The idea of holding a community Christmas tree is an admirable one and should have the hearty support of every citizen and every church organization. While the Christmas exercises, held by the churches are attractive and bring joy to the hearts of the little folks in such churches, yet the spirit of Christmas is broader than any denominational creed or observance. Christmas typifies that spirit which today stands for all that is good in the world and for everything which civilization has accomplished in two thousand years. It is fitting that such spirit should be made plain to all the children—irrespective of creed or belief and this just what the community Christmas gathering will tend to do.

The coming winter will witness probably more suffering among the poor of this city than ever before, due to the scarcity of money among all classes of people. A great many of the people who will need help, will not, unless actually starving, make their needs known and for this reason the Associated Charities will have to be especially vigilant. There never has been a need in the past winters for which there was not a corresponding supply, but with the demands made upon the generous people for more than usual, the care of the least-aided should be made to rest on more shoulders. The whole citizenship of Twin Falls should respond this winter, no matter what sum may be the extent of any one's giving. Don't forget that some of the clothing, overgrown or discarded for one reason or another may be worth while in helping some one in real need. Don't forget that some slight sacrifice of your luxuries may be the means of existence to others.

REAL CHARITY OR CHEAP ADVERTISING.

Every year the great people of this city are asked for donations for charitable purposes and respond readily and generously in proportion to the needs of the recipients. The Times believes thoroughly in the good will and staunch Christian belief which prompts the giving and for that reason deems that gifts are given for that purpose only. However, on some occasions there have been people in this city who desire to place the true spirit of giving and pervade in upon the basis of "commercialism." They refer solemnly to the publicity given to the donors to the various charities.

GETTING OUR MONEY'S WORTH

IN EVERY transaction we expect to get our money's worth. When we buy merchandise from our local storekeepers we examine everything with the utmost care, we test for strength and look for quality. We discuss with the merchant the desirability and value of everything and after we have decided that we will effect a purchase we are convinced that we have obtained full value and that we can depend on our purchase as being what we want.

Then, again, if for any reason we have reason to be dissatisfied with that which we have bought we can talk it over with our merchant and any discrepancy will be readily adjusted.

This is the principle of all good business. The buyer meets the seller face-to-face and examines the goods before making the deal. The seller is responsible for his representations and the buyer can always find him and adjust any differences which may occur.

On the other hand there is the mail order method. We receive a book from the mail order house, illustrated with expensive pictures of various articles. The descriptions of these articles are always optimistic and gloriously pleasing. Our minds are impressed by the charming wording of the descriptions and the selection of adjectives creates in our minds a desire to possess these wonderful things.

All sorts of promises are made in the book or catalogue. We will be answered, the greatest possible consideration, we will be allowed all kinds of privileges, we can return the goods at the expense of the house, if not satisfactory, shipments will be made with promptness and dispatch, any damages in shipping will be adjusted at once, "Our Mr. So-and-So will give your orders his personal attention," etc.

We are flattered andajoiled by the clever wording of the catalogue and the statements made in the "fancy" person letters, such as follow up the catalogue. We are lured in that tiny spot of vanity which, though again, seems to be everywhere and to respond to the slightest touch.

We are allured by the prospect of obtaining such magnificent and desirable articles at such remarkably low (7) prices and we are flattered by the statement that Mr. So-and-So will give our order personal attention. We begin to believe ourselves to be "some-bodies" and we are inclined to swell up and look askance at our less fortunate townsmen who have not been singled out for such distinction as a letter, signed in person by Mr. So-and-So.

Therefore, we decide that we will send an order for something. We forget that we can go into the store of our own local So-and-So, whom we know and to whom we are perhaps responsible for past favors. But it is easy to forget all this in the happiness and exultation of having been singled out by the great mail order "boss" as a desirable person with whom to do business. SO WE SEND AN ORDER, CASH WITH IT, OF COURSE.

Then we wait for the article to come. More waiting. Then we write to the mail order "boss."

We get a succession of form letters in reply, but no merchandise. We wait a lot of time and patience and postage stamps and stationery. Finally the shipment arrives.

We are astounded. This hardly looks like the article we expected. So we write again. Then follows more correspondence. We are told to examine the article again thoroughly and compare the description with it. We do so.

