The petition of the Great Shoshone and Twin Falls Waterbury company for an increase in its rates for heat furnished its consumers is right-fully meeting with a strong protest in this city owing to the unfairness of such a raise on top of yearly raises in the rates for the past three years. For the sake of argument The Times will admit that the rates first offered in this city were very low for heating. That rate was made at the company's own option, with an idea to stimulate business and utilize current otherwise going to waste. The public took to the idea naturally because of the economy and convenience. People spent large sums to wire their homes for using such heat and for radiators. The public acted upon the assumption that in making such a rate at a time when the power company had the field to itself, that it was figuring a fair margin of profit. Many homes were built without chimneys for other heat.

After the first contracts expired, substantial raises were demanded by the company for renewals of contracts. Every renewal since that time has been on the basis of a further increase until electric heat instead of being the cheapest heat is at the present time, the most expensive.

No doubt the company desires now to divert the current used for heating to more profitable lines, such as light and power, but in considering such demands the public utilities commission must first of all stand as protection of the consumer. It should act on the basis that the company, acting as a free and untrammelled agent, sold power at a low figure at a time when it was actually holding people up for lights and power. If it could let its own business judgment furnish heat at that time at a profit, then it must be under the present greatly increased schedule be able to make money, without any further increase. Unless the commission refuses the request of the company it means a hold-up of consumers who are supplied with electrical equipment and who in order to get other suitable heat must make another heavy expenditure for furnaces and other heating apparatus and practically double costly equipment.

Last week the Times departed from its established custom and indulged in its squib with its contemporary, the Chronicle, which added nothing to the value of the paper to its readers nor to the community for which it is always boosting. As far as the Times is concerned, it is through with any further newspaper controversy, believing that its stand for public good is at least understood by its friends and readers. The Times will continue its criticisms of the conduct of public officials and will not refrain from pointing out the manner with which the public funds are being spent for private political gain. The man who will extravagantly use public funds in order to build up his own or his party's political fence, may legally be within the law, but morally is as dishonest as the man who steals. He is stealing service from the public and utilizing it for private gain. Why misce-tergize the Tom Taggart's and Boss Murphy's are not a product of the big cities alone. Every little community has its men who will their consciences to step and utilize public funds and patronage to their own profit.

It is the duty of every newspaper to help in every way to cut out graft and corruption, to create a healthy tone to public affairs and keep everlastingly at it. There is no pleasure in aiding any man up to public scorn and any newspaper would rather have the friendship of all than condone contentment, despite the fact that the public thinks every editor carries a chip on his shoulder. Just as long as this paper deems it a duty to the public welfare to lit at tactics of public officials, it will continue to do that duty. It cannot do otherwise than to influence in every way proper administration of public affairs.

EUROPE UNAPPROPRIATIVE, OF MR. BRYAN

The dramatic resignation of the American Secretary of State has excited much comment in the foreign press, and it is curious to note that in Germany, where the ex-Secretary might naturally look for sympathetic understanding, his action has been entirely misinterpreted. German publicists persist in holding him responsible for America's trade in war-munitions, and, while recognizing his pacifist sentiments, are convinced that he has an anti-German bias. Indeed, the leading paper, the Centralblatt, goes so far as to look for a change in American policy in Germany's favor, and the Berlin Zeitungs-Anstalt actually assumed that Mr. Bryan "wanted a sharper note" to Germany than the President was willing to sanction. The Berlin Vossische Zeitung says:

"The moment of the resignation lends some significance to it. Of course it is only too apparent to everybody in America—knowing things as they are in a time which demands as much expert knowledge of diplomats as it imposes responsibilities on them, a man like Bryan had to go from the post of directing foreign affairs."

"Perhaps from now on America's foreign policy will be less English, though on that account it will not become German or German-American, but let us hope American. That will be more important than the form of any note."

"The Berliner Tageblatt suggests that Mr. Bryan was 'too practical,' and continues:

"It is no secret that Mr. Bryan, whose pacifist inclinations are well known, did not belong among those in the American government who wanted to bring about a break in diplomatic relations as a result of the Lusitania tragedy. Although one can not accuse him of pro-German tendencies, and on the contrary, although he has appeared a more unflinchingly rigid than the philosophical-president, it nevertheless appears that his practical experience in statesmanship caused him to take in stand against that policy, consequences of which are hardly to be estimated."

"Nor does Mr. Bryan seem to have any too many friends in the other European countries. For example, the influential Paris Journal les Debats sums him up in this pointed paragraph:

"Mr. Bryan is incompetent as a statesman. He is rather an orator, propagandist. He has talked more than he has thought and is more capable of leading the multitudes than directing a great state."

