FALL FASHIONS ATTRACT-THRONG

Stores Crowded Throughout Entire Evening

MUCH FAVORABLE COMMENT IS MADE BY VISITORS ON SHOWING

Crowds—Thranging—the Many Stores of the City Estimated at About Three Thousand.

The first Fashion Show of Twin Falls, held in the store of this week, was a splendid success worthy of the enterprise of the Twin Falls merchants. Twin Falls views Wednesday evening between the hours of eight and ten o'clock would have impressed the average spectator about the population of the city were there, but that night thousands. With the streets and avenues filled with the waiting automobile and carriages, and the pavements filled with their wheels moving to and from the stores it would look as though the entire population was on the streets, but a glimpse of every store filled to overflowing with crowds of well-dressed public, another idea must be received. Pleading that the interior of such stores changed visitors every fifteen minutes throughout the entire evening at least three thousand were present in inspection of the Fall Fashions of 1915.

The Times notes with pleasure the number of towns and cities in the Twin Falls county that are going to hold fairs and agricultural exhibits with the objective of exploiting the resources of the country.

The Chronicle offers the excuse for Carlson on the rim to rim bridge that the Hillside district commission is opposing to the bridge on the north side. Possibly Carlson does not know enough to hold up his end of a bridge.

The Times believes that the immense crowds which thronged the stores Wednesday evening for the fashion show is indicative not only of the success of the move from the standpoint of the merchants, but also of the interest taken by the buying public in the home merchandise.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

F. C. Howe On The Advantages of Free Ports

Mr. F. C. Howe, Federal Commissioner of Immigration, who is one of the best American authorities on marine commerce, in discussing the question of free ports to the development of sea trade said in part:

"Ships will go hundreds of miles out of their way to avoid ports surrounded by a tariff wall. The only way, therefore, for a country with a limit to compete in the shipping world with a free-trade country is to establish free ports at strategic points along its coast line. Germany has done so, and in a comparatively short period has secured the pre-eminence in the world which was seriously threatening England's supremacy. Hamburg, one of the three German free ports, now ranks as the second greatest seaport in the world. Its total foreign commerce in 1913 being only $6,000,000 under that of New York.

"The free port would offer great opportunity for financial operations, now made possible by the recent currency act. It would stimulate international banking, and would tend to shift the financial center of the world to this country. As a result of the logic of events, has become the natural center for the world's financing, just as London became that center several centuries ago, when it shifted from the cities of the Netherlands. But the financial center will shift to this country when it becomes a clearing house of the world as well as of money. For credit in the world is created by currently created wealth in transit or change so that our financial expansion is dependent upon the opening up of American ports to the clearance of the wealth of the world. A port should not operate to yield a return on the investment, but to develop the capacity for carrying trade which before the war was seriously threatening England's supremacy. Hamburg, one of the three German free ports, now ranks as the second greatest seaport in the world. Its total foreign commerce in 1913 being only $6,000,000 under that of New York.

"The most important gain is the direct gain to America. It will cheapen commodities by bringing over quantities of goods to our doors for importation or export as trade needs demand. It will stimulate the growth of exporting houses, which can hold goods for an indefinite period without payment of duties if these often equal to the cost of the article itself for disposal to meet the trade demands of the whole world. It will uphold international credit and shift to America an increasing and ultimately a predominant share in international exchange.

"Finally, America is the natural country to be the counter of the world. Its resources face every other continent. It is the greatest of all reservoirs of raw materials and foodstuffs. In iron and steel and standardized production it is in a position to compete with the world. But international trade will flourish only when a prolonged period be paid in gold. They can only be paid by exchange of wealth."

toligently inform them on all lines in the city.

and two other papers which do not defend it, but which doubt if the perpetrators will ever be brought to justice, the Georgia press seem to be united in demanding investigation and punishment. Words could hardly be stronger than these used by the Atlanta Constitution in the course of an editorial entitled "Georgia's shame."

"The sovereignty of the State of Georgia has been flouted and degraded. No word in the language is too strong to apply to the deliberate and carefully conceived deed of the mob. * * *

"It is Georgia, Georgia law and justice, that were hanged upon that Cobb county tree. * * *

"Georgia owes it to herself and to her future to go to the bottom of this tragedy and not to wait until her name is stained in so far as it is possible for official effort to wipe it out."

"The same banner over papers like the Georgia and Journal in Atlanta, the Brimble News, the Augusta Chronicle, and the Savannah Press, representative of much Southern press opinion outside of Georgia, in the Richmond Times-Dispatch, which says:

"Regardless of the guilt or innocence of the man so cruelly and so foully slain by a pack of wolves of the night, his lynching constitutes the most vicious blow that has struck at organized law in a century and the South, in particular, must suffer its effect."

