CLEAN-UP DAY PLANS COMPLETED

Block Captains Appointed to Supervise Work

CITIZENS UNITE TO COOPERATE WITH SUPERVISORS.

April Third Should See Twin Falls In-Last Stretch of a Thorough Clean Up.

The city of Twin Falls right at present has a thorough clean up program that should be preserved this year at any cost. People have shown a "ready compliance" with any movement to clean up their premises. In fact they have for the most part completed the work. The block captains, all of the block captains will have to do will be to see that vacant lots and the alleys are cared for. Last year a great amount of assistance was given on clean-up day by the school children, but the school children's board did not believe the movement justified the loss of the day in school work with expenses of $300 or more keeping up regardless of the holiday.

Citizens who are willing to help the movement can report to the block captains for assignments to the work. The block captains reported to the Times are given below:

MY CHOICE—Never was disappointed in them yet. They are all and more than is claimed for them. Friends are surprised at my good figure. The beauty and gracefulness of Wooltex and Redfern Coats and Suits has them all captivated. When I tell the price they certainly feel bad, seeing how much more they paid for very ordinary garments. I'll wager they will accept my tip this spring.

Such expressions are quite frequent, and really true. They do not emanate from the mind of the admiring, though he is proud to advertise such high grade clothing for Misses and Ladies.

State wide legislation is bound to come in the state and it's pretty certain to be the real reason for this fall. From all over the state from wells and dry sites is coming agitation for state wide dry campaigns. Drys want for the spring that it will prevent to a large extent shipment into dry territory. Wetts want it because they believe that all towns and cities within the state should be on a common basis. A great deal of the干ware is, of course, coming from dry towns and cities adjacent to wet territory where the tanks are loaded up in wet territory and carried over by interurbans to be dumped on dry communities for their care. Twin Falls fortunately has not been so affected, but nevertheless will limit its state wide prohibition in order to help other dry communities. The legislative plots of every party will of necessity have to come out of the brush on the question this fall.

No matter how much the people of the other parties may disagree with President Wilson's policy they will have to take off their hats to him—a man of sincere and sturdy purpose as he stands for toll charges for American vessels brings him in direct opposition to the Republican leaders and to many of his Democratic colleagues. His speech against the "agent of the devil" was direct and dignified and free from threats or any melodrama. It was the act of a man actuated by the highest principles of statesmanship and planned a spirit of independence that has marked his whole course since reaching the presidency. His statement that America could not afford to lightly disregard and violate her foreign treaties is perhaps of a higher order of statesmanship than that which has heretofore been made a laughing stock of the foreign powers. He is making his stand on broad lines which should appeal to all people regardless of party. President Wilson's right-with-respect-to-the-treaty. There can be no argument in view of the high and lofty stand taken by this country with regard to its own policies. America cannot afford to go on record as disregarding any treaty with any nation. This nation holds an enviable position with all European powers because it has been regarded as a nation of right and equity. When the present treaty expires with Great Britain it will be time enough to change disagreeable features in the next treaty.

EFFICIENT INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

The building of Gary, Indiana, was a nine-days' wonder. At the outset of a group of steel magnates a city grew up like maple on the open prairie—a city with factories, houses, public buildings, well-paved streets, water, electricity, and all the rest of it, literally built to order. The "blue day" have passed, and the wonder of the town's becoming has well-nigh been forgotten. The people who are now talking about Gary are the educators discussing the interesting way in which this industrial city is teaching the children of the workers to be workers themselves—and good workers, not merely boys and girls who play at working. How this up-to-date system of practical industrial education is the realization of one man's idea is told in an article reprinted from the Hardware Age (February). We read:

"The principal idea of this man, William A. Whit, superintendent of schools, was to incorporate thoroughly in school work the plan of industrial education. Not the form of industrial work which is applied in many of our school systems, but work which called for actual, practical results, in the production of things which were of real value—work which demanded that the pupils learn not only the manual efforts which were required to produce a certain article, but which included the cost of that article, the value of time, of material, of tools. The result is that the finished pupil leaves school having learned to do a thing in the best way, with the least expenditure of time or money, prepared, if he does care to follow any of the trades which he has selected to be of greatest service to an employer."

