LEO M. FRANK ASSASSINATED

Mob Invade Prison Farm Unopposed

VICTIM OF RACE PREJUDICE IS HANGED NEAR MARIETTA

Gov. of Georgia Promises Speedy Punishment of Mob Leaders. Investigation Started.

Seeking Evidence. Officials of Cobb county, in which the hanging occurred, immediately started an investigation.

Death Came Quickly. The body, hanging from an oak tree, was found clothed only in the shirt which Frank wore when he was torn from bed in the prison dormitory.

Mob's Work Done. "Let there be no further violence," he said. "The work of the mob is done. Leo M. Frank has given his life for the crime to which he has been condemned. Do not mutilate the body. Let it go to his mother. I appeal to your better judgment and ask of the crowd with the courage I suggest to raise their right hand."

Worked Quickly. The gang that took Frank from the prison dormitory apparently worked quickly and rapidly. They began their 400-mile automobile ride from Milledgeville. The scene of the hanging was a wooded area.

If I spend my Dollars out of Twin Falls and you spend yours in Twin Falls, you are helping me. Dollars out of Twin Falls, and all the people spend their Dollars out of Twin Falls, WHAT IN THE THUNDER WILL BECOME OF TWIN FALLS?

THINK ABOUT IT. Twin Falls Commercial Club.

The great good fortune that appears just ahead of the Twin Falls county in abundant crops and high prices should do much to bring to this section a large number of practical farmers from all over the middle west. We need them and can assimilate at least a third more than we have at present without detriment to those already in the field.

It is evident from the shrewd campaigning of Mose Alexander that the Republican party must put as good men into the gubernatorial chair. Mose Alexander has not made good as a governor and is spending time which belongs to the state in traveling about building up his record. But there is no question but that he is making an impression with the people because of his repeated restorations of his accomplishments. The Times would heartily endorse a movement that will bring out a popular as well as sound business man for governor on the Republican ticket.

Idaho should be in line next year with every candidate successful in the hands of the men in control can read the handwriting on the wall.

MORE REGULATIONS NEEDED. The thoroughness with which the automobile is being held to traffic regulations within this city is highly commendable. The Times would suggest, however, that the same thoroughness apply to other vehicles and most especially to motorcycles. The speed of fifteen miles per hour is not observed by scarcely a single cycle driver. Ordinary road rules are violated at every turn, until the twisting route of each vehicle resembles the trail of a smoke machine.

DRIFT TO BLOCK NEUTRALS. "Answer won't do" is the journalistic motto of the defender of his defense of the shipper not only to Germany, but to adjacent ports. Thus the New York World, in reviewing a group of editorial opinions, concludes that the notes of the British Government in reply to our protest of March 20, 1915, are "regarded by leading circles of New York and throughout the country as unsatisfactory and calling for a further protest by the United States Government." But these adverse critics differ in the vigor of their objections. The German-American press for instance, consider the notes a blunt refusal to respect American commerce. Again, among the newspapers printed in English there are those who claim that "Great Britain is abusing her control of the seas"; others, among them the Chicago Tribune, hold that there is every indication that the correspondence will be prolonged as a result of the present notes, only to be further complicated by an expansion of British repressive measures and by stronger American protests against them. Commentators of downright pro-German sympathy remark with arid humor that England after three months of despicable procrastination declines to yield a jot or tittle of our just demands. But the Philadelphia Public Ledger, which ranks with the journals that believe that the whole question remains open to argument, and admonishes us that "if there is nothing in the note to arouse ill feeling or to justify sharp language," England's "whole tone and temper discloses no wish to deliberately transgress the principle of international law, and this journal suggests that the points in dispute "may be referred to arbitration, if an agreement can not be reached, without loss of dignity." Then with a caution to those who would blame our "grievances" against England against those who as "irrelevance" against Germany, the Public Ledger observes:

"There is no question (with Great Britain) of any defiance of justice and humanity. There are no intolerable injuries for which redress must be demanded. It would be almost a crime, to treat this issue as one of the consequences with that which the conduct of Germany has provoked."

"The New York Sun, of wholly contrary mind, puts Britain's offense on the ground of that of Germany, stating: "It is a paper rule that doesn't work both ways." We read:

"Germany's defense of submarine outrages was that they were necessary adaptations of naval warfare to modern conditions. We have told her, in substance, that modern conditions must be adapted to inalienable rights, not the reverse."

"Great Britain's defense of her non-contraband invasion of our rights of non-contraband commerce with neutral ports is that her obstructive measures constitute nothing more than an adaptation of the old principle of blockade to the peculiar circumstances of this war."