"Yet despite this editorial condemnation and the frequent assertion that the 'best citizenship of Georgia cannot be held responsible, we find the lynching defended, or at least partially justified, by both newspapers and citizens of reputation. It will be remembered that Leo M. Frank, a Jew, was convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of Mary Phagan, a girl employed in his Atlanta factory. Despite an active campaign in his behalf, and a very widespread belief in his innocence, his conviction was upheld by every higher court, including the Supreme Court of the United States. After Governor Slaton, in the last days of his term of office, had commuted Frank's sentence to life imprisonment, Frank was attacked by a fellow convict. He was just recovering from his injuries when he was taken from the Milledgeville prison (with what seems suspicious ease to the Savannah Press) and hanged in the 16th town of Mary Phagan, Georgia people, Mayor Woodward of Atlanta, is reported as saying, deplore the deed, but 'when it comes to a woman's honor there is no limit we shall not go to avenge and to protect it.' Thomas E. Watson, who has been conducting a press campaign against and whom Governor Hiram Johnson has just lynched, says that after the commutation of the death penalty 'the people rose and carried into effect the law sentence.' And in the Marietta Journal there appeared, the day after the lynching in its own town, a similar defense of the deed."

"The people demanded that the verdict of the court be carried out, and saw to it that it was. We must try and are, law-abiding citizens of Georgia." - Literary Digest.

GERMANY'S GOOD INTENTIONS The sinking of the Arabic was taken by Germany's answer to our London notes by an large a portion of the American press and the demand for sharp action, perhaps the breaking of diplomatic relations, was so widely voiced that the friendly statements of the German Imperial Chancellor and ambassador von Bernstorff came something of a surprise. This same prime may not have in all cases been accompanied by that "great delight" which one German-American editor said he experienced, but the feeling of relief in Washington was at once shared by the press in all our other cities. The Pittsburg-Gazette-Times was glad to know that Germany's attitude was at least not to be one of flat defiance. The New York World became convinced that a peaceful settlement of the vexing problem arising out of Germany's submarine warfare was not only possible, but probable. In her Chancellor's declaration that in case a submarine commander was shown to have exceeded his instructions, the Imperial Government would not hesitate to give complete satisfaction to the United States, and in Ambassador's statement that "if American ships should actually have lost their lives this would naturally be contrary to our intentions," Germany has made a great concession, in the New York Evening Post's opinion. And similar hopeful expressions have appeared in the columns of such papers as the Boston Globe, Chicago Tribune, Atlanta Constitution, and Minneapolis Tribune. In fact, says the New York Times, throughout the country, in that "best of every American," these declarations have "awakened hopes which it would be most unwise for Germany to disappoint."

Little heats for such hope is, however, discerned by the New York Tribune, which observes that whatever defense the Germans may build up for the sinking of the Arabic, the real danger will remain, "in that settled policy which is the cause of the German-American difficulties." Or as the equally skeptical Chicago Herald puts it, "the floor of the ocean-bed is being paved with the good intentions of the German government." Germany's Herald, "should realize that the time is past for regrets which are followed by further atrocities. * * *

"The dead of the Lusitania, the dead of the Arabic, were not, are not, and must not be the dead without a country." "The crisis," admits the New York World, "is not due to any single event, but to a long series of transgressions which can not be reconciled with the best interests of the world and the responsibilities we owe to the United States."

The World further admits that the previous attitude of the German government "invariably raises doubts as to the sincerity of the Foreign Office in asking for time and consideration in dealing with the Arabic case. Yet it adds:

"Looking at the question solely from the standpoint of the German interests, why should the Imperial Government desire a break with the United States? Why would Germany gain anything commensurate with the inevitable losses?"

"During six months of submarine warfare Germany has sunk three British passenger-ships carrying American passengers. One of these ships was transporting an infinitesimal amount of ammunition. The other had no ammunition. What military advantage did Germany gain by the destruction of these ships? What military advantage would be gained if in the next six months German submarines sank three more ships of the same class? Would even von Tirpitz regard that achievement as compensation for a war with the United States, which would throw away the immense resources of this country into the sea on the side of the Allies? * * *

"The conditions of peace are all contained in the President's notes, and they are not onerous. They involve no sacrifice of German honor, or German rights. They involve no sacrifice of German military interests. They demand only the sacrifice of an obstinacy and a bad faith on the part of Berlin which have brought the two countries to the very verge of conflict."

