BORAH MAY NOT ENTER THE RACE

Will Fight Reactionaries in G. O. P.

WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT

To Issue Statement to Republicans Warning Them Against Nominating the Old Crowd

Washington—Political gossip in connection with the next Republican nomination is developing here in a way that surprises old hands at politics. They attribute this precocious attitude regarding the nomination to the influence of the newspapers, which no longer will let them alone to choose a candidate in quiet and peace.

The quiet and peace men have been active. They have their agents here and all through the middle west. It would surprise some people to learn that Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana is making a dash for the leadership next year and that he has so much financial backing that the radical members of the party are taking serious notice of his motions.

It has gone so far not only with regard to Fairbanks, but also with regard to other candidates who are termed reactionary that one of the so-called progressive candidates, Senator William B. Borah, has concluded to issue a statement and a note of warning to the party.

It is believed Senator Borah will include in his warning a declaration that he is not and will not be a candidate for president. Mr. Borah is one of the acknowledged heavyweights of the senate. No man on the floor can hold a candle to him as an orator and few, not even Elihu Root, command more attention when they speak than Borah. He is heart and soul a progressive and wishes to see his party win, but he is convinced that with a reactionary candidate and platform it will lose. He is said to have concluded to take himself out of the race because he finds that he is geographically unavailable. In so doing he will have an opportunity to make a strong protest against the growing tendency to take a Republican victory for granted and to arrange for a conservative candidate and platform.

The Borah statement, when it comes, will not miss matters. It will be taken to a great extent as a warning to the party. The Republican of the middle west and mountain region on the platform and the nomination. It will, in addition, be a tip from a Republican who knows the feeling of Theodore Roosevelt and may throw a spotlight on the probable attitude of the head of the Progressive party next year.

Close friends of Colonel Roosevelt are said to have become convinced that Colonel Roosevelt considers himself down and out as a politician. His plainness of mind is that he will quietly support the Republican candidate provided he is a representative Republican. Colonel Roosevelt does not expect to pick out the man. He has no thought of being a dictator. He does not even know that his judgment of candidates is the best, since he is not selected.

ARBOR DAY FOR SCHOOLS

County Superintendent Urges Proper Celebration by County Schools

In accordance with section 188 of the School Law of Idaho, there will be an Arbor Day, April 16th, 1915, to be observed as Arbor Day throughout the school districts of Twin Falls county, and a community affair. Teachers and pupils and patronizing taking part.

Teachers, school boards and patrons have done much in the way of planting trees and improving the school grounds. Much still remains to be done.

The school is one of the centers of the life of a community, the one in which is gathered its most impressionable element. The school is supported at public expense in order to make good American citizens. It aims at securing the highest possible development of mind and character. Efficiency of order, neatness, and beauty and every broadening influence, every appeal to the finer nature of the child means better men and better women and a more thrifty and prosperous community.

Let us make the school environment the best possible, the most beautiful in the community.

Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway

Clever, Attractive and Splendid Music Keeps Twin Falls Audience Well Entertained

"Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," as interpreted by some forty clever Twin Falls people under the able direction of Wilfred Mackay, Oron drew nearly a capacity house at the Loring Monday night and netted the band boys a neat sum for their expenses for the year. To specify all of the stars in the attraction is out of the question, for from the leading roles down to the musical ability of the pretty girls in the chorus and the brave policemen and reporters there was not a single thing out of harmony in the whole performance. To Mr. Mackay, who gave his time to the production and without doubt is responsible for its success should be accorded high praise, while the clever staging of Charles Hutto and Miss Mahler, in the roles of Ed Burns and Mary Jane, received hearty and repeated encores.

The production was different from the usual stage play usually given and without a doubt was just as pleasing to the Twin Falls people.

DOUBLE BILL AT ORPHEUM

Good Vaudeville for the Last Three Nights of the Week

For the last three nights of the week the management of the Orpheum has been able to secure a good double team for the vaudeville acts. Moore and Moore are said to be fine in their singing and dancing act, as is Edger and Kerns in their great comedy act. In the motion picture, Peary and Hild will be given at the San Diego expedition with a Keystone comedy "The Mutual Weekly" is always one of the best, showing as it does the greatest events of the world. "The Legend Beautiful" is a dramatic masterpiece well worth seeing. "Ponatus and Bullets" is another Keystone comedy which is hard to beat.

TEA AND COFFEE HOUSE

Grand Union Tea Company to Establish Big Branch in Twin Falls

The Grand Union Tea company, with headquarters in Brooklyn, New York, is preparing to establish a big branch in this city. The company was recently incorporated in Idaho. The company will put in a twenty thousand dollar line of fancy groceries. Such is the statement of Mr. A. Knobel, local manager of the company. John Evans, western manager of the company, who is here from his headquarters in Oakland, California, assisting Mr. Knobel in making arrangements in establishing the business. The company has leased the room occupied by the Twin Falls Fruit Store, in the St. Regis block, and is having up-to-date fixtures made for the store. Mr. Knobel will have charge of the business as manager.

ABE AND MAWRUSS

This Famous Pair Need no Introduction to Twin Falls

For nearly two years the theatre-goers of Twin Falls have been hearing of the wonderful success in New York City of "Polish and Permittive" now at last we are to see these delightful characters who come to the Loring theatre on Friday, April 10.

"Abe" Polish and "Mawruss" Permittive especially need no introduction. Millions of persons have read "Montague Glass" famous stories in the Saturday Evening Post and something like a million have laughed until they cried over the joys and sorrows of these lovable cloak and suit partners as presented on the stage of the Coliseum, New York.

The story of "Polish and Permittive" deals with the fortunes of Abe and Morris, who risk their all in order to save from a Russian prison a young man who has fled that country to avoid persecution. The play is full of laughs, but there are also many sweet love-passages and touches of pathos that appeal to the heart and give to the comedy its lasting hold upon the audience.

PROCLAMATION BY THE MAYOR OF TWIN FALLS

It appearing to the undersigned, mayor of Twin Falls, that the disease commonly known as rabies is prevalent among coyotes and dogs, in the vicinity of Twin Falls, and that there is great danger of loss of life from such animals biting the citizens of said city:

It is therefore ordered, that ordinance No. 157 be in full force and effect, and it is hereby declared that it is unlawful for any owner or keeper of any dog to permit said animal to run at large within the corporate limits of Twin Falls, unless securely muzzled and restrained from biting.

Dated this 5th day of April, 1915.

C. O. MEIGS,
Mayor.

DEATH OF CHARLES MARWOOD

Passed Away After Illness of Typhoid Pneumonia

Charles E. Marwood, who has been suffering for several weeks of typhoid pneumonia, passed away Thursday morning about four o'clock. Mr. Marwood has resided in Twin Falls for several years and was well known. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen of America and the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the Grossman chapel, under the auspices of the two orders. He is survived by his parents, who live in Kansas, a brother living in the state of Washington, and a sister in California.

McDOUGALL-PATTERSON

Twin Falls Young People United in Marriage Wednesday Evening

On Wednesday evening of this week occurred the marriage of Miss Alice McDougall and Thomas C. Patterson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter E. Harman, pastor of the First Christian church, at the pastor's study. Both young people are well known in the city, where they have lived for several years. They will make their home on a farm on the Salmon tract.

DAVIS FOUND GUILTY

Tried by Jury in Probate Court Wednesday Morning

J. A. Davis, who has been conducting a children's band on the streets of Twin Falls for the past winter, and who was arrested Monday on complaint of Juvenile Officer Ormsby for making money from children under sixteen years of age, had his hearing in the Probate Court Wednesday morning. The hearing was before a jury of the following citizens: J. Clyde Lindsey, L. A. Salladay, Don McKay, Peter Dean, J. W. C. Deane and R. D. Stover. The jury was out on business but a few minutes returning with a verdict of guilty as charged. Judge Shapp will pass sentence on Mr. Davis Friday afternoon.

TWIN FALLS BEATS FILER

One Sided Ball Game Played in That City Friday Afternoon

Last Friday afternoon the Twin Falls high school baseball team went to Filer, where they played a game with the high school of that thriving little city. The game was a very one-sided affair, Twin Falls winning by a score of 13 to 2. Friday afternoon the team goes to Buhl where they will come back with the high school team of the West End city. A good stiff game is looked for as the Buhl boys have been practicing hard to try and win their game.

ELECTION POSTPONED

Twentieth Century Club Annual Meeting Delayed One Week

The Twentieth Century club met at Jewel hall Tuesday, April 6, at 3:30 p. m. and held a short business session. Because of the lateness of the hour and many club members being absent, it was deemed advisable to postpone the election of the club officers until Tuesday, April 13, when it is hoped all of the members will make it a point to be present. It is also urged that the members who expect to attend the club breakfast, secure their tickets so that the committee may know how many to plan for at that time. This is important.

RUSSIANS TO PUSH IN CARPATHIANS

Austrian and German Commanders Getting More Soldiers

FRENCH CONTINUING OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST

Operations in the Carpathians Have Been Resumed—Restrict Use of Liquor in England

London, April 7.—The military situation in the Carpathians is competing with the prohibition question in the interest of the British public.

