The citizens of Twin Falls who have enjoyed the splendor of service of the Twin Falls Waterworks company should without fail attend the meeting called for Wednesday evening to discuss the turning over of the whole city to them on a platter. The Times would suggest that such citizens wear armor plate, for the chances are that a few of the tickers may be present to mar the occasion. In all seriousness, however, the Times suggests that some attempt be made to show the city commission just how far the citizens will back it in the attempt to collect damages from the company and in getting before the utilities commission with the biggest howl that has ever gone up from any group of people in this city. The electric light question was extremely raw, but the unflinching gall of the water company in asking for a raise in the rates for the service given, caps the climax. The citizens also remember that unless some strong protest is made the rates will be made higher. Don't wake up after the row is over and do your customary howling.

While the Times regrets the shutting out of competition in electrical power through the public utility commission ruling, yet the lowering of the rates at least twenty-five per cent is a great gain in the public. At no time did the Times ever deem that competition would ever be allowed here. The St. Anthony decision several months ago was indication enough of what the commission intended to do here and everywhere in the state where public service corporations are doing business. The power of the commission as set forth in the Ryan bill is for franchising in its scope and was intended to protect both the consumer and the corporation. The Times still believes, however, that competition with rates controlled by the commission is the better way for the reason that it forces better service from the corporations. Where a virtual monopoly exists there is little stimulus to efficient service and as a result constant trouble is brewing between the utility companies and the consumer. An illustration of this point will show us particular where competition is of value. Under the present company this office has been frequently compelled to shut down all work of its employees owing to the power supply being off for intervals of anywhere from a half hour to some times two or three hours. Every minute of that time is a total loss to the productive end of the business, entailing a straight labor loss of three dollars per hour, yet no attempt has been made to collect damages against the power company by any of the factory firms of this city, who have suffered a similar inconvenience and loss of production. Under competition the consumer, if the services rendered are unsatisfactory, can get service elsewhere. As a result the companies will be on the alert to keep service up to the maximum grade in order to keep business. With one company it is impossible and the consumer is lower-less as a single individual to make demand from a utility, commission that is purely political. Competition in other lines is good, why not in electrical power where perfection of service is the greatest essential next to price. From the fortunes made in developing all public service business it looks as though competition is not as a rule very destructive.

JOBLESS ARMIES.

Reports from any of our cities tell of an uncommonly large number of men out of work, and of unusual efforts to provide for them. Chicago and New York complain that they are forced to take care of thousands of unemployed from smaller places.
Municipal lodging houses and temporary shelters in these cities were filled to overflowing during the recent severe weather, and the bread lines were long. A thousand homeless men in St. Louis were said to have been given peremptory notice to leave the city unless they found jobs by a certain date. At such a policy, however, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch is indiscriminate. "We should be found for times willing to work." It is "unintelligent and inhuman" to drive such men from town to town. Some cities, notes the St. Louis paper, have solved the problem "in whole or in part" by providing work on streets, roads, or parks. Kansas City, for instance, "gives work to men who need it at the municipal farm," while San Francisco is putting many men at work building roads. San Francisco's "would-be unemployed" are not, however, as common with other Pacific coast cities, is finding the problem particularly troublesome. This, comments the Colorado Springs Gazette, is largely because "of certain temperamental peculiarities displayed by the unemployed guests."

"These peculiarities are chiefly an extraordinary spirit of pride and independence which bids the unemployed to refuse work when it is offered them, to complain of the quality of food given them at the soup-houses—in short, to demand all the services of home at public expense even though they are being fed and cared for as objects of charity."

"At Portland 500 men who had been receiving shelter at the expense of the city were offered work. Only fifty applied, and of those but twelve appeared at the place where work was furnished. Seven of the twelve quit during the first hour. In other words, five of the unemployed, or 1 per cent of the total number receiving shelter, remained at work long enough to earn $1.00."

"At San Francisco the number of unemployed is estimated at 15,000, but only 400 at the time, or less than 6 per cent, appeared for work when they were given a chance to wield pick and shovel."

