

SETTLERS WILL RESIST DEMANDS

Pitiable Conditions Exist on Little Lost River

COMPANY INSISTS ON PAYMENT FOR WATER.

Entrymen Assert That Promises Have Not Been Kept and That They Have Not Been Furnished Water.

Arco, Doc. 22. The settlers under consideration at the Blaine County Irrigation Company are the Little Lost Lake Settlers. The settlers held a meeting Saturday to take steps to raise the money necessary to pay the company for full payment of all payments due the company for water rights and to pay the balance of the debt. There is considerable feeling among the settlers because the company has threatened to file final notices that if the payments are not made by the first of the month, the company will commence foreclosure proceedings against the property of the settlers threatened and those who are in arrears in their water payments will be dispossessed of their holdings. The project is a gravity project covering approximately 14,000 acres. The project was opened five years ago. The irrigation system is a gravity system with a main canal 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep plus flood waters of Little Lost Lake. The reservoir does not hold the water. It is impounded owing to the soft formation of the country. The water is excavated and the water is open to the air. The water is of good quality. As a result of the have a sufficient supply of water for irrigation and that they have been unable to raise crops sufficient to enable them to make payments for water rights. The original creditors called for the return of the money loaned to the company. When it was found that the reservoir system was faulty and would not properly operate, the creditors proposed that if the settler would sign a promissory note for $10 per acre additional that the company would make the reservoirs pay for the water. The settlers signed this and signed up to pay another $10 per acre for their water. Now it is the company's turn to sign a promissory note forward with its agreement and provide an adequate water supply.

During the time the company was unable to furnish sufficient water for irrigation the settlers have otherwise been unable, or refused to meet the obligations of the company. The practice which amounts to an ultimatum from the company has been sent to the settlers.

The company, in its notice to the settlers, claimed that the holders of the bonds had decided to collect the principal of the bonds out of all users of the water. Now the officers of the company have no option in the matter, but are compelled was to meet this situation that the meeting was held on Little Lost river last Saturday.—Capital News.

MAIL ORDER COMPETITION.

The prosperity of trading points that exist in farming communities and even larger cities is threatened by the competition of vast aggregations of wealth in a few of our great cities whose aim evidently is the creation of monopoly in supplying the wants of the people. This (Mail Order) competition to which I refer as a menace to the small town bears no share of the expense of building or maintaining local institutions, and to whatever extent it succeeds in absorbing the trade of a community, to that extent does it impair the taxable resources of the community, and in whatever measure it lessens the volume of business of small town merchants in the same proportion will it reduce the sales of such lines of business as are represented here today; therefore, I urge on every one to study the situation. Henry W. Schwab, President American Specialty Manufacturers' Association.

THE RECALL OF A JUDICIAL DECISION.

In New York state, one of the most conservative states in the Union, there has been an appeal from a decision of a court to the people, and the people have reversed the court. This appeal was taken as a consequence of the famous Ives case. This was the case of a railway employee who was injured in an accident, and under the law then recently enacted in New York, was entitled to compensation for his injuries. The court of appeals of New York, the highest court of the state, denied the right of the employee to obtain compensation, giving as its reason the opinion that the law was contrary to the constitutional provision prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law. Constitutional lawyers of high rank have regarded this decision as unwarranted.

This decision has furnished a classic example of the need of some method of appealing to the people to decide when the legislature takes one view of what comes within its function in exercising the police powers for the protection of the life, safety, and welfare of the people, and the court takes another. An appeal of this sort would affect the particular law in question. Under present state constitutions such an appeal is not possible.

What has happened in New York is something much more radical. Another kind of appeal was taken from this case, and the people have decided that hereafter the courts shall not construe the constitution as a court of appeals construed it. They have adopted a constitutional amendment which will go into effect on January 1. By this amendment they have given to the legislature powers much wider in scope than were contemplated by the law which was nullified. In comparison with the action suggested by what has been called "the recall of judicial decisions," the action taken by the people of New York is sweeping.

The difficulty is that it has taken three years to bring about this triumph for the people's will, and in the meantime employees have been suffering injury and losing their lives, and the cause of dependent women and children has been augmented. Even now it remains for the legislature to enact a law. Bills for the enactment of such a law may be under consideration by the New York legislature for weeks to come. After the law is finally enacted, it may then have to go before the court. So, even though there is no possible chance for misreading what the people of New York overwhelmingly wish, the attainment of their purpose is not yet in sight. Meanwhile, accidents to employees will continue. More men will be disabled. More men will be killed.

We wonder how long the people of America, who are the only self-governing people in the world on whom is imposed such a state of affairs, will tolerate it.—The Outlook.