The cabinet meets today. It is expected that announcement will be made of measures to provide drastic restrictions on the consumption of liquor, but total prohibition is not expected.

Attention is concentrated on the Carpathian passes, where the Russians are bringing up heavy reinforcements to push their attack, the success of which is expected only through weight of numbers. On the other hand the Austrian and German commanders are also making strenuous efforts to strengthen their forces.

Foreign reports that the section near the Black pass, of which Vienna admits retirement, extends for a distance of 37 miles. To date, Vienna claims a counter offensive movement near Lupkow pass, where the Austrians report the taking of several Russian positions with the capture of 7000 prisoners.

A conservative interpretation of both the Russian and the Austrian success leads to the belief that the Russian offensive at Lupkow has been checked while they have forced their way through the Rostok pass, capturing two villages on the southern side of the range.

In the western arena of the war the French continue their offensive movement between the Meuse and the Lorraine frontier. They reported gains in the Ailly forest indicating the possibility of a new danger to the German holdings in Metz, while the advance to the east of Verdun is reported in London as threatening St. Mihiel from the north. Berlin reports heavy fighting in this region without results for the French.

The belief that operations in the Dardanelles have been resumed is the general opinion today. Nevertheless complete silence prevails concerning details of the result of any activities.

ZUDORA

In the Twenty Million Dollar Mystery

By Harold MacGrath

SYNOPSIS

Zudora, heiress to $20,000,000, is placed in the guardianship of her uncle, Hassan Ali, a mystic. Hassan Ali is determined to secure the girl's fortune for himself and when she becomes of age he makes overtures to bring about her death. Zudora is in love with a young lawyer, John Storm, and she seeks the assistance of her maternal uncle to marry him. Hassan Ali promises to grant her wish provided she shall solve twenty of his riddles. Zudora solves nine of the clues when her uncle dies, and she is released from her plight.

At the death of her uncle, Zudora has another suitor for her hand—Jim Baird, a man who has been playing as "duffle" to Hassan Ali, but who, through sincere love of the girl, gives up the false life and goes back to his work as a newspaper reporter. He is no longer obliged to solve Hassan Ali's riddles, and now confronts the greatest mystery of all, which is the mystery of her own life and the whereabouts of her father's fortune.

Her father left her an interest in a diamond mine and Storm and Baird both lend assistance in trying to gain for her possession of this estate which is being appropriated by rogues.

Town he was something like himself—that is to say, ready for any difficulty.

During those hours of loneliness he thought a good deal. Much as he loved Miss Du Val, she had an iron hand, and the fact was beginning to irk him. Why couldn't she accept his idea, to quit now and go away while the going was good, to avoid the pain of the day? Money? They had plenty. The name, the name—that was her storm cry; the sport of it, the excitement. She went out of her way dozens of times to court danger; and there was danger, real and menacing. They had all kinds of documents to substantiate their claims to Zudora's fortunes; but there was many a slip 'twixt cup and the lip. She was like a gambler who had played for high stakes, who had never counted and now in a suddenly game. Perhaps she was only playing with him, having need of him as a "cushion" in her desperate game. If that was the case, she would indeed find it a dangerous game. No woman had ever yet made a fool of Capt. Radcliffe.

The next boat sailed in two weeks; no, instead of going to Cape Town, he idled about the mine, picking up odd bits of information—what he stored away in his mind for future reference. There was no ocean lumber in Capt. Radcliffe's brain. Where was that other clue? Neither his side nor the other could as yet locate that mysterious bag of crystals. He started out to do some exploring on his own hook but nothing came of it.

But he was tired of this incessant war against Hunt and Baird. He wanted a fling, a month or two of princely gambles; ten or twenty thousand to do with as he pleased. For weeks he had craved down the island, but this enforced inactivity had given it renewed life.

When he stepped on board the ship which was to carry him back to America it was the happiest moment he had known in months. Back to "little old New York" with its confusion, its noise, its lights, its excitement; no more Africa for him if he could help it.

When the ship stood off Nantucket Light he sought the wireless office and dispatched a code message to Bruce which read as follows:

"W. W. Bruce, New York—Sinbad X. Y. Z.—Send me a wire. Look me up, not Ripsh Mecca Sh Lover, Radcliffe. "Gossip to blow up the city hall!" asked the operator as he studied the message.

"No; just the Brooklyn bridge," Radcliffe laughed, paying for his message and giving a generous tip. Then he returned to the smoke room and played Canfield until dinner. He won two games out of twenty and felt quite satisfied with himself.

Bruce was busy engaged in work when the wireless arrived. He smiled and spread it on the blotter and with pen and ink became a "decoder." When he completed the translation he was highly elated. He would not have known, had he known that every motto he made was being such, that nearly every page he had made since his return from Africa had been watched either by Baird or by Hunt. It was Baird who was watching him at this particular moment from rather a perilous position outside the office window.

Bruce thrust the wireless pad, picked up his hat and coat, and hurried away. He must see Miss Du Val at once.

No sooner was he gone than Baird entered quietly. He tiptoed to the desk, watching the door as he did so. Bruce might return unexpectedly. From out of the blotter he drew the wireless cipher and translation. He rubbed his chin and smiled. He had a sign to feel rather "fore" waiting Mr. Bruce day in and day out, with no definite results. If Bruce knew anything regarding the whereabouts of Zudora, he kept this knowledge most carefully to himself. Hunt would not find out, this dispatch. It was really the smug proof he had been seeking for months. Here was his smuggler, all nicely done up in a package, ready for delivery.

"Arrive New York, Monday, Aurora. Will discuss rubber base of diamonds overboard before landing, Radcliffe." Both of them! All depended upon getting hold of that bag of diamonds. Uncle Sam would do the rest with pleasure. Baird made a copy of the wireless and its translation. The Marconi company would back him up in case Radcliffe denied sending such a cipher. It was all as easy as falling off a log. He would have taken the originals but for the fact that Bruce would return and find them gone and warn Radcliffe. So he had to content himself with copies.

He immediately sought out Hunt, with whom he found Storm; pale and thin through worry and anxiety regarding his sweetheart.

"I've got them, Hunt," Zudora cried Storm.

"No friend; but I've got two men red handed in the smuggling game. I have followed Bruce for days; but if he knows anything about Zudora's prison life's keeping it to himself. I've seen him with no suspicious characters; here, Hunt, read these and cheer up."

"Fine work, Baird, fine work! You drop your newspaper business and get into the newspaper business with mine. And the best comes in this afternoon. Let's get down to the dock. Will you go along Storm?"

"Heaven knows, I haven't anything else to do. That note in the bottle took me nowhere. I couldn't find anything at the island. Well, there is this much to say: 'I'll kill with my own hands any man who has harmed or offered indignity to Zudora.'"

"And you're not to say, boy," agreed Hunt. "But let us first trap two precious rogues. Who knows? We may, by taking them into custody, find ourselves pretty near Zudora."

"What do you mean?"

"Keep your hat on and follow me."

"Have you found out something?" cried Baird.

"That remains to be seen," answered the detective, noncommittally.

So the three of them started off for the water front in various degrees of excitement.

In the meantime Zudora waited and watched the sea from her window. Time after time she saw motorboats headed for the island, time after time she saw them change their course and go chugging past, too far out of range for a call. She dared not call out unless she was absolutely assured that the motorboat contained rescuers, and she was in this position until the night of the 23rd.

Several times, during drunken spells she had plucked Zudora's arms and cruelly treated her. Money alone would win over such a beast; and she had nothing; even her clothes were falling in tatters.

One day she spoke to the old woman.

"Can you get me some warmer clothes?"

"Oh, the warmer clothes? If any kind of fur you would prefer! Black fox's-tail-tailor's-tail now."

"But I am cold—I will give you a thousand dollars if you will 'froc me.'"

"All right. 'Froc over the thousand and I'll lend yuh homo tonight."

Zudora turned away so that she did not see the woman's face.

"You mean it?" cried Zudora with wild excitement.

"Yes, hurry up. I'm going to have visitors inside of an hour."

Zudora found a magazine, ripped off a page and scribbled on the margin. "Mrs. Ramsey. 16 Willow Grove avenue. I am not permitted to tell place of my imprisonment, but please give her a change of clothing for me."

The bag carried out the note and locked the door.

By and by Zudora heard the rumbling of a motorboat. "It landed at the dock. Later she heard a low murmur of voices about the high, rancous launchers. They had loaded her a dozen times. Maybe they would fool her again."

"The visitor was Miss Du Val. She read the note carefully and smiled that there could be no danger in leaving Zudora have some fresh clothes. She would have Gyp take the note; and Gyp was the hardest young man in New York to follow. Things had gone so smoothly that Miss Du Val began to grow uncertainly.

"There certainly was excitement when Mrs. Ramsey received that tattered note.

"It will take me about five minutes she said as calmly as she could. "Would a thousand dollars be of any use to you?"

Gyp smiled. "Nothing doing in that line, ma'am. Just get on the clothes. That's what I'm here for."

As Mrs. Ramsey went up to Zudora's room another incident occurred there. She telephoned Hunt what was taking place and that was the end of it, that she could have done.

