young men watched him in silent curiosity. "Well," he breathed at last, returning the message, "there is one more link in the chain—no, a very definite one, but an additional small detail that associates Miss Carey directly with your house of mystery."

"Van Vechten stared in wonder at the slip of paper. Tom abruptly exclaimed: "How—the dickens—do you make that out?"

"But Mr. Flint was not to be hurried. "While there may be nothing so very mysterious about the house itself," he parried evenly, "nevertheless it is by way of proving up a very pretty proposition these things in particular to you."

"Nothing definite," it is familiar that is all."

"Withy-pool," repeated Mr. Flint, musingly. "I have had occasion to look at it."

"You have?" shot from Van Vechten in his surprise. "What do you know, Flint? Tell him!"

"I said that it was a pretty place," on the edge of Exasperation, perhaps—perhaps one of the prettiest regions in rural England. Still, does the name convey nothing to your mind? Think!"

"How?" Van Vechten asked. "I am not," I am not," that's how you can help me."

"The young man surveyed him curiously, perhaps a little admiringly. The man was a notable type of respect in the question which he presently asked."

"I give it up," declared the young man at length. "Go on and tell me, you jumped so when you read the message. What's the answer?"

her past. She is almost a mother to our family, and has been for so long a time that whatever affects her also touches us."

"Precisely," said Mr. Flint, so briefly that his suspended interest caught Van Vechten's attention.

"Well," the latter encouraged. "It is in the close relationship among the different families concerned that I hope to find the key to the puzzle. And there again I look for your help."

"Consider," Mr. Van Vechten said, "a far cry from the house of an obscure, unimportant person here in New York to Temple Bonner in England, whose name in my language means unlimited wealth and power, and his family own no inconspicuous portion of the world's second city. He is inaccessible to all outside of his family."

Josephine had married against her father's consent, and her husband, Percy Devereaux, showed the sort of devotion he was by promptly deserting her when the loss became known."

"Mrs. Schuyler died suddenly," Josephine admitted, "and the family and of recouping its dwindling fortune was now all centered in the remaining sister—Henrietta. Among her suitors was one young man who was not only her social equal, but heir to one of the largest fortunes in the world."

"Every mother in New York with a marriageable daughter, to say nothing of many abroad—especially in England—had marked this young man for her legitimate prey, but he loved Henrietta Schuyler and was so devoted and open in his preference that the matrimonial schemes were not only all discouraged."

"I have heard the name," muttered Van Vechten.

"I was an only child," pursued Mr. Flint, "that Bonner and Willard should not only be friends, but the closest sort of intimacy existed between them, a genuine Damon and Pythias attachment."

"Willard lacked about every advantage possessed by his rival; he was poor, unattractive in appearance, and had many peculiar traits which made him unpopular with his friends."

"He was regarded as a visionary, a crank, a man who would never make his mark. However, he must have possessed some unusual quality, because Tompkins, the most complete knave in his generation, believed that he was a genius of some sort; but it was characteristic of Willard that he would accept no assistance from his more fortunate rival."

"Bonner, I would seem, felt his own position keenly. He realized that his friend was almost overwhelmingly handicapped, and as well as I can piece out from what actually happened, he withdrew temporarily from the field."

"The idea was to advance his will, I suppose the idea was that if Willard was successful, Bonner would abide by the consequences; if not, then—Willard was to stand aside and give Bonner his chance. Much of this is guesswork; it is hard to drive at the truth at this late day; but certain circumstances exist which indicate that what I am telling you is what actually happened."

"It would appear from the sequel that Max Willard had been the favored one all along. Temple Bonner went abroad; within two months Willard and Miss Henrietta had eloped, and were married; within ten months after he received news of the runaway wedding Compton Schuyler had thrown out his brains."

"There are the naked facts."

"Temple Bonner never returned to America, and Max Willard, instead of justifying his friend's confidence in his talents—whatever their merit might have been—had dropped entirely from sight. His wife, you tell me, has been dead for years; but were there no children? Is Max Willard still alive, where is he, has he any family, what is his occupation? Those are the things I want you to find out. I fancy the runaway match, with all its attendant circumstances, created something of a stir at the time; some of your older friends should be able and willing to supply you with the facts."