There are, as several papers take pains to point out, several facts which should be clearly determined with the help, perhaps, of German explanations based on the reports of the submarine commander. For instance, asks the Philadelphia Record, "did the Arabic resist arrest, either actively or passively, by an attempt to ram the challenger? German submarine or by an attempt at flight? Was the Arabic under convoy of British warships?"

possibly admits the Boston News-Breeze, "there exists some legal basis for the German act, though it is virtually impossible to discern a moral one." Germany's explanation, says the New York Times, "will have the most candid consideration." And, "if failing to explain, it shall disavow and offer reparation, our satisfaction will be very great." - Literary Digest.

FILED NEWS

From the Piler Journal
A band of apples were here the first of the week.
Mr. McNeil of Twin Falls, was in town yesterday in his new car.
W. A. Sartin arrived in Piler yesterday to remain until next spring.
Mrs. Bance, mother of William Bance, returned to her home in Missouri yesterday.
A boy of standard weight was born on the 16th to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hurd.
J. C. Porterfield, manager of the canal system passed through Piler yesterday.
Rev. Mr. Finley and family spent Sunday in Murtaugh, visiting relatives and friends.
County Surveyor Eby was in the city this week making grades and doing other surveying.
Prof. Browne, who will be principal of our new grammar school, arrived in Piler yesterday.
Frank Taylor left last Sunday for the golden west. Just how long he will remain is problematic.
F. W. Schwab has returned from Blue Island, Nebraska, to look after his farming interests on the tract.
A surprise party was given last night to Carl Murray by his mother. A large number of his young friends were present.
Mrs. Barker, mother of Norman, will visit Piler for a few weeks. His sister expects to come on a visit in a couple of weeks.
Joe Stromp, the butcher, has put in a splendid sanitary counter with ice box in the case. It is the latest in butcher's furniture and is a dandy for its general purposes.
Complimentary to her sister, Miss Crawford, of Missoula, Miss Mrs. Tuesday evening a very pleasant evening resulted. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, Pierce, Costello, Schiltman, Jones, Tanner, Norman Barker, Miss Crossman leaves today for her home in Montana.
M. G. Hinder was Piler business visitor last Monday morning.
W. W. Taylor now drives a Haines which he traded for last week.
A. H. Wood drove over from Eden in his Overland last Saturday.
Wm. Thompson entertained the M. E. club at his home Tuesday evening.
All Odd Fellows are reminded of the picnic next Sunday in Whitney's grove.
City Commissioner Sherman of Buhl, was looking over this end of the tract last Friday.
L. M. Smith, Geo. Traut, Rev. Goodenow and the following ladies attended the Odd Fellows picnic in Water's grove last Thursday.
Mr. Hughes, of Gooding, who has the heating contract at the school house, came on the job Monday and will push that work with all due haste.
A. Reynolds, returned Saturday from Boise where he went to secure an Oakland demonstrator. The car is a fine one in every particular and will doubtless become very popular here.
Mrs. Chas. Costello entertained Saturday evening in honor of Miss Coatsworth of Atlanta, Mont. sister of Mrs. Daum. The evening was spent in playing 500. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, Jones, Costello, Sherman, Crossman and Norman Barker.
Harvey Carter had also misfortune to nearly lose a finger last Thursday by getting it cut on an improvised threshing machine his brother had rigged up in their sweet shop. It hung by a thread but a local surgeon sewed it back on and hopes to make it stick long enough to grow on again.
Hudson Bros. have just completed a nice 4 room bungalow on Yakima avenue for Grover Deem, and are now out at East Taylor's ranch west of Piler, building a modern bungalow for Sam on the 80 he bought last fall. Sam will make a cattle ranch out of the 80. He has 300 head of cows and adjoining the town on the east for $200 an acre to Mrs. Richmond, who owns the Ripley acre in the south part of town. East Taylor's new real estate dealer, handled the deal.
The farmers around Piler are getting ready for the winter when the water will be shut off of the canal, hence are digging wells. Jas. Fitzgerald struck a good flow at 83 feet and W. H. Hurd at 80 feet. That well near Hurd's H. A. McCoy, D. L. Deemer, H. Morrison, Sam Whittier, Earl Gammack, Alworth, and Judge Leonard have all contracted for wells which will be sunk as fast as the well diggers get to them. The canal company is doing the work and charging the owners of land $1 per foot for the digging.
Dr. Hack is home from the Idaho Falls Round-Up. He reports that the air was a huge success from every view point. Whitney's horse won some races and was jockeyed out of the winners in several. He was also ranked for the Irwin Bros. to "get the money" and as they had a big show it was probably all right for them to do this. The next biggest thing in the "broncho busting" line will be seen in Piler Field Day. Those who were prevented from seeing the Idaho Falls show can console themselves until September 26th.

