OIL AND IDEALS IN LATIN LANDS.
That oil and ideals, like oil and water, will not mix, is a lesson that some watchers of recent developments in Mexico and nearby countries feel President Wilson may soon be learning. If his present Mexican policy leads to armed intervention, says a London weekly, the president will have nothing more or less than an "oil war" on his hands. EX-Ambassador Wilson denounced the "corridor" making of rival oil concessions in Mexican politics, and in his lectures declares that British oil interests are behind the present government in Mexico, just as American oil interests were behind the Madero administration. British cruisers and United States battleships are on hand to protect the works of the Panama oil interests near Tampico, which are fertilized by the operations of Mexican revolutionaries. Lord Coward, head of the Petroleum companies, "has put the Monroe doctrine to the test," notes the New York Commercial, by personally asking our government to protect the interests he represents. This gentleman's solicitude "about his oil properties in the neighborhood of Tampico and elsewhere in Mexico is natural enough," observes the New York Sun. In view of the importance of petroleum nowadays, especially in the United States, it is not surprising that it is so much of a factor in their battleships. But this oil feature of the Mexican tangle is but a small part of the great problem of the Caribbean oil fields, we read in a carefully prepared article in The Sun. The very fact that the Panama Canal for an oil concession in Colombia was withdrawn before its ratification by the Colombian congress on the ground of its "being used to stir up American opposition" is taken as an indication of the growing recognition of the importance of the problem in all the countries concerned. Efforts of British concern to control the production of oil problems in the region of the Panama Canal are vastly significant. It is stated by The Sun's Washington correspondent, because they are bound up with the maintenance of British naval supremacy on the one hand, and on the other with the future of the canal and our relations with Latin America under President Wilson's new "idealistic" policy. The difficulty apparently lies here: the only way the resources of the countries to the south can be developed is by granting concessions to foreign capital; the United States can not afford to let the oil sand in the basin of the Panama Canal "fall into the hands of potential enemies," yet our government takes a position as disinterested to American as to European investors. To quote The Sun's remarks upon the prospect of British control of the Caribbean oil supply: "What such a control would mean can hardly be appreciated until two direct facts but little known are taken into consideration. One is that the mercantile marine is rapidly converting itself into an oil-consuming agency. Instead of a coal-burning agency. The other is that by virtue of the richness of the Mexican and other Caribbean oil fields, together with their location, all from these regions can be laid down at the Panama Canal for about half the cost of coal delivered at the same spot. These two facts, it is declared by experts, are alone sufficient to insure the unbounded success of the Panama Canal and make the control of the Caribbean oil fields a tremendous weapon in the hands of their possessor."—Literary Digest.

HEALTH AND HYGIENE

Common Sense About Common Diseases.

Pneumonia.—This is the season for pneumonia, a disease which is especially dangerous to those who drink to excess. In some states, pneumonia is the most fatal of all diseases and everywhere it claims a fearful toll of human life. There can do little to combat it and must rely on the relative power of the patient to overcome the poison of the germ. The disease is spread by intemperance, by exposure and by carelessness. The man who works in a close, stuffy office, sleeps in a close room and exposes himself, unprotected, to sudden changes of temperature is very liable to contract pneumonia. The safeguards are a temperate normal life, fresh, ample clothing in cold weather, abundant food, care in avoiding sudden changes in the temperature, and common sense. Pneumonia is so fatal, so baffling and so treacherous that one can not afford to take chances.

Measles.—Measles is primarily a winter disease, due to an organism not yet discovered. It is highly contagious and appears in fourteen days from the time the patient is exposed. The child first shows symptoms of a cold, with fever, headache and running eyes. The eruption first appears around the lining of the mouth, then about temples, and spreads widely, giving the patient a very peculiar appearance; this eruption usually disappears in five days. When it appears, keep the child under the care of a physician and away from other children until all the symptoms have disappeared. Remember that measles cause more deaths than smallpox, diphtheria and scarlet fever combined.

