MONEY FOOLISHLY SPENT

The condition of many stretches of state highway all over this state leads to a grave question whether road work done during the hot summer months is worth while. At present many of the county roads are a mass of dust and are really ten times as bad as they were before the spring rains. Tearing up the road bed after the spring rains have fallen in most cases results in forming bad chuck holes and ruts that almost destroy the value of the road later when the rain falls. The ruts catch the rain and hold it making just as bad mud holes where the chuck holes were in the dry season. This is true of so many of the roads that have been plowed up and rounded in the past month that it looks as though permanent road work must be started in the late fall or early spring in order to get one hundred cents on the dollar. The Times can point to a number of roads worked this month and the latter part of June that have never hardened or packed and are rapidly getting worse as to dust. Nothing but a good heavy downpour will help them and at that more money will have to be spent to put them in shape than would be necessary if that work had been done in the proper season.

COUNTY MONEY FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES

The Times has charged that since the control of the county funds has been in the hands of the Democrats, that party has utilized to an extravagant extent those funds to build up the party machine or rather the clique of the party which has attempted to dominate in the past two and one-half years. In a series of incidents it will be the purpose of this paper to show that the county commissioners of last term of which Commissioner Strimon was a member, utilized various times in such funds in a way that added nothing of value to the taxpayers, while putting the money into the pockets of political adherents. Through the multiplicity of the board, the good faith of veracity of this paper has been questioned. The Times is willing to leave the weighing of the evidence in the public.

Incident Number 1. The state law requires that the results of the official ballot, as well as general election be printed in at least two not more than four papers of the county. The intent of the law being the dissemination of a clear knowledge of the candidates to the voters. The publication is always expensive and most county boards content themselves with publication in the minimum number, two papers, one of each political faith. The county board of last year fully decided, according to the testimony of the clerk and members of the board, on two papers, one Republican and one Democratic. However, when the time came for the publication of the ballot, strange to say the ballot was printed in four papers, three Democratic and one Republican, mark the disparity of the division. In other words, four hundred dollars of county money (the taxpayers' money) went on paper to two extra Democratic papers to help build up the fences of the Democratic county clique in control. Two papers were enough and has been the number utilized by other boards in this county. Commissioner Carlson states that he is desirous of economy in public office, yet failed in this case to make a saving of four hundred dollars of your money and mine. If the idea of the expenditure was education of the public, then he should have picked two papers of each party having the largest circulation. There is only one conclusion that any person of reason can reach from the above action, a desire on the part of this man to aid his party at the expense of the public funds. Furthermore there is no record of any protest on the part of the economical Mr. Carlson over the payment of the accounts. Four hundred dollars is not a great sum, but it is four hundred dollars of public funds used for a political purpose rather than to enhance the public welfare.

DISORGANIZATION IN FRANCE AND ENGLAND

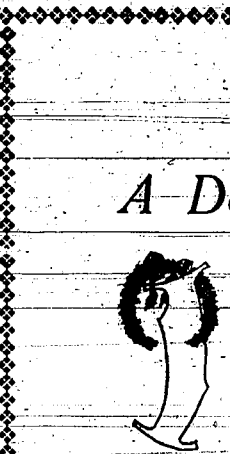

Outspoken criticism is not popular in France today, and the authorities have suppressed the Paris Guerre Sociale, the organ of that brilliant Socialist editor, Mr. Gustave Hervé. His frankness during the war has fallen since the Marne. The failure Mr. Hervé attributes to a lack of organization in both France and England which, he says, must be speedily remedied unless disaster is to follow. He considers that the people are awake to the danger and that only "It would be deceiving the government and the chief command to allow them to believe that either the part of the nation which is fighting in the trenches or the other which lives in anguish and in hope is full of admiration or respect over the military results obtained since last September, that is, since the great day of enthusiasm which followed the battle of the Marne."