The San Francisco problem has engaged the attention of city, county, and state authorities and even brought in the help of the federal government.
Citizens of the city by the Golden Gate saw a parade of several thousand unemployed. According to one dispatch it was composed of the usual "horde of hoboes," drifts, Irish farm and mine hands, who always spend the winter in California. It was estimated that hordes attracted by the work on the Panama, Pac. Railway developed among the jobless, who bickered and battled among themselves, and with citizens and the police. One faction, says a San Francisco dispatch to the Portland Oregonian, "has boycotted the municipal dinner; from and refused to work for 20 cents an hour, the rates offered by the citizens' relief committee." This, it appears, is "demanded $1.75 for eight hours' work." The relief committee of 100 registered the names of over 7,000 men desiring work, and according to the Philadelphia Public Ledger's San Francisco correspondent, "this canvassed the employers not only of San Francisco but of the interior. It announces that it will shortly be prepared to provide work for a large part of the 'army' in the farming districts. But even the prospect is not pleasing to the jobless hundreds, who now want to stay in San Francisco through the winter, content to pick up odd jobs here and there to keep them in today and 'steem beer.' A few who are honestly willing to work eagerly and thankfully went into the interior to help out the ranchmen."

The scenes in San Francisco were repeated on a smaller scale in other cities, we learn from the dispatches, and "armies" of unemployed are reported as moving from place to place. Governor West of Oregon sent $25 to buy breakfast for one army in Salem, Oregon, and secured jobs for many of the men in state institutions.

One serious complication in San Francisco, says the Colorado Springs Gazette, is due to the fact that—

"That pestiferous organization, the I. W. W., has appeared on the scene and attempted to 'organize' the unemployed. The I. W. W. leaders are actually arming thousands of men who presumably must either eat at the soup-house or go hungry, to refuse the food unless the authorities first permit the I. W. W. to place its stamp of approval on the cooks and waiters.
"There is only one explanation of this condition, and that is that of the thousands in the coast cities who are pressed as unemployed very few are really deserving of help. The abili-tated man with preferences to be down-and out, and who yet still will work when given a chance, and who refuses to eat the food offered him because it was not prepared by I. W. W. cooks, ought to be permitted to enjoy his inalienable right to go hungry without the interference of charityless unemployed citizens."—Literary Digest.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AS A TRUST.

That the Associated Press has been found by the courts the radical attacked it, it pleads that it is a trust. The New York Sun, Officers of the association aver that they were grossly misrepresented by the cartoon in The Masses (New York) showing the reservoir of "the news" being poisoned with "lies," "slanders," and "predicts" by the Associated Press, and does the accompanying editorial case by the Times that news from centers of labor trouble has been suppressed by the Truth Trust, and that "the influence of current history" is being "held in cold storage, adulterated, colored with poisonous intentions, and sold to the highest bidder to suit his private purposes." But language almost as bitter and direct is found in The Sun's petition to the federal government to take action against the news gathering association under the Sherman Law—"in the interest of the freedom of the press and the immonopolized transmission of the news of the world and unrestricted competition in obtaining and presenting the same." The Sun, we learn from an editorial, is not only actuated by zeal for the public welfare, but has a definite grievance, as it believes itself to have been "harassed and wronged and illegally restrained" by specific acts covering a long period of years, for which the present management of the Associated Press is declared responsible. Mr. Melville B. Stone, the general manager of the association, has so far vouchsafed no explanation of any of the offenses cited in The Sun's complaint. Several member newspapers, however, have been promptly, vigorously, and elaborately denying that the Associated Press is a trust or has been restraining trade.