Scarlet Fever.—Scarlet fever is a highly contagious disease, generally affecting children under 10 years of age and appearing chiefly in the autumn. Its severity varies much and the mild cases can not always be identified. The chief symptoms are fever, sore throat, vomiting and a rash of a peculiar red type. This rash appears first on the neck and under the collar bones but spreads over the whole body. The disease is probably spread by the secretions from the nose and throat, though possibly the scales of the disease may carry it. The first symptoms appear from three to five days from the exposure and the rash may persist for five days and even longer. Keep the sufferer in strict quarantine, under a physician's care, and remember that scarlet fever may have dangerous and distressing after-effects. It matters not how mild the disease seems, strict precautions are necessary.

Whooping Cough.—Whooping cough is a highly contagious disease with inflammation of the breathing tubes and a peculiar "whooping" cough. The disease appears in epidemic form and is probably due to a germ. The first symptom is a cold which persists for a long time and then gives way to a cough which gives the disease its name. The disease may last for some weeks and is very fatal, causing more deaths than scarlet fever. "Whooping" comes from patients who have the disease. Within three days after the patient is exposed, the nose, the throat or larynx becomes inflamed and is gradually covered by a "membrane" or grayish patch. Without antitoxin, the course of the disease is very severe and may be accompanied by heart failure or paralysis. The mortality varies much, ranging as low as 5 per cent in simple cases and as high as 50 per cent in very severe forms.

Antitoxin is a sure cure for diphtheria, but its efficiency is directly in proportion to the promptness with which it is used. Any delay means danger; long delay means death.

Isolation is necessary to prevent the spread of diphtheria. Mild cases and cases which show no outward symptoms spread the disease. No case is allowed under the law to leave the premises until an examination shows the germs to have disappeared from the throat.

Physicians know that immunizing doses or antitoxin prevent symptoms but do not render the patient harmless to others.

The physician who delays giving antitoxin belongs with the man who waits till the house burned down to put out the fire.

A sore throat in diphtheria season is as suspicious as a strange negro in a heathen.

Great epidemics from little sore throats grow.

Take no more chances with diphtheria than with a cold or rattler.

Smallpox.—Many persons laugh at smallpox and fail to protect themselves because they believe that smallpox has become "mild" and innocuous. Such of the smallpox is "mild," but it may at any time become most virulent. Cases are reported every month where "mild" cases have caused the worst form of the disease with all its horrors—the fever, the itching, the awful blisters of corruption, the torture, the danger, the lasting disfigurement.

Smallpox can be prevented in one way only. That way is vaccination. With the pure virus furnished today, vaccination is perfectly safe and absolutely harmless, causing little inconvenience and giving seven years of absolute protection. Every child should be vaccinated when three months old, and every person should be vaccinated once in seven years. The discomfort is trifling; the protection is absolute.

It costs less to vaccinate an arm than to quarantine a county.

The man who doubts vaccination never saw real smallpox.

There is less danger in vaccination than in quarantine a county.

Smallpox is a disease which is not dangerous to the vaccinated.

PARCEL POST WEIGHT INCREASED

The maximum weight of parcels to all zones beyond the second was increased from eleven to twenty pounds.

The commission's "consent" to the proposed changes were transmitted in three letters from Chairman Clark to Postmaster General Burleson. The approved changes in rates and weights to be in effect January 1, 1914, follows:

Some Tasks Are Hard and Some Are Easy For Want Ads---While Few Indeed Are Impossible

The easy want ad tasks are usually accomplished through one publication of the ad. The want ad tasks may require repeated publications of the ad---sometimes growing into the dignity of "want ad campaigns."

And, while purely "transient" classified advertising may not complete the task set for it, a "want ad campaign" does not fail, if sensible persistence is used. This means that such difficult want ad tasks as that of finding if you enter upon suitable want ad campaigns.