Yes, the technical description is the same. BUT THE CLEVER STYLE IN WHICH IT IS WRITTEN HAS DELIBERATELY MISLED US. "The illustration has led us to believe that the picture was taken up and exaggerated for the sole purpose of misleading us."

We are stung. We could have gotten a far better value from our local storekeeper for the money. The lying letters we received from Mr. So-and-So were merely printed form letters and were probably never seen by the alleged signer, who is in Europe spending the dollars which we, and other similar dupes, have sent him.

But! Why will we persist in such foolishness? Our common sense should tell us better. But not probably we will do the same thing over again when we get the same sort of flattery and lying dope from another mail order house that has bought a list of names, counting ours, from the house which stung us.

YES, THEY WILL PASS OUR NAMES ALONG, ONE TO THE OTHER. WE HAVE PLACED OURSELVES ON RECORD AS BEING "SOME-BODIES." In the meantime we may go to our local dealer and buy the article we really need. He will guarantee it and, perhaps, give us credit for it if we need it.

LET US SUPPORT OUR LOCAL BUSINESS MEN. THEY ARE ENTITLED TO OUR TRADE AND WE KNOW WHAT TO EXPECT FROM THEM.

through the medium of papers which cater to commercialism. The person who gives for the sake of giving and for the good which the gift may accomplish, cares nothing for his name flared before the public. In fact, must resent the publicity against his motives. On the other hand, the person who gives solely because of his desire to attract well in the eyes of the world, expects publicity should promptly change his intention to advertising and not to charity. In the past two years there have appeared several attempts in one of the newspapers to turn commercialism the giving of the community and in each case the public (in its credit) has severely sat upon the attempt by a prompt failure to participate in the advertised matter. Charity—not only local, at home, but belongs at home and only to the innermost thoughts of the giver. Unless it comes under this class, it cannot be said to be true charity. Nor does it fulfill the true definition of charity given by the Master. The widow's mite and the rich man's donation, both—somehow—as measures of true and false giving.

OUR COMMERCIAL DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

The European war is to make our country rich and prosperous beyond belief—but not entirely, or even chiefly, by throwing into our hands the trade of America or of any foreign land. It is from our own people that the riches are to flow. Nor is this at all like the economic condition of the island whose inhabitants made their living, by taking in each other's washings. The mechanism of civilization is by George H. Cushing, who writes in "Prosperity for America," in The Technical World Magazine (Chicago, November). What is to happen, according to Mr. Cushing, is that we now buy from Europe. It is our own trade that we are to capture from England and Germany. Commercial America, says Mr. Cushing, was given its biggest shock in fifty years when it suddenly realized, as a result of this war, how completely it has been dependent upon other countries for many of its necessities. It had supposed that the shoe was on the other foot. Shipping became chaotic when we learned that we might have been producing those things ourselves, if we had only thought of it. He goes on:

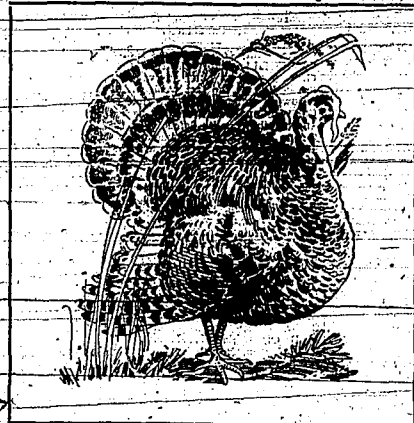

"Wounded in its pride, this country has at last awakened to its opportunity. The story of this awakening one hand will make one of the biggest chapters in America's history. I can now tell only of the United States how alone it can not clothe them in the detail of machinery and organization which must come soon."

"It is to go far too minutely into the chemistry of steel-making to tell why this is so, but it is true that when the war began, the steel business of the United States came very near to stopping. One of the elements in Bessemer steel is ferromanganese. We had obtained this mainly from Europe—or Germany, to be exact. With fresh supplies that our own manufacturers on hand, we were in a bad way. Then we got our cargo and arranged for others from South America. This eased the steel mind and established closer relations with our neighbor to the south, but it did not save the wound to the national pride. In fact, we were stung to the quick when we learned from the Department of the Interior that these elements are available in quantity in this country and have been all along. Our steel-makers give the assurance that, before the war is over, they will have developed the deposits which yield those elements. This will make for the real independence and hence the greater riches of this country. This is the beginning of our home program.

