THE HOME TOWN

Many argue that in time, practically all merchandising will be done by means of a few great cities. They contend that this is the economic method. Some Socialists, who believe in the three fundamental principles of Karl Marx socialism, take this view of the trend of the times. The three fundamentals referred to are: rent is wrong, interest is wrong, profit is wrong. Well, inasmuch as the large city department stores and mail order houses are private enterprises, are not owned by the people, are not a part of a great commercial system in a co-operative commonwealth, why not keep our rents and profits at home?

It is one in the spirit of charity, God's kingdom can be expected successfully.

SOIL SUITABLE FOR DRY FARMS

Government Expert Investigates Twin Falls Soil. HIGH LAND ABOVE TRACTS CAN PRODUCE BIG CROPS. Congressman Smith Will Endeavor to Locate Dry Farm Station in This County.

At the request of Congressman Addison T. Smith, L. C. Alcher, superintendent of the Dry Farm Experimental station at Aberdeen, near American Falls, Idaho, returned here on Thursday, and in company with Mr. Smith traveled over the southern part of the county with a view of determining whether or not the soil and general conditions were favorable to cultivation of the ground by the dry farm method. They drove as far west as the Salmon river, and returned here on the foothills adjoining the Cassia county forest reserve. Mr. Alcher made tests of the soil at various points and states that so far as he can judge there is no reason why the dry farming cannot be as successfully carried on in the southern part of Twin Falls county as in the vicinity at Rockland and American Falls, where the farmers are raising 25 to 45 bushels of wheat per acre.

THINK ABOUT IT

Twin Falls Commercial Club

The Times is delighted that an attempt will be made to buy a fair ground and establish a county fair upon a solid base. It is a move that should have the hearty endorsement and financial support of every business man and every farmer upon the tract. The two have a vital interest in seeing the resources of the country exhibited. Both are dependent to a great degree upon the intensified cultivation of this big country. There is nothing which creates enthusiasm and intelligent cultivation like the great gatherings of farm and industrial products and the meeting together of the producers for comparison of methods. The Twin Falls county fair can be made the biggest and best of the entire state for the reason that right here within a radius of fifty miles is the best agricultural land of the state.

AN ALLEGORY

Twin Falls doctors chanced one day upon an unfortunate man wandering deliriously about the streets, evidently in bad condition. The man was taken to the office of the elder physician and the case carefully examined. The elder doctor after looking at the face of the man and the symptoms diagnosed the case as "lung fever." The younger man shook his head, "No, it is brain fever." The older man smiled and said, "You're wrong, look at that chest. It is some chest if you will observe. Nothing but lung trouble could produce that chest." "It may be you are right," said the younger man, who was just taking up his practice in the city. "Let's examine his head a little first." He walked over to the prostrate figure and tapped soundly above the eyebrows. It

Hon. Elihu Root
On Woman's Suffrage

The question of woman suffrage is an issue before the American people. Twelve states have adopted it, four more states vote upon it this fall and it is strongly urged that it become a national issue at the next political party. It is therefore the privilege and the duty of every voter to study carefully this subject. Hon. Elihu Root, in discussing this question before the constitutional convention at St. Louis, recently said:

"I am opposed to the granting of suffrage to women, because I believe that it would be a loss to women, to all women and to every woman; and because I believe it would be an injury to the state, and to every man and every woman in the state. It would be useless to argue this if the right of suffrage were a natural right. If it were a natural right, then women should have it though the heavens fall. But if there be any one thing settled in the long discussion of this subject, it is that suffrage is not a natural right, but is simply a means of government, and the sole question to be discussed is whether government by the suffrage of men and women will be better government than by the suffrage of men alone.

"Into my judgment, sir, there enters no element of the inferiority of woman. It is not that woman is inferior to man, but it is that woman is different from man; that in the distribution of powers, of capacities, of qualities, our Maker has created man adapted to the performance of certain occupations in the economy of nature and society, and woman adapted to the performance of other functions.

"Woman rules today by the sweet and noble influences of her character. Put woman into the arena of conflict and she abandons these great weapons which control the world, and she takes into her hands, feeble and nerveless for strife, weapons with which she is unfamiliar and which she is unable to wield. Woman in strife becomes harsh, unlovable, repulsive; as far removed from that gentle creature to whom we all owe allegiance and to whom we confess sublimation, as the heaven is removed from the earth.