He then proceeds to ask a number of pointed questions and calls for greater frankness on the part of the authorities:

"Every one has an impression that although our military affairs may not be going very badly, they are not going very well, and that there is something in the huge machinery that is not working properly. What is the plan to fill. We must fill in the army industry, against industry, trade, against trade, finance against finance, and science against science. That is the war we must uphold against Germany."

An equally pessimistic note is struck in England by Sir William Robertson. He calls for a Non-Communist organ with an immense following. He calls for a limitation of profits, the compilation of a "National Register" but, among the services that can be rendered by every man under sixty, and for the exercise of moral pressure to make the people render that service.

"There are certain steps which the government, if it is wise, will take at once. (1) The government must stop profiteering. There must be strict dealing with the purchase of coal and bread. (2) In this contest poverty, surrounded with a keen eye, the justice of its lot. When the cost of

BELIEVE in Dodge Brothers Motor Car because into its making have gone the finest thoughts of those two Master Men whose name it bears.

I believe in this car because I know that beneath the lustre of a matchless exterior is the expression of honesty and integrity in material form.

I know that bound up in every polished gear are those qualities which manifest themselves in all great achievements. In offering Dodge Brothers Motor Car I know that I am selling a machine that is made of iron and steel character—a vehicle that must and does symbolize and maintain a priceless reputation built on honor.

My faith is not alone a faith in a car—it is a faith in the ideals of men, for I know that back of these mighty factories their thought is ever master. I believe, with Berton Bralles, that—

And so I stand, inspired with the blazing truth that I am selling thru honest effort something not only built by man, but built of men to be sold to men by MAN.

ment, to work—the France that has ever marched at the head of all progress—the France that means to live. "Every Frenchman today... has a sacred duty to fill. We must fill in the industry, trade, against industry, trade, against trade, finance against finance, and science against science. That is the war we must uphold against Germany."

the necessities of life continually increases, and along with them the fortunes of the coal-owners and the corn-dealers, the people turn into millionaires and tycoons. They become indifferent in the cause of the country and hostile to the government that rules them. "The National Register ought to be begun at once. It will not immediately meet our deficiencies or solve our problems. It is with ambitions and with the cost of food and fire that we are principally concerned, but the National Register, which ought to have been made long ago, and which was prevented by the opposition of the experts, must be done. Every one of us should be included. Moral worth should be applied in the strictest degree. Each of us must be willing to take the responsibility of us; whatever that task may be."

blood of those who are now facing the shot. Meanwhile the Kolnische Zeitung which has been calmly watching the trend-of-events, has a few caustic words to say on the subject. "For the first time England has now to face an enemy who employs every technical resource and every detail of organization with an art which is far superior to that of great Britain and her Allies. Perfect technical skill and perfect organization have this in common—that they achieve the greatest effects by the smallest means. They have this also in common—that they can not be improvised. The Quadruple Entente is fighting against the results of 'the next' technical progress that the world knows. Even if one multiplies Mr. Lloyd-George by ten, one can not require of him that he, in the very midst of an exhausting war, he should become master of our superiority."

turns. "It is not so long since the words militarism and organization made every Briton laugh. Day after day the newspapers built Tory and Liberal, poured hatred upon these two expressions because they were 'Irishman' inventions which must be eradicated as being the greatest danger to the freedom of Europe. And now? Militarism and organization have become the twin anchors of salvation, the only means by which old England, now falling to pieces, can be fastened together again. This is the course of things—that it is high time to imitate the latest 'Prussian' inventions to which Germany owes her successes—from which the Ministry of Munitions has arisen. From this, too, comes the demand for the hated military compulsion which we Germans proudly call universal service." Literary Digest.

The camera men were set. The director was at his station. He shouted, "Grind away!" to the man at the camera and winked for the action to proceed.

First across the sun-drenched stretch the camera caught the movement of a racing motor car. The whirling wheels threw up great belching sprays of white road dust. The car, like steam in the clear California air. The roar of the motor grow louder as the car came nearer and nearer—the little moving picture car, stationed on a knoll commanding both plateau and sea.

