GRADES ARE IMPASSABLE

Traffic Between North and South Sides Blocked

SHOSHONE FALLS GRADE IN NEED OF ATTENTION. Twin Falls Commercial Club Asking for Immediate Work at Shoshone Falls. Traffic between the north and south sides of the Snake river has been practically cut off during the recent thaw so that a great many of those using the Blue Lakes grade and the Shoshone falls cut off auto livery service altogether. The Blue Lakes grade, due to the formation of ledges from the Perrine coulees had been abandoned as a dangerous walk with the lower grade at Shoshone falls was in a similar condition and dangerous to travel. This is a desperate condition which would take part of the grade. The upper of what is called the old grade, is still in places impassable due to deep sink holes developed since the recent thaw.

WATERWORKS CASE

HAS MANY ANGLES The Utility Commission Is Kept Busy. COMPLAINTS MADE ON A NUMBER OF POINTS. Parity of Water, Lack of Pressure and Source of Supply kept in the limelight. Commissioners Graham and Proctor of the public utilities commission sitting in the city hall, have an application for a writ of necessity for a municipal waterworks system have had a busy time arriving in Twin Falls. The complaints registered against the company by the consumers have been answered by the company until every one of the objections has been brought to the attention of the commissioners. Three vital defects upon which the most emphasis has been laid by the witnesses are the purity, pressure and the availability of the present source of supply. To this end the city has had its employed engineer, many city officials and many private consumers testify. The water company and for the city have attended every session for the purpose of making the argument after the evidence shall have been submitted. Up to a late hour Thursday the complaints were still being delivored before the commissioners. Engineer E. C. Horn, of Boise, who has been working on the proposed new system was one of the principal witnesses in giving the defects of the old and the advantages of the municipal system.

CUTS TAX PENALTY

Bill Passed Last Session to Be Repealed. Without a dissenting vote, the house passed Thursday morning H. B. No. 27 which repeals the law which imposes a penalty on unpaid and delinquent taxes. The interest on delinquent taxes is reduced from 10 to 10 percent. The law passed at this time, this session provided that taxes should be payable semi-annually, but fixed a penalty of 10 percent on the first installment if it was not paid when due on the first Monday in January. This bill eliminates that penalty, allowing until the first Monday in July for payment. If the first installment is not paid on that date, the rate shall be 10 percent. Johnston of Blighman, who was a member of the twelfth session, informed the house that the bill was passed by the house, but was not being given proper consideration. He declared it was a legislative crime and should immediately be erased from the statute books. He said that the bill should go further and entirely eliminate the penalty on delinquent taxes were expressed by other members - State man.

The mystery of Engineer Fox's anxiety concerning the bridge matters in this county may be solved in the minds of a good many, when the fact is considered that he has drawn $1,746.45 since July, 1913, or a much better salary than any other county official. Perhaps Mr. Fox's percentage on the proposed bridge may account for his anxiety over some plans now in the air. At any rate Twin Falls county cannot afford to pay more than five hundred dollars per year for the work done, and since that is set by law, should govern the county commissioners in hiring any one for the job. Probably Commissioner Carlson is the only remaining commissioner of the old board who can explain to the taxpayers why the above big sum was paid out for the salary of Mr. Fox and why the job was not given to some Twin Falls county man instead of an outsider. No doubt all the taxpayers will desire to know why such an ardent advocate of economy as Mr. Carlson has seen fit in this case to break over his prescribed rule for the rest of the county officials.

