FOURTH PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Celebration Will Interest All People.

BIG AUTOMOBILE PARADE PROMISES TO BE A WONDER

Comfort of Women and Children Will be Ample Provided for by the Committee.

The program for the big 4th of July celebration is about completed and promises something doing every minute of the day. It is to be held at 9 o'clock with a band concert by the Twin Falls band, on the corner of Main and Shoshone streets, and from then until midnight or later if people desire it, the fun will continue. Special attention this year will be given to the automobile parade, which will start at 10:30 in the forenoon. Everyone is interested in making this celebration a success, and the committee has every car in the county decorated and in this parade. A. L. Swim is in charge of this parade and will be glad to give any help or suggestions needed. At the Commercial club is a large book of floral and decoration designs for autos will be open to all and everyone is requested to consult this book, or at least get their car decorated and get in line. Fifty dollars is the first prize, thirty dollars the second and twenty dollars for the third prize for the best decorated auto. Get busy and try and pick one off. Everyone owning a car, whether decorated or not, is invited to get in line, and join in the parade. We want to show our visitors a real auto parade, and its up to you.

London.—The Russians have lost Lemberg. They occupied the Galician capital from the Russian army, continuously until Tuesday, when the combined Austro-German forces compelled them to retreat from the city. It is only 40 odd miles to the nearest point of the Russian frontier. Whether the fall of Lemberg means the Russian army, south of it in southeast Galicia is actively cut off from the army to the north, according to reports from the Baltic coast yet to be said. The newspapers of both Vienna and Berlin say this is the case and that the Russian army is being driven from which they cannot recover.

Three Creek Pioneer Dies from Injuries

Horse Slips on Side of Hill and Falls on Rider

W. Lee Mauldin Brought to Hospital with Crushed Body, Dies on Wednesday.

W. L. Mauldin, better known in Twin Falls county as "Doc" Mauldin and a pioneer of Three Creek, died at the Twin Falls hospital as the result of injuries received by a horse falling on him. Mauldin makes his home at the "Brigade" ranch at Three Creek. While riding his horse along a hillside, the animal slipped, turned over completely, pinning and crushing the rider beneath.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS INDICTED

Thomas Taggart, National Committee Man, Must Answer to Charge

Indiana Police June 22—An indictment charging an election conspiracy was returned today against more than 100 persons, including several high party officials, by the Marion county grand jury here. The charges are based on the election last November, when Taggart, national committee man, and the primary in May, 1914. Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committee man for Indiana, Mayor Joseph B. Bell, chief of Police Samuel Perrott, Fred Barrett, city attorney, and also Democratic county chairman Robert Metzger, former chief of police, Republican member of the board of safety, and Frank I. Baker, former county prosecutor, are among those named in the indictment.

Some time ago the Times called attention of the business men to the outrageous toll charges made by the Great Shoshone & Twin Falls Water Power company for the ferry at Shoshone falls. While the matter has been taken up in a way by the Commercial club, set on foot action by all the business interests is necessary if anything is to be done. There is no question but what the rates are unjust and higher than anywhere else in the state. There is no question but what the utilities commission allowed this rate due to representations of the power company without the hearing of the other side. Now it is up to the business men of this city to get busy and insist by petition that the rates be reviewed. Another thing which should be taken up is the matter of service at the ferry. There is no right of passage in expecting one man to do twenty-four hours duty at that ferry or that the public which is paying a high rate should be compelled to wait upon the one-man ferry which that ferryman has worked from sixteen to eighteen hours per day.

SHOULD PROTECT PROPERTY OWNERS

The almost total destruction of the frame store building next to the Rogerson hotel yesterday morning brings up a very pertinent question to the city council. How far can owners of such frame buildings go in the matter of replacing such structures with more fire proof construction? If Twin Falls businessmen are to ever become merchants and a better assortment of goods, but for everything being there it is the big town of the tract. Merchants can just as well guarantee make an end to the wooden building which today jeopardize all property in the business section. It is not a case of showing favoritism to any man or property owner, but the need for the city to protect the property owner, who by a substantial building enhances the prosperity and reputation of the city. Frame structures built before 1900, can not be erected out until so dilapidated as to be a menace to surrounding property. It is to be hoped that the city council, if it has the power, will forbid any further wooden additions to the business district. If it does not now have the power then it should at once set to work to create such right by effective ordinance.