"When a pupil has reached the seventh grade in these schools he is offered an addition to the academic courses—the opportunity to learn drafting, printing, sheet-metal work, country and forge work, plumbing, heating, electrical work, cabinet-making, pattern-making, machine-shop work, or welding."

"All of those departments, in addition to many others, are housed in a single building. In fact, everything from the kindergarten to the highest classes are included in this same plant. They call their 'technic' plant Gary, yet the education actual, the first of these advanced technical schools buildings, requires but little more space than the average high school in a city of 100,000."

"One feature which immediately impresses itself on the visitor is the absence of force. Human nature in child or man relishes being forced to do anything. The result is that Gary schools are purely elective. A program of studies is mapped out, but the pupils take those which they prefer. Thus they are led instead of being driven, and with the result that they love their school, its work, and putting forth the best that is in them, accomplishing the greatest results. None of the industrial courses is compulsory, yet all the classes are filled."

"For instance, a boy wishes to study drafting. He first obtains permission from his parents, bringing them into close touch with the school work. He enters that department under the tutelage of an experienced man. He takes the preliminary drawing, then goes into further details. He is given time to draw, which means that he must solve the problems of floor loads from his textbook. He must study the theoretical to do the practical. As he progresses he requires additional instruments. Those he supplies himself. Should he not make progress headway in this line he is allowed to drop in and take up another."

"The work in the school is handled like that in a large manufacturing plant, as is shown by the following instance, given by the author:

"A number of new desks are required. The drafting room is called upon for plans and details; these in turn are passed to the various departments with orders for a certain number of the article which they make in that particular department. These departments make regulation on the stock rooms for the raw material required. Pupils in charge of these details deliver the materials and chance B. The completed product is charged to the school or department to which it is delivered. Costs of each operation are carefully computed, until the pupil is interested in producing greatest results at the least cost."

"In addition the work is conducted in broad lines which should appeal to all people regardless of party. President Wilson's right-with-respect-to-the-treaty. There can be no argument in view of the high and lofty stand taken by this country with regard to its own policies. America cannot afford to go on record as disregarding any treaty with any nation. This nation holds an enviable position with all European powers because it has been regarded as a nation of right and equity. When the present treaty expires with Great Britain it will be time enough to change disagreeable features in the next treaty.

"But it is not all work at the Gary schools. Prominent in the planning of grounds and buildings was the allowance for playgrounds, which assume the proportions of parks. These grounds are at the disposal of the pupils at all times. They play during school hours and out. Everywhere is the spirit of freedom, the spirit of honor, of clean manhood, influences which tend to develop the initiative. It is in this environment that the children of Gary are being raised. The superintendent has made the schools and grounds the most popular place in the city. Thus the play-grounds or the "shops" get the thumbs-up under other circumstances would be devoted to the streets and alleys."

"Nor are these schools for the young alone:

"Another fact of interest is the work done by adults at night. The man who is forced to earn a living during the day, who is in a machine shop, for instance, wishes to learn some operation which will not be given him in his daily work until he is capable. He goes to school at night. He takes up late work, comes when he wishes, stays as long as he will. He masters the machines, goes to his employer and demonstrates his ability, is in line for a better position. It is in this and similar ways that the Gary schools have won the admiration of parents and children."

MEXICO—VIEWED FROM TEXAS.

"A drawback to most of the editorial comment on the Mexican problem is the fact that it is necessarily long-winded, complicit, dependent for facts and color on the press agencies or from the state department."

"But in Texas, once a part of Mexico and still in contact with it along eight hundred miles of border-line, many of the commentators have the advantage of being virtual eyewitnesses of the Mexican drama. Moreover, they have learned to know the Mexican character in peace as well as in war, and they are presumably in constant receipt of word-of-mouth information of a minor but illuminating nature."