"Another shock to commercial and self-contained America came when it discovered that while the tin can is the emblem of cheapness, and while tin is the foundation of some of our richest industries, we mine no tin. All of it that we have and use comes from the other side." The supply was interrupted for a time and we were in a panic. I know of one man who went away on a vacation and returned to find himself richer by twenty-five thousand dollars because he had a stock of tin-plate on which the price had risen. It was with a sensation akin to mine that we learned that we have the here and should have been working in it years ago. To wipe out this national disgrace—in this a commercial sense—I am told that enterprising citizens of Cincinnati have said they intend to produce our tin. That will add to our riches. Surely this element in the coal we either burn to make heat or spill it into the air as smoke. One railroad manager told me recently that it will be necessary to carbonize 3,500,000 tons of coal to get enough graphite to preserve the railroad ties used by his lines, which make up one of the big Western railroad systems."

So soon as these and dozens of similar facts become known, Mr. Cushing believes we begin to get all sorts of suggestions of coal-by-products that are going to be produced in the United States. One engineer in Chicago, who has invented a coke oven, will reclaim creosote oil from coal. Another engineer in Milwaukee has worked for years to persuade gas companies to put in apparatus that will make dyes. He now expects his plan to succeed. A group of farmers will build a series of coke ovens in eastern Indiana and will—in addition to coke and gas—produce the fertilizer which is so readily reclaimed from coal. Also, a big chemical house in New York has made even more sweeping statements as to what it intends to do. Literary Digest.

"For example, all of the ammonia over by-products of coal, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and Cleveland, which great vats of gorgeous colors into the air daily and they send all the way to Germany to buy a supply. I found also that creosote oil is a by-product of coal. This is used to preserve wood and adds from 200 to 300 per cent to its life. We buy be-between fifty million and sixty million gallons of it each year from Germany. This element in the coal we either burn to make heat or spill it into the air as smoke. One railroad manager told me recently that it will be necessary to carbonize 3,500,000 tons of coal to get enough graphite to preserve the railroad ties used by his lines, which make up one of the big Western railroad systems."

A Colossal Act—Mantell's Marionette Hippodrome and Fairland Extravaganza
Something New and Elaborate

Never before has a similar idea been presented that equals Mantell's Marionettes. Every scene, figure and action, entirely original and the effort of several years work. An outburst of comical situations and trick features that has returned from the foreign countries. It appeared in the leading cities of the United States a few years ago and is undoubtedly one of the greatest features in vaudeville today. This attraction will appear at the

MAINTAIN A SUPPLY OF SOIL MOISTURE

Currents and Gooseberries Improved by Cultivation.

(By M. N. EDGERTON.)

The purpose of maintaining tillage is for perpetuation or maintenance of desirable soil conditions, secured through preparative tillage.

The one should follow the other closely, else much of the good result secured from the first will be lost. The object is to prepare that ideal moist and mellow condition character- istic of the ideal plant and seed bed.

How to maintain a maximum supply of soil moisture is the greatest of the problems to be solved by the fruit grower.

However, it is only through the tilling season that the moisture prob- lem assumes a serious aspect.

We have proved to our satisfaction that in case of the growth and de- velopment of fruit plants are con- sidered, tillage can be made to con- serve moisture sufficient to promote a satisfactory growth.

Time, and again, we have secured ideal growth in case and plant, not- withstanding severe, protracted droughts, just by exercising watchful- ness and persistency in maintaining the earth mellow.

There is a continuous upward move- ment of soil moisture. It is caused by the laws of equilibrium.

If the supply of soil water among soil grains is greater at one point, wa- ter from these congested points flows toward those points where there are less amounts, until there is uniform- ity in the supply.

The manner in which water is evo- rated from all surface exposed to the sun and air currents is well known, and it is through the working of these two principles that soil moisture is so quickly depleted when no measures are taken to prevent the loss.

To prevent this depletion of soil moisture through surface evaporation, the surface of the ground must be pro- tected from the sun and air, or the upward flow of soil moisture inter- rupted before the surface is reached.

The former is accomplished by cov- ering the surface with straw or other material, the latter by stirring the sur- face soil grains, which break up the interstices aforementioned, checking the upward flow at the point where the undisturbed and loose soil grains meet.

So long as capillary movement of soil moisture is held in check by this layer of loose soil there can be but little surface evaporation.