A GOOD BUSINESS INVESTMENT
Now that Twin Falls has situated a fine company and concerned the people have had a fair chance to judge of the merits of such an attraction, the difference of opinion which developed is somewhat puzzling. Some want the same plan for next year and are ready to sign up the guaranty. Others are opposed of the ground that the Chattanooga hurt business and will not sign any guaranty. While taking into consideration the claims of the latter, The Times sincerely hopes that nothing will prevent the coming of the Chattanooga next year.

For the sake of argument the Times will grant that the Chattanooga did not hurt business directly in any direct extent. It will admit that the Ellison-White company look out a large amount of money from the county, possibly more than it brought in. It will admit that all attractions, are not immediate money makers for business circles, but that are some things which Twin Falls business men should remember and make allowance for. One is that the people who are at the year round bringing money to Twin Falls are going somewhere to get their amusement. If Twin Falls does not provide it, those of Salt Lake will attract them with the result that many dollars worth of goods, now brought here will be brought back with the amusement sector on return from outside points. Instead of two and one-half dollars per person going out on a Chattanooga ticket, ten times that amount will be spent in seeking amusement elsewhere. Another point which should be considered strongly by every merchant is the psychology of getting the people of this county thinking to Twin Falls, not alone for merchandise and a better assortment of goods, but for everything being there it is the big town of the tract. Merchants can just as well guarantee seventeen hundred dollars toward up a hitting amusement like the Chantaquas, as to go down every year in their pockets for a big Fourth of July celebration. The latter does not help business for that day or week; neither does a carnival of a circus. The whole idea is put the setting the people in town for one day, to take their money away from them, but to make them look toward Twin Falls, first, last and all the time as the center of attraction.

MR. BRYAN'S SPLIT WITH THE PRESIDENT

After the exclamations of amazement at the unprecedented and dramatic resignation of the secretary of state at national complication, and after the first flood of denunciation, another one which filled the press, editors, Washington correspondents, and politicians have settled down to consider the political and diplomatic consequences of the event. Despite Mr. Bryan's declaration that he left the cabinet to work in the cause of peace, and despite the insistence of the president, the retiring secretary, and many of their friends upon the continuing political accord of the two great Democratic leaders, assertions persist that the break has embarrassed rather than added the peaceful solution of our dispute with Germany, and that a struggle for Democratic leadership is impending which will lead to anything but peace in the party ranks. Says the Mobil-Ranger (Dem.), for instance: "If Germany is misled into actions still further violation of her rights, the resultant hostility will be very largely attributable to Mr. Bryan, whose sole idea is peace." And the Republican correspondents in Washington are rejoicing in the vision of a Democratic catastrophe in 1916 paralleling that of their own party in 1912. Almost every important act in the militant political career of William Jennings Bryan has drawn down upon him both abuse and vilification. So today, we find Eastern papers attacking him as a leader for withdrawing the post which they have repeatedly urged him to leave, while on the other hand we discover faithful Democrats like the Indiana politician who, has such faith in the "Fearless Leader" of former campaigns that, before knowing the details, he did not hesitate to assert that Mr. Bryan was right, because "he has always been right." Yet, speaking broadly and generally, it appears from their utterances that the press of the nation and state officials and other spokesmen who choose to speak stand with Mr. Wilson, rather than with Mr. Bryan, in so far as the issue is clearly drawn between them.

Mr. Bryan has for nearly a score of years been the most commanding figure in the Democratic party. It is to his influence that the success of the Wilson legislative program has been largely attributed by observant Washington correspondents. But within twenty-four hours the Democratic press of the country had acknowledged their support of President Wilson in taking those steps which drove Mr. Bryan from the chief place in the cabinet.

Says the New York World, whose vigorous sentences well express the views of several of its contemporaries: "We are not questioning Mr. Bryan's sincerity in this matter. We are not denying the honesty of his convictions and the integrity of his purpose. For these we have only the highest regard for the moral courage which he displays in resigning the most responsible office in the cabinet rather than be a party to a policy. What we are impeaching is Mr. Bryan's judgment."

