The easy attitude of the editor of the Twin Falls Chronicle on questions of the proper expenditure of county money can be very easily explained if the records of the county warrants for the past five years are searched. A little sizer regarding some of those expenditures can be seen at a glance. It will pay the editor of the Chronicle to emulate the plan.

The election of Evan Evans, of Grangeville, to succeed George Day as chairman of the Republican state central committee is a happy choice and one that pleases all sections of the state. Mr. Evans is one of the conservative members of the party and a man of broad, sane business experience. He has been identified with Idaho politics for many years and understands the situation as well or better than most any other party leader. With Mr. Evans at the head of the organization a better spirit will no doubt prevail among all sections of the state, thus making a clear-cut party victory possible next year.

Some men use various methods for obtaining pointed questions when in public office. Probably Commissioner Carlson believes that misdirection of his subsidized newspaper will divert people from the real issue. Why does Commissioner Carlson fail to explain his action with regard to the Shoshone falls grade? Will he please explain why several thousand dollars of the highway bond issue was used for ordinary road expenses before a single stretch of the state highway was touched. Forty thousand dollars bond had shrunk to twenty-three thousand last year. It was used to pay road work elsewhere than the place where it was intended to be used.

Will Mr. Carlson's subsidized newspaper "blame" Evans please explain (if there is no nigger in the woodpile) why later action for bids to complete the Shoshone falls grade according to the survey of the state highway commission, the bids were turned down and the state highway survey ignored? Will he explain why a chance is being taken on losing some two thousand dollars of state aid on that grade in order to follow the ideas of the pet Fox?

The attack on J. Pierpont Morgan by the crazed Holt and the subsequent suicide of the assassin is only a straw showing the way that sentiment among certain people is drifting in this country. It shows that underneath the seeming national prosperity is an undercurrent of bitter antagonism may prove dangerous. The man whom is prevalent among the poor, that men like Morgan, Rockefeller, Carnegie are enemies of the common people. Not without foundation of fact. Excessive profits have built up colossal fortunes, which now these men are allowing some to come back in donations for this and that charity. But the fact is that at all times the excessive profits from exploitation of the common necessities of life by these men is keeping pinching poverty over at the heels of many people. The idea that the government is a factor and protect the monopoly has been trying. It will continue to grow until the outcry is either heeded or a violent outbreak comes as it has in every country of the globe. It cannot be dubbed Socialism in a way because it is prevalent in the minds of countless people who desire Socialism and Socialist tendencies, yet who are honestly alarmed by the increasing balance of power in the hands of men of wealth. Holt did no good to the cause for which he gave his life and yet every such attempt marks a wide change in the ideas of American liberty, which start such crazed acts of protest.

IN THE INDIANA BELFRY

Pursuit of the "higher-ups" responsible for election crookedness in Indianapolis and Marion county. Even though the trail leads to the topmost rung of the ladder, up to the belfry where the big bell-ringers dwell, was promised by Alvin J. Rucker before his election as county prosecutor last fall. Now, declares the Indianapolis News (Ind.), he "has kept the faith" by securing the indictment of 128 of-ficioholders and politicians for conspiracy to violate state election laws. At the head of the list are Thomas Taggart, Democratic national commit-tee man for Indiana; Mayor Joseph E. Borah of Indianapolis; and Samuel V. Parrott, chief of police; three fellow members of city boards; minor officials; and to use the Toledo Blade's phrase, "political hawkers and nutcrackers of varying degrees of prominence and importance." It is charged in the indictment that the conspiracy began before the primary in May and ex-tended through the election held in November, 1910. The indictment of Mr. Taggart—who says he has done nothing wrong, and in fact has "been a regular angel"—appeals to the outside press as an attempt to fix some of the responsibility for corruption upon a recognized state boss. The appearance of the name of Mayor Don M. Roberla, now serving a term in Leavenworth prison for his share in the Terre Haute election frauds, links the two cases in many editorial minds. Indiana, says the New York Tribune, "is to be scourged of her apparatus of corrupt officials in the manner of ancient Egypt when swept by the plague which picked off her first-born sons. And helped to set the childer of God free." And the New York Evening Post sees now at hand the "evidence of an almost state-wide machinery for the corruption of municipal elections in Indiana."

