The death of the drunken man by falling from the cliff and the lack of relatives or friends to mark his passing, is indeed pitiable in the extreme. But the record of the events leading to his death presents a very strong temperance lesson to all men. For several months drink had claimed a mastery over a man endowed with much ability, great intellect and still greater personality. Drink "wore away his reason and finally claimed his last toll which it claims from all its victims. Instead of an honored existence surrounded by his friends, the lot of an outcast and a death among unsympathetic strangers was his merely for the temporary pleasure of the flowing bowl. Not one thinking man in a thousand can claim that the few moments of insane pleasure can ever repay the loss of self-respect, home ties and the friendship and esteem of associates.

Most of the opponents of the repeal of the Panama toll exemption clause as nearly as can be traced through the verbal mass of debate, base their argument upon two broad lines, one political and the other industrial. At no time in the debate so far held has any one of the president's critics given a single rebuttal to his high plane of ethical right as paramount to his political right or political expediency. As far as the right of this nation to make tariff or to exempt them, powerful influence can alone be the answer. The States are great enough to say to the world: We will do this because it places us to do so. It is because of might do a wrong and not suffer chastisement for it. Because of a political platform another group claim that President Wilson is not keeping his word to the nation if he forces a change in the toll exemption law. His colleagues, many of them re-inforced by the Republican opponents, have laid down this as a reason for their opposition on the grounds that a promise is a promise and should be kept. Many of these opponents have helped in the past to frame national platforms of which not one single promise was fulfilled. President Wilson possibly did in the campaign subscribe to a platform of which he was not the sole author. By reason of his innate perception of the difficulty in keeping part of that promise he is doing what any broad gauge statesman would do—simply allowing his personal reputation to be assailed rather than take a position which will result in great injury and dishonor to this nation. Which is the higher claim—political or national? Decidedly the national claim must force a man to uphold the honor of the nation.

LAND-REFORM PROSPECTS IN MEXICO

If peace could once more be brought about in Mexico, it would seem that the long-needed measure of land reform might follow. For nearly every leader, or party professes a belief in its necessity and a willingness to bring it about. If General Villahermosa, his way "every man in the Republic who wishes it shall be given a little piece of land for his own; the great hacienda must go forever." In the south, where the Interoceanic Rail Road has divided up the territory over which he rules into small farms for the people. Mr. Encarnación de la Garza, who wants strife ended by an impartial peace congress, declares that one essential condition is that Mexico "must solve the agrarian problem." President Huerta announces that as soon as the peace is brought to distribute 10,000,000 acres of Government land to about that number of persons and to institute certain other land reforms.

In short, every one seems to admit that the land question is largely responsible for the disorders. The fundamental trouble, declares the New York Journal of Commerce, "is the condition of abject dependence and poverty to which the vast majority are reduced by the concentration of landownership in a few vast estates, imperfectly cultivated for the enrichment of the owners and the impoverishment of the workers. The acquisition of the great haciendas and their division and distribution into small holdings, without absolute confiscation, is a difficult problem for a country in the condition of Mexico; but there are considerable government lands with which a beginning could be made with a view to some plan of extending transfers of land to the poor through official action."

through official action." Portland, Ore., says the New York Tribune's Mexico City correspondent, "recognized the necessity for a division of the great estates and government lands, the latter comprising one-tenth of the area of the country." But "suggested no direct action." Afterward, "Huerta promised reforms and then retracted them." Now Huerta has taken up the cry for national economic betterment and is pushing the project with all his characteristic energy and enthusiasm.

As soon as the military successes he expects give him the opportunity, Huerta, according to the Tribune correspondent, will divide up his 10,000,000 acres of government land.

The states that would be affected are in the north, and the principal ones are Chihuahua, Sonora, Sinaloa, Coahuila, and Durango. Land in these five states brings now about $1 an acre. Huerta would have to condemn the land and fix the government purchase price by a commission and then place the land at auction. It is on this feature that he counts much.