Good Reasoning In Home Building

seems natural with good citizens, but there's no denying the fact that our forefathers gave home-building a grand boost for all time when they almost to a man selected wood as the best material. There's absolutely no doubt they adopted it not alone because of its low cost, but also because it afforded the most sanitary homes. For the same reasons people are still using wood to build houses. It's one thing in the world supplied by Nature that human mind and hands have not been able to improve upon. The lumber, however, made these days from Nature's wood does show a big improvement—due to man's ingenuity—in the milling and the stock we want to furnish you for your new home is truly a marvel in smoothness, softness, grain and color.

HUNTS FOR LOST TREASURE

Gold Dusted Thirty Years Ago by Miner. He Is Now Looking For It.

The following interesting story of lost treasure and faith unshaken is told by Edward Cornelius, an old resident of Murray, who has been working in the Kellogg sewer, apparently for $3 a day, but in reality he says he has been working to locate $5,000 which he buried in 1883 in a Dutch oven, and which he has never been able to find.

In 1883 he and his partner left Montana for the new gold country around Murray. They loaded their pack horses, he says, with $5,000 in gold, all in $20 gold pieces, planning to use this money to buy up all available placer country, which was reported to be unusually rich.

They came down the Prospect creek trail and over the Mullen road, down to what is now Kellogg. They there found that the country for which they were headed was not as rich as at first reported, and as the country was full of gold hunters, was wild and rough, they decided to cache their gold, Cornelius says and go into the placer country to investigate before making any bargain to buy the placer ground.

The gold was hidden in the flat which extends from the Kellogg depot to the Tumler Hill and Sullivan hills. It is asserted, and the gold hunters marked the spot by blazing a fir tree and two pine trees, burning the gold in a Dutch oven in the center of this triangle.

Cornelius and his partner remained in the Murray country for a year and on their return to dig up their money and quit the country they found the gold never there and completely undisturbed every landmark. The pair searched for days and finally gave it up. On several occasions Cornelius has returned and made a hunt without result. It was when he learned that sewer excavation would extend through the ground in which he buried his money 30 years ago that he came to Kellogg, took up his pick and shovel and kept his eyes open.—Blackfoot Courier.

EXTRA SESSION TALK VANISHING.

Opposition to Proposition Is Heard From All Sections.

The prospects for a session extraordinary are rapidly vanishing. It is now almost safe to say that an extra session will not be called by Governor John M. Hain, although the chief executive has not as yet authorized a definite expression defining what he proposes to do. It is current rumor, however, at the state house that such tremendous opposition came from all parts of the state to the convening of a session extraordinary as to prohibit any serious consideration relative to convening the law-making body.

Some of the strongest protests are known to have come from members of the legislature—both senators and representatives. They, as well as party men from all parts of the state, have been freely consulted by the governor both by person and by letter. While all agree that attention, including the drainage act, the logged-off land act, the revenue act and the Carey act and matters, it is now said that the governor has been advised these matters, while urgent, can wait another year for settlement.

Taxpayers generally over the state, already burdened with heavy taxes they find almost impossible to pay, have made their protests to an extra session known to the chief executive. The original plan to call the legislature into session was for but a period of a week to hold down the expense. It is believed now, however, that an extra session could not be confined to a week. Members of the assembly would, it is claimed, want a longer period to consider the legislation they might pass upon. Could these members be desired to enact certain legislation and none other it is said that the session extraordinary might be a go yet. But those who have had experience in draining members of the legislature would not set their hearts on this. They must positively declare this cannot be done. Therefore it has been pointed out the session extraordinary would cost the state from $15,000 to $20,000 which the taxpayers would have to pay.

The fact that Carey act matters in this state, now to be had under, need special attention is generally admitted by leaders of all political parties but it is pointed out that the proposed plan to remedy these evils should be given publicity and the words of the state should be given an opportunity to discuss the plan and can be put forth by the legislature as a subject for consideration. It is argued by those vitally interested, be publicly discussed so that the people would have an intelligent idea of just what was proposed.

