Asks for State Wide Prohibition January 1, 1916

PRESENTS REPORT ON CONDITION OF TREASURER'S OFFICE

Makes Many Recommendations to the Legislature for Cutting Expenses of State Government

Recommends that state-wide prohibition amendment be submitted and that a law be enacted prohibiting the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Idaho after January 1, 1916. Urges that the amended report on conditions in the state treasurer's office and recommends that there be no legislative investigation until a report is received from William Glasgow, special examiner, who is continuing the work begun by Mr. Ramstedt. Urges that it is possible to conduct the state government on one million dollars less for the next two years than in 1914 and 1915.

RAILROADS WILL MAKE FIGHT

D. E. Burley Expects to Prove Four-Cent Rate

General Passenger Agent D. E. Burley, of the Short Line makes plain, in statements given out, that his road will fight the rate decrease of the public utilities commission through to the supreme court of the state if necessary. Good use is being made of the twenty days' appeal allowed the commission in preparation of a report to be presented by the road officials. They expect to prove that the four-cent rate is justifiable. On this point, the state commission did not pass, its decision merely being to the effect that the higher rate constituted illegal discrimination. When the case was heard some time ago the Short Line refused to introduce any testimony on the justifiability of the rate. After the attorney general presented his case on behalf of the people, the Short Line moved that the complaint be dismissed and the commission overruled the motion.

GREATEST YIELD IN HISTORY

Idaho Raises Millions of Bushels of Wheat in 1914

AT THIS TIME THERE IS ONE-HALF MILLION ACRES IN WHEAT

The Boise Capital-News in a recent issue, makes up the crop situation in Idaho, says: "The grain yield for 1914 in this state was between 35,000,000 and 38,000,000 bushels with an estimated value of $32,000,000. If the figures and estimates from well-posted growers and buyers are accurate, there is a great gain over the yield of 1913. The higher price, which it is now believed will be received so that by the time the crop is sold, it will not be for many months. Idaho growers, they find their grain yield had a valuation of $40,000,000 to $43,000,000. This golden yield came from the Palouse belt of the north. The more diversified sections of the southwest, the 'new Palouse' of the American Falls dry land section, and the great irrigated and dry farm belt of the western part of the state, produced a total of 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 bushels. There are more than a half million acres in wheat in Idaho. The grain crop production for the year classified is as follows: Barley 4,000,000, Oats 14,000,000, Wheat 25,000,000, Corn 3,000,000, Rye 1,000,000, Clover 15,000, Beans 100,000, Potatoes 25,000. Total 2,610,000. Alfalfa, the king of forage grasses, yielded more abundantly than ever under the radience of Idaho sun, and produced during the year no less than 400,000 tons, which found a ready and profitable market. That portion of the annual crop is being held and will, it is believed, bring higher prices than ever before. It is being produced or even apples in this state and is produced abundantly in the great alfalfa belt of the south and southeast. The entire annual crop for the year will be well posted growers is 5,000 cars, the greater portion of which is held in storage ports along the Idaho and west across the state and north and south on the Montana division. The wheat crop is being held and will be sold later when the European side will be the demand for produce reaches its highest. Growers expect to bring in the year the most modern storage collars along the railroads where the greater portion of their crop is now being held. An inferior grade of wheat will return this year from this crop. The sugar industry was confronted with very gloomy outlook for the year opening. The new tariff treaty and-to close factories at Blackfoot, Sugar City, Burley and Idaho Falls. The situation changed quickly with the ushering in of the European war. Thousands of tons of sugar beets are raised in this state annually. The crop had a value of close to $45,000,000 and its factories produced over 100,000,000 pounds of refined sugar. Short hauls for the farmers, favorable yields per acre, and quick returns on their produce, made the sugar beet crop this year one that should not be underestimated.

The developments in Boise in the last week over the banked report that the state treasury should worry the citizens all over the state for the safety of the capitol building. There is a possibility that the gang may try out enough stones to build a few apartments on which to get a loan of state money. However, if the gang will steal the old capitol building and the legislators with it, they might be pardoned by the people because of the good accomplished.