One rather important difficulty in the way of carrying out such a program would seem to be the fact that most of this land is now occupied by the Constitutionalists. But the Mexican Telegraph thinks that "if Huerta should succeed in making even a small beginning he will acquire a basis on which to make promises of extensive social reforms, and no doubt he will thus attract to himself the masses in Mexico. Carranza has made each promise, but legislation and a beginning of the reform will enable Huerta to boast of actual performance, and this seems likely to give him a decided advantage."

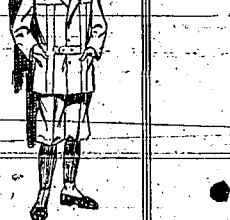

A former member of the Mexican congress and one-time enemy of Huerta at Washington, Mr. Eusebio de la Garza, Jr., outlines in the New York Sun his plan for restoring peace through a peace congress called by a responsible committee representing all parties. He recognizes the importance of the land and peonage questions, saying:

"We must solve the agrarian problem, allotting lands to the Indians, whose sole uprightness and supreme happiness in life are to be reached by the state of small landowners, made as they are to succeed in any other field. To be a small landowner is, in their midst, to attain the greatest well-being."

tain explanations recently printed in our papers throw some light on Villa's motives. Before the Diaz regime, says the Chicago Journal, "landlordism in Mexico was mitigated by a sort of village communism, in which each settler owned a considerable tract of land, which he either worked in common or leased out to the different families of the community." But "under the Diaz registration law, these time-honored holdings were 'denounced' by administration pots, and went to well already overgrown haciendas." So when Villa was reconstituted with for swooping down upon the rich landholders of Chihuahua with confiscations, executions, and imprisonments, he merely answered, "Remember! The farmers of San Carlos!"

One authority who recognizes the need of land reform in Mexico, sees little hope of its accomplishment. Mr. W. E. Carrón offers, in the new edition of his book on "Mexico," one explanation of the fact that the recent revolutions have established themselves so readily in northern states. "It is in the north that most of the vast private estates exist, while in southern Mexico, to a large extent, the land has been divided among small owners." His pessimistic conclusions regarding the prospect of land reform follow:

BIG BOB CAT BAGGED

A Long Shot by Henry Mapes Brings Good Results at Richfield.

Henry Mapes brings an interesting story from the Big Wood river, where he and some of the family were visiting Sunday. They were out along some of the rough country northwest of town, when he spotted a big bob cat sunning itself on the rocks. The children wanted him to "shoot it." He had only a 22-caliber Winchester special rifle, which though known to be a fine weapon and a strong shooter, is not guaranteed for any such game on any such distance. But he took careful aim, and fired one shot—and the bullet struck the big cat spore in the head, killing it instantly as if it had been a cannon ball. The distance, which they stopped off accurately, was 175 steps; and the cat weighed 65 pounds, and measured 5 foot 7 1/2 inches from tip to tip. It was a big enough animal to have killed a horse if it had chosen to do so, and a man without weapons would have killed more chance with it than with a runaway locomotive. The skin was an especially fine one—Richfield Recorder.

FILER NEWS

(From the Filer Journal.)
Mrs. Wm. Dancy spent part of Tuesday with Twin Falls friends.
P. Allen, who has been quite sick, is much better. He was able to be down town Tuesday forenoon.
Davis Bros. has purchased the acre tracts on North avenue which are at the north end of Yakima avenue, from F. P. Carter.
Quite a number of people from Twin Falls autowed down Tuesday evening to attend the concert given by the local choir. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Ripley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown.

The promenade given by the Juniors last Friday evening in the opera house was the swiftest affair ever pulled off in the village. The decorations were certainly worthy of special mention, as was every appointment from punch to music.

M. G. Telford and Tom Sanders left Wednesday morning for Tugueson where they will find up with lumber for the improvements of a homestead south of it. Telford is in the Shoshone Basin country.

Hudson Bros. from Seattle, contractors and builders, have located in Filer. They have rented the middle house in Dooley's row and are ready to figure with our people on any building they may desire.

The town board should provide a dumping ground for the residents of the town, where all the refuse could be put out of the way and out of sight. Old tin cans and accessories that come from rakings and scrapings do not usually make very artistic decorations for any particular spot. It is up to the town to secure some out of the way place for a public dump.

