NORTHSIDE BUSY AND WANTS FARM HANDS

Wendell Map Says There Are Places for 20 Men There and at Jerome—Prosperous Year Predicted.

There is a shortage of men on the north side tract, according to A. T. Eakin of Wendell, who was in this city yesterday on his way to Duhl on business. Mr. Eakin said he knew of eight vacant jobs in Wendell and as many more in Jerome on farms near the city, and that he was convinced that the two towns could take care of 20 men. He suggested that probably a few little men could find places at Hazelton and Eden and other towns along the north side branch. "The farmers of the country over there are busier now than they have ever been before at this time of year," he said, "as they realize that the best thing they can do is to get their crops in early. They are all anticipating a year of great prosperity and want men to help them plant things. Of course, the north side cannot take care of a great many workmen, but a number can get jobs. Some have been drifting in lately and they have all secured places. Any workman who does not care to go over personally and desire to investigate conditions, can do so by writing to Editor Fyne of the Wendell Irrigationist, who is secretary of our commercial club, and to Bob Frazier at Jerome."

HOW TWIN FALLS DOES THINGS

(E. H. Shepard, in the Wendell Irrigationist.)
WOULD you like to have others admire you? If you would, have something good to say about everybody (except yourself), about your neighbor, about your town and your country. Boast, even if you have to go out of your way, and a helping hand; don't think of doing someone misery just because you are not fortunate in some petty scheme; have some word of encouragement always for the fellow who is down, and, remember, you may be down tomorrow; cause others to think you are so successful and prosperous that you can only see good in everything. It is the man with the petty grievance, the small man, who knocks down and out. Try to be above small things. If you keep boasting everywhere you go, in a country where you can't boast.

IDAHO MAN OF 105 ENJOYS A FORD OUTING ON BIRTHDAY
MIDVILLE.—Russell Newman is of age today—to be exact, he is 105 years of age today—and he's proud of it. He isn't insured in the least, when asked when he was born. He was born March 20, 1811, in Virginia. In celebrating his birthday, he prevailed on C. C. Hargrove to let him take out a Ford and drive around town. Hargrove went along, just as to be where he could put on the brake if Mr. Newman got to hitting up the gait too much. For a couple of hours he drove about the town, perfectly contented with everything but the speed. He did grumble a little because he couldn't smoke up the trail for a speed of about 80 miles, but otherwise he was satisfied. Almost all kinds of transportation except "foot and a horseback" have been invented since he first saw the light of day, but he is still looking for faster traffic. He would take a chance in an aeroplane if he had an opportunity.—Signal.

WATCH CONGRESS.

While every American citizen should watch with patriotic interest the development of the critical situation beyond the Rio Grande, with a view of doing his full duty to his country in case any unfortunate turn of affairs should take place, it would be well at the same time to keep an eye on the congress, where grafting legislation may be slipped through if people concentrate all their attention on the trouble beyond the border.

For instance, the water power bill is now pending. That measure probably means more for good or for evil to future generations than any development on the border. When the Ferris bill was pending in its original form many commercial organizations passed resolutions denouncing it, because of the improper obstacles it was said to throw in the way of electrical development. Just what these were was not made clear, but if they existed they should have been eliminated, and it seems that they were eliminated with a vengeance. As the bill passed the senate in an amended form, it seems to be all that a "water hog" and grafter or public service monopolist could desire. Some of those who voted for it in the senate did so, according to their own statements, because they felt sure that the house would strike out objectionable features.

Now, the people need not fear that there will be no development if they properly protect the interests of posterity when enacting legislation governing water power. The monopolist is an expert bluffer. If he can he will convince both the people and congress that unless they give him all that he wants industry will be ruined. It is unfortunate that so many lights in the realms of big business are public men, to a degree that would shame a professional hobo, but they are. They will wheedle if they can, and threaten if they think it effective, but will be down nicely if "their bluff is called."

A few weeks ago when a bill was introduced in congress for a government factory to make armor plate, because it appeared that the armor plate manufacturers were making enormous profits on their business, that they had been selling to foreign nations at a much lower price than they did to the United States government, and that they were at least indirectly fomenting hatred between nations, Senator Penrose arose and delivered an ultimatum in their behalf to the effect that if such measure were enacted the manufacturers would force the price of armor up $200 a ton. The "bluff was called" and the senate passed the bill. The armor plate trust did not raise the price. Instead, it came to the lower house of congress through its agents and offered to reduce the price of armor from $424 a ton to $355 if congress would defeat the bill. The lesson is that the people need not be frightened into giving away the heritage of their children by the bugaboos and gnomes conjured up by monopolists. If a reasonable power bill, affording ample protection to the people, is passed, not a single legitimate investor will refrain from putting his money into development work.

Watching congress in matters of this kind is a less exciting sport than observing great statesmen slay greaser hordes at long range, but it is part of the humdrum work that the author of the motto, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," had in mind when he said it.

The water power measure, while important, is only one of the many that are pending that, if the people become altogether too absorbed in matters beyond the Rio Grande, may be found among of which future generations will mourn the loss.

JUDGE WELTY'S STATEMENT.

It isn't often that a man of the educational qualifications and native ability of Judge Dan T. Welty declines a position because of the possibility that he may be physically unable to at all times do his full duty to the people, and when such event does occur it is worthy of more than passing notice. Although it is reported that Judge Welty is 66 years of age, and possibly not as robust as he was 30 years ago, there are many men holding judicial office in the United States today who are less physically fitted for the task than he.

The idea that a public servant should be able at all times to give full return to the people for salary paid is a sound one, though it is "more honored by breach than by observance" among those who imagine that the public would do well to invest in their services. The chances are that the contingency feared by Judge Welty, that ill health would prevent his performing the duties of that office, would not be realized should he accept the position, and the ground on which he declines is itself a good reason why the commissioners should endeavor to induce him to reconsider his declination, as Chairman Carlson indicated to THE TIMES that they would.

