WYOMING PLAN IS

Secretary of Interior and Commissioner of Education Favor System For School Drill.

WASHINGTON—Volunteer military training camp for high school pupils, and a general plan for volunteer military organization and drill in all high schools, are urged as a part of the preparations for the coming year by Secretary of the Interior, Department of Education, and by P. H. Clayton, commissioner of education.

In a letter to Senator McCumber endorsing the bill the latter has introduced providing for the establishment and management by the secretary of war of training camps for high school volunteer cadet corps, Secretary Lane says he believes such a plan would attract many thousands of boys in public and private schools, and the camp life and drill would be valuable, and that the general educational discipline of the camp would be good.

In connection with the McCumber bill, Secretary Lane calls attention to a plan for military training for high school pupils which has been drafted by Lieut. E. S. Steever, of the United States army. The Steever report is known as the Wyoming plan, because it has been put into effect in the high schools of that state. It is at present being introduced in the high schools of the city of Washington.

While service in these high school military organizations is voluntary, it is said that from ninety to ninety-eight per cent of the boys will voluntarily join. In a draft of the Steever report sent by Secretary Lane with his letter to Senator McCumber, attention is called to the fact that military drill necessarily accompany preparedness.

He has gotten it pretty firmly into his cranium that he has to become more than a board peddler

The lumber yard will continue to be an institution for profit, but it is a new conception of things that the profits have to be earned—not "taken."

Insofar as this outfit is concerned, they are starting in right now to qualify themselves to do the earning.

AMERICAN STEEL FOR THE ALLIES

Five hundred thousand tons of steel billets and bloom steel being unloaded from 1000 freight cars, in South Brooklyn, where it was to be shipped in France to made into war munitions.

Switzerland is insured as an illustration of this. The Wyoming plan which has been in operation in that state for several years, is pointed to as showing the idea of "A Nation with Arms," as distinguished from "A Nation in Arms."

In the Wyoming plan, as it is in operation in Wyoming and is being adopted in the Washington schools, military drill and organization is made a game, rather than a disagreeable duty. The pupils are divided into squads, platoons of companies, the members of each unit, or gang, being selected by the leader of that unit. These squads include well-organized units, troop leadership units, scout-unit, field firing units and camp and field units. Girls are admitted as "sponsors" each sponsor for a unit being elected by the girls of the school. These "sponsors" do not take part in drills, but are members of the units, leaders in social functions, and are recognized as having a useful place in the work.

Each unit is organized on the voluntary enlistment plan. Cadet classes are held during, and not after school hours, as a rule. The cadets are drilled in the work of their particular units, and at the end of the school season competitive games are held, in which medals, ribbons, etc., are awarded to the units and to individual members. In addition to the regular drills by the several units in their particular lines of work, weekend camps are arranged from April to June and summer camps during June and July.

FARMERS TO GO

STATE MEETING

Many of Those at Horticultural Meeting and Many Others Say They Will Attend—Program Good.

Much interest was manifested here today in the meeting of the state horticultural association in the forthcoming state-wide farmers' conference, which will meet in the state capital at Boise in February 14, for a three-day session, and many from this part of the state who were at the association meeting declared that they would likewise attend the conference. The importance of this meeting will, it was stated by horticulturists, be greatly enhanced by the presence of representatives of the government office of markets, and the federal trade commission—who will offer their views on the solution of commercial problems. The interest in this meeting, however, is not confined to horticulturists as the program covers practically every department in which the people of the country are interested.

Among the subjects considered will be: A better system of fruit marketing; The livestock market situation; Co-operative packing plants; The grain situation; Farmers' elevators and flour mills; Farmers' stores; Crop and market reports; Rural credits and legislative needs of the farmer; Potatoes, dairying, and other matters. The meeting will be conducted by farmers and not merely for farmers, and the people of Boise are said to have a fine program ready for the entertainment of the agriculturists and the wives during the three days which they will be there.

RUSS INTO A BRIDGE

Last Saturday night, says the Fiber Journal, Ed Ripley started to the basketball game in Twin Falls in his big Garford car under a ten people load. His lights were so dim, and the ground covered with snow that he had difficulty in seeing the road. When he reached the road near the house place he hit the end of the bridge. Ray Lee, who was riding in the front seat with him, went through the windshield, while the others in the car were badly shaken up. The car was knocked out of commission and the basket ball players and others in the car were compelled to wait in Curry where they telephoned to Twin Falls for cars to come out and get them. They arrived in Twin after ten o'clock and as a consequence being out in the cold so long, could not play the game in their usual form and of course were badly defeated. The return game will be played sometime in the near future, when the boys hope to make a better showing.

SNOW TROUBLED MINISTER

ON HIS NORTHEAST TRIP Rev. J. D. Kohn of Hollister, was in this city Saturday on his way back from a trip to the north side on which he was intended to deliver a series of talks. He went to Idaho and spoke there, to a small crowd, but the next morning found the road closed to Hazelton. He started to walk the six miles intervening between the two towns but found the snow so deep that he played out at the end of a mile. He then hired a sleigh which took him to Hazelton, where he caught the train back to Twin Falls. He snowed out of the road and rode in the caliche to Rupert.