"What's the chap look like?" asked Hunt over the telephone.

Mrs. Ramsey described Gyp accurately.

"Good work! That will be Gyp the Gunman. I'll keep watch. Don't worry and don't attempt anything on your own hook."

Mrs. Ramsey got together some of Zudora's winter clothing. From one of the skirts she ripped a hem and inside of this she placed a little note of cheer and courage, sewing it up with white thread in order to attract Zudora's attention. She managed to stretch out the promised five minutes into nearly half an hour. After that she dared not wait any longer. The messenger, might become suspicious and leave. She went down stairs and put the bundle in Gyp's arms.

"You took your time," he growled.

"I'm terrible getting into her trunk. You are not to be bribed then?"

"If I was sure they wouldn't cut my throat. So long!" he jeered as he turned down the steps.

Hunt worked diligently the rest of that day, but when he saw Storm that night he kept silent. When the proper time came he would have a surprise for the young lawyer.

When the clothes came to Zudora she experienced the first bit of pleasure since her imprisonment. Clean clothes to a daily woman such as she was meant pleasure under any circumstances. She came upon the white thread and eyed it wonderingly. There had been no tear in that skirt the last time she had worn it. And Mrs. Ramsey certainly would not have used white thread. She felt the crinkle of paper under her fingers. In less than a moment she had the note in her trembling hand. She read it, then destroyed it and hid the bits of paper in the four corners of the room. Hunt would find her. The reaction caused her to break down and weep.

"IN THE PARK"

The old hag heard the sound but accredited it to a bit of sentimentalism.

Hunt did not go directly to the ship dock, instead he engaged a motorboat and a dandy. Even Baird was curious to learn what was going to happen.

"I'm not saying a word; just wait. There may be trouble; but I want the biggest trouble out of the way first."

"You know where Zudora is, and we are going for her!" cried Storm.

Hunt shrugged and gave the engineer orders. They left the motor about a quarter of a mile off the island and rowed toward the shore in the dinghy.

Zudora was always looking out of the window; and when she spotted the dinghy and a moment later recognized a familiar head, she almost fainted with joy.

Storm laid his finger against his lips and tossed up a rope's end, which she caught. She drew it inside and made it fast. Then Storm went up the rope in a flash. At the bottom of the rope was a slip noose. Into this Zudora put her foot, and Storm lowered her down to Baird and Hunt, following her quickly. They pushed off and began to row.

"My girl, my girl!" murmured Storm.

Zudora laid her head against his shoulder. She wanted nothing else in the world.

Baird sighed. He wondered if there was in all the world a woman for him.

"Where now?" he asked of Hunt.

"Why I thought that we'd run alongside the Aurora. If there's a bag of diamonds going overboard I'd like to hit on hand. Well, Miss Zudora, it took a long time to locate you, but we did it. Your wanting fresh clothes was a good idea. Now, Storm, when Baird and I reach the motorboat, you row to the old dock. There'll be a taxi near by. You get into it and hike home."

"God bless you, Hunt!" said Storm. "Don't let that worry you. Nothing pleases me better than to trip up a precious crook when he thinks he's got the better of it. Go home, and good luck to both of you. And Storm, if you let any one steal her away from you this trip, I'll take no hand in bringing her back to you. There you go!"

Hunt and Baird climbed into the motorboat and waved their hands. Storm took up the oars again.

"I'm so tired, John; so tired!"

"I've had no sleep for weeks; I've traveled a thousand miles and followed ten thousand clues. And I'd not have you in this boat, girl, but for the stroke of luck and a bit of foresight on the part of Mrs. Ramsey, who called up Hunt when the fellow came to get your clothes. Thank God, I have you back. We'll get the color back to your cheeks again; and by the way Hunt talks, there'll be a roundup of these precious rogues before another month is gone."

It was a long row to the main shore, but Storm was so happy that he took the note of time. There was a good deal of embracing when at length Zudora found herself in the arms of the motherly Mrs. Ramsey.

As Baird and Hunt neared the steamship Aurora, they saw another

WILL BE REPRESENTED

Western States to Protest Against the Passage of the Ferris Bill.

Idaho with the other water power states of the west including Oregon, Washington, Utah and Colorado and probably Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, North and South Dakota, will be represented at the important water power conference to be held at Portland in June for the purpose of discussing the Ferris bill and protesting against its passage by congress. This bill seeks to give additional federal jurisdiction over water power sites in the west. The last legislature in this state designated Governor Alexander as Governor Hawley, Representative Randall and others to attend the Portland conference. Information has just been received that Washington and Utah and the Colorado legislators passed resolutions to send delegates to the conference while the other states named received the Oregon memorial too late to pass upon it. Their governors will appoint delegates.

The Oregon memorial recites the same stand taken by the several western states with regard to water power sites in the following language: "That the title to the beds of all non-navigable streams and the water power within their banks now unappropriated and as yet not alienated by the state of Oregon, and the title to the beds of all navigable streams within the state of Oregon and the water power within their banks (subject only to the rights of commerce) is vested exclusively in the state of Oregon and the whole people thereof. "That the unappropriated or reserved or withdrawn government lands on the banks of said streams, wherein water power is available, when necessary to development of said power, are in no case of value equal to the value of the water power within said banks and owned by the state of Oregon.

"That the state of Oregon does not recognize that the proportionate value of said water power to the value of said lands necessary to its development is less than the ratio of 50 to 1. "That under such conditions, it is to the benefit of public policy that the government of the United States relinquish to the states its title to lands needed for water power development, under such terms as will safeguard the public from monopolistic or speculative control. "That of importance equal to the water power development is the creation of hydro-electric markets now interfered with by burdensome restrictions on the settlement of public lands and on the utilization of mineral and timber products, extending in Oregon alone over tracts equal to nearly 80 per cent of the area of the state." German Disclaims Responsibility for Loss of Lives by Submarines.

Washington — Government officials look upon conditions surrounding a statement from the German embassy, quoting an official message from the Berlin foreign office in which responsibility was disclaimed for the loss of any neutral lives on board the British steamer Falaba, recently sunk by a German submarine. "The claim is set up by German officials that the Falaba was not armed, and that military necessity made it impossible for the submarine to give any longer time than was allowed for the passengers to escape. State department officials say that the death of Lord C. Thresher, an American, lost while the Falaba, constitutes a complicated case. If the German view that all merchantmen being armed are in the category of warships is accepted, the rights of neutrals to travel aboard belligerent craft of any kind would be circumscribed. Furthermore, Germany contends that sufficient time was permitted for the escape of the passengers, and the intimation is given that if he was not included among those saved there was an act of negligence for which the Germans were not responsible. Early Tuesday President Wilson told cabinet that no steps had been taken diplomatically by the United States in the Thresher case, beyond efforts to obtain facts and circumstances under which Thresher was drowned. RESTRICT ISSUING OF PASSES

Short Line to Give Few Passes to Officials.

The Oregon Short Line will restrict issuance of free transportation to officers both state and county to the pure food commissioner and his deputies, the state veterinarian and his deputies, the public utilities commission and the sheriffs and their deputies. This, it is understood, is the information that will be transmitted in due course of time by E. E. Givins, vice president and general manager of the Oregon Short Line, to state and county officials applying, or to the public utilities commissioners. The public utilities commission was busy Saturday certifying to the various common carriers applications for transportation as made by state and county officials. There are many of these applications. They come from every department of state and from many of the sheriffs of counties. The Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Spokane & Inland, the Southern Idaho and other common carriers have notified the commission they will issue transportation—Capital News.

SOCIETY NOTES

Society items for this coming will be gladly received by The Times.

The Wednesday Auction Bridge club has been postponed for an indefinite length of time.

The Curry Teachers' association will meet at the Curry school house Friday to elect officers.

The Women's Home Missionary society will meet Thursday, April 8, at the home of Mrs. Kaylor.

Mrs. Hagar was hostess to a large number of ladies and their children on last Saturday. The youngsters found great pleasure in an Easter egg hunt and were later served with delightful refreshments.

The Aelreum club met last Friday at the home of Mrs. L. C. Thompson. Mrs. Starr gave an interesting book review on "Janice Meredith," followed by an informal discussion on "The Early Puritans." Only a small portion of the members were present.

The Country Women's club met last Thursday with Mrs. Otto Johnson. The hostess served very dainty refreshments and the meeting was an exceedingly interesting one. Mrs. Edward Botts gave most delightfully a book review on "The Harvester," by Gene Stratton Porter. The annual election will take place next Thursday at the home of Mrs. McRae.

Little Miss Lucille Aborn was a gracious hostess to a large number of her friends at a pretty luncheon on last Monday afternoon. The color scheme effectively used in table decorations was of yellow and white. In a guessing game Miss Mildred Wilson won first prize, while Miss Pearl Kaylor and Ruth Taylor won prizes in other contests. The little affair was in honor of Miss Lucille's birthday and her guests were: Misses Helen Fisher, Anna Malirik, Mattie McMansters, Angela Beckwith, Ruth and Gladys Taylor, Pearl Kaylor, Constance Hill, Gertrude and Alton Beal, Mae Alford, Lucy Munson.