ORDINANCE NO. 102

An Ordinance Declaring the Intention of the City of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, to Construct a Sidewalk in Certain Territory in Said City to be Designated as the Sidewalk Improvement District Number 21, Defining the Boundaries of Such Proposed Improvement District and Stating the Amount of the Estimated Cost of Such Proposed Improvement and That Such Cost Must be Assessed Against All the Property Included in Said District and Benefited Thereby.

Be it ordained by the Mayor and Council of the City of Twin Falls, State of Idaho,
That the City of Twin Falls, hereby declare its intention to Construct a sidewalk in certain territory within the corporate limits of said city heretofore specified and for that purpose to establish in said city a local improvement district to be designated as Local Sidewalk Improvement District Number 21.
Section 2. The general character of the improvement to be made within said district is the building of a sidewalk eight feet wide upon Eighth avenue east in said city in front of Lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, in block 17, on the same as plotted upon the official plat of said city in the Recorder's office of Twin Falls county.
In book one of Plats at Page 7, and shown to be built upon the established grade and under the specifications adopted by said City and to be those adopted by said City and to file in the City Clerk's office for the construction of sidewalks.

Section 3. The boundaries of such proposed sidewalk district shall be as follows:
To be composed of block 17, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in said Block 17 and the sidewalk space in front thereof on said Eighth avenue.
Section 4. The estimated cost of such sidewalk and improvement as shown by the City Surveyor's estimate is the sum of $262.50.
Section 5. The cost of making such proposed improvement is to be assessed against all the property included within such sidewalk improvement district, said assessment to be made upon the lots heretofore fronting on said Eighth avenue, every lot to be separately assessed for the full cost thereof in proportion to the benefits to be derived by sidewalk improvement.
Section 6. The 20th day of September, 1915, at eight o'clock P. M. in the City designated as the date on which the Mayor and Council of said City will meet and consider protests against said proposed improvement. All persons affected by the same are hereby notified that protests against said proposed improvement must be filed in the office of the city clerk of said city on or before that date.
Passed by the Council of the City of Twin Falls, this 18th day of August, 1915.

E. M. SWELLEY, Mayor.
Attest: REESE M. WILLIAMS, City Clerk.

FILER FIELD DAY

Big Time at the Hustling Town, Saturday, September 26th.

Saturday, September 26, promises to be one of the big days in the history of the growing town of Filer. On that date the annual field day will be celebrated. The committee have been appointed and are busy at work and the promise is made that there will be one of the best exhibits of grain, grasses and fruit ever placed on exhibition in Twin Falls county. The committee was in the city Wednesday interviewing the business men who do business in that town. Besides the grain and fruit exhibit, there will be a fine show of live stock.

BECOMES VALUABLE

Sweet Clover Seed - Now in Great Demand.

For many years the sweet clover has been looked upon in this section as a weed and in generally considered a nuisance. In many instances the stalks grow to six, eight and ten feet in height. It has been found almost impossible to thresh it and until very recently no one ever thought of doing such a thing. But this has all changed. The sweet clover is now a plant very much in demand. It has found its place in the middle west it is considered a great forage plant and is grown to fatten hogs and increase the milk supply. There it only grows from 12 to 18 inches and its stalks are tender and succulent - makes very good hay when cured young.

And in this section it is now welcomed as a fertilizer. In a couple of years it transforms a very poor tract of land into fine soil for raising grain. It is sown upon our poorer soil and well watered. It soon attains rank growth. This is plowed under and the following year the soil, only a short while before little better than sand, grows a fine stand of grain - old grain. This makes the seed in great demand.

As a result everybody that knows about it in gathering the seed which brings $3.00 a hundred pounds. The stalks are cut down and when dried the seed is shaken out of it upon a screen or canvas, run through a fan and sold. In the last few days men have realized more than a dollar an hour for their labor in gathering the Caldwell - In addition to the big prizes already published, the Caldwell Mill & Elevator company and the Idaho Seed company, have offered some fancy cash prizes for the best grain and grass exhibits shown at the Idaho State Fair here September 27, 28, 29 and October 1. Each company offers a prize of $50 cash, the former on grains and the latter on grasses.

about grass display will be awarded on this basis: Artistic merit, 25 points; varieties, 25; feeding, qualities, 25; seedling qualities, 25.

For community and district awards a total of $300 has been set aside. Special reservations being made indicate that exhibits are coming from all parts of southern Idaho.