TIME CONSERVATION

CLEARLY EXPLAINED

Paper by E. F. Stevens Tells How Spraying is Done in the Orchard of Company He heads.

In order to save time and make progress in the work of spraying its three hundred acres of commercial orchard, at Nampa, Idaho, the Stephens Orch and company erected an elevated tank which is kept filled from a nearby well by a gasoline engine. This elevated tank discharges through a four-inch pipe, quickly filling the service tanks used in field work.

Each of the two spraying outfits has a three and one-half horse power engine for developing two hundred pounds pressure, and each is equipped with two leads of hose and four Bordeaux nozzles. Each tank in the service is sprayed out in about twenty-three to twenty-five minutes. That the three men with each power sprayer may not be delayed in their work the outfit is followed by a helper tank wagon, filled either from the elevated tank or from a nearby irrigation ditch. To enable the helper tank to discharge Bordeaux quickly into the tank of the power outfit, it is elevated about thirty inches above the bolsters of the service wagon, enabling it to empty in less than two and one-half to three minutes through a four-inch pipe. The helper tank discharges along the same pipe and setting as the power outfit, and is kept filled by a four-inch pipe over sideways, and usually discharges its load into the tank of the power outfit while the horsemen are spraying the last four trees, causing but little delay in the work.

The equipment of this character requires a four-inch outlet pipe bolted into the end, at the bottom of the helper tank. This pipe has an elbow connected, and on top of the elbow a four-inch tin pipe in two sections gives a length of eight feet, reaching from the helper wagon to the power outfit and discharging its load, as above noted, with very brief delay. Equipped in this manner we find that nine men and eight horses apply four tankful per hour, or 7000 to 8000 gallons per day.

The acreage of land of the highest obtainable quality, owned at Nampa, is 37.60 per hundred pounds. Using eight pounds per tank of 200 gallons the solution in each tankful costs 50.8 cents. The cost of application for each tankful is from 65 to 75 cents. The amount of orchard covered each day depends upon the age and size of the trees.

The bulk of our orchards are in two-year fruit about sixty acres in seven-year form, and we have sprayed our neighbors' trees in twenty-year form. In making the calyx spray we use high power and the Bordeaux nozzle in the hope of driving the poison into the calyx of the apple.

The next spray is the foliage spray and is applied while the eggs are being deposited by the first brood of codling moth, from the 15th to the 25th of May, depending upon the warmth of the season.

It is not usual for the moths to deposit their eggs until the night temperature reaches sixty degrees. This second, or leaf spray, is applied in the form of a mist, using a different type of nozzle.

The object of this particular spray is to enter the foliage and the outside of the young fruit with poison. The eggs of the codling moth are usually deposited on the foliage of trees bearing fruit. It is expected that the larvae which hatch in eight or ten days after the egg is deposited, will eat a little on its way to the apple, and thus be destroyed.

For the leaf spray we plan to increase the strength of the solution to ten pounds of arsenate of lead to two hundred gallons, making the arsenate of lead for each two-hundred-gallon tankful cost 75 cents.

The third spray is applied when the eggs of the second brood are being deposited, using ten pounds of the best arsenate of lead to the two-hundred-gallon tankful.

He advocates the use of strickland oil alfalfa hay as the best way to get rid of the poas.

C. A. Ide closed the deal with J. Machacek, February 1st, and immediately took over the Sanitary Bakery, which he will operate in connection with the Home Cafe, and he moved the show cases from the Sanitary Bakery building to the cafe room, from which he will sell bread. Frank Panda was formerly proprietor of the Sanitary Bakery, but he moved to his farm northwest of Bull, and he sold his fixtures to Mr. Machacek, the owner of the Sanitary Bakery building. Mr. Machacek, in turn leased the building and the fixtures to Mr. Ide, who will continue to conduct an up-to-date bakery business.

About fifty-one members of Company K attended church services at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening, and most of them wore their uniforms, though they did not carry arms. Reverend Van Patten is a member of the local organization, and his sermon Sunday night was addressed to the members of the company. It was a good sermon, full of common sense, and the members of the company are glad to have attended. At a meeting of the Tuesday Civic club February 1st, after an animated discussion of the rest room, it was decided the policy of running the room must be changed. Miss Chamberlin consented to take charge for one month. In connection with the rest room she will conduct a "Woman's Exchange," an employment bureau and a tea room. As this is for the benefit of the public, she would like for the ladies of the country and town to call in and talk it over with her. Give her suggestions and advice. She will be glad to explain the plans to you. We hope the exchanging of ideas may be beneficial. This is for the comfort and convenience of the public. Let us all boost and make a success of it.

That war had been declared by the United States and that Company K of the Second Idaho Infantry had been ordered to proceed to Cuba for three months intensive training preparatory to mobilization at San Francisco with the Second division, was a rumor in circulation in Bull Tuesday afternoon. It was given considerable credence owing to a dispatch read by Lieut. Slee; color was also lent to the rumor when Capt. Biggs called the lieutenant by phone to Dr. Wetherbee's office to confer with General Crow who was in town between trains. In the evening about twenty members of the company together with a number who wanted to enlist, met Capt. Biggs coming out of a restaurant and asked for verification of the rumor. He was at a loss to understand what they were driving at but happened to think of the weekly "fild problem" just received from headquarters. He tumbled then to what was in the air. He read the "problem" to them but did not explain that it was similar to ones received by the officers each week to be solved as a part of their regular course of instruction. By Wednesday morning the rumor had been twisted in all kinds of shapes. Red blood came to the surface, find the officers of the local company opened the muster rolls they could have been fitted to a few minutes. The truth finally leaked out to the disappointment of many.