The same thing is true of the discussed plan to permit the larger sale of the state land and timber holdings with which to raise funds to be loaned out and to develop the state. It is claimed, say party leaders, that this is too big a question to pass snap judgment on and a legislative body, should it convene and adopt any plan of this kind without first giving it long and serious consideration, might do decidedly more harm than good. The fact that even the press of the northern part of the state has in a number of instances voiced disapproval of the convening of a session extraordinary is said to have gone a long way towards placing a strong array of opposition against the proposed call. It was from the drainage section of the north that a delegation of citizens came to Boise to urge the governor to issue a call for the special session in order that the Ellett drainage bill might be regularly passed, for it was discovered when a test was made up on it in the district court there, that it had in its haste to run the house gauntlet, taken an irregular course.—Capital News.

PHEASANTS DISTRIBUTED

Aside From Its Value as a Game Bird,

Is an Aid to Farmers.

The Chinese pheasants which were introduced into this vicinity a few years ago by the Parma Gun club have spread until now the whole lower Shoshone valley is covered by them. These are a persistent runner, however, and these birds are being shot by some of the residents of this section. Therefore a strict law against this and violators are liable to severe punishment.

In addition to its value as a game bird the pheasant is noted as a pest to the farmers. About one-half of the plant of harmful insects and other larvae was found in the stomach of a Chinese pheasant recently killed. A demonstration purposes in the Oregon Agricultural college laboratories. At this rate the bird would have devoured one bushel of insects in 124 days and almost three bushels per year.—Farmers Herald.

Accident at Starrs Ferry

Gordon, Five-Year-Old Son of Henry

Rasmussen, Killed by 22-Rifle.

A terrible accident occurred at the home of Henry Rasmussen Sunday evening about six o'clock, when little Gordon, now five years of age, was killed by a 22-rifle. The child had been playing with the rifle and had just been told to kill rabbits. The child took the rifle and evidently was looking down the barrel, when it went off, the bullet passing through the eye and lodging in the brain. The little fellow was taken to the Twin Falls hospital on Monday night, but died soon after reaching there. The stricken family have the deep sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.—Burley Bulletin.

FARM STOCK

WINTER FEEDING OF STOCK

Under Any and All Circumstances It Is False Economy to Permit Farm Animals to Lose Flesh.

It will be profitable to remember that every shock of corn fodder, every ton of hay or straw, fed to a steer or other growing animal that is allowed to run down in the winter is a dead loss, while if there is added to the animal the value of more nutritious food, the growth of the animal will pay a fair price for the whole. A pig weighing say, 50 pounds in the fall fed five or six bushels of corn to keep it through winter, will be in the spring at the value of the winter feeding began, and so the corn consumed is a clear loss, and worse, because the pig has perhaps got into a condition that renders it absolutely of low value at the end of the winter's feeding than it was when feeding began.

Part double the feed would have enabled it to turn out a shaggy, or perhaps a one for the spring market, and a satisfactory profit for the feed and care.

So also with a steer or other young animal, and as to sheep, as the bad winter quality of wool, it is under any circumstances the worst possible economy to let them get thin in the winter. Indeed, this rule holds good as to all sorts and all ages of live stock.

The stock should be kept growing throughout the year. Then, need for food, if allowed to lose flesh, will not be in proper condition for work in the spring, and it is much cheaper to keep on the feed they now carry than to put it on anew when the work begins.

The breeding cow especially should be kept in good, strong, thrifty condition, as well as account of the milk she will have to give next season as to preserve the strength and vigor of the calf she is to breed.

Indeed, there is not among the various animals used on a farm one that can be named that will make a better return for ample and generous feeding than the milk cow, and yet there is none, we might say, that is more generally neglected and cut short in her rations.

WAY OF SELLING LIVE STOCK

Best Method, Is to Dispose of Animals in Small Bunches to Buyers Who Make Their Selections.

(By W. M. KELLEY.)