But The Sun insists that the big news gathering monopoly has for years had a "virtual monopoly" in its field, and has tried to maintain it by unfair treatment of its smaller competitors, one of which is The Sun's news-bureau.
The attorney general is informed that "not only has the Associated Press, with a view of destroying The Sun and its bureau, refused to sell news to it as to other leading newspapers of the United States, but has in its attempt to secure a monopoly in the sale of news attempted for many years to block and boycott the underdog." All members of the Associated Press, according to The Sun's complaint, are disciplined if they try to have dealings with The Sun's news bureau, even though they "have no wish to discontinue their long time contracts with the Associated Press," or to interfere in any way with its interests, "but simply desire to add to their value as organs of public opinion by obtaining all the news of the day." The Sun then names fifteen specific instances of attempts by the Associated Press to boycott it and injure its business; these instances begin in 1894 and are spread over nineteen years, the last being of March, 1913.
The boycotting, the discrimination, the intimidation of customers or servants of The Sun have continued, says a Sun editorial, "almost up to the present time." The responsibility, however, is not attributed to the membership of the Associated Press, but to the "mismanagement" of the "controlling" immediate policy of the organization.

Besides questioning the industries The Sun by the Associated Press, the complaint to the attorney general thus describes the premises to the public interest:

"Our constitutional system is based upon the freedom of the press, and to this end there should be given to the great organs of public opinion every facility to present all the news; and a monopoly which seeks to shape and control the news into one standard form, and that form determined by its governing body through its executive officers, is a peculiarly objectionable monopoly. It is a monopoly of the news, and the news is the life of the people. The Associated Press, which has been compelled to print only such news as the said Associated Press sees fit to transmit to its several members, and it has been for many years a matter of complaint that by such control of the news—partial, unfair, and partisan statements have been given to the public at large. Even if the Associated Press has not been abused, as so many citizens have believed and openly charged, its dominating power over the transmission of intelligence, yet it is prejudicial to the public that it should be within its power to determine in what form and to what extent the news of the world shall be given from day to day to the average citizen."

Taking up The Sun's complaint that it was not allowed to buy news of the Associated Press, the New York Evening Post, a member, replies that the Associated Press "does not sell news," but delivers its news at cost to members and otherwise. No one can buy news over the counter. The Sun tried it, and was informed that it must seek membership. And the Evening Post observes, "it has not applied for such membership is a point of obvious interest in connection with its present application to the attorney general." This member paper declares emphatically that it does not "know of a single member of this association" who would willingly violate the law of the land, or who would not be glad to be informed of anything done in contravention of the law.
The charge that the Associated Press is a monopoly acting in restraint of trade is thus handled by another member paper, the Brooklyn Eagle:
"The very essence of a commercial corporation and a commercial monopoly is that its objects shall be the making of money and the earning of dividends for its stockholders. The Associated Press is not a money making corporation. It does not aim at the accumulation of profits. It pays no dividends. It exists for the convenience of the individual newspapers that constitute it. That it leases wires for the distribution of news; that it has built up an extraordinarily efficient organization for the collection of news gathering association under the Sherman Law, that it is not infrequently because of its wire system and its news gathering organization, is able to get news for its members which can not be so readily obtained by journals outside its organization, are not, we contend, reasons for assuming that it violates even within the jurisdiction, much less under the prohibitions, of the Sherman Law.

Newspapers outside the Associated Press organization are not thereby kept from news they desire subject only to the competition that all news collection anywhere and everywhere entails."—Literary Digest.

LOCAL WOMEN AGREE
WITH STAGE BEAUTIES

Of all women in the world, probably those on the stage are most particular about their personal appearance, and especially in the care of the hair; and when such leading stage beauties as Ethel Barrymore, Gladys Fergerson, Natalie Alt, Louise Dresser, Rose Gop-lan, Laurette Taylor and many others are so enthusiastic about Harmony Hair Dressing as to write in praise of it, that is certainly evidence that it does just what they say it does—that it beautifies the hair, and gives many women right in this town, and men, too, who regard it as indispensable, because it makes the hair glossier and more silky, easier to dress and make stay in place. Sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it.
Contains no oil; will not change color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep hair and scalp dandrufffree and clean, use Harmony Shampoo gives an instantaneous high lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing. Washed as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair; leaves no harshness or stickiness.
Preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier, $1.00. Harmony Shampoo, 50c.
Both guaranteed to satisfy you every way, or your money back. Sold

We Promise You Relief from All Stomach Troubles or Your Money Back

We honestly believe we have the best remedy in the world for indigestion and dyspepsia. We urge you to try it at our risk. If it doesn't relieve you—as we feel sure it will—we'll give back your money without a word.