The seniors of the Bull high school entertained the rest of the school last Friday evening at a dancing party in the school gymnasium. Music was furnished by the Holmes orchestra, and at eleven o'clock they said their good nights, but everyone present had a delightful time. Much has been added to making the stage of the Bull opera house more beautiful, by putting in a new set of scenery, consisting of a series of scenes which are readily converted into any other room scene, and a grand Drapery of several shades of red and green, has been hung across the top and front of the stage. The work was done by L. G. Chapman, who lives three miles west of Bull, and it is a neat piece of work.

The team of John Jacoby, Sr., ran away from Charley-Somebody, and Pat Trumpfoltz last Monday noon and dashed down the road from the northeast corner of the townsite, and down the street to the Jacoby home where they were caught by John Jr. No injury resulted, and no damage was done to the wagon.

A dance was held in the school Saturday evening at which Unit 1 a dancing club was organized. W. R. Morrison was elected president, Lee Hoover vice president, and Charles F. Watkins secretary and treasurer. We understand that the membership is to include all the residents of the district who wish to attend but that no one must present invitations. This is to do away with the crowded conditions that has prevailed at a number of the late dances.

An Mr. and Mrs. George Drommerhausen were nearing the Kucirza corner Saturday afternoon, on their way home from town, a part of the buggy broke which lowered the vehicle and caused the horse to become frightened. It began kicking and continued in a great rage until it succeeded in freeing itself of the buggy. Mrs. Drommerhausen was fortunate enough to escape unhurt, but Mr. Drommerhausen was kicked on the limb by the animal and at present writing is suffering considerable discomfort because of the injury. He was able, with the aid of his wife, to mount the horse and proceeded to the home of L. A. White, who kindly took his neighbors to their home.

Some of the friends of Mrs. G. N. Davis, sister of Mrs. C. H. Vingar, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Tuesday evening and happily surprised her by reminding her that it was her birthday. Each family brought something good to eat, and after a delightful time spent in playing cards and with social conversation, the table was laden with the edibles, and all enjoyed the feast.

CALDWELL GIRL IS KILLED BY TRAIN

CALDWELL - Friday morning at about 8:45 the belated morning Pony ran into a horse and two-wheeled cart at the Oregon Short Line crossing, just west of the Union stock yards. The horse was thrown upon the south side of the track, about 50 feet, and the cart on the north side. The horse was instantly killed, says the Caldwell News. The cartage contained two occupants, Mary and Genevieve Garvin, aged respectively 16 and 13 years, who were on their way to school.

The girls were put upon stretchers and brought to the depot and given in to the hands of Agent Farrar, who immediately called the company's physician at this place.

The older girl, Mary, sustained a broken collar bone, and a wrenched back. The younger girl, Genevieve, had her arm and leg broken and she was injured about the hips.

About midnight Friday night the younger child died.

A PROPOSED PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT.

Being about to sell the tract of land that has passed as a county poor farm, although not well situated and without any of the necessary buildings, and the state health officers having covered, upon sanitary grounds, the city building heretofore used as a poor house, it was up to the commissioners of Twin Falls county to make the next move. Under such circumstances, although no record action was had, at a meeting of the board held recently, it was agreed, unanimously as we understand, and very wisely, as it seems to the TIMES, to erect a county, or public, hospital—provided the same could be done within the amount of money at present available for the purpose. And in order to positively determine with regard to the cost, it was further agreed to at once invite from contractors competitive bids for a building of substantially the desired size and character, which will be done so soon as the necessary plans and specifications can be prepared.

The plans now under consideration are, of course, only tentative—the details as to convenience and adaptability presumably to be worked out later under expert advice. They contemplate, however, a fine brick building ninety-eight by thirty-eight feet on the ground, with but a single floor above the basement, which is substantially all above the ground. This will accommodate some twenty patients, and can be enlarged to a growing demand, either by additional stories or by wings.

Interviews with a number of the medical profession in our city indicate that they welcome the proposed improvement quite warmly and very heartily. Many points of interest and seeming importance were also brought out by their comments on the project. "We are out of the sage-brush period," said one; "and while a small hospital is sufficient to begin with, it should be absolutely modern and up-to-date in construction and equipment." All who were seen favored an arrangement by which, so long as room remained not needed for the public use, any reputable physician could there house and treat patients of his own—who would, of course, pay for the accommodation—thus not only materially reducing the cost of maintenance to the taxpayers, but also insuring the presence at all times of nurses and a hospital staff. The county hospital at Pocatello, we were told, is in this way made actually self-supporting.