"Cameras is driving like a lunatic today," Jacques Jaccard, the director, observed to the camera man at his elbow, who replied with a nod as he proceeded with the work that was, winding the picture of the speeder into film record. They were making a thrilling "getaway" scene in "The Diamond from The Sky," the new, pictorially romantic novel.

"Hold!" Jaccard shouted, as the car shot past in a blur of motion. "A few rods on the road winding about the top of the cliff took a sharp turn just where the great towering natural wall jutted out into the sea. Below the big rollers of the deep water were boiling ominously against the rocks."

The rehearsed plan of the picture was to substitute a dummy for Irving Cummings, appearing as the heroic Arthur Stanley of the film novel, and send the car over the cliff for the picture for the wild drop.

"Hold! Stop! That's enough!" The horror-stricken director's command brought no reply.

While the director shouted and gesticulated futile warnings, the camera man continued to grind away, recording the picture.

The automobile motor, a hundred feet from the edge of the cliff, roared with a new fury as Cummings threw in the accelerator.

There was a flash of fire from the power unit exhaust and the motor Cummings at the wheel, went over the cliff.

A mighty boom from below told the parked crew at the camera that the motor struck the sea.

But this was not an ordinary accident.

As the camera man's hand director rushed to the edge of the cliff they saw Cummings hob up nearly a hundred yards off shore and start whirling in with long, powerful strokes. Cummings assured his master, Director Jaccard was himself again in an instant.

"Get that, it's great stuff," shouted the director, "the camera men."

A few minutes later Cummings was changing to dry clothes in the tonneau of the director's car.

"Why in heaven's name do you do that?" Jaccard demanded. "You know we rehearsed it with a dummy."

"Yep. But the brakes jammed so I thought I'd make it a good one," responded Cummings. "What're you kicking about? Wash it out stuff."

That is the moving picture life at Santa Barbara.

approximately four hundred teachers will be the largest gathering of kind Twin Falls ever entertained. Plans are practically completed for the work of the institute, which, it is believed, will be one of the best sectional teachers' meetings ever held in the state of Idaho. The institute will be organized into eight departments. These departments will provide for the teachers who are interested in school administration and supervision, secondary department, primary education, rural education, penmanship, music and art. The department of elementary education will provide for teachers of the intermediate and grades of the elementary. In addition to the department of elementary education, there will be a department to which the public is invited. These open lectures will be given in the morning, afternoon and evening.

Dr. Ira W. Howarth, of the department of education of the University of California, Dr. Howarth has made some splendid contributions to the institute and will be an admirable lecturer in every way for his work as an institute lecturer. In addition to providing the greater part of the open lectures, Dr. Howarth will have charge of the department of secondary education and will also give one or two open lectures.

Dr. Charles A. McMurtry, of the George Peabody College for teachers, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. McMurtry has been for years one of the most noted lecturers in the field of elementary education. His years of work in the state normal school of DeKalb, Ill., attest this fact. Without doubt, Dr. McMurtry has contributed more to the literature of elementary education than any of his contemporaries. Practical by every teacher in America, a familiar with many of Dr. McMurtry's educational and pedagogical texts, Normal Schools and colleges for the training of teachers have for years referred their students to Dr. McMurtry's books. He will have charge of the department of elementary education and will also give one or two open lectures.

Professor John C. Warner, lately of the Kansas State Agricultural college of Manhattan, Kansas, now of the Albion Normal school, Professor Warner is a long member of the educational faculties of this state. He has recently accepted the chair of agriculture in the normal school at Albion, Idaho. His work in the Kansas Agricultural college shows him to be a Conditions at Biekel School Demand Remedy.