"Oh, I have no doubt that I can learn all you want to know," agreed Van Vechten. "Most of what you have just told me is not exactly news; but I had forgotten it—it all happened before my time; you know, Josephine is generally understood to be Bonner's widow, and she has suffered much, one deserving pity and sympathy; but heaven and earth—she is no martyr to tribulation; she's the jolliest sort imaginable. . . . But how will this help you to solve your murder problem, or—what more nearly concerns me—find some trace of my cousin?"

"For some moments Mr. Flint sat silent, gazing meditatively through the window. Number 1313's dingy front porch, looking dingy in the late afternoon sunshine; but Mr. Flint had no eyes for the old house just at present. After a bit he turned to Van Vechten.

"Before answering," your question, Mr. Van Vechten, I am going to lay another matter before you," said he gravely; "it may seem impertinently personal, but there are occasions when the ordinary civilities and amenities must be made and received. I don't know that you and Miss Carey are engaged to be married; I do not mention the sentiment that usually accompanies such a conventionality, for perhaps I shall pain you; but has there a possibility that you are becoming interested in another more recent love affair?"

It is to be regretted that the services of D. Ward King, inventor of King road, drag are not to be secured for this county. Financial conditions alone prevented the Commercial Club from making a contract that would have benefitted every farmer in the years to come. It would have been a wise investment for the business men of this city to put up the money and have the benefit of King's road building knowledge given to the road makers of this county. Twin Falls should not allow opportunities of this kind to pass by without an effort to secure them.

The Twin Falls Canal company directors are voting to make the remedy for seepage a part of the expense of the whole system is being the only right and logical thing. While the cost of such will be an added burden to all landholders with the annual maintenance it is no more than right and justice. Seepage from the entire canal system is an unfortunate condition which might affect any one or more innocent purchasers of land on this tract and is not contributory negligence on their part. While there is but a very small acreage affected at present the rest of the land owners do not know at what early period they may have to face the same problem. It will help a lot for each one to know that it is a problem belonging to all.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

ROYAL—the most celebrated of all the baking powders in the world—celebrated for its great leavening strength and purity. It makes your cakes, biscuits, bread, etc., healthful. It insures you against alum and all forms of adulteration that go with the low priced brands.

VALUES GET RESULTS

After all is said and done, values do get results. Price is the powerful magnet that is drawing the crowds of satisfied lumber buyers to our yard. If you are going to buy building material any time within the next year, we can sell it to you at such a price right now, that you cannot afford to wait. This is a bona fide sale--one customer remarked; "I saved enough on the bill I bought to pay the interest for two years on the money invested." Our stocks are yet complete and we can fill any kind of a bill. Now is the time to lay in your supply of builders hardware. We want you to be satisfied that we will save you money, so take your material list to any of our competitors, get their prices and then get ours.

TRIMMINGS FOR HATS

Idaho Rabbit Fur to Grace My Ladies' Hats in Paris.

Some time ago a Chewalsh, Wash., merchant offered 10 cents each for rabbit skins and those turning the extermination of the pest in Idaho shipped many thousands of pelts, wonderdering what was going to be done with them. The secret is now out, coming through a mail from the postoffice department at the little Washington town.

The news of the shipment to Paris is contained in the following letter sent out from Chewalsh:

"The Chewalsh postoffice is giving the postoffice department a new experience in parcel post shipments through the shipment of 8,000 rabbit skins by Oppenheimer Bros. to Paris, France."

"The receiving of the skins from the outside points, which was mostly through the postoffice, did not cause so much work but outgoing shipments were what for a time taxed the department to keep up the necessary supply of customs invoices, which are drawn in blank on linen tag board about the size of a postal card for each foreign government."

"The first consignment of 500 packages drew the supply from the large offices in the district—Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Lewiston—and still there was a shortage until a regulation could be made upon the department."