There is, of course, plenty of good timber among those mentioned for the place, and among those not mentioned. For that matter, but the public judgment of Judge Welty shows him to be a man among a thousand, and the sort of person whom the public should attach to its service if possible.

Just before going to press, THE TIMES learned that Judge W. J. Smith of Twin Falls, whose friends have been circulating a petition urging his appointment to the vacancy in the probate court, has announced that he could not serve if appointed, setting forth reasons similar to those given by Judge Welty, who has declined the office. The county may well congratulate itself on having two men of the caliber of Judge Welty and Judge Smith among its citizenship.

DEATH VALLEY DODGE WINS FAME

"Death Valley Dodge," the famous Dodge Brothers motor car that was the vehicle of a trip that has attracted national attention because of the nature of the journey, has won new fame on the coast. Driven by today's Dodge, the famous racing driver, the car made the night trip over the mountains of California from Northridge, in the valley, to San Luis Obispo in slightly more than 12 hours.

The run was started at 10 o'clock at night, after all the "wonders" had predicted that it would be impossible to get through, owing to the conditions of the roads, which are regarded as exceedingly dangerous even in the day time.

Ted Coff, in discussing the trip, said: "It's all right when you have confidence in your car. There were some bad places on the road where we would around the edge of a precipice, and there were various spots where you wanted to be sure that both brakes and transmission were dependable. But I had tried out the Dodge Brothers motor car and I had every confidence that it would get me out of the car if we failed."

FRUIT SELLING TALK AT COMMERCIAL CLUB

Representative of Government Marketing Department Talks to Farmers and Fruit Growers.

Ways and means to get the farmer and fruit growers together for the purpose of marketing crops, especially the apple crop, was the purpose of an address made yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the Twin Falls Commercial club by C. E. Bassett, of the marketing bureau of the department of agriculture, in which the terms of the uniform contract suggested for the producers and selling agents by the government was discussed. A similar meeting was held at Bull at the same time.

Under the Clayton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law, farmers are no longer prohibited from forming organizations to control the price of their products within certain limits, said Mr. Bassett, and we are now endeavoring to arrange for the disposition of this year's crop with such machinery as we have on hand. "For the purpose of securing a better view of combining for marketing or for the limiting of the output was illegal. Now farmers can organize for the purpose of disposing of their own crops, provided that the organization is not capitalized and that the crops controlled are owned by the men themselves. No one can buy the products of others and legally enter a combination controlling their disposition. The organizations that can now be formed will be of great value in opening new markets in South America and elsewhere which would mark a single producer to be organized. The farmers formerly wanted to learn how to sell to better advantage, and the department is trying to help them.

"After a full day's deliberation and a very full discussion of each of the activities proposed, the representatives of the shipping agencies present unanimously and very enthusiastically expressed themselves as being in sympathy with the government's tentative plan and they desire to do all in their power to put the plan into operation during 1916, provided it secured approval of the federal authorities. While it is evident that practically all of the shipping agencies are willing to undertake the work of shipping, it is equally evident that they clearly understood that its success depends upon the order of the grower, who has the power to control his product, through the fixing or withholding of tonnage."

"The representatives of the office then proceeded to draw up a plan which would include the best ideas of a great number of fruit growers and sellers interviewed, together with the experience of the shipping agencies, along with the experience of the marketing work in various parts of the country. In order that the office might assured that the plan would be acceptable to the shipping agencies of the northwest, it was thought wise to call these agencies into an executive conference at which time the tentative plans were explained in detail. This conference was attended at Spokane, Wash., by 17 of the shipping agencies in the four states, and a canvass of those present showed that they represented over 75 per cent of the Pacific northwest during the past year.

The following is the form of the contract submitted for consideration: "In consideration of the mutual advantages to be derived herefrom, it is agreed between the parties to this contract as follows:

"1. The grower shall have the exclusive right and authority to fix the price at which his products or any part thereof may be sold by the selling agent, in accordance with the fixed price which is higher than the best market price obtainable after offering the same, the selling agent shall in no wise be held responsible for failure to negotiate sales at such prices."

"2. It shall be the duty of the agent to cooperate with all growers' resident selling agents who are members of the Fruit Growers' Agency, Incorporated, for the following purposes:

"(a) To secure information as to crop conditions in order to determine the economic values of varieties and grades.

"(b) To work in close harmony with growers with the aim of securing uniform methods in the harvesting, grading, packing and the physical handling of the fruit from tree to car, and to secure a standardization and enforcement of the grading and inspection rules of the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

"(c) To agree upon a date after which no contracts for tonnage shall be entered into.

"(d) To discuss in conference market conditions and experiences with various mediums used in the markets for the purpose of obtaining the most efficient agencies and market outlets for the economical performance of their mutual contract.

"(e) To secure improved facilities in transportation and storage service and conditions.

"(f) To work out definite plans for the development of various domestic and Canadian markets, utilizing experienced men and the combined resources of the said agents."

"(g) To develop the following lines:

"(1) To conduct comprehensive market investigations for the purpose of knowing trade demands and making reliable trade connections.

"(2) To see that the fruit is properly packed for market so that it will stand in accordance with the best trade demands.

"(3) To supervise the physical handling of the fruit from tree to final destination and to secure adequate insurance, so that the hazards may be reduced.

"(4) To secure capable foreign agents to conduct sales abroad.

"(5) To expand old markets and develop new ones by direct contact and through the solicitation of special agents.

"(6) To devise ways and means to safeguard and secure prompt collections.