The direct primary law is up for fire in the legislature and unless the people all over the state enter protest, the act will be seriously crippled or killed. The politicians are trying mightily hard to put the law out of commission, claiming that it costs the poor man too much to run for office under the present system. But that it is merely an aid to the politicians. It will seem mighty strange to the people that so far all the bow against the law has come from the men of the state who play politics the year round, and yet their reformers of the direct primary claim that it now favors those politicians. What are they kidding about it if it is all for the politicians? The people of the state, while probably disappointed in the working of the law in many cases, do not want to go back to the old time caucus system, when they had absolutely nothing to say about the men who represented them in office. Republican leaders claim that the primary had abolished the party and want the law changed to allow the people to judge candidates to party convention and the convention then chosen to select the nominees. This plan, while sounding feasible, does not remedy the evil claimed against the primary law. In the first place the primary is not to blame for the lack of party loyalty. The change must be found deeper in the traditions which have split not only the Republican party, but every other party. This trouble has been an outgrowth of the dominance of the party power and machinery by unscrupulous men. In the old caucus system it can be safely said that five per cent of any caucus held and controlled the action taken, merely because of their manipulations. The same can be said of the county and state conventions. There is no merit in the old system and there is room for improvement in the present primary system with the people's help. It is less expensive to the people. There is room for improvement in the method of voting party tickets, so that the aim of the primary (to give good men as candidates) will not be defeated through attempts of each party to weaken the candidates of the other by deserting their own party ticket during a caucus, attempting to nominate the weakest man on the opposition ticket. The Times does not believe that the direct primary is altogether perfect, but does believe that it comes nearer to real democratic government than the old caucus system. In the process of changing under the guiding hands of those who now seek to change the law there can be but one solution: loss of control by the people and perpetuation of the old regime of which we have had a fair sample in the past state administration. The people should jealously guard any advantage gained in the way of political freedom seeking only to intelligently remedy any vital defects. Most people are afraid of touching the primary law for this reason, feeling that the remedy should be applied by friends rather than enemies.

ALABAMA DRY AGAIN The return of Alabama to the ranks of the prohibition states, marking the New York Evening Post, it is possible to charge the south with wavering on the saloon question. This paper reminds us that of the eighteen Northern states and territories that went dry between 1850 and 1907, only four remained so. In the South on the other hand, only one of the nine prohibition states has suffered a relapse, and now she returns to the fold. The evening Post goes on to say: "Since 1907, when Georgia led off nine Southern states (including Arizona) have legislated on the saloon. Alabama is the only one that reversed her stand. Her law of 1908 was repealed in 1911. It is true that in a number of states the laws are so recent that opposition has scarcely had time to organize, but attempts to repeal have failed in Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee. Southern anti-alcohol sentiment tends constantly to solidify, one of the measures recommended by the present South Carolina legislature is prohibition. Whether a marked growth of Southern industrial centers to bring about a repetition of the North's checkered record on this question, the future will perhaps tell."

Alabama's Governor-elect Charles Henderson, according to the Montgomery Advertiser, was elected by a majority of 10,000 votes because he favored local option and opposed state wide prohibition, his defeated opponent being former Governor H. C. Comer who advocated prohibition and was supported by the Anti-Saloon League. But such was the strength of the prohibition forces in both branches of the legislature that the new prohibition law went through with a majority so large that a gubernatorial veto is said to be futile.

The excellent Henderson protests that the will of the people is being thwarted by steam-roller methods, and as the Alabama papers which reach us are chiefly from the "wet" counties we do not lack editorial echoes of this charge. Thus in the Montgomery Advertiser we read that the prohibition measure will effect a financial revolution in every county which voted for licensed saloons in a local option election. These counties numbered only eight, in contrast to fifty-five county, but they contain the principal cities of the state. The day before the bill was passed, The Advertiser said: "The present legislature is apparently determined to renege every other promise of state, every other issue of government, to the arbitrary handling of one question which affects only a few counties of the state."

"The committee and the legislature are determined to renege every other promise of state, every other issue of government, to the arbitrary handling of one question which affects only a few counties of the state."

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 51—Thrift Makes Happy Homes

Chairman Marvin Hughtitt, of the Northwestern Idaho system, said to his auditor one day: "You have a young man named Cunningham in your division, have you not?" "Yes, sir." "Well, keep your eye on him." "Why? He's one of my best men." "Well, he ought to be; I saw him depositing money in a savings bank the day before Christmas." The Christmas season ought to be a time of universal happiness. It cannot be all over the world this year, but here in peaceful America, it is safe to say that the great majority of thrifty homes are happy ones this Christmas.

If you are thinking of making 1915 a year of thrift, consider these five suggestions: 1. Buy cash. As a general rule you can get better prices by buying for cash because you are not paying for bad debts of those who buy on credit always leads to extravagance. A credit account is not to be encouraged in any family, where any member is unable to resist the temptation to buy anything that captures his fancy.

