GENIUS IS DEAF AND DUMB

John Clark, Hair Scotch and Half Blackfoot Indian, One of Warriors of Park.

Minneapolis, Minn.—John Clark, hair Scotch and half Blackfoot Indian, is distinctly one of the so-called "wild men of the Glacier National Park reservation. Olive blue an ax and a pocket-knife and in a week's time he will have hewn a cedar trunk out of the forest and carved the image of a bear up like-like in appearance that even the great in suggestion by the ferociousness of its facial expression. The "Melling Pot" must have produced this rare child of nature. From the white side of the house Clark evidently inherited his great talent and, of course, Indian instinct gave him a clear conception of what a bear is like. Besides, he at once has had opportunity to study the bear, for he was born in the Rockies up there near the continental divide in Glacier National Park reservation 24 years ago.

Clark is deaf and dumb, but you mention that last because his creative ability, with a pocket-knife, is so marvelous as to suffice attention first. Clark reads and writes English, and in an adept in the universal Indian sign language, which enables him to carry on a rapid conversation with the members of his tribe by use of his hand and fingers and movements of his head. This sign language is used by all American Indians, but Clark has not had opportunity to talk to Indians of many tribes, because he has never been out of Glacier reservation much except to attend the Fort Shaw Indian school, where he learned to read and write.

Besides carving, Clark is a born artist in clay work, and a sketch artist of landscape scenery. He has made a number of clay and wood perfect images of bear, deer, mountain sheep, goats and other wild animals of the Rockies. This last summer an admiring Glacier park tourist from the west sent him some oil paints and brushes, with which he already has done some creditable landscape work on canvas.

CHILD WITHOUT A FOREBRAIN

German Doctors Interacted in Case of Baby Which Lived for Nearly Four Years.

Berlin.—The German medical press records the remarkable case of a child which lived for nearly four years without any trace of a forebrain. Neurologists explain that the case demonstrates the absolute dependence of human beings on the fore or sentient brain, and shows that a human cannot carry on the ordinary processes necessary for his preservation without it.

The fish or frog without the forebrain has greater capability than had the child in question. This child revealed no trace whatever of the vital brain reaction, so its nervous system was absolutely similar to that of a fish, though the latter is capable of performing all the vital functions necessary for nutrition and self-preservation.

The case of the child is especially noteworthy because of the long duration of life. In other cases the brainless life lasted only for a few days, and the movements of the child did not differ in any respect from those of a normal child.

In the case under discussion the child lived 3 1/2 years, permitting numerous extensive observations of its habits and movements, though in a condition of continual stupor. Its arms were flexed and rigid. It was unable to grasp or hold anything with its hands. From the second year onward the child cried incessantly, though it could instantly be stopped by mere pressure, especially on the head. It was impossible to note any psychological reaction, to awaken any feelings, or to teach the child anything.

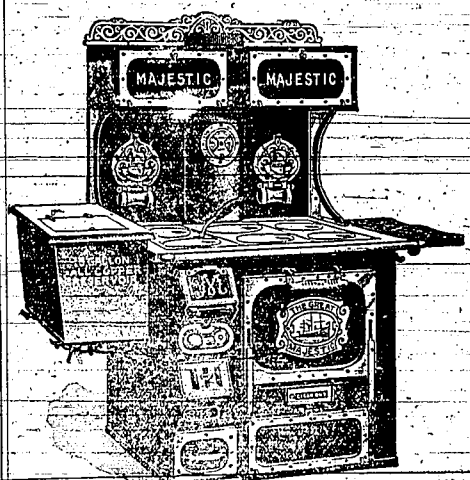

Baby Contact Causes Trouble. Lima, Ohio.—In a rush for adjustment to the baby contest of the Allen county fair, three hundred women with crying babies in their arms began to quarrel, and the children began pulling contests. Police stopped the outbreak and the baby contest was postponed until the next day.