A reply similar to that already made to Germany is due to Great Britain. Interesting in this connection is the view of the New York Evening Sun which says that while it is far from believing "that Sir Edward Grey writes Flin's to the contrary," it is certainly assured of its continuance within the bounds of diplomatic representation and legal argumentation. This journal adds:

"Stripped to the bone, the assumptions and claims of the British note are: 1. Blockade is an allowable expedient in war. 2. Since blockade is allowable, it is allowable to make it effective. 3. If the only way to render it effective is to extend it to enemy commerce passing through neutral ports, such extension is allowable. 4. Germany can carry on her commerce through neutral ports of several countries almost as well as through her own. 5. Therefore a blockade of her ports alone would not be effective. 6. Therefore the Allies assert the right to extend their operations to the German commerce of neutral ports. 7. In doing this a sincere effort is made to distinguish between the German commerce of such neutral ports and their own legitimate trade for the use and benefit of their own nationals. 8. In making the extension of blockade to the German commerce of neutral ports, the Allies are applying the rule, formerly invariable, that ships and goods running blockade are condemnable. 9. Conceding that the extension of blockade as outlined is an innovation, it is not for that reason unpermissible. Changes in the laws and usages have frequently been made. 10. The important point is that they must quote an American State Department expression, conform to the spirit and principles of the sentence of the rule that they seek to apply. 11. The United States Government has freely made innovations in the law within the above restriction, but regardless of the views or interests of neutrals. 12. Of the whole, these innovations were of the same general character as those now declared by the Allies.

KNOW THY COUNTRY

I-Introductory

"Know America" is a slogan that should be the motto of every school room, office, farm and shop of the nation. No man can aspire to a higher honor than to become a capable citizen, and no one can merit so distinguished a title until he is well informed of the resources, possibilities and achievements of his country. This is a commercial age and civilization is bearing its most golden fruit in America. We are noted for our industrial achievements as Egypt was noted for her pyramids; Jerusalem for her religion; Greece for her art; Phenicia for her sea; China for her astronomy and Rome for her laws. Likewise we have men who will go down in the world's history as powerful products of their age. For standing at the source of every significant movement that aways civilization is a great man. The greatest mind travel in the greatest direction and the commercial genius of this age would have been the geologists, poets, philosophers, and artists of earlier civilizations. As Michael Angelo took a rock and with a chisel held it into the image of an angel that ever beckons mankind upward and onward, Hill took the steel and with a cutting process of bands of steel made it blossom like a rose, dotted the valleys with happy homes and built cities in waste places. As Gutenberg took blocks of wood and whittled them into an alphabet that has made the world, the flashed education across the continent like a ray of light upon a new born world. McCormick took ward reducing the high cost of living, as it will tend to eliminate the great army of idleness, now between the producer and consumer, each of whom must have his "added to" the cost before it reaches the consumer. "14. The contention that there is a lack of written authority for the present prohibition or suspension of the law of blockade is unavailing. It is the function of writers on international law to formulate abstract principles and rules and not to invent or dictate alterations adapting them to altered circumstances. "15. The present modifications of the old rules of blockade are consistent with the general principles on which an acknowledged right is based. "16. In their application all unnecessary injury to neutrals is avoided. "17. Therefore they are not only justified by the exigencies of the case, but can be defended in accordance with general principles which have been approved by the government both of the United States and of Great Britain."

Although the Boston Transcript contends that "the issue with Germany can not be considered justifiable on any score and should never have been allowed to become a subject of international law," it is not to be confused with our question of Great Britain's blockade, it notes as well that "the American contentions of March 30, are rejected one, and all as unsustainable either in point of law or upon principles of international equity." Far from closing the discussion, this journal goes on to say, "Sir Edward Grey is careful to open it wider * * * by the assurance that Great Britain is disposed to make reasonable concessions if American indignance and the suggestion of a method of an appeal from the decisions of British prize-courts and of international arbitration as a last resort." Nevertheless, the Transcript is severe in its comment on Great Britain for citing the Springfield case in its defense. We read that:

"It is no frank and adequate answer for Sir Edward Grey to turn back to the American Civil War as a parallel and contend that the present course of his Government in obstructing neutral trade is comparable with the course of the United States in 1861-65 toward the Bermudas and Bahamas and the Mexican Rio Grande. All the underlying conditions are different. In the first place, it is the record of history that Great Britain as a whole, including its colonies was hostile to our Federal Government and sympathized strongly with the Confederate cause. * * * Neutral Europe as a whole was our most aggressive enemy." Literary Digest.

Let us as little help as possible. Let most of the work be done by yourself and your family, if you want to make your garden pay. And as you watch things grow, your bank account will grow with you. Attention and the commandment, which the bank pays on deposit. T. D. MacGregor.