To preserve an ideal earth mellow, however, requires frequent stirrings, depending upon the character of the soil.

As a rule the surface soil should be stirred once in seven days and particular care must be taken to cul- tivate after each shower, as soon as the condition of the soil will permit.

Even if the shower consists of but a few drops of rain it will be suf- ficient to form an earth crust, and this should be broken at once.

The conservation of soil moisture is but one of the results secured through efficient tillage, for all weed growth is held in check and ideal soil conditions maintained favorable to soil activity and development of the root system of plants.

How deeply shall we cultivate? The strawberry is a pronounced surface feeder—so to speak, hence cultivation should not exceed two inches in depth for the plant must fill the soil full of its roots and rootlets if it is to make good at fruiting time.

The seeds of bush fruits reach deep into the soil, hence in their culture it is advisable to cultivate more deep- ly than with the strawberry, say four inches.

In the growing of bush fruits, the grower may maintain the dust-mulch through the entire season, and by this measure good crops are secured, though a drought may be prevailing through the fruiting season.

Some growers advocate the suspen- sion of tillage operations during the blooming time, which in our opinion is a mistake.

The theory is that dust particles, thus set in motion come in contact with the plants of the blossoming season, thus with complete pollenization.

We have noticed no such ill results and we begin cultivation in the spring just as soon as soil conditions will permit, and never let up in our ef- forts until the harvest is over.

Of much importance do we believe the work that we would cultivate by moonlight rather than neglect the plantation during the blooming and fruiting season.

With glassberries, however, this is impracticable, as the strawberry blossoms and fruit are very close to the ground, where they are subject to con- tact from dust and soil particles.

SOME GOOD THINGS TO KEEP IN MIND

Far Better to Whistle When Things Go Little Bit Wrong.—It Saves Trouble.

To see that the harness on your work team fits well, and does not gall or chafe.

To be sure that every strap is safe before you start to work. Often a bad accident is caused by the breaking of the harness in a bad place.

To see that the team gets plenty of time to eat their noon meal.

To give the horses plenty of water on hot days.—They get as thirsty as you do.

To speak quietly, yet firmly, and to give the same order always in the same way. When the horse knows what you mean he will obey you.

To give the team a breathing spell once in a while, especially just before and after an unusually hard piece of work.

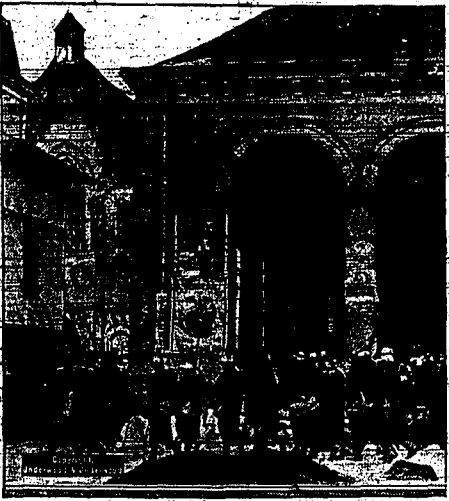

To give the horses a good rub-down daily, to keep their skins cool and itchy.

To make them rest like you.

And above all, not to "tear up the earth"—it things go a little bit wrong. Far better whistle. It saves trouble.

A Thanksgiving Absurdity

The crimes committed under the cloak of honor are equaled only by the absurdities put out under the guise of advertising. Poor old Thanksgiving is now made the excuse for these florid harangues and the trap is baited with REAL LIVE TURKEYS and 25% DISCOUNTS. Thus we harken back to the falls of three and four years ago when most main street fronts were plastered with sale signs; "barkers" were placed in some doors—vaudeville and comedy were played in print and behind counters in the name of advertising and ended in the requiem of some participants. It makes the stranger think Twin Falls is in decay

==LISTEN:

This Is The Biggest Year We've Ever Had

Something Dropped

When we announced three months ago that we would inaugurate a new policy—pricing our high grade merchandise at a price equal and lower to those asked for inferior goods, we did something. Competitors who had made the "high price store" talk about us found out it wouldn't hold up—the public has found out the truth—our coats and suits don't require turkey bait to sell them—they're not that kind, but say—just took at every stock in town and you'll see why we are selling ours while the other fellow turkey trots and discounts.