Idaho has had plenty of adverse advertising in years past from the misdeeds of those who would profit from the resources of this great state for their own ends. The present scandal will merely add to the outside opinion that Idaho as a state is full of grafters and the horns instead of a state full of home builders and honest citizens. It is high time that control of state affairs be taken from partisan hands and given over to a ticket elected upon a clean platform, which means real renovation, rather than political whitewashing. The state owes to its law-abiding reputation and owes it to the hundreds of thousands of honest citizens who are suffering today from the setbacks given the state in the eyes of the possible prospective settlers.

HAS CITIZENSHIP A VALUE?

CITIZENSHIP has a definite value. This value cannot be computed in dollars and cents, but it is worth fighting for. Citizenship grows out of communities. Were there no communities there would be no citizens. We would then be merely unorganized individuals entirely at the mercy of all other individuals who might wish to destroy any weaker or less fortunate than ourselves. By dwelling in communities we have many advantages. Some of us value and appreciate these advantages while others selfishly accept the advantages but refuse to do their share toward maintaining the community. Laws have been enacted to compel us to pay taxes - used for the financial support of communities for our protection.

BUT THERE ARE NO LAWS WHICH COMPEL THE MEMBER OF ANY COMMUNITY TO SHOW APPRECIATION OF THE BENEFITS DERIVED FROM LIVING IN A COMMUNITY. One of the benefits of living in a community is the opportunity furnished us to buy merchandise required for our comfort and indulgence, right here in our own town. This facility permits us to buy what we need when we need it. We can get a dollar and buy a dollar's worth of goods. Perhaps we can get the goods without paying the dollar down in cash - that is, if we have the credit.

What a genuine benefit it is to be able to do this. In the opinion of our forefathers were compelled to drive many miles to a store where the necessary things to obtain a large quantity were bought at a time because the trip to the store could not be made at frequent intervals. As our citizens increased in numbers and gathered into communities, stores were established at the various centers of the increasing population until now we can buy, right at home, our necessities and luxuries. But what we value we endeavor to protect. If we value the facility for purchasing goods as we should protect it.

The best way to protect it is to make it possible for the storekeeper to continue to do business. If we do not help them to continue to do business here in our community the natural consequence will be for them to close up their stores and go out of business. If we storekeepers only such merchandise as we cannot buy conveniently elsewhere, we will soon discover that the stores will carry only such restricted lines of goods as are in demand by the people who live here.

Then we will find out that we are not much better off than our forefathers were. We must send away for such merchandise as we require. We must have the order mail received in the mail order house and filled in the due course of time by the employees of the concern we are patronizing. There are many disadvantages in this method. We do not fully realize them now. But they will come home, one by one, when conditions arrive which compel us to buy everything by mail - if such a time does come. However, if we look at the matter in the right light we will not permit such a contingency to arrive.

Why should we be deluded into sending our money away from home because of the fulsome and flattering descriptions in a mail order catalogue? Why should we prefer the questionable qualities in merchandise as exploited by a catalogue writer to the honest, dependable goods which we can see before us in our local stores? Do we save money by buying from the mail order houses? When the matter of freight and express charges have been figured out, when the question of delays, unsatisfactory shipments, breakage, damaged goods, etc., have been answered, where is the profit, if any?

IF WE ARE NOT WILLING TO DO THIS, WE SHOULD BE HEARTILY ASHAMED OF OURSELVES. AND WE WOULD NOT BE ENTITLED TO THE ADVANTAGES AFFORDED BY HIS STORE. There are many advantages in this method. We do not fully realize them now. But they will come home, one by one, when conditions arrive which compel us to buy everything by mail - if such a time does come. However, if we look at the matter in the right light we will not permit such a contingency to arrive.

Why should we be deluded into sending our money away from home because of the fulsome and flattering descriptions in a mail order catalogue? Why should we prefer the questionable qualities in merchandise as exploited by a catalogue writer to the honest, dependable goods which we can see before us in our local stores? Do we save money by buying from the mail order houses? When the matter of freight and express charges have been figured out, when the question of delays, unsatisfactory shipments, breakage, damaged goods, etc., have been answered, where is the profit, if any?