John McCarroll has returned from California.

Miss Cass of Idaho spent Sunday with Filer friends.

J. O. Christy and family spent Sunday in Twin Falls.

Mrs. Reeves and children spent Saturday in Twin Falls.

Oris Lee, son of Mrs. Robt. Miller, is confined to his home with typhoid fever.

Isaac Beem left Tuesday for a visit to Rapid City, S. D., and other points east.

Carl Plafelick and wife of Los Angeles, Calif., arrived in Filer last Monday for an extended stay.

A. J. Ripley and wife, of Twin Falls, parents of E. B. Ripley, are guests at his home this week.

Rev. Barckett has just returned from American Falls where he has been conducting revival services.

E. R. Dooley has taken the agency for the Case auto and is spending his spare time demonstrating the new 1914 model.

The Mauns are making big preparations for their annual banquet which will be held on the 28th of this month. Dr. Sutcliffe's wife from Twin Falls, visited here last Sunday. Also a nephew of the doctor, a dentist from Twin Falls, was a Filer visitor.

John Koeser is expected to arrive in Filer today and it is expected that he will start the operation of his cheese factory just as soon as he gets here.

Mrs. Schildman of Filer, chairman of the Civil Service Reform committee, gave a splendid talk on the proposed Civil Service Reform bill, which was instructive as well as very interesting.

—Dancer-Record, Rupert.

Dr. Cartney is the proud possessor of two "pit terriers," a species of bull dogs. The sire of these pups was owned in Denver for three years, and was never whipped. He is now owned in Boise. The doctor will let Guy Shearer have one of the pups, as Guy recently lost a much prized fox terrier.

The lecture by M. J. Sweetley last Sunday evening in the new M. E. church was a treat enjoyed by all. The church could comfortably accommodate. He took for his subject, "The Church in Politics," and handled it ably and satisfactorily to all who heard him.

Competition or Regulation---Which?

This should interest those who have favored competition in this community.

It must be conceded as self-evident that competition results in duplicated local investment and division of revenue of each concern.

This being the case, where will the customer profit under competitive conditions when the rates of all utility concerns are subject to uniform state regulation and based upon a fair income upon the capital invested?

"What will it profit a consumer, if he gains the competition of the whole world if he thereby loses his own right to reasonable rates?"

Can you convince yourself that lower rates will ensue under modern commission regulation in communities where competition is rife?

We are not quitters—we are willing to be game in a fair fight. It is obviously unfair, however, to every interest concerned—to tie the hands of the capital invested in your community by commission regulation and then force it to battle for its very existence under competitive conditions.

A COMMUNICATION

Twin Falls, Idaho, April 9th, 1914.
Editor Twin Falls Times:

In your issue of April 7, you have an article taken from the Spokesman Review in regard to the mail order business. From then to time in the past, you have had editorial articles on the subject, which have been read with much interest, no doubt, by your many intelligent readers. There has always two sides to a story. I, as a Mrs. Farmer, would like to make a few remarks on the other side. It is true that the mail order houses pay no taxes here, nor do they own property, with the exception of several branch houses of big concerns. But we farmers pay big taxes, and bigger interest and maintenance, and we need the money to pay these things, so if we can save a little here and there by way of groceries, clothes, shoes, furniture, drugs, at a saving of fifty per cent, we must do it. Needs must, when the devil knows what drives.
"Self preservation is the first law of nature," you know. I have in mind a Mrs. Farmer, who intended to be public spirited and do in the attempt, and you have heard of the place that is ruined with good intentions. Well, she had some of a bit of her 12 1/2 cents and butter at 20c money. This money was not at any merchant's dill, don't you think it? They pay their price in trade, in the market.
But, not to discuss—This Mrs.
Farmer took her little roll and went from place to place, and priced everything in the line of her necessities.
When she had done this, she found her order, went home in disgust, made out an order to Montgomery Ward & Co., paid the freight, and was told before better off in pocketbook, but her fun of public spirit was lost in the shuffle.
Some three years ago when the above mentioned mail order house closed, caused such a howl here in Twin Falls, your valued paper came out with the headline "It's Up To You Mr. Farmer," and you, Mr. Farmer, and other of our public spirited merchants sent advertising "outlets" and again your valued paper had the headline "It's Up To You Mr.
Storekeeper!" It makes much difference where the coin is being stepped upon.
There seems to be no way under the present competitive, profit system, where every man has his hand up the throat of every other man, to adjust these matters, but one would hope that there might be a way in this.
Year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and fourteen, the twentieth century of progress! It is up to you Mr. Editor, it is up to you Mr. Merchant, it is up to you Mr. and Mrs. Voter.

