NEW AUTO FUEL MAKING GOOD

McKeesport, Pa., Nov. 26. — John Anderson, of McKeesport, Pa., has invented a new fuel for automobiles. The fuel which is called Zoline is expected to revolutionize the production of automobile power. Mr. Anderson is now conducting a test of the fuel at the Indianapolis Speedway under the direction of its management, where a stock car began the grind today and made an average of about 60 miles an hour, completing the first lap of the run. The remainder will be run tomorrow.

The test is not for speed, but to learn the lasting qualities of the fuel and whether the chemicals will be harmful to engines.

The test is being made with a view of manufacturing the fuel at once if it is proved satisfactory. Tomorrow after the second day's run the engine of the car will be taken apart to learn if there are any injurious effects from the chemicals. The test today was highly satisfactory.

The new fuel, which consists of nine-tenths kerosene mixed with a chemical solution is said to cost less than 2 cents a gallon.

The fuel was mixed at the pits under observation of the American Automobile Association officials and the actual running time for the 500-mile grind was nine hours 22 minutes and 22.810 seconds.

Those in charge of the test today declared that better results would be obtained tomorrow if weather conditions were more favorable. It is asserted that Zoline will make a car so fast that gasoline.

John Anderson, of McKeesport, Pa., the inventor, recently was paid $3,000 by the government for his discovery of a method of toughening armor plate. Among others interested in the new produce are: Carl G. Fisher, president of the Ford Motor company; James A. Michener, president of the General Motors company; Roy Chapman, of the Hudson company; A. G. Newberry, of the National; Howard C. Marmon, of the Nordyke & Marmon company. — Indianapolis Gazette Times.

MARRIED MEN LIVE LONG

Statistical Expert Has Proved That Husbands Are Better Risks Than Bachelors.

Dr. Hans Curdiss, the German statistical expert, has discovered a new "barrier" between men and women. After studying the statistics of deaths and divorces, he declares that men want to marry long life they should marry; if women want to grow to a good old age they should remain spinsters.

He admits that his conclusions can be regarded with greater certainty when the city of Berlin publishes its proposed statistical tables of widows, widowers, divorced persons and persons who secured separations at various ages, but he says that tables already available show that married women die sooner than the unmarried, whereas married men live longest.

Statistics show that the fatal age for all males, married and unmarried, is about forty-four, whereas for the married men it lies between fifty-five and sixty.

The fatal age for all women is about fifty, ten years more for unmarried women, and nearly ten years less for married.

Thus, if Doctor Curdiss's statistics are to be believed, the woman who remains single may expect 20 years more life than her married sister.

Marriages dissolved by the death of the wife last, on an average, ten to fifteen years, those dissolved by the husband's death usually last 20 to 25 years.

According to this the number of widowers in the average community is always considerably in excess of the number of widows. Interference with the interesting questions which will be answered by the elaborate statistics now being collected in Berlin.

HAS A BACKBONE OF STEEL

Broken Vertebrae of Man's Spinal Column Replaced in Most Unusual Operation.

As the result of one of the most remarkable surgical operations, Frank Harrington, aged forty-four of Ventnor, near Binghamton, N. Y., will hereafter be known as the man with a steel backbone. A steel tube, joined to make it as nearly as possible like the vertebrae of the spinal column, replaced the broken vertebrae which were crushed by a fall from a scaffold.

Several weeks ago Harrington tripped and fell to the ground, landing on his back. It was found that the lower and middle portions of the spinal column had been crushed and the resulting pressure on the spinal cord had paralyzed his legs. It was not believed that he would be able to survive, but he was taken in the hospital. Dr. C. C. Wilson, W. H. Wilson and R. D. Crozier finally decided upon an operation in an effort to save his life.

As a preliminary the surgeons removed the pieces of the broken vertebrae, and then a steel tube was inserted into the portion of the spine removed. They then ordered a steel tube about three feet long, shaped like the spine, with flexible joints to correspond to the vertebrae, and having that every nerve branching from the spinal cord should be in its proper place. Harrington was placed in a plaster cast. He has improved so much that he is now able to move his legs in the bed and the surgeons believe that he will entirely recover and be able to walk as well as ever.

Not Fated to Commit Suicide.

The tragic intentions of a married couple named Bliss have caused some commotion. This time he is in Paris, France, by the results of their repeated attempts to commit suicide. M. Bliss started by trying to hang himself in the cellar, but the rope was not strong enough to carry out his wishes and, finally, he was dropped back on the floor.

Mme. Bliss, deeply shocked by her husband's act, in despair, proceeded to do herself with a similar result. The couple then tried to commit suicide by drinking poison, but the poison was not strong enough to carry out their wishes and, finally, they were dropped back on the floor.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

City and County School Superintendents in Boise.

The third annual convention of city and county school superintendents met in Boise, November 19, 20 and 21. The superintendent of public instruction called the meeting early this year so that the legislative matters might be discussed and conclusions reached prior to the state board of education for their recommendation to the legislature. In numbers attending, in interest and enthusiasm, the meeting was a record breaker. All save five county superintendents (who were detained by illness), a large number of city superintendents, and a number of county superintendents elected and representatives of the state educational institutions were present.