"POTASH AND PERLMUTER"

Famous Comedy at Lavering Theatre Friday, April 16.

MEASLES PREVALENT IN IDAHO

Official News From the State Board of Health.

The person who knows, looks upon measles with fear in his heart, and will do may.

Persons who don't know, and their name is legion, go blundering on in their careless, unthinking, indifferent and almost daily, our children are paying the price in precious lives.

To the health officer alive to the facts and awake to his responsibilities there is nothing more perplexing and little that appears to be more in need of correction than the present day almost universal indifference to measles.

As a destroyer of child life measles holds a position very close to the top of the list. In Idaho in 1913, upwards of ten times as many little children were dug on account of this disease as were dug on account of that terribly dreaded disease, smallpox, and smallpox was quite prevalent throughout the state, too, some 884 cases being reported. It is very doubtful whether these reported deaths represent even a small percentage of those actually due to measles as many of these deaths are reported to be due to pneumonia.

In Idaho at the present time there are thousands of cases of measles and numbers of deaths are occurring. The widespread prevalence of the disease in its largest measure due to improper handling of the cases, to the looseness of quarantine, and in direct proportion to the ignorance, carelessness, indifference or lawlessness of parents and attendants.

Measles is a very unnecessary disease and no one should have it. To willfully expose a child to it is nothing short of criminal and to permit a child to go about spreading the infection among other children is, indeed, quite as serious an offense.

The suppression of measles is a matter of strict isolation of the infection bearer.

The state board of health, believing that the time has arrived to clamp down on the ill-measles, has recently formulated and promulgated rules of quarantine for measles which must be observed throughout the state of Idaho.

The new state rules governing measles, briefly stated, are as follows:

1. All cases of measles must be immediately reported to the local health authorities.

2. The front and rear entrances of the premises must be placarded with a red warning card.

3. The patient must be isolated for at least 14 days after the beginning of the disease or until all infectious discharges have ceased. Visitors are prohibited. Susceptible children of the family must be confined to the premises, but they be permitted the freedom of an enclosed yard in which they do not come in contact with other children.

4. The patient must be excluded from the schools and places of public gathering for at least three weeks from the onset of the disease. Susceptible children of the family must be excluded for at least 18 days from date of last exposure.

5. The sale of milk and food stuffs from infected premises is prohibited.

6. Before isolation is raised the patient must be given a disinfecting bath and a complete change of clothing must be made.

7. Public temples prohibited. However, adults and non-susceptible children may follow the remains to the grave provided they do not enter the carriage occupied by persons who have been in the infected building.

waterproof bobbing in the shadow of the liner. They both recognized the occupants of this launch, and it behooved them to act quickly.

"Look!" exclaimed Hunt. "There's that man Radcliffe leaning over the rail. By George. A hot water bottle filled with gems and air tight! It's sport to be on a case like this, Baird, which he drops it'll make for 'em. Only catch a good hold of my leg when I lean over. There it comes."

The bag struck the water with a plop, and after a moment bobbed up again almost under Hunt's hand. He reached down and grabbed it. Baird shouted something which he could not hear. As he strove to right himself a boat hook from the other knocked the bag from his grasp. A dozen seconds later the bag was in the boat Radcliffe had aimed at.

Then began a stern chase up the broad, shining Hudson. And more depended upon this chase than any of the six drowned.

NEW BANK LAWS

Several Important Changes Made by Legislature.

Several changes of importance to depositors were made in the state banking laws by the Thirteenth legislature. They relate to the checking out of trust funds and joint deposits, the removal of disability and the non-payment of checks through error. The amendments are similar to those of other states and were formulated by the American Bankers' Association. Litigation has frequently grown from attempts at trustees' possession of trust funds on deposit in banks. The law now clearly specifies how such funds shall be treated. The clause bearing on this point reads:

"Whenever any deposit shall be made in any bank, savings or trust company, by any person in trust for another, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given in writing to the bank, in the event of the death of the depositor the same or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom said deposit was made, or to his legal representative."

Affects Husband and Wife.

Joint deposits have always been a source of friction. In some cases, where money has been deposited to the credit of both husband and wife, either would draw out the money without the other's consent and complications would ensue. The new law treats a deposit of this kind in the following amendment:

"When a deposit has been made, or shall hereafter be made, in any bank, savings bank or trust company in the names of two persons, payable to either or payables to the survivor, such deposit or any part thereof, or interest or dividend thereon, if not then attached at law or in equity in a suit against either of said persons, may be paid to either or said persons, whether the other be living or not, and such payment shall discharge the bank, savings bank or trust company making such payment from its obligation, if any, to such other person or his legal representative, for or on account of such deposit. This action shall apply to husband and wife to all intents and purposes the same as to other persons."

Persons under disability are placed on the same basis as those not under disability under the new law.

The provision reading as follows:

"Whenever any minor, married woman or other person under disability shall make or credit in any bank or trust company in his or her name, such bank or trust company may pay such money on the check or order of such depositor, the same as in a case of depositors not under disability, and such payment shall be in all respects valid in law."

It occasionally happens that payment on a perfectly good check is refused in error and in such cases the writer of the check generally feels like going after the new law, or she, must prove that they have been damaged by the bank's mistake. The new provision reads:

"No bank or trust company shall be liable to a depositor because of the nonpayment through mistake or error and without malice of a check which should have been paid unless the depositor shall allege and prove actual damages by reason of such nonpayment and in such event the liability shall not exceed the amount of damage so proved."—Statesman.

TWO RANCH BARGAINS
 160 acres, 1 1/2 miles from town, 80 acres alfalfa, no better soil on this tract, land easily watered, fair improvements, rented this year for $1250 cash rent, which goes to buyer if sold soon. Price $10 per acre. This ranch is positively worth $10 per acre, good terms on future payments.

A NATURAL SHEEP RANCH
 760 acres 5 miles from town, 50 acres alfalfa, deep rich soil, good small house, price $60 per acre, easily worth $80. This is a natural sheep ranch, being well protected from west wind, additional adjoining land, which is absolutely as good soil as there is in this county, can be had to make a ranch of 2000 acres. If you are interested in sheep raising, investigate this proposition. It can be bought on very favorable terms.

End of Week Will Usher in Bread-Bakers

LIBERAL PRIZES OFFERED BY MILL & ELEVATOR CO

Girls of Domestic Science Department of High School Will Enter Cake Baking Contest.

Every woman in Twin Falls county who knows how to bake good bread will be given a chance to demonstrate that fact...

The bread baking contest will be held Saturday, April 17, and is open to everybody. The bread must be baked from Idaho flour and delivered to the City Pharmacy on Shoshone street by 1:30 p. m. Saturday...

At four o'clock the bread will be offered for sale, the proceeds to go to the Twentieth Century club. At the same time the Hoagshold Science girls of the Twin Falls high school under the direction of Miss Madeline Liberty will bake cakes...

Cooking demonstrations will be held the same afternoon from 2 to 6 at the offices of the Idaho Power and Light company, on Shoshone street, and the offices of the Great Shoshone and Twin Falls Power company on Main avenue. At the various groceries will be displays of Idaho, Utah and Northwestern canned goods, coffee, butter, etc., and some pleasant surprises await visitors.

The hotels and restaurants will have special Home Product menus every day during Home Industry week, and on Sunday, April 18, every family is requested to make a special effort to have a home product dinner.

FLOUR MILLS ARE IMPORANT

Two On Twin Falls Tract a Blessing to Producers.

DISTRIBUTE LARGE SUM ANNUALLY FOR WHEAT

Investments are Heavy and Payoffs Help to Keep Local Money in Constant Circulation.

The Twin Falls country is exceedingly fortunate in having two very thriving flour mills operating in its territory. These mills located at Kimberly and Twin Falls, are doing a great deal toward the growth of the community outside of the investment of large capital and the payment of taxes, in that they put into circulation a large sum for wheat purchased. By reason of the saving on freight the mills are able to pay a higher price than the market and for this reason one or two cents additional price have made money for many farmers. A careful estimate of the money paid out in 1914 for wheat by the two mills is $80,000 for wheat alone. On top of this each is distributing a handsome payroll to its employees which goes into the pockets of the business...

IDAHO HOME-INDUSTRY WEEK HAD ORIGIN IN TWIN FALLS

Four years ago Idaho Home Industry Week was born in Twin Falls, where so many good things have originated. At first it was only "Home Industry Day" and the Twentieth Century Club...

On March 2, 1912, the first real Home Industry Day was celebrated. The Twentieth Century club secured a vacant store room on Main avenue opposite the Hotel Perlin. A home product dinner was served, and ten young girls were dressed to represent the various Twin Falls industries. This "advance guard" consisted of Misses Margaret Wilson, LeRoy Williams, Charlotte Wiker, Vera Thomas, Alben Graham, Ethel Hayes (now Mrs. Kirk Hunt), Gladys Dwight, Thelma Senior, Edna Beauchamp and Margaret Gumbel.