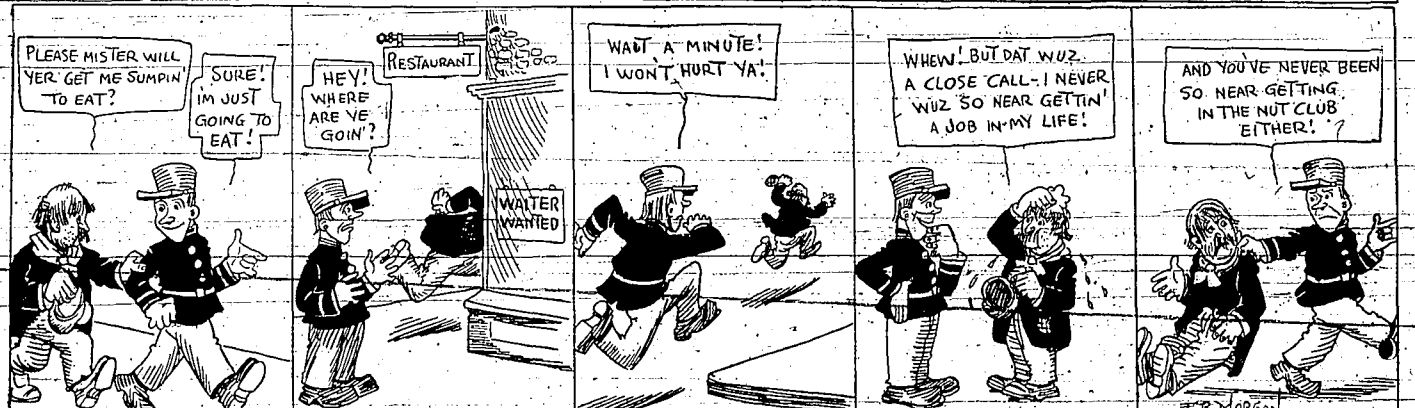

It is expected that some of the furs will come some time to see upon the heads of Idaho women—but not at 10 cents per—Nampa Leader.

The One-Price System

One Price, But The Right Price--The Only Honest Way, And The Most Profitable

It is customary in piano stores to ask a very high price for pianos, and take your money at that price if you will pay it. If you are smart you will not do a cent from that price. If your neighbor is smarter than you he gets two discounts, and if some one else is still smarter he gets three discounts.

The result is that you will find one man has paid $400 for his, another paid but $350, while the close buyer paid but $300.

But that piano was worth but $300 to commence with.

A piano, like all manufactured articles, has a fixed value, and should therefore have a fixed price according to its value. You would not intrude a shoe store that charged you $5 for the same shoe they sold your neighbor for $1.

We mark every piano in plain figures at the lowest possible price--because a musician, a man or a child is sure of equal treatment and obtaining the same price.

If you can't call write for catalog and terms.

Society items for this column will be gladly received by The Times.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Branson entertained at seven o'clock dinner Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dehning of St. Louis. Covers were laid for ten, after which cards were indulged in, all having a delightful time.

Birth Ramsey very beautifully entertained twenty-four of her friends Tuesday evening in honor of St. Patrick's day. The house was tastefully decorated in green and white and the St. Patrick's idea was carried out in the score cards and delicious refreshments and favors. Five hundred was played during the evening. Cella Martin and Robert Logan winning the handsome prizes. A very pleasant evening was spent by all.

Sixteen ladies again enjoyed the delightful hospitality of Mrs. C. E. Hood Tuesday at one o'clock, when she gave a pretty luncheon honoring Mrs. F. R. Gooding of Gooding and Mrs. J. M. Brown of Spokane. The table was beautiful with trappings of smilax and St. Patrick's emblems and the luncheon was played after the luncheon. Mrs. J. W. Craven receiving the prize for high score, and the guests of honor pretty souvenirs.

The Wilmot club was entertained by Mrs. C. M. McElwain yesterday. As is the custom of the club, sewing was enjoyed during the afternoon, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. J. W. Craven gave a most delightful "Rummy" party Wednesday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in playing "rummy," everyone having a fine time. The guests were Madam, Allen, McCollum, Gooding and Miss Maxwell.

Mrs. H. J. Pulling will entertain the luncheon club Friday.

Saturday Bridge Club will meet with Mrs. Kenney this week.