Some weeks previous to the meeting, committees had been appointed to present important matters of legislation and a circular letter had been sent to all education supervisors of the state, presenting these points and asking for suggestions and criticism. In a state so widely diversified as Idaho, most careful consideration was given immediately in touch with the school work must be given to determine what is best for the schools of the state. The convention acted as a clearing house for problems toward which the state should work in the future, and recommendations for changes in school law that are needed for the present.

The important subjects were: "High School Problems," presented by Supt. Crandall of Idaho Falls; "Certification of Teachers," by Supt. Kent of Idaho Falls; "County Unit," by Supt. Redfield of Nez Perce county; "School Revenue," by Supt. Siders of Pocatello; "Course of Study," by Supt. Crandall of Idaho Falls.

The convention recommended that some plan of county organization of schools in place of district organization be drawn up by the state board of education, according to the certification of teachers referred to the state board of education, and an advisory board composed of teachers. This would reverse the statutory body of fifteen members of technical details and save much time of the legislators.

The convention emphasized the need of state aid and in the high school work, they requested the state board of education to plan for a high school director or visitor.

Much interest was shown by a community high school bill, prepared as a substitute and extension of the present rural high school law. No final action was taken on this.

Endorse State Board of Education.
The convention went on record by unanimous vote in the following resolution: "Resolved, by this convention that we commend State Commissioner Dr. E. O. Snodgrass and the state board of education for their efforts to raise the status of education in Idaho and that we pledge them our support."

In appreciation of the efforts of the retiring superintendent of public instruction, they also passed the following:

school child of $31,000. The richest district in the state has an assessed valuation of $47,000 for every child of school age in that district.

Most of the states that are as progressive as Idaho have a state tax; for example, in Washington, the state contributes a sum equal to $10 for every child of school age, and the counties raise an equal amount. This makes the district tax very light. The convention recommended that the state levy a small tax, enough to make the state contribution from about $200 per child to the present amount of the interest fund to $5.00 per child. Also that the county levy instead of being from 14 to 6 mills, a very uncertain amount, be fixed at an amount equal to $15.00 per child of school age. At present the county commissioners fix the levy with a legal limit; presently it is often brought to bear on them to fix the minimum levy where the interests of the school demand the maximum.

Not Increase of Cost but Better Distribution of Burden.

These recommendations do not involve an increase in the total expenditure for schools, but effect a more equitable distribution of the burden. As it is now, some counties and some districts have far more than their share of taxable property, especially of railroad and other corporate property; while others are poverty stricken and find it impossible to maintain decent schools.

The convention elected Supt. J. M. Markel, Buhl, as president; Supt. I. C. Eggers, Coeur d'Alene, vice-president; and Miss Harriet Wood, Fremont county, secretary.

WAR TAX BEGINS

New Law Taxing Telephone Users Is Now in Force.

(Special to the Times)
Denver, Nov. 30.—The first taxing effects of the European war will be felt in the small war tax by telephone users, according to the announcement made today by the United States Internal Revenue Department. The new federal revenue tax on telephone and telegraph messages goes into effect December 1st all over the country, and a government tax of one cent will be collected for every message amounting to fifteen cents or over.

Officials of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company, operating in the seven mountain states, have been busy for the past month notifying exchanges in all parts of the system of the manner in which the tax is to be collected and turned over to the government. Notices have been sent to each of the 250,000 subscribers in the system and certain retaining the provision of the new law are to be posted in every pay station. According to the law, all long distance messages and short distance messages over or are taxed one cent from private telephones or from public pay stations. Toll calls from private telephones will be collected by the company and taxed in a lump sum on the monthly bill. Pay station customers will be required to keep a receipt for each message of the telephone when their bill is made—there will be no tax on local messages where no toll charge is made.

The effects of the new law will be interesting in this western country, where the number of pay stations in circulation is proportionately small. According to statistics of the United States Mint in Denver, all pennies are coined in Philadelphia and shipped through the local mint and substation for distribution. No shortage of pennies is anticipated, as the banks throughout the country have been supplied in the last few weeks.

In some cases, according to the officials of the telephone company, the cost of collecting the tax from the public pay stations will exceed the tax itself, but the new law is stringent and requires the collection to be made on every call.

EDUCATORS PLAN IMPROVEMENT

New Course of Study of the State Approved.

Prof. Walter R. Siders has returned from the conference of the county and city superintendents held in Boise last week. Prof. Siders was chairman of the convention and brings back the report of many beneficial resolutions adopted by the members. The convention recommended that for passage at the next session, the twenty-five and eighty of the leading educators of the state were present and some of the more vital necessities of the educational system of Idaho were taken under advisement.

One of the most important recommendations passed was to raise the minimum school term in Idaho from five to seven months. Another matter of importance discussed was that of the qualifications of teachers. Heretofore there has been from eight to ten pages of hard and fast rules on the statute books to which the teachers must conform and even with this it is entirely inadequate. The recommendation agreed upon was to place the latter qualification in the hands of the board of education who should study the conditions and depend largely upon their best judgment as to the fitness of applicants.

