	6
Peas	4	2	2
Beans	55	1	1
Clover seed	1	1	1
Total out	156	144	174
Total in	14	25	15

Twin Falls county for October brings this up to 999 carloads of outgoing freight.

Car Situation Improves.

The cars are coming better for November and the record for this station is about ninety in the shipping for the time. About forty cars were loaded at one time in the local yards on Monday and Tuesday and presented a splendid picture of the tonnage which the tract is producing at present, with only seventy per cent under cultivation.

DEPARTMENT WILL HELP

To Assist Idaho Farmers in Killing Jack Rabbits.

Congressman Smith, who called to the attention of the secretary of agriculture, the great injury that is being done to the growing crops and young orchards in southern Idaho by jack rabbits, has been assured that later in the season department will be made at various points in Idaho along experimental lines with the view of discovering the best methods of poisoning rabbits in order that ranchmen may become acquainted with the best known means of combating these pests.

THANKSGIVING CHARITY BALL

Given by Committee of Ladies at Cotton Hall Thanksgiving Evening.

A committee of ladies are making arrangements to give a charity ball at Cotton Hall, Thanksgiving evening, November 27. The money raised will be used for charitable purposes. The ladies who have the arrangements in charge will have the finest music which can be secured in the city for the occasion, and a splendid time is assured to all who attend.

LUNCH AND SMOKER

Knights of Pythias Enjoy Themselves Tuesday Evening.

The members of Twin Falls Lodge No. 46, Knights of Pythias, enjoyed a lunch and smoker at the lodge room Tuesday evening. During the evening talks were made by the members and a campaign for the winter's work was mapped out. A goodly number were present and a pleasant evening spent.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION

Will be held at Twin Falls on November 27, 28 and 29, 1913. Questions will be issued for first, second and third grade County Certificates, and three subjects required for 11-13 Certificates by endorsement, Nov. 11-13.

The ladies of the Baptist church will hold a bazaar December 12, and serve cafeteria lunch each day at noon. Nov 14

NEW TIME CARD

No Change Announced for Twin Falls Branch.

Local Short Line officials of both divisions are working on a new time card, which will probably go into effect next Sunday. Several of the changes contemplated will prove of greater convenience to the traveling public than at present.

The change that was made in the number of the First Mail will again be reversed, and No. 6 and No. 10 will once more assume the schedules they occupied prior to the change that was made during the summer. They will run as formerly, though it has not been given out whether it will operate as the mail train or continue in the passenger service.

No. 3, Butte Express, now arriving at 8:50, will arrive at 7:05, and leave at 8:45, as at present. It merely arrives 15 minutes later.

No. 2, returning, will arrive at 2:30 instead of at 4 p. m., as at present, and this should be a source of gratification to many sportsmen who shoot at Hamer, as it should enable them to get out of Hamer shortly after 11, instead of at 12:40.

No. 1, the Butte Express, now leaving at 7 a. m., will leave 15 minutes earlier, now arriving at 7:20 p. m., will arrive at 7:15 and leave at 7:55.

No. 58, returning road into President, will arrive at 10:45, as at present, will arrive 15 minutes later.

The schedule on the Teton branch is to be reversed, and second it leaving Ashton in the evening and tying up at Victor, will leave Ashton at 7:15 a. m., returning at 4:15 p. m. in time to make connections with the regular St. Anthony branch service.

There may be some changes in the above figures before the time table is officially printed, but those given above are substantially the changes that have been made at this time. —Pocatello Tribune.

GOOD NEWS FOR UPPER VALLEY

Work Has Begun On Idaho Falls Electric Road.

It would appear that the last element of doubt as to the early construction of the electric road has been removed and by next fall the farmers of the valley will be sending their produce to the city on the rails.

W. C. Ross, construction engineer in charge of the work, arrived Friday night. Mr. J. Highland, consulting engineer, arrived Saturday night, and together with Mr. Ross, representing the United Securities company of Chicago, who have financed the road.

Saturday morning Attorney Rathbun of this city, filed an acceptance of the franchise ordinance.

Mr. Ross stated that the contract for the grading of the line has been let to Wm. Rogers and is referring those who wish to work on the line to Mr. Rogers. Monday morning Mr. Ross and his assistants started the survey on First street. The line will leave the city on First street instead of further south as was at first intended, because of making connections with the Short Line freight yards.

Without by the time this item reaches the public the road will be actually moving on the First street line—Idaho Falls Times.

Late that are accurate show every auto owner in each county of the state and whether or not he has paid his license.

It is expected that there will soon be a rush on the secretary of state's office for licenses on the part of car owners who have for one reason or another neglected to secure one for fear of them want to be listed as unpaid. Capital News.

BANKS OF CITY SHOW BIG GAIN

Moving of Crops Increases the Deposits

OCTOBER STATEMENTS NEAR MILLION MARK FOR EACH.

Deposits Increase Over Half Million in Two Months for City's Splendid Institutions.

With deposits amounting to over one and a half million dollars the two Twin Falls banks are showing the great strides made in the accrued capital of the citizens of this city and tract. The October statement shows the resources of the banks to approximately two million dollars with the First National slightly over the million mark. Something of the increase in the deposits can be gained from a comparison of the August statements of the two banks when the following were ascertained:

Twin Falls Bank	August, October.
& Trust Co.	$ 57,026 $ 821,268
First National	476,719 726,257
Total	$1,047,775 $1,547,525
Total increase	over two months, $499,750.

The deposits cannot be said to have reached their heights as yet for the reason that a great amount of money is still out for crops not yet moved and for much of the crops which lie in transit on consignment. At one time the two reports the deposits of the two banks increased over six hundred thousand dollars. Close estimation of the probable revenue from this year's crops cannot be based accurately by any methods, but $3,000,000 is considered far too low by the conservative business men.

SEVERE RELATIONS WITH MEXICO

Director's Convening of Congress is the Last Stray.

Mexico City—General Victoriano Huerta, tacitly, related Wednesday night to accede to the demands of the United States expressed in an ultimatum, sent to him by President Wilson. General Huerta was notified early in the day that unless he returned an answer by 6 o'clock to the effect that he would prevent the newly elected congress from convening, and, furthermore, make this action known to the members of the diplomatic corps by midnight, the United States would have no further parleying with the Mexican government.

Mr. Lind waited until 6 o'clock and received no answer. He then made arrangements for his departure on the train, leaving for Vera Cruz, arrived Saturday morning. General Huerta announced, however, that General Huerta had one chance more—that if he took the action determined by midnight, the fact that he failed to reply to Mr. Lind within the time specified would be overlooked.