The board of trustees of the Independent School District are contemplating some much needed improvements at the Biekel school that will cut out the use of the three-room shack used for the past two years and increase the sanitation and ventilation of Biekel building to a marked degree. A great amount of trouble has occurred each year over the impossibility of properly heating and ventilating the building, owing to the antiquated plant installed in the early days. The boiler is now worn out and dangerous and must be replaced. The board is figuring the putting in of a modern heating plant that will care for the building for all time, placed outside in a separate boiler room. With this plant will be installed an expensive ventilating system. Most

ROBINSONS

I have not been talking to you Another thing that makes folks in the newspapers, quite as feel good is that parents are much the past two weeks as I did their children here before the store was opened. I goods. That tells me that I wanted to see if what I had said, beginning to believe in what I said and the prices at which we were and that means more to me selling goods, would bring you in anything else. the store even if I did not ask you. I want your trade, but I want to come in through the newspaper. I want your confidence, your pers. I want to tell you this time will, and your friendship and how glad I am that those who do not know how hard, all of came early are not only coming will work to have you become back but are telling their friends friends while we are trying and they are coming in, and buy, sell your goods, ing, too. Not only those who live - Come offer, come when you in Twin Falls and those who live - want to look and be come on the ranches near here, but the come and tell me if anything is not right. If you do not know good folks who live in the other not make it right, and you know I want to have a right. I want you satisfied with the time.

WHAT NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING HAS DONE FOR MY BUSINESS

By Geo. M. Brown, President, General Roofing Manufacturing Co.

One of the best proofs that advertising has helped our business and has made known to the public that I am invited to talk to the Advertiser's organization. We were so little known when we began advertising and have become so well-known everywhere, that there is no doubt in the minds of any of our organization that advertising is doing for us what they could expect it to do. As further proof that this is true, 1914 was the most successful year in the history of our company, in spite of the general business depression, and so far this year we are every where in the like period for 1914 in every way. In some ways we are even better.

In order that you may fully understand our position in some of these matters, it will be desirable to give a short outline of our early experiences before we began to advertise. We began by selling goods with salesman in the hands of the general public. For some time we were not successful in our efforts to sell our products, and it was not until we began to advertise that we were able to get our goods into the hands of the public. We found that by building mills which could turn out a substantial volume and to do the work of manufacturing from start to finish, we were able to get goods of good quality at lower prices. The demand kept growing and the jobbing trade began to sit up and take notice, and we began to get the great bulk of our business through jobbing channels. We looked upon this jobbing as necessary part of modern up-to-date, economical business. We thought we could give service, distribution and a credit which were necessary for the most successful results. In the beginning we were successful in this, because of the better bargain which was offered, but competitors in our lines found that by sending clever talkers—men who were better informed in our specialties, direct to the dealer or large consumer, they could outsell our jobbers' salesmen who had hundreds of thousands of articles to sell, who were generally not well informed on our specialties.

We realized that we must give some further aid to the selling plans, and this could be done by developing jobbing mills to the jobber or dealer were not really sold. We learned that people want to know or feel that people want to know that they know, some thing about what they are buying, and in case they do not have this feeling a very clever talker will get the job. We found that the ordinary presentation of our goods in an agricultural community. We had the mill facilities and the organization to carry on a much larger business, so we took up the plan of general advertising. We adopted a coined word—"CERTAIN-TEED"—the best name to use to tell the story of what it was we were doing. We found that by placing upon a roll of roofing, or roll of building paper, or insulation paper, we wanted to be known to the public, we know that it meant responsibility and guaranteed satisfaction when goods carried this label. We have always claimed that the man in the mill who can tell the life of a piece of roofing by looking at it or making chemical analysis, that the manufacturer who knows the quality of his goods and who then stands behind the goods that he puts out as his best, and backed by ample responsibility, is offering something which the public cannot afford to buy. The public cannot afford to guess. Such has been our general condition and general plan for our business.