The following year the Idaho Home Industry League was launched at Twin Falls by the Idaho Club Woman, and the second week in April set as the time for the observance of the first Home Industry Week. A monster meeting was held at the Idaho Yacht club at which producers, manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers gathered together for the common purpose of discussing the patronage of home industries. In the Boise Statesman's report of the meeting appears this excerpt:

"The meeting was called to order by Judge Fremont Wood, who was first made the permanent chairman of the organization. Judge Wood called attention to the fact that the purpose of Home Industry Week was to attract in every city and hamlet in the state and the women's clubs all over the state until Home Industry Week had become a part of the life of every city and hamlet in the state."

In 1914 the idea spread over the entire state, and Governor Haines and the first Home Industry Week proclamation. The movement had by this time gained such impetus that it attracted the attention of Editor's Weekly, and a half page article in that journal was the result.

This year the Idaho Club Woman started the campaign early and in December last sent out a New Year resolution to the club women of Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Utah, which read as follows:

- New Year Resolution for the Women of the Western States: "During the coming year I will do all in my power to help in the upbuilding of the manufacturing industries of the West: "First by purchasing products made in my home state. "Second, by purchasing products when not manufactured in my home state, from the nearest manufacturer in the West. "Third by using the consumption of home-grown fruits and vegetables. "Fourth by talking of the advantages accruing from Home Industry."

The generous response given this resolution is effectively demonstrated by the display of cards which will be made in the above window of the Book store during Home Industry Week. Each of these cards is signed by the president of a woman's club, and each card represents from a dozen to 500 women, so that the total who have pledged their club's aid runs into the thousands.

A proclamation similar to that of last year was issued March 25, by Governor Alexander, the date being April 12, 1915. This proclamation reads:

"That the upbuilding of home industries will always be found to be the best means of promoting the general prosperity and well-being of the people of Idaho, is shown by the general interest and enthusiasm which have manifested in the 'Made in the U.S.A.' movement which is sweeping the country.

"This is a national application of patronizing home institutions and which as were the patronage of our local industries, we are only bringing the movement closer home and giving it a definite and proper application.

"Believing that such a result can come of the observance of these underlying principles, and that we, as a state, can become prosperous as a result of:

- "Buying the products of our home manufacturers first. "Patronizing the industries of the Pacific Northwest and finally. "Purchasing goods made in the United States, endeavoring all the time to give the local-made goods the preference; and because this movement has already gained impetus in Idaho.

"Now, therefore, I, Moses Alexander, governor of the state of Idaho, do hereby proclaim and set aside the week beginning on Monday, the twelfth day of April, and ending on Sunday, the eighteenth day of April, as Home Industry Week and advise the careful observance of this period by all the citizens of the state in order that the principles may be thoroughly inculcated and the result will be a greater development of our Home Industries."

The resolution, which I have heretofore set on hand and signed the great seal of the state, is in effect the 30th day of March, 1915.

GEORGE R. BARBER, Secretary of State.

The original proclamation issued by Governor Haines and Alexander, Bill, is shown in the display at the "Book store" next week.

The movement has now spread to the entire Northwest and the women of these states will make a general observance of the week. In Utah the Home Product Week, which during the same general time, was observed April 1 to 7th. This early date was chosen because the Mormon conference at Salt Lake City was held that week and the excursion rates on the railroad were taken advantage of to bring the people of the state into Salt Lake City.

In the past year or so there have been innumerable orange weeks, raisin weeks, ready-made clothing weeks, etc., all of which originated with the producers or manufacturers. Home Industry Week is an exception in that it is set aside AT THE REQUEST OF THE CONSUMERS, and for that reason is likely to prove more beneficial to the manufacturer and in more far-reaching in its effect. During Home Industry Week the manufacturers will have special displays of western manufactured articles and a part of the business district will be both interesting and instructive. On Saturday, April 17, there will be a number of special demonstrations, and on Sunday, April 18, every family is urged to serve a home product dinner.

MANY NEW HOMES IN CITY

Total Improvement Poor Consolation for Knockers. Twin Falls city has no reason to feel pleasure over the record of building improvements in the year 1914, on the other hand the number of new, fire-proof homes erected will no doubt give the most conservative... Through the lumber yards with which the home-builders of the city must transact business and through personal investigation of the editor the figures have been obtained. Sixty-one homes have been erected in the city of Twin Falls and suburbs in that time. A careful estimate of the total cost will run slightly over a hundred thousand dollars. This does not include the potato growers' buildings, the new theatre, and the additions to the flour mill which will add at least $30,000 to this list.

Out in the farming sections the improvements are more numerous and more noticeable and are changing the crude look of an old settled community. To give the estimates of these is impossible, owing to the fact that materials for such buildings are supplied from a number of outlying lumber yards.

While the question of value in circulating money in this community is being considered, the newspaper and job printing offices, which are purely producing industries must be considered. The total value of the four plants in this city whose investment runs over thirty thousand dollars, and this industry employs a total of twenty-two men with a payroll that amounts to nearly $100 monthly. These men are ardent advocates of home industry and always "Kiss boys."

HIGHLY DEVELOPED LOCAL INDUSTRY

Many Automobiles Boosting Selling of Accessories

INVEST THOUSANDS IN HANDSOMELY-EQUIPPED GARAGES

Business Increasing in Twin Falls Beyond Expectation of Local Garage Owners.

Like all industries connected with the auto and manufacture of automobiles the growth of the firms in this city handling auto accessories and doing repairing has been phenomenal. Beginning with little equipment in a frame building, unable to accommodate more than one or two cars, six years ago the leading firms of this city well established in commodious fire-proof structures, which will care for the growth of the city for many years to come. The repair equipment capable of erecting any of the modern cars has grown in the same proportion until the garages of Twin Falls are prepared to furnish first aid to the injured auto in record time and in most cases the parts are also ready for the owner right in the city at some one of the many agencies.

The first automobile in the city of Twin Falls attracted as much attention as the first passenger train and that is going some. Strange to say Hank Ford landed one of his cars in among the first, a "litter" runabout which ran until there was nothing left to runabout. Since then Twin Falls and Twin Falls tract residents have taken to autos like ducks to the water until at the present time there are approximately five hundred cars in use in this county and the number is growing.

Good Roads on the Increase.

One of the prime factors in the growth of the automobile industry in this section has been the constant endeavor on the part of the citizens to improve the roads. In five years the transformation has been most successful until in every direction from the county seat, can be found finely built turnpikes, roads which will bear comparison with those of the east. These roads are being added to each year until the Twin Falls county will soon have a place with many older counties in older states for the progressive road building. With the advent of the automobiles on the ranch, and Twin Falls county having the most successful place has been given greater attention to the care and upkeep of the road until very few cases of road flooding are recorded each year in an irrigated country where water can be let away mighty easy. Where the natural desert roads once wound around through the scrubbrush, the whole country today is mapped out into orderly sections which are passable at any season of the year due to the expert road work which has marked the coming of the motor car. Twin Falls can well be proud of her garages and her agencies, which care for the different makes of cars. For from a beginning of the first small garage with only a few hundred dollars equipment, there are a number of splendidly constructed garages, with modern machinery and supplies running well over the hundred thousand dollar mark. A careful summary of this industry will show that despite the so-called hard times, the increase has not only been steady but phenomenal.

NEWSPAPER PAYROLL

Industry Often Scorned is Valuable Community Asset. While the question of value in circulating money in this community is being considered, the newspaper and job printing offices, which are purely producing industries must be considered. The total value of the four plants in this city whose investment runs over thirty thousand dollars, and this industry employs a total of twenty-two men with a payroll that amounts to nearly $100 monthly. These men are ardent advocates of home industry and always "Kiss boys."

MAKES HIS OWN LENS

Dr. R. A. Parrott Has Complete Establishment.

One of the most interesting sights to any person is the preparation of the blank glass into lenses to fit any eye. Such work is done for the most part in the larger cities and the opticians fitting glasses merely send in the prescription to the nearest large city where the lens is ground and prepared ready for mounting in the frame. Such preparing necessarily causes much delay. However, Twin Falls is fortunate in having an establishment in which not only the fitting is scientifically done, but the lens is ground and prepared, ready for mounting in a few hours.

Every known means of perfecting such grinding has been added to the equipment of the Parrott optical company, and with the experience of Dr. Parrott in lens grinding, ranked in the largest optical factory in the east, he is in a position to give prompt service to the people of Twin Falls. Dr. Parrott has demonstrated his ability to make good and is enjoying an ever-increasing practice each year.

ANTICIPATING THE FUTURE

Ostrander Lumber Company Prepared To Handle Big Business.

One of the progressive businesses of the Twin Falls country with headquarters in this city, a purely home concern is that of the Ostrander Lumber company, which in the early days of the city had faith in its future and erected substantial brick buildings and placed its sales department on a basis that will be sufficient for handling a growing business for years to come. Its president, E. J. Ostrander, has personal supervision over the selling force and has been developing new business in every town or city in which the company has placed yards. His energy has been instrumental in adding his firm to maintain a service department in connection with the largest saw-dime pieces, the skill in planning and figuring homes that the command of its patrons without extra cost.