"Texas, too, has been killed by the bullets of the combatants across the border. Texan ranches have been raided from the Mexican side, and horses and cattle commandeered for the use of the Mexican fighters. If, therefore, not surprising, that Texas has shown signs of chafing under the administration's policy of watchful waiting. Thus it was an El Paso meeting that got the idea of the Demobilization, formulated and published resolutions criticising our state department for its weak and vacillating policy, according to compressing facts about the true conditions there, and asking for the abandonment of a course "that is injurious to all Mexican interests in Mexico and the Mexican people themselves." And it is the governor of Texas who, impatience of Washington's slowness in getting at the facts concerning the death of Clemon Vergara, an American citizen, and permission to send his Texas Rangers into Mexico to arrest the federal soldiers accused of his murder. An examination of the Texas papers, moreover, seems to reveal an underlying belief that the Mexican situation will not yield to any solution short of armed intervention."

"It begins to look as if the only way to 'melt' Mexico is to repeat history and justify it the way that the majority of Texans was partitioned in 1855," remarks the Houston Post, which is convinced that "the Texas has come when our government must assert itself with more vigor." Houston adds, "merely strengthens the impression which exists in Mexico that we are afraid to intervene, and that impression grows the lives and property of American citizens and other foreigners will be safe."

"It is the opinion of the body of men in the Deep Creek orchards that there is no responsible government in North Mexico, and that therefore, 'No American or foreigner ought to be permitted to be situated upon any property whatever without a fair trial in the presence of American representatives.' It is the Mexican way to kill those whose removal is desired and to fix the record so as to make the next appearance." That was done in the case of Madero, and it was no doubt done in the case of Benton. Just how many Americans have been murdered in that manner or imprisoned incommunicado will not be known until the United States compels both sides to observe strictly the personal and property rights of all foreigners.

"The withholding of the body of Benton is indicative of what the public generally suspects, viz., that he was murdered in cold blood and not by a firing squad after a trial by martial law. Many others have fallen in the same way nobody knows, and it is time that the Washington government be hunting out."

"Every American or foreigner confined in Mexican dungeons at this time ought to be turned immediately into custody of American consuls in order that the facts surrounding their arrest and incarceration may be fully investigated. There is no part of Mexico at this time a process of justice which civilized people can respect, and there will not be until the present disordered conditions have been remedied."

"There comes a time when patience ceases to be a virtue, when charity constitutes a sin," says the Houston Chronicle, which thinks that that hour has struck in our dealings with Mexico."

"Our patience, charity, and candor seem to have counted for naught. The American policy of kindness and forbearance is still being mocked. Citizens of the United States are still being maltreated and their property is still all fenced in, and the fences have been watched carefully all winter."

"The Deep Creek's reservoirs were filled several days ago, and the waste water has cascaded down into the Blue River, causing some damage to the banks, the settled with many for Lake Herald.

"The Administration has pursued the path of rectitude and plain dealing. If it has erred, it has erred on the side of leniency and forbearance, and that is exactly what it should be in dealing with a weaker nation."

"Now it would seem that such records have been exchanged and that the needs of the road—example, we might say—act as a set-back, failing in sterile grandeur."

"The Benton case, the hanging of Vergara, and the alleged defiance of Benito offer the opportunity for the American government to take a firm position, and it is to be hoped, for the sake of national dignity and national influence in the western hemisphere, that the opportunity will not be unheeded."

"The Waco Times-Herald confesses that it 'has felt all along that only the kind fate could keep us out of serious trouble' if we continued the grape-juice policy," and in the San Antonio Light we read:

"The people of El Paso who passed such vindictive resolutions, regarding the death of Benton and the quality of protection given to American citizens were entirely justified. The Gilded State has done well in this regard, and it must do well to its neighbors, or it will become highly possible that its citizens will take matters into their own hands and secure for themselves the protection which their government has so long neglected to afford."—Literary Digest.

WORK AT ORCHARDS.