Manager J. E. Riddle Saturday outlined the building improvements being made on the grounds. A new building is being erected for 'seedling' exhibits. In addition is being made to the woman's building. The hog house is being doubled in size. Mr. Riddle stated that a new refrigerating plant is being installed in the dairy building, and he predicted that visitors will behold the finest display of dairy products ever seen in the west. Two milking contests, divided into classes A and B, will be held, with $50 cash prizes in each, in addition to the special premiums.

Track Program Attracts.

J. S. Harrington, S. J. Vanhyning and W. S. Maxey, constituting the racing committee, held a meeting Friday evening, and practically completed plans for the speed events. They are assured of the presence on the local track of the best horses from Baker and Ontario, Oregon, Weiser, Payette, Boise and Caldwell. With the talents of Baker, Ontario and Caldwell arranged for succeeding weeks, it is planned to have the Oregon horses follow the circuit, and in this way there will appear many Idaho racing steeds which do not invade the Oregon tracks.

Front Rank Steel Furnace

To be an economical heater, a furnace must have a large amount of radiating surface in comparison with the size of the fire pot, and this surface must be arranged so that the air in passing upward must come in close contact with every part of it.

It will be observed that the FRONT RANK STEEL FURNACE is built on STRAIGHT VERTICAL lines, thus causing the air in its ascent to pass directly over its entire surface.

$10,000 For 1,000 Words or Less

For an Idea For a Sequel to

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"

The American Film Manufacturing Company's Pictorial-Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This contest is open to any man, woman or child who can construct, directly or indirectly, with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story. No literary ability necessary to qualify as a contestant. You are advised to see the continued photo play in the theaters where it will be shown—to read the story as it appears every week, and then send in your suggestion. Contestants must confine their contributions for the sequel to 1,000 words or less. It is the idea that is wanted.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A feud has existed between Colonel Arthur Stanly and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley, ever since an heirloom, the diamond from the sky, found in a fallen meteor by the Stanlys in England many years ago. Three years later the diamond is stolen by the mother and the mother dies, the father being a spy and substitutes his son in her place. The spy's son, Arthur Stanly, steals the diamond from his mother. The spy's son, Arthur Stanly, steals the diamond from his mother. The spy's son, Arthur Stanly, steals the diamond from his mother.

CHAPTER XIX.
Old Foes With New Faces.
AFFLICTED as he was with his deformity, Quabba, the hunchback, was in the sunny reveries of a happy heart when he awoke and saw the monkey creature, his companion on his way through the world. But now the hunchback is neither purr of face nor happy of heart. A wild tremor of rage, anxiety and remorse shakes him in an agony of terror and confusion. Sending the rocking stone, piled from the perch where it had awaited for centuries, but only meant death for all below, thought Quabba. Instead of saying his young and old mistress and his gypsy friends from the raid of desperate tramps led by Luke Lovell, Quabba now deemed that he had destroyed those he had loved, as well as their enemies. But as he ran panting down the mountain side Quabba saw that some of the gypsies, warned by the cutting and roaring of the landslide the massive, boundless, loosened rocking stone had started, had fled to safety. He saw some half score of gypsy men and women telling rapidly up the opposite slope of the valley from the destroyed gypsy camp. Through the dust that was settling in a cloud over the debris and rubble where the camp had stood the straining eyes of Quabba caught the eager figures of some of the assaulting tramps—flipping away from a scene of destruction, as boot-lose as they had come. Then as he scanned the scene the anguished Quabba, and passed halfway up the opposite slope and had served unsmilingly to return to their unadorned, unadorned camp. With an echoing heart and a great-burning sense of reproach for his rash deed that had worked such ill when he had meant but good, Quabba could see that Esther and Hagar were not among the hysterical gypsies returning to the scene of destruction. When Quabba reached the heaps of stone and wreckage that had been the camp site he found the gypsies already gathered in a group to where the van of Hagar lay overturned and half covered by a mass of rocks and earth. From the wreckage, some gypsies were to be seen. One of these, a woman, looked yet brave for all that. Issue from beneath the van. "You are friends, as well as Esther's cry. Strong and willing hands took at the heaped wreckage, and the air was filled with the sound of their voices. Soon the van was raised from over the cavity its very overturning had made. There was Esther and Hagar, both looking as if they were a few hours' scratches and bruises, but in the bottom of the cavity lay the bulky form of Luke Lovell, stark and still.