2. Buy in quantities. The plan of making one's cellar a storage plant doesn't apply to vegetables alone. April eggs are laid out by the hundreds as well understood by good housekeepers. So can June butter. As for apples, there should be a barrel of sound ones in every house this winter, as they are cheaper than usual.

3. Economy in food. Dr. William Brady says that the cheapest foods are generally the most nutritious and digestible. The want of food in the average American home is appalling. We squander money on fancy articles of low nutritive value, and use little or no judgment in preparing what we eat with a view to obtaining all the energy there is in it.

4. Buy in the cheapest staple articles of food and most people eat too much of it. Fish is cheaper and just as nourishing and digestible. Other comparatively cheap and good articles of food, such as some varieties of rice, oatmeal, macaroni, bananas, peaches, prunes, apples, corn meal, cabbage, onions and potatoes. If you are interested in food values, write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., for Farmer's Bulletin No. 92, 112, 115 and 116.

5. System. A housekeeper says: "I have found it wise to plan my meals for a week ahead, planning each meal with reference to the others. I always do this planning before Friday or Saturday morning, so that my staple food may be bought at that time. If this arrangement I can use for weeks, my better plan is a month's satisfactory table. I have found it wise to plan a month's meals for a week at a time there has been a noticeable change for the better in my bills."

Buying direct. With a view to facilitating the early introduction of the farm-to-table plan of reducing the cost of living by making use of the pared profit to bring farmer and city consumer together, Postmaster-General H. C. O'Connell has set a staff of setting forth the results of experiments in ten cities specially designated last March for trial of the direct exchange between farm products and city consumers. The report says that results show that the new service is welcomed by the public and that it has come to numerous improvements being made and numerous inventions of new containers being put upon the market since rapid growth of the plan.

FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN Conversation Carried Over Telephone 3,100 Miles. Perhaps the highest achievement in the scientific world was reached Monday afternoon when telephone conversations were carried on between Washington, New York, Boston and San Francisco, with an intermediate station at New York. This remarkable achievement was enjoyed by President Wilson, his wife, and Professor Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone. Thomas A. Watson, the first man to whom Mr. Bell ever talked to over the telephone. President Moore of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and many others. It was the inauguration of the transcontinental experimental telephone system and it required over 3,100 miles of wire to connect the eastern with the western coast. It was as though the Atlantic had reached out in its mighty arms and shaken hands with the peaceful Pacific. The conversations occurred about 1 o'clock eastern time and 1 o'clock western time. President Wilson was the first person not connected with the telephone company to enjoy the privilege of hearing a human voice over 3,100 miles of wire. He stepped to the telephone and, plugging the receiver to

Will you not convey my cordial congratulations to Mr. Bell, and I want to convey to you (meaning Mr. Watson) my personal congratulations. It is an interesting fact that Dr. Bell and Mr. Watson had the same first names. Mr. Watson in accomplishing the transcontinental conversation that they used thirty-four years ago—in accomplishing thirty-first two-mile conversation. They also used a part of the same wire used then. President Wilson also talked with Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, who was at Jekyll Island, off the coast of Georgia. In each city from which the conversations were held, the greatest progress had been arranged, preparations that were never excelled in the history of the cities. The city officials and state officials and other prominently connected with the public and community life of each individual community were present, and all enjoyed the wonderful feat accomplished. ### TELEPHONES ACROSS CONTINENT

Bell System Company Performs Wonderful Feat.

When an individual or a corporation accomplishes a wonderful feat, the feat naturally attracts attention. The feat accomplished by the Bell Telephone System, accomplished the feat of transmitting distinctly the human voice from coast to coast. Conversations were carried on between President Wilson of the United States and President Vall of the company. President Wilson of the United States and President Vall of the company. President Wilson of the United States and President Vall of the company.

"The value of that agency as told by the extent to which it is used cannot be expressed in figures easily comprehensible. The messages transmitted over its lines number approximately nine billion a day. To aid us in our attempt to catch the significance of this figure the statisticians say that it is equivalent to twenty-six million messages a day, or more than one million per hour throughout the twenty-four hours.