While the question of the grades and the bridge across Shoshone falls is in the minds of the people of this county, the Times desires to urge upon the county commissioners the use of the county printer in helping out the work instead of the printer living for six months to one year as a source of expense for the county, put them on the rock crusher, or some other form of road work. It will be good for the prisoners and save a good margin of expense to the county. According to the state law each prisoner cannot be compelled to work, but on the other hand neither is the county compelled to provide anything when in the jail or farm for its prisoners and by cutting down on the quality of the food the prisoners can be soon induced to work for the sake of a better meal. At any rate the county is entitled to some work out of its regular bondsmen. It is highly probable also that the rock pile work will have a tendency to do away with the bootlegging.

Japan's attitude on the international alien land law will seem to have as a disadvantage possibility on the horizon of this country. The United States has never been energetic along the lines of excluding the war with any nation and it would seem that that policy is the one which most people believe is right. However, in the case of Japan it looks very much as if a good deal more firmness should be inflicted into the policy that is heretofore made to the wily Japs. The action of the Japanese in fomenting trouble in Mexico was at one time considered by the press of this country, but today most of them are chronicleing action of the Japanese ambassador in Mexico that indicates more than a spirit of restlessness. It has shown in the hostile attitude of the Japanese in their own country. The United States should be left to start things but national prestige cannot any longer be kept above par by any diplomatic repudiation with the questions that have been settled as far as this nation is concerned.

DRIVING POLITICS

OUT OF DAYTON.

The cities with the commission form of government doubtless have plenty of justification for boasting of their modernity, but they are a long way from being Dayton. The editors were right. By putting into operation the new city-manager plan Dayton is trying out what the Updell Express calls "the last word in municipal reform." "She's new," says the Chicago Record-Herald, "Sourageously taken the most modern and approved way of getting efficiency, business method, and responsibility, and riding herself of partisan and spoils politics in local administration. But the Chicago press reminds us that no fool-proof government has been invented, and that the best system can not dispense with a 'statizing' and 'energizing' public interest in good government." In the opinion of the Chicago Record-Herald, the number of commissioners and the office of general manager are merely accidents; the essential thing is that the city government be separated as far as possible from the political parties, and in Dayton, it thinks, the separation seems to be complete. Over a hundred municipalities have the commission form, says The Record, and a few have the city-manager plan. "Dayton has both." One of the clearest explanations of the plan is made authority by the Albany Knickerbocker Press:

"The five commissioners constitute the legislative body of the city. These commissioners have been elected on a non-partisan basis from the city as a whole, there being no ward boundaries. They can be recalled by the voters, who have also the check of the initiative and referendum upon the work of the commissioners."

of all city supplies; rigid adherence to a carefully prepared and detailed budget; conspicuous audit of city accounts; use of modern mechanical appliances for street cleaning and in other departments; and a welfare department to be in charge of the division of health, parks, playgrounds, and correctional institutions, with particular attention paid to housing, child labor, social betterment work, and the scientific application of public relief.

"The Dayton plan is supposed to be a perfect machine to carry out the principle of responsive and efficient government of the people. All the time the voters will have control of their business and will be made to feel that it is their business to care for it. If they don't like anything the municipality is doing, they remedy will be through the commission, whose acts are subject to the veto of the mayor."

The office of city manager is held by Henry M. White, of two years city engineer of Cincinnati, and the salary is $12,500 a year. The Dayton papers say Mr. White is one of the most capable men that could have been chosen. The manager's department heads were picked for their special fitness for the jobs. Three of them are, to quote a news dispatch:

"Service Director—James E. Barlow, of Cincinnati, former right-hand man of the Mayor Walter under the city manager plan. He was service director of the neighboring city. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a noted engineer, and a constructional civil engineer."

"Director of Finance—Hugh E. Wall, well known throughout the west as a public accountant. As director of finance Mr. Wall will supervise both the city auditor and the city treasurer. In addition, he will appoint a public accountancy, city treasurer, and city purchasing agent."

"Director of Public Welfare—Dr. D. Frank Garland, a Lutheran minister, who resigned the pastorate at one of the leading churches here to accept the wider opportunity for welfare work."