Mr. Lind could see no good reason to suppose that Huerta intended to accede.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the charge, was the spokesman who delivered the ultimatum. He was unable to get in to personal touch with General Huerta, but left the message at the president's office.

It was intimated at the palace that General Huerta had not received the note in time to give it full consideration. This, however, did not appear to be a valid excuse for procrastination.

The prevention of the convening of congress has been one essential point in the negotiations conducted by Mr. Lind. There were two reasons for this. First, it was thought that the new congress would lose no time in passing measures having to do with the oil concessions and, second, because the convening of congress would give an air of legality to Huerta's government.—Statesman.

RAILROAD MEN COME

Oregon Short Line Developing Interest in Branch.

E. C. Munson and General Manager Bancroft of the Short Line, arrived in Twin Falls Thursday noon in a special car and left immediately for Rogerson. The purpose of their visit was not disclosed. It is understood, however, that they were taken for a ride over the electric line to inspect the working of the storage battery car. An attempt will be made to get more definite information regarding the line, which has been stalled off so many times before awaiting the coming of Eugene Lovett. Eugene Lovett has some and gone and it is expected that some sort of a statement will be given regarding the promised road south.

PRESIDENT BUSH EXPECTED TODAY

Western Pacific Magnate Having Hard Traveling

WINNEMUCA-BOISE TRIP CONSUMES VALUABLE TIME.

Twin Falls Men Await Bush Party at Shoshone With Automobiles.

President B. Bush is one day behind his schedule according to the latest information received by the consular club and will not arrive in Boise until eight o'clock Thursday night. He will attempt to keep him until Friday night, but the prospects are that Mr. Bush will desire to follow as closely as possible to his schedule and will arrive here this afternoon from Shoshone, where Twin Falls men are awaiting him with autos to bring him via Shoshone falls to this city.

According to the Boise papers the trip from Winnemucca, where he was filled with hardship and many methods of transportation, autos being discarded for teams, owing to mud and later the terms for the cushions of the luxurious line from Homestead to Caldwell and Boise.

President Bush's well known desire to follow his schedule is the reason most of the Twin Falls men give for expecting him to reach Shoshone, Friday morning on train No. 18.

A large number of contact men, the entire male population, of Hollister and Rogerson arrived in Twin Falls to meet the president. The delegation from Idaho Falls also is on its way to this city to boost for the extension of the line up the Snake river valley and down toward Boise.

WILL TEST WEBB LAW

Has State Right to Regulate the Traffic?

Portland, Nov. 11.—Suit filed in the United States district court, P. Z. Morrison Co., wholesale liquor dealers, against the O. W. R. & N. company will probably be carried to the supreme court of the United States in an effort to secure a ruling on the constitutionality of the Webb act. The Webb act, which relates to the interstate commerce of liquor, was passed by the government's only statute so far passed supporting the "dry" or local option movement.

The act, which is mandatory, is returnable before Judge Wolverton. The answer of the railroad company filed in the district court, but it is anticipated that it will set forth that the railroad company refuses to carry shipments of liquor to Hebrun, Idaho, because of the Webb act and the fact that state statutes make the town "dry."

The suit is friendly and both parties agree to the facts. The liquor company was refused the right to ship over the O. W. R. & N. and the Oregon Railroad and Navigation company, considered to Hebrun.

Attorney George G. Guthrie, representing the plaintiffs, stated that his case is not a test case, but it is to the Webb act, is that it is unconstitutional because it gives a state the right, by enacting "dry" legislation, to regulate interstate commerce. This will be the plaintiff's principal point in the case.

The Webb act has never been taken to the supreme court in an effort to determine its constitutionality, although it is one of the most discussed measures passed by congress in recent years. A state judge in Iowa recently declared it unconstitutional, and federal courts in both states of Minnesota and California have denied its legality.—Portland Tribune.

The sale was made through the local office of the company, and constitutes one of the most beneficial deals the farmers organization has pulled off this season.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

Open Day at the Club—All Ladies Cordially Invited.

The Home and Educational department represents a work in the club that is close to the heart of every woman. One can not take true interest in the home without making a careful study of outside conditions. Do our boys use coarse, uncouth language picked up on the alley, or our daughters confound to fast, impure knowledge; then do we realize the tremendous importance of instructing our girls along the lines of personal hygiene.

The value of such instruction is now generally conceded, both from the standpoint of human happiness and social and political welfare. Dr. Shepherd has for several years been giving this subject careful study. His address on Sex Hygiene deals with the subject in a delicate, practical manner.

Address meeting is at 2:30 o'clock. Program begins at 3:00 o'clock. Home and Educational Day, Margaret Grant, leader.

YOUTHFUL FORGER NIPPED BY OFFICERS

Eleven-Year-Old Boy Passes Worthless Checks

SUSPICIONS OF BANK CASHIER LEAD TO CAPTURE.

Four Checks Float Into Bank as Result of Infantile Career of Crime.

An 11-year-old boy has been in charge of the sheriff's office since Wednesday of this week as the result of his attempt to make away with a check for $100.00 from the First National bank. A had whose head barely came up to the level with the top of the counter, present a check for a small sum which on the barest observation showed that the endorsement and signature were all by the same person and that person a child. The check was made out to Charlie Brown and was signed "by" Charlie Brown. When questioned as to whether he had not written the check himself the lad replied "Oh, no, I wouldn't dare to do that." Mr. Grant refused to cash the check after extracting all possible information from the boy and told him to bring in Mr. Brown's father by the way had an account. The lad went out and did not come back.

Wednesday, however, three checks in the same handwriting came into the bank which had been cashed by various houses. Macaulay Brothers, who had taken one of the checks, won give a description of the same to the bank. His story implicated an older boy who had shared in the money obtained. His father, a respectable resident five miles in the country, who are unaware of the lad's downfall. The lad is being held in the charge of the probation officer pending the trial of the case. Judge Shank. From all information it is the boy's first offense and his tender years make the problem a hard one to handle. The sheriff's office parents can be made to realize their responsibility.

The Commercial club, irrespective of Mr. Irving's visit here, owes it to itself to do a few things of its own initiative. In the first place there is either too much labor; or too much self satisfaction with the membership to do its best work for Twin Falls country. We are getting in a rut without a question and need to good sound waking up. This can be accomplished right now without any help from outside experts if the members will rally about the present secretary and board of directors. While the Commercial club is resting on its oars other clubs are zealously working to get more trade and open new territory. It is more or less true that some trade will come to us, but it is also true that we are letting a great amount of business get away from this city. This trade could just as well come here if half an effort was made by a live bunch of the business men. Halfhearted building has so greatly crippled the vision of the boosters that staple every day advancement is ignored.