Idaho being a new state and receiving teachers from so many eastern states, presents harder problems along these lines than does more settled territories.

Subjects taken under advisement were: High school problems; certification of teachers; county unit; school revenues, course of study, and additional problems and questions. A committee was appointed to make any recommendations it deemed necessary in regard to the course of study of the state.

After taking three days for consideration it returned with the report and no improvement could be made, which is rather flattering to Prof. Siders, who is the author of the plan.

Taxation for the school funds received much attention and it was finally decided to work along the county unit plan. In brief this plan provides for the raising of funds by taxation levied as a state tax, and distributed on the basis of per capita of school census. An illustration may be seen in the fact that while Clear Lake, an average school district, has a population of 17,129, per school student, Casaca county has but 1,823. The proposed method equalizes the burden throughout the state.

Another important change recommended was that a county board of education be appointed and the county schools be run on the same plan.

that the schools of the different wards in the city are run. This county board will then have the power of electing the county superintendents included in this last recommendation was that this question be put to the voters of the county for final decision.

Another recommendation which passed was that instead of raising the school funds on a tax of a certain number of persons at the aggregate number of necessary to operate the schools be estimated and the tax be so levied as to raise a definite amount. It was also recommended to help the wealth of the state to help maintain community high schools.

A permanent organization was organized and standing committees appointed to meet current problems. Prof. Siders was chosen chairman of the standing committee of the raising of revenue. Pocatello Tribune.

WHY WISCONSIN

EXCELLENCE IN DAIRYING

When an attempt is made to connect with the growth and development of the resources of a state there is danger that it may be too exclusive as to be fair. In the case of Wisconsin, however, there are certain outstanding men whom all recognize as having been the pioneers in dairying and the builders of the solid foundations upon which has been erected a superstructure of which the sons and daughters of the state are justly proud. It is no measure to be considered that the men featured in the accompanying illustration of Wisconsin's exhibit at the national are the only men who stand out prominently in the development of the dairy resources of the state, but they are representative.

For those interested in following the leading men on the exhibit that does not show an clouds in the illustration we give the following, the number preceding the quotation referring to the chart as numbered:

1. Hiram Smith, the first dairy school in America, the result of his agricultural thought.
2. W. A. Henry, former dean of the College of Agriculture.
3. The first dairy school in America at Wisconsin.
4. Wisconsin's present dairy school.
5. Geo. McKernan, for 25 years superintendent of Wisconsin Farm Institutes.

6. Dr. Stephen M. Babcock, the first Babcock test, and the modern Babcock test. By means of the Babcock test, invented and contributed to the dairy world by Dr. Babcock, dairymen have been developed from one of the most haphazard industries to an exact and attractive business enterprise.

8. A cheese factory and a creamery. Wisconsin has one-sixth of all creameries and more than half of all cheese factories in the United States. The enforcement of wise dairy laws has established a reputation second to none. 9. Wisconsin leads all states in butter production. Makes over 50 per cent of the nation's cheese. Cheese and butter second in quality to none. Value of dairy products nearly equal to that of gold mined in the United States. Butterfat sold at one to two cents more a pound than in any other of the central states. Dairy cows on 50 per cent of all improved farms. Dairy farms always more prosperous than grain farms.

10. Dr. F. H. King, pioneer in construction of silos and better barns. The 45,000 silos in Wisconsin, more than in any other state, insure against drought in summer and provide succulent food in winter.

11. Type of cows which makes Wisconsin wealthy.

12. Ex-Governor W. D. Hoard has been the ideal and inspiration of dairymen in Wisconsin and every other state.

Dairy stores, feed and feed stores, producers are the better halves of many herds in Wisconsin. 14. Wisconsin shares with the other states of the greatest dairy region in America, a climate that is tempered by the Great Lakes. Summer and winter seasons are adapted to dairymen and the production of cheeses and other products of quality.

FARMER FATALLY SHOT

Was Carrying Weapon on Hay Ride When It Slipped.

Frank Nelthouse, a dry land farmer, was brought into Minidoka today with his left shoulder almost blown off as a result of the accidental discharge of a loaded shot gun. He was on a hay rake about four miles from home when the gun which he had with him slipped. In endeavoring to catch the weapon and keep it from falling to the ground, it became entangled with the teeth of the rake and the entire load went into his arm. The injured man then rode a mile and a quarter to the home of Fred Blate for assistance. He was immediately brought to town to await the arrival of a coast-bound passenger train No. 4. In the meantime, Nelthouse was kept to relieve the sufferer and to keep up heart action, which was very weak because of loss of blood. On arriving at American Falls Mr. Nelthouse was speedily taken to the hospital and amputation was performed. But before they were able to get him free from the influence of the anesthetic, the patient expired.

The deceased was well known in and around Minidoka, having resided on a farm north of town for several years. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife in this country and four brothers and three sisters in Austria-Hungary. —Shoshone Journal.