At the cabinet meeting which discussed the original draft of the Lansing note of May 13 every eventual was carefully considered. "The unsatisfactory nature of the German reply was foreseen. The American answer was foreseen. The possible suspension of diplomatic relations was foreseen. After the discussion had ended, Mr. Bryan accepted the judgment of the president as his judgment and the verdict of the cabinet as his verdict."

"If he could not conscientiously support the administration's policy in respect to the German submarine warfare, the time to have discovered it was then. The time to have resigned was then. To wait until he had signed the name to the first note, to wait until Germany's reply had been received, to wait until the president's inevitable answer had been formulated, and then resign—that is to subject his government and his country to an embarrassment for which there is neither excuse nor extenuation, however, noble Mr. Bryan's ideals may be and however sensitive his conscience may be in respect to these ideals."

No less emphatic is the generally more friendly Philadelphia Record. After remarking that "the biggest popular vote William J. Bryan ever has received will endorse his resignation from the cabinet," it says: "If Mr. Bryan had deliberately and traitorously endeavored to defeat the ends for which the president and the nation are working—if he had purposely sought to strengthen the hands of the German government in the pending negotiations—if he had intentionally tried to convey to Berlin the impression that there is an appreciable division of sentiment in the United States as to the course to be pursued in enforcing respect for the lives and property of American citizens jeopardized by human and submarine warfare, he could hardly have conceived of a more striking method than to tender his resignation—conditioned on the sending of the note—on the eve of the dispatch of that important document."

"Mr. Bryan has been tried by the touchstone of loyalty in a great crisis and found wanting." Going farther South and West, we find less denunciation of Mr. Bryan. Says a San Antonio paper: "But as the Helmhold-Times-Dispatch observes, 'it is Wilson, not Bryan, who strikes the note today to which the hearts of the American people respond and with which they heartily sympathize.' And as the St. Louis Republic puts it, 'the American people will not fail to give Mr. Bryan full credit for his sincerity, his patriotism, his good spirit, but in the issue now joined the country is with the president.' And with these sentiments Democratic papers like the Buffalo Courier, New York Times and Telegraph, Cleveland State Leader, Wilmington Register, Louisville Courier-Journal, Memphis Commercial Appeal, Atlanta Constitution, Savannah News, Mobile Register, Montgomery Advertiser, Charleston News and Courier, and New Orleans Times-Picayune, all substantially agree."

"Perhaps still more representative of party opinion are the views of the Democratic national committee. The replies of a dozen of them to a New York Times inquiry last week characterized generally by faith in the president, disbelief in the possibility of disruption in the party, and an unwillingness to criticize the retiring secretary of state. A typical utterance is that of Robert Ewing, the Louisiana committee man:

"Mr. Bryan has resigned because of differences with the president over the method of handling the German situation, but it is known that he will continue to support the president on all other matters. Hence, I can not see how any harm is to come to the Democratic party by his resignation, more especially in view of the fact that the American people appear to be overwhelmingly in favor of the firm policy of the president with Germany." In the Republican press, of course, may be found condemnation of Mr. Bryan on almost every possible ground. Some editors, it is true, congratulate him for leaving the cabinet when he could no longer honestly remain, but they can find no excuse for his attacks upon the policy laid down in the Wilson notes. "Others, who have regarded him as 'maniacally unscrupulous' can not forgive his 'description of the president at a moment of grave international complication.'" To some his pacifist views seem as reprehensible as his choice of a time for publishing them. Mr. Bryan's act in the New York Herald's (Ind.) opinion, closely resembles treason. Even those who, like the New York Evening Post (Ind.) give him credit for good intentions, finds his thoughts "muddled to an almost inconceivable degree." To classes—members of institutions—would be to call the roll of the independent editors of the East and the Republican press of the whole country. The possibilities of embarrassment in our negotiations because of the appearance of lack of unity behind the president are touched upon by many of these journals, and have been noted in our quotations from Democratic sources. But there are many who believe the resignation will really aid the negotiations. As the Wisconsin Journal says, "It will emphasize to the German government that President Wilson means what he says, and that with the people of the United States at his back he is determined to block the devilish progress of barbarism even if he has to sacrifice cabinet officers to do it." The New York Tribune "can not see how Mr. Bryan's secession from the cabinet can weaken our diplomatic position." For—"His retirement is not a sign to all the world that the Wilson cabinet is divided. On the contrary, it is a sign that the Wilson cabinet has ceased to be divided." "The German government may have had reason to think that Mr. Bryan's attitude was the attitude which public opinion here would ultimately sustain. It has no excuse for thinking so now."—Literary Digest.