RAIL-WRECKS AND LABOR UNREST.

Not the United States alone has had to deplore the occurrence of serious railway accidents of late, and to speculate on their causes. In October and November of this year Europe was shocked by what The Lancet calls an "appalling series of railway disasters." In Great Britain, France, and elsewhere. In a leading editorial The Lancet (London, November 16) suggested that the cause may be general and not local, and ascribes the accidents indirectly to the same spirit of unrest in the industrial world that has produced systematic sabotage and the general strike. This spirit in turn has its deeper cause, perhaps a too rapidly changing environment, to which our nervous systems fail to adapt themselves. Says the writer:

"It would, of course, be absurd to found on even a larger number of such instances a general charge of inefficiency and recklessness; and a charge of this sort would be doubly unjust when, as in the present case, it would be urged against a body of public servants whose past record has been so admirable. But without making any such sweeping accusation, it is quite legitimate to inquire whether these instances of negligence may not be related to that ominous change in the mental outlook of the industrial classes of which there have been so many and such grave manifestations in the last few years."

"The temper of syndicalism represents in the group something akin to the temper of anarchism in the individual personality; and just as the self-centered tendency of the persecutory lunatic wraps his sense of proportion, makes him too keenly sensitive of his own rights and calls on to the rights of others, and the duties which he owes to others, so does the collective paranoia of syndicalism lead to a similar loss of moral balance in the attitude of the given industrial group toward the community of which it should form a part. And in this collective delirious influence on the self the individuals who constitute that group; it fosters a state of emotional irritability, of impulsiveness, which is unfavorable to clearness of judgment and accuracy of perception, and which, therefore, might well contribute to such careful attention, and the attention should not be focused upon the details of this or that catastrophe."

"If industrial discontent and unrest are contributory causes of inefficiency and recklessness in industrial workers, these causes are in their turn the effects of other causes, and it is to the removal of these deeper sources of evil that the efforts of social reform should be directed. And in this task a due consideration of the psychological factors of the problem will be an aid of no small value. Lying beneath most of the varied manifestations of disorder and eccentricity in modern life may be detected as a potent influence the difficulty of nervous adaptation to a too rapidly changing environment. Even the firmest believer in the essential capacity of the race would hardly maintain that human intelligence has progressed in a degree at all commensurate with the development and multiplication of the numerous instruments devised and fashioned by those gifted and subtle intellects whose discoveries have revolutionized science since the middle of the last century."—Literary Digest.

ADOPT PROGRESSIVE RULES

Senator Burch Given Credit For Position Taken by Committee.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The plan to hold a special national convention next spring for the purpose of revising party machinery and with a view to bringing the party's national conventions and local organizations into line with the party's movement has been adopted by the Republican national committee at its meeting in Washington this week. The vote on the proposal was decisive, being 55 yeas and 11 nays for a convention.

In taking this action the committee virtually held that the committee itself was entitled with ample power to adjust the constitution of the party's national conventions and local organizations, and that it was not necessary to call a convention to do so. The committee has also decided to hold a special convention in 1922, and the Democratic victory at the polls last November.

Given Credit To Idaho Senator. To Senator Burch of Idaho, is generally accorded a high rating for the position he has taken by the committee. Although Senator Burch, Governor Bailey, and other leaders of the Idaho committee have favored the convention, Senator Burch does not believe the committee should have the power to amend the constitution of the party without the consent of the full extent of its power, which he thought were ample for the purpose. It ought to rectify its mistakes of the past, without waiting for a convention to do it. The result was the Idaho senator had his way in practically every particular. The committee decided that in national conventions of the future the state primary election laws shall be recognized as controlling in the election of delegates, thus reverting itself upon its position at Chicago in 1912, when this question was a particular bone of contention; adopted a new basis of representation from southern states where the representation has been out of all proportion to the Republican vote cast, which will be remembered as another one of the principal bones of contention at the Chicago meeting, and generally speaking reinducted the entire party machinery to the progressive spirit which Senator Burch has from the first contended is possessed by the rank and file of the party.

With these reforms in effect, the Idaho senator has been of the opinion there would be no need of a special convention in 1922, and that the progressive rank and file would grasp the opportunity given them and reorganize the party along progressive lines so as to be in position to write the platform and name the candidate. If the latter function should be left to the convention by that time, when the regular party machinery should be held in 1916.

FOREST NOTES

The forest products laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin, has made 4,000 tests on the strength of American woods.

The gathering and selling of acorns is a new industry in Arkansas, to supply eastern nursery firms with material for forest planting.

Thirty different wood preservatives are in commercial use in the United States; many of them utilize cresolates of one sort or another; others require chemical salts.