You know us—your family druggist. You know we wouldn't dare recommend anything we didn't know about, nor dare to break a promise. Therefore, when we recommend any remedy it is because we believe it to be better than any other to relieve the ailment for which it is made, and when we prove our faith in it and our sincerity toward you by promising to give back your money if it doesn't relieve you—and in every way satisfy you, you have no possible excuse for doubt or hesitation.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets

are, we honestly believe, the best remedy made for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all other Stomach Ills

We Know They're Good

Delays Are Dangerous

You Risk No Money

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in addition to other ingredients, contain Pepsin and Bismuth, two great digestive aids used by the entire medical profession. They soothe the inflamed stomach, check the heartburn and distress, stimulate a healthy secretion of the gastric juice, aid in rapid and comfortable digestion of the food and help to quickly convert it into rich red blood, and thereby into flesh, bone and muscle. They relieve stomach distress promptly, and, used regularly for a short time, tend to restore the stomach to a comfortable, easy-going, healthy state. They aid greatly to promote regular bowel action.

Don't neglect indigestion, for it frequently leads to all sorts of ill and complications. The pain and discomfort is not the most unfortunate part. The fact that when the stomach is not acting right, the material needed to repair the tissues that are constantly taking place in the body is not being given to the blood. Either in the proper condition or fast enough is far more serious. Nothing will cause more trouble than an unhealthy stomach. The blues, dizziness, lack of strength and energy, constipation, biliousness, headaches and scores of other serious ailments result from the failure of the stomach to properly do its work.

Our willingness to have you use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets entirely at our risk proves our faith in them. We always tell them this way, and it is because we know that they have greatly benefited scores of sufferers to whom we have sold them. There's no red tape about our guarantee. It means just what it says. We'll ask you no questions. You needn't sign anything. Your word is enough for us. We know that when they help you you will consider it money well spent even if they don't help you ten times as much. If they don't help you, the money you paid for them is yours, and we want you to have it.

KIMBERLY, IDAHO.

Kimberly, Ida., Feb. 16, 1914.

Thursday evening a joint rally of the Twin Falls and Kimberly Epworth Leagues was held here in the school auditorium. About fifty members of the Twin Falls League drove over. After a social hour had been spent, Rev. Bush, the district secretary, Rev. Woodhull, of Twin Falls and Rev. Pratt, gave very inspiring talks. Several musical numbers were given by members of the visiting and local leagues. After which a lunch consisting of cold, cooked chicken on toast, pickles, cake and coffee was served by the local chapter.

Thursday afternoon the Pioneer club met at the school house. A pleasant social time was enjoyed, following the annual election of officers. The officers for the coming year are: President, Mrs. W. H. Van Houten; vice president, Mrs. Martin Sullivan; secretary, Mrs. Harry Martin; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Turner; member of the board of directors, Mrs. W. E. Lewis.

The club is to be divided into six groups, each group to take charge of one meeting during the next six months. One of the most enjoyable social events of the school year was held Saturday when the Juniors entertained at a Valentine party in the school auditorium. The room was decorated very attractively. A dainty lunch was served at the close of a happy evening spent in playing games appropriate to the day.

Popular Potato Planter at a Popular Price

The Keystone Hand-Drop Planter

Reliable—well made and finished. Does splendid work—simple—moderate priced. Will plant from four to five acres per day. Price within reach of farmers who plant but a few acres and could not afford a more expensive machine.

Opens the furrow to the proper depth, drops the potatoes, covers them uniformly. The open faced adjustable wheel that follows the runner presses the earth in just the proper manner to hold the moisture and insure best results in sprouting. Depth of planting perfectly regulated. Easy to operate, so complicated machinery to give you of it.

It Does Not Bruise the Potatoes and you can be sure every potato containing an "eye" will sprout. No waste of expensive seed of high priced land with this machine. Its work always pleases the user. Secure catalog for complete description and testimonials.