"Do you want your dollar to remain at home, work at home, live at home, and board at the same place? If so, spend it at home. Think about it. "TWIN FALLS COMMERCIAL CLUB Where Does the Merchant Get In? A man now gets up to the alarm of a Connecticut clock, buttons his Chicago suspenders to Detroit overalls, washes his face with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania wash pan, sits down at a table and eats a table with an Ohio meat and Sioux City flour cooked with Omaha lard on a St. Louis stove; puts New York bridges on Missouri mules, pigs corn raised from Iowa seed with an Illinois plow on a farm covered by an Ohio mortgage. When bedtime comes he reads a chapter from a Bible printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem, and crawls under blankets made in New Jersey, only to be kept awake by an Idaho bedbug. The only home product on the place."

There is but one practical solution of the high cost of living, and that is to raise your own produce. The home garden in a great measure will do this. It will stop the paying of money to the "vegetable man" and the grower a big saving. And those who are so situated that they can raise their own poultry and eggs, milk and butter, and a pig or two for winter's meat, with a chance now and then from the market to poultry, may be said to be directly on the line of the high cost of living, completely blocked. L. D. Lynde, St. Paul.

The recent extension of the parcel post system, making provision for the direct delivery of the product from the producer to the consumer, is a long step in the right direction to county last year? What price did you receive? How much freight did your merchant pay on the same class of products and add against you? What price did you receive for your apples? What price did you pay for vinegar? Did you demand vinegar made at home? What did you pay for evaporated fruit? Did you ask for home grown products? Maybe your merchant would have home grown products in his store if he knew you wanted them. Wonder what would be the result if the merchant and the producer talked it over in a candid manner? Communicated.

FILED NEWS (From the Filar Journal) Piler was a lively place again last Saturday. How did we ever get along without the street-arker. The cement potato warehouse is being put in condition for the fall crop. Mrs. Beem will build a fine bungalow on her acre lot south of the school house. Miss Grossman, of Missoula, Mont., sister of Mrs. A. J. Damm, is visiting here. If keeping a good lookout out that melon patch. Geo. P. Pruitt left Monday for a visit to the home of his sister at Cokeville, Wyo. H. J. Weaver directed 8 acres of alfalfa last week that made 12 bushels and 50 pounds to the acre. J. A. Scole, who is on the tract for the purpose of buying seed, estimates that there is 100 cars of clover between Minidoka and Piler. A girl was born last Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Love. The birth took place in the hospital at Twin Falls, and mother and child are doing well. Ralph H. Mueser, who has been teaching agriculture at Gooding, has accepted the offer to teach at Twin Falls, taking the place of Prof. Mac Hoke. Dan G. Wilson and family who left here some two years ago to locate at Chico, Cal., is on his way back and will try and be contacted in the future in the Filar county. Mrs. J. A. Cary brought joy and gladness to the Journal household last Friday by the first news of green corn that was raised here, it came just in the nick of time to save the lives of the whole outfit. Earl Munyon, junior member of the action-saving firm of Munyon & Son, who was in the city on a business trip, proposes to be able to make the country in a row, while the other man will continue to ride the circuit in his region. Mrs. J. A. Cary was operated upon for appendicitis at the hospital last Friday evening. She is getting along splendidly. Her daughter, Miss Carolyn, is better and will be operated on later for the same trouble. The game of ball last Sunday was a peach. The weather was hot and was somewhat curtailed, but those who stayed it out had a good run for their money. The game was operated upon by the club and the score of 7 to 20. Col. Munyon acted as umpire, and his work was satisfactory. The alarm Tuesday morning brought the fire department to the scene of the conflagration in record of before it got a fire was another boys at the Nibley Channel Lumber yard were burning hot news when it looked like the fire would get away from them, but the early run of the company put the blood in royal circulation. Andy Hattison is now visiting in New York City. Guy Shearer motored to Twin Falls Tuesday on a business engagement. Prof. C. H. Ferrin, of Chicago, is here this week looking after his farm east of Piler. Mrs. Cary left yesterday for a visit to her home in Omaha and different points in Kansas. Born, on August 17 a son weighing 9 pounds to Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Whisenand living west of Piler. Mrs. J. Van Gent, living west of Piler had a runaway Sunday and sustained a dislocation of the elbow. H. L. Austin and family left yesterday for a visit to his old home in Missouri. The fire department will have charge of the yard during the absence. The fire cream social and program Henry Lamson, chairman of the E. church on the lawn last Friday evening was well attended. An excellent program preceded the refreshments. Henry Lamson, chairman of the Journal, left Monday for Lava Springs. He has been troubled with blood poisoning and the doctors thought a good change would help matters along amazingly. Dr. White, the Twin Falls specialist on tuberculosis, has been appointed a delegate by Governor Alexander to the 3rd annual meeting of the National Association to be held in Indianapolis, living west of Piler. A lot of people thought when Wm. Higgenbotham moved onto a farm he wouldn't be able to raise anything, but his wheat "took" the year. On from five acres he threshed 75 bushels of clover seed—15 bushels to the acre. Proving that Bill is some farmer as well as an expert. Vern Radcliffe, about 18 years old, who lives at the top of the canyon above Crystal Springs, was fishing for trout in the Rock Creek and on stepping on a stone a rattlesnake bit him on the foot. He was hurried to town in an automobile and brought to the hospital where the doctor administered treatment that will bring him through all right. The board of directors of the Twin Falls Cattle company is making arrangements to borrow a sum of $125,000 for the purpose of enlarging the high line canal and roping the district under the Upper Rock Creek under the high line and leaving the balance to be paid on the Jackson lake reservoir. The purpose of borrowing this money is to avoid the necessity of an extra levy at this time, and the payments on the obligation will be spread over a period of six years. The school board met Monday evening and transacted considerable business. They will let the contract for finishing the southwest room in the basement and use it for a recreation room. The supply room in the dormitory will be made into a sanitary condition. A complete sanitary toilet system will be installed. Other needed improvements made. This in connection with the steam heating plant will put the school in splendid condition. F. C. Graves was instructed to take the school census. Prof. Bracken met with the board and announced that a full set of teachers had reported that they would be on hand when school opened. It was decided to start the school year with the opening of the facilities at Twin Falls. Various matters pertaining to the good of the schools were taken up and discussed.