"The whole science of government is the science of protecting life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In the divine distribution of powers, the duty and the right of protection rests with the male. It is so throughout nature. It is so with men, and it is for one who never consent to part with the divine right of protecting his wife, his children, his property, and the women whom I respect, exercising the brightness of man, and place that high duty in the weak and nerveless hands of those degraded by God to be protected rather than to engage in the stern warfare of government. In my judgment, this whole movement arises from a false conception of the duty and of the right of both men and women.

"The time will never come, when the line of demarcation between the functions of the two sexes will be broken down. I believe it to be false philosophy to say that it is an attempt to turn backward upon the line of social development, and that if the step were taken, we would continue backward on the march towards a higher, nobler and purer civilization, which would be found not in the confusion, but in the higher differentiation of the sexes."

Hagar's father, who has turned over to him the diamond from the sky, Arthur Stanley, son of Hagar, falls in love with Esther and so does his cousin and cousin, Blair Stanley, rightful heir of Stanley. In stealing the diamond Blair causes the death of the doctor and tries later to put the blame on Arthur, who takes the diamond from him. The sheriff attempts to take Arthur into custody, but he eludes his pursuers and John Hagar, who reveals his identity and upbraids him for his wild life. Seeking money, he passes the diamond in Richmond. At a ball at which a supposed New York belle, Vivian Stanton, is the guest of honor, Arthur and Blair find the diamond on the visitor. She is an adventuress who has inherited it.

To hands alien and evil, the diamond would not abide, and with all the terror of the night upon him Luke Lovell felt relieved that his instigation of work by the diamond, and was his feet and staggered away in the darkness, as he realized the pursuit was coming in his direction. Let the diamond stay with the doctor, let the living masses be satisfied, and so he thought, and even in the night upon the waters as best they might, Luke Lovell resolved on flight and distance between himself and the diamond now in his grasp.

Summers, the diamond far back in the mountains, and was the justice of the great fear that has been upon him that in the desperation of his acute if not chronic reformation Luke Lovell asks and secures work in the capacity of blacksmith's helper at a forge at the mountainside.

Now while he works and works well for all eyes are turned and smiles when they do or will work, let us see what has become of the others whose destiny he has left to the gods. Arthur, known as John Powell, since striking oil has become possessed of the tools of a millionaire, and waxes in riches and power and is installed with his own success. It is not that he has lost thought and hopes and affection for Esther, but Esther is far away, and he is young, and the adulation that men render and women, too, is sweet to him.

Already in the gold fields of California he is known as "the golden man." He dreams of empires, as Cecil Rhodes dreamed and realized in Africa. His money is not hoarded, his mind is upon mines, fruit farms, vast cattle ranches, manufacturing plants and all forms of financial and commercial activities.

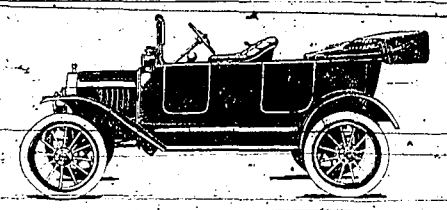

The quiet lanes of Virginia, the turquoises of his reckless youth that enticed them, seem far away. Since he moved to the city of Washington, he has moved prosperously and hard-earned by his own money has become to Arthur a mighty thing.

In his ambitious plans and activities Arthur deems that money will do all that is necessary to his success. He sends money to his agents, the secretive Richmond detective, Blake, thinking he does well and that this money will aid Esther and Hagar, while he plays with time and destiny at high stakes in far California.

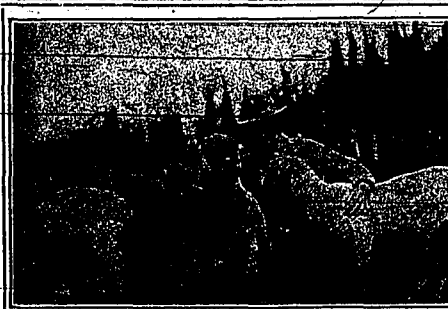

And ever the dark eyes of Vivian Marston are on him. But she keeps aloof and hides her heart. Here at last, in a prey worth waiting the hour to strike at. She resolves to play the game boldly and well.

She has next of helpful assistance. Her thought turned to Blair, Sir Hovers Blair for some strange reason, inexplicable to both Blair and herself, Arthur Stanley had sacrificed himself, borne even the odds of murder, could he have done so, he would have known himself guilty of sin and Blair implicated, but why? This she did not know, nor did she care.