Another widely read Paris organ, le Journal, writes:

"Mr. Bryan is Utopia-mad, always following chimera from binocular to pacifism. Rarely has there been a man less suited for the position of foreign secretary. The results have been most unsatisfactory. At the beginning Mr. Bryan nearly lighted the latent conflict with Japan. Then he unsettled the Latin republics. Next he threw America into the Mexican war's nest. In the present crisis he preferred soothing combinations to action. He is gone, bag and baggage; the energetic policy has triumphed."

Perhaps the most laconic of French comment is found in the Paris Temps, which says:

"Mr. Bryan, bedecked with pacifist formulas, regards duty from a purely doctrinal view-point and has a peculiar conception of what is considered one's obligation to one's country. His greatest desire was the avoidance of a rupture which might cause war. As it was only possible to maintain the pacifist ideal by bargaining with the predatory powers, Mr. Bryan in resigning pursued the theory to its logical conclusion. President Wilson judged otherwise. Mr. Bryan did not seem to him a subject for indulgent consideration. Mr. Wilson demands that the German, submarine warfare, their attacks upon peaceable American citizens. The rupture with Bryan came because the latter only worships peace while Wilson, like the mass of his countrymen, practices also justice."

Another article from the pen of Mr. Hoffman, in the Centralblatt, says:

"It is hard for us to understand that a minister, at a time when his country was discussing with Germany, a grave question as to the use of submarines against merchant ships, could part company with his chief executive and openly declare that he is in complete disagreement with him as to the methods to be employed."

"We should say that the minister had not the right to diminish the prestige of his government before foreign countries, but Mr. Bryan has a double excuse. First of all, ministerial discipline must have seemed rather treksome to a man who so many times has aimed at the presidency. Then, too, his departure does not in any way diminish the prestige of his government, for that prestige rests on the ardent patriotism of the American people."

Almost identical views are expressed in London by the Daily Chronicle, which adds that the president "will be eased rather than hampered" by Mr. Bryan's act, and The Standard says:

"It seems unlikely that Secretary Bryan's resignation will have any serious effect on American opinion or that it will weaken President Wilson's position, which, indeed, will be stronger under the new conditions."

"The Morning Post" thinks:

"The danger of a statesmanship which seeks to make policy conform to one's own ideal is that these ideals may not accord with the country's honor and interests. Apparently this is the dilemma in which Mr. Bryan has found himself."

The Daily Express rather unkindly suggests that the "horrible" incident is of date:

"Mr. Bryan is a very representative American. He is representative at any rate of the older America; which had no imperial destiny and kept remote from European affairs and attachments. That the American press should assail Mr. Bryan so unmercifully suggests that the older America is vanishing, leaving a world which is vastly more complicated than that in which its philosophy grew up."

But the harshest out of all comes from the well-informed Daily Graphic, which says:

"The incident is in keeping with Mr. Bryan's spectacular career, but its importance may easily be overestimated. Bryan was appointed to his high office as a possession of only a fragmentary knowledge of international politics, but solely because he was Wilson's chief competitor."

"But he is an orator rather than a statesman, an orator with prodigious command of verbose platitudes, and highly emotional to boot."

Turning to South America, we read in the Buenos Aires Diario:

"One must recognize that President Wilson is right and has acted right through-out. He has represented the national and universal conscience, and must be the object of felicitations."—Literary Digest.

cally to provide for a future capital of worth while proportions.

It is often found that people can save when they have to do so. The war in Europe is proving this. According to a correspondent boys attending Berlin schools are now learning these Ten Commandments of thrift:

1. Everybody must save, for only if every saves will Germany's supplies hold out.
2. Waste no food, not even the most unimportant.
3. Take time for eating and chew thoroughly.
4. Avoid all eating between meals.
5. Eat rye instead of wheat bread, and be economical with bread.
6. Be economical with butter, and eat cheese, fruit sauces and marmalade instead of butter.
7. Eat abundantly of fresh vegetables so as to save meat, fats and bread.
8. "TV call for potatoes in the skins.
9. Buy chocolate and sweets and send to the soldiers at the front—we can gladly dispense with these things.
10. In all that you do, remember that you can contribute your modest share towards helping create the new Fatherland that we are all hoping for. Practice self-sacrifice and work.

The poor cottagers of London were urged to mend their own shoes. This is a part of the program of thrift adopted by the British authorities as a result of the war.

Time and again, it has been proved that necessity is the mother of invention. Perhaps if the discouraged Iowa editor felt that he absolutely must save he could be able to do it.