AGRICULTURE NEWS LETTER

There is a tremendous increase of interest in the county agriculturalist or farm adviser movement. In Idaho, says H. H. Hochbaum, state leader of the work. Several counties are working to secure the appointment of a man and hope before long to have the work started. This is due to the fact that the men now in the field are helping farmers in a dollars and cents way. They lead in the fight against diseases of animals and crops, insect pests, are on the job to give practical help and not only advice. A splendid example of this work is shown by the experience of Franklin and Canyon counties. Here, the agriculturalists are on the job fighting for citizens. They address meetings, interest the people to work together, to protect themselves and stop the spread of this dread disease, and give information, on the ever, they do not stop here. They are not "white collar farmers." They get in the mud, treat the bugs and trap the varmints clean up and so on. By this work they are saving the farmers thousands of dollars. The farmers, too, are building their own to help them and are anxious to cooperate.

The Canyon county agriculturalist, W. F. McCall, is working a tremendous deal in the fight against grasshoppers and cutworms. It is on the job to show as well as give advice. Mr. J. A. Morrison, the Franklin county adviser, is working in this way against the alfalfa weevil. He has also given valuable service in the fight against blackfly. These men help in a practical "every-day-in-the-week" "bitch in and help out way" that not only saves the farmer loss, but gives the whole community to work together on the problem.

"I've noticed something mighty funny about this agriculturalist movement," said Mr. Hochbaum. "Farmers who do not know about the work may back the game the hardest, have all sorts of objections, while in counties where an agriculturalist is employed, the farmers eagerly want themselves of the practical help. Why in Caldwell, the other day, I was there at five o'clock in the afternoon at the office of the agriculturalist for help and information. In Livingston county, Illinois, the farmers recently organized a fund for the work, though each farmer was asked to subscribe not less than ten dollars a year for three years. They know the value of the work, they know that it is a dollar saving proposition, that the man in practical, common farm sense and more profit."

"Here in Idaho we are not asking the farmers to subscribe. If the commissioners make a direct appropriation of from $1500 to $2000 a year for the work, the balance may be secured from federal funds. This is an opportunity which no county should overlook, for the county agriculturalist will put a county on the agricultural map, for he gets the people to work together for more profitable farming, better markets and better country conditions. The result, more settled, a more better, more satisfied county, and a more satisfied rural Idaho."

BLIGHT

rainfall in excess of four inches in May has given us a humid atmosphere favorable to the growth and dissemination of blight spores. The normal rainfall for May in Southern Idaho is only 1.5 inches. We had an unusually warm April. Warm weather and excessive rainfall placed the trees in a receptive condition to receive blight spores. In addition, we had excessive rainfall in the case of many orchards, there had been added an early irrigation. During the month of March and April people were urged to make use of early water running to waste in the ditches since there was a probability that there would be a shortage of water for irrigation in August. The warmth of April watered the susceptible amount of water available for the sap and placed the trees in a receptive condition for receiving blight spores. Under ordinary conditions as to temperature and moisture we would not expect blighting conditions to be present until June, at which time our apple trees would be out of bloom.

The apple tree can more readily receive blight spores through the bloom than through the foliage. Bees and other insects visit the trees while they are in bloom, and in this way the blight spores are carried through the bloom, destroying the fruit for that particular year this season and with long continued wet weather such as we have had during the month of May, the blight may extend down through the branches which the fruit spur was located. Should the infection strike the branch then, that particular down as the source of infection.