MRS. FARMER.

INTERURBAN LINE IN COURT

Promoters of Hagerman Valley Railway Air Their Troubles.

Jerome, Ida., Mar. 4, 1914.
On April 3rd an action was commenced in the District Court of Gooding County against J. S. Clark, Mr.
The Hagerman Valley & Western Railway Company and the Idaho Pacific Railway Co.

At the time that the complaint was filed a J. S. Pendens was also filed against the lands upon which the grade was built.

Mr. Clark claims that the grade was attempted to be transferred at a directors meeting of the first named company, the second named company and that the directors did not hold a legal meeting, also that Mr. H. A.
Sargent, who pretends to be a director of the H. V. & W. railway company, is not a director or vice-president but Mr. Clark claims that he is. Mr.
Sargent is supposed to be a director of the Idaho Pacific Railway Co., and therefore this company know of the claim against the Western Railway Co., which let the contract to him to build the railway and then because Mr. Clark's engineers chose to build the line from Hagerman to Wendell, the directors of the company before the court to cancel the contract because a majority of these directors were not present at the time the billions or Lincoln Township, 5 miles west of Wendell.

Without waiting for the decision of the court, the two named directors commenced to build the grade after letting a second contract to themselves to their townsite. Mr. Clark claims that notes and proceeds of stock to the extent of $20,000 were taken out of the Hagerman State Bank and wrongfully used to build the grade.

These notes were later sold with the bank to be held by it in trust for the purpose of building a line of railway to such a point on the O. S. L. railway as Mr. Clark, C. E. & M. E. of Buffalo, should determine. This contracting engineer reported in favor of Wendell and against Eden, in Dec-1910 and this brought about all the trouble.

Mr. Clark claims that the company needed to pay for the survey and other expenses which he states is now due him to the extent of over $10,000.00.

As it is claimed that the company is insolvent Mr. Clark requests the court to declare a trust in said grade.

It is also claimed that it would be necessary to procure the ratification of the shareholders who attempted to transfer all of the assets of the company, especially when this transfer was for the express purpose of avoiding paying the debts of the company.

It is claimed that on December 17 1912, Judge Wallace handed down a decision which was later overruled by the contract let to Mr. Clark, and retained many other requests of these townsite directors. Since this time the company has refused to comply with this decision and Mr. Clark now takes this action.

It is said that prominent capitalists have recently been over the ground with Mr. Clark, between Hagerman and Wendell, with a view to building the line and these men are expected to return soon.

It is claimed by Mr. Clark that before the above said court decision was handed down and which dissolved an incorporated interest against him by the rival townsite faction, the new government at Washington was proposed to be organized, the company and building laws of the country in such a way that until this question was finally settled all financial interests took waiting attitude and no

NOVEL ADVERTISING PLAN

C. K. Macey, Boone-Twin Falls advertising.

That the people of the Twin Falls country are advertising their commodities extensively through mailing out samples of potatoes in small cartons to eastern hotels, restaurants and clubs, and that they are receiving good returns from such advertising as in each carton there is a circular about the Twin Falls country, is the report made by C. K. Macey, state agricultural inspector, who discussed the benefits received from such advertising and was shown numerous answers and also bills of fare from hotels in western cities showing that they served Idaho potatoes.