Coat and Suit Offerings

We won't impose on your judgment any premium offers on coats and suits. Look at the styles and values offered you elsewhere—premiums and discounts thrown in and then compare and you'll know where to get the really up-to-date stuff at reasonable prices. Get wise.

Thanksgiving Linens

The Truth==Read It

That is sure a real war and an awful one, but also awfully convenient for bunk advertising. Listen—some lines of linen have made advances and all lines will probably advance more but the largest shipment of linens ever made to America was made since the war began and the big Irish and Scotch looms are still turning out linens with slight diminution. Supplies are in fair shape. To be sure we protected ourselves against any raise and we court comparison on prices. We are showing linens at prices made on no war basis. Its fair to look around—see what every store offers—compare others' 50c, 75c and $1.00 with ours—put them side by side.

BOOTH MERCANTILE COMPANY

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOR

Quarantine Placed on All States Where Cattle Disease Prevails.

The following self-explanatory proclamation, placing a quarantine on all states on which the government has or will quarantine for livestock, has been issued by Governor Holmes.

Whereas, it is my duty under the laws of Idaho, upon recommendation of the state veterinary surgeon, to issue proclamation prohibiting the importation into this state of animals affected with or exposed to any dangerous, contagious or communicable disease, and

Whereas, the state veterinary surgeon has recommended the issuance of a quarantine proclamation forbidding the importation of any kind of livestock into this state from any other state which is now under quarantine or may be placed under quarantine by the federal government because of foot and mouth diseases.

Therefore, I, John M. Haines, governor of Idaho, upon such recommendation and owing to the fact that I feel reasonably well satisfied that foot and mouth diseases among livestock is prevalent to a relatively large degree in states quarantined by the federal government at the present time or will be prevalent in those states that may be quarantined by the federal government in the future, because of foot and mouth disease, do hereby order that no livestock from states now under quarantine by the federal government or from states that may be placed under quarantine by the federal government, on account of foot and mouth disease, shall enter the state of Idaho.

All persons are hereby ordered and warned not to ship or bring into this state any livestock from the above described area. This proclamation shall be in full force from date to December 1, 1914.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state of Idaho to be affixed hereto at the city of Boise the capital of said state, this, 6th day of November, one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.

Governor.

HIGHEST COURT FAVORS STATE

Holds Against Twin Falls Canal Company in Important Case.

Within two days after his return from the east, where he appeared before the supreme court of the United States as representative of the attorney general's office of the state of Idaho, Captain E. G. Davis, received word Monday that his plea had been successful and that the suit of the State of Idaho against the Twin Falls Canal company, appealed by that company, had been dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Whether or not the company has the right to deny water to any part of the tract which it has contracted to supply, is the question involved in the case. In each Carey act segregation the state has certain lands set aside for itself. The company agreed under its contract with the state to water this whole segregation. It found that it did not have sufficient water to supply the whole segregation for its "contraction" and "refuge" to allow any to H. T. West, a settler on state land within the tract. The state took up West's protest and secured a favorable decision from the state supreme court.

On a writ of error, the company appealed to the federal body on the ground that a federal question was involved in that if it was forced to furnish water to all lands, the Carey act settlers would be insufficiently supplied and that, therefore, an interpretation of the Carey act was required.

It was the contention of the state that the "water" was one which had nothing to do with the Carey act itself, but only with the contract between the state and the irrigation company. The court so held and dismissed the case.—Statesman.

Farmers—and Seed Growers, Attention

The annual convention and seed show of the Idaho State Seed Association will be held in Twin Falls, Dec. 1, 2 and 3. Every farmer is urged to bring in his best fifteen (15) pound samples of seed; wheat, oats, barley, peas, beans, clover, etc., and leave them in the office of the Fruit and Potato Growers' building. The money prizes are well worth competing for. As seed growing is destined to become one of the most profitable industries on the tract, it is hoped that every farmer will arrange to attend and take part in the meetings.

Signed, E. V. BERG, Secretary.

If you are in need of anything, Times Want Ad. will fill your want.

JEWELRY—THE GIFT OF GIFTS

THE WHAT-SHALL-IT-BE QUESTION

A great variety of different articles are useful and desirable as Christmas gifts. As a matter of fact, most anything at all makes an acceptable gift.

But in all the realm of gift-giving and gift-receiving, nothing EVER can carry the same claim as jewelry.