Season of Activity Commences at Deep Creek.

With the advent of spring, or what seems to be spring, the work at the Deep Creek orchards began several days ago, and is being pushed as rapidly as possible. E. L. Maevret, the new manager of the company, spent several days in the orchards, conferring with D. H. Downer, the expert horticulturist in charge. The pruning has been completed, and the work of cultivation is now under way. Trees are being put out on the headlands, while work is progressing by the Deep Creek company at the rate of one acre per day. Mr. Maevret states that most of the effort of the company this year will be concentrated upon the care of the trees already in, and that no large amount of new work will be undertaken.

As the company now has about three thousand acres of orchards under its control, the trees arriving at the age where they need continual attention, it will require an immense amount of labor to handle the work. The damage to the trees during the winter by the rabbits was greater than ever before, and a concerted effort which has been made to exterminate the pests by the farmers upon the tract. The Deep Creek company was foremost in the fight against the rabbits, and used large quantities of the poison in the vicinity of their orchards. The trees have all fenced in, and the fences have been watched carefully all winter."

SOCIETY NOTES

Society items for this column will be gladly received by The Times.

The Luncheon club with Mrs. Brown of Spokane as guest, was delightfully entertained by Mrs. H. J. Faull Friday at one o'clock. The table was set with individual flower arrangements, with ewer, basin and smaller "A" cut glass; how clever with taste, going with "sunray" arrangement around it on an exquisite lace center-piece, occupied the center of the table, which was dressed in white, with a small shaded candle. Miss Fannie Thomas decorated the bottoms in setting the delicious luncheon—after which bridge was enjoyed. Mrs. Aiken won the prize for "high score," while Mr. Morse cleverly acted as tournament master and in a very original way introduced the different members who were to give the toasts. Mrs. Guther's health was the subject of the toast, to which she responded in her adorable way. Mrs. Price was then announced and her usual charming way gave a toast to "The Twin Falls Conservatory of Music" to which everyone responded lustily. The luncheon ended with coffee and refreshments served. The program for the phone-finish—a good play entitled "Bumal Pat"—was being prepared and it is hoped for a good crowd so as to clear the debt.

Mr. E. E. Sautters went to Twin Falls Tuesday where she will undergo an operation.

Mr. E. E. Sautters went to Twin Falls Tuesday where she will undergo an operation.

The local Bible class of the Christian church have a most delightful banquet in the church basement Thursday evening. The table was arranged in the shape of a cross, covers for fifty-two being laid at the front entrance, with napkins, plates, glasses, cutlery, and smaller articles artistically arranged in vases at intervals on the table. The place cards were painted by Mrs. Crow and were pink roses—the rose being the class flower.

The delicious five course dinner was prepared by the ladies of the church and served by Open Bellington, Myrtle Anderson and Alice McDonald. A very pleasant social evening was spent after the banquet.

Another very enjoyable Tango party was given Thursday evening in Mount Hall. About ten couples were present and several new steps were learned and thoroughly enjoyed.

Invitations were sent for a dinner to be given by the Conservatory of Music to all who helped in Princess Bonne, this evening at 6:30 in Jewel Hall.

The members of the Cosy 500 club plus friends gathered at 5:30 p.m. with a handkerchief shower. Mrs. Dimmitt left Monday evening for Seattle, where she will probably make her home and the ladies of her club wished to show her in a small measure their appreciation of one of their most genial members from their midst. The surprise was perfect, Mr. and Mrs. Dimmitt being engaged in packing up packing boxes when the ladies arrived. A very pleasant afternoon was spent even though there was no absence of chairs and furniture, in general.

The Saturday Bridge club spent a delightful afternoon with Mrs. F. T. Kenney—Saturday. The honor for high score were awarded to Mrs. J. O. Gates and Mrs. R. M. McCollum.