Apparently President Wilson has decided that the proper way to eliminate Huerta from the Mexican landscape is to starve out his government by cutting off all outside financial support. It is probably the safest way in the end and the surest, but little consolation to the militant Jimism that has been much in evidence ever since the downfall of President Diaz. English, German and American capitalists have been constantly at it for years to take the government away from the promoters for purely selfish reasons. Such interests are not in sympathy with the present policy of the administration. However, most patriotic Americans—regardless of politics—are patiently waiting to see what President Wilson will accomplish, believing that by will do the right thing at the right time. War, waged on by an element which never does any of the fighting, but always capitalizes the necessities brought on by war, is too costly in lives and industrial damages to appeal to many except as the last resort.

A NAVAL REVOLUTION THROUGH OIL-FUEL

The meaning of oil-fuel in the navy, as an all-round promoter of efficiency, is explained in an illustrated article contributed to the London Graphic (October 11) by Percival A. Hildam. The matter, we are told, has been occupying the attention of the British admiralty since 1900, when they began experiments with the old cruiser Blenheim, and when Winston Churchill became first lord, a few years ago there were already 112 British warships built or building to burn oil exclusively. Under the Churchill regime, a further great impetus has been given to this use, and in his first ship-building program—that of 1912-13—every unit will use oil alone to make steam, including five battleships, eight cruisers, twenty destroyers, and many submarines. This looks as if the powerful British navy would ultimately use coal only in exceptional cases. What are the advantages that have induced the British naval authorities to make this great change? Says Mr. Hildam:

"In the first place, when a coal-burning ship has captured her bunkers the whole crew have to shovel and carry, stow and trim for hours on end. An average armored ship can carry 2,000 tons, and it would be a good performance for six or seven hundred men to get such a quantity on board in ten hours; and for another ten hours after that they would be fit for very little.

"An oil-burner simply goes alongside a wharf, hoses are screwed onto the pipes which lead down from the tanks, and the whole operation of coaling is completed in a matter of minutes. What a vast difference, then, when it comes to feeding the furnaces! In a coal-burning ship, when running at full speed the stokeholds are full of sweating stokers, tripped to the waist and shoveling madly but methodically, trimming the furnaces, or clearing out of rubbish. This operation leads to a reduction of steam, so that no coal-burning ship is able to maintain full power for any great length of time. On the other hand, the stoke-hole of an oil-burner ship is as quiet as a reading-room by comparison. A spray leads from the tanks into the furnace, and through this the oil is pumped; and all that the 'stokers' have to do is to see that the pressure is maintained, that the oil is burning properly, and that the sand into which the waste falls is occasionally renewed."

There is, however, one trouble confronting the British Admiralty—that of supply. Supplies must be drawn from overseas, and besides this, prices are being held up by a complicated system of 'tricks'. To overcome the first difficulty, the Admiralty is constructing depots for storing oil at an expense of over $5,000,000, and is also building ships for the carriage of oil from the oil fields to these depots. To render the navy independent of rings, the government is becoming the owner, or at any rate, the controller, of at least a portion of the supply of oil required, now about 200,000 tons a year. To quote further:

"Ultimately, of course, and perhaps very soon indeed—the internal-combustion engine will replace steam as the motive power of even the largest ships, and oil will then be used in the most efficient manner.

"In addition to its many other advantages for naval purposes, oil seems heavily over paid as a steam-raiser. The burning of 1 pound of oil will consume 15 pounds of water to steam, whereas a similar weight of coal converts only 8 or 8½ pounds. This means that a given weight of oil will carry a ship more than 50 per cent. farther than an equal weight of coal; and the liquid has another notable advantage, inasmuch as it occupies only 86 per cent. of the space required for coal.

"Altogether, it is not exaggerating to say that as a means for moving ships oil is at least 60 per cent. superior to coal—that is, while our latest ships can carry a similar weight of coal only 1,800 miles at a speed of 20 knots, they would be able to travel 3,000 miles if oil instead of coal were burned in their furnaces. This is obviously a factor which may influence naval strategy very considerably. It reduces the value of coaling stations and fuel depots generally by 60 per cent., and consequently these nations which are less favorably situated in this respect than Great Britain will feel the severity of the handicap much more. Germany is a notable instance of a strong sea power possessed practically no overseas bases whatever, and this has always been bound to afford a very strong guaranty of protection to British commerce in the event of war, since a commerce-destroyer can not for long pursue its duties without replenishing its bunkers.

"The substitution of oil for coal, and of tanks for bunkers, will not remove the handicap altogether, but it is reduced by every increase in the endurance of the ship. This advantage

TALKS ON THRIFT

NO. 25—THRIFT AND TEMPERANCE

"Apply to the masses of men any of the tests that indicate success or failure in life, progress or stagnation, valuable or worthless citizenship, and none more clearly than thrift, will separate the temperate, well behaved, respected and wealthy from the unsatisfactory member of society."—Andrew Carnegie.

At one of the lectures on "Thrift" held at Cooper Institute, New York, last winter, under the auspices of the Savings Bank Section of the American Bankers Association, a woman in the audience rose and said: "I know a man who earns $10.50 a week and has a wife and five children. How can he save any money?"

The lecturer admitted that in such a case there did not seem much margin left for saving. But right then the woman got up and said: "I've a brother who gets only $10.50 a week and he has brought up five children, too, but he spends a dollar and a half a week for rum."

Now, in all probability neither of those heads of families is in a position to warrant his saving any portion of his wages, because the income in proportion to the size of the family is not large enough for really decent living in the city. But the point is, how much worse off the second man and his family must be because he spends a large proportion of his meagre earnings for "that which is not bread."

Nobody can deny that temperance is the main cause of poverty. The people of this country spend a billion dollars a year for drink—about $100,000,000 more than for all the necessities of life. It is estimated that the billion dollars paid over the counter for drink in a year is only about half of the material damage caused, the other half being spent for the various institutions the public must maintain because of the widespread use of intoxicants.

An official investigation by the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics of Labor showed that 47 per cent. of the inmates of almshouses were there directly or indirectly because of the liquor habit, and this is typical of the results from similar investigations in many other states. The large amount of money paid into treasuries of states and municipalities by liquor dealers does not nearly equal the colossal material waste due to this traffic.