The simplest method of selling live stock in small bunches is to sell to buyers who visit your farm and make their selections. Men who buy in this way do not pay quite as high prices as the dealer who comes to the farm by shipping the stock direct to a distant lot to a large market, but it is many times advisable to sell less than a car of stock in this way. In dealing with these country buyers, there is an opportunity to exercise the talent as a salesman for they are very shrewd business men and are out to drive the best bargain they know how with men who do not understand market conditions and seasons. In livestock feeding sections there are some feeders who sell their stock to the same buyers regularly, a plan which has many advantages. Both buyer and seller. If a buyer is certain of obtaining well-fed stock which he can use to advantage, he is willing to make liberal concessions, and the feeder finds it greatly to his advantage to sell to a man with whom he is acquainted, in whom he has confidence and to whom he can sell whenever his stock is in condition to market. I have always found it a point to keep a few good buyers always on hand in my section and have always been able to get a good price for my stock as farmers who have done their own shipping at a far greater expense.

Feeding the Silo.
After the silo is filled run through eight or ten inches of moistened straw and now half a bushel of oats on top. This keeps it afloat and the oats make a network which acts as a seal to keep out the air.

Box for Odds and Ends.
Have a box or two nailed up in the stable to catch odds and ends of straw and shavings and bits of ironware. It may save you expensive repairs somewhere.

SOMETIMES NEED ISOLATION

Best of Human Qualities Frequently Come to the Front Under Such Circumstances.

Many great human qualities come to their best in a life of comparative isolation. A big tree, in oak or an elm, standing out in an open field has a touch of that, a spread of boughs and rounded limbs that are never seen in a tree that stands in the woods. So people get individuality by being much alone. They become self-reliant, more relying on themselves. They gain clear opinions by thinking things over, and upholding them to their necessary conclusion. They acquire inflexibility of purpose by facing obstacles and conquering them. The pioneers of our country and the fathers of the republic were such men. The protectors of great undertakings carried through triumphantly have acquired their power in this way. This country is the natural nursery of such qualities. People are wanted on a farm to raise corn and grow stock for the market; but they are wanted there far more for the training of manhood and womanhood in moral worth, in religious sagacity, in all the traits of a strong, upright personality. In the future as never before, our cities, with their multiplying wealth and lavish luxury, are likely to need the country for that steady renewal of their better life which shall keep them from relaxing into sensuality and sinking into decay.

RELIC OF PREHISTORIC AGE

Discovery in Germany Has Aroused Antiquarians in All Parts of the World.

The bones of a monster believed to be 20,000 years old were recently discovered in the garden of a mansion at Purville, near Baling, Germany. This recent find has led to this belief that a about 20,000 years ago, unearthed twelve years ago, in that of a rhinoceros of the Pleistocene period, and probably about 20,000 years old. Authorities have pronounced the head to be that of a prehistoric monster. When the excavations were made there were also discovered parts of a Roman wall, several human skulls, bones and spears. The "rhinoceros" skull was found underneath a shed which has been standing for 300 years, and the foundations of which consisted of concrete to a considerable depth. It was in the course of removing this concrete and digging some yards below that the discovery was made. As little interest was attached to it, the skull was given to his children as a plaything. The lower jaw, teeth, and legs of the animal have been found. The skull itself is about 36 inches in length, and seems to be water worn. The legs bones are short and thick, and this goes to support the theory that the animal was a rhinoceros.

Curly-Headed Jurors.
"Challenged!"
"Challenged here, too."

Then, as the curly-headed jurymen departed with an angry flush, the tip of his whisker.

"Challenged you, by prosecution and defense alike. I tell you what it is, nobody ever wants a curly-headed man on a jury."

"Lawyers tell me that they don't like curly-headed jurors because such fellows are always conceited and stubborn and are apt to cause jurors to disagree."

"Why are curly-headed men conceited and stubborn? Well, the lawyers say they're angry at children. Curly hair being regarded as a sign of beauty, they are petted and favored by their mothers outrageously. Then, when they grow up the girls pet and favor them. The path of a curly head is strewn with flowers."