Mrs. Ed Larned was charming hostess at a pretty party given for Mrs. J. J. Browne of Spokane, at Justamore Inn yesterday afternoon. The spacious living room was prettily decorated with profusions of pink and white carnations, with the cheerful fireplace was a pleasant sight to all who so bravely dared to venture out on such a disagreeable evening. The party was only for the ladies, their husbands staying at the hotel. The highlight of the day was a delightful afternoon at bridge. Mrs. L. T. Wright won first prize, a beautiful hand-painted plate, won by Mrs. G. P. Baker.

IOWA LUMBER CO., Ltd.

Vital Electric Service Facts

We want all our customers to become familiar with the undisputed facts that vitally concern both the producers and consumers of electricity.

Experience has proven that competition means:

- (1) Duplicated investment.
- (2) Increase cost of production.

(3) Ruined earning power of local company.

(4) Disfigured streets and alleys.

(5) Eventual combination of interests involved.

(6) Increased charges or postponed rate reductions.

(7) Discouragement of further, local investments.

These facts we believe to be incontrovertible.

We solicited your interest in the situation in order that you may satisfy your own mind regarding it.

Those now commanding our competitor for being responsible for reduced rates will eventually condone the same concern for saddling an unnecessary investment on the community on which interest charges, taxes, maintenance, and other expenses must be paid out of the rates charged.

SYNOPSIS.

Book I.

CHAPTER I.—Ralph Van Vechten, young man of means, is astonished to see a man enter No. 1315, a house across the street, which has long been unoccupied and is spoken of as the House of Mystery.

CHAPTER II.—Several persons at regular intervals enter No. 1315.

CHAPTER III.—Van Vechten expresses his alarm over the whereabouts of his cousin and fiancee, Paige Carew. A fashionably dressed man, who has been seen near the house, is forced to leave.

CHAPTER IV.—Van Vechten is attracted by the face of a girl in the crowd at a social gathering. He follows her and discovers the girl gazing at him with a look of scorn from the windows of the mysterious house.

CHAPTER V.—Detective Flint calls upon Tom Phinney to get his version of the tragedy.

CHAPTER VI.—Tom Phinney goes alone on a yachting trip. He recognises both men whom he had seen enter the House of Mystery. He sees the man who follows him. Tom is seized blindfolded and taken to a house. It is here that he is questioned by the mysterious man. In authority, question his captors. A sweet-voiced girl comes to his rescue against the roughness of his captors.

Book II.

CHAPTER I.—Van Vechten calls on his uncle, Theodore Van Vechten, big man in Wall street, and known as "the Man of Wall Street". Van Vechten asks regarding the whereabouts of Paige Carew.

CHAPTER II.—Detective Flint shows Van Vechten a gold wash purse found in the house of mystery. Van recognises it as belonging to Paige Carew.

CHAPTER III.—The secret is disclosed, and helps Tom Phinney escape, but "trusts" to disclose her identity. Tom declares he will meet her again.

CHAPTER IV.—Detective Flint tells Van Vechten that they think that Paige has been kidnapped. Van goes to lay the case before his uncle.

CHAPTER V.—Messages are sent to Tom in an effort to trace Paige. Tom tells Van Vechten that he is in love and relates his adventure.

CHAPTER VI.—A message from London reports that two ladies resembling Miss Carew have been seen in New York since the time previously. A reward of $5,000 is offered.

CHAPTER VII.—Tom's prompt response, "You are not trespassing upon my footings in the least, and I am going to be frank with you. The engagement you speak of has always been more or less of a tacit understanding in our family. Paige is only a distant cousin, you know—but we are a chivalrous set. Van Vechten, and she and I have always been awfully fond of each other."

"But as for love? That's another matter. In strictest confidence, Flint, I have an idea that we shall never marry—simply. I am convinced, because I could not resist without forcing myself upon her." No, nor I am much too fond of her for that. And, for another love affair, that's really reprehensible. I have been keeping a secret of it. She is not a girl given to romantic fancies or schoolgirl sentimentalities; she is of age, her own mistress; and were she to learn, as I have, that it is possible for either of us to care for someone else in a way different from our present feelings toward each other, she couldn't let me know it fast enough. That's Paige—if anybody must be hurt, have it over and done with as soon as possible."