It is interesting to note that large employers of labor not only encourage their employees to save, but they also very strongly discourage the use of alcoholic beverages in order to increase the efficiency of their working force.

This is one of the main points of the economic argument for temperance as an aid to thrift and getting on in the world.

To Convert Gypsies.

In a never-ending, restless tide, a million gypsies surge to and fro across Europe. From east to west they migrate at the beginning of summer, and to east in the fall. Nowhere are they wanted, everywhere they are eyed with suspicion, but still every year they wander, and the authorities of the countries they cross dread their coming and are relieved when they go.

There are always trouble-makers at the frontiers. Here the wanderers are stepped, questioned and often imprisoned as vagrants. But there is nothing to do but finally let them go, and they invariably return the next year. An effort to aid and protect these gypsies is being made by a Swiss clergyman, Rev. H. Ecuver. He has organized a society one of the purposes of which is to instruct the gypsies in the Christian religion, for these nomads are all pagans.

Who We Are.

There are many people who think that the term "American embassy" should be changed to "United States embassy" because the latter sounds more dignified and befitting this great country. They do not realize, however, that the "United States" may mean the United States of Colombia or the United States of Brazil. As a matter of fact, we are Americans because we live in the United States of America. In Spain, however, "American" means a person who lives in South America. The Spaniards call the people of this country "North Americans" or "Yankees." The latter term was most popular just before the late disturbance between the United States and Spain—with the exception of "pig."—Troy Record.

He Knew the Type.

Little Bobby, who had been taken for a Sunday walk in the park, was much interested in watching the swans while a keeper was feeding them. "Papa," he asked, "is that a papa swan or a mamma swan?" "Which one do you mean, Bobby?" "That tired looking one over there with the feathers all pecked off the top of its head and the one the others won't let any of the breed?" "That, my son," replied his father sadly, without even troubling to look, "is the papa swan."

KEEP HUNTERS FROM BIRDS

One Good Thing, and About All, That Can Be Said for the Pestilent Mosquito.

In the north of Canada the mosquito reigns supreme. The swarms that rise from streams, lakes and marshes, as each comes to the surface and emerges, dry from the skin he wore when a wicker chair with water cannot be checked or resisted. Though weakly blown aside by the wind or driven off by smoke, they triumph by the force of numbers.

There is compensation for their virulent annoyance, and even for their transmission of the germs of malaria, compensations more important than the feeding of trout and bass fry. They protect our feathered game during the nesting season and insure immunity to the flocks and herds that rear their broods in the northern woods. The egg collector, the skin collector and all the inquisitive, curious and destructive who would otherwise invade the woods and marshes during the nesting season, are warned off by that ominous and persistent hum. It is more effective than all the game-preserving and bird-protecting statutes. It insures safety during that helpless time when the mother bird cannot fly, and the nestling can only flutter along the ground in paralyzed terror, drawing the invader away from her treasured but helpless offspring. While the mosquito reigns supreme the bird life that ranges the continent will not be molested in its varied northern retreats.

SEEK FOR THE "SUNNY SIDE"

To Look Always for the Best Is One of the Main Secrets of Life's Happiness.

One who boards a train on a hot day is usually careful to choose a seat on the shady side. If we look as much care to look on the sunny side as we do to sit on the shady side this would be a rather more contented and peaceful world.

The best of good habits to cultivate is that of seeing things as a radiant and glorious flood of daylight shows them, not as shapes dimly described in the gloom of a pestilential cavern. Turn up a stone in the field—and on the sunny side, the side away from the sun, you will find a damp and mouldy fungus, with all manner of crawling, many-legged creatures that run away from the light because they do not love it. How different it is from the beauty of the flowers and the verdure of the grassland living in the open, and looking toward the sky! In life it is like that. We have not ascertained the secret of happiness until we have learned to look, to work, and to live, forever on the sunny side—Philadelphia Ledger.

GOOD ROADS

BUILDING ROADS IN FRANCE

National Throughways, Maintained Entirely by Government, Are Constructed 42 Feet Wide.

France admittedly has the best road system so far devised, and its national roads constitute about 6 1/2 per cent of the 365,000 miles in the whole country.

The national roads, maintained entirely by the government, are constructed 42 feet wide between ditches, and lead from the capital to the principal cities, ports and commercial centers, and between the principal cities. With the departmental or state roads, and commercial roads of different classes, the national government has nothing to do except to determine their width, which is fixed by general laws according to their classification.

The United States has two and a half times the population of France, and about six times the road mileage. To balance this difference, a series of national roads which would connect our capital and principal cities would duty amount to about 2 1/2 per cent of the 2,200,000 miles of roads in this country as compared with the 6 1/2 per cent in France, bringing the mileage of national roads per person in the United States about the same as in France.

With our enormous resources awaiting development by the extension of our road systems, there seems no reason why we should not proceed with the work of building national roads, writes Lewis R. Spear in the Illinois Farmer. National roads-building did not ruin France; it made France great.

The idea of building up a political machine out of a road construction bureau does not deserve consideration. In all of the important governmental work being carried on, it seems the policy of all parties to see that it is conducted economically and honestly, whatever party chances to be in power. A fair instance of that is the valuation of the railroads of the country which is just about to be in which civil service examinations will soon be held for the selection of several thousand civil and mechanical engineers.

M. Fernand Bordes, a leading French engineer, writing for the third international road congress, now in session in London, says: "The national roads, which connect the capital to the frontiers and to the large towns, or else form a connecting link between the more densely populated centers, are of the greatest interest to the country as a whole, not only from an economic point of view but also from a strategic one as regards communications between points at long distances apart. It is therefore essential that their construction, general plan, and width, should be settled unimpaired by local influences."

It is the idea that the A. A. A. National Good Roads board have been and are endeavoring to impress upon the lawmakers of this country. It seems as though plans which have been so unanimously successful in other countries and productive of such excellent results, are worthy of a trial here.

FEW VALUES IN GOOD ROADS

Added Freedom and Pleasures Among Some of the Real Benefits of Lower Cost of Hauling.

"Five miles to the picnic ground—does that mean for you an hour's hard work getting your team over 'chugs' and ruts and around and through mud-holes, with tired horses and soiled clothes when you get there, or does it mean a pleasant drive of thirty minutes or less with no exertion on your part and little on the part of your team?"

In the winter when the plays and lectures come to your town, can you drive in and arrive as neat and calm as any townsman, or do you try to make all the long stretches of bad roads between you and the town hall, and decide to stay at home rather than face them?