"The result is that curly-headed men think they know it all. They are as vain as peacocks and as obstinate as mules. Therefore, they can't get on a jury at any price."

Simplicity Pays.

You know that man who assumes superior airs, talks patronizingly of others, manages to acquire in quite a dictionary of words in his ordinary talk and conversation, and does not seem to understand the value of simplicity? Of course you do.

Several men met in front of the bank the other day, and immediately they got into the deep waters of political debate.

"And now," said the principal speaker, pompously, after an eloquent flow of language, "perhaps you will coincide with me."

"Why, yes," said the old man, answered a red-headed individual, moving towards the door of the inn. "I don't care if I do."

Not a Spiritual Need.
A clergyman was preaching in a strange church one Sunday evening. While at supper at the vicarage afterward a ring came at the bell. The maid entered and said: "Please, sir, there is a man at the door who says he wants to speak to the preacher."

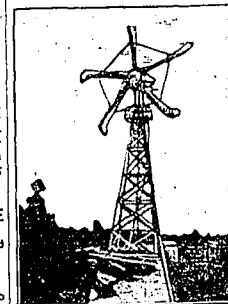

The clergyman, thinking it was going to interview some one, got up with alacrity and went into the hall. Here he saw a tall, powerful-looking man about his own size. "Well, my good man, what can I do for you?" he asked, thinking of the other man's usual manner. "Well, sir," he was thinking, while I was listening to your preaching, as how you might have a pair of trousers as would fit me!"

TO RECLAIM SAHARA DESERT

Modern Methods and Machinery Follow Advent of Italian Civilization in Tripoli.

Paris.—Following the advent of Italian civilization in Tripoli—formerly part of Turkey's North African empire—modern methods and machinery are rapidly being brought into play to reclaim its sandy wastes. As the French have done in the neighboring states of Algeria and Tunisia, and as the English have done in Egypt.

Lack of water for irrigation being the chief handicap of Italy's new colonies of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica, every effort is being made by the conquerors to develop the precious fluid. In the picture is shown a windmill which, it is confidently predicted, will solve the problem. It is not an ordinary windmill. The usual flimsy type of air-motor manufactured in the United States and Europe could not resist for an hour the tremendous windstorms—the Simoon—which sweep in from the desert.

Windmills of every description have been tested in these northern outposts on the Sahara without success. When the pictured machine was introduced. In this mill the multiple-blade principle has been discarded in favor of a five-bladed wheel, which affords ample passage for all surplus wind pressure, but which by reason of the great spread of its blades will revolve in the lightest breeze.

A LAKE UNDER PHILADELPHIA

Engineers Say Quicksand May Injure Skyscrapers Any Time In Quaker City.

Philadelphia.—Engineers in charge of the excavations for the foundations of the addition to the Ritz-Carlton hotel at Third and Walnut streets asserted that central Philadelphia with its skyscrapers is resting on a floating island and may at any moment be engulfed in quicksand.

Forty-five feet below the street level workers struck their picks through the shell-like covering of an underground lake, the waters of which rise and fall with the movements of the tide. The engineers assert that far underground this "lost water" is obbing and flowing just like at the open sea.

How high the water rises or how low it falls is difficult to figure, they say, for this subterranean flood which is surging backward and forward beneath Philadelphia is not "free" water.

MAN'S TROUSERS BLEW OUT

Garment Contained $180 in 'Em, and Whole Train Got Excited Over Accident.

Los Angeles.—Without trousers and minus $180 contained therein, Smith Beavers, a traveling salesman, gave passengers on a west-bound train a scare. The train was speeding sixty miles an hour between Ontario and Los Angeles when Beavers' trousers slipped out of a window in the sleeping car. Beavers made known his predicament with shouts and wild gesticulations.

The train was stopped and the conductor telephoned back to Ontario, requesting the baggage agent to institute a search for his passenger's garment. The train then resumed its journey to Los Angeles with Beavers wrapped in a blanket.

The trousers were found with the money in 'em.