She only knew that Arthur would not betray Blair and that Blair would not betray Arthur. She knew that while Blair secretly gets with Hagar, Arthur had eagerly sacrificed himself for Blair. And now that Arthur, as John Powell, was indeed a millionaire, Vivian remembered his strange attachment to Blair and thought that it would be to surprise Blair if the fortune as well as the name of Arthur Stanley, and have Blair come

CHAPTER XXV.

The Man in the Mask.

UNDER the moon and with the boom of the sort falling duly on his ears, sport, panting, chilled to the bone, Luke Lovell drew his dripping bulk up on the sand and for a few unheeded, agonizing moments felt all the qualms of death ere yet comes the dulling peacefulness of dissolution.

Vaguely he heard far off the shouts of men and the reverberations of hurried footsteps along the wooden esplanade of the dock. For a few brief moments of anguish, torture and fatigue the reckless gypsy, crawling up from the sea, cared little whether he lived, or whether he was the hands of his enemies. But with returning breath and life came fear.

Lovell knew that in the murky waters beneath the moon a brain-strangled corpse lay with the tide. What answer had he to give to his enemies regarding this dead accomplice or his living self? There had been a struggle in the boat, a death combat in the water, a cry across the night, a surging, hideous cry and then silence. A new, the shouting ceased upon the pier was searching with eager eyes across the waters for the living or the dead.

And the diamond from the sky? It was seen, the diamond beneath the sky? It seemed plain to the terror-stricken mind of the half-drowned gypsy that no evil hand could hold the diamond.

out to the west as a willing and valent golden man in her designs to steal the golden man of all his gold. In Fairfax Blaine was surprised to receive a brief, but suitable letter from Vivian. "The letter read:—

My Dear Boy—Am sorry we parted in anger about the diamond. Arthur Stanley had secured the diamond of the sky. He has struck it rich in all ways. You better join me and let bygones be bygones. Love, Blair.

Blair had crushed the note and wondered. In the presence of Vivian Blair was as a man under a toxic spell. He remembered with bitterness her light and scornful glance of him. She had married him, given herself to him for the diamond from the sky. He had risked his life for it and her.

When the train robbers had deplored them of the great spy she had, through him, sold and bought him. And now she needed him and sent for him. Blair was young, blooded and pretty unscrupulous and passionate.

with their rather close fitting waist lines and a graceful flare in the skirt. Some utility coats are cut on lines straighter, which give more fullness to the garment. The longer coats are the most favored. High buttoned convertible collars, set-in sleeves, large side pockets all appeal to those who like novel effects. Plaids are the chief novelties in fabrics with plushes, velours, velvet cords and chevrons holding sway in the more conservative garments. We will gladly show them to you—any time.

To Baby's Mother:

When we built our studio, we planned carefully that everything should be just right for the babies. Our big, broad window-sets, for instance; Baby goes to it quite naturally and coos and talks about "looking-for-Papa". A silent shutter opens and closes in a twinkling of a breath, we have had our opportunity. Baby does not realize it but it is by such natural, quiet methods that we secure the poses which so delight you.

We're proud of the portraits we make of babies. No set pose, no "picture look"—but a merry face alive with the every-day animation of play-time.

Bring your baby today; phone in advance, if you can, for it will help both you and us if you have an appointed time. If you can't make an appointment, come anyway; we are always glad to see Baby.

ered for exhibit. There was also on display some high grade poultry. In fact, rarely can a showing be made even in old established communities much better than the Filer community. The tendency of the majority of farmers on the Twin Falls tract is toward marketing their farms with the best hooded horses, cattle, sheep and hogs.

The exhibits of fruits, vegetables, seeds, flowers and school work were displayed in a large store room. A glimpse of the choice selections from orchard, field and garden was convincing proof of the excellence of the Filer country agriculture. The varied specimens were displayed for size, color and quality but none surpassed the quality, especially those that make for beauty and attractiveness—apples, peaches, sweet peas, beans, tomatoes, dahlias and other varieties of cut flowers all of which grow prolific on the tract.

The school exhibits of needlecraft, cookery, canning, and agriculture, were most creditable. Exhibits were displayed from the following districts besides those of Elmore, Madison, Blaine, and Union.

The most attractive were especially attractive by their plates and boxes of peaches, pears, prunes, plums and apples. Among the apples were several of the variety of Golden Wonder, so popular in the east. Many of them were from the farm of Franklin Squires, six miles northwest of Filer, the Rio Vista ranch. Mr. Squires is one of the pioneer farmers of the Filer country. He is making a specialty of apple growing and has 50 acres in orchard, 50 of which are in delicious and 20 in King David and Rome Beauty varieties.