ENGLISH FEARS OF INVASION

English fears of invasion were revived last week when the German raid upon the east coast, was seen in the columns of the London Times, where correspondents kept asking what to do in case of invasion. Mr. H. G. Wells, the author, boldly takes the bull by the horns and advises civilians to open fire upon the enemy wherever and whenever they may catch sight of them. This advice has raised a storm of protest not only in the Times, where it originally appeared, but also in the German press where the British are threatened with terrible reprisals should anything of the sort occur. Another well-known author, Mr. Arnold Bennett, replying to Mr. Wells in the Times, writes: "The Germans have not fought according to the rules of civilized warfare as laid down at the Hague. In this regrettable fact we can find no excuse for imitating them. It is against the rules of civilized warfare for civilians to attempt to kill soldiers. Single snipers would expose their villages to reprisals whose nature we know; and, further, no bands of snipers, suddenly formed in an emergency would have the slightest chance of being recognized by the enemy as combatants."

The following extract from a letter of the Earl of Winchelsea, also in the Times, actually admits that invasion is not only possible, but might be successful. "I do not think that a German raid on these islands is likely, though it may be undertaken in the last resort as a desperate expedient to deluge the masses of the German people. But it is abundantly plain that, if made a measure of success, if only temporary, might attend it, and it is equally clear that the Government itself thinks so." In reporting a debate in the House of Commons, the London Daily Mail shows that the Government is prepared for this possibility. The under-secretary for War, in reply to a member who asked the Government to issue instructions to the militia in case of invasion, admitted that the Government was in consultation with the local authorities, but thought it undesirable to reveal anything further. One of these local authorities, however, the Earl of Warwick, Lord Lieutenant of the county of Essex, makes it abundantly clear that civilians will not be permitted to have a finger in the pie. In addressing a public meeting in Essex, according to the London Standard, the Earl said: "A man who, on the impulse of the moment, shoots a stray shot at a family may bring on the surrounding inhabitants, perfectly innocent though they may be, the most terrible reprisals. I hope the inhabitants of our country, if they wish to be of service, will put themselves under some discipline or authority, so that we may hear nothing of people going about advising assassination."

Meanwhile the German papers speak of an important German document which is expected if resistance is offered by any but untrained soldiers. The Frankfurter Zeitung says: "The invaders will quite rightly take the sharpest defensive measures, and Wells, who will then have a chance to show whether in an emergency he has the courage to show with his pen, he may be surprised if some day he himself suffers the fate he advocates for German officers. Whoever places himself beyond the pale of the laws created by humanity must not afterward complain of barbarism."

Still more plain is the warning given by the Kolnische Zeitung: "We wish to say at this early date that the procedure planned in England violates international law in the grossest fashion and must entail the gravest consequences to the English civilization. . . . If it occurs to which responsible and irresponsible people in England are now inciting the nation, the English will get a feel of the iron fist of martial law and they will be sickened of their excesses just as their Belgian allies were." - Literary Digest.

WHO FIRST VIOLATED BELGIUM'S NEUTRALITY?

It will be remembered that at the beginning of the war, the German Chancellor described the violation of Belgium's neutrality as a wrong justified by Germany's supreme military necessity. After the occupation of Brussels, however, it was announced that there had been discovered in the archives of the Belgian General Staff certain "secret treaties" proving that Belgium had forfeited her neutrality some years ago by entering into an anti-German pact with England. Last week's German newspaper published documents were published in America by Dr. Barnardiston as "proof that if Germany did not march through Belgium, her enemies would" and the evidence they supply is naturally regarded with much interest. Instead of treaties they prove to be records of "conversations" between high Belgian army officers and the British Military Attaché at Brussels. In the first document, dated Brussels, April 10, 1906, Major-General Bridges reports to the Belgian Minister of War certain matters discussed between himself and Lieutenant Colonel Barnardiston, the British Military Attaché. The Belgian Major-General said in part: "Mr. Barnardiston referred to the anxieties of the General Staff of his country with regard to the general political situation and because of the possibility that war may break out. In case Belgium should be attacked, the sending of 100,000 troops was provided for."