JARBIDGE, NEVADA

The celebration of the Fourth at Jarbridge is becoming to be recognized as a first class affair and each succeeding year draws visitors from larger territory; this year there were people here from about every ranch and settlement within a radius of 40 miles of the camp. A very gallant and enjoyable party this year was had by all, both young and old.

No guns nor firecrackers were in evidence, but a long and varied program of races and other attractions, with good cash prizes and a fine day, made the celebration just passed, the most satisfactory interest while the programs was considerably lengthened and improved by the exhibition furnished by the visiting cowboys, among which were some of the best trick riders of the state. Both Saturday and Monday night the large hall of the Commercial Club was filled with a very large crowd of dancers.

The first race was a forty yard 16 year old boys' race, won by Tom Middleton, with Wes Fletcher taking second money and Owen Ketcher third.

The next race was a 100 yard boys' race, won by George Davis of San Francisco; Dick Haseloff, of Deadwood Creek; Dick Wolgout, of Pood-Creek; R. K. Nichols and Dale Nichols of Sheep Creek; George Patrick, William Dunn, William Trotter, Mike Keller and R. Latty from Big Flat Creek; Joe Ruff, of Davis Creek.

TALKS ON THRIFT

NO. 25—PRIDE AND PROSPERITY

"A wife must not be extravagant, not a husband penurious. Let her help him to save his money."—Justice Greenbaum, of New York.

Some people have the ability to save money when they do it in order to spend at once to satisfy their pride or self-indulgence, which is little better than not saving at all.

Their economy brings them no nearer the goal of prosperity and independent income. They simply save and scrape in order to indulge in or to keep up with others, and in consequence never build up a reserve upon which to draw in future days of need.

An editorial writer in a Des Moines newspaper utters this platitude:

"The problem of educating children maintaining their health, meeting the cost of living and keeping up insurance on ordinary wages is one which is not easy of solution and every man of 46 who has not a competence is not always at fault, by any means. The world would be infinitely better off economically if it were not so hard for men who are not extravagant to make a mere living for their families."

There is truth in what this writer says. It is not easy for a man to be accompanied by the right kind of man and wife at the start, and later between children and parents.

There is something to be said also in favor of swallowing pride, not trying forever to keep up "either with 'Lizzie' or the 'Jones' and making a really serious effort to save systematic-

A COMMUNICATION Twin Falls, July 17, 1916 Editor of Times: Is it too late to make a few cents on the library site? In the name of common sense you might say, why put all the public buildings on Shoshone street that park? What about the east of your city? It is a wonder that they don't put the postoffice on there too. The library should be as near the busy portion of the city as possible, so the busy man or shop girl could drop in for a book, paper, or for a few minutes of reading. The library should be near the downtown people. East main St. would be a good location and it would help build up that badly neglected thoroughfare. Yours sincerely, MRS. FRED W. SNOW.

is such good tobacco you feel like you could just eat the smoke!

Yes, sir, P. A. puts a razor edge on your smoke-appetite-division that's nobby enough to be photographed! No other pipe and cigarette tobacco can be like Prince Albert, because no other tobacco can be made like Prince Albert. The patented process fixes that—and removes the tongue-bite and throat parch! Let that digest!

The toppy red bag, 5c

For you can put your little old blue-pencil O. K. right here that Prince Albert is a regular double-header for a single admission—as joy's to your tongue and taste one way as the other!

Will the "rollers" kindly step forward for a spell and get some of this listen into their systems? Because Prince Albert certain and sure jams more joy into a makin's paper than ever before was figured up on two hands!

In the plain language of the hills, you can't any more resist such makin's tobacco than a bullfrog can pass up a piece of red fannel! Because P. A. hands to you everything any cigarette roller ever dreamed out—rare flavor, and aroma, and mildness, and body; absolutely the best bet—the best smoke you-or any other man ever did roll and put the fire to! Men, we tell you to wise up.

P. A. is crimp cut and stays put—which means rolling P. A. is as easy as falling off a log. And it's good to remember P. A. is put up in the toppy red bag especially for you "rollers." Sells for the price of a jitney ride, 5c.

Now, will the "pipers" kindly open both ears? Here's tobacco that has made it possible for three men to smoke pipes where one smoked before!

Any way you hook it up, Prince Albert is tobacco insurance! Yes, sir, it guarantees your future as well as your present smokings! And just makes your tongue's jimmy pipe joy's that your smoke-appetite grows whopping big. You men who "dassn't," we say you go to P. A., natural-like! Because there isn't a bite-in a barrel of this national joy smoke.