The Wednesday Afternoon Auction Bridge club met with Mrs. J. M. Skeels yesterday. Mrs. Cien won a handsome hand-painted plate as prize for high score. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Watson was gracious at a formal Tango dinner at Justamere Inn Tuesday evening. A very delightful evening was spent in dancing the popular step.

The Wednesday Koenigstein club delightedly surprised Mrs. F. P. McAtee with a one o'clock luncheon at her home, the occasion being her birthday. The beautifully appointed table was centered with a vase of red carnations--red and white being the color scheme. Mrs. McAtee received many lovely gifts which she opened at the table. The birthday cake was one of the kind you dream about--large and white, decorated with candy violets. The afternoon was spent in sewing, as usual. The guests were Mesdames Hand, Parlor, Savage, Hill, Wilson, Moore, Alvord and Wile.

The people who would buy what you would like to sell--or who would sell what you'd like to buy--are, of course, readers of the classified ads.

HYOMEL RELIEVES IN FIVE MINUTES

You Breathe It

If your head is all stuffed up from a cold or catarrh, you suffer with dull headaches and seem lacking in vitality, or are constantly sniffling and coughing, you need a remedy that will give the quickest relief possible--something that will go right to the spot, clear the head and throat and give you relief. Surely you Hyomel--all drug stores sell it. It is just such a remedy, and is entirely harmless and pleasant to use. You breathe it--no stomach dosing.

The antiseptic oils of Hyomel mix with the air you breathe--its health giving medication immediately reaches the sore and inflamed mucous membrane--you feel better in five minutes. It is practically impossible to use Hyomel and not only be relieved but permanently benefited. Skeels-Wiley will refund your money if you are not satisfied. Ask for the complete outfit--$1.00--Adv.

CLUB ENTERTAINS NEIGHBORS

Flier Ladies Visit Local Organization on Tuesday.

The last regular meeting of the club was held last Tuesday at the Masonic hall, the president, Mrs. Mary V. Norton presiding.

The club was fortunate in having guests from the Flier Woman's club and the Rural Home Department club. Mrs. Norton introduced Mrs. G. M. Trull, president of the Flier club. Mrs. Trull responded by speaking of the club work in which she is deeply interested. The speaker said that as spring opened the club would carry forward plans for the improvement of the village improvement.

Mesdames Walkington, Logsdon, Amodeo, Crawford, Hildake, Pierce, Misses Pierce and Hildake were present from the Rural Home Department club. Mrs. Norton introduced Mrs. G. M. Trull, president of the Flier club. Mrs. Trull responded by speaking of the club work in which she is deeply interested. The speaker said that as spring opened the club would carry forward plans for the improvement of the village improvement.

The Twentieth Century club is always glad to welcome guests from sister clubs. Mrs. Robert Springer spoke of the importance of observing Home Industry Week. Club members are urged to organize so far as possible those industries which are located in our home communities, and those industries which are located in the Pacific Northwest.

The president appointed a committee of five to co-operate with the Commercial club in carrying forward the work, namely: Mrs. W. F. Pike, Mrs. M. J. McElwain, Mrs. Arthur E. Seaver, Mrs. J. O. Gates, Mrs. A. M. Wilker and Mrs. J. M. Elliott.

The president then announced that the Board of Control had appointed as tellers for the annual election on April 7, Maud McElwain, Grace Seaver and Ruth Nixon.

will green ribbons suggesting the day. Club members and their guests are glad to express appreciation to the chairman of the day and the pleasant social enjoyment by those present.

Mrs. Hegan announced that the regular meeting of the musical department will be held at the Masonic hall Tuesday, March 24, would give a fine from Handel's Largo--Misses Graham, Gomba and Mrs. Wiloy.

Mrs. Hegan also announced that the April musicale would be given at the Masonic hall April 2. A splendid musical program is being prepared. An entertaining feature of the evening will be an exhibition of the "Tango Minuet" the modern dance. The dance is perhaps the earliest and most spontaneous mode of expressing emotions and dramatic feeling. It is closely allied with music and it is said that this department should combine music, singing and dancing on the program. Doubtless many will be glad of this opportunity to see the Tango correctly presented.