"The telephone has attained its largest measure of usefulness in the land of its birth. It is difficult to make but one comparison. In the two cities we are joining together telephonically 65,000 telephone stations, more by 60,000 than the number in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Brussels, Amsterdam and Petrograd combined.

"The population of those European capitals is more than three times that of the two American cities named. I may say at those foreign cities that those conditions related to their before the commencement of the European war.

"The beginning of the development of the art of telephony has been advanced in America more than in any other country and more than all other countries combined. American engineers, inventors and financiers; American operating, commercial and accounting forces through the introduction of new sections and practices have always kept the unit system of the United States in the foremost position among the telephone systems of the world and made it in all respects the universally recognized model.

"In the period during which the construction of the Panama Canal was being undertaken, the Panama Canal has been in progress, more than twice as much has been spent in building and extending the Bell System as has been spent in constructing the canal. The Panama Canal and this transcontinental line will each, in its own way, bring the two countries into closer relationship. The nation's solidarity, as well as its prosperity, depends upon its communication. The telephone, in its conquest of space and time is rendering a distinct and unique national service by affording an easy and direct means of communication. Its experiences by bringing widely separated peoples and communities into close personal touch; it is adding in the remote and isolated sections of the world our vast country into one homogeneous unit.

"Aggressive use of the classified columns will rent good properties, in or out of seasons, and practically cut out losses from vacancies.

"Blank books, filing devices, calendar pads, inks, pens, and nearly everything for the office.

Model C25 Buick Climbing the Buick Hill With Five Men

We contend that the Buick will climb anything that doesn't lean over backwards, and we are never happier than when proving this to people who have never seen Buicks pull. Why not give us a chance to prove it to you.

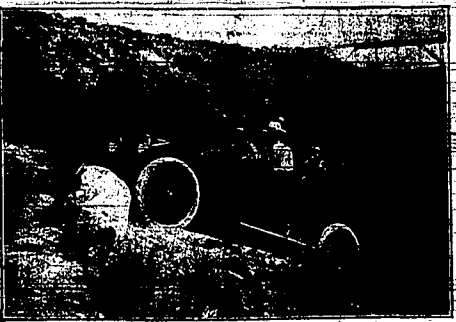

The Buick has no weak points. If it had we wouldn't put it to tests like this. Different cars have tried this hill and some have failed to come up even empty. When you buy a car—it is this difference that counts.

The difference in Power The difference in Appearance The difference in Economy of Operation The difference in Ease of Control The difference in Lasting Qualities The difference in The Service you get from the agent who sold you the car. If he doesn't maintain a well equipped garage he can not give you service no matter how glowing his promises may be.

This service coupled with the superior qualities of our cars has enabled us to point with pride to more duplicate sales of cars to the same parties than any other automobile firm in Idaho. Stop a Buick driver anywhere and ask him about his service. Ask him how many miles he gets to the gallon of gasoline. He will have you beaten unless you drive a Buick.

THE FAMOUS BUICK OVERHEAD VALVE MOTOR is guaranteed to have more power and more speed than any other type of motor on the market—it will pull stronger on low grade motor than any other type of motor ever built and the full consumption is less.

GRAIN-NOW CONTRABAND

England Will Refuse All Grain Described for Germany.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Ambassador Page of London, called the state department today, Tuesday, that the British fleet of grain and flour is being sent to Germany or Austria as conditional contraband, subject to seizure and return.

At this step, the ambassador explained, followed the announcement that the German government had ordered the charter of all ships and flour to conserve the nation's food supply. Since the publication of the German order, the ambassador said, Count von Bernstorff, German minister here, had assured the American government that no foodstuffs imported from the United States or neutral countries would be subject to seizure, and the press dispatches have announced the issuance of a modifying decree making such a change by the German government.

Ambassador Page said the British government had informed him that the assembly, which includes now bound from New York to Hamburg with grain and other food, had sailed before the issuance of the German order, an exception would be made in her case.