"(7) To secure adequate transportation facilities by underwriting steamship charters and promoting new fruit trade routes."

tation facilities by underwriting steamship charters and promoting new fruit trade routes."

"3. To pool proceeds of sales and share, pro rata, any loss sustained in the development of new markets according to the varieties and grades over definite periods, so that profits and losses therefrom may be equalized."

"(4) To secure the standardization of agents' accounting records, to the extent that all account books issued by the said shipping agencies will be figured on the same basis and in such manner that they will be uniform, allowing true comparisons to be made by the grower between the services rendered and prices secured by the different agencies."

"(5) To secure an annual audit of the sales records of the current season's business of said agents by firms of certified public accountants of recognized standing, the reports of these audits to be available to growers not later than one month prior to the closing of the contract period for the next season."

"(6) To make all possible legal and banking arrangements for the financing of the growers."

"(7) Advancements shall in no case be made in such manner as to pass title of the fruit."

LEGAL PUBLICATION

ORDINANCE NO. 180.

An ordinance creating the City Waterworks Department of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, and providing for the maintenance, extension and control thereof; creating the office of Waterworks Clerk, defining his duties and fixing his salary; creating the office of Waterworks Inspector, defining his duties and fixing his salary. Be it Ordained by the Mayor and Council of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho:

Section 1. That the business of operating, maintaining, improving and extending the waterworks, furnishing water to water users therefrom, and collecting rates for such use, shall be and the same is hereby made, a part of the duties of the City Government of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho.

Sec. 2. The rates to be paid for service from the City waterworks shall be the same in all instances as those now enforced by the Twin Falls Waterworks Company, which shall be paid monthly in advance.

Sec. 3. That there is hereby created the office of Waterworks Clerk, whose duties shall consist of notifying water users of the rates to be paid, receive money for the payment of such rates, keep complete and accurate records of the receipts and disbursements, and expenses of said department, and to notify the Waterworks Inspector as hereinafter provided of water users whose rates are not paid as required by ordinance.

Sec. 4. The salary of the Waterworks Clerk shall be the sum of fifty dollars per month.

Sec. 5. There is hereby created the office of Waterworks Inspector, whose duties shall be to oversee and supervise the repair, maintenance, extension and regulation of pressures of the City waterworks, turn off and turn on water as required and as notified by the Waterworks Clerk, to make such reports to the Waterworks Clerk concerning work done, expenses incurred, and other matters in connection therewith as are necessary to enable said Clerk to properly keep the records of said department.

Sec. 6. The Clerk shall notify by mail on or before the first of each calendar month all water users of the rates to be paid for the following month, and in the event such rates are not paid on or before the 10th day of such following month the said Clerk shall notify the Inspector of such failure, and said Inspector shall at once turn off the water of such users, and said water shall not be turned on again until such rates shall have been paid, and the Inspector shall have had a reasonable length of time for such purpose after receiving notice of such payment from the Clerk.

Sec. 7. The salary of the Waterworks Inspector shall be the sum of fifty dollars per month.

Section 8. The City Clerk of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, shall be the official Waterworks Clerk.

Sec. 9. The Street Commissioner of the City of Twin Falls, Idaho, shall be the official Waterworks Inspector. Passed by the Council this 27th day of March, 1916.

Approved by the Mayor this 27th day of March, 1916.

Daughter Dear:

Your long letter is here giving the comments on the proofs of my pictures. How am I to know which you want finished? Judging from your letter, you like them all the best! It's a situation quite like your racing with your brother when you were babies; you would always say "We beat both together." It seems you think each proof is a winner.

I'm glad you like the one with the ten-service on the little table at my side. You say it seems so real to you; reminding you of the time when you would come trooping home with your merry crowd after a tennis game. And it was real too; instead of pouring tea on the veranda at home, I was pouring tea at the Bixbee Studio. I was just handing a cup to Mrs. Bixbee when the picture was taken.

I will ask what a 12 by 20 picture will cost if made from that negative; it will not be more than I can afford, since you are so eager for it.

Lovingly,
MOTHER.

All members of Ascension church are expected to be present. A cordial invitation to all.

Next week the rector is to conduct a mission at Mountain Home. Bishop Funston of Idaho issued a pastoral call to all his clergy, requesting them to lead a mission some time before Easter. The bishop's hope is to extend the Master's kingdom by increasing its spirituality. His pastoral is as follows:

"Boise, Ida., Dec. 14, 1915.—Rev. and Dear Brother: I desire to write to you briefly to indicate my hearty approval of our clergymen of the district making arrangements for a preaching mission in their several fields, to take place either during the Epiphany or Lenten seasons. I would suggest that the keynote of the mission be the gospel of the kingdom, with a brief explanation of the position and teaching of the church."

"I would further suggest personal interviews in every field in which it seems probable that any individual can be brought to a willingness to confess Christ before men. I would further say that wherever a mission is invited to come and hold services, due provision must be made beforehand for his entertainment, and expenses, but in no case will I approve of any gifts or bonuses beyond reasonable expenses."

"I consider it an important feature of these missions to keep all suggestion of compensation or money raising out of the thoughts of the people. We must consider it a part of our work covered by our regular salaries, and not as a means of augmenting our income in the slightest degree. Let those who are invited to attend to be beforehand in a quiet, unobtrusive way. These thoughts may seem unnecessary, but the success of a mission depends to no small extent on just such things."

"As your bishop, I will say that I expect and desire every clergyman in this district to arrange for and have a mission. If one has not already been held by him.

"I wish you God's richest blessing in Christ Jesus and an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in your endeavor to promote the coming of His kingdom. Faithfully and affectionately,
"JAMES B. FUNSTON."