"Two months ago the Mayor of Terre Haute, and certain associates, were sent prison for frauds in the same election of November 3, 1910; in Goshen and Elkhart, city officials have just been indicted for various offenses; in Rockville a court has been sitting upon election frauds in Vigo county; and it is predicted that the present investigation, centering in Indianapolis, will reveal trails leading to Evansville and Gary. It has already been established that repeaters and other 'workers' were exchanged last year between the capital and Terre Haute. Public opinion, it is justified to hope that "after all, the national responsible for the indictments have included Democrats, Republicans and Progressives. In partisan combat, however, have doubtless been made easy by the existence of corrupt party organizations, and it is plain to see the investigation reach far into the Taggart and Parrott cases. If it is pushed to completion it may show the ramifications of an intricate web of political intrigue, and involve the state from Indiana to Wisconsin. It has been admitted but unqualified for decision. The Terre Haute prosecution was vigorously pushed by Edward A. Hartigan; in conducting that Indianapolis the state officers have an opportunity to exhibit equal zeal.

"In all this it is hard to hold any one

In Indianapolis the News (Ind.) has no doubt of the existence of a "corrupt and rotten system," though it remembers that an indictment is one thing and a conviction another. It says: "Recent elections in Indianapolis have seen many of the rotten practices that finally brought Terre Haute to the verge of anarchy. Terre Haute reporters have been brought to Indianapolis to teach how primaries could be controlled. More voters have been cast at times for machine candidates in some precincts than the total number of the party's voters, living and dead, in the precinct. In some precincts nearly every vote cast has been counted for the favored candidate; notwithstanding it was known that other candidates had been voted for. The rotten conditions have existed so long that feeling was growing up here that everything or anything, to win was permissible. It had come to be such a matter of course that many men did not realize that they were committing crimes. Nothing but a landslide could defeat the machine. To correct such a condition and to save the city from utter political degeneracy was the problem."

"Every one knows that there has been crookedness. The only question are, who are the men guilty of it and whether the men indicted are guilty." According to the Indianapolis Star (Ind.), however, it is well known there "that these indictments have been long and ardently desired by certain influences in which Taggart and Borah have returned to have the indictment for the publicity that might be made of it." And readers of this paper are reminded of the legal assumption "that even an indicted man is innocent until the guilt is proved."

At the distance of Toledo from Indianapolis, The Blade finds it indeed "impossible to tell whether the action of the grand jury represents an earnest and honest endeavor to clean up election crimes and abuses in Indiana or merely a phase of the old feud between the Fairbanks crowd and the Taggart outfit." But in either case, it opines, "the string ought to be good for Indiana politics, and that whether or not a single manipulator goes to jail."

Of course, says The Tribune, of South Bend, Indiana, the state must suffer by reason of the notoriety; "that can not be avoided." Yet it adds: "It is distinctly to the credit rather than to the discredit of Indiana that it is cleaning house thoroughly and vigorously. When the job is done this will be the most wholesome state politically in the Union. This is providing the work is done well, completely and without regard to anything but the law and the evidence."

Outside of Indiana many papers naturally comment upon the more general implications of the Indianapolis indictment. The Chicago Observer says: "The hope that 'after all, the national awakening of civic righteousness has not been wholly in vain."

"As a medium for the creation of a new and permanent third party, it has been properly enough a failure. But it has made highly respectable certain political practices that were formerly taken too much as a matter of course, the inevitable but regrettable excesses of partisan zeal."—Literary Digest.

Germany Asks For Concessions

...sources here it is learned, however, that the note drafted by the German foreign office, with Emperor William's subsequent approval, would give assurance that Americans might travel with safety on the high seas on certain conditions imposed by Germany, such as the marking of belligerent vessels carrying Americans, notification by the United States to Germany of the date of departure and character of such vessels, and an inspection insuring their non-carriage of munitions of war.

Wilson Will Stand Firm

President Wilson has before him the views of several cabinet officers, some of whom believe that it is essential to have ambassador Gerard make clear to the German foreign office that the United States can make no concession from its position as based on the accepted rules of international law and the naval rules code of civilized nations.

Whether the president does or does not finally decide to have Ambassador Gerard tell the German government informally the views of the United States on the rough draft submitted, it was clearly apparent Tuesday that important changes would be necessary in Germany's attitude before it could be reasonably hoped that the formal reply could remove from the negotiations the critical aspect they have assumed.