If the amount of water in the soil and the humidity of the atmosphere working together should be such as to force a very vigorous flow of sap, the blight may in extreme cases extend down the branch and in very extreme cases the principal limbs and the trunk of the tree may become infected.

The possibility of being troubled by blight is always with us and has been present in fruit growing districts for a long time. We have suffered more than usual this season because atmospheric conditions and soil conditions favoring the reception of blight spores combined to be present during the blossoming period instead of coming some weeks later, after the blossoming period had passed by. We do not in southern Idaho often have a very wet May. The rainfall in the past month of May exceeded the rainfall of any other month of May since records have been made by the weather bureau. Therefore the amount of harm sustained this season is not likely to occur again in the near future.

Now what may we do to lessen the harm of this particular visitation of blight. First, older trees suffer less from blight than young, because the sap current circulation is distributed through so many more points of

DAIRY NOTES

The milkster's hands must be not only clean but also dry.

A trade mark can be made very valuable by a good dairyman.

When getting butter it pays to put it up in neat attractive cartons.

A full calf becomes a producer when milk and butter are profitable.

A poor milkster is one of the surest means of diminishing the milk flow.

Remember that the income from the dairy is an all-the-year-round proposition.

One way to improve dairy quality is to have better and more sanitary barns.

The success of a dairy depends largely on the careful rearing of the best heifer calves.

The milk of a cow affected with anthrax cannot be safely used or should not be used.

If there is a drip, drip from the roof of the dairy barn you may just expect a drop, drop in the milk production.

The greatest economy of Ford cars is not in the low price but in the low after cost of operation—less than two cents a mile in city and country. They are designed and built to serve and save; to bring the luxury of pleasure and the sturdiness in business work—this is why there are more than 700,000 now in use—this is what has made the Ford the universal car—these are the merits we present why you should buy a Ford.

Buyers of this car will share in profits if we sell at retail 300,000 new Ford cars between August 1914 and August 1915.

SURPRISED AT DEVELOPMENT

Senator Elliott Tells of the Impressesions Gained in Trip.

The development of southern Idaho, especially in the dry farming section, is little short of wonderful and a distinct impression on Senator E. E. Elliott of Bonner county, a member of the irrigation and drainage committee, who visited this section recently, judging from the following statement he made upon reaching his home at Bonners Ferry:

This commission was created to see if something could be done on the part of the state to relieve the serious condition into which the settlers on a part of the Carey act irrigation projects have fallen by reason of failure on the part of some of the companies in promoting these systems. The commission is also empowered to draft new legislation for irrigation and drainage purposes, if such should be deemed necessary, in accordance with its duties the commission is investigating the country of all sizes of all projects in the state, interviewing the settlers, examining the irrigation works and holding meetings at various places. We did our tour first in Blaine county and have visited the Big Lost River, Little Lost River, Blaine county, South Side and North Side Twin Falls, Little Salmon River, Owyhee and Klamath Hill irrigation systems. Most of this tour was made by auto, using high power machines and making runs averaging from 25 to 40 miles an hour through the sagebrush country.

Rain Saved Country.

Three of the projects visited are at an elevation of 8000 feet and the season is truly a most fortunate one for the valley, but other sections like that of King Hill on the Snake river were ahead of us. Around Twin Falls they are just beginning to get their first crop of alfalfa. This country is rapidly developing as a seed producing region. Thousands of acres are being used for the culture of seed peas, alfalfa and clover and alfalfa seed. Some of the farmers are also growing garden seeds. This is not an good a stock country as it was in the past. It is now being used for large numbers of hogs are raised. We found on some of the projects, visited that they are up against a serious shortage of water and had it not been for the heavy rains during May their condition would have been still worse. The heavy spring and cool weather has saved southern Idaho this year.

We had a fine chance to see the great development of the past two years in the farming section of agricultural land, much of it on the mountain slopes, have been plowed and seed of wheat. Some of this is in the hands of the farmers and is being used to feed their stock. It is a fine sight to see the wheat and alfalfa seed and growing wheat and on some of the broken down irrigation projects the settlers are making a success in this way.

Wonderful Natural Phenomenon.