From another quarter came the suggestion that the municipality might, if desired by the county authorities, join in the project, thus enlarging its scope and dividing the expense. This came with thought of the name that would attach to the institution: it being promised that "County" Hospital sounded too much of the poor-house, and that "Municipal," "Public," or "People's" would be no more desirable prefatory word. When a man is down and out, for some reason he is sensitive about anything that suggests "poor-house," that synonym for wretchedness and hardship. Then there might be prospective patients who would be able to pay a part of the expense of hospital treatment, which they would undoubtedly do more readily to an institution that did not, by its very name, stigmatize them as paupers.

Of course the proposal to receive private and pay cases assumes that it would be under proper supervision by some adequate authority, in order that morbid cases might not queer the undertaking at an early stage by fatalities, nor contagion be introduced with the same result; and to avoid the possibility of illegitimate practice—all or any of which would have a very damaging effect, especially at an early period in the life of the undertaking.

"The Modern Hospital," a magazine which is the mouthpiece of the American Hospital Association, and which is devoted to the scientific and technical, as well as the practical, in hospital construction and management, was brought to notice by one of the physicians interviewed. In an article devoted to the smaller hospitals it says that out of 6,500 hospitals that were existent in the United States two years ago, fewer than two hundred had capacity for over two hundred patients. Evidently a great work is being done by the small hospitals; and there is no reason to doubt that when the purpose of our county commissioners shall come to fruition it will provide not only a great practical benefit to both town and county, but also something of which all will be proud and which will further enhance the fine reputation that is already had abroad by both Twin Falls county and city.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM ASKED.

Although there are a few constitutional opponents of all sorts of regulation in no way interested in public utilities to be found among those leading the fight against the sort of national regulation of franchises of power companies provided for in pending legislation before congress, and although there are a number of extreme states rights men lined up on the same side, the backbone of the opposition consists in those identified with the great power companies as stockholders or attorneys. This does not imply personal dishonesty on the part of such opponents, even if their criticisms should be found erroneous, as their occupation quite unobscurely biases their minds. The idea made by the attorneys and friends of the companies is that the sort of regulation proposed by the bill will entirely prevent development, but there is at least room to doubt this unless it is conclusively demonstrated, and it is deserving of careful examination before being finally accepted. Years ago the same plan was made by railroads, who claimed that any attempt at effective regulation would mean the cessation of railroad building and development. Whether it is true or not that the railroads are correct in saying that regulation is sometimes carried too far, the creation of railroad commissions with power to act did not prevent the further construction of these modern highways. Posing final settlement of the question of regulation there is no doubt that the country has a temporary bill in some cases, which the ranks pointed out as an alleged proof that no progress would be made thereafter were the supposedly destructive legislation enacted. A superficial reading of the proposed power regulation law does not indicate that it is so formidable, and it is quite possible that should it be enacted, the men of money would be quite so hesitant about investing as they now pretend that they would be.

A franchise is the giving away of a value that belongs to the community as a whole and the corporation receiving one becomes quasi-public by reason of the fact. Unregulated these tend inevitably toward unrestricted monopoly. While it is within the legitimate province of government to operate all branches of industry that are natural monopolies, and while some standard economists assert that it will eventually be necessary for the government to own and operate them in order to avoid either socialism or the domination of monopoly, it is quite clear that the government is not at this time prepared to exercise all its undoubted rights in these cases. On the other hand, it would be a hardship, indeed a calamity, to tie up natural resources indefinitely for governmental operation which might never take place. Under such circumstances, it would seem that the proper thing to do would be to grant franchises in such way that the country would be developed and at the same time the rights of the people would be protected. This is undoubtedly the purpose of the law now pending which has received the unbounded denunciation of the public-service monopolies of this state and the honest criticisms of those who applying the doctrine of laissez faire in a manner so intended by the standard economists of that school. Whether the law is designed to secure the results desired is a question of fact. In this respect the critics have been prone to indulge in generalities in regard to the weak points said to be found in the proposed measure and to ignore the sort of protection which any law of this kind should give to conserve public interest. The law should be fair to the public as well as to the investor.

If it is not, then its critics should point out wherein it should be amended so as to get such result. Mere denunciation of the law means nothing. It would be a serious mistake to enact a law which would prevent the development of natural resources in such way as to redound to the benefit of the people. It would be criminal to permit the granting of perpetual, unqualified and exclusive franchises to private interests that might use them to oppress the people in the future. Those who object to turning down, should in this case not content themselves by merely trying to tear down proposed legislation, which may indeed be defective, but should be prepared to offer feasible amendments to build up such measures so that they would protect the people no less than favor private interests. The attitude of most critics of this measure, both the interested and the disinterested, has been destructive and not constructive.

CERTAIN ADVERTISING NOT IN FAVOR.

Responding to an inquiry from the Duke-Advertising Agency as to why the advertising matter of the Dr. and Mrs. Dr. Chamley Co. had been discontinued and requesting its reinstatement in the columns of the paper, THE TIMES replied refusing to reinstate the advertisement, giving as a reason that the Chamley company virtually promised to cure cancer and that medical advertising making such broad assertions could not find place in its columns. The Chamley company advertisement starts out with the statement: "I will give $1000 if I fail to cure any cancer or tumor I treat before it poisons deep glands or attaches to bone." "What the hell is the reader left to infer if he can. The advertisement also says that any tumor, lump or sore long on the lip, face or body is cancer. Any lump on a woman's breast is cancer." Both statements are patently untrue. The cut sent carries a horrid picture which may either be taken for a picture of a cancer, or for some supposed microbe assumed to be responsible for the disease. Advertising of this sort does not go.