Good roads are needed not only because they save the farmer money and increase land values, but because in a very real sense they bring him nearer to all the rest of the world, and enable him and his family to share in pleasures and privileges often out of his reach when roads are bad, says the Progressive Farmer.

When you go to figure on the cost and the value of improved highways, do not forget that they have a real and a great value in the added enjoyment and the added freedom they bring; and that this is a benefit not less real than a reduction in the cost of the hauling you do.

Test With Pigs. In a feeding test with 50 pigs, lasting 180 days, on a ration of corn chop, buttermilk and barley, and sorghum forage conducted at the Oklahoma station, the average daily gain was 31 pounds as compared with a gain of 1.23 pounds on corn chop and buttermilk.

10 of the pigs turned into a field of corn yielding at a rate of only 17 bushels per acre made a gain of 13 pounds per head. Estimating the value of the grain at seven cents per pound, the pigs returned a value of $1.15 cents per bushel.

INSECTS HAVE NO NOSTRILS

Nature Seemingly Concluded Small Creatures Could Get Along Without That Convenience.

All insects need air, even those that live in water, but no insect has nostrils, or any opening in the head through which it breathes. Instead, there is a row of small openings called spiracles, down each side of its body, one on each segment, beginning along with the second or third of the thorax or chest, and extending back to the tip of the abdomen. The spiracles open into two air-tubes that extend the length of the insect, one on each side, just within the wall of the body. These tubes are connected in the thorax by two cross-tubes, and from them smaller tubes diverge. These, in turn, divide and twiddle, growing constantly smaller, until the finest tubes permeate every part of the insect, even the tips of the antennae and the joints of the feet. The tubes are known as tracheae, and serve the same purpose that the lungs serve in the vertebrates, to carry oxygen to the blood and tissues. The outer openings or spiracles, are protected in various ways—as for example, by a circle of hairs—in order to prevent the admission of anything except air. If they become clogged by any such substances as oil or grease the insect suffocates. The humming of bees, the buzzing of flies, and similar sounds, are produced by the vibration of the air in the spiracles and tracheae.—Youth's Companion.

NEW IDEA OF FAMOUS STATUE

Surely the Most Original of All Put Forward Concerning the Venus De Medici.

Aunt Judy had been brought up from the plantation on the coast for a visit to the "big family" house in Savannah. There she learned to be indignant and outspoken, disapproval, that one of her granddaughters, whom she had never seen, had been allowed to go north to study for the opera. Aunt Judy had once been a spectator of as much of a musical comedy as one could see between the time of the curtain rising upon a ballet and chorus and the time of Judy's outraged exit from the theater. The old woman's expedition to the mistress's granddaughter was much as if the girl had elected to go off in the company of Satan, Caligula, and Henry VIII.

Also, there was a marble Venus de Medici in one corner of the drawing room of the "big family" house. Judy had her own ideas about this statue, too.

"I ain't sho," Judy said one day in conversation to a friend of the family, who had asked to see the "Venus de Medici" statue. "I ain't sho—ol' melle ain't never told me—but I t'ink dat w'ile rock girls a po'trait er dat gran'chile whut run off in bad company."—New York Evening Post.

Ants Walk on Water.

It may not be new to observers of animal life, but I have been much interested in watching the common house ant here in Rio de Janeiro, says a writer in the New York Times.

We have an American fly trap; the sugar was oiled day covered with ants, so I placed the trap on a finger bowl standing in a plate of water. The ants, when they came to the edge of the water, ran around the bowl until convinced there was no way across, and then calmly took to the water, and ran across it by aid of surface tension without getting their feet wet.

Having previously been home to the nest, they returned for more sugar, crossing in the same way, and this went on regularly, a steady procession crossing the water.

Test of Sanity.

The ability to remain both sober and sane is a quality that is not great responsibility is a quality that we greatly admire in others. To retain a simple and open mind after doing something that is acknowledged to be a blunder is one of the rarest accomplishments of sanity. It makes for pleasantness in abundant measure.

Indeed it does more than this. It makes living possible, paves the way to success, begets good will, conquers hatred and uncharitableness—in short, it is the substance of comity, the evidence of grace, and the proof of a large mind that is sane.—Atlantic.

To Purify Musty Places.

Charcoal and quicklime are the best purifiers for musty charcoal, for instance, suspend it in hot water. Make a number of bags to hold several large lumps of charcoal. These will absorb all sorts of bad odors and mustiness and leave the atmosphere pure and sweet. The power of charcoal is according to its freshness, and this is restored by heating. Once a week take the bags down, empty them in a fire and suspend them very hot. The freshened lumps will then serve a new period of usefulness.

Use Time Well.

The young business woman who works downtown until four o'clock each afternoon passes one afternoon a week from four until six at a public library reading the current magazines and "keeping posted," as she puts it. Nothing is allowed to interfere with this standing engagement and the girl who has tried declares that it is really worth the sacrifice. She is able to do one can get into two hours a week when it is done regularly.—Chicago News.

INDOOR BASEBALL

Teams Have Been Organized to Play During Winter Season.

A number have been trying out for the teams and judging from the enthusiasm that is being displayed the games are going to be interesting and hard fought. At a meeting Monday night the following captains were elected: Married business men, Chapman; single business men, Asenst; alumni, Faber; faculty, Jones; Supt., Elliott was chosen president of the league and Prin. The indoor games are played faster than the outdoor game and the two games will make a full evening of real sport. Mr. Golden, already famous as an umpire, has consented to arbitrate the close points and everything else fair for a great season. The captains of the several teams would be glad to get in touch with those who would care to try out for the team. The names of the teams include the only qualifications. Practice games, open to spectators, will probably be played Tuesday and Thursday nights of next week.

CABINET BEHIND WILSON

Peaceful Solution of Mexican Problem Is Favored by Counsellors.

Washington.—President Wilson's cabinet stands firmly behind him in his efforts to force the retirement of Provisional President Huerta as a necessary step to the pacification of Mexico.

For more than two hours the cabinet discussed Tuesday every phase of the Mexican situation. The consensus of opinion was that the United States should not take a single step in its program to restore constitutional government in Mexico.

It became known that all the secretaries favored steps which would convince Huerta that the United States was in earnest in its demands. Some of the cabinet members resented the lifting of the embargo on arms as a practical and perhaps early solution of the difficulty, but there was no final decision on the point.

There is a hope on the part of the president and Secretary Bryan that a measure so radical as permitting exportations of arms may not be required to solve the problem. Influences are at work which, in the opinion of many officials, may force the early collapse of the Huerta regime.