Washed opportunely to see some of the natural wonders of Idaho. One was the state of both the Big and Little Lost Rivers. The streams which came out of the Sawtooth range on to the lava beds and then disappear, only to come to the surface in a single mile from the lava beds of the Snake river, where they are called "The Thousand Springs."

ROBINSON'S

BRANCHES ARE "IN THE RED"

Railroad Company Produces Mass of Data in Fight Against 3-Cent Rate.

Of 15 branch lines on which the fixing of passenger rates was in issue, only five were operated at a profit during 1914 according to figures submitted to the public utility commission Tuesday by the Oregon Short Line. The company's table showed that during the year a deficit of $46,380.72 was incurred on the 15 lines. The hearing was held on a complaint filed by the attorney general, asking that the railroad be compelled to pay into a special fund of $200,000 a mile on all its branches. The first hearing was held August 29, 1914, subsequently the commission issued an order directing the railroad to, within 20 days, discontinue charging more than 3 cents per mile on any branch line. The order was made permanent as to the Yellowstone and Twin Falls branches. As to the others affected, however, the railroad company was allowed a new hearing. The 3-cent branch was not affected because the 3-cent rate was already in effect on it.

Gives Detailed Figures.

George H. Smith, of Salt Lake and H. B. Caplan, of Boise, who presented the railroad company at the hearing Tuesday, Joel L. Priest, general agent, also assisted in the proceedings. Captain Davis appeared for the complainant.

The railroad company was in the position of being compelled to show that its rates were not excessive or discriminatory. It introduced a mass of carefully worked out tables on which the branch lines as compared to the main line, and other data about its system in Idaho.

The showings made by the 15 branches showed they are all in the red. The others were "in the red" and a total deficit of $46,380.72 on all branch lines was registered.

Shows Surplus and Deficits.

The showings made by the various branches were as follows: Surplus shown -- Ashton - Victor, $7894.15; Blackfoot-Mackay, $2309.22; Twin Falls-Boise, $4800.00; Cent. Pa.-Donnelly, $1369.57; Nampa-Nurby, $2868.56.

Deficits shown -- Montpelier-Paris, $24,000; Elva-Moran, $21,200; Moro-1582-Abertville, $6225.18; Burley-Oakley, $1445.24; Burley-Marshfield, $2217.11; Rupert, Bliss, $2779.47; Caldwell-Water, $509.97; Woodruff, $13,861.37; Richfield-Hill City, $498.23; Shoshone-Ketchum, $10,599.17 -- Statesman.

WILL DRAW SALARY QUARTERLY

Supreme Court Rules That New Law Is Imperative.

The supreme court of Idaho held that the act of the legislature providing for the monthly payment of quarterly payment of county officers' salaries was unconstitutional. It was argued that the constitution meant that the salaries should be paid at not greater intervals than every quarter.

but the court construes the act in conjunction with the law requiring county commissioners to meet quarterly and says that if the salaries were paid monthly the commissioner meeting quarterly would have no opportunity to make deductions for amounts possibly due the county.

The decision was rendered in the case of Robert H. Leonard, probate judge of Owyhee county, against John S. St. Clair, auditor of that county. Judge Leonard, in order to test the law applied for writ of mandate to compel the auditor to pay him his salary for the month of May, 1915. The auditor demurred to the petition for the writ, and the supreme court sustained the demurrer.

Amendment Needed.
In its decision the court said: "It is earnestly urged that the people of Idaho are upon a different basis now than they were when the constitution was adopted and amended as hereinbefore set forth; that while some years ago business in this state was conducted upon terms of extended credit, now it is upon a cash basis, or current bills are paid from month to month and that payment of county officers quarterly instead of monthly will result in great inconvenience. We are fully aware of said Springs." I have always considered these springs the most wonderful natural phenomenon in Idaho. It is hard to place it second to Great Sheehone falls, where the whole of the stream runs low, they are less attractive. Then we saw the famous Blue Lakes--Angur falls, American falls, and the jagged peaks of the Teton mountains in Wyoming and the Sawtooth range, the highest mountains in the state.