EXCELS IN EXCELLENCE ANY CAST SEEN IN PICTURES

Headed by William Farnum, the surpassing, $100,000 star lured from the silent stage by William Fox to head a number of notable feature releases, the cast which is engaged in the presentation of "A Soldier's Oath," at the Idaho Monday, and Tuesday evenings, is in itself exceptional; as usually, producers of motion picture content themselves by placing one big name at the head of a production and letting "fillets" do the rest. Not so with William Fox, however; this indefatigable manufacturer of the best the market affords upon the screen is not satisfied until he has secured himself of securing the finest of photoplays—the screen drama de luxe; until he has surrounded his star with a cast fully capable of bringing out the finest points and dramatic action of the photoplay to be made.

A SOLDIER'S OATH WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

In "A Soldier's Oath," which is from the pen of Daniel Roosevelt, a fighting relative of Bismarck Tumbo, Mr. Fox has been particularly careful to select to select an aggregation of actors and actresses capable of enhancing the lights and shades of this delightful and thrilling romantic drama of the screen.

Beside Mr. Farnum in his masterly portrayal of Pierre Duval, there appear that dainty and beloved heroine of the shadow stage, Miss Dorothy Bernard, as Margot, his young and charming wife; Lillian Thatcher, the famous Broadway favorite, as Duchess Dauberg, the stern and frowning dowager; Klitten Rolchert, the most charming child upon the spoken or silent stage, as Marie, daughter of Duval, at the age of five, and that well-known leading man, Henry J. Herbert as Lazarro, the treacherous correspondent.

"BIRTH OF A NATION" AT LAYING BETH THIRTS
The magnitude of David W. Griffith's feat in staging "The Birth of a Nation," which appears at the Laying theatre in this city next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is almost unparalleled. At least, to the devotees of the older forms of theatrical entertainment. Where now are the little groups of actors and actresses, the so-called "legitimate" drama? By comparison with the new art, the "legitimate" measure to the mountain like a molehill. Instead of scenery for his background, Griffith has used Nature. For subject he has covered 150 years of American life and history. Eighteen thousand people have done his bidding and in the hair-raising rides of the Ku Klux Klan 300 riders and horses sweep over the dusty roads.

No wonder that this magnificent historical spectacle is the talk of the country. It has established an entirely new art in the realm of the theatre—the art of pantomimic screen spectacles with an orchestral score perfectly synchronized to the action. It has also created a tremendous sensation because of its visual and more forceful treatment of the theme of Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman," which, both as book and play, created the greatest furor of the last decade. The great deeds of the civil war and the horrors of reconstruction are made to live again and the nation reborn is apotheosized. Mr. Griffith, pioneer among directors, managed this stupendous achievement without the aid of dialogue or speech, for motion pictures with music and effects tell vividly this thrilling tale of fifty years.

ORPHEUM PROMISES GOOD BILL.
The Orpheum promises the following for the last three days of the week:

The Orpheum bill for the last three days of this week includes Griff G. G. and Co., in refined novelty entitled "Hiawatha's Wooing," the feature of which is the Indian-impressionist Ed Kreyer, a noted xylophone player, is also on the bill for the three nights. Thursday and Friday, "Daring Game," a Triangle after the famous play of Dumas, is part of the program. On Saturday "Fido's Fate," a Triangle-Keystone comedy, is presented, also "The Cactus Blossom," featuring Anna Little. The Saturday bill closes with "Two Hearts and a Thief," a pleasing comedy drama.

NORTHFIELD RAID IS VIVIDLY RECALLED

J. C. Moore Tells Story of Famous Fight With Younger Boys.

DEATH OF COLE YOUNGER MAKES CITIZEN REMINISCENT

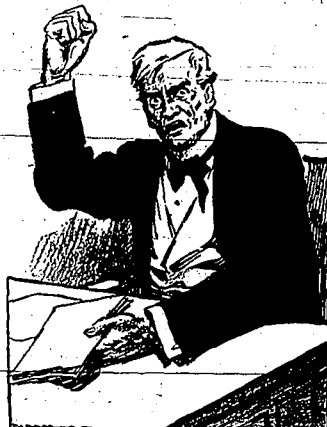

Saw Part of Gang on Way to Northfield. A. D. Crandall Played Notable Part in Battle.

"I saw four of the James-Younger gang that tried to rob the bank at Northfield, Minn., the day before they made the attempt, on September 1, 1876, and among the forces that they rode was the famous 'barbecue' horse, reputed to have been ridden by Joe James on that occasion," said J. C. Moore of this city, Monday, discussing the life of Cole Younger, which, with the story of his death, was published

In the Sunday edition of a Denver paper the day before. "I remember the capture of Madelia, 20 miles away," he continued, "and it may be of interest to people here to know that A. D. Crandall, who formerly ran a saloon in this city, was one of the 'immortal seven' as they were afterward called, who entered the battle to rescue the surrenderer of the wounded bandits. I also recall the trial, at which I was present for a short time and remember the opening declaration of the famous Bill Irwin, the great criminal lawyer, who defended the men when placed on trial at Fortmoun. He said that he supposed when retained that he would be called on to defend hardened criminals; whose faces showed that they were steeped in every crime, and was ashamed to find that he was called upon to plead for headless boys. "On the afternoon of the raid an attempted robbery, I was chopping wood near my father's barn, when four men passed on horseback. One 'backskin,' which I afterwards understood was regulation on the race track, was quite a noticeable animal. I spoke to my father about the men riding by, and he said that they were Texas cattlemen, as many from that state came to Minnesota in those days to purchase stock. We thought no more about the incident. I did not pay particular atten-

Steel Drags Drawn by Automobiles, Were Used on the Streets.