The vessel would be seized, it was stated, if the cargo had not been purchased at invoice price by the British government. Warning was given, however, that other shipments of similar character, when destined for Germany, directly or indirectly would be seized as well as the vessels carrying them, without compensation.

This announcement put an entirely new complexion on the negotiations between the two governments, especially since the beginning of the war in regard to the right of neutral states to ship food supplies to belligerent countries.

In the British note to Secretary Bryan regarding the Dacia, it was stated that the conclusion had not been reached to interfere with such shipments, providing they were intended for the non-combatant elements of the population and not for the army or a belligerent state with which England is at war. It was intimated, however, that, the exceptional conditions of the present war warranted some such action as an act of retaliation.

The state department has not decided what shall be done in the matter, and is considering carefully the whole subject.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Great Britain notified the United States Tuesday, through the British consul here, that King's dominion for Germany, Austria or Turkey would be regarded as contraband. The action of the British government is based on the recent German decree whereby that government will take over all grain in Germany for common use.

Because the Steamer Wilhelmina sailed from New York for Iceland before the issuance of the decree, it is understood here that food for German civilians will be paid for and appropriated by the British government.

But hereafter food laden ships sailing from the United States directly for German ports or for neutral ports in Europe will be seized. That the goods may ultimately reach Germany will be subject to seizure outright, should the cargo be consigned to a neutral port.

The state department now is considering this latest announcement of the British government, but so far has not committed itself.—Statesman.

Great Relief. John J. ... was let out of the afternoon ... lot of things I want to talk to you about. "Good," said her husband, "I'm glad to hear it. Usually you want to talk to me about a lot of things you haven't said."

SHORT-LINE IS SAFEST

Awards at New York Have Placed Union Pacific First.

That Chief Dispatcher R. E. Tilds was making no little boast when he said that the Short Line has been made about as safe as it can be made, is now fully apparent. Awards just made in New York show that the Short Line and the Union Pacific have the best record of any system in the United States.

Safety Commissioner—Abbott has just returned to Pocatello from attending the sessions of the National Museum of Safety and Sanitation, held annually in the grand palace of the New York Central, in New York city, and is much elated over the showing made by the Union Pacific. Two hundred and nine railroads had displayed in the exhibition which was visited daily by thousands of people.

For safety supervisors and sanitary physical conditions for the employees the Union Pacific system stands at the head of the list—it does not take second place in any respect. The United States in the block signal systems as they are operated along the entire length of the road. For safety first the O. S. L. has the best record of any road in the United States. This fact is due to co-operation of the men and the officials and to the splendid organization that has been developed by Safety First Commissioner—Abbott. Five hundred men meet monthly at different points along the road to discuss means for safety and these meetings are held at the same time and in the same company. The employees are paid full time during their attendance and also an expense that they may have incurred due to their attending the conference.

Exhibitions displayed jointly by the Union Pacific and the Short Line, were a standard result of 50 round rails, standard ties, ballast, gravel, crossings and block signals. For safety first the Union Pacific stands at the head of the list—it does not take second place in any respect.

a locomotive. To demonstrate how the block signals work in case of a broken rail or any disconnection in the electrical circuit, a "nailed piece" of rail is cut out of one of the long ties. When this is removed, so as to break the connection as would be done in case of a broken rail, the arms of the signal immediately rise giving heed of the danger to the on-coming train. An appliance of similar nature which gives warning of an open switch was also a part of the display.

During the last year the Union Pacific system has hauled 19,000,000 passengers without a fatality due to train accident. This is equivalent to 500,000,000 passengers, for one mile, or 278,000 from New York to San Francisco—of 3677 railroads around the globe. This is a record that has not been equaled by any other line and is but the result of much consideration over the entire system.

A medal for the grand prize was awarded to the Union Pacific at the exhibition and duplicates of it will soon be prepared and placed on exhibition along the line.

During his lecture in New York Mr. Abbott issued a challenge to any railroad in the United States to show an equal record as can be seen in the O. S. L. This went without an answer.—Nampa Leader.

BROTHERS DIE OF APPENDICITIS

Both operated on and both had excellent results.—Claremont-Intelligencer.