There is some beautiful country down there and some of the irrigators' sections are all right, but one gets tired of sagebrush and lava rock and slightly restful and the verdant valley looks better than ever after such a trip. Many requests for information about Boundary and Bonner counties came to me on this trip and I have stated their intention of looking us over with a view to settlement." Capital News.

WAR TAX BLUNDERS

Administration Fell Down on Provision for Enforcing Law.

Washington, D. C. June 24.—A study of the "war revenue tax" discloses some of the most astonishing blunders in the history of the entire legislative record of the present administration. The most elementary principles of law making seem to have been disregarded.

In the passage of any special tax measure where the approximate deficit to be met is known, there are four simple requirements that are obvious:

1. It should be determined where the burden the tax should fall.
2. Based on accurate statistics, the law should produce the amount of revenue needed.
3. The law should be phrased in clear, unmistakable terms, admitting of but one construction that will insure a minimum cost of administration, prevent evasion, and avoid useless, expensive litigation.
4. Timely, adequate provision should be made for revenue stamps, blank revenue instructions and all other numerous details entering into the enforcement of such a law.

This administration failed on every one of these counts.

1. Under the first essential, that of determining where the burden of the tax shall fall, the Democrats floundered repeatedly. They first announced the plan of increasing the income tax, and abandoned it on encountering the opposition of the business world. They then turned to a plan of taxing foreign receipts. This was discarded with astonishing celerity. The practical measure was too great. After other ineffectual attempts the Spanish war stamp tax was adopted as a basis, giving the country a "war tax" in time of peace.
2. The second essential was disregarded. Their estimates were inaccurate. Had they been based on facts instead of guess work, we would not now have the treasury deficit as a constant reminder of Democratic extravagance and inefficiency.
3. The third essential was disregarded. There are conflicting provisions in the "war tax" law which it shall take effect. Other clauses are so obscurely phrased that it has been necessary to appeal to the courts for construction.
4. The fourth essential was disregarded. So inadequate were the provisions for stamps required under the act that business all over the country halted because of inability to comply with the law. Long and annoying controversies arose over penalties for such violations, resulting in needless confusion for which no one but the present administration is to blame.

Specific examples of the errors referred to in the "war tax" law will be discussed in later articles.

TOWN DOCTOR, NELS DARLING

OF OKLAHOMA CITY

During the next twelve months The Times has arranged for the exclusive use of a series of articles upon Civic Betterment from the trenchant pen of Nels Darling, the best known exponent of home-town loyalty in the United States. These articles will be pertinent talks on "The Home Town" "Talks with the Business Men" and "Talks on Advertising."

They are interesting, terse and to the point. Darling never wastes any ammunition. The Times believes that these articles will do much to awaken Twin Falls citizens to their responsibility for the success of the home town. Some of the talks to the merchants will probably stir up some argument and opposition, but will nevertheless set them to thinking.

PRESS CLUB MEETING

Mackay-Citizens Are Ideal Entertainers.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Mackay Press club was held last Saturday and Sunday in the busy city of Mackay, and those of the club who attended had the time of their lives. The people of Mackay do not do things by halves and the entertainment provided was royal in its careful planning for comfort and pleasure of the press club. For not a single minute were the club members left to their own resources.