Kindly hands drew Hagar and Esther out and Quabba fell in their feet, uttering incoherent self accusations mingled with equally incoherent thanksgivings. A kindly hand threw a coat across the luminous face and forehead of the young girl. Then courage succeeded tragedy. The shrill, chattering cries of Clarence, the monkey, were heard voicing his similar fright and indignation from within the van.

The mercurial gypsies turned from sighs to laughter, and even the wan lips of Esther were wreathed in a smile as Quabba cried excitedly, "I am coming, Clarence, my son!" and saying he wrestled open the slanting window of the van and the frightened monkey leaped into his master's arms and began chattering his thanks and joy.

The saying of gypsy lives was due to the unshakable fact that the onslaught of the marauding tramps led by Lovell had driven the gypsies from the danger zone where the avalanche of stones and earth had struck the camp. How many of the travelers lay buried beneath the solid landing the philosophical gypsies neither cared nor sought to ascertain. It was later found that Luke Lovell, who had been only stunned and not killed, was first supposed. For when the gypsies returned, after making rude threats away from the rubble of the landslide for Esther, Hagar and their children and women folk, no trace of Lovell could be found.

He had recovered consciousness. It was evident, and had stolen away, a fearful of the vengeance of his former Rony associates. Quabba deemed it best to keep secret the fact that he had been the genius of the landslide. It had been a fatal success. He affected the philosophy of the gypsies in the matter and agreed with them that "somebody good" had come out of the general destruction, even if it were only their riddance of the unscrupulous Luke Lovell and his ruthless rabble, the tramps.

Asks to be taken to the prison and refusing over them as references for the afflicted Hagar, Esther appointed a head man from the gypsies in the place of the deposed and banished Lovell and returned with Hagar and Quabba to Stanley hall, which was gypsy's strong box. Luke Lovell realized at that the source of the dead Matt Harding's gypsy wealth that now was Hagar's, and which since Hagar's sudden affliction no one knew the hiding place of. And Luke Lovell felt sure of what that wealth had not decreased under Hagar's stewardship while sane. Wherever the treasure was it was not in Hagar's breast-board chest. Only documents were in that chest, but they were measures of themselves.

For one of these old papers especially had set forth plainly the fact that Hagar's long-dead grandfather, the greedy Matt Harding, had trafficked with the great gypsy chief, who was now dead and long dead. Here was a fortune to be obtained by himself, as it had been obtained by Matt Harding. Luke Lovell thought. And he jumped away unseen from the destroyed gypsy camp and made a dash for it. Fairly, some eight or ten miles away.

"If you have a secret to sell take it to some other market!"

There was no one at Stanley hall to pay him for keeping or telling the Stanley secret, but Luke Lovell knew enough of the Stanleys and their funds to realize his best market would be with their trustee, the former Arthur Stanley, so called, was Hagar's son, a gypsy changeling, then Blair Stanley, the real heir to the Stanley fortune, to which, according to the old family tradition, the heir was commanded to carry the diamond from the sky.

But at the portals of the home of Blair Stanley's mother the proud, cold widow would hold no traffic with the sinister gypsy who clamored at her threshold with a secret to sell. She ordered him to be gone and professed no interest in the war in which he had

So Blair's mother dismissed the changeling gypsy in cold anger. She would be no confederate and get the victims of the executions that she, instinctively knew would follow any association with any secret with him.

But Luke Lovell, thwarted and discouraged though he was in his first bold bid for the fortune he had believed was within a grasp, had no intention of shouting his secret from the housetops. He realized its only value was in his keeping it and being paid, and heavily, to keep it.

He may find some one who would pay—this some one would be Blair Stanley, he did not doubt. But if Blair Stanley's mother had refused to traffic with the sinister gypsy she was shrewd enough to surmise the secret that he was carrying. Having again after being dormant for eighteen years.

Why had her husband set off alone to meet his death in the mountains the day after Colonel Stanley had died, and followed her to Richmond, where he adopted the gypsy woman's daughter a few months since? Why had this gypsy woman returned after all these years, in the guise of a woman of means, and taken up some one who would be Blair Stanley for this gift? Why had she come with some words of proof of Blair's guilt of the murder of Dr. Lee and proffered her silence in exchange for social recognition by the proud families of Fairfax for this gift? And now that this gypsy woman was crazed and all fear of her son's guilt being known had vanished for the time being at least, Mrs. Stanley resumed to take advantage of these advantages as she contemplated them? Why had she, the real heir, the missing heir of Stanley hall, of which there had been vague whispers for years, why not prepare for and fortify against any possible loss of the knowledge of the Stanley secret—the knowledge he had gained from a glimpse at the document in Ha-advanced money on it, and even if he hadn't that's my price for keeping my mouth shut," he added, "and I'll see that Blake here says nothing about this."