CATCHES 35-POUND LOBSTER

Record-Breaking Crustacean Found by New York Fisherman Near Scotland Lightship.

New York.—A Fulton Market fisherman, trawling near the Scotland Lightship, pulled out of the water a lobster, the largest ever caught in this vicinity, old-timers say. It weighs 35 pounds, a full pound more than the former record holder. It is 16 inches around the body, and its left claw is 19 inches long. It is about fifty years old.

Will Help Former Slaves.

New Orleans.—William Kelly, owner of a large plantation at Monroe, near here, notified all the former slaves of his father and their descendants, that he is going to build a plantation up near the farm, each of them a home, stock the farms and let them run them themselves under consideration that they ask credit of no one.

HIS MESSAGES GIVEN BACK

And Hubby, Astonished at Their Bravery, Wondered How That Should Be.

A busy English merchant was about to leave his home in Brixton for a trip on the continent, and his wife, knowing his aversion to letter writing, reminded him gently of the fact.

"Now, John, you must be eyes and ears for us at home and drop us an occasional post card telling us anything of interest. Don't forget, will you, dear?"

The husband promised. The next morning his wife received a postal card: "Dear wife, I reached Dover all right. Yours aff."

"Though somewhat disappointed, she thought her husband must have been pressed for time. Two days later, however, another card arrived, with the startling announcement: "Here I am in Paris. Yours ever." And still later: "I am indeed in Paris. Yours."

"Now the wife decided to have a little fun and seized her pen and wrote: "Dear husband, the children and I are at Brixton. Yours."

A few days later she wrote again: "We are still in Brixton. Yours."

In due time her husband reached home, fearing that his poor wife had temporarily lost her senses, and hastened to ask the meaning of her strange messages. With a winning smile she handed him his own three postal cards.

LIVES IN DEADLY WEAPON

Inventor Will Long Be Remembered as Originator of Famous Gatling Gun.

The first of those terrible engines of warfare known as the Gatling gun was invented in 1862 by Richard Jordan Gatling, who was born in North Carolina. Gatling, the son of a rich planter, was well educated, and early devoted himself to scientific work and mechanical experiments. His first device was a screw propeller for steamships, on which, on applying for a patent, he found himself antedated by Ericsson.

Next he contrived a machine for planting rice, wheat and other grain in drills, which proved highly successful. Having used his inventive genius in such a manner as to assist in feeding and preserving humanity, he next set about the task of contriving a machine for killing his fellows.

There were crude rapid fire guns in use when Gatling turned his attention to the subject, but they were of little practical value. The Gatling gun, soon led to a revolutionizing of artillery, and until his death the inventor devoted his time almost exclusively to perfecting and perfecting that formidable weapon, which has been adopted by all the armies of the world. Tons of thousands of graves now attesting to the deadly accuracy of his slaying machine invented by Gatling.

Austrian Cooking Fat.

Lard is very expensive in Austria, especially at Carlsbad, consequently it is regarded somewhat as a luxury. As a substitute a preparation known as "apfelkai," or cooking fat, is used. It is sold under the name of "coconut," and it is said that its principal ingredient is palm oil. This substance is prepared in the towns of Hohenbach and Austerlitz and sells for 11.1 crowns for 100 kilos ($13.50 for 100 pounds) in large quantities, or 1.6 crowns a kilo (14¢ cents a pound) in small quantities in Carlsbad. It is put up in cakes weighing one-half kilo (1.1 pounds) and is sold without a container. In appearance it is much like cotton. Palm oil, owing to a treaty with Germany, enters Austria under very much more favorable conditions than cotton. The latter is taxed at 2.5 crowns for 10 kilos, while the duty on the latter is 40 crowns.

He Had Heard It.