We began by advertising in farm papers principally, but later extended to various publications and finally started our big campaign. In following this road we, of course, met with many bumps and many unexpected experiences. We found, for instance, that we spent over $40,000 in one year for space and booklets, etc., to answer the inquiries, although after we got them we found that the direct inquiries were the things we least wanted. While such inquiries may be of some value, they do not sell our goods. Then we began to learn that what was good for one line of business might be very bad for another and because one concern had made a big success along one line of business, it did not mean that such methods would be good for CERTAIN-TEED Roofing. In short, we began to study the situation properly, the most advanced of the mills in our line back to those in the mill, making observation, offering suggestions and ideas, etc. We found that out of 100,000 people, or 20,000 of our families, there are a great many who among those who buy the products is most infrequent, outside of some contractor or builder, and among the buyers the average is probably not more than three or four purchases during a lifetime. We realized that we could not have salesman, and men at these few points at remote localities at the proper time to get the order, and reasoned exactly the opposite way from what we did before. Investigation, at which early time we concluded that advertising would not be good for our line, because advertising was only good for something that could be sold every day. If, for instance, we had a product which we could sell every day, we could have our salesman and men at these few points at remote localities at the proper time to get the order, and reasoned exactly the opposite way from what we did before. Investigation, at which early time we concluded that advertising would not be good for our line, because advertising was only good for something that could be sold every day. If, for instance, we had a product which we could sell every day, we could have our salesman and men at these few points at remote localities at the proper time to get the order, and reasoned exactly the opposite way from what we did before.

talked with men on trains and in street cars. If I had owned property and was a roofing buyer I would be subject for us—what did he read? What could he expect to get for his money? Would he be instructed more by seeing our advertisement in the late hours in the evening at home or on the train? We found that it was a matter of fact, we tried to learn what the man really could understand, and we found that he could understand something and where and when he could get it. The most of this investigation was done after we had commenced using more than one hundred big newspapers, and while we believe there are many forms of good advertising and that advertising is seldom entirely profitable, we believe that we have verified some other lines in some different ways, the newspaper has been the satisfactory publication for our purposes for the past several years of our campaign. We find that business men or the substantial, thoughtful person, almost without exception, is a very good advertising medium. We found that even the small items of interest that read in newspapers; that the man who reads the newspaper is associated with reading matter, and if put in the proper way, will be read, when they are interested in the subject being advertised. The advertising benefits are not buried in a big lot of advertising. These ideas have kept us front page, the Sunday newspapers, the columns of the newspaper, the department page and automobile advertising that an ordinary advertisement in other products becomes to the advertiser. It is not the absolute rate the values of Sunday papers—they are good for many lines, but not the best for all. In mentioning these facts I would not be at all complete in my statement if I did not point out "CERTAIN-TEED" that we have found that the newspaper is a necessary part of our business. We have found those with the best standing in the community—those who are at the head of the business and reliability in every way, are the ones for us to use. We find that our business grows when we use a clean, honest, reliable newspaper. We find that the good in the community, one that seeks to build and tell the truth, we cannot trace gains where we are losing. We find that the man who is disturbing the peace of the community, the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community.

By using the daily paper instead of the medium of national circulation, we can tell a much larger story to the community. If we desire to talk of agriculture in an agricultural community, we can do so. If we desire to talk to the manufacturer of New England, we can do so. If we desire to work any field, we can do so. We do not exert as much pressure in other lines, because of any varying conditions. It is our power to do so. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community.

Because of our expressed intention to do so, we find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community.

We find that many newspapers are without influence in their communities. We find that many newspapers are without influence in their communities. We find that many newspapers are without influence in their communities. We find that many newspapers are without influence in their communities. We find that many newspapers are without influence in their communities.

No such thing as "rubber roofing"

A lot of manufacturers call their roofing "Rubber Roofing" or "Rubber Roofing". The life is all out of rubber if exposed to the daylight for six months. It would be silly to put rubber roofing and call it "rubber roofing" when the roofing is not rubber. There is no such thing as "Rubber Roofing" of any kind. There is no rubber in it.

Certain-teed Roofing

It is made of the very best Roofing Felt thoroughly saturated in our properly blended asphalt and coated by a hot asphalt surface. It is the only roofing that will not rot. We have found from long experience in every part of the world and under all kinds of conditions that these are the materials that give the best and the longest life in the roof.

Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed 5, 10 or 15 years according to whether the thickness is 1/2, 3/4 or 1 ply respectively, and if the roof fails to make good you have a responsible guarantee to fall back on. Beware of the product which is misrepresented to give you in any way. Your local dealer will quote you reasonable prices on our goods.

Even decent homes how can we expect to build business by using such publications? We have also found that the publication that carries a lot of advertising with disagreeable illustrations, or that tells disgusting stories of ill and aches, is not a desirable paper for our line. A paper that is willing to publish advertising without regard to its truthfulness, is bad for us. For instance, if we ran our advertisement in a newspaper that carried such advertisements, we would be sure to lose our business. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. We find that the man who is making everybody believe that the world is going to the dogs, is a great loss to the community. The Most Spectacular Scene Ever Shown in Motion Pictures!

A MISTY DAY; A STEEP CLIFF; DEEP WATER BELOW; A HIGH-POWERED MOTOR CAR; A FRENZIED DRIVER BEING PURSUED; A race for life; fifty miles an hour; an accident—and then—the most sensational scene ever caught by a motion picture camera—a genuine, true scene that absolutely surpasses any feat of daring ever presented in motion pictures. This is shown in Chapter Three of "The Diamond From The Sky," the American Film Mfg. Co.'s great continued photoplay. Irving Cummings, hero of the story, makes this leap from the cliff. You see it all portrayed as vividly as it took place. It's got aeroplane loop-the-loops, parachute drops and all that sort of rping beat a mile for thrills.

HANSEN NOTES

Miss Elsie Smith, one of our pioneer girls, is visiting Miss Adah Garrison this week.

Master Lloyd and Miss Ethel Garrison of Churchill, Idaho, have been guests of Keith and Marjorie Smith at the E. B. Smith home, one mile northeast of Hansen, the past week.

M. B. Provost, W. T. Felton, W. W. Mickelwait, returned Sunday from a fishing and hunting expedition, although they left a few chickens and trout for others who might want to go later, they report that they were very liberally rewarded with game and had a fine time.

Amateur lumberjacks and hunters visiting the Rock creek country are Harold Smith, Orison Provost and Byron Edwards. They went loaded for bear, and we expect them back the same way about Wednesday.

J. D. Smith, who has spent the past year with his son, E. R. Smith and family, returned to his home in eastern Indiana a few days ago.

J. E. Thekson and family left Saturday morning for Chicago, for a short-camping trip. They were accompanied by Mario Pettygrove, who is taking a short leave from her study prior to her piano recital to be held soon, she will render a program of the best piano classics, among which are Mendelssohn's G minor concerto, Liszt's "Les Nuits de Scythie" (Lucia), for the left hand alone, and other numbers by Liszt, Chopin and Rubinstein. Everyone is looking forward to this recital as one of the leading musical functions of the season and a large audience is expected.

Miss Marjorie Smith entertained a number of her girl friends on Thursday of last week, at the Sunnybrook ranch, the occasion being in honor of her friend, Miss Ethel Garrison, of Churchill.

Clad in a riding skirt of dark brown leather and with a fringe of the same material and silver tassels and spangles, a black, broad brimmed hat with a band of blue beads, a black (real cowboy) boots and silver spurs and riding "mitts," a pretty black pony, ornamented with a richly mounted bridle and martingale, came the "Sunset" girl, Miss Dorothy Weston, of San Francisco, who has been visiting in Twin Falls.

She paid us but a short visit but we will always remember it. Miss Weston is a Boston girl, but takes the role of a real western girl. She is as much of "just a girl" and yet so versatile, naturally, that we didn't want to let her go, but she said, "I often find places that I should like to stay while but I must hurry to Yellowstone park so that I may finish my story for the Sunset Magazine." When told that she would have a long ride to the next hotel, she quietly remarked, "Oh I don't worry about that for often when I have not a hitch anywhere, I find a house, I have crawled into a loft or barn and stayed all night."