During the last two years the Ostrander Lumber company has been attempting to interest farmers of the tract in the use of silos and as the direct result of its efforts, has induced several of the ranchers to erect silos and thus conserve the use of the food given the dairy cattle. In every single case the former thus interested has become enthusiastic and is now preparing the site way to his neighbors.

With fully stocked yards at Jerome, Wendell, Gooding, Hagerman, Bliss and Holbrook, the work of caring for the business details and general book-keeping falls upon the Twin Falls auditing and accounting department, in charge of D. C. Watson, secretary and treasurer of the company. Mr. Watson has been with the company since its beginning and is considered one of the best accountants in the city.

With an investment running into the hundred thousands, this company has despite the hard times been optimistic as to the future and with no greater overhead expense can if the occasion demands handle double its present business. The slogan of the Ostrander Lumber company "From the office across clear through to the yard in every one of its yards is "Quality Always."

DIRECT TO THE CONSUMER

Kinney Wholesale Company Pushing Out for Business.

One of the earliest firms in the commission business in Twin Falls, was that now managed by Ed Kinney. In the early days, The Falk Wholesale company, of Boise, began to note the vast amount of staple goods shipped right on the ground, established a branch house, built a substantial warehouse and office and went after the business. The management went to a Twin Falls man and it was here that Ed Kinney, part owner and manager of Kinney & Company, learned the fundamentals of the grocery business. Later, five years ago, Ed Kinney and an uncle, J. J. Kinney, of Sterling, Colorado, took over the business and changed the name to Kinney Wholesale Company. Since that time Ed Kinney has had entire charge, J. J. Kinney being engaged in extensive cattle business in Colorado. For three years the firm devoted its time to a commission business solely and handling lines for Falk Wholesale Company.

Two years ago Mr. Kinney, ever on the alert for increasing the scope of the business decided to enter the retail field, to the extent of furnishing household supplies to the consumer and has in the two years demonstrated the success of his theory. Every quarter a part of his commodities goes into the hands of the ranchers and housewives of the city with the result that a tremendous business has developed. The Kinney and warehouse, a commodious structure built in 1908, has since been augmented by two other big warehouses to supply the increasing business. The Kinney Wholesale Company is becoming very well known to the consumers on the Twin Falls tract due to the energy and business ability of Ed Kinney, who is one of the younger business men of the city. Last fall J. E. Kinney, a brother, entered into active participation of the business and secretary.

HAS HELPED BUILD HOMES

Nibley-Channell Lumber Company a Pioneer Builder.

One of the oldest lumber yards on the Twin Falls tract and one that has developed with the progress and growth of the tract and city is the Nibley-Channell Lumber company, which has its main offices in Twin Falls. C. B. Channell, the junior member of the firm, but the active director of the big business, was the first manager of the business, arrived in Twin Falls early enough to become identified with every housing move for a bigger and better Twin Falls. In the rush of building in the first three or four years, much of the progress and development was due primarily to the encouragement given the home builder. Much of the task of financing and planning the building of the homes fell upon the lumbermen and the Nibley-Channell Lumber company should greatly in the task of keeping the lumber moving under the most trying conditions, and also kept a large force of expert contractors when the building boom was at its height. For this reason they can well be classed as real home builders. Every movement for public good has had hearty support from this pioneer firm.

Four years ago Mr. Channell, together with several local men, platted what is known today as "Pasture 2," a section where many of the citizens of the city have chosen to erect their homes. The residences erected have been of a type worthy of a big city.

As a part of the development of this firm a number of yards have been established in the towns along the Twin Falls branch. In all towns handsome buildings and yards have been erected in harmony with the aim of the company to keep pace with the progress of the irrigated section.

POTATO SEED CUTTER

Invention of Idaho Man is Useful and Inexpensive.

Mr. W. T. Matthews, of Pocatello, has invented and is making a potato seed cutter, which for a light, inexpensive machine seems to be the best we have ever seen or heard of. The cutting principle is like the foot power machine, but this make is hand power. It stands a sufficient height to enable the business of a man to handle the cuttings. The potatoes are laid on a surface of knives and passed through with a hand lever which makes tolerably rapid work. The expense is $5.00 and anyone desiring one either write directly to Mr. W. T. Matthews, Pocatello, or to this office.

Need Treatment.

Now that the planting season is upon us we desire to issue some instructions on the matter of the control of various diseases. Any locality desiring full instruction on different diseases and their treatment, by application to this office and arrangements for a meeting can secure an address on the matter in full. In case this is done notify your members to bring samples of the potatoes they expect to use for seed. In this way practical illustrations can be given, and the treatment of the most common diseases explained.

List of Common Diseases.

COMMON SCAB: This is perhaps the most common disease in this state, and is well known to every potato grower. Seed treatment will kill the spores that cause Common Scab. It is not enough that the seed be treated for this disease will live over in the ground for several years.

FUSARIUM WILT: To detect this in seed stock, cut off the stem end of the potato. If there are dark spots running through the fibres in a short distance from the skin this is a sure symptom of this disease. Never, under any circumstances, plant such seed stock. This is a fungus disease which grows on the inside of the tuber and is detected by the dark rings underneath the surface. This disease does not manifest itself on the surface of the potato, therefore only by cutting can its presence be shown. This disease is most easily detected on the growing crop. At different stages of the growth the top apparently turns yellow and dies. The affection is inside the water-vein of the stalk from whence it has spread from the stem end of the tuber. In the growing season of the year, they are darker or sometimes almost black. Seed treatment will not kill this disease. The disease being inside the tuber. Potatoes showing this disease should never be planted. Infected potatoes not only carry the disease to next year's crop but also infect the soil for future seasons. This is perhaps our most serious potato disease on account of the difficulty in controlling it.

RHIZOCTONIA. This is a common fungus disease which forms tiny, hard dark specks or germs in colony groups on the outside of the skin of the tuber. Most people think that these are black dirt specks, but such is not the case. They stick firmly to the skin of the potato and attacks the roots underground. This kills the stalk in the same manner as Fusarium, but can easily be detected on pulling up the stalk, as the disease affects the outside of the underground stem and not the inside as does Fusarium. Usually if this disease is developed in the early growing stage it will entirely cut off the life of the stem underground, causing a large group of small, inferior tubers to form above the infection. Sometimes even to the extent of an aerial growth on the vines above the ground. If these dark specks are large upon the surface there is no known remedy which can be entirely depended upon to kill them; however, if only small specks appear in very small numbers they can be killed by the Corrosive Sublimato treatment. The ground when once inoculated with these germs is unsafe as potato ground for at least three to five years.

Methods of Control.

Professor Olin, formerly of this state, but now Agricultural Commissioner of the D. & R. G. Railroad, gives the following eight rules of control.

1. On clean ground, plant clean seed this year to grow, in a seed plot, seed stock for the general field next year.
2. Select seed potatoes in the field, before harvesting from hills with healthy vines which give good normal number of potatoes of uniform size to type and free from disease.
3. When forced to use his selected seed, make careful selection, discarding all potatoes which you find diseased. You must cut slices not over one-eighth inch thick from stem end of potato, in search for wilt disease, which works inside the potato.
4. Get disease free seed. If you find you have none of your own and you cannot find it yourself, write to your state experiment station to help locate seed stock free from disease.

5. Treat selected seed in your state experiment station.

6. Rotations of crops must be followed and seed stock not allowed to grow and carry over the disease.

7. Use Clover, alfalfa or pea land for potatoes when possible.

8. Unflinching persistent endeavor along these lines will enable us to stamp out these potato troubles, as effectively as hog growers of a given district control hog cholera.

Treatment.

All seed potatoes should be soaked in a solution of mercury bichloride (corrosive sublimate) four ounces in thirty gallons of water for one and one-half hours. Formalin treatment will not kill Rhizoctonia as completely as mercury bichloride. The solution should be placed in a wooden barrel or tank. It corrodes metal. It should be poured out and made up fresh after it has been used to disinfect four lots of potatoes. It is poison to eat but not to the touch. Treated potatoes should not be eaten or fed. After the potatoes have been treated they should be stored in new sacks which have been similarly disinfected in the solution. Described and recommended by Dr. Geo. R. Hill, plant pathologist Utah experiment station.

The corrosive sublimate or mercury treatment is also recommended and used by the Sweet Brothers of Denver, and is recommended by J. C. Jacobson, of Idaho Falls.

Recommendations.

Organization. While this central has been too much preoccupied in trying to get returns, prices, etc. it has neglected one very important feature of potato organization. If a potato organization in a community is to do its most effective work it should extend to other activities than merely the loading out of potatoes for market. Every local organization should make seed selection and administer treatment under the strict supervision of its manager or a committee appointed for that purpose. One set of machinery and one crew of workers could treat all the seed for any of our potato localities at much less expense than the same is being conducted now, and much more effective. It may be too late to take this matter up this season but I hope steps will be taken to carry it into effect for next year. Every man in every community should treat every potato he plants every year.

HELPING THE EXPRESS COMPANY

Sterling Dairy Products Company Makes Shipments.