Arriving at the little village town of Mackay, the automobiles were in waiting to convey the guests to the Mackay hotel, where together with a number of the members of the Mackay Commercial club and their wives, a bonfire and delicious lunch was enjoyed. Those who missed this feed will be envious for years to come as the extent of their loss grows upon them. Saturday afternoon after a short business session the club members again participated in entertainment provided by the Mackay citizens, an automobile trip to Pass Creek where winding along a sparkling mountain stream the road led upward among towering peaks, granite boulders and beautiful places. It was a sight worth seeing and one of the scenic aspects of the Mackay region, which they should more extensively advertise. Sunday morning the program called for a fishing trip and a fish fry. Knowing the reputation for the fishing of the Lost river every one of the boys had his mind made up for a ten pounder or at least. Most of them failed to get a pounder, but the Thomas children will swear that all of them tried to tuck away ten pounds under their belt at the fish fry. Most of them succeeded. The trip to fishing grounds was one of the incidents of the trip and one that will linger long as a pleasant, lovable memory. Attempting to get through a stretch of swampy meadow to the fishing grounds the advancing autos must have been a great deal like skimming on the fringe of the water. The Mackay citizens' banker would go in to the hub and had to be extracted by the first aid commission consisting of some dozen husky men. Then racing and bumping across runs and boxes perhaps three or four cars would be stuck in the bog at the same time only to wait for the life saving crew to get it out and make another run. But as a sample of cultural stick-to-itiveness, the fishing spot was reached with unaided help, but with somewhat dirty raincoat straps as it was seen not a single male person lost his temper. Even Chester Clark—the doughy Mackay attorney, never even said "damn," when the utility team dumped him with slight dignity into a nice soft juicy spot. The Mackay trout were not behind the people in trying to sustain the reputation of one of nature's finest spots. Even a lazy fellow could catch high there. Some of the trout even changing the angles put on the banks in their eagerness to make good. Saturday night the citizens and their wives had an informal dance at Mackay's fine dance hall and were only able to just make the early morning schedule the next day by dint of will power. Mackay is certainly a delightful spot to spend a vacation. Beautiful snow capped mountains, fine trout fishing and a climate that business business, make it one of the best in the state. Long live the loyal Mackay citizens, may they stay so capitalistic heights on the way of high priced copper. They deserve it.

TALKS ON THRIFT

Remember that money is of a prolific, generating nature. Money can beget money, and its offspring can beget more, and so on. Five shillings turned is six, turned again it is seven and three pence, and so on till it becomes a hundred pounds. The more there is of it the more it produces every turning. It is simply a plain statement of how your money will grow if you get it about it early enough can double his income by middle life simply through $5.00 weekly wages saved and wise investment of them from time to time. After he has done this, he can stop working and let his capital work for him or keep on working with it and will further increase his fortune before he retires. Let us assume that you are in your twenties and that you are earning $20 a week, $1,040 a year. In order to equal that income through 6 per cent investments you would need a bank account of $17,000. Here is how you can do it before you have passed your prime: Suppose you open a savings account in a bank which pays 4 per cent interest on savings, compounded semi-annually. Save and deposit in the bank $5 every week. Whenever your principal and interest equal or exceed $1,000; draw out that sum and invest it in a first mortgage paying 6 per cent a year, payable semi-annually. Likewise deposit your mortgage interest in your savings account, continue to withdraw and invest whenever your savings account reaches the $1,000 mark. In 28 years your principal will amount to $17,778.22 and your income from this sum invested in good 6 per cent mortgages will be upwards of $20 a week. This is how it figures out: $5 per week deposited in bank at 4 per cent annually, compounded semi-annually will amount to $1,123.89 in 4 years. You take out $1,000 and invest it in a first mortgage at 6 per cent. FOR WANTED—At headquarters after it is checked out by the doctor. The nature of the probable nature of the note yet obtainable. From the emphasis which the naval writers continue to place on the alleged fact of flying neutral flags and encouraging moral changes to attack submarines, and the fact that the regulations concerning violation and search under these conditions, it might be anticipated that this would be the case. The fact that the reply, but at the foreign office there seems to be an impression that this point will appear only as a subpoint in the report, but that an attempt will be made to give a definite answer to President Wilson's requests, one way or another. The armament of Louisiana.

The alleged armament of the Louisiana probably will not figure prominently in the German press. Considerable testimony has been assembled regarding the presence of guns aboard the Lusitania, and it is referred to you as prior to the one which the Lusitania was sunk, although some of it touches on trips made since the war began.

German sailor named Emil Grabo, for instance, deposes in an affidavit published here that he sailed for four years on British ships, including the Lusitania and the Mauretania. He avers that he made three trips on the Lusitania and that she, like the Mauretania, carried five or six 12-centimeter guns—two on her aft deck, two amidships, and one or two forward. Grabo, however, had personally watched all the crew of the Lusitania exercising with these guns.

Higher business influences continue to be exerted in favor of peaceful settlement with the United States. A number of industrial and commercial firms in Germany have appeared in Berlin during the last few days to use their influence personally to this end.