It appeals to the artistic sense more than anything else. Jewelry is the most "christianity" gift of all. And being a personal adornment, it is almost daily in use, hence it more frequently brings to mind the giver.

This ad. is to tell you that this store this year, right NOW, has an interesting variety of articles just suited to the coming Holiday season.

We have gathered from all over, the most complete and desirable showing of novelties and staple goods that we have ever had.

We take pleasure in inviting you people to examine our stock.

We promise to interest you, if you only look.

Be a visitor.

WONDERFUL FLORAL RESULTS

Twin Falls Floral Company, Shopping Beautiful Chrysanthemums.

For the past four years the Twin Falls Floral company, with its greenhouses located a short distance north of the city, has been the objective of a host of amateur florists and those who love beautiful flowers. Each year has witnessed a marked improvement in the quality of the products of the greenhouses, under the expert care of Mr. Lundahl. But this year has been remarkably successful along all lines and the scores upon roses of varied and beautifully colored chrysanthemums now in full bloom at the greenhouse is well worth a trip on the part of anyone who delights in beautiful flowers.

Mr. Lundahl is always willing and anxious to show people through the greenhouses, taking a great amount of pride in the development of everything under his care.—Adv.

(From the Flor Journal)
Mrs. William Buice is visiting relatives and friends at Caldwell.
The school holiday school was dismissed and the election was held in the school house.
In the new town of Clover, we understand that the school is being built in the course of construction.
F. McIntyre has purchased from Elmer Haas a lot on Midway avenue and is now erecting a house thereon.
The eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Higginbotham had an intention to fall and break her leg Tuesday afternoon.
Mrs. Earl O. Walters returned Saturday last from an extended visit to her old home in Ohio. She was glad to get back to "good old sunny southern Idaho."

Audrey McIner very pleasantly entertained about twenty of her friends at her home Sunday evening. Several different hallows games were played and a delicious luncheon served by the hostess.
The new residence of Mrs. Carey, being built by Mr. John Weaver, is fast assuming the proportions of a fine building. Mr. Weaver is making a reputation for himself as getting the buildings up in a hurry.
Mr. and Mrs. John Sommer expect to move onto the George Simpson ranch near Kimberly in a week or so. We desire to lose John from Twin Falls, but our loss is Kimberly's gain.
A large crowd attended the sale of Sumner Musser's property. It was that he had a fine sale. Mr. Musser expects to attend school at Nampa where he will prepare himself for business. Mr. Musser is a very successful man in this grand work.
Lots of potatoes are being shipped these days. The price is low but where the yield is large, good returns are being made. J. P. Huch informed the Journal that his potatoes at the low price of $1.00 per bushel are an acre.

A deal was made on Monday of this week whereby G. W. Wilcox, owner of the Mullen branch shop, Mr. Wilcox expects to leave the place of this popular place the same courteous treatment has been the custom with the past management.
It is gratifying to note the work that the board is having done on the streets of the village. It is proven that Mr. Allen is the man for the job and we think that he is doing the work of the village would be a credit to any man. We also notice that he keeps the buns on the move and is not doing the work of the village when it is offered him to start him moving. The board have also employed Mr. Holmes to do what repair work that needs to be done on the town hall building. Mr. Holmes is a very good man and is being paid for the recent men who put in the first bunch of walks in the village.

The public schools of Elko have been closed for the present on account of the small pox so prevalent among the school children. The only thing that gives the school every precaution they can to the end that the disease may be headed off and that small pox may be wiped out in the community. Some of the children must be done if we are to get rid of the condition this now confronts us.
A subscription paper is being circulated among our people asking for money for the poor Belgians who have been rendered homeless and suffering untold misery because of the war. If there was ever an occasion for a liberal minded people to do something for suffering humanity, the condition as it exists in Belgium is one of them. The Journal is certain that it has been interesting for some months or so, because of so much politics. However, this is a condition under our government that must be met. Those who take no interest in politics the paper seems "bun." But now that the clouds have passed away people will again become interested and take interest along the old line of politics.