For many years the government of Dayton was far from satisfactory, we are told, but there was no upheaval until the city was visited by the great flood last spring. After the disaster the Republican mayor and the Democratic council lost patience, and somebody suggested that a conference be held to provide ways and means for a crusade for a simplified form of government. A liberal fund was subscribed and Lucius Wilson, an educator of the commission form, was brought from Detroit to direct the campaign. A committee of 100 representative citizens worked with Mr. Wilson from the start, and by the time the crusade was well under way 400 additional members were enlisted. For a time Mr. Wilson met with opposition to the commission-manager plan, because it had never been tested in a large place before, but he finally succeeded in converting practically all the opponents in the Democratic and Republican organizations, which fought bitterly to hold their grip on the city.

Dayton has a population of about 125,000, and Mr. White's salary, the Baltimore News points out, is only $2,500 less than that of the Mayor of New York and "three times the salary which the average city approximating Dayton in size pays to its principal executive officer." The News goes on:

"And yet Dayton does not believe that it is guilty of an act of extravagance in recommending with such economy the man who is going to take over the management of its municipal government under the new system which it is inaugurating. It is giving him the power to save that much money for it, and a great deal more. If he succeeds, Dayton will not itself on the whole be having done the right thing to adopt extraordinary measures after the manner of the city which the flood of water brought upon it. And if he fails, the responsibility is so clearly defined that there will not be the slightest difficulty in placing the blame."

Though Dayton is the largest city to hire a city manager, it is by no means the first and only municipality to adopt the plan. Other cities trying out the plan are: Athens, Kan.; Sumner, S. C.; Hickory and Morganton, N. C.; Springfield, Ohio; La Grande, Ore.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Morris, Minn.; Appleton and Merrill, Wis.; Cedar and Manitowish, Wis.; Literary Direct.

BANKERS ARE ARRESTED

Simpson Bros., Officers of Defunct Caldwell Bank Must Stand Trial.

The long-expected has happened and federal officers have caused the arrest of S. D. Simpson and W. G. Simpson on charges of violating the federal banking laws. Persistent rumors have been floating ever since the bank failed that something of the kind might happen, so that the news caused no surprise in Caldwell circles.

converts without having benefited financially by the sale. The arrests were made at Fort Worth, where S. D. Simpson, the former cashier, was taken, and at Morris, Miss., where the brother, W. G., was living. The latter was made for his appearance and S. D. will have a preliminary hearing before the U. S. commissioner at Fort Worth on Saturday.

It is stated that the government alleges that the former cashier issued a certificate of deposit in favor of his brother in the sum of $2,500 and that the alleged fraud is made the basis of the charges. W. G. is alleged to have received the benefit of the certificate and this charge forms the basis of his arrest. The men will be brought to Boise and tried in the federal court there. M. J. Devers and Babe Broiler, respectively president and bookkeeper at the bank, left on Tuesday morning for Fort Worth to testify for the government in the case at the preliminary hearing. The case being a federal charge no extradition proceeding will be necessary.

Choice is Dr. Melvin A. Brannon of University of North Dakota.

Dr. Melvin A. Brannon, dean of the college of liberal arts, university of North Dakota, has been elected president of the University of Idaho by the state board of education, to succeed Dean Carpio, acting president of the board for this year, who was re-elected a year ago and severed his connection with the university Feb. 1, to take over the presidency of the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg. The board placed the composition of the new president as the same as that fixed by the old board of regents for this state, was paid for annum. Dr. Brannon has accepted and will assume his new duties as soon as possible.

The selection of Dr. Brannon as the new president of the university settles a mooted question with the board and that institution, since the resignation of Dr. Maclean and one that gave the new board of education a somewhat difficult problem to solve. In order to accomplish this a careful investigation was made to determine the available ability among educators and Dr. E. O. Sisson, commissioner of education for this state, was present by the board to meet educators at their points of duty. The task of eliminating the possible winner was not an easy one. Dr. Brannon, at the task without haste, realizing that the future of the state's leading educational institution depended largely for its success upon its president. When the final session of the board was opened here yesterday the board of regents of the university, a formal matter and was able today to unanimously agree upon Dr. Brannon after his name had been placed in nomination by Dr. Sisson. "The board feels that it has secured the best man available for the place."