He proceeded in the following manner: "The landing of the English troops would take place at the French coast in the vicinity of Dunkirk and Calais so as to hasten their movements as much as possible. The entry of the English into Belgium would only take place after the violation of our neutrality by Germany. A landing in Antwerp would take much more time, because larger transports would be needed and because, on the other hand, the safety would be less complete."

"In the course of another interview Lieutenant Colonel Barnardiston and I studied the combined operations to take place in the event of a German offensive, with Antwerp as its object, and under the hypothesis of the German troops marching through our country in order to reach the French Ardennes."

The second document is the minutes of a conference between General Joubert, Belgian Chief of the General Staff, and Lieutenant Colonel Bridges, Lieutenant Colonel Barnardiston's successor. It is dated April 20, without the year, which Dr. Barnardiston supplies as "presumably 1912." This read in part: "Lieutenant Colonel Bridges told the General that England had at her disposal an army which could be sent to the Channel coast composed of six divisions of infantry and eight brigades of cavalry - together 69,000 troops - the maintenance of which is necessary for her to defend her insular territory. Everything is ready."

"At the time of the recent event authorities. "Secondly, Belgium did not heed the advice of Baron Greldel and did not try to insure her independence in the same way by approaching Germany and making a similar contract with her. This dispenses of the contention that the Belgian conversation had a purely defensive character as against all comers. It shows the character of the inclination, which is evidenced by the display of all Belgium's fortresses on the eastern frontier. "While Belgium professed neutrality and friendship toward Germany, it was secretly planning for her defeat in a war which was considered unavoidable. "The Imperial Chancellor has declared that there was irrefutable proof that if Germany did not march through Belgium her enemies would. This proof, as now being produced, is of the strongest character. So the Chancellor was right in appealing to the law of necessity, although he had to regret that it violated international law." - Literary Digest.

A Word About Prices

It is customary to think of a piano as a very high priced affair, and take your money at that price if you will pay it. If you are smart you get a discount from that price; if your neighbor is smarter than you he gets two discounts; and if some one else is still smarter he gets three discounts. The result is that on the same make of piano bought from the same store you will find one man has paid $400 for his, another paid but $300, while the close buyer paid $250. But that piano was worth only $250 to commence with.

This is all wrong; a piano is a manufactured article, and like all manufactured articles has a fixed value, and should therefore have a fixed price, according to its value. You would not patronize a shoe store which charged you $6.00 for the same shoe they sold your neighbor for $3.50. Why will you deal with that kind of a piano store?

We mark every piano in plain figures at the lowest possible price, and there is no discount from that price except in public institutions, this is the only music house in the northwest, where a musician, a man or a child is sure of equal treatment and of obtaining the same prices.

The British Government would have immediately effected a disembarkment in Belgium (chez nous) even if we had not asked for assistance.

The General has objected that for that our consent was necessary. "The Military Attaché has answered that he knew this, but that since we were not able to prevent the Germans from passing through our country, England would have landed her troops in Belgium under all circumstances (en tout cas de cause)."

The General has added that we were, besides, perfectly able to prevent the Germans from passing through."

In the third document Baron Greldel, potential in Berlin, addressing the Belgian minister of foreign affairs, protests against the Anglo-Belgian military understanding on the ground that it was not quite safe to trust to the British and French to keep the Belgian neutrality, nor was it quite as honest as a German infraction of that neutrality.

In an explanatory foreword to these documents Dr. Barnardiston says: "The guilt of the Belgian Government in this matter consists in the first place in making no covering plans with the English and French Governments as to what steps to take in case of war. A plan of the French mobilization was found in the secret docket, and it can not be presumed that the conference between British and French experts was unknown to the British Military Attaché in Brussels. It is furthermore impossible to maintain that the French railway for the shipping of British troops from Calais, Dunkirk, and Boulogne into Belgium in Belgian cars could have been used without the knowledge of the French

FISH PLANTED IN WOOD RIVER

Good News for Anglers of Southern Idaho.

Shoshone Democrat: The local fishermen have in the past few days been able to have delivered to them a large quantity of fish from points in Utah. The last shipment arrived last Saturday and were taken in sizes ranging from 10 to 15 inches long, which were set at liberty in the Big Wood river. There were just three dead ones in the entire shipment, which shows how carefully the delivery has been made.