"I am beginning to form a pretty fair idea of your cousin," observed Mr. Flint. "Her intelligence, courage and independent character make it all the more necessary that I learn everything possible about Max Willard. I suppose he is the man who has been very much attached to each other?"

"Patsy and Josephine? I can't say they are like mother and daughter—Josephine's heart is much too young for that—chums would be more nearly accurate. Yet Patsy Devereaux has been a mother to Paige, and the very strongest ties of affection and confidence bind them together."

SIR FLINT slowly nodded his head, as if these disclosures were right in line with whatever theory he was evolving.

"One thing more," said he. "It is strange that it has never occurred to you, with your intimate understanding of your cousin; that nothing at all has happened to her; that her prolonged absence without communicating with relatives or friends is an act of her own free will."

"But—it did occur to me," Van Vechten contradicted. "And it was knowledge of Paige, that renders such a hypothesis wholly absurd."

Again Mr. Flint nodded understandingly.

"Now," said he, "you have your question as to why I attach so much importance to finding Max Willard; although what I have already told you should supply the explanation. I want to discover the motive that influenced Temple Bonner to disfigure his own iron-bound system of doing business and establish a precedent by interposing personally in the case of the house-

John Castle—Tom's description was amazingly vague.

Before leaving, Mr. Flint said to Van Vechten:

"I hope I shall be looking you up almost any minute of the day or night, except to be pretty busy, but it is impossible to foretell precisely in what way my efforts will be directed. May count on you spending as much of your time here as you can!"

The young man nodded. "If I am not here—I shall leave word so you may know where to find me."

Tom, after the detective was gone, reverted to the topic which he had broached earlier in the day.

"Are you going to use the motor for a while?" he asked.

The other roused sufficiently from his puzzling reflections to give the speaker a questioning look. "Maledane?" he repeated.

"Tom amplified:

"Chap down there, wealthy diamond importer—is waiting a skipper for his steam yacht, Brownlow's his name—not him, at the Payne French's last week. He was asking me about it; suppose he heard that I was interested in yachting. I have a master's certificate, you know; that's one job I can hold."

Tom was moody, and for the time being, Van Vechten had made his own perplexity.

WASHINGTON NEWS

openings of the Week In the Capital.

(Special Correspondence).—Washington, D. C., March 17.—Representatives French and Smith of Idaho and other representatives from California, California and Washington have passed before the Appropriation Committee urging the maintenance of many offices that for many years have been cut down and discontinued in the several states. They urge that the maintenance of these many offices is but small encumbrance to the mining industry and that while the government has given much to the miners in the form of subsidies, the miners have added to the national wealth by experience what it means to work all day and duty all night, to secure a legal education.

He assured the committee that they would do well in their determination to make a large reduction, giving every man with whom they came in contact a square deal, and lived up to it. Ideal success would surely own their efforts.

Recognition of Veterans.

Representatives French and Smith this week appeared before the committee on pensions and urged the recognition of the volunteers who engaged in the Spanish-American and Russo-Turkish wars during the last two and one-half years.

Smith Bill Favorably Received.

Representative Smith definitely recommended the report of the committee on agriculture during the present session of Congress, of his bill extending the benefits of the public land laws to miners over eighteen years of age.

A canvas of the members of Congress indicates that the sentiment is generally favorable to the amendment to the public land laws.

An final proof could not be offered under the proposed law until the applicant reaches the age of twenty-one, no valid objection has been offered.

Mr. Smith contended that the enactment of this law would result in thousands of young men who are anxious to get a home, settling on the public lands, who otherwise would turn their attention to the cities, a little less welcome in the towns and cities, and that it would accomplish much toward encouraging young men to enter upon agricultural pursuits.

Moscow Boy Passes.