Unlimber your old jimmy pipe! Dig it out of the dark corner, jam it brimful of P. A. And make fire with a match! Me-o-my!

You get acquainted with Prince Albert in the toppy red bag, 5c, or tidy red tin, 10c, but for the double-back-action-joy, you buy a crystal-clear, golden-brown, 10c tin. As you've set! You see, it has the sponge-maintener top and keeps P. A. at the highest top-peak of perfection. Prince Albert is also sold in pound and half-pound tin holders.

The tidy red tin, 10c

POULTRY

ESSENTIALS IN HEN-HOUSES

Comfortable-Fowl Will Prove Far More Profitable Than One That is Not So—Best Location.

The prime essential in poultry houses are fresh air, dryness, sunlight and space enough to keep the birds comfortable. No particular style of house is particularly adapted to any section of this country. A house which gives satisfaction in Maine will also give good results in Texas or California, but it is preferable to build cheap and consequently less expensive houses in the South than in the North. The best site for the poultry house depends principally on the local conditions. The location should have good drainage, so that the floor and yards will be dry, while the house should not occupy a low-lying hollow or valley. Good air circulation should be provided for convenience in management and adapted to the available land. Wherever possible a southern or southeastern exposure should be selected although this is not essential if there is any good reason for facing the house in a different direction.

To prevent waste of feed in poultry houses and reduce the handling of the dry foods and grits, it is necessary to use hoppers. Good food is essential as a part of the winter ration for the fowls. When cabbage and beets are not available, sprouted oats can be easily fed. Soak the oats in a bucket for at least 24 hours and then place in a pile on a shelf of a sprouter. On the third day spread them out on the different shelves and let them grow to a height of not over two inches, then feed them. Keep the oats in a room of moderate temperature and dampen every day.

FURNISH SOME GREEN FOOD

Either Lettuce-Grown in Hotbeds or Sprouted Oats—Are Excellent for the Little Chicks.

Be prepared with some sort of green stuff for the little ones. Either lettuce grown in hotbeds or sprouted oats, handled in boxes. Whatever it is, it should not be omitted, as it is just as essential as fruit and vegetables are to the average person. Have convenient and sanitary water vessels so-made that chicks can drink without being able to get into the water with their dirty feet. These should be well scalded out at least once a week where used for the first little ones. Soft feed, if used, should be fed either upon fresh papers each time or in small troughs, and not thrown on the ground, which may contain all kinds of dirt and contamination. Striving to avoid all the points of common carelessness and dirty conditions is the road leading to success with chicks.

Comfortable Chicken House. If your chicken house is not real comfortable, get some barley and make a curtain to hang around the perch in a tight. Hang the curtain to the roof, and have it long enough to reach the floor. This will cost little and will pay well.

Get Incubator Ready. It's none too early to make sure that the incubator is in good repair, and ready for business. If buying a new one, don't wait too long before ordering it.

GOTHAM NOTES

New York City Pays Rich Tribute to Government in Income-Taxes.

New York, July 23, 1915.—The year for the money centre of the world, but this district looms high in the record of income-tax receipts.

For example in the fiscal year 1914 the exports from this city reached the huge value of $1,183,386,787 and the imports were $502,522,159—a total foreign trade of over $1,700,000,000.

There are all sorts of uses for a safe, but the oldest of all is disclosed by a local lawyer.

Mr. Automobile Owner:

Do you know that Dann Oil Cushion Spring Inserts installed in your car, will make it ride 100 per cent better, give you more mileage on tires and will pay for themselves in the saving of wear and tear on your machine in three months?

Absolutely eliminates spring squeaks and stops that destructive road-vibration.

CITIZENS ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO.

aimed at Germany in the morning were visited on Great Britain.

Talking about ships, this great harbor now is a sort of marine museum, with every conceivable sort of vessel hauled out—of the storage housing and impounded into advance.

Why shouldn't prohibition be making a great add? It was revealed here this week that 800 people are making a living out of the movement, putting in $1,250,000 annually.

Sentiment is sharply divided in the case of Becker, the lieutenant of police, who is under sentence of death for instigating the murder of a gangster.

But there are other police problems that are acute—bomb outrages, for example, seven of them in a year, culminating in an attempt to blow up police headquarters.

The excitement over the German wireless station at Sayville, Long Island, has blown over.

marines by code messages from Sayville.

Just to give an idea of the size of this city, there are more than 12,000 babies born here in a month—more than in all France.

Fence of course every one wants peace, not at any price, but at his own price.