Mention should be made of the excellent progress being made in the phone company is making. Mr. Potter has just completed the construction of a new line that runs southeast of Elko to the switch of Godwin and Kamsa where they have just completed the construction of large potato cellars and receiving stations. The line brings the Flor business men into direct connection with a class of persons that heretofore have been going to Twin Falls for all their needs and many of them had never been to Flor before. This only goes to prove that the Flor business men are doing a good deal of business. Even when doing this and other lines, the company has remained up their business and the Flor business men are doing a good deal of business. The company was heavily in debt and without credit even for postage stamps, all of which was being overhauled by the Flor business men. Mr. Potter is a capable and a director.

SECOND RANCH IN SIZE

Holdings of Utah Construction Company Beyond the Ordinary.

Elko county among other things, contains within its area of more than 18,000 square miles what is claimed to be the second largest tract of land in the world, embracing a rectangular tract about 66 miles north and south by 40 miles east and west. This is not the full size of the tract, but the tract extends north into Idaho for a distance of some 20 miles farther, making its extreme length north and south in the neighborhood of 86 miles, or approximately 3,540 square miles in all. In other words, this Elko county ranch is larger than several of the eastern states of the Union.

Originally the property was owned by the Shuck-Harrell stock interests, who established the famous shoeless brand still used there. Then came the reign of the Vinard Land and Stock company, by which, under the great ranch is perhaps the best known. Today, the property has fallen into the hands of the Utah Construction company, of Ogden, Utah, who actually own 180,000 acres, and who control approximately 2,500,000 acres of land, embraced by the ranching interest in the northwestern corner of Nevada, adjoining the Utah line, and, as above stated, running over well into Idaho.

Copper Camp on Tract.
Situating within the boundaries of the ranch is a copper mine, the Contact, San Jacinto tract, comprising a cultivated area of some 8,000 acres, is the seat of government for the ranching interest, and the superintendent, Thomas R. Beason. Here are located 33 ranch properties and here is San Jacinto postoffice, distant 25 miles from the nearest railroad, which is the Oregon Short Line in Idaho.

Sixteen smaller ranches, each with its cultivated area, so as to constitute the ranch as a whole. Thirteen of these are in Nevada, with the three in Idaho. As though fearful of the 13 holdings, one of the Nevada ranches has been consolidated with another, the two now being known by the name of Tacoma ranch, so that at this time there are actually just 12 of these ranches in Elko county, with 16 as the total count.

Some of the separate ranches are as follows: San Jacinto, described above; Bridge, adjoining the San Jacinto, one employee, 200 acres cultivated; Vinard, one employee, 200 acres cultivated; Hubbard, one employee, 250 acres cultivated; H. D. two employees, 1,500 acres cultivated; Lower H. D. one employee, 200 acres cultivated; 12-mile, one employee, 200 acres cultivated; Crittenden, one employee, 250 acres cultivated; Gambel, one employee, 200 acres cultivated; Tacoma, one employee regularly stationed thereon, 4,000 acres cultivated; Hancheco Grande, two employees, 300 acres cultivated; Point ranch, 160 acres in cultivation; Rock Creek and House Creek ranch, about 200 acres in cultivation.

The number of acres traversed the great ranch. The Little Salmon, whose waters the Utah Construction company control, for a distance of 20 miles runs through the Vinard and San Jacinto. It is a stream of about the same size as the Humboldt river at Elko. The Thousand Springs, appearing and disappearing river, is controlled solid for 72 miles, and on it are situated all of the bridges crossing the bridge ranch belt on Shoshone creek, and the Rancho Grande on Goose creek, the latter being controlled over 20 miles of its course and being about twice the volume of Lamolite creek, near Elko.

The country comprising the vast tract is roughly flat, but not rugged for grazing purposes on the hillsides, which are in reality the slopes of mighty mountains smoothed and rounded into gentle hills and dales by the processes of the centuries. One bold peak, does, however, rear its mighty mass toward the heavens. It is China Mountain, more than 10,000 feet high, and the only big dome in any part of the ranch. The mountain is really part of the great mountain range of Nevada, Utah, and Idaho. Just south of the tract is Pilot peak, the highest point in Elko county, and the second highest mountain in the state of Nevada, 12,400 feet high, or about a thousand feet higher than Mt. Hood, in Oregon. The mountain in Nevada is in White Pine county, not far to the south.

The number of cattle now running on the vast range of this ranch is estimated to be approximately more than 35,000 head, with also 15 bands of sheep, comprising 40,000 head. There are three cow outfits, owned by some 25 men. The total number of employees throughout the great ranch is close to 150—Elko Free Press.