Death dealt a blow to the families of May, last Sunday, when their two crown sons passed away, following operations for appendicitis. Charles, a short, one familiarly known as 'Cad,' was the first to be operated upon. The operation was performed weeks before last, and even though perforation had set in, he recovered, he rallied and it was thought he had a chance for recovery. He was the oldest son and was a candidate for the office of assessor in the last primary election. A few days before his death, Miss Chapman, who taught a school at

May a year ago, arrived at the bedside and the young couple were married. He leaves one brother, two sisters and a wife, to mourn his loss. Young Short, the youngest of the two boys, was operated on on Sunday, following a severe attack of appendicitis and died the same evening. A doctor's funeral is being held over the remains of the two young men at May today. Both were fine young men with bright prospects for successful careers. Both tor Norris and Kenyon. One by Senator Norris, would provide that no vessel should be purchased by the government, which "sails under the flag of any nation at war with any other nation, which is at peace with the United States, unless prior to such purchase an understanding or agreement shall have been reached that will avoid any international difficulty or dispute involving such ship purchase.

SHIPPING BILL IN DOUBT

Seven Democrats Join Republicans to Defeat Measure.

Washington, Feb. 2.—While the administration senate Democrats caucused today to reorganize their shattered lines and reenter the fight for the ship bill, President Wilson transferred with progressive Republican senators at the White House, seeking a basis to make the bill agreeable to enough of that wing to fill the gaps caused by the sudden defection of nine Democratic votes in yesterday's session. Both sides are confident that the measure will pass.

One of the strong possibilities of a basis to make the bill agreeable to enough of that wing to fill the gaps caused by the sudden defection of nine Democratic votes in yesterday's session. Both sides are confident that the measure will pass.

Seven of the Democrats who voted with the Republicans in the caucus, however, who voted to table Vice President Marshall's ruling, declaring out of order Senator Clarke's motion to reconsider the bill, did not ignore the caucus. Amendments which the caucus considered included those urged by Sena-net officers should not serve on the shipping board.

The president told the correspondents at the White House he was confident the bill would pass. He asked if there would be amendments, he replied that the changes contemplated would not alter the spirit of the measure. He hoped and was inclined to think that such changes as were made would satisfy the progressive Republicans, who were not asking anything inconsistent with the principle of the bill, but wanted chiefly, he said, to declare a policy, not surrender a right.

The president pointed out that even though it were intended to buy no belligerent ships, legislation restricting the right to buy them might be considered as an international precedent surrendering certain rights of a neutral.

Discussing the question that a provision be made against re-selling the vessels if the venture became profitable, Mr. Wilson pointed out that any such clause would be of course a blind future congresses even to the point of repeal of the bill. The president said he was sure the bill would not be filibustered on the senate calendar, but if it were, it would be only temporarily.

Re-considering the purpose of the administration not to buy belligerent ships, it was regarded as significant that the president declared that the measure would be considered on the senate calendar, but if it were, it would be only temporarily.

LION CAUSED A COMMOTION

Its Appearance on Street Also Incidentally Led to a Lively Display of Hoosery.

A lion in a Jersey City railway station wriggled out of his cage the other day and created a mild panic. Of course, as the immortal waverer justly observes in the Shakespearean fantasy, "A lion among ladies is a most dreadful thing," and the ability and history displayed upon the untoward occasion, which have been extremely hurried and generous.

It is said by his keeper that there was no danger. The lion was an advanced neutral. He was out for food, but not for food of the present type. The glowing charms and smelliness of the railway restaurant had lured him to the point of breaking his bonds. With a hop, skip and leap he would have reached the lunch counter, and he had then been secondly lured, a snack bar glass would have had the place to himself.

When his keeper arrived on the scene the unhappy king of the forest had decided to divide his attention between a fossil doughnut and a concrete pie.

As the rude chaperon fastened a thumb and finger in the lionine ear and pushed him back into his cage, he roared dolefully—the lion roared dolefully there in no doubt, but the roar spelled acute mental indignation.

Thus ended another of those rare episodes that help to break the dreary monotony of New Jersey life.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

KNITTING GOOD FOR NERVES

Revival of Pastime is One of the Few Good Results of the War in Europe.