LIKE the Romans of old, the people of Buhl hope to command the surrounding country by a system of good roads extending in all directions from the center, the town being to make their city the capital of the largest possible territory. The movement began early in March, 1915, through the efforts of the B. C. Social club and the Buhl Y. M. C. A., and the first work was done March 11, when a large force of men commenced making improvements in the Turkey corner. There were 20 teams, besides many extra laborers employed on that occasion and 200 tons of rock were hauled into the low places and scraped in on it. On the following Tuesday, responding to a good road day proclamation of Mayor H. W. Horman, the business houses of the city closed and everybody turned out to "have the way" for a bigger, better and cleaner Buhl. On this occasion the road drags shown in the picture at the head of the column were brought into service. These streets were put in splendid condition by the united efforts of the people and all the rocks in the side streets, as well as in the main thoroughfare, were carefully removed. A general cleanup accompanied the street improvement and the accumulated trash of the winter was offered as a holocaust to the vernal goddess. Since that time work has gone on steadily and many men have been hired to help improve the roads by farmers who were too busy with their spring work to turn out personally. Many of the farmers in all directions have joined hands with the people and have dragged and graded the roads in front of their farms. The three graders and road drags used graded eight miles of road in three days. In the country they were pulled by engines secured by the Buhl Highway association. The road to Deep Creek and Castleford has been put in shape by Harry Smith and is now among the best in the county. Buhl has long taken an interest in good roads. The independent road district created some years ago has been managed by an enterprising commission. The present supplemental work has the full approval and cooperation of the board and promises to result in a great and permanent increase in the trade of the west-end city.

dice slowly sinking behind the horizon, when suddenly a line of golden fire runs along the edge of a purple cloud, lighting over the horizon. The sunbeams are very beautiful, too. Nature has three veils, a silver veil for the valley, a purple one for the hills and a blue one for the mountains. It seems to me that the mountains are one of the most beautiful works of Nature—always towering above us in their grandeur, majestic, awe-inspiring and awful in their sublimity; they show cupped peaks lifted high in the air with clouds resting on their heads by day and by night the moon flooding the scene with liquid silver. Amid the waiting and moaning of the pines and the mountain grasses you can hear the winds sweeping up the canyon hilling the beautiful flowers to sleep by its plaintive moans. Imagine a morning in the mountains—the snow peaks peering wistfully down at you from over the spiraling trees; the cool breath of the morning, pine-scented, chirping birds, the trembling—harmony of the quaking, and leaves, the presence of green things of the hills, the bloom of the wild flowers but it is wonderful how happy we should be, who can within a few hours reach such grandeur. Out here in the west where the wild things grow and the wild places call in a voice of soothing tenderness. Our joy should run over and inundate everything; should overflow from the banks and make the way places green; should bubble and effervesce. Would you change places with the city people for these beauties of nature? No, a thousand times no. There are people though, right here, who are no beauty in living things. Blue-Lakes, one of the most picturesque spots, to them is but a pile of rocks, and the falls. They admire every new shade in the styles, study the harmonious and perfect blending of colors in their attire, but pass by, a beautiful flower or a bit of magnificent scenery without ever seeing it, or perfectly clouding their eyes with it. We of Twin Falls are very highly favored. We have the distant mountains veiled in mystery for our background; then nearer hills, Lakes and Silver Lake, Blue-Lakes situated in the canyon of the Snake, guarded by the rugged, towering cliffs, representing to the imagination the ruins of little empires; now and then slender ribbon like falls hangs lightly from the brow of a sheer precipice or dash in foam down some rocky gulch. The two lakes, from which the place derives its name, lie in a sheltered nook. One could imagine a piece of the sky had dropped into them, they are so blue. Farther on coming from these lakes, is a beautiful little stream, clear as crystal, dotted here and there by moss-covered rocks and full of leucy trout; the narrow grade road winding down the cliff side; on one side a towering wall of rock; on the other a sheer drop of hundreds of feet; then a sudden turn in the road, when lo, before your astonished eyes, looms a mighty recess in the wall of rock and directly over this, towering and appalling, is a mighty waterfall under which you must pass as the road, snake like, winds round the sides of this opening or recess in the rocks, then the river and across to the ranch. Here while we admire every angle, and character, the mountain peaks and the Blue-Lakes, we also admire the man, who by his determination, pluck and grit, made it possible for us to enjoy all this; we admire his work—trees, in the very rocks bearing loads and loads of luscious fruit. Is this then nothing but a pile of rocks? Far from it. Nature, indeed, picturesque and beautiful, mingled with thrift, energy and pluck. Then we have the falls, the Niagara of the West, in all its wild

DECIDES IMPORTANT ARTESIAN WELL CASE

Evidence Not Convincing, In Verdict of Supreme Court.

DECISION OF JUDGE WALTERS IN DISTRICT COURT SUSTAINED.

Plaintiffs' Alleged Defendants' Artesian Well Tapped Flow of Their Wells—No Rights Adjudicated.

In the case of Al Jones and Henry Jones, plaintiffs and appellants, versus H. C. Vanuuden and others, involving the right to water from artesian wells, appealed from the Fourth Judicial District, Twin Falls county, the supreme court on Thursday handed down an opinion affirming and sustaining the decision of the lower court as to omit therefrom any judgment of the defendants' rights to the water flowing from their surface of the ground. The water was used for irrigation, stock and domestic purposes.

In 1910 the defendants and certain wells on a half section of land owned by them on the foothills about 18 miles south of Twin Falls in 1909. The wells, which were driven to a depth of 500 feet, yielded a flow of about 320 inches of water, which cascaded about 20 feet above the surface of the ground. The water was used for irrigation, stock and domestic purposes.

The Jones brothers drilled two wells on a half section of land owned by them on the foothills about 18 miles south of Twin Falls in 1909. The wells, which were driven to a depth of 500 feet, yielded a flow of about 320 inches of water, which cascaded about 20 feet above the surface of the ground. The water was used for irrigation, stock and domestic purposes.