Saving the Hogs. The serious condition treatment for hog cholera was demonstrated by government experts and drew much attention. The work of the government in this line has been the means of saving the farmers of the tract over one hundred thousand dollars in hogs during the past year.

The horse racing contests took place as scheduled but the races and open air dancing were stopped by rain which began about the middle of the afternoon and continued steadily the remainder of the day and night. It was otherwise most welcome because of the heavy rain.

As the crowd had gathered in the morning, had viewed the exhibits and parade before the rain started it did not spoil the day, but rather added to the spirit of optimism that prevailed.

AGRICULTURAL BULLETIN Plans to Make Study of Northwestern Apple Crop. Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Complying with numerous requests from the growers and shippers organizations in the apple sections of Colorado, Utah, and California, of markets and rural organization of the United States Department of Agriculture has made plans to establish temporary headquarters in the northwest for the study of the distribution of the 1915 boxed apple crop. The plan as outlined is based upon assurance that the office of markets and rural organization will receive the co-operation of all those interested in the apple industry, for without this co-operation the efforts of the office would not produce the desired results. It is probable that the field headquarters for this work will be in Spokane, because of the accessibility of that point to the apple territory in the northwestern states. The work which the office will do is not that of a geographic market news service, but rather contemplates the collection by mail and the compilation of data and issuance of weekly bulletins concerning the shipments and destination of the northwestern boxed apples. In this connection similar work will be carried on to a certain extent in the apple sections of Colorado, Utah, and California.

tion and had followed him at a distance, wondering what might be the hunchback's reason for loitering near where Esther was. Blair, the tractor, intent upon his own quarry, did not notice that he in turn was trailed by a bootblack, a well grown youth of twenty. When Quabba was knocked down by the trolley and bruised and dazed Blair was among the first to come to his assistance. Quabba was able to give the address of his lodgings and to refuse to go to a hospital. He and Quabba, the monkey, were placed in a sack and were driven off, to the chagrin of the multitude who regarded them in the light of heroes for the dangers they had passed.

It was Blair's perverse nature that saw in the accident a reckless way to trap Esther and search for the Stanley document his mother believed that he always carried with her. He scribbled a note and, seeking a messenger, his eyes lit upon the bootblack. This note was to Esther and was written—though by a stranger—witnessing the accident to Quabba. It gave the address Quabba had given after the accident and it requested Esther to come to see the injured man, residing at the lodging house and asked the stranger to send the word.

The bootblack bore the message promptly to his employer, Blake, the detective. This astute man behind the scenes calmly assumed the bootblack's guise and delivered the note in person. Mrs. Randolph plaintively objected to Esther's going alone to such a part of town as the address of Quabba's lodgings. But it was no and day and Esther laughed at her fears.

Meanwhile Blair Stanley had proceeded to the lodging house and, aided by the convincing argument of a tearful girl, had no trouble in entering the landlady that he was a detective expecting to trap a shoplifter. Blair proceeded to Quabba's room and, finding Quabba dazed with pain, he found him gagged. It was an adventure just to Blair's liking. He slipped on a sack before surprising and overpowering Quabba, and when Esther's flight was noted at the door, directed by the landlady on the landing below, Blair still managed to open the door and dragged Esther within.

If Blair had expected an easy victim he found he had caught a Tartar. Esther fought like a little tigress, and every effort Blair made to search her for the Stanley document was resisted. Blair's perverse nature rejoiced in this vigorous defense of the slight but wily girl. Quabba struggled to free himself to assist Esther, but just then the door opened and a swarthy bootblack, who was none other than Tom Blake, the detective, joined in the fray. He eyed Blair something on an old score and right merrily he proceeded to help Blair.

Blair fought like a madman, and then Quabba tore himself loose from his bonds and, forgetting the bruises of his accident, joined in the melee. Blair was young and strong. Physically he Blair Fought Like a Madman. was a match for the detective, even though the latter was aided by the active and supple Quabba.

The three sidesight "botted out" of Quabba's starchy room and down the stately old staircase. Blair swung down the stairs, the balustrade on the upper landing having already given way, the detective and Quabba, punching, kicking, and shoving, pushed Blair out against the rail.

The entire balustrade, banisters and all, broke out and fell over, and Blair went down with them backward and struck with a heavy thud on the landing at the side of the stairs in the corridor below.

Esther, with Quabba and Blake, ran down the stairs through the dust and wreckage beside the muddled insensible form of the masked man.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE CONGRESS

Meeting at San Francisco Exposition,
October 10 to 14.