Dr. Brannon is an able educator and one I believe who will make the University of Idaho a most able institution.

dent," said Commissioner Sisson. "The president of the university is a man of great deal to the future of that institution, to the educational, industrial and commercial development of the state in which it plays no small part. Dr. Brannon is one of the leading educators of the country and Idaho is fortunate in being able to secure him."

GOETHALS TO HEAD POLICE

Will Be Appointed Police Commissioner of New York City.

New York, Jan. 24.—The fact that Colonel George W. Goethals is willing to consider, under certain conditions, the proposal to accept the police commissionership of New York City, has been made known to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, wife of the former president, before that to accept the offer.

Major Mitchell failed to get Goethals to even consider the offer. Then Mrs. Roosevelt learned of the offer and urged with Mrs. Goethals that Colonel Goethals accept it. After Mrs. Roosevelt returned, she told the mayor that Goethals was in receptive mood, then George W. Perkins was sent down to the canal zone. Goethals names as one of the conditions that the law be changed alleviating courts of the power to relieve the dismissal by the police commissioner of police officials.

"If language means anything," said the mayor, "Colonel Goethals will become police commissioner, provided the two conditions he imposed are fulfilled. I expect these conditions to be realized."

The mayor added he expected to set in touch with President Wilson shortly, and expected that the president would grant the proposed request for retirement from the army—Potterville Tribune.

OF INTEREST TO SPUD-GROWERS

E. H. Stephens Tells How to Grow Potatoes

At the recent meeting at Spokane a discussion of growing potatoes, lead by J. W. H. Stephens, of Pocatello, was very interesting and developed many points of interest. It is now generally agreed that Idaho is already surpassing Colorado in the ability to grow potatoes of superior quality, in large quantity and with substantial profit. The discussion developed many interesting points regarding the selection of suitable soil, rotation of crop, methods of cultivation, and not least in importance, marketing. In the year 1912 the potato market was overworked, with the result that under 1912 methods of marketing prices ruled very low.

This led to the formation of an association as a branch of the North Pacific Distributing Association. Mr. Stephens is actually engaged in the organization of this association, and in the development of better methods of marketing. In the opinion of E. H. Stephens, a noted Idaho authority, southern Idaho is one of the most favored potato raising sections in the world. The possibilities of growing very large crops in this district are indicated by the fact that with suitable culture and rotation of crop, four hundred bushels per acre have been grown on one acre, and crops of two hundred to three hundred sacks are more frequently secured where rotation of crop selection and better methods of culture have been such as skilled experience advises. In southern Idaho some parties cultivate in excess of 1000 bushels of Idaho Falls, annually grow 400 acres. Other parties grow potatoes by the hundreds of acres, but perhaps the majority of the growers cultivate ten to fifty acres.

The cost of growing. Where proper methods of rotation are such as to grow very large crops per acre, with seed, grain, and stock, and with the rotation of the seed, the cost of growing is materially reduced. The cost of growing is materially reduced. The cost of growing is materially reduced.

To guard against disease, rotation of crop is essential. Grain and year, alfalfa two years, potatoes one year, alfalfa one year, has proved a success. But rotation in rotation about Idaho Falls. It is not considered wise to grow potatoes two years in succession. The seed should be selected from the best of the crop. The seed should be selected from the best of the crop.

Selection of Seed. The most skillful potato growers send men with trucks through their fields to select the best of the crop. The most skillful potato growers send men with trucks through their fields to select the best of the crop.

Marketing. Under the old method of marketing, it was not unusual to sell the large and the small. The potatoes were sold without regard to size and some of the mixed varieties were placed in the market at a low price.