Last year, the forest service distributed 115,000 basket willow cuttings, 15,000 to forest schools, 20,000 to agricultural experiment stations, and 81,000 to individuals.

More than 800,000 horsepower has been developed from streams on national forests under permanent regulation. This represents the output under conditions of lowest streamflow.

Florida buttwood, a tree confined largely to the keys along the south coast, is very highly prized for use in cooking on ships' galleys. It burns slowly with an even heat and makes but little smoke or ash.

TELEPHONE TRUST DISSOLVED

ness men of the country are sincerely desirous of conforming with the law and it is gratifying indeed to have occasion as in this instance, to deal with them in complete frankness and to be able to show them that all we desire is an opportunity to co-operate with them. So long as we are dealt with in this spirit, we can help to build up the business of the country upon sound and permanent lines.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON.

Mr. McReynolds, in accepting the American Telephone & Telegraph company's offer, wrote to N. C. Kingsbury, vice president of the company as follows:

"Permit me to acknowledge, with expression of appreciation, your letter of Dec. 19, outlining the course of action which the telephone companies composing the Bell system obligate themselves to follow in the future. Your frank negotiations in respect of these matters compel the belief that what you propose will be carried out in good faith; and it seems to me clear that such action on your part will establish conditions under which there will be full opportunity throughout the country for competition in the transmission of intelligence by wire. 'May I take this occasion to say that the administration earnestly desires to co-operate with and to promote all business conducted in harmony with law; and that, without abating the confidence that the statutes must be obeyed, it will always welcome opportunity to aid in bringing about whatever adjustments are necessary for the establishment of lawful conditions without litigation.'"

New Rules to Go Into Effect the First of the Year.

To the Editor of The Twin Falls Times: Following is a list and copy of the orders recently made by Postmaster General Harrison in regard to parcel post rates.

Order No. 7106—On and after January 1, 1914, the limit of weight of parcels of four class mail for delivery within the first and second zones shall be increased from 20 to 50 pounds and in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth zones from 11 to 20 pounds.

The rate of postage on parcels exceeding 4 ounces in weight in the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth zones shall be as follows:

Third Zone—Six cents for the first pound and one cent for each additional pound or fraction thereof.

Fourth Zone—Seven cents for the first pound and four cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof.

Fifth Zone—Eight cents for the first pound and six cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof.

Sixth Zone—Nine cents for the first pound and eight cents for each additional pound or fraction thereof.

Order No. 7107—On and after March 16, 1914, the classification of articles mailable under Section 8 of the Act of August 21, 1912, authorizing establishment of the parcel post service shall be extended so as to include books. The rate of postage on books weighing 8 ounces or less shall be one cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, and on those weighing in excess of eight ounces the regular zone rate shall apply.

All regulations or parts of regulations in conflict herewith are hereby rescinded. (Signed)

A. S. BURLINSON, Postmaster General.

Through the columns of your paper I wish to call the attention of the public to the many advantages of the parcel post system. It is cheap, expeditious and an efficient means for the transportation of parcels of merchandise, farm and factory products, etc.

Parcels may be sent C. O. D. upon the payment of a small fee. In case a person wishes to insure the delivery of parcels the fee is very reasonable; being five cents for parcels of less than twenty-five dollars value.

In order to reap the full benefits of the parcel post patrons should wrap all parcels intended for mailing in good strong paper and this should be tied with good twine and secured in manner that the contents of the parcel may be easily examined.

No changes have been made in the size of a parcel which may be sent. Parcels of such matter greater in size than 22 inches in length and eight combined shall not be accepted for mailing.

Senders of parcels must see that each parcel is correctly addressed, having the addresses name written on it in bold plain writing, the name of the town and state and should include street address, box number, or rural free delivery route number, in the case now desired. Every parcel sent must also have the senders return address thereon.

If the senders desire the proper amount of care in preparing parcels for mailing I am sure they will have small expense for compliance in regard to cost or damaged parcels being transported by U. S. mail. I desire that every nation feel free to ask for information in regard to any phase of the system when they do not understand at any time during office hours.

Respectfully

W. H. GREENHOW, Postmaster.

Dear Friend: Why don't you put yourself on the payroll? You pay the landlord, the grocer, the butcher, the coal man, and the electric light company every month. How much is there in it for you? Who are you working for—the landlord, the coal man, or yourself? Next pay day why don't you bring your pay check down to the bank and get it cashed, and, first of all, put one dollar into a savings account. Then try keeping this up each pay day for a while, and, later on, you get a little more, try to pay the amount of that rule to yourself. Try to add it to your savings account.