NOTHING TO IT.

The Boise Daily Statesman gives the Komment a nice little write-up, closing with the assertion that "if the man at its head is not a newspaper man he ought to be."

To which we enter no reply, not guilty, and, assuming the burden of proof, we offer as Exhibit A: the average newspaper man—a sal-hoaxed, tired appearing individual, whose days are spent in writing long-winded editorials advising the people to patronize him, mercenary quacks and whose nights are spent in devising schemes to prevent the honest merchants from ordering their printing from the cheap-john printshops of Zion City and Los Angeles.

No, we are not a newspaperman, neither had we nor anyone else ought to be. "Company Kay Komment," Bull!

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE THEATRE GOERS

STORY OF THE

DEVIL'S DAUGHTER

"The Devil's Daughter" is a screen play of tremendous force and action, and is a masterpiece in its depiction of an evilly-plotted story, like the legend of ancient Greek mythology, in which a half-serpent and half-woman monster, the Gorgon, attacks a hero. Also there is a story in parts of this type has become world famous from such William Fox productions as "The Clemence Case," "A Fool There Was," etc., in each of which the French leading woman in the part of a fascinating diabolical temptress has won international fame. Also there is a striking and beautiful face has been called "The Wildest of the World."

"The Devil's Daughter" opens with the theft of La Gioconda's jewelry by Luigi, a former lover while she is being embraced by Antonio who has superstitious Luigi is her capricious affection. Luigi leaves a note and a key to her that has stolen the jewels out of vengeance and she will never see him again. La Gioconda discovers the note after Antonio has left. Her passionate rage is fiercer over the theft.

Time passes and we see Gaddi, an old sculptor, modeling the beautifully formed hands of Sylvia, the daughter of a neighbor, while Francesca, her sister, looks on. Lucio Sattolo, a young sculptor and pupil of Gaddi is struck by Sylvia's pure beauty, as fragrant with youth and sweetness as the white lilies she is holding. With Sylvia and Lucio the course of love runs smoothly and unobstructed. Lucio becomes a great sculptor.

Then in an evil day La Gioconda comes to the quiet studio seeking to destroy it. Sylvia intervenes. The statue is toppled from its base and falls upon Sylvia's beautiful hands, crushing them into shapeless pulp. Lucio goes insane when he learns what has happened but La Gioconda glazes over the wreck she has made of two lives. Sylvia Lucio as soon as she is able, taking with her little Beata, Lucio is a prey to fearful visions and constantly seeks the mocking form of La Gioconda taunting him in his fits of delirium. The climax comes startlingly and rises to great dramatic heights. La Gioconda's evil career marked by ruined careers and withered hopes ends in a ghastly and terrible overwhelming power and another sensational climax brings this most impressive modern drama to a dramatic close.

MAUD ADAMS' SCENIC EQUIPMENT USED IN FRECKLES

MISS DOROTHY DE MENDOZA

THIS BEAUTIFUL, and inspiring Amberle scene, with its charm and horrors, in Gene Stratton-Porter's famous story play "Freckles," as it will be presented in all its magnificent grandeur and simple splendor, at the Lavering Theatre Monday, February 14, by the Broadway Amusement Co.'s New York company of players and singers, was constructed under the Alexander patent, first introduced in this country by Maud Adams. When Mr. Frohman introduced the New York press his intention of using a new scenic equipment which could be unbolted and placed in casual "graphic" measuring 14 feet long, its sixty managers looked aghast and with skeptical cynicism "pooh-poohed" this advanced idea in doing away with the cumbersome frame work, parallel platforms and battens used in his previous offerings.

During Maud Adams' tour last season, her great forest scene in Peter Pan and the gigantic oaks used in Chatterbox were made so realistic in appearance, that many of the skeptical fraternity were not convinced of the genius of Alexander of London, the inventor of stenciled scenery, until allowed back of the curtain line on the opening performance to examine the canvas.

This feature alone is another triumph in stage craft and twentieth century stage lighting methods and has been licensed by the management of "Freckles" as will be seen in this city.

The play is superbly mounted and amply cast and will afford theatre patrons an opportunity of witnessing a unique spectacle and presentation of a most charming, wholesome and delightful song play. The attraction is booked for one night and should prove interestingly entertaining.

TALKS ON THRIFT

BUMPS AND PLEASANT ODORS

There is a certain vaudeville skit that is absurdly amusing, but absurdity is true. It is a stock circus. One of the attractions is a patent fly catcher, and with all the pomp and ceremony of the usual circus Barker the media of this invention are extolled.

Attracted by a pleasant odor coming from an open door with the word "welcome" overhead, the fly walks in. The surroundings are inviting. He enjoys himself immensely, and proceeds to "explore" the place. Suddenly he finds himself on a cozy balcony. Attendees are there to wait on him. Cool breezes are blowing and refreshments are his for the taking. He rests awhile. Proceeding further he finds himself on a higher balcony, with more attractions and has another sign overhead, "Exploring still further, he finds another cozy balcony, and plunges to find no balcony, and plunges to his death. Ah, what a life! But true of many people in real life.