The fish are beauties and average in length from about two to three inches long, which is an assurance of their being able to care for themselves in any waters. Heretofore the fish have been about in this section have been only from one inch to an inch and a quarter long, and thousands of them have been sent to the larger ones.

The fishing on the Big Wood river has always been good, but with the vast numbers that has been planted in the past few days, it will be impossible in a short time to find a place in the world where fishing is better.

If you are not driving a Buick, you are not getting the service you are entitled to. When you buy a Buick you get service, not alone service from the factory, but service from the Buick agents, no matter where you are. One of the most rigid requirements of the Buick contract is that the agent gives the very best service and assistance possible to every owner of a Buick, no matter whether he sold the car or not.

One of the most important things before you buy a car is to inquire of the people using the car you are considering, what kind of service they are getting. If they are changed for every little adjustment, the filling of storage batteries, adjusting carburetors, testing and tuning of the engine, and etc. Also if they were given due consideration when learning to operate their car, or if they were turned loose to shift for themselves and to master the operation and handling of their car the best they could the minute the sale was closed. This means a great deal, especially to people getting their first car, as it requires careful teaching by men who know how to teach a driver how to get the most out of his car and at the same time to save his car, especially over rough and bad roads.

Remember in order to give real, genuine service, the agent who sells the car must maintain a garage and well equipped shop. Must have men in charge who know their business by years of actual experience.

Supposing you should buy a car that has no home, and you should require some adjustments made, you would not expect to receive the same consideration at the garage you took it to that they give to the cars they represent. The chances are they would turn you over to one of their amateur employees, who would use your car to experiment on.

Another thing required for service is a full stock of Buick repairs are carried, both at Boise and at Salt Lake, besides we carry in stock those parts that seven years experience right here in Twin Falls has taught us are ordinarily needed. There is only one other make of car sold in Twin Falls for which you can get repairs within twenty-four hours. Just stop and consider what this means to the man owning a car. When repairs must come from the east, it means your car will be tied up for an entire week. What do you suppose a week's time means to the man that needs his car every day?

Remember the records of the past are the best promises for the future, and right here let us state that the Lind Automobile Company can show more duplicate sales to the same parties than any other automobile firm in Idaho. People do not buy their first, second or third cars from the same firm unless the car was right and the services received satisfactory.

Consequently before you buy a car, you should determine, 1st: What is the record of this car in the past, has it stood up? How long has it been sold in this locality? Because cars that stand up back east on good roads do not always stand up on our roads and mountain grades.

2d. What kind of service and assistance is the agent giving to people he has sold cars in the past?—Because that is the best guarantee of service.

3d. Does he maintain a garage or rather a home for the car, he sells? Nothing adds more prestige to any car than this and unless he does he cannot give service.

4th. Is there a full stock of repairs for this car carried in this territory or will the repairs have to come from the factory?

5th. How long has the agent been in the Automobile business, and is he likely to stay or does he shift his business nearly every year?

We take it that you are spending your own money for a car, and if you do, the above facts are worth considering before buying. Come in and get one of our new large Buick catalogues. It is a work of art and is chock full of automobile information.

LIVE WIRE CAUSES ALARM

Construction Derrick Breaks High Tension Line

With the sparks shooting from the ends of the severed high-tension power wires a number of teams and automobile drivers were alarmed one day last week at a railroad crossing near the city. The Live Wire Construction train with the big derrick used for handling the heavy rails had occasion to pass under one of the power lines crossing the track. Fearing a line to lower the derrick, the wires were broken and the severed ends fell to the ground close to the road where a number of teams and autos were waiting for the passing of the train. Considerable disorder occurred during the alarm, however, by the horses in the wires splitting blue flames within a short distance of their heads. However, no one was injured and the break was soon repaired.

Pass On. "I am still looking for an honest man," announced Diogenes. "I can give you no help," declared the stranger. "Why are you?" "I am an honest but poor collector."

TO SURVEY STATE ROAD

Work to be begun on Link Between Pocatello and Twin Falls.