There is a closer understanding and more frequent communication between the state department and foreign governments generally than has been in existence at any time since the Mexican problem came so widely into international prominence.

Through the diplomatic corps in Washington, Secretary Bryan is giving such detailed information of the American policy as to leave no doubt of what the United States wishes accomplished. So far as is known, there have been no direct requests for foreign support, but the strong intimation that the United States would like foreign nations to refrain completely from interference in the affairs of the Huerta government are expected to produce tangible results.

That President Wilson might possibly issue a statement a day or two making a comprehensive explanation of the purposes of the United States was intimated. The president, it is said, has not finally determined whether he shall make another pronouncement.

President Wilson was in communication again during the day through Senator Bacon with members of the senate foreign relations committee.

The president feels that members of the committee, Republicans and Democrats alike, are supporting the policy of the executive and he is giving serious consideration to their views as to the removal of the embargo on arms.

It was reported that Sir Edward Tyrrell, private secretary to the British foreign minister, Sir Edward Grey, had obtained Secretary Bryan's views on the situation and had transmitted them in a long report to London. The British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, is still confined to his bed.

The Only Way to Buy Lumber Right

is to buy it for a specific purpose and tell the fellow who sells it to you just what you want it for. There's a difference in lumber—not only in grade, color and softness, but also in the way it's manufactured. All of these things naturally affect the price; therefore the use it is to be put to must be considered. It's a good deal like a woman making a dress—the occasion regulates the cost. No woman would pay $20.00 yard for silk to make a kitchen dress. The same thing applies in lumber. We've always made it a point to help our customers select the right material for specific jobs and truly believe that is the reason we have the reputation we enjoy today for legitimate prices and no square dealings.

The Death of Moses. Douat xxxi:1-3; xxxii:48-52; xxxiii:1-12.

Golden Text—Precious in the sight of Jehovah is the death of his saints. Ps. cxv:15.

(1) Verses 1-2—What reason, is there, if any, to think that the average length of human life may be greatly increased?

(2) Was it the age of Moses or some other reason which prevented him from any longer fulfilling the functions of his office as leader of the Israelites?

(3) Why is not an old man of ability, in full possession of physical health and mental strength a better lawyer, physician or clergyman than when he was younger?

(4) Why had the Lord decreed that Moses should not see Jordan or enter into the promised land?

(5) What proportion of people die before their time on account of sin in early or later life and are not able to accomplish their full providential work?

(6) Verses 2-6—Who was Joshua? (7) What right had the Lord or the people of Israel to destroy the nations who were then in possession of Canaan?

(8) Verses 6-8—What would you say is the chief human quality to bring success in love, business or war? Why?

(9) When we have an unimpeachable promise from God why is it that we do not absolutely rely upon it?

(10) Chapter xxxii:48-50—what comfort or benefit was it to Moses to be able, from the high hill, view the promised land, seeing he could not enter the land himself?

(11) Which gives the greater satisfaction to a holy man, to see the proof of coming blessings for others or to anticipate them for himself? Why?

(12) When the work of a man of God is done, why should not what we call death be anticipated by him, with even more joy than the young look forward to life?

(13) Verses 51-52—Why was it apparently necessary for God to remind Moses of the sin which kept him out of the promised land?

(14) What was the nature of the sin of Moses which did him remain him out?

(15) Does God generally, at the time of death, remind his faithful of their past sins? Give your reasons.

(16) Chapter xxxiii:1-14—Why, to a man of imagination like Moses, would not the grand sight of the promised land, from the high hill, seem to him to be as ravishing as actually dwelling in the land?

(17) If Moses, while he was getting his glorious sight of the earthly Canaan, also had a clear vision of the heavenly Canaan for which he was longing, what would have been his feeling?

(18) Verses 5-6—Seeing Moses was still alive and hearty, in possession of his great wisdom, and Israel seemed to need him as much as ever, why did God take him away? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(19) Is there any reason to believe, and if so what, that had more important work for Moses to do in another world?

(20) How did Moses die, and, who buried him?

(21) What sense or reason is there in weeping for those who have departed to a country where they are infinitely better off than they are here?

(22) Verses 1-12—Wherein did Moses excel all other Old Testament characters?

(23) In what, qualified did Joshua excel?

FORAGE POISONING OF STOCK

Strange Malady, Termed "Mysterious Disease," Traceable to Unsound Corn or Fermented Silage.

(By R. GRAHAM, Kentucky.)
During the past two years a peculiar and strange malady, called by some papers a "mysterious disease," affecting horses, cattle and mules, has proved destructive, many farmers sustaining serious losses. Investigation and personal observation of this outbreak, furnished conclusive evidence that the disease in question was forage poisoning, traceable in a majority of cases to unsound corn, fodder or fermented ensilage. The disease attacked horses more than cattle, and cattle were more susceptible than mules.

Animal affected by "blind staggers," the result of poisoning. When walking this horse walked directly into fences and buildings.

It has been observed by veterinarians and stockmen that these outbreaks follow wet seasons, especially when preceded by a drought, which causes a damp, sultry atmosphere. Such climatic conditions favor the multiplication of molds which inhabit grasses, corn stalks and corn kernels. While a majority of the cases have appeared when moldy corn, fodder or ensilage were fed, it is well to bear in mind that in damp seasons the grasses may also convey the destructive agent when consumed by grazing animals. Water is a very important factor in spreading the contagion.

To control this disease and prevent unsound animals from contracting it, has been demonstrated possible by discontinuing the feeding of all moldy forage. Very few cases have occurred after a complete change of feed was made.

The high death rate recorded shows that no medicine can yet be depended upon to effect a cure. Affected animals should be removed to a clean, dry, well ventilated airy stall. The stall should be padded and the animal tied to avoid any injury during convulsions, which may appear at any stage of the disease without warning, and which may be accompanied by violence.

The owner should not unduly expose himself during such moments, as the gentlest family horse may assume a vicious attitude. Stalls should be kept scrupulously clean and well disinfected. A solution of six ounces of chloride of lime to one gallon of water; or carbolic acid in five per cent. solution in water is recommended for this purpose.

The best method of combating this disease lies in prevention. Moldy, improperly cured, fermented or damaged feed should not be fed to animals. Good results can be obtained by floating the feed. The damaged corn rises to the surface and the skimmed milk, which contains the mold, can be fed to horses, cattle and mules with safety. This simple method of prevention is recommended as an easy, effective way of preventing or checking this disease.

SALT OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

Cattle Should Be Given Sufficient Quantity in Accessible Place—Essential in Fattening.