"I'll turn over some big stones as they do. It's the eye of the stone that counts, but that's my price!" returned Mr. Abe Bloom.

"There was a strange imperceptible gleam in the keen eyes of the detective during this strange conference, but he nodded his head and answered quietly, "Yes, that's understood and agreed."

Beaching Richmond, it had been no secret, but only the chief secretary of the organ grinder, and the house of Mrs. Burton Randolph, where he knew her was stopping in Richmond.

This visitation was such a surprise to the policeman that he readily recognized the information as to who these individuals were when Quabba inquired.

Then, ordering Quabba to move on again, he moved on himself. Quabba with his monkey and organ moved on, but only the chief secretary of the house.

He was right in his surmise. Either, who, like Mrs. Randolph, had withdrawn when visitors on private business had been announced for Mrs. Stanley.

his affectionate four footed friend and galloped after the train. At the top of the grade the animal rolled and laid the express with an obstruction on the track too great to be risked by the engineer endeavoring to pass through it.

When Arthur awoke upon the scene two robbers were in the express car and two were going through the Pullman. Another had compelled the driver to uncouple the locomotive and, covering the engineer, had made him climb the stairs leading to the engine, track some distance from the standing train.

A desperate struggle followed by the furnace door. "Setting a large wrench, the engineer aimed a blow at the robber struggling with Arthur, and the blow did for him and his friend, and Arthur was stretched senseless on the floor. The robber, with a curse, jumped from the engine and ran, rejoicing his companions.

Within a few hours the sheriff and his posse had descended on the hotel. The robbers were on the trail and John Powell, sheep herder, after he had hunted a few brief moments, was back at his lonely occupation.

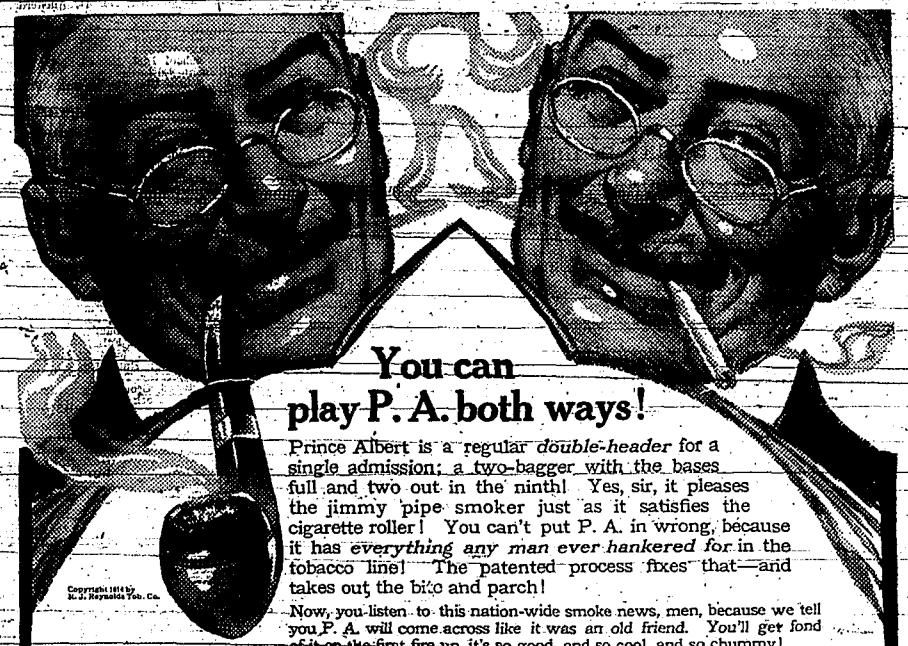

Far off in the desert fastnesses the pursuit of the posse after the train robbery at Los Angeles and wires to Abe Bloom in Richmond telling of the loss of the diamond and asking for funds. The deserted and ragged Blake paid the posse and the train robbers.

Another shot goes home, and the forehead outlaw drops from his saddle. Another shot and his riderless horse drops dead in its tracks. As this horse falls the treasure sack under the blankets falls into the dry.

The bulk of its protruding body makes the treasure sack of banknotes and hides it from view of the posse that gallops almost over the dead horse's hoofs as the pursuit of the three desperadoes goes on.

Mr. Tappan, of Hollister, was a business visitor in Twin Falls. Mr. J. M. Powers went to Twin Falls with a load of the most paying farm crops that can be raised in ordinary years, namely, alfalfa.

DODGE BROTHERS ROADSTER

The beauty of this roadster will grow on you the longer you look at it.