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"

The American Film Manufacturing Company's Pleurized Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This contest is open to any man, woman or child who is not connected, directly or indirectly, with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story. No literary ability is necessary to qualify as a contestant.

You are advised to see the continued photo-plays in the theaters where it will be shown—to read the story as it runs every week, and then send in your suggestion. Contestants must confine their contributions for the sequel to 1,000 words or less. It is the idea that is wanted.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

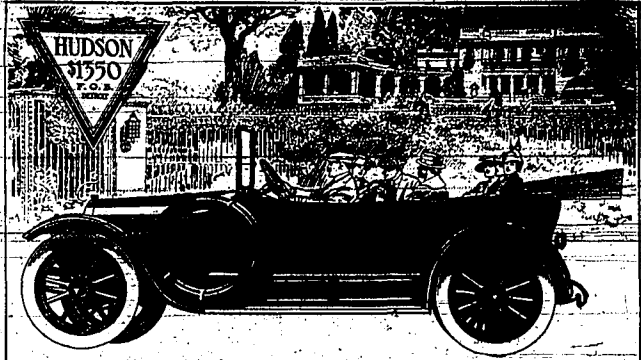

A feud has existed between Colonel Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley, over an heirloom, the diamond from the sky, found in a mine owned by an ancestor. Also, the successor to the Stanley earldom in England may come to an American. When the diamond is born to the colonel and the mother dies, the colonel buys a spy boy and substitutes him. Arthur Stanley, who had been having had no part in this bargain, steals the girl, being reared in secret, and leaves her with an undertaker as the heiress. The spy boy has obtained possession of the diamond from the sky, and a document with the name of the heiress. Arthur Stanley, a beautiful young girl, Hagar, now egypt queen, returns to Virginia with her, Dr. Lee, the his Colonel Stanley's friend, adopts Esther, but demands that Hagar turn over to him the diamond from the sky. Arthur Stanley, son of the fallen hero, falls in love with Esther and so does his companion and cousin, Blair Stanley, right hand man of Stanley. In stealing the diamond Blair causes the death of the doctor. Outside is Arthur recognizing Esther. Blair, escaping, learns that he has left Esther's room. Arthur forces him to fight a duel in which Blair is only stunned. His wife, with the aid of his mother, to place the blame for the murder of Dr. Lee upon Arthur, who now has the diamond. The sheriff attempts to seize Arthur, but he eludes his pursuers and joins Hagar, who reveals the truth and upbraids him for his wild life. Needing money, he pawn the diamond in Richmond. Blair is in Richmond and he too is forced to visit the pawnshop. The two agree to stand by each other. At a ball, with a supposed New York belle in the guest of honor, they are summoned to find the diamond on the writer, who is an adventuress who has stolen the diamond. With Hagar, telling the truth to the fortune Luke Lovell, Hagar's egypt guard, finds the diamond and Stanley's detention Group it into a mailbox. A sheriff tries to arrest Arthur on the murder charge. He escapes from Richmond on a freight train. The diamond passes into a mail bag, which is torn from a wagon and is picked up by Quabba, an organ grinder. Quabba's monkey steals the diamond and leaves it in a nest in a tree. Arthur is robbed by robbers, who take him to jail. He seeks work at a farm. Hagar takes Esther to live at Stanley hall. An old-time secret is revealed. Arthur attends in disguise, proves himself the best knight, defeating Blair, but is betrayed by the latter to the sheriff. Quabba, in fact, hands the sheriff and Blair.