Hugh Hill of Moscow, Idaho, who was nominated by Representative French as principal, successfully passed the examination recently for admission to the New Mexico Academy at Albuquerque. Mr. Hill will assume the work at the academy at the opening of the school year in June.

Every three minutes someone in the United States dies from consumption. One person of every seven dies of consumption.

Consumption.

Consumption is caused by a living germ in the lungs. The body of a healthy person will resist its growth and may kill the germs, but in a weak person, the germs multiply until the lungs are consumed and the person dies.

These germs are found in the sputum (spit) of a consumptive; in small numbers in the very early stages of the disease; in large numbers as the disease progresses and in countless millions in the late stages.

Among the earlier symptoms which one can observe and which should lead him at once to "consult a physician" are: Slight cough, lasting a month or more; loss of weight; slight fever in the afternoon; night sweats; bleeding from the lungs.

Fundamental Principles.

1. Fresh air is an necessary to health as pure and nourishing food. People should not sleep in over-crowded rooms, nor with closed windows.

3. Homes and workshops must be clean and thoroughly ventilated. Dirt and impure air are the allies of consumption.

Persons with colds or coughs of long standing or persons who are long in bed, or physically exhausted should consult a physician. Do not wait until it is too late.

5. The "habit" of careless spitting promotes the spread of consumption. The consumptive person spits out millions of germs in a single day and when the spit dries these germs are blown about and find their way into other people's lungs. Sick persons should burn their spitings with a consummate care, a careful consumptive is not dangerous to those with whom he lives and works.

8. The large majority of people probably take indifference to their health, but they realize falling prey to it by preserving their general health and strength.

Things Good for Weak Persons.

Fresh air in plenty prevents consumption. Spend little time in the sun. Choose sunny rooms. Open the windows and let the air in. Keep the house clean. If a consumptive has more time out of doors, give it him and wash his clothes well and water them.

In the open air so much as you can. Outdoor work is vastly better than indoor work. Keep the feet dry. Breathe with deep, long, full breaths so as to catch the fresh air over every corner of your lungs. Do exercise daily for several minutes in the morning and at night with the windows open or while out of doors. Breathe through the nostrils and not through the mouth.

Spend your money for simple foods—milk and eggs, good fresh meat, carbohydrates, rice and butter and fruit.

Live a regular life; get plenty of rest and sleep.

When following a medical course, bathe in good water, either in a bath or preferably upon rising.

Courage is very important. Consumptives can be helped and many are cured.

Things Bad for Weak Persons.

Dirty dishes and stores, over-crowded living and sleeping rooms, dusty saloons and dance halls, dusty kinds of business are bad for weaklings.

Smoking, alcohol and intemperance are very bad. Vice which weakens the strong kills the weak.

Patent medicines, even those which claim to cure consumption, are bad for weak humas, because they contain a large amount of alcohol.

A cold can help just as much during the winter as in summer. Common Cough of Pinpoint.

POWER COUNTY DRY

Court injunction issued closing only Saloon.

An order was made in the district court, Wednesday morning, to close Power County in the same class as all of our sister counties—in the dry column. The order was one granting a temporary injunction by which W. A. West is restrained from conducting a saloon in Power county, just across the bridge from American Falls.

In this action which was brought by the Village of American Falls, O. R. Deam and W. G. Blased appeared for the plaintiff; Baird & Davis, of the Twin Falls law firm, represented the defendant. The arguments of counsel occupied the entire afternoon session Monday and the greater portion of the Tuesday morning session.

Judge J. C. Jeffries, in ruling upon the case, stated that as there was a question of public policy involved and that it being a case which should be passed upon by the supreme court, he would grant the application for an injunction and that it was very much to have the case tried at the earliest possible moment.

Armed with the injunction Sheriff Jeffries went across the river at about three o'clock and closed the only saloon in Dry county,即 the saloon in Jerome.

It was noticed around town early in the day that the place was to be closed and it is said that the saloon enjoyed a rushing business all day, right up to the time when the sheriff appeared.

It is an even finer place there now, as it was before the prohibition law was passed.