A certain music master had in his choir a promoter. He induced the musician to invest about three hundred dollars in a certain chewing gum proposition, that promised large returns. The music master doubled his money in three months and was delighted with the new way of getting rich quick. The fly had found a cozy balcony and liked it.

Along came another proposition by the same man, that promised even bigger returns, but entailed more money. He was leading his victim to a higher balcony, and he, poor fly, didn't know it. The music master consulted his banker who advised him to keep his profits and stay out. "You will get the speculative fever in the end," said the banker man; but the little fly knew better; he had tried one feeding place and liked it, and would try another. He put practically all his savings into the new proposition, and inside of three months the promoter was among the missing, leaving a deserted office and a bale of stock certificates as his legacy to those who had come into his trap. The poorer but wiser music master got a bad bump and hasn't recovered yet.

It's the same old story, you can't beat the game. You may think yourself very smart; have perfect faith in your man and be in himself, but he were enticing odors and pleasant balconies they surely lead somewhere, and that somewhere is down! For almost pure protection, safety, sureness, worry-lessness, you can't beat the safe bank. It invites you into no cooling hallways, on no restful balconies, makes no alluring promises of big returns, but sticks to the old and tried proposition, that "twice two makes four," and works on the theory that "every little bit added to what you have makes just a little bit more." It pays you no large dividends, but the money is green, and just as surely as Fourth of July and New Year's roll around you get your interest.

However alluring other propositions may be, remember, the safe road is the sure road, and the sure road is the safe road. It may take a little longer to get there, but you are sure of where you are going. It's not the business that counts—it's the end. The story of the fly trap is but the brilliant conception of an imaginative mind run riot; but it is horribly true. Many a man loses a fortune as the fly in the trap loses its life—first the pleasant invitation; the restful experiences; the desire for more pleasant experiences and, lured on and on, and, plunged! Humanity may have more sense than the fly, but it often acts as if it didn't.

KIMBERLY NOTES

(From The Kimberly Call.)
At a meeting Thursday night at the high school auditorium the Old Fellows installed the following officers: Martin Sullivan, noble grand; John W. Hardin, vice-grand; Carl Kildewey, secretary; C. H. Upton, treasurer; W. A. Gill, inside guard; C. H. Upton, outside guard. The lodge is practically without a meeting place since the fire, using the high school auditorium temporarily. A building committee composed of W. R. Summers, W. F. Brockton and John W. Hardin, which has been appointed at a previous meeting, reported progress and was retained. The committee was appointed to devise ways and means to build a new hall, and if the committee succeeds a new building will be erected in the spring. Pastor Stewart has consented to deliver his illustrated lecture at the different towns on the tract, a part of the proceeds to go to the I. O. O. F. building fund. The tour will probably take all the towns along the line from and including Buhl and Burley. The opening date will be at Buhl, Monday, February 7th. Dates for the other towns have not yet been fixed. The school board met Saturday night in special session to further consider plans and specifications for a new school building and for the transaction of general business. The board is giving considerable attention to details before taking any definite action in the matter of building and has also plans to look over. At this meeting John W. Hardin tendered his resignation as a member of the board, which resignation was accepted. Roland Hardin, driver on one of the school wagons, tendered his resignation and Scyrus Jones was employed in his stead, and began his duties as driver on Monday.

The dramatic club of the K. I. S. will put on a play about the middle of February, the exact date as yet has not been definitely settled, but will be announced in time for the people to get their tickets. The title of the play will be "All-Tangled-Up," and as the people in the play have been putting some hard work on it it surely will be worth the attention.
H. H. Atkinson, chairman of the fire committee, has received word that the chemical engine, recently ordered for the village, was shipped from New York City on January 25th. The engine, a 1915 model, will probably arrive in a week or so when it will be given a thorough tryout. If the engine proves satisfactory another one will be ordered immediately.

HIGH SCHOOL PARAGRAPHS

Miss Lott's class in public speaking is preparing a short sketch entitled, "To Oblige Benson." The play will be presented in assembly soon.
The Junior class play, "Green Stockings," will be presented in the near future. The play is being directed by Miss Porter. The cast includes Mark Bristol, Wilbur Rowberry, Thomas Irwin, Jay Tracy, Margaret Putnam, Ester Anderson, Catherine (task) and other members of the Junior class.
The debate team, who will debate with Boise and Pocatello on February 13th, are almost ready to do battle. The speeches are all written and will speak in the order named: Twin Falls high school affirmative; to debate against Boise negative—Carl S. Maxwell, Mary Hummel and Walter E. Smith; Twin Falls high school negative, to debate Pocatello affirmative—Theodore E. Bowen, George C. Halley and William Leiser. The affirmative team will debate in the high school auditorium at Twin Falls, while the negative team will go to Pocatello.
The Science club enjoyed a sleigh ride last Saturday night.
At a meeting of the Senior class, it was decided to purchase the class ring and pins from W. R. Pfebe, and to adopt the design used by the two preceding classes. The design has a picture of the high school building, and around this are the words: "Twin Falls High School, '16." The design is heavier than that of previous years; at each side of the design is a coyote. This is appropriate because the present Senior class has had control of the "Coyote," the high school paper, for the last two years.