CHAPTER XIII.

"The Fox and the Pig."
THE knights of the tournament, now frenzied with excitement, pressed on Arthur, effectually barring his way to the gate. These hot headed young Virginians had been the friends, comrades and admirers of Arthur from boyhood up, but the death of Dr. Lee and Arthur's flight had alienated them with bitter resentment.

Vivian interjected, Blair's retaining the diamond. "The Fox and the Pig."
"There was none who had been the recipient of his genial kindnesses more than Arthur. Hence, when, to shield Blair because he believed he had wronged him in being the favored heir of Hagar, Arthur had by his flight and disappearance, accepted the name of gull all Fairfax, was in anger bent against him."
The struggle of the young gentleman seeking to stay and capture the betrayed and unmasked Arthur took place directly in front of the grand stand.

All Men Respect The Hudson

Has that fact impressed you?
There are no HUDSON critics.
Many buy other cars because they are cheaper. Or because they are higher—high enough to be unique. Or because they are novel in some other respect.
But all of these men respect HUDSONS. They respect the judgment of men who buy them. That's evident everywhere.

Note-Its Buyers

About 95 per cent are experienced motorists. About 28 per cent have owned higher-priced cars.
They are motor-wise and fastidious. As a class they are men accustomed to the best. They are quality buyers who demand value. They don't care to pay for mere excess or show. They want no passing fad. They are buying, in most part, for keeps.
There are multitudes of such men now. And since June 15—when this new model appeared—they have bought over 5000 HUDSONS.

They Are Right

These men are right.
The six-cylinder engine, with its continuous power, is the ultimate in motors.

The HUDSON type—high speed, small bore, long stroke—has become the universal standard in a Six.
Excess weight is crudity. There never was a stancher car than the HUDSON, despite its lightness, which is unmatched in any 7-passenger Six.
No car carries more passengers. No one has more needed room. None has more comfort, luxury, quality or class.

And none more beauty than this new model. It brings out the Yacht-Line body, the Lustrous finish, enameled leather upholstery, and many other final touches.
If you buy a car in this class this season you are bound to want the HUDSON. You will not find a rival in sight of it. But you can't get a HUDSON, in all probability, unless you order soon. The demand for this car is exceeding all expectations.

bride and groom unattended took their places before Dr. Anderson and a beautiful flower of ferns and palms and were united in the marriage bond. The bride's gown of white chamois and lace was in harmony with the quiet simplicity of the wedding decorations.

The bridal couple together with the invited guests after the ceremony sat down to a five-course dinner of beautifully appointed table. Tables were laid for Mr. and Mrs. McElwain, Miss Kate Dodge, Miss Alma Bennett, Dr. Anderson, Messrs. John Smith and T. D. Reynolds and the newly wedded pair.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. McElwain was made radiant by the beauty of the friends of the bride. The porch, bright with the bouquets of golden gladioli, was an artistic part of the decorative whole, ushering the guests into the reception hall, where scarlet geraniums in pretty hanging baskets and vases added a new touch of beauty. The parlor has its decoration, roses and sweet peas with ferns and palms as a background. The bride and groom were escorted to the altar by the best man, Mr. J. M. Anderson. Mr. and Mrs. Smith left Wednesday evening on their honeymoon trip to Salt Lake City and to the High Uintas in the Ogden Canyon. They will make their home in the Fargo Apartment at Pocatello.

The bride has for a number of years been a popular member of the Twin Falls women's club and has in the past made a host of friends by her womanly character and happy disposition. As a teacher in the public schools for the past five years, she has been greatly missed by her students and children in her departure from the school life and from this city.

Mr. Smith, for many years one of the young business men of this city, has also a host of friends here, who have learned to appreciate the rugged honesty and straightforwardness of his character through business associations. His good wishes will be multiplied as friends go with the happy couple on their trip to their new home.

NOTES FOR HORSE AND MULE BREEDERS

First Prize Clyde Dale Stallion.

Heavy farm horses help to solve the labor problem. Promiscuous experimental breeding has been the bane of the horse-breeding business. A well-conditioned draft colt with his early education largely completed, is one of the most valuable finished products of the farm.