The Jones brothers asked for judgment against the defendants requiring them to cease diverting the water. The case was tried before Judge Walters without a jury and judgment was entered in favor of the defendants, directing to them the right to use all the water flowing from their wells.

The supreme court holds that the evidence in this case supports the finding of the lower court to the effect that there was insufficient evidence to show the existence of an underground water right between the plaintiffs and defendants. Inasmuch as this was not shown, the lower court was not required to adjudicate the rights of either of the parties to the use of subterranean waters. Costs are awarded to the respondents.—Idaho Statesman.

Attorney Ostrom Urged For Probate Judge. The county commissioners will hold a meeting Saturday to look after some matters of detail in the county business and will likely make into consideration the probate judgeship. It was learned today that the report referred to by Chairman Carlson in the Tuesday issue of this paper, to the effect that A. W. Ostrom of Buhl might be in the field, was correct, a petition now being circulated in his behalf. Mr. Ostrom is a member of the law firm of Ostrom & Green of Buhl, and, besides being competent, is an officer in the Buhl Wilson club.

Nature. Fortunate are they who love Nature and enjoy it; who can go out into the solitude of the prairie, sea, desert or forest and in each and every place see and appreciate the wonderful work of the Almighty. There is no more beautiful sight—the sun and moon of indescribable perfume of a clean, wet world; untellable beauty of the water-washed grass and foliage. Look at it in the new dawn; wonder then the rainbow that generally follows—the matchless bow of promise arching from one end of the smiling world clear across to the other; and sometimes its ends there is no sky-room for the whole arch, so Mother Earth lays part of the band of glory stream out on her lap like the ends of a mammoth sash; and away in the opposite sky, the heavens still hold their inkly reminder of their recent frowning. Then there are the sunsets. Who does not admire them? A beautiful gorgeous tinting, the great crimson

Cottolene

The Natural Shortening

Foods cooked with Cottolene come to the table with their natural goodness improved with a better flavor. Biscuits shortened with it delight by their taste, their lightness, their whiteness and their wholesomeness. Pie crust shortened with Cottolene has that flaky goodness which perfects the whole pie. All foods fried in it are better-tasting and digestible because Cottolene does not soak into them. There is no substitute for Cottolene—nothing "just as good." Try Cottolene—try it in your biscuits, for example, then in your other cooking. Arrange with your grocer for a regular supply. It is packed in pails of various sizes.

TALKS ON THIEF

WASTING A SHEET OF PAPER.

In the practice of economy there must be reason and due regard to rational values, for the saving of a few bits there may be the wasting of much. For instance, a certain bank president drawing a costly salary, spends a great deal of time cutting vouchers for use as scratch paper. He is wasting his time for if he is worthy of being president of a bank, his brain should be of as much greater worth than the paper value he is trying to save that he is penny wise and pound foolish. He should be thinking out the problems of his bank, not trying to save it a few sheets of paper. On the other hand, it would be good economy for a large department store, burning hundreds of lights daily, to pay a man ten dollars a week to watch for needless waste of light and turn out the lights at night.

A certain man dropped a nickel at a railroad station. In his endeavor to find it, he lost his train, lost his temper, missed a business engagement, that held up four other men and caused confusion all around, and had to spend the evening in jail. He lost the engagement for his late arrival. That was poor economy.

The point to be emphasized in all such situations is to be prompt upon the individual who wastes that if all were to do as he does, the loss would be enormous; and if all were to do as he should, the saving would be great. We are all careless and thoughtless. Wastefulness is burning when they do no one any good. We leave the water running, forgetting that the meter is on its job all the time, and every turn of the wheel means money wasted, and if not used as "it is meant to be used," it is included in the "run" — yes, but the landlord has probably figured that out when he fixed the meter. You pay for it for every hour you burn a useless light, or let the water run to waste.

A certain school teacher, while awake during these things upon her pupils, got her great chance one day. A little girl made a few figures on a sheet of paper and showed them. The teacher asked why she wanted that sheet of paper, and the pupil replied that "it was only a sheet of paper, and it was headed by the name of the board of education free." Calling the class to order, she asked them to take out their pads and count the number of sheets. Then she told them what the pad cost and asked them to calculate the cost of one sheet—a fraction of a fraction of a cent. She then told them how one pupil attended the schools of the city on an average of 180 days a year and asked them to figure the cost if each pupil wasted but one sheet a day. The result was a surprise.

It's not the cost of a single sheet of paper, but a single hour of waste, that makes a match a cent or two, that counts—it's the cumulative totals that make the astonishing losses. There is such a thing as being mean and miserly with yourself, saving only enough to keep body and soul together, wearing clothes until they are worn out of patches and living a life of strict denial to all the bodily comforts. That is not the point; you ought to live well, dress decently and have amusements, but be careful in your wasting, lest you be one of a great army, wasting it may be but a match a day, but if a million men are doing the same thing, we burn up a lot of wood to no useful purpose. Light your pipe with one match!

DOESN'T WANT THE JOB.

Ruhl Pioneer: Can you beat this? H. Rosenberry claims the record in this district, he having hatched eleven chicks out of a setting of thirteen eggs on Wednesday, January 13, 1916. Nope, you can't beat it. He can keep the record and is welcome to it. Fancy setting on thirteen eggs for three weeks in zero weather. Nix on that stuff. The job belongs to an incubator, not an old hen, anyway.—Caldwell Enterprise.

AN AD MAN'S STORY.

During a contention of ad writers held in Chicago someone told the following:
A man entered a shop one cold day and bought a woman muffler. When he opened the muffler he found inside the photograph of a beautiful girl, with a note couched in these terms: "If you are single, please write to me."