Mistake in Telegraphic Message Costs German Farmer Large Sum of Money.

Hamburg.—Through a most unusual legal ruling, which, in many quarters, is attacked as incorrect, a farmer has been obliged to sell a carload of hay for two marks (40 cents). He had telegraphed to his would-be customer that the price would be 200 marks, and some employee of the telegraph office lost the two ciphers in handling the message. The astonished customer lost no time in accepting the "22" mark offer. When the customer declined to pay 200, the case went into court. The supreme court decided that the imperial telegraph office cannot be held responsible for the mistake and that the sale must stand.

BURLEY CATTLE ATTRACT ATTENTION AT DENVER
Burley—A carload of Shorthorn calves, fed at Burley, by the Portland Feeder company, and exhibited by them at the Denver livestock show last week, won first prize in their class, and won the grand champion carload of fat cattle at the show, reports the Burley Bulletin. They sold at auction for ten cents per pound, the highest price ever paid for a carload of Idaho cattle.
Manager J. L. Burke of the Feeder company tells us that the steers occupied the best pen in the Denver yards, on the corner where practically every one of the thousands of visitors read the banner designating them as the "grand champion pen" and stopped to look at the animals and inquire about Burley. The Portland Feeder company tops the market every time with their Burley beef, and are doing a great work in advertising this section. The quality of the best produced here is due to Mr. Burke's advanced methods of feeding.

PAYETTE LOVERS LANE

CLEARED BY WILD BEAST

PAYETTE, IDA.—There was a real commotion on Lovers' Lane a few nights ago. About 2 o'clock in the morning W. J. Reimers was awakened by the barking of his dogs and went forth to investigate, says the Payette Independent. Along into the yard he found the dogs making an awful fuss over something and closer investigation brought the something his way with a rush. Before he had time to examine the cause of the trouble he found himself being bitten for cover with an animal larger than the dogs at his heels. He fought and later succeeded with the aid of the dogs in driving the animal away. Later the commotion began again and this time he and Mrs. Reimers both got out to try and ascertain the exact cause of the trouble. After a considerable chase the animal left in the direction of the hills with the dogs in pursuit. Mr. Reimers thinks it was a hungry mountain lion that had come down from the hills looking for something to eat.

On the next legislature to carry out the purpose of this resolution. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Bill Wilson; Vice President, W. S. Starr; Secretary, J.  The talk on roses by Mrs. W. H. Harvey of Buhl, Thursday night, was perhaps the most pleasing feature of the discussion and rivaled only by the work of Misses Kelley and Brown as their domestic science demonstrations. Commercial club, were made the objects of much favorable criticism. The Times is indebted to E. F. Stevens, president of the Idaho board of horticultural inspection, for the following full account of proceedings of the meeting after the completion of the organization as given in the last issue.
 The opening hour was devoted to a discussion of the state inspection of orchards. A few orchards in the Idaho board of horticultural inspection, for the following full account of proceedings of the meeting after the completion of the organization as given in the last issue.
 The opening hour was devoted to a discussion of the state inspection of orchards. A few orchards in the Idaho board of horticultural inspection, for the following full account of proceedings of the meeting after the completion of the organization as given in the last issue.

Professor C. C. Vincent, department of horticulture, University of Idaho, exhibited a very interesting collection of evaporated fruits illustrating the work that the department is undertaking showing that it is practicable for the family or the neighborhood to engage in the evaporation of surplus fruit and to develop a merchantable product at moderate expense. The cost of labor and fuel used in evaporating the apples was given at two and one-fourth cents per pound. Forty bushels, two thousand and sixty-three pounds of apples developed 228 pounds of the dry product. Figures were given relating to comparative results secured evaporating Ben Davis, Rome Beauty and Winesap. The evaporated product from the Ben Davis proved to be highest in color and most attractive in appearance.
 C. J. Sinsel of Boise, in discussing the Italian prune mentioned that certain varieties would meet him at Boise on February 12, to discuss the establishment of an evaporating plant involving an expenditure of from $50,000 to $75,000, provided a sufficient number of orchardists would contract their entire crop for a period of five years at a set price, of probably $15 to $17.50 per ton. Capitalists could not afford to establish a plant unless they could be assured of a sufficient quantity of fruit for successful and profitable operation. Mr. Sinsel and other speakers favored contrasting with an establishment of this character, thus standardize the work of growing the Italian prune. A positive contract with a responsible company for a term of years at a reasonable price would give stability and value to the Italian prune orchard. W. H. McBurney stated that the prune industry is now passing from the green to the dry stage, the market for the green prune is not unlimited but there is a demand to be met, especially for the dry prune. Mr. McBurney discussed different methods of drying, commencing that established by—Miss Cannon of Weiser. A plant costing $7,500 was large enough to handle 1000 tons of fruit. Mr. McBurney reported that usually one hundred pounds of green prunes would develop 35 to 40 pounds of the dried product. On the present market developing a value of above $25.00 per ton for the green prune. Comparing the cost of evaporating the Italian prune with coal as compared with the California method of drying by sun heat since the cost of coal is only one-fourth cent per pound for fruit the Idaho method was preferable. Prunes for evaporation are allowed to remain on the tree until quite ripe and are then gathered from the ground as they fall, making frequent picking from time to time. The Italian prune with its large sugar content rapidly exhausts the fertility of the soil, orchards 15 to 20 years of age showing decay and are in need of a complete renovation. Heavy application of such fertilizers as can be secured. One of their 40-acre orchards of prunes was fortunately located along side of a stock feeding plant from which they have been able to secure year after year a large amount of excellent manure. Applications of ten loads per acre for a series of years had maintained the fertility of the soil and the orchard was now in the best possible condition. Mr. McBurney mentioned an Italian prune orchard purchased 15 years ago, in 1900, for $2500 per acre. The orchard had secured a yield that had returned the $2500 per acre over expenses. The McBurney family have 400 acres in Italian prunes and 300 acres in apple orchards.