It was during the lunch hour and four genial business men were sitting at a table. Outside the air was soft and balmy, and everything in nature was a sweet allurement to buy a railroad ticket and beat it for the woods. "It is in my system," remarked one of the party, reflectively gazing through the open window. "There is nothing so appealing as the call of the wild." "It may strike you that way, old fellow," responded another, with a faint smile. "But right here I'm losing the privilege of casting a dissenting vote." "You don't know what you are talking about, Jim!" emphatically declared the first. "Did you ever hear the call of the wild?" "Yes," replied Jim, with something like a sigh, "from the head of the stairs the other night, when I didn't get home till two o'clock in the morning."

Chinese Canals Greatest.

China has led the world in the matter of canal making, and to this day stands first among the nations for the skillful utilization of her inland waterways. One great canal maintains communication between Peking and Canton, a distance of 1,200 miles, and the total extent of the canals of China is over 6,000 miles. Russia owns the longest canal in the world, extending from St. Petersburg to the Chinese frontier, a distance of 4,472 miles, and also the second longest, covering 1,434 miles, between Astrakhan and the Persian Gulf. As regards numbers of separate canals Holland claims precedence, but her total mileage of inland waterways is only 930 miles.

A FURTHER COMMUNICATION.

To the Potato Growers of the Twin Falls Tract.

In the November 25th issue of this paper, an affidavit appeared over my signature, on behalf of Boswell & Pitch, relative to the net returns received from one carload of potatoes shipped through the Twin Falls County Potato Growers Association. In the December 2nd issue of this paper, the affidavit of J. E. Weaver, manager of the Twin Falls County Potato Growers Association, appeared, in which it is set forth that my affidavit is false, without in any manner specifying wherein it is false, and that the facts and figures could be obtained by any one interested enough to call at the office of the association.

I accepted this invitation, and called at the office of the association, and it appears that Mr. Weaver takes issue with me in the matter of the association membership fee, for which in my former statement I set $2.00.

It is perhaps only fair to state that the members of the Twin Falls County Potato Growers Association, whether the Fruit Growers Association is allied with the Potato Growers Association in any way, or whether the Potato Growers Association derived any benefit from the $2.00 fee paid, I have no knowledge, except that the Potato Growers Association, either in consideration of some portion of this $2.00 fee, shipped a carload of fruit for us. At any rate, we paid the fee, and the fee was $2.00. We shipped no fruit through any association, as we have no trees bearing in commercial quantity.

Mr. Weaver informs me that the membership fee in the Potato Growers Association is only $10.00 instead of the $20.00 that we paid to join the Fruit Growers Association, and says that we should, in our statement, give the Potato Growers Association credit for an additional $10.00.

To be fair, our corrected statement now reads:

Car No. 3417—P. F. E.—Shipped October 10th, 1913.
241 bushels, weight 37,180 lbs.—Sold at 75c per bu. net.
620 bushels @ 75c.....$465.00
Less freight.....$23.08
Less broker.....10.00
Less exchange.....45
Less Spokane.....15.00
Less Peacottville.....7.43
Less commission.....11.13
Less association membership fee by virtue of membership in Fruit Growers Association.....10.00

Total of freight, commission and charges $77.69
Net return to us.....$387.91

In the association previously proud of this corrected statement? Based upon these figures the net return to us per car, was 594 cents. On the day these potatoes were shipped we were offered 65 cents per car by three local buyers.

We only refrained from selling to these new buyers by the fact that Mr. Snyder on behalf of the Association, on the day that we shipped, assured us that the only charges that would be made by the Association, (in addition to the fee that we had already paid for joining the Fruit Growers Association), would be the Spokane association fee of $10.00 and the local commission of 3 per cent. No mention was made of any charge for Peacottville, for brokerage or for exchange. Upon that representation we did not sell to local buyers, but instead shipped through the Association. We also loaned the car without any assistance from the Association.

Our corrected statement shows that had we sold to local buyers we would have realized $241.00 more than we did by shipping through the Association.

It appears that we are not members of the Potato Growers Association, but by virtue of our membership in the Fruit Growers Association are the privilege of the other association. We have paid $53.91 for that privilege.

It occurs to us that it was a privilege dearly bought.