The farm mare fills a most important place in production. Oats and bran in equal bulk, with one-fourth corn added, make a good ration for a mare giving milk.

Post shows should be made a great factor in encouraging the improvement of farm-work horses.

As long as inferior horses are no high in price there is no inducement for the penurious breeder to patronize the grade stallion.

If a breeder desires to maintain size in his horses he must feed them liberally.

Growing good horses to sell among the better class of farmers in the safest branch of the business for most farmers to practice.

Grooming, instills vigor into the horse, and the removal of dirt and the stimulation of the skin go far toward preventing harness sores.

Soundness should be the basis in the selection of a draft stallion.

It takes two or more crops of colts to establish a stallion in any locality.

The man who uses draft horses to perform his farm work cannot afford to put them in the hands of an incompetent hired man.

Many men have obtained profits from a most late beginning in breeding draft horses.

The deceit and trickery practiced by slick salesmen in selling draft stallions on the company plan has done great injury to the cause of horse breeding in many sections.

A horse with a good disposition, built on good, clean legs, with ample depth of chest and middle, will keep

In good condition on less feed than one of the opposite type.

The average brood mare on the farm will do better and raise a better, healthier colt if worked moderately nearly up to the limit of feeding than if pampered and kept in idleness.

Start to educate the colt while he is quite young. Give him a little of his way, but a little more of yours, gradually bringing him to your way of thinking.

Sundays and holidays or days when horses are standing in the stable, the grain ration should be reduced one-half.

Gentle colts mean easily handled, valuable horses.

Using the whip only puts more fear into a skittish horse.

A kicky horse is a bother and a nuisance, besides being a constant danger to every member of the farm family.

You may just depend upon it that the colt will not possess any more virility than his sire—and he may not possess even that amount.

The quickest and most effective way for you to learn the difference between a scrub and a workbred horse is to offer one of each kind for sale on the market.

If you do not speak to the horse every time you pass behind his heels you may wake up some morning with a skinned head or a broken bone.

When a horse hears a racket behind him, sometimes he does not wait to see what it is, but whacks away at it with both feet.

The farmer cannot well keep the work horses in poor condition through the winter; then shape them up and go right into the heavy field work next spring, with them looking well and ready to do maximum work.

Keep the horses in prime condition during the winter months. It will not only mean a saving of feed, but it will insure the animals being ready to go right to work when needed.

PRESERVATION OF POULTRY DROPPINGS

Farmer Can Materially Add to His Earnings by Caring for Hen Manure.

A recent bulletin of the Maine agricultural experiment station shows that the poultry man or farmer can materially add to the profits of his business by properly caring for the droppings of his fowls. For example, it is shown that the droppings from 1,000 fowls, if preserved without needless loss, are worth at least $200 per annum, and this estimate is based on the assumption that less than half of the droppings of only 50 hens per hen per year, can be collected.

According to the Maine station, the droppings should be collected daily and mixed with substances which will (1) prevent loss of nitrogen, (2) add sufficient potash and phosphate acid to make a better balanced fertilizer, and (3) to improve the mechanical condition of the manure so that it can be applied to the land with a manure spreader.

This can be done as follows: To each 30 pounds of the manure add 10 pounds of sawdust, good dried loam, or peat, 16 pounds of acid phosphate and 8 pounds of kailin. Such a mixture will contain about 1.25 per cent of nitrogen, 4.5 per cent of phosphate acid and 2 per cent of potash, which, used at the rate of two tons per acre would furnish 50 pounds of nitrogen, 185 pounds of phosphate acid and 80 pounds of potash, and at the present price of fertilizing ingredients is worth about $10 per ton. The mixture would furnish a well-balanced stable fertilizer, which, although not fine enough to work well in drills, can be successfully applied with a manure spreader. The treated manure should be well sheltered until time to apply to the land—that is, shortly before plowing.

Keep Salt Around Stable. Use rock salt around the stable, keeping a place the size of an apple in each grain box for the horses.

HAUL MANURE FOR VEGETABLE GARDEN

Fertilizer Should Be Piled During Winter So It Will Be Ready for Spring.

Manure should be hauled and piled during winter, so it can rot and be in good condition to spread broadcast or in the drills for the early vegetables. Two loads of coarse straw, when rotted, will make one load of rotted manure.

If manure is to be broadcasted it will take fully twenty loads of coarse manure when rotted to cover one acre.

Truckers and farm gardeners spread the droppings of only 50 hens per hen per year, can be collected.

When used this way six two-horse cartloads of rotted manure will be enough for one acre.

Owing to the scarcity of manure in the city, eye and sand, velvet, cow-peas and buckwheat are largely sown for green manure. These crops are plowed down when in bloom, ground rolled after plowing and the top surface kept mellow with the stanting, tooth harrow.