Mr. Macey is of the opinion that the apple and peach growers of this country should take the eye and mail out apples and peaches next fall as he believes it would be the most creditable advertising that could be done and multiplies an opportunity to see the kind of fruit grown here and compare it with that of their own and other countries.

While on his trip of inspection Mr.
Macey reports visiting one of the most monstrous orchards he has seen in the state. The orchard is located on the Snake river bottom west of Pomeroy and contains 400 acres, half in apples and half in peaches. The trees are set in regularly among large boulders and rocks, their trunks so large, boulders that the orchard cannot be cultivated except by using work in small sections, yet he reports the trees are well protected from the frost, the ground has no wind slopes and the trees are domestically raised and well cared for.

predicted, would be effected by Republicans and Progressives united as the Republican party and embracing the platform of Progressive doctrine.
 In dealing with the records of the Democratic administration, Senator Cummins asserted it was unnecessary to speak of congress.
 The president has for the time being obliterated that ancient and once powerful part of the government. Therefore when I speak of the Democratic administration I mean Woodrow Wilson. The overthrow of representative government does not seem to have excited any alarm, but the day will come when the country will understand better than it does how vital it is to preserve independence of legislative authority.
 The president passed the tariff law. The Republican tariff of 1902 was too high. We ought to have reduced it, but we did not and are now suffering the consequences of our folly. The fact that our tariff was much too high furnished no defense for the extraneous duty compound ignorance and indifference which this administration has fastened upon the country. It acknowledges no economic principles, but its wronging industries is in its rank, deliberate discrimination.
 The Panama toll exemption repeal probably will pass the senate, according to Senator Cummins.
 "There are two entirely distinct and independent questions involved in this controversy," asserted "The first concerns a domestic policy, and with it no foreign nation has a right to interfere; and we would be a craven people if we permitted even the suggestion of interference.
 "It is impossible for me to understand the intellectual process of those who insist that our contract with Great Britain defines us the essential privilege of regulating our domestic trade.
 To repeal the exemption clause under the message of the president and to meet the attitude which a foreign nation has assumed without a reservation of our power over coastwise shipping is to put the British construction upon the treaty forever. I am afraid that some of the consequences of that interpretation.
 "If it is the correct one, then it would have been far better if we had been contented with the night ante-price. It binds us to an obligation that a nation with the least sense of self-respect cannot and will not observe."
 The Republican defeat in the Senate for Cummins said, had been the result of the failure of some of the leaders to have the force of the rank and file of the party.
 "We suffered defeat and disaster," he said, "because some of the men clothed with the power of office refused to grapple with their problems. The unfair, unjust representation of the south and the overthrow of the primary laws were two of the great factors which brought about the disintegration which followed."

policy, but after a most careful study of the arguments for and against the exemption of tolls and lowering the debates on this measure, I feel that we are not bound by the terms of the treaty against exempting our own vessels from tolls and that the best interests of my constituents and the country at large require my voting against the repeal of the present law. The people of the western country have been looking forward with keen anticipation to the completion of the Panama canal, believing that water competition with the transcontinental railroads would make it possible to market their products with less expense and thus bring greater profit to the producers.
 A careful consideration of the many convictions that the provisions are not being violated by our instance that coastwise vessels shall pass through the canal free of tolls and in view of the fact that we constructed the canal with our own money at an expenditure of $400,000,000, upon land absolutely in our control for the benefit of our own people, I can find no good reason for not maintaining the exemption contract thereon. What I have the greatest respect for the opinions of President Wilson and Senators Root and Lodge, regarding the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, I cannot overlook the fact that just as intelligent and capable buyers and patriots, such as former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, former Secretary of State Knox, former Secretary of State Olney, under the Cleveland administration, former Senators Foraker of Ohio, Tamm of Minnesota and Turner of Washington, and the great leaders in the present congress, Speaker Clark, Mr. Underwood, and Mr. Mann, like the suggestion of the British government will be benefited by the charging of tolls to our coastwise vessels, not when the exemption of tolls will discriminate against them, but when the suggestion of the British government that the present law be repealed in an unwarranted manner with our domestic affairs which should not be tolerated.