 Discussing methods of planting, Mr. McBurney in light soil where vigorous growth was not expected would plant 18 feet apart, 134 per acre; on strong soils 20 feet apart, 108 trees per acre. Discussions by prominent fruit growers indicated the preference for large establishments operated with ample capital, where there were not available the orchardists should appropriate very soon a plant that could handle its own product. A sufficient number of trees have been planted in southern Idaho to develop more than 600 cars of prunes, 1000 cars of green prunes were probably all that could be marketed from southern Idaho in the green state at a profit. Bill Wilson of Nampa, with 90 acres of the Italian prune, heartily favored any method which would give a stable price for prunes for a term of years.
 In the discussion on the marketing of by-products, C. J. Sinsel stated that the product must have quality, quantity and be able to supply the demand from the wholesale trade as called for. This thought favored the large establishment in preference to the small individual plant.
 Joel Priest of the O. S. L. discussed freight rates. There seemed to be an impression that those who represented orchards where pruning, spraying and thinning can be discussed and illustrated.

chardists. To correct this impression Mr. Priest stated that oranges paid a flat rate of $115 to Denver and the same rate for apples, clear to New York. Idaho apples were carried to Denver for 65 cents per hundred; to the Missouri river points for 75 cents per hundred; to Chicago for 85 cents per hundred, and to New York for $1.00 per hundred. The rates for apples on the O. S. L. carrier territory were lower by 12 1/2 cents per hundred pounds than the rate over the Northern-Pacific, the Northern-Pacific should be met by a protest from the interested orchardists of Idaho. The O. S. L. carried potatoes to Texas on a rate only 15 cents above the rate from Greeley, Colorado, to Texas points. The rate on Idaho apples to eastern markets was the same as the Utah rate, although 400 miles further away. The rates from Payette to Blackfoot were 15 to 21 cents lower than from Yakima and Wenatchee.
 Mrs. W. H. Harvey of Buhl, presented a particularly interesting discussion of the importance of ornamenting the grounds about one's home. She has 1500 roses in her own grounds with numerous shrubs and ornamental trees. One of the ladies' clubs of Buhl secured at wholesale 300 roses and divided them among the members of their club. Mrs. Harvey's paper was filled with explicit instructions, mentioning an "extended list of varieties which she had found successful" mentioned that she was able to grow most anything that succeeded in California. Mrs. Harvey's paper was heartily appreciated and highly commended by the society.
 W. G. Shotts, farm markets director, in his discussion of best methods for marketing Idaho fruits gave a history of the experience of the northwest the last ten years and mentioned that there will be an important conference of fruit experts sent out from the department at Washington, D. C. the meeting to be held at Boise, Feb. 14, 15 and 16. The society appointed a committee to attend this conference composed of W. N. Yost, J. Leo Truax, H. F. Hurst, Silas Wilson and E. F. Stephens.
 E. L. Goodall of New York, on his way to California, stopped off to address the Idaho society and will meet the orchardists of Oregon and Washington. Mr. Goodall recalled the history of the auction movement for the last 25 years. The auction business in 1915 handled 1,500,000 boxes of Florida oranges, securing an average of $2.25 per box for the entire shipment. The auction handled 95 per cent of the fruit from Porto Rico. In 1916 handled 2,000,000 bunches of bananas and was now handling a large quantity of New York apples. The auction handles an immense amount of foreign fruit.
 The next meeting of the society will be held at Boise. Following the example set by other states, a summer meeting will be called to get the representative orchards where pruning, spraying and thinning can be discussed and illustrated.

SNOW GRADUALLY MELTS

WITH BUT LITTLE DAMAGE
 The big snow is almost gone and while a few cellars contain too much water as a result of its disappearance through alternate rain and sunshine, little damage was done to offset its good effects. The city council took steps in a special meeting Thursday evening to place the matter in the hands of the street committee which has been actively at work to prevent serious flooding.

MARKETS SOMEWHAT SLOWER

Except in the case of live stock, which are firm, prices on the local markets show a downward tendency. Wheat in bulk brings $1.50, and in sacks a nickel more. Oats bring from $1.40 to $1.45; potatoes are commanding from $1.10 to $1.20; steers show an upward tendency ranging from $8 to $8.50; cows and bulls bring $5.50 to $6; lambs from six to seven cents; ewes from five to six cents, and hogs from $5.45 to $5.55.