One of the few good results of the European war has been to make thousands of men, women and children learn to knit. There is nothing better for nerves that are unstrung and need toning up, physicians say, than knitting. For many years ago, men in the British army from the men in the ranks to the commanding general, has been taught to knit, and now, thanks to the demand for warm socks and mittens for the soldiers at the front, the practice is spreading to all walks of life.

The monotony of plying the needles in and out of the tiny loops is extremely soothing to tired brains and nerves.

The effect is similar to that produced by counting sheep, which is recommended by many as a method of inducing sleep.

Once the art of knitting is mastered you can pursue it without giving your plying fingers either thought or sight. In the London notes the day after you can see hundreds of conversant knitters, their fingers busy with knitting, while their eyes are occupied in watching what is going on around them.

No Profit in Irish Sugar Beets.

While sugar beets can be successfully grown in Ireland, writes Consul

URBAIN TRACEY, "where culture would probably not be profitable, according to a statement just issued by the head of the department of agriculture and technical instruction for Ireland. The fact has been established that a normal price for sugar beets will yield less than the normal price for potatoes or mangolds. As the sugar beet industry would not be successful under the ordinary conditions of peace, the department does not feel prepared to take responsibility for advising Irish farmers to grow beet root." It is added that whatever may be the results of England's exclusion of sugar, therefore, in Scotland and England, it will be safe to assume that sugar production will not be developed in Ireland—New York Times.

Early Qualified.

A Lancashire man in London, wishing to join the London Scottish, was met with the nationality problem, and admitted he was not a Scotchman.

The recruiting officer was willing to stretch a point or two if possible, so he asked the Lancastrian:

"Have you any relations or property in Scotland?"

"No," was the reply.

"You are quite sure?" queried the sergeant.

"How on a bit," said the recruit, as a light came into his eyes. "My gun, I'd forgotten for a minute. Aw're a pair o' trousers beln' cleaned at Perth Dyeworks!"

"Strip," said the officer, "you're qualified!"

Lack Serious Reading.

Prof. Bliss Perry, in the Youth's Companion, deprecates the lack of serious reading on the part of college men. "Their ignorance of the great books of the last three hundred years, even in their own literature," he says, "is amazing." When it comes to the classics, Professor Perry says: "I do not believe that there are twenty-five per cent of our college students who have read, during the last academic year, twenty-five pages of a Latin or Greek book simply for their own pleasure and profit in reading and without reference to the demands of the curriculum."

Birds Fear Sounds of War.

The roar of loud artillery in Europe may possibly have diverted or retarded the birds' attention from their migratory course. A curious effect is noticeable in the midlands of England, where swallows and martins are loath to leave.

ZUDORA

back looking as if he were really dead this time.

Baird left the chamber angry with himself for having given the old woman a glimpse of his heart. But he was dying, there was no doubt of that.

Zudora, together with the Van Wyck boy, were taken away from the basement where they had been confined; and from the whippers floating about Zudora understood that they were to be conveyed to a ship of some sort. She understood (or thought she did) now she had been lured to the Du Vin; and for the purpose of abduction. The second who had kidnapped the Van Wyck child feared her.

Whether Zudora did not have any place in the affair, she was not ready to determine—but it was rather odd that a good woman should live in a house with secret rooms had existed.

It was through a simple countryman's alarm that Zudora and the child were brought back to the world again. The old man had read about the abduction and the sight of a pathetic little boy being carried into a chamber on a sliding was enough to set his suspicions into lively action. He telephoned the police, who in turn worried the metropolitan police. And that is how Stout and the detectives arrived in time to prevent the catastrophe.

The kidnappers put up a strenuous battle and nearly all of them were captured, Baird alone escaping. But strange to relate, Baird had taken sides with the police. In reality it was baffled that the turf in the road had taken place. Baird wanted to be good, wanted to go back to the woman with clean hands, and Zudora the woman he had grown to love. It was his very soul to turn this way, but over to the arms of John Stout, but he did so.

That night Hiram All Fleet in his little cot, and with him died 15 double; for never again would Baird do that black thing; wip which he hated.