This city's non-resident ownership problem has been brought home with a bang.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Running north and south and crossing the world famous Pennsylvania avenue, 7th street is one of the most important thoroughfares in Washington.

The excitement over the German wireless station at Sayville, Long Island, has blown over.

Most of the diplomats and big officials have gone to Newport and elsewhere for the summer.

THE BATTLE OF THE TIRES

(Agricultural and Commercial) Press Forces it is interesting to watch the forces of civilization battling for supremacy. The struggle now going on between the creative force of the rubber tire and the ill-fated contest of the Twentieth Century.

Stephanos applied the steel tire to an iron rail in 1814, but it was 1859 before the rubber tire was determined at Promontory Point, which bound the country together with bands of steel.

But iron is a stubborn metal and it has mastered every wheel that turns; has fought battles with every element and has beaten the earth and has never lasted the wormwood of defeat, and when rubber hurls its full force against this monarch of the Mineral Kingdom, it may rebound to the factory stoned beyond recovery.

The rubber tire first made its appearance on the bicycle, but it proved a frivolous servant and was dismissed for incompetency. It has always been too much inflated to serve the purposes of the automobile.

But to those who care to wait into the future is one who wishes to note that there will be a marvelous difference between a rubber and an iron shoe.

Capital and labor have always been glaring at each other over gulfs of misunderstanding and it is the Federal Industrial Commission attempts to bridge the chasm.

When honest men smile and look into each other's souls, it always makes a good deal of sense. The rubber tire is a plant that differs very greatly from most other forage crops.

We suppose the time will never come when the eye will be occasionally blinded by the lightning flashes of avarice or frightened by the thunder peals of discontent.

TO PREPARE LAND FOR CORN

Frequent Use of Harrow and Disk Previous to Planting Time is Recommended by Expert.

(By O. M. OLSON, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

The preparation of land for the coming corn crop should receive special attention. There is an absolute certainty that every acre of land now going to be used this year, and every possible assistance should be given to promote its germination, principally in the preparation of the seed bed.

If corn is to be expected to grow readily, it must have a small amount of air, some moisture and sufficient warmth. The proper combination of these conditions is best obtained in a well-worked, well-seed bed. Such preparation of the land and soil conserves soil-moisture and destroys weeds, but it also warms the soil to an appreciable extent. A frequent use of the harrow and the disk, previous to planting time, not only prepares the seed bed in the various ways mentioned, but every one of the operations may result in calling a portion of the growing crop, even though the seed is still unplanting.

In the case of spring plowing, the repeated use of the harrow may put the surface in excellent condition, and still leave the bottom of the furrow slice in a poorly prepared condition. It is much better to continue the working of spring plowing with the harrow and the disk, as this adds to the soil and the furrow slice the net work of Macadam highways as beautiful as the boulevard built by Napoleon. It will parallelize the law making bodies of this country for how long will the furrow slice without the railroad to operate on?

FEDERAL INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

By Peter Stafford.

The recent investigation of the United States Commission of Industrial Relations brought together the extremes of society and has given the public opportunity to see the Federal Commission of distinct classes, side by side, and to study their views in parallel columns.

Capital and labor have always been glaring at each other over gulfs of misunderstanding and it is the Federal Industrial Commission attempts to bridge the chasm. It will render the public a great service.

The farmer has been sitting on the fence watching capital and labor fight for many years and incidentally furnishing the shovels of war and it is quite gratifying to find them talking with, instead of about each other. When honest men smile and look into each other's souls, it always makes a good deal of sense. The rubber tire is a plant that differs very greatly from most other forage crops.

WINTER PASTURE OF ALFALFA

Serious Mistake Made by Many Farmers in Allowing Stock to Run Over the Pressure.

More farmers are growing alfalfa today than have ever grown it and they are often making serious mistakes in getting stock run over it during the fall and winter. To a great many of them it is a new crop and they fall to see where's letting a few head of milch cows or sheep run on it during the fall and winter is going to do any harm. A dose seems rather unreasonable at first for plants that have grown vigorously all summer, been cut two or three times and are still growing vigorously, that it should suffer a few cuts through the winter with any loss without injury.

Alfalfa is a plant that differs very greatly from most other forage crops. All summer long it has been growing and maturing leaves that have been clipped off by the mower. It has been fighting weeds and crab grass and has not had the opportunity to build up its own root structures very much. In the fall, if left to itself, it will make a strong and needed growth that will insure a heavy crop next summer. When alfalfa starts growing in the fall it is storing up energy in its roots system and this energy will be used next season. It will shoot up vigorously next spring and will be all the stronger because of its late fall growth. That is why fall or winter pasturing is bad for it.