A name and address followed, and the man smiled. He was single. He placed the photo on his library table. In a week he had fallen in love with the picture of the beautiful girl. So he wrote to her.
"A week passed, during which the bachelor was in a fever of impatience. Finally he received this terrific blow in the shape of a letter:
"Dear Sir: The Mary Jones to whom you write says my grandmother, she died nine years ago, aged eighty-seven. Yours truly."
Upon investigating this strange case, the broken-hearted bachelor discovered that he had purchased the muffler from a dealer who did not advertise.

NEW ORGANIZATION PLAN FOR SCHOOLS

Board Adopts System Centralizing Authority.

SUPERVISOR OF ELEMENTARY EDUCATION IS SELECTED.

Changed System Will Result in Saving of $1900 a Year and Will Produce Educational Uniformity.

With a view of simplifying the control of the grade schools, of bringing about uniformity of method and management, of meeting conditions resulting from the erection of a new school and of cutting down expenses, the Twin Falls board of education has adopted the recommendation of Superintendent Hal G. Blue that a supervisor of elementary work be created, who will have charge of all the grade schools, and that the routine and clerical work of each building be left to the principal of such building, who will, at the same time, be able to devote a great part of the school day to teaching. In addition to the greater efficiency which it is hoped will result from this change, it is believed that there will be a net saving of $1900 a year to the district. Miss Elizabeth M. Shetwell, for several years principal of the Lincoln school, has been tendered the position of supervisor of elementary education. Speaking of the system yesterday, Superintendent Blue said: "In regular session, the board of education voted to make a change in the plan of organization pertaining to the elementary grades of the Twin Falls schools. The plan of elementary organization that now prevails in the local schools is that wherein the supervision of instruction in any elementary grade building is given over to the building principal, who is also the administrative head of the building."

"The new plan of elementary organization will place the work of supervising teachers and improving instruction results in the entire elementary system in charge of one individual, while the clerical work and routine management of each grade building will be placed in charge of a principal, who will devote the greater part of each day to teaching. In addition to her teaching, the building principal will have definite office hours during the school day when she can meet pupils, parents or wagon drivers, take up matters of discipline, handle problems relative to the management of the building, and look to other routine and clerical details that pertain to her office. The organization in the building will be such that the principal will have charge of no room, but will meet her classes in a room used only for the purpose of recitation. Should any matter arise that would need the immediate attention of the principal, she can send her pupils to their room, while she will be free to devote herself to the problem at hand. The building principal will have nothing to do with the supervision of teaching or, problems pertaining to the improvement of instruction results. "The Bickel school has been in charge of a principal whose time has been devoted to the supervision of the teaching in the building and also problems of management of the building. This has been equally true with the Lincoln school."

"The thing which made it essential that the board plan to reorganize the supervision work in the elementary grades was the fact that during the summer an additional elementary school will be constructed. It is estimated that the new elementary school will be a smaller unit than any of the present elementary schools."

"The matter of cost entered into the plan of reorganization to some extent. School boards and administrators throughout the land are giving proper emphasis and attention to the economic factor in education. This is not done for the purpose of stinting or limiting educational opportunities for boys and girls, but rather for the purpose of securing value-investments. With the addition of the new elementary school, the supervisory cost of the elementary grades for the next school year would amount to approximately $3800. Now, it would be impossible to invest this $3800 in the improvement of instruction. This is because of the fact that the building principal is necessarily required to devote a good share of her time to routine matters of building management and to a certain amount of clerical work that must be accomplished in each building to give definiteness and system to the organization of the schools. This makes it evident that of the $3800 invested particularly for the improvement of instruction results a large portion of it would be invested in clerical work and problems of routine relative to building management. It is at this point that the factor of economy becomes imminent. It cannot be ignored. It is not a good economic policy to divert money intended to be used for the purpose of improving teaching results into channels that lead into ordinary clerical work and building management."

"Under the new organization, the building principal will receive an additional salary because of the extra work that he or she will have to do. The extra salary will be in addition to the regular teaching salary. It is thought that the extra cost for the three elementary buildings will be in the neighborhood of $300. The salary of the supervisor of elementary grades will be $4000, or $1600 more than the salary of a building principal. This will make the cost of supervision of teaching and building management of the entire elementary system approximately $1900. Thus a saving of 50 per cent will be effected under the new plan of organization without in any sense deteriorating the work of the schools or lowering the opportunity for growth and development for all children enrolled. If the factor of efficiency is disturbed by any such action, the organization will raise it to a higher level."

"Another factor considered in the plan for reorganization touches the field of educational science. Under the present plan of organization, whereby the building principal is the supervisor of instruction, there will be many personal and individual supervisory problems and instructional results as there are building principal in the system. This means that the building principal is required to devote a large portion of each day to problems of building management. One can clearly see the educational disadvantage that results from a type of organization that brings one individual to the field of supervision and teaching. Here the supervisor would have to make the teaching needs of the entire system. He would be relieved of all responsibility of building management and clerical work, and would be free to devote his time to the day-to-day routine problems of the building and office and would, therefore, have the opportunity of devoting all his thought and skill and energy to the one aim—improvement of the results of instruction. This in itself involves a definite and distinctive principle of education. Under this plan of organization, the supervisor of elementary grades, the principal of the high school and the superintendent of schools would co-operate with the view of determining what ideals and aims shall unify and vitalize instruction throughout the entire system. In that it clarifies aims and ideals relative to administrative policies and hastens their realization, in that it creates uniform measures of achievement, and in that it stimulates and regards individual initiative."