The state highway commission will soon begin the survey of the Idaho Pacific state highway across Pocatello to complete the link connection to the Oregon state highway. The report given out in American Falls last week. The reason for action at this time it is said, is the desire of the government to complete the allotment of lands on the Fort Hall Indian reservation and desire that the survey be made in advance of the allotment to prevent possible friction.

The road will connect at Pocatello with the north and south road from the old line to the Oregon state highway. A considerable portion of which is completed, and is a part of the east and west trunk line from Pocatello to the Oregon state highway. The road will be a most thickly settled section. It will pass through the Snake river through Cassia county to a connection with the road in Twin Falls county.—Rupert Pioneer-Record.

DRINKS POTATO RECORD

15-Year-Old Boy Produces 100 Bushels on an Eighth of an Acre.

A potato club boy of Jefferson county, Idaho, raised 100 bushels of potatoes on his eighth of an acre plot of the equivalent of 800 bushels per acre. The boy, who is named for his growings, and Geo. Mason, 15 years old, may justly claim the title of the young potato chieftain of the state of Idaho. His father, the parent boy and girls of Idaho were engaged in club work last year. Courses of study included potato and soil culture, cooking, sewing, and canning. Poultry and pig clubs were also part of the work. This year other valuable and practical courses will be added. The club work of Idaho, during the past three years has been very successfully conducted under the direction of the state superintendent of public instruction, Miss Grace Shepherd, the college of agriculture, U. S. department of agriculture and the county superintendent co-operating. On the request of Miss Shepherd and at the recommendation of the state board of education, the club work has been placed under the direction of the department of agricultural extension of the University of Idaho. The state education department, which includes county and city superintendents and teachers, and the U. S. department of agriculture are co-operating in this work. The outlook for club work is brighter than ever before. Dr. Brannon, president of the university, and Professor G. W. H. Smith, director of agricultural extension, are both firm believers in the value and importance of this kind of practical work in the schools, on the farms and in the homes. Their influence and support will undoubtedly help to insure even greater success. Idaho Falls Register.

ANOTHER COUNTY

Movement Again Started to Divide Lincoln County.

There is a movement under way to again divide Lincoln county, this time by running the division line east and west as it should have been when divided two years ago. Considering the size to which the southern part of the county was cut by the former division with the dividing line running north and south, the proposed new division would be one of the smallest in the state, both as to area and taxable wealth. The county as proposed would embrace school districts 33 and 35, Jerome and Falls City, respectively. This morning there, unless some additional territory should be conceded by the remainder of the county, or by an adjoining one.

A couple of weeks ago a meeting of six or eight business men and property owners of Jerome, was held at which this matter was discussed and the sentiment there appearing favorable to the proposed new division. At Shoshone has been felt out to some extent. It appeared to be also favorable, as far as it could be ascertained. Hence on last Sunday afternoon a general meeting was held at the town hall at that meeting the sentiment there was in favor of the new county if there was available within the proposed lines sufficient taxable property to render the same feasible. There is some question as to whether sufficient of this sort of property could not be found. —Jerome News.

FAMOUS SOCIALIST COMING

Ernest V. Debs Secured an Attention by Local.

The Twin Falls Socialist party announced the movement of Ernest Victor Debs, who has been before the public in three different presidential campaigns for the office of president of the United States. Eugene Debs is undoubtedly the most impressive public speaker in the country today and the effort of the local Socialists should be rewarded by an overflow meeting, when this tall, bald, gray-haired, milk-mannered man, who has been in Woodstock jail, faces the people of Twin Falls. A special train is being asked to carry the crowd from Buhl. Seats will be secured to the number of three hundred and forty, which will cost twenty-five cents each above the price of admission, which is twenty-five cents, and a subscription for one year to the National Rip-ening magazine going with this price. Mr. Debs is also editor of the paper.

The number of inquiries for tickets is growing every day until now the question is, will the seating capacity be sufficient? The date is February fifteenth, at 8:00 o'clock p.m. at the high school auditorium. Reserved seats will likely be placed on sale at Skoole-Wilcox Drug store, Parkview, in a month or so, in advance to accommodate the outside demand.—Adv. Jan. 5-8. H. H. FRIEDHEIM, Secretary.