Ten thousand pounds in one express shipment and that into the heart of its competitor's territory, was the record of the Sterling Dairy Products company into Portland, where two of the largest creameries of the West are located. The shipment of "Sterling Butter" is but one of many which have found their way into other states by parcels post and express. During 1914 over a half million pounds of butter was produced at this creamery, while the ranchers and dairymen received in cash approximately $140,000 for the milk and cream to produce that half million pounds.

Opening only four years ago in a country where the dairy cattle were few and expensive, the Sterling creamery, Mr. H. J. Youngs, had a colossal task to create any kind of a business. The factory was built and the machinery installed and the next step of getting milk cows occupied the time of the energetic manager. Cows by the carload were procured in the east, and shipped to Twin Falls to be resold to the farmers on easy terms.

The production of the creamery grew in space as the ranchers could see the value of a good fat pay check every month, rain or shine, summer and winter, irrespective of the price of farm products on the prevailing market.

The Sterling has an investment of approximately $50,000 and is distributing a big payroll every month with fifteen employees who patrol the home markets. It is indigestible like the creameries and other producing business concerns that are putting money into local circulation which comes from the outside to a large extent. They are bringing back part of the money which has gone out by investment to Easter capitalists.

HERBST & RAMBO

Well-Known Caterers Pass Fifth Milestone in Business.

Five years ago Herbst & Rambo entered the business circles of Twin Falls in their present handsome quarters and in a very short time by the excellence of the service given, have built up a splendid business which has greatly increased up to the present time. The modest little business due to the industry of the proprietors, has become one of the substantial fixtures of the business life of the city and is the result of many of the business men of the city—for the tasty midday luncheon served there.

In addition to the quick meals, Herbst & Rambo have a thriving candy business, most of the products sold over the cases being the output of the cleanly factory at the rear of the store. This portion is directly under the supervision of Mr. Herbst, an expert candy maker.

In the early days, when banquets were almost out of the question anywhere in the city due to a lack of room, the above men gained a reputation for catering which made them extremely popular with the public. For a long time the noonday luncheons of the Twin Falls Commercial club were made possible by the skill of Herbst & Rambo. At the present time the leader of the city in the food supply help in the preparation of desserts and feasts, which are delivered all over the city.

MANUFACTURES JEWELRY

W. H. Priebe Has Modern Jewelry Store.

A young man hailing from Waterville, Washington, entered the jewelry business in Twin Falls six years ago in the firm of Gilbert & Priebe and in a short time became a part of the social and business life of the city. He was an optician by nature and in the small city saw the possibilities of the greater Twin Falls. When the present handsome quarters of Priebe's Jewelry Store was selected for expansion every move of Mr. Priebe, now sole owner, was made with the view to anticipate the demands of a city of fifty thousand.

Beautiful fixtures rarely seen outside of big "showers" jewelry establishments were placed in the handsome room and a stock for a big retail trade was secured to wait the growth of the city for realization of his enterprise. Without a doubt there is not a single jewelry store in Idaho today that will surpass the tastefully planned store room which today makes the Priebe Jewelry Store the pride of the city.

Coupled with the jewelry repairing business the proprietor has installed an optometrical parlor with an expert in charge, which has enjoyed an over increasing business.

In the past two years Mr. Priebe has added a jewelry manufacturing department to utilize native ores of the Intermountain section, and at the same time, is a mighty though on a small scale, is a mighty complete department with modern machinery.

THE LIVE CANDY MAN

P. Varney Makes Candy for the Kiddles.

At any time of the day one can see the little children with their faces tight against the window admiring the bewildering array of candies set out for their delight by Varney, the live candy man. Candy houses, candy dogs and cats, candy of every hue, and description is made in the clean factory at the back of the store. Mr. Varney is another optimist of the Twin Falls variety who believes in seeing the limit when he knows a proposition is sound. From a small room with limited facilities, his last year was in a large and commodious store room, where lunch tables, a handsome soda fountain and other equipment was added to give the public the best of service. Over the candy factory and the culinary operation the proprietor himself presides, and is keeping up his reputation as a first class caterer.

For luncheons and private parties Varney maintains a room for the preparation of ices and sherbets and Erick ice cream. A number of new and delicious desserts have been created for his patrons from his own recipes.

Mr. Varney has a fine fruit ranch near the city and has for a number of years made all of his own fruit preserves and syrups at the ranch—home made products that appeal to the appetite.

A BOON TO FARMERS

First Flour Mill Aided Wheat Growers to a Market.

The first flour mill in the Twin Falls country was in possession of the hustling little town of Kimberly and is entitled to a place in the long list of Twin Falls home industries both by reason of its pioneering in the field and because of the excellence of its product, "Arrow Flour." Built by an expert mill man who had learned the canal, the mill took its name from its source of power and was christened "The Electric Mill." For several years the mill with a capacity of a hundred barrels per day was the means of producing better profits for wheat to the farmers, who were handicapped by the heavy freight charges of the early days. It has enjoyed a steady and splendid patronage, up to its full capacity due to the excellence of its product and the Arrow Flour is known and because of the excellence of its product, "Arrow Flour." Built by an expert mill man who had learned the

CLEAR THE DESERT

Hendricks Sagebrush Grubber a Great Aid to Planners.

Hacking away at the tough sagebrush roots with a hand mix was a very slow process and at the same time a very expensive one, yet for years the only method known for clearing the irrigated lands. Noting the difficulties and the expense to the settlers, T. B. Hendricks, in 1906, who was one of the first blacksmiths in the city, decided to turn his mind to the task of inventing a grubbing machine. Many crude looking and ineffective models were made and tried and then cast aside, and the task again taken up. The first Hendricks grubber made strongly of a wooden frame and heavy metal knives proved the key to the problem of cutting the tough roots just below the surface and opened up a very profitable manufacturing field for its inventor—later finding the access to the proper woods for a durable wooden grubber out of the question, the Hendricks machine was turned out one of the largest machine and blacksmith shops in the city, has placed his grubbers in nearly every state in the west and is still shipping to sections where the irrigation and dry farming is taking the place of the desert plains.

As the oldest firm in this line of business the Blue Lakes Bottling Works has enjoyed an increasing patronage and its bottled goods are sold generally all through Southern Idaho. Last year the firm added a new line in the manufacture of cider and vinegar, and has equipped substantially its plant in care for the production of both. By a special process the cider is kept pure and sweet and cannot be distinguished from the freshly-milled article.

During the nine years of activity in Twin Falls, the proprietors of the bottling works have been identified with all the boosting moves and have loyally shouldered their share of the community burdens.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS ISSUE

While from the standpoint of remuneration for the publisher, the Home Industry, edition is not a howling success, the purpose of the issue will be served, if it will make the people of this country realize how much is owed to the small home enterprises which year after year add to the wealth and stability of the new country. It is for the purpose of the editor to preach a trade-at-home sermon to the consumers but in a general way bring home to farmers and dwellers in the city alike, the thought that out of the bulk of a number of struggling industries representing a total payroll of forty thousand dollars monthly, is the general prosperity of the whole community. That to wipe out these industries through non-support and indifference and the city and street inevitably loses not only that well-circulated money, but loses in a thousand ways by the curtailment of other business and by the falling off in products consumed for which the farmer and the grocer, the merchant and the retailers generally receive a handsome portion of their business.

In this issue is contained only those firms who are considered in the producing line and while the list cannot be closely drawn, none of the retail merchants have been approached for support of the edition although just as much concerned in the creation of a home industry spirit among the people. Without a single exception the editor was given hearty encouragement by those approached who are beginning to realize that better relations between consumer and producer, merchant and purchaser must come through better knowledge of the problems of each. The write-ups of the individual firms in the issue is the result of the personal investigations of the editor, who in his nine years residence in Twin Falls has grown to know the problems which make business conditions hard for all. The person who gets the idea that enormous profits have accrued to the storage industry should note the fact that most of the men who have courage and development are still hoping for a return for the efforts and the money invested and that in few cases have those hopes been realized. These men are the optimists of the nation, take them anywhere you will and Twin Falls has had many of them.

Home Industry Week will mean nothing. Can mean nothing unless the germ of the idea inculcated during this one week grows during the other fifty-one and takes hold of the purchasing public. The man who believes that he can succeed through the failure of his neighbors has not studied economic conditions with any degree of care and is doomed to future himself. Home Industry does not mean the promulgation of a socialist doctrine by business men or laborer or any one of the many units which make up a community life. Home Industry means in its essence your concern in the welfare of your neighbor and is the promulgation of the golden rule.

The story of a Russian soldier, who, true to his army traditions, remained at his post after the officer who placed him there had been killed, refusing to be relieved by any other but those of his officer or the czar himself. For this heroic devotion to duty he has been rewarded. It may have been fine obedience, out from an American standpoint, it was very poor common sense.

ROAD DRAG IS INEXPENSIVE

Constant Attention is Price of Good Roads—Objection That Too Much Money is Spent on Grader.

(By C. SCHULTZ.)
I have watched the use of the road drag and the grader many times this summer. The drag leaves the road in better shape—the grader piling roughage in the middle while the drag smoothes it off nicely. But the greatest objection is that the drag is not used often enough. Constant attention in the price of good roads, and the use of the drag is so inexpensive that good roads by its use can be obtained, or would be if the money were not spent in using the grader with four teams and two men. That's the way the money goes.