Change in Management. Seven years ago Mr. A. C. Smith, who owned the Shodor Apartments, died. His son, Mr. A. C. Smith, Jr., took over the management of the apartments.

Cellar Storage. Since the railroad cannot be expected to handle a sufficient number of cars to move the potato crop directly from the field, the association will have to develop a system of storage for handling at least half the crop. In cellar storage grading can be carried on all winter, and by lining the cars with straw or sawdust, the potatoes can be safely stored to southern points during the winter period.

The Robertson Cafe. In a recent issue of the "Twin Falls Times" it was stated that the Robertson Cafe, located at the corner of Main and Second streets, was for sale.

Ground-hog at Twin Falls. A ground-hog was seen at Twin Falls, Idaho, on January 27, 1913. The animal was seen by a number of people and was killed by a hunter.

Mr. Jenkins Says

Be Truthful in Your Ads

Mr. Ad-man: When you tell the public about our "Annual Sale of White" which starts Monday, February 2, see that nothing is misrepresented. Speak as to friends you would have respect you never mind about the extravagant talk and bogus claims of the foolishly they have their reward, for lies profit no merchant.

Bear in mind the fact that you are the mouthpiece for Jenkins & Co.; that every word printed should be as from my personal dictation. I know that this sale will be the biggest in our history—there's no reason why it shouldn't be; goodness knows that basement looks like a wholesale department. When we priced the goods you made me mark them so low I had to do some figuring to see where profit came in—at all.

Didn't I tell you that the public were tired of boastful advertising that they discounted 80 per cent of what was told them—just to entice people in the store? You shook your head, saying "They all do it." Now, sir, see the splendid harvest from our "January Clearance Sale" and the "Pre-Inventory Sale." We've cleaned up the winter goods in good shape, leaving us free for a big campaign for spring business.

Never forget—the people of Twin Falls County possess intelligence above the ordinary; they are careful buyers, know values, and have good business sense. They are appreciative and quick to distinguish between the real and the counterfeit. Lastly, but most important—they know that a deal here means satisfaction or money promptly refunded.

OPINION IN BOOTLEGGING CASE

Handed Down by the Supreme Court in the Schuster Case

In the opinion of the court on Thursday a written opinion was handed down in the matter of the application of Ferdinand Schuster for a writ of habeas corpus. This matter was decided by the court in favor of Schuster some time ago in an oral opinion. The opinion handed down on Thursday is intended to be a final and complete opinion.

The court was divided 5-4 in its decision. The majority opinion was written by Justice Sullivan and concurred in fully by Justices Aikins, Johnson, and Fred Budge who sat in the case in the absence of Justice Stewart. Schuster was tried in the district court in Twin Falls county on a charge of illegally selling intoxicating liquors in a prohibition district. He was convicted on two counts. On one count he was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and serve six months in the county jail; on the other he was fined $500 and three months in jail.

An appeal was taken to the supreme court and a certificate of probable cause was issued by the trial court. Schuster then applied for a writ of habeas corpus and the case came on for argument on the 14th inst. The court held that the trial court erred in that it had no right to include in the indictment the substance of the trial judgment of the lower court was affirmed. The case was remanded to the district court for a new trial.

INSPECTION BY FRUIT INSPECTOR

Plan on Foot to do Away With Seed Inspectors

A move that is likely to win the approbation of the taxpayers generally throughout the state is on foot. Congressmen Smith and Hughes are endeavoring to have the state horticultural inspector removed from office. The horticultural inspector, who is now in charge of the state horticultural department, is a man of high standing and has been in the service of the state for many years.

The duties of the seed inspectors, while important, are not arduous, and it is suggested that the duties of the state horticultural inspector be transferred to the state horticultural department. This would be a great saving to the state, and it is hoped that the move will be successful.

The important saving, however, and one that will reach into his future, is the elimination of additional traveling expenses for the second crop of seed. The item for transportation and hotel accommodations are respectively large items in the budget of the state. In inspection districts in the state and in each town where seed is sold, and this means practically every one in the state, a constant visitation several times a year.