San Francisco, September 31.—A practical peace program, based on common sense and unbiassed by prejudices or hysteria, will be outlined at the great International Peace Congress, which will begin a four day session at San Francisco October 10, under the auspices of the church peace union, the American Peace Society, and the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Other organizations which are actively supporting the congress are the League to Enforce Peace, the American Peace Centenary Committee, the American League for the Limitation of Armaments, the World's Insurance Congress and the San Francisco Federated Peace Committee. Many of the leading men of San Francisco are members of the central committee which is planning the great peace propaganda. Among them are Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, Bishop Edwin Hughes, Dr. B. S. Jordan of Stanford University, Bishop William Ford Nichols, W. H. Crocker, Dr. Benjamin H. Wheeler, Rabbi Martin A. Meyer, Raphael Weil, Captain Robert Dollar and Senator James D. Phelan. Among the internationally prominent men and women who will speak at the congress are Dr. Frederick Lynch, secretary of the Central Peace Union,

New York; Miss Jane Addams of Chicago; Ambassador Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, of Persia; Dr. J. A. McDonnell, editor of the Toronto Globe and Senator Henri La Fontaine of Belgium. The four main purposes of the congress are: To bring together the leaders of all religious, educational, commercial and labor organizations interested in the peace movement and to unite them into one vigorous constructive organization to be set on war. The second idea is to form a practical program such as will turn the thought of the world to the necessity of abolishing militarism. The third idea is to discuss and concentrate the available working plans for the bringing about of permanent, universal peace. The fourth object has to do with the principles of conciliation and arbitration and the consideration of adequate national protection. Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of the congress, will open the first meeting in the Greek theatre, Berkeley, Sunday afternoon, October 10. Delegates from various peace organizations from all states and from several foreign countries will be present. It is expected.

CROWDS AT BUHL FAIR

Splendid Exhibits and Some Red-Blooded Excitement.

Buhl, Idaho.—With a large number of visitors and with the livestock entries exceeding the accommodations by one-half, Buhl Cornucopia opened on the advertised date. Expecting an unusually large patronage the executive committee had erected live stock barns which all thought would be more than sufficient to hold all the entries out by the evening of the first day before needing the hay and sheep sheds were completely taken up. The horse and cow barns were filled with dairy entries. New pens were built to accommodate the sheep and the horses were placed in the various live stock barns until ready for the judging.

Big Agricultural Display. In the agricultural and horticultural building the displays were equalled in a large proportion. This was gratifying to the committee owing to the fact that they did not secure the country this year for exhibits as they have in years past, but depended entirely upon the farmers to bring them.

There were many out of town visitors and they were well supplied with the products of the orchards and fields. Conspicuous among the visitors were a number from Iowa on route for the Chicago exposition. They made flattering comparisons between the Buhl products and the exhibits at the Iowa state fair just closed.

Good Dairy Show. One of the leading features of the dairy exhibit was a herd of ten young Jerseys from the imported herd owned by Ed. C. Long of Buhl. Mr. Long was herdsman in charge of the winning herd at the St. Louis exposition, and for years was herdsman for Mr. West of Oregon. Four years ago he severed his connections with Mr. West and, going to the Isle of Jersey selected the best of the herd. After looking over the entire country Mr. Long selected Buhl for the future home of his herd. His success began with his start, although the first year brought him nothing but bull calves, but the youngsters were readily sought for by Buhl dairymen at prices ranging from $125 to $250. Four of these fellows now three years old, were entered by their owners. To say that he has a "long bull" at the head of his herd is now an old recommendation as a Buhl dairyman herd bull. Mr. Long was first and second on Jersey cows with an annual purchase from the Long herd, and B. M. Denton was awarded second prize with a heifer from Mr. Long's Senior herd bull.

day night September 4. One of the men carried a 30-30 rifle stolen from Emil Aine's sheep camp recently, and was waiting for it to be taken at the same time. The men admit their guilt and face an indeterminate sentence in the pen, and for a time without any court activity.

One of the stolen horses belonged to a man named Smith, from Salt Lake, who was stopping here for a few days, and the other to a resident of Gooding. At the time of the theft Sheriff Jeffrey traced the men to Mafel creek, in Cassia county, where their trail was lost. Saturday he received a tip that his men might be in Dairy county, and Sunday morning he was on the ground early, and met the men soon after they had left camp. At their camp, which was soon located, the carcass of a yearling steer belonging to V. Lopez of Rockland, was found and indications that several hares had recently been added to their larder. Horses were found in their camp—American Falls Press.