When she left she assured us that she would leave the Twin Falls country out of her story, and we sure will be looking for it.

Leah Hansen and Ellor crossed hats for the third time and Ellor carried home the marbles, 6 to 5. The game was an interesting one from start to finish and everyone is satisfied. Ralph Leighton umpired the game and proved himself to be a "Johnny on the spot" man for the place. He is the judge of the game so well that it is not wise to contradict his decisions, which are as un-pretended as the game itself, although he was some mechanical process. Mr. Leighton also umpired the game between Hansen and Rock Creek and those who don't like his decisions will get used to fairness if he stays around a while.

Judge Hansen and wife have returned home with good health and are glad to see Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Vanderpool have also returned to us after a long visit to Illinois, they came back in a Dodge car.

Mrs. C. J. Cahill and daughter, Ann, of Topeka, Kansas, are visiting with relatives here. Mrs. Cahill is a sister of Miss Louise Sattler.

C. C. Whipple, of Idaho Falls, spent a day last week here with Mr. Wertzbaugher. Mr. Whipple and family are visiting for a short time with Mr. Wertzbaugher's family at Twin Falls.

OVER 1,500,000 PEOPLE in the United States receive CHIROPRACTIC spinal adjustments daily. No other health method is meeting more favor at the hands of the public than the science of CHIROPRACTIC. In twenty years the science has made itself generally known all over the United States as a drugless healing method of great benefit to the individual.

The Palmer School of Chiropractic

Davenport, Iowa, has one of the largest clinics in the world, handling over 1,200 patients daily.

CHIROPRACTIC is not the same, or anything like OSTEOPATHY. If anyone disagrees with the foregoing statement let him answer for the theory of INNATE intelligence, which is a basic principle of Chiropractic unknown to any other science.

YOUR Case may not be hopeless, though you have been advised that an operation is necessary. Chiropractic has saved many grateful patients from the operating table—possibly it can do the same for you.

THE CAUSE OF ALL DISEASE IS IN THE SPINAL COLUMN. THEREFOR IT IS UNNECESSARY FOR YOU TO TELL YOUR AILMENTS. A CHIROPRACTOR CAN EASILY FIND THE CAUSE AND TELL YOU CONSULTATION AND SPINAL ANALYSIS FREE.

THREAT TO WELFARE OF STATE

Senator Borah Urges use of Ballot to Prevent Public Corruption.

"State pride is as indispensable in the building of a great state as self respect in the formation and upbuilding of private character," declared Senator William E. Borah in opening his address at the Pariah-Roosevelt farmer's picnic last Tuesday. "It is the merit and the national flavor without which our state can never attain unto that individuality among other states of the Union which every good citizen covets for the commonwealth in which he has come to make his home and rear his family and among whose people he has cast his lot. We ought to cultivate it in every conceivable way. As the individual builds his home and puts his personal character into the architecture and grounds, its furnishings and its library, distinguishing it thus from that of all his neighbors, so a people for good or bad writes their character and purpose inevitably into the institutions and laws of a state and thus give it her character by which she is to be judged among all the sisterhood of states. Who does not want to see the name of Idaho come to have a significance all its own, a mark of distinction and an individuality which shall be hers and hers alone?"

"To this splendidly endowed state has come from the beginning an excellent stock of people. The citizenship is of the best strain of the whole country. First, the pioneers, men and women of heroic mold, who came here to live, and which they are justly entitled. Their followers from Massachusetts and Ohio and Illinois and Wisconsin, Kansas and Iowa and other great commonwealths an industrious, frugal, sober, home-loving, law-respecting people. I was gratified beyond measure in running over the statistics gathered by our census bureau to find how far up Idaho stands in all the qualities of virtue and dependable citizenship in literacy it is among the very first, peculiar and distinct. We have nothing more to do than to accentuate it in order that we may have a commonwealth worthy to rank among the greatest in the Union.