Common sense and many experiments teach that the proper way to salt cattle is to provide it in sufficient quantity and make it accessible to them at all times. Salt should be placed in at least two different points where the cattle run, and they should be allowed to get it whenever they want it. An animal will eat no more than it absolutely needs in this way. While if salt is given at frequent intervals, cattle, and particularly fattening steers, are apt to eat much more than is good for them. Salt is an important factor in preparing cattle for market.

Prevent Swine Troubles.
Regular dipping and close observation to detect the early stages of various swine troubles can also prevent loss.

Nothing Gained.
No herd of cows can be made hardy by exposure.

HER PREMONITION OF DEATH

Circumstances That Led Prominent Woman to Live Ever in Fear of Impending Disaster.

A most touching account of the premonition of coming trouble which she experienced before the tragic drowning of her children at Paris, was given by Isadora Duncan, the dancer, whose poetic interpretations charmed the people of two continents.

Two months before the unhappy accident, the bereaved woman was continuously haunted with visions of death. Consulting her physician, she was assured that she was "suffering from nerves." When playing in Russia shortly afterward, so strong was her conviction, one night, that her own death was imminent, that she left a letter catalog, her "last words" on her dressing table, before going onto the stage. Again one night on the train she seemed to hear Chopin's Funeral March all night long. At the same time she seemed to see a vision which produced so vivid an impression that on the stage next evening, entirely without rehearsal, she reproduced it in motion, reducing her audience to tears. "All through my performance," Miss Duncan says, "I felt as though I were marching to my grave through an icy wind, and afterward with a melody of resurrection, a sort of ecstasy that was not earthly."

The very day of the terrible accident, the mother had packed her little ones, who had accompanied her with their nurse to Paris, for a little outing, where their lodgings were, as she was to remain in Paris for the rest of the day; and in saying good-bye she playfully kissed the lips of one of her children through the glass. Contact with the cold pane struck a chill to the mother's heart and a strange foreboding overcame her as the motor whirled out of sight. A few minutes later the children were buried from the overturned car into the Seine.

DEATH'S MOST ACTIVE AGENT

Worry, Never Hard Work, Responsible for the Declination of the Human Race.

We hear daily of men and women who are "working themselves to death." But work is as surely the friend of man as worry is his deadliest foe. Unless caring care and sickening foreboding are blent with labor, work never kills. Yet worry slays its tens and hundreds of thousands every year.

The person who wishes to live long and beneficently should cultivate the desire to see others as comfortable as he wishes to be himself. He must not regret that others are better off in what makes living pleasant.

Here is a fact that some so-called philanthropists never learn: there lives not the human creature who is wholly uninteresting. Be on the alert to spy something in the person whom you think will commend them to your regard. Listlessness and the capacity for being bored bring more old people to the grave than disease or actual sorrow. If you have no other "job" in life, make one by forcing yourself to be interested in the welfare of your associates.—Youth's Companion.

Midnight Inspirations.

Many eminent men have done some of their most famous work in bed. Indeed, no small part of the world's literature has been produced between the sheets by physically indolent although mentally active men of genius.

Longfellow's "Wreck of the Hesperus" came to him as he was sitting by his bedside on the night after a violent storm. He went to bed, but could not sleep; the Hesperus would not be denied, and as he lay the verses flowed on—without—let—us—hindrance—until the poem was completed.

Wordsworth used to go to bed after his morning walk and, while breakfasting there, dictate the lines he had composed while walking.

One at least of Rossini's operas was composed in bed.—Manchester Evening News.

Real Gratitude.

When Blaino was a young lawyer and cases were few, he was asked to defend a poverty-stricken tramp, accused of stealing a watch. He pleaded with all the ardor at his command, drawing so pathetic a picture with such convincing energy that at the close of his argument the court was in tears and over the tramp wept. The jury deliberated a few minutes and returned the verdict "not guilty." Then the tramp drew himself up, tears streaming down his face as he looked at the future "plumed knight" and said: "Sir, I have never heard so grand a plea. I have not cried before since I was a child. I have no money with which to reward you, but (drawing a package from the depths of his ragged clothes) here's the watch; take it and welcome."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Underground New York.

New York's underground population is sufficient to make a city of considerable proportions, for according to the best obtainable statistics about 20,000 persons in New York City spend their entire working hours beneath the surface of the earth. These figures include employees on systems of subways now in operation, and the large crew driving that wonderful aqueduct throughout the island of Manhattan and over into Long Island to carry the waters that are being brought down by the Croton and Catskill mountains. Thousands are also employed at other work.

START OF POSTAL SERVICE

First Attempt at System Began in England as Far Back as the Year 1635.

How many of us know that the post office began to exist in the year 1635? Special messengers and the common carrier were till then the only means of communication.

After that date a horse post carried letters along the great roads into the different parts of England, those who lived near these roads hurrying out at the sound of the postman's horn. And the remote byways were not neglected.

If one desired to send a letter to some remote town in Yorkshire, one went to Ludgate, then to the Bell Savage Inn, close by, and there intrusted it to the carrier for the country in question. The messenger from London would not penetrate into byways. Each country had its system of footposts, which linked the outlying districts with its chief towns and with the great high roads. The London courier, pressing on to his terminus, was relieved of packets, for remote regions—by the local postman, who, in turn, passed them on from hand to hand to their destination. In some what similar fashion, though less regularly and smoothly, letters inland were carried over the long and tedious journey to the hands for which they were laboriously indited.

NAMES THAT REALLY SUITED

Child Found No Trick at All to Alter the Cognomen of Her Two Pets.

When little Dorothy's papa's friend presented to little Dorothy, on her birthday, two tiny, aristocratic, white, fluffy balls of angora kittens, she named them on the spot Duke and Duchess. Time passed and the kittens grew into cats and then there came an event. Duke became the mother of four new kittens.

"This will never do, my dear," said little Dorothy's mamma. "You must find other names for your cats. What will you call them?"

Little Dorothy did not answer at once. Instead she pondered over the matter all day. Just before bedtime she went to her mother with the air of one whose mind had been relieved of a great weight.

"I know what I'll call them, mamma," she said. "It's quite simple. I'll call the one that I first named Duke—the mother-cat—I'll call Marmaduke, and I'll call the one I first named Duchess—the papa-cat—I'll call him Ben Hur."

Biggest Pair of Tusks.

In the stables of the royal palace at Mandalay, in Burmah, there may be seen an elephant with a remarkable pair of tusks, which the Burmese declare are the largest in the world, says the World War Magazine. These gigantic tusks measure as much as seven feet nine inches over the outside curve, with a greatest circumference of no less than seventeen inches.