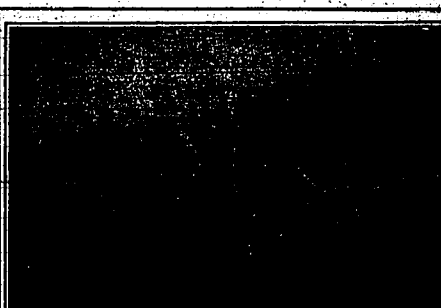

Animal bed fertilizers drilled in at the rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds to the acre in connection with a green manure crop plowed down will bring as good a crop of roots, tomatoes, cabbage, or sweet corn as a heavy dressing of stable manure. This method of fertilizing land is found to give very satisfactory returns; there are few weeds and if the green mass is plowed under several weeks before the vegetable crop is planted so as to be well rotted, there will be a mellow seed bed, well filled with humus, capable of holding the rainfall needed for plant growth.

The manure for vegetables should be made up in compact heaps, the horse manure should be covered with a load of cattle manure and each load given a half bushel of plaster. Make large, compact heaps close to where it is to be used. This saves extra work in the busy season. If the heap is covered with a six-inch layer there will be no loss of ammonia, as the parts will absorb it.

The Diamond From the Sky

By ROY L. MCCARDELL

As Arthur suddenly wheeled his horse and drove it to the far end of the grand stand and up the lower steps and light in among the spectators.

When the horse reared, the center stand, the balcony overlooking the arena and benches as they gave way before him and rider, Arthur turned the gallant Starlight up this central passage, waved to Blair and Hagar and he hurriedly, then breathing his horse at the back rail of the stand and plunged with Starlight down from the back of the stand to the ground, some fifteen feet below.

Never had such a wild feat of horsemanship been beheld in Fairfax, home of wild riders.

As with one accord the panic passed and a tumult of curiosity succeeded.

Among those who had rushed up the aisle were Mrs. Judge Stanley, Mrs. S.H. Hagar and Estlin.

The mounted knights charged through the gateway in pursuit. The sheriff, leading the key of the arena, to Blair, had guided his horse and had followed after the pursuers.

Blinding and hiding the dangling handcut as best he could, for in his nervousness he could not open the lock of his handcut.

What had the Fairfax Stanleys done that broke up her ball in Richmond with a shrewdly selected polo team.

She resolved to return to Richmond and seek protection and, if possible, forgiveness there.

Arthur's daring and dramatic escape had given him considerable lead over his pursuers.

A small colored boy driving a fraction pig beheld with much interest and some alarm the novel stunts of him and the horse jinx in the fox chase.

The wild of him in a hollow at the top of the hill by a drunken fence. Arthur beheld the horse of the hunter make a leap upon his horse, only to come a nasty cropper and to lay in a huddled heap, strongly still, against a storm felled oak tree.

The hunter's horse, stopped with an abrupt stop as the fallen rider caught and held him lightly by one of its gauntled branches.

Then Arthur remembered the colored boy, with the pig and the pursuit that he had outstayed.

There was a wild idea setted Arthur. This man was dead and beyond all aid. He hurriedly changed his coat with his white scarf, and his plumed hat for the red hunting jacket and velvet cap of a dead fox hunter.

Then, engaging the bridle of Starlight to the gauntled limb from which he had released the dead hunter's horse, he changed his mount and cantered away.

Arthur Flinds the Dead Fox Hunter.

fraction pig they saw a fox-hunter in his red coat riding very fast but not far from them.

Cropping the grass near by the log against which seemingly his rider had fallen, the "bride" was a dead fox hunter.

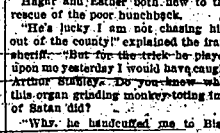

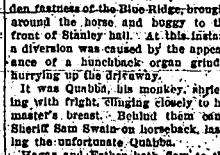

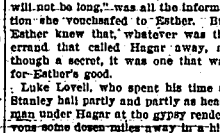

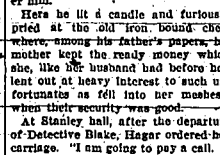

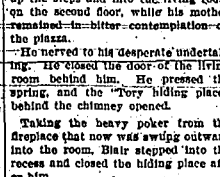

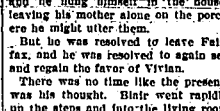

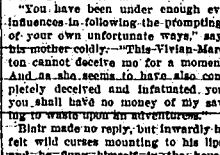

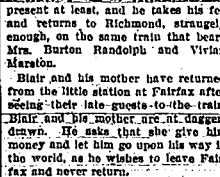

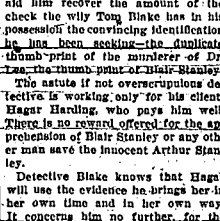

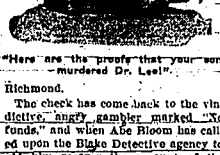

With a wild cry Esther recognizes it is not Arthur, but the sleeping hand of Hagar falls upon her lips.