Hope for Changes

The situation was not regarded by any means as hopeless, because it was believed in well-informed quarters that the mere fact of submitting to Ambassador Gerard a tentative draft of the German reply might be construed as meaning that Germany might make further changes if the position of the United States was found to be unalterable. There are indications, however, that some Berlin officials believe public opinion in the United States has been divided since the resignation of Secretary Bryan and that public sentiment here really favors compromising the issue. During the pendency of the negotiations the apparent cessation of torpedoing without warning of enemy ships and the absence of mistaken attacks on American vessels have produced a good impression in official quarters here.

The American government has no intention of disclosing with Germany the attacks on such ships as the Armenian and the Anglo-Californian, which were shelled by German submarines after making repeated attempts to escape. Although a number of Americans perished as a consequence of these attacks, the United States recognizes that the German commanders under the circumstances were justified in their action.

Will Not Ask Immunity

It is generally understood, too, that there will be no effort to obtain immunity from attack for ships primarily engaged in contraband traffic. If the latter follow a general policy of retreating capture. But what the American government has been unable to obtain thus far is an explicit agreement that Germany would visit and search unarmed merchant ships, which, although carrying contraband, would beed the carrying of submaries and subject themselves to visit and search, enabling non-combatants to be transferred to a place of safety in case of destruction of a vessel as a prize is deemed necessary.

German May Recede

Such information as has leaked out concerning Germany's proposals indicates that the Berlin government in-pany had done all the work it expected to do in providing means for the diversion of water. While Judge Dieckhoff admits that in some instances placer settings with no other resources than his bare hands and a stout heart, ventures under the harsh conditions of trooper life to reclaim a piece of arid land and make for himself a home, the courts are inclined prepared to recede to some extent from her position with reference to passenger vessels, but is inclined to place many restrictions upon their sailing. The United States has contended that Americans engaged in "lawful errands" may travel anywhere on the high seas in unarmed and un-registered merchant ships. To enter into arrangements whereby certain passenger vessels would be given immunity while others were denied the same privilege would, in the opinion of many officials, permit the German government to interpret the measure of neutral rights which American citizens could enjoy on the high seas and doubtless involve the United States sooner or later in difficulties with other belligerents who, in the event of reconstructions, would be situated for several miles and a permanent location made for a mill and the canal extended for that distance. From time to time until 1911 additional sections were constructed, but from that time until 1908, when the plaintiff's system was well under way, the record shows that no work was done and the record discloses nothing of an intention on the part of the owners to go further with the work.

SALMON WATER RIGHTS ARE FIXED

rights, but finds it a difficult matter to determine what those rights were. None of the lands owned by the defendant were used for residence purposes, but the water was used, in a rough manner for flooding the lands under work was done, and the record shows the yield of pasturage. There are no figures prior to 1911 to show the amount of water diverted.

Vineyard Works
In 1892 a canal was constructed by the company, now called the High Line or Harrel canal. It ran but a short distance into Roimold slough. In 1897 reconstructions were made for several miles and a permanent location made for a mill and the canal extended for that distance. From time to time until 1911 additional sections were constructed, but from that time until 1908, when the plaintiff's system was well under way, the record shows that no work was done and the record discloses nothing of an intention on the part of the owners to go further with the work.

to give him every opportunity." "Due diligence," he says, "is always a question of circumstances." Considering the matter in this light, he decided that since the stock company was wealthy concern, the fact that so little work was done for many years was sufficient evidence to permit the belief that the project was abandoned, notwithstanding the fact the capacity of the canal as built was much greater than necessary for its length. For that reason the court holds that the company's rights are those sufficient to water the acreage under irrigation in 1906.

Prior Rights
This amount of land he finds to be 800 acres, used to raise hay, and 2500 acres as pasture. As to the amount of water necessary for this amount of irrigation, the court decides, taking into consideration the elevation of the lands, 12,500 acre-feet should be sufficient. He reaches this in three ways: By apportioning average lands and crops, he does not look with favor on the suggestion that the defendant can hold the water after the grasses have matured, only in order to keep them green until the convenience of the owner for harvesting the crop.

Plaintiff's Allowance
Computation of the rights of the irrigator consisted in measuring the basis of 2.4 acre feet for the irrigation of 73,000 acres of land, a total of 235,200 acre feet during the season. In awarding this large right to the plaintiff, the court takes occasion to say that there is no implication that there is sufficient water in the stream to supply it.

Should the Vineyard company desire to abandon use on its hay and meadow lands and transfer its right to the High Line canal, the court indicates a willingness to permit the change providing the now use does not enlarge the net flow to the stream at the plaintiff's intake.