To naturalists the most extraordinary point about these tusks, which are still being carried by their owner, is that they virtually touch the ground and almost meet. Apparently, however, their owner experiences no inconvenience from these long and cumbersome appendages while taking exercise.

As a zoological curiosity the elephant has naturally attracted wide attention, and it is said that several officers have already been received for the tusks when the animal should see fit to depart this world.

That Uplifted Feeling.

One of the things which "every woman knows" is that feeling of elation produced by putting on beautiful clothes, or even an unconsciously provided it is of the newest fashion. Probably men—who are singularly like women in these highly civilized days—are perked up by a new tie or exhilarated by a fancy waistcoat, only they do not talk about these mysteries as much as women do.

But love of finery has a deep psychic meaning, and according to one of our leading brain specialists there is an emotional accompaniment of elation following the putting on of a pretty garment—"a rather pompous way of saying what every feminine thing, from the fat baby who rolled over her coral necklace to the grandmother who attires a pink bow in her lace cap, is intensely aware of."

Clergymen as Playwrights.

In Garrick's time the church had a decided leaning toward the stage. The great actor suffered a plague of stage-struck clergymen. He read many of their plays and produced at least one. Rev. Edward Young of Welwyn parish and of "Night Thoughts" fame wrote the tragedy of "The Two Brothers," which Garrick produced. Its reception was a tragedy. It "was only fit to make an ice house of a theater." Young, however, had counted his chickens—he had promised £1,000—the expected proceeds of his author's rights—to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. And here he shone. He dipped deeply into his private purse and made up the thousand.

Bad Judgment.

"There is one discordant note in your garden, my dear madam," remarked the esthetic landscaper architect.

"What is that?" asked the lady, much alarmed.

"A noise," he replied, with a shudder, "that you have a dogwood planted near some pussy-willows."

Some Tasks Are Hard and

Some Are Easy For

Want Ads---While Few

Indeed Are Impossible

The easy want ad tasks are usually accomplished through one publication of the ad. The want ad tasks may require repeated publications of the ad---sometimes growing into the dignity of "want ad campaigns."

And, while purely "transient" classified advertising may not complete the task set for it, a "want ad campaign" does not fail, if sensible persistence is used. This means that such difficult want ad tasks as that of finding for your property, or the man who will be glad to invest in your enterprise, or the best possible tenant for that store or business property, are

if you enter upon suitable want ad campaigns.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

What is going on of interest to People of Idaho.

(Special Correspondence.)
Progressive Party Dying Natural Death.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—While it is generally conceded here that the administration has good reason to congratulate itself on the victories won in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland, and other States, at the same time it is apparent to political observers who have made an analysis of the returns that the rank and file of the third party voters are rapidly returning to the Republican fold, regardless of the attitude of their leaders.

Whatever deductions may be made by the different parties from the election returns, it must be evident to all the leaders, including those of the Progressive party, that the bull moose herd must soon starve for want of grazing. In Massachusetts it is true, the Progressive candidate ran neck and neck with the Republican candidate, but the plurality of the Democratic candidate was large enough to destroy any lingering hope in Progressive breasts that the time will ever come when the Progressives will be victorious. There was a noticeable sagging in the vote of the Progressives, as compared with a year ago, and with plenty of money and unlimited energy the Progressives had every opportunity to show their true strength.

The showing made by the Progressives in New Jersey was no lamentable weak that it is not conceivable that the voters of the new party can be encouraged to remain in the looking game. The Progressives have declined to the point where they are scarcely able to whittle down the Republican vote. Another election like that of Tuesday, and they will be only a memory.

Income Tax Troubles.

As was to be expected, and perhaps unavoidably, the attempt to enforce the new income tax law is meeting with many troubles, embarrassments and complications. The people know little or nothing about it, and are flooding the treasury office with inquiries which the agents find difficulty in answering satisfactorily. It is going to be very hard to enforce this statute as it ought to be enforced, because so many loopholes are already manifest in it, and it is capable of so many different interpretations.

Some of the Paris banks are in a sort of quandary over the new American income tax law. They hold some $5,000,000 of coupons of American securities, which have been already cashed or discounted and the opinion is expressed that the French banks may lose the one per cent income tax to be collected in the place of origin.

Many inquiries have been made at the United States embassy and consulate general here in regard to the new tax.

Delay in Erecting Federal Building.

The refusal of the Democratic congress to provide for an increase in the force of draftsmen and superintendents of construction in the supervising architect's office is delaying the erection of federal buildings over the country for which appropriations have been made. The department is now three years behind and unless the force is increased, it will gradually be further behind on account of the numerous buildings heretofore provided for.

Public building act of March 4, 1912, provided for the appointment of a commission consisting of the secretary of the treasury, postmaster general, attorney general, and two members of the committee on public buildings and grounds of the senate and house of representatives, who with the aid of the supervising architect of the treasury is to present to congress a connected scheme, involving annual appropriations and completion of public buildings heretofore authorized within a reasonable time, and shall frame a standard or standards by which the size and cost of buildings (public) shall, as far as practicable, be determined, and shall report as to the adaptability in size, accommodations, and cost of buildings (public) to the requirements of the communities in which they are to be located, and also whether the existing appropriations should be increased or diminished to meet such requirements, and that the sum of $5,000 is hereby appropriated for the expenses of such inquiry.

It is feared by many members of congress that this will furnish another excuse for delay in the construction of federal buildings for which appropriations have been made.

Would Learn "What Is."

Another "what is" hearing was given by the board of food and drug inspection at the bureau of chemistry department of agriculture today, when the board endeavored to find the answer to the query "What is chocolate?" Food inspection division No. 136 and also circular No. 19 of "Standards of Purity for Food Products," define chocolate as being "the solid or Something In a Name.

The name Smith is not so bad after all as there are several Smiths in the house of representatives it is necessary when the roll is called to distinguish them by states. Idaho is getting a lot of free advertising every time the roll is called, as Congressman Smith is designated by the reading clerk as Mr. Smith of Idaho, instead of by name only. This is an instance of where it is no advantage to be named Smith.

Mr. Wayne Darlington, former state engineer of Idaho, passed through Washington on his way to Georgetown, S. C. where his family is temporarily residing. Mr. Darlington is engaged as consulting engineer and will retain his interests in Idaho.

Ex-Governor Hawley of Idaho, is spending a few days in Washington renewing old acquaintances. He has been in consultation with the president and various cabinet officials, presumably with reference to Idaho federal appointments.