"A gyrate trick," murmurs Hagar, "has been done here."

CHAPTER XIV. "Here Are the Profits!"

ND Mrs. Burton Randolph returns to Richmond. Vivian and Blair have quarreled. Vivian realizes Fairfax will be a bad place for her.

It is Detective Blake of Richmond, and he bears with him a curious set of portraits of curious photographs.

Stanley and Arthur Stanley, the murderer who tried to shoot Arthur at the man's tournament, got away. Arthur had the organ grinder's account sent up for a year for interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty.

"I didn't mean my horse," whined Quabba. "We were laughing and joking with me, saying you were going to put the handcuffs on me, and I only joked with you and the other gentleman in putting them on you and Hagar."

Quabba was a wandering, solitary gypsy of Italian stock. A word in Roman fell on his astonished ear from the lips of the grimacing dame, the portals of this people's legal domain gave orders to Luke that Quabba be cared for at the kitchen of Stanley hall.

"This hour, Hagar was prepared to go upon her mysterious errand with Esther, neither the black flat portrait of the strange man from Richmond nor brought that day, when her keen eyes noticed that the horse was slightly lame."

Hagar stood by the table, her back to the fireplace, watching the door in her hands were the incriminating photographs of the thumb prints of Blair Stanley.

Hagar moaned and stirred. Blair could hear his mother calling him in the hallway as he set out the handcuffs and clasped them on the unsuspecting wrists of Hagar.

"What was the use she kept saying to herself? What was she using, what was she wanting, the cold, calculating ambition that had dashed her life."

"What was the use to scheme and plot and hope and hate for a bauble that had disappeared the diamond from the sky—and an erudite Warwick away than even distant Warwick."

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY AND THE ERUDITE WARWICK.

Dead men lay between and a living man, a warbler and a fighter, and the earl, old and feeble, a hollow invalid for years, still lingered on.

"But bitter as all these reflections were, the Stanley pride was strong in the breast of Blair's mother. How was it, she thought, it were better he never possessed the diamond from the sky or the Stanley, erudite with such a woman to share these great possessions."

And then the judge's widow came coming toward her Hagar Harding, the present mistress of Stanley hall.

"Do not go, Mrs. Stanley," said Hagar in a low tone. "I have with me the proof that you are not Arthur Stanley is guilty of the murder of Dr. Henry Lee." And she indicated with a meaning gesture the flat black portrait she carried, the same portrait Detective Blake had brought from Richmond.

"Blair!" whispered the judge's widow tensely. "Come inside! And she led Hagar toward the photograph of her home and up to the living room.

"Here Hagar without a further word showed her the photographs of the thumb prints left by the murderer in Dr. Lee's pocket and the photograph of the returned delinquent, chest with the fatal hazy thumb print of Blair Stanley resting against his signature, as though he had attested to it."

"I will get my son. He is somewhere about the house," cried Mrs. Judge Stanley. "What is the price you ask for your silence? I cannot think you would come here except to bargain."

"My price is an easy one," replied Hagar. "I ask that you and all your kindred recede from the photograph of my father and myself in Fairfax. I have only this to say: Deem me who you may, my daughter Esther is of an high birth and blood as the peerless families of Fairfax."

"As she turned at the sound of Blair's advance she struck her down with the heavy iron poker, and she fell to the floor as though lifeless, in a crumpled heap."

Hagar stood by the table, her back to the fireplace, watching the door in her hands were the incriminating photographs of the thumb prints of Blair Stanley.

"This instant he heard his mother on the threshold and turned and fled with the photographs and the stolen money by the door that led to the inner rooms and was gone."

Far away a colored boy, who had been driving a pig the day the gentoo of Fairfax held their vaunted tournament, is playing he is a hunter after eagles.

He has a wooden gun, this colored boy who barks pig while gulls, white folk ride to tournament, and to chase the fox, and with his wooden gun he plays a part in the destinies of those concerned in this strange story.

For beneath a wayside tree he finds a handful of feathers. "Owls up darr" says the mimic hunter, and he drops the rude wooden gun and climbs the tree. An owl flies from its nest with a hiss and a swoosh.

"That evening an obscure negro, unclean, whose lot it is that he must attend to sylic, leans over a noisome pen and dangles before an unappreciative pig, gorging at his will, the diamond from the sky!"