"The new type of organization is distinctly advantageous, in that it relieves the supervisor of instruction of all the narrowing duties of building management; in that it produces co-ordination and continuity throughout the entire system; in that it clarifies aims and ideals relative to administrative policies and hastens their realization; in that it creates uniform measures of achievement; and in that it stimulates and regards individual initiative. "The board of education has invited Miss Elizabeth M. Shetwell to accept this new position of supervisor of elementary grades. Miss Shetwell has been principal of the Lincoln school for several years and is thoroughly acquainted with the educational needs relative to this community. In her work as principal of the Lincoln school she has achieved a splendid success. In her work as supervisor of elementary grades, the fine influence she has given to the Lincoln school would become a valuable asset of the entire system. The tender of this important position to Miss Shetwell is a splendid recognition of her very efficient work, as well as a belief in her ability to meet all of the requirements involved in the position. "The board has invited Miss Shetwell to accept this position. Miss Taylor, who has been principal of the Bickel school for the last two years, to accept a position in the department of English of the high school. In addition to her work at Drake university, where she received her Bachelor's degree, Miss Taylor has done some special work at the University of Chicago and the University of Missouri. Before leaving Drake university, Miss Taylor conducted some classes in the academic department. She has been most successful in her work at the Bickel school. Miss Taylor's work as supervisor of the elementary grades at the Bickel school has given her a broad knowledge of educational problems affecting grades below the high school. With the experience gained in teaching in the academic department of Drake university, will give her a splendid preparation for work in the high school. "The superintendent of schools will be glad at any time to discuss the plan of organization with any person who may be interested in the matter. He will be very glad to go into every feature of the situation from the standpoint of educational principle, and from the standpoint of economy. He will be very glad to set aside time for personal conferences with anyone who may desire to come to his office for the purpose of learning more relative to the plan. He can be reached by telephone or letter at any time. In case any person is unable to come for personal conference, he will be very glad to clear up such problems by personal letter. The board of education and the superintendent of schools have the interests of the entire system at heart. Under no circumstances would they promote any policy that would deteriorate the work of the schools in any way. Rather, they seek at all times to adopt such measures that will promote the best interests of the schools and maintain a high standard of efficiency."

ROGERSON

Mrs. Edna Deener and Mrs. W. R. McMillan have returned from a sojourn in Southern California, whither they went in January.

O. D. Vanderbark has returned from a visit to Cleveland, Ohio; where he went to attend the funeral of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Purdy are here at their home again, after a winter in Seattle, Wash., with the result that Mr. Purdy's health is greatly improved.

Mrs. Edward Askew is in Twin Falls for an operation, and was a daughter, who is suffering from tonsillitis.

Neil McKay was in Twin Falls last week.

Mrs. E. Duncan went to Twin Falls on the 27th for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McKewen of Twin Falls have purchased and moved onto a ranch three miles west of Rogerson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Russell and Miss Millicent Middleton went to Twin Falls on Saturday, returning Sunday.

A. C. McQuitty spent Saturday till noon in Seattle, Wash., with the result that Mr. Purdy's health is greatly improved.

Friends here were sorry to hear of the death of W. H. Smith in Twin Falls.

J. B. Steele returned Monday from a visit to his former home in Missouri.

Charles Harrell left Monday for Hansen and Rock Creek, where he will probably make a sale of his large ranch holdings.

On Sunday, March 12, the Rogerson church was dedicated by Rev. Dr. J. H. Barton of Boise, state superintendent of home missions. Rev. J. D. Smith of Twin Falls presided on Sunday and presided over the annual congregational meeting at which reports were made as to all the divisions of the church, showing a prosperous condition in every department. At the same meeting the congregation authorized the purchase and improvement of a new parsonage for the church. At the evening service two members came in on confession of faith.

Sunday and Monday a domestic runoff of water was sent through the lateral of the Salmon tract around here, which will be a great benefit to the planters, who are now busy with their spring seeding.

C. H. Helay of Thresh Creek, who was killed by a fire from a gasoline lamp exploding in his hands, late in January, is able to go about on crutches now, and it is expected that he will completely regain his former strength.

W. F. Helay reports that his mother, in Orem, Utah, is slowly sinking, without any hopes of her recovery.

H. H. Dickinson, D.D.S., spent a few hours recently with a view to locating here to practice his profession.

ASSISTANT TESTERS APPOINTED. E. J. Haxby, who was recently appointed to superintendent of advanced dairy registry in this county by Professor E. V. Ellington of the state university, has been reinforced by the appointment of Thomas Irwin, Wendell Lamoreaux and Max Meszar Rydelsky and Irwin Sweet, who will assist him in his duties. In this county will be enabled to have tests made at comparatively small cost as a result.

MRS. G. W. HOOVER DIES AT HOME. Mrs. George W. Hoover died at her home in this city at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday morning, after an illness of about three weeks. Mrs. Hoover, whose maiden name was Clara Gerard, married Mr. Hoover in this city on Christmas day. She was 22 years of age and her death is deeply regretted by the many friends whom she had made in this city. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence, 506 Third avenue east.

DAN CONNER NOT GOING ACROSS COUNTRY IN PRAIRIE SCHOONER. Deputy Sheriff Dan Conner says the someone handed a package to a west-end journalist whom he was told that the officer intended to resign and take a trip in a covered wagon. Conner says the package expected to resign now and may take a trip, but as he was an auto, and as trains are handy, he will probably cut the ox wagon.

Buy Early

The effect of the great war on men's clothing will be felt this spring—still more next fall.

We retailers have had to buy with greater care and discrimination than ever, to protect our customers against poor fabrics.

That's why we appreciate having a line of medium-priced clothes for men and young men that is absolutely dependable. Clothcraft.

Every piece of cloth that enters the factory is tested mechanically to determine its strength and chemically to prove its ingredients. This is but the first of a long series of safeguards that protect Clothcraft values.

But don't wait too long, there'll be greater demand than ever this spring for nationally known values like Clothcraft.