At any angle from which you study it you will search in vain for a single harsh line or curve. There is luggage space enough for a continental tour for two.

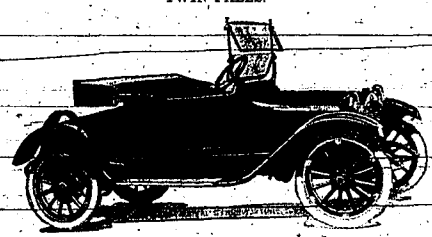

The wheelbase is 110 inches
The price of the Touring Car or Roadster complete is $785 (f. o. b. Detroit)

SUNDAY FOR BUSINESS MEN

A Business Men's Sunday at the Episcopal Church 2nd Sunday in October.

In keeping with the idea and endeavor of a prominent business association, Ascension Episcopal church will hold a special business men's service the 2nd Sunday morning, in October.

By the business men of some of our more prominent and progressive communities and by the churches of those communities it has seemed a wise course and good thing to bring the business life of a city into closer touch with the churches, and these business men have thus launched a campaign for the adoption of the second Sunday in October of each year as a business men's Sunday.

The editor of a prominent business men's magazine has this to say about the idea:

"Appreciating the fact that the two most potent forces for good in every community, the church and the business men, are often pulling apart rather than together, to the detriment of the community welfare, such a movement as a nation-wide 'Business Men's Sunday' would certainly result in much good.

"Have you ever thought what your community would be like if it possessed no churches and no schools?"

"They do help very much to make a place worth living in, don't they?"

"They do make property safer and worth more, don't they?"

"They don't accomplish this by just being there."

"Altogether, having a school, houses at one end of Main street and a church at the other end will not help a city in any way or another."

"There must be somebody at work in these buildings promoting the things for which churches and schools everywhere stand."

"So, you see, you cannot but admit that your churches are doing much good for your city."

"Is there any logical reason why the business men of the community should not stand behind the schools, the churches, or any other force that is working to better local conditions?"

"Doesn't the morally cleaner community have the cleaner financial reputation and the higher average per capita bank deposits?"

"You know, plenty of families whose monthly bills are paid when they are presented, who would not care to live in a churchless community."

"Isn't it a good thing for you and your fellow merchants and professional men to stand behind the local churches?"

"What has all this to do with business men's Sunday?"

"The 'men' we have launched a campaign for the adoption of the second Sunday in October each year, for 'Business Men's Sunday'."

DISEASE KILLS MOUNTAIN SHEEP

Famous Big Game of Idaho Threatened With Complete Extirpation.

Ogden, Sept. 2.—Inspectors of the United States bureau of animal industry, here notified of the fact that sheep are being puzzled over a disease heretofore unknown that has made its appearance among the wild mountain sheep in this country.

In an effort to determine the nature of the disease and possible means of combating it, Dr. Murray, inspector in charge of the bureau of animal industry with headquarters at Salt Lake City, has been asked to give the matter his attention. Early in August Dr. Dill, of the bureau of animal industry and Supervisor Huddle, of the Lemhi national forest, made a preliminary trip to the infected area to obtain information on which to base a more extensive investigation during the month of September.

The only information which could be gathered at this time was from men who had found sheep in diseased condition and "killed them." These men reported that there was an appearance of hair around the head and ears and a general "wicked" condition which finally resulted in death.

So far the infection seems to be confined to the main ridge of the Salmon river mountains, headwaters of the Snake river, and extending north to the head of Challis creek. Upon a report by the supervisor of the national forest, during the September trip an effort will be made to check the spread of the disease with a view to saving the small herd of mountain sheep and preventing the infection of domestic flocks.

DEAD FROM BEE STING

Teton Basin Man Meets Death in Peculiar Manner.

A very bad accident happened to J. Benjamin Moon last Sunday afternoon. While in the garden at his ranch on Twin Beach, he was stung by a honey bee and before medical aid could be summoned, died from the effects of the sting. In fact he did not live more than 10 minutes.

This comes as a great shock to the locality in which Mr. Moon has lived for many years and the Peak Jives with the many friends and relatives who are extending sympathy to the bereaved family. The funeral services were held over the remains Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the meeting house in Parker.

Mr. Moon was well and favorably known over the entire area. One of the first settlers of the bench, he helped to build up that prosperous district. He had accumulated a good supply of the world's goods and being in good health was prepared to enjoy the fruits of his hard labor when death called him.

Mr. and Mrs. Moon returned about two weeks ago from a 700-mile trip by team through Utah and western Idaho.—Teton Peak-Chronicle.