Permanency of Bridges.
Concrete bridges for roads are the kind that spell permanency. Between thorough outfits and heavy motor cars the county with shabby bridges is in for trouble.

AN APPRECIATED HOSPITAL

Institution of Early Days Has Expanded with City

In the days when the sun beat down with pitiless persistence upon the dust and sage brush and ditch water, unfiltered and bearing the filth of the new exhumals was the beverage of the settlers, a serious problem confronted the community. Sick men were not wanted in the crowded rooming houses and hotels. There was no place to put them nor a hospital to receive them short of Boise or Salt Lake City. To supply the needed hospital the energies of Dr. T. O. Boyd were directed with the result that in 1905, the Twin Falls hospital became one of the regular institutions of the tract, first being located in a small frame structure, later a slightly larger frame building, took care of the invalids. In 1907 the corner quarters in the present Boyd block gave relief for a short time from the crowded conditions. But through it all was the purpose of Dr. Boyd to have a modern up-to-date hospital which should be a credit to the city. So a year later plans were gotten out for the main building of the present handsome structure. It was pushed to completion.

From all up and down the Twin Falls branch railroad patients came pouring in and it was but a short time till the increased patronage demanded first one wing and then the other until the present substantial structure resulted through the energy of one man.

Today the Twin Falls hospital has a capacity of thirty patients and it is obliged most of the time to hold back patients until a room is emptied. Its reputation has been built up through the efforts of a splendid staff of nine consulting specialists and physicians, who are capable of giving services equal to that of many larger cities. Its operating room has witnessed an average of one major operation per day for the past two years and the number of recoveries on an average are higher than for many large hospitals.

In connection with the hospital is maintained a perfectly equipped X-Ray machine and Fluoroscope with which Dr. Boyd has been able to do some wonderful work in repairing difficult fractures and dislocations, as well as in the use of many operations. Misses Crockett and Nash, the managers of the hospital are entitled to much credit for the success which has attended the operations and the convalent period. Despite the difficulty of obtaining experienced nurses at times they have by their own personal efforts established a perfect system in caring for the many patients. The Twin Falls hospital is one of the home institutions, which is certainly appreciated and patronized.

GROWN UP WITH THE COUNTRY

Twin Falls Sash & Door Company the First in Field.

Probably the very first of the infant industries to enter the new irrigated territory opened ten years ago in the Twin Falls country, was the planing mill and sash and door factory, established by Adatus & Pilgerstin, experienced mill men from Oregon, who were attracted to the new Idaho metropolis very early in the history of the city. A very substantial mill and lumber yard was their contribution to the bustling little city and in the early days the firm played a very important part in the growth of the city by the speedy delivery of mill work to keep pace with the demands made upon it by the rushing in of hundreds in a day. And through it all the firm kept up the same high standard of workmanship which is today making its millwork set the pace for outside concerns.

In 1912 the senior member of the firm, George Adams, retired and Mr. Pilgerstin incorporated the business as the Twin Falls Sash and Door company and broadened the scope of endeavor by putting a man on the road to push new lines produced in the plant for the first time. Boxes for the fruit growers of the tract was the aim of Mr. Pilgerstin who placed expensive machinery for that purpose. Each year is seeing larger number of loyal Twin Falls fruit growers place their orders with a none concern, but still the big plant can care for a great many more. The manufacture of bee hives was also attempted about this time and today forms a very important part of the output of the mill.

Something of the growth of the business can be realized when from a four man plant in 1906, the present force includes fifteen men and distributes a payroll each month of approximately $1100. Over six hundred thousand feet of lumber is converted into finished products in this mill every year. Mr. Pilgerstin has had faith in the Twin Falls tract and invested every dollar in putting out Twin Falls products that are as good as those produced elsewhere and much better in many cases. His apple boxes should be the receptacle for products of every orchard on the tract if the people are going to live up to the proper standard of loyalty. The firm should not be short of the full capacity of its plant.

HAS HAD RAPID GROWTH

Western Auto Company Featuring the Ford Cars.

Among the pioneer automobile firms of the city and one that has kept pace every way with its growth is the Western Auto company, which is located today in a handsome brick fire proof building and is handling a large amount of the automobile business of the city. Starting in a little room on Shoshone street north, now occupied by another business, the Western Auto company began the erection of a sheet steel and concrete building on the same street but nearer the railroad station. In this building, under the direction of Hurl & Bellville and later L. A. Hanson, the company began building up a business which has continually increased.

In October, 1912, the business was purchased by a group of business men and shortly after incorporated with George R. Enselby as manager. In the spring of the next year the company moved to its present commodious quarters and blossomed out as the Ford agency.

While entering to a large extent in the complete equipped repair shop to the ill of the Ford, the competent and skillful mechanics have established a reputation for mending almost any member of the auto family and the business of the firm has grown by leaps and bounds.

Many Fords have come and gone through the Western Auto company's selling force, only to have their places taken by more Fords until on any road in the Twin Falls country, you will feel lonesome without seeing the busy little cars running along neck and neck with the bigger and higher priced machines.

Coupled with the repair service and the selling force this firm has assembled in their stock rooms, parts enough to rebuild any one of Henry Ford's pets, while the stock of tires and accessories runs into the thousands of dollars. Service is the motto of this firm and Manager, Enselby is fast spreading his "Gospel of Service" to the branch agencies which he has established in the surrounding towns. Ford service is everywhere for the Ford owners of Twin Falls county.

BELIEVES IN TWIN FALLS

Twin Falls Milling & Elevator Company Occupies Big Plant.

J. K. Mullens, of Denver, Colorado, and one of the biggest millers in the west, evidently believes in the Twin Falls tract and is not afraid to spend his money in reaching out for more business. As a result of his faith the Twin Falls Milling and Elevator company's business has grown every year and with it the size of the plant and warehouses. Reaching out for more wheat with which to keep the big mill running, the company has established elevators all over the tract, great big concrete structures representing a big outlay of money, but at the same time insuring permanent "high" law cost of upkeep. To put the best of everything into any project is typical of Mr. Mullens.

L. E. Breckenhite, the manager of the Mullens interests for the Twin Falls country, learned the Mullens methods under the head of the firm in Colorado and has been an able exponent of the art of pushing things to the front. From an elevator with a small first-mill outfit, the addition of a splendid six-hundred barrel flour mill added to the bulk of the property looming up near the Short Line tracks. The mill was complete. It was modern and was constructed of brick with the same idea of permanency which has marked the moves of the company at all times. The outlay of money for buildings has been a vast help to the money circulated in this city. The still bigger sum spent each year among the farmers for wheat means a local circulation that has made money much easier at all times.

Last year the company began the erecting of large brick warehouses on its property and today the Twin Falls Milling & Elevator company occupies with substantial buildings all its large plot and represents a payroll monthly of a good many hundred dollars.

Idaho flour made in the big mill has a well known local fame among the housewives due to the educational campaigns conducted during home industry week from year to year. While only a small part of the big output of the mill finds a local sale, the company, through selling agents, has created and now holds a wide stretch of territory in the Southern states and sends many train loads out yearly to that section. One order in nineteen thirteen crossed the Pacific to find an already created market among the staid-eyed, capitalists and provided an opening for a much bigger trade.

EXCELSIOR

Gloystein Brothers Putting the Well Known Cycle on the Map.

The good old X motorcycles have made a marked success in the Twin Falls country, both for economy of upkeep and cheapness of operation. Excelsiors go anywhere that any other cycle will go and they will go where some of the others left not.

Loads and had roads are alike to the sturdy little machine which pulled the steep pitch on the Shoshone falls grade with five people on it—a total load of 650 pounds and did it easily. It is a record not equaled by any other cycle and by a number of four wheeled cars.

Gloystein brothers, white young men in the business life of the city, are among the early pioneers and with their father, C. F. Gloystein, helped to make the Twin Falls tract a net work of improved farms. They are still optimists and have invested a large sum in the motorcycle accessory manufacturing business. The city strain service department is right up to the minute.

A HOME SEED COMPANY

Duggan Brothers Filling a Place in Country's Development.

Six years ago two brothers already deeply interested financially in the farm lands of the greater Twin Falls tract, established a new business in the city—a seed business which aimed to provide pure seeds to the ranchers and keep the profits at home instead of allowing everything to go to Salt Lake City and out of the community. The business, owing to accessibility and the energy displayed by the members of the firm, grew apace. The frame building next to the Felt Contracting Shop on Shoshone became cramped for the stock carried and the present building of brick was the out-ward outgrowth. In this handsome building Duggan Brothers have gathered a big seed stock of every variety from garden seeds clear through the list to the last want of the rancher.

Supplies for the orchardist and the poultry owner and the bee-man occupy a place in the big stock. In fact, the plough, seedmen have endeavored with marked success to supply every want in the way of seeds and are reaching out each year for new business. A large illustrated catalogue of their stock finds its way into the hands of the people of the tract and a very flourishing mail order business has sprung up with the outlying towns as a result.