$10,000.00 for YOU—for Sequel to This PHOTOPLAY

A Picturized Romantic Novel

Starts Next Monday

MONDAY you are given your first opportunity to see "The Diamond From the Sky"—the photoplay that earned the $10,000 prize in the Chicago Tribune's recent photoplay contest. This remarkable film drama will be presented for the first time in the Orpheum theatre. Manage to get there early. Remember, a $10,000 cash prize is offered to the man, woman or child submitting the best suggestion for a sequel to this prize photoplay. This offer is open to YOU.

In the first act of "The Diamond From the Sky" you will find announced the successful author who received the first $10,000 prize. You will see the entire cast introduced. You will see the studios of the American Film Manufacturing Company at Santa Barbara, California, where this picture was produced. You will read both the latest offer—how to earn $10,000 for a sequel to this prize play. You will see enacted the thrilling scenes in which a gypsy baby is sold for $5,000 to become the hero of this story. Don't fail to attend.

A Picturized Romantic Novel

"The Diamond From the Sky" is a romantic story of heart interest—of emotional appeal. It takes you back two centuries and shows you how a meteor fell from the sky, and how in it was found the diamond from the sky—a marvelous gem. It skips over the years and shows you how this priceless jewel is handed down from generation to generation, and how it plays a part in the lives of many characters. It shows you how "The Diamond From the Sky" is taken from an infant heiress and placed around the neck of a gypsy babe and how in later years the gem is the cause of rivalry, hate, intrigue, adventure, love.

Cast Headed by Lottie Pickford

To produce this prize photoplay properly required a cast of exceptional ability. It required characters to fit the individual parts—characters whose facial features were particularly expressive of the figures in the play.

After a careful review of many of the leading actresses, Lottie Pickford was selected to play the lead in "The Diamond From the Sky." Her dainty ways—her piquant personality—are known to millions of movie fans.

The supporting cast is composed entirely of stars—ALL STARS—Irving Cummings, William Russell, Charlotte Burton, George Periolat, Eugenie Forde, W. J. Tedmarsh and Orval Humphrey. Each individual in this cast has been selected because of a particular adaptability to interpret the role of the play. This assures exceptional acting—an extraordinary film production.

Produced by the American Film Mfg. Co.

"The Diamond From the Sky" has been produced by the American Film Mfg. Co.—famous makers of "Flying A" films. The American Film Mfg. Co. is one of the largest film organizations in the world. Its studios are located in Santa Barbara, California, Chicago, Illinois and London, England. There is probably no organization better equipped—more thoroughly organized—to handle the production of such a tremendous undertaking as "The Diamond From the Sky"—than the American Film Mfg. Co. For this reason, this organization was selected for its ability to produce a high-class motion picture drama.

A Remarkable Achievement in Motion Picture Art

You will be amazed at the rare beauty of the motion picture production—"The Diamond From the Sky." You will be surprised to see such delicate color tinting as you will find in these films. You will enjoy the exceptional photography. You will admire the beautiful settings—selected especially to form beautiful pictorial effects.

Probably never before have you seen a motion picture production that has been given the artistic attention that has been given "The Diamond From the Sky." Let your eyes be the judge.

The Story Will Appear IN THIS NEWSPAPER

The story of "The Diamond From the Sky" appears in this newspaper this issue. Watch for it. Because of its peculiar romance—its deep suspense—you will find each chapter absorbingly interesting. This story is the work of a genius—a literary effort that you will stamp lastingly as EXTRAORDINARY. If you are interested in romantic fiction, probably nothing will appeal to you so deeply as the story of "The Diamond From the Sky."

$10,000 For a Suggestion

Besides offering you a beautiful photoplay and an interesting story, you are given an opportunity to earn $10,000 for a suggestion. We want a sequel to this photoplay—1,000 words or less. It need only be a suggestion—not a great literary effort. The simplest form may get the $10,000 prize. Writing and grammar will not be considered. All that is wanted is an idea for a sequel to this photoplay and $10,000 is offered to the man, woman or child who submits the most acceptable suggestion. This offer is open to everybody. Simply see the photoplay and read the story, then send in your suggestion. Full details may be had at the theatre.

First Showing Next Monday

"The Diamond From the Sky" will be shown for the first time at the Orpheum Theatre. Our patrons will want to see these exceptional motion pictures. Many will want to try for the $10,000 Prize. Say to yourself: "I'm going to see 'The Diamond From the Sky' Monday."