"If my friends, there is another side of this picture and at the risk of being misunderstood, I am going to be equally frank with you in regard to it. A large number of our citizens, they may meet with courage and hope the adventures which so often envelop those who go out in the desert and waste places of our homes and build communities, he may meet at the cost of great denial both as to himself and his family the obligations of debt, he may be sober, law-abiding and upright in all the transactions among men and yet not meet in full measure the responsibilities of citizenship.

"Idaho has lately suffered shame and humiliation by reason of the betrayal of some of those in whom the people had reposed their confidence. It is a nauseating affair—this cold, cowardly deliberate bartering of the state's honor. The actual taking of the public funds is bad enough, but the loss of the money taken, should it be lost, is altogether the least of the consequences. The standing of the state in every financial center in the United States. It reduces the value of every farm, of every horse and cow, of every estate and municipal bond and warrant, it increases your taxes and lessens your values. Such things are not only deplorable from a moral standpoint but they are also bad as a pure question of business. Men engaged in legitimate business, capital seeking legitimate investments, railroads and corporate enterprise looking for extensions and for ways in which to invest, turn aside if they can from the state where intelligence and veracity prevail in the public service.

"Now my friends, there is only one remedy for this situation. The passage of some statute will not avail. There are some things the citizen must do of his own initiative and no form of legislation can take the place of it. The spasmodic display of a righteous indignation will not suffice. This case, a case of public spirited men can accomplish nothing person of Deceit. The remedy lies in the aroused and determined effort of a whole people—the voters.

"Some people in the state urge that we repeat the primary law—arguing that we can do better without it, and that under the old system things were much better. I do not assail the motives of those who so contend. I know some of our best men think that way—don't you at all—their honesty. But speaking for myself I am unalterably and uncompromisingly opposed to its repeal or its emasculation. I am not willing to take the responsibility of putting the hands of the people at the very time when we are applying to the people for action and are getting ready for war—so far as I am concerned I prefer to leave the power with the people and rely upon them to see the necessity of its use and to faithfully make the use rather than to take away the power and rely upon the sinister, selfish interest of politicians sneaking in unseen behind closed doors and through the manipulation of machine strategy to protect the rights and interests of the people. A people who have not the energy, the initiative, the patriotism to select their candidates are equally unworthy and unfit to elect them and there is just as much argument to repeal the law for election as the law for selection."

ORCHARDISTS SHOULD AID

Fruit This Year Should be Shipped to Various Expositions and Shows.

Two years ago at Spokane National exposition, the public was invited to purchase the excellent apples on exhibition and mail them to "enterprising friends who might not otherwise have an opportunity to see and taste the superior apples grown in the Pacific states. The exposition provided the cartons in which to mail the apples. The postoffice provided a clerk, stationed in a booth in the exposition building, to take orders for mailings advertised. Mail sacks were filled and a great many apples went out by parcels post to people who would not otherwise have had an opportunity to see and test the quality of apples grown in the Northwest. A great deal of excellent advertising was secured in this way.

"Five carloads of apples gathered from the Idaho orchards last year and sent down to San Francisco and placed in cold storage served an excellent purpose in keeping the horticultural interest of Idaho before the public. Boxes of apples were brought out from cold storage from time to time as fresh fruit as needed and the tables have been kept filled with an attractive display.

"Competitive awards and newspaper advertising resulting therefrom will be made on the fruit grown in the year 1915. It is now up to us as orchardists in the state to maintain a fresh attractive exhibit until December. Peaches, summer apples and other summer fruits should grace the tables during the month of August. With the advent of September and October, peaches, pears, plums, and autumn apples can be shown to excellent advantage. The orchardists of the state should contribute the fruit transportation charges legitimately being to the state exposition fund. With the advent of October a carload of our best winter apples should be sent down. These apples should be given away at the Idaho building in carloads provided by the state fund to all who will pay the postage on these apples to be forwarded by parcels post. By going one step farther than the Spokane people did, namely, out-
