

ROAD HEADS DRAFT REFUSAL

MAGNATES FIRM AGAINST ALLOW-ING EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

WASHINGTON—President Wilson appealed Monday to each of the executives of the country's principal railroads to support his administration's plan for averting the threatened disaster of a nationwide strike. He emphasized the necessity for keeping the country's most important arteries of the national defense and to make arrangements for meeting conditions that will exist after the European war.

On leaving the White House, the railroad presidents, augmented during the week by the heads of the nation's field conferences at which sentiment was added to the president's appeal, were asked to agree to the president's appeal.

Hope was expressed, however, that some satisfactory counter proposition might be advanced. It was decided to draft a final reply to the president.

The railroad heads still insist that the government has no right to require sacrifice of the principle of arbitration.

Ellisha Lee, chairman of national conference committee of railways, issued a said: "The railroad railroads should' grant us under threat of a national strike, a $50,000,000 wage preference to a small minority of their employees, without any consideration of the conditions. It is inconceivable in a democracy like ours. All questions at issue—wages, working conditions, and conditions—are submerged by the greater issue. Shall arbitration be abandoned in the settlement of industrial disputes?"

Although a few of the railroad executives invited had not arrived Monday afternoon, it was decided that those already in Washington, were to be given the floor. The first speaker, an ident called them to the White House and earnestly urged that his plan of arbitration be ratified. The president said:

"I will not allow passion to come in to my thoughts in this solemn matter. We are both acting 'as trustees' of a great interests. I am willing to allow this matter to go to the great American people and let them assume the responsibility. The probability of failure will not rest with me."

"I wish you to consider the consequences as affecting the people of the cities and countryside of a failure to agree. The country cannot live if the means of keeping alive its vitality are interfered with."

JUVENILE MURDERERS.

Two boys, ages eleven and twelve years, will be given a hearing this week before Judge A. W. Ostrom, it is assumed, on the charge of wilful murder. Should it be proven that there is reason to believe that the crime of murder was committed, that the boys were in full possession of their faculties, and did it deliberately and with malice, albeit thought, they will, assuming this to be the charge, be placed on trial for their lives. Whether they are guilty or not under the technical terms of the law, considering all the circumstances, remains to be seen. If they are charged with murder and the jury finds them guilty, their age will be no bar to the most severe punishment meted out under the laws of the state. If found guilty of murder in the first degree, the penalty is death; if in the second or other degrees, confinement in the penitentiary. No fault can be found with either magistrate, judge or jury for doing all that the law requires and any comment would be improper that would attempt to insinuate anything in regard to what should be done in any pending case.

But the law itself may be discussed in its general aspects, and they are far from favorable. Any law that fails to recognize any difference in the cases of a boy of eleven and a grown man, is apt to be an unwise law.

The boys were evidently victims of two great forces, environment and heredity. Their environment can be judged from the fact that their mother has left them in the care of a stepfather and has taken no steps to keep track of them. The step father appears a little better in the story, but not much. That they inherited some of the tendencies of their mother is certain; perhaps had they been raised in a different atmosphere, the very tendencies that proved potent for evil would have proven potent for good. Their neighbors were not blameless. When a small boy grabs a gun and tries to kill his playmates, as has been reported, his case should be reported to the proper authorities and attended to promptly. Lastly, society is to blame. It is to blame for not watching more closely children whose tendencies, when in improper environment, lead to crime. Those tendencies can not be changed. The environment can. The people of the state of Idaho are to blame for not having some place to send youthful offenders, which will make them better and not worse. In most states there is a reform school for juveniles, a reformatory for older criminal youths and only those of full age are sent to the state prison, even for killing fellow beings.

After all, this in most cases makes little real difference. The penitentiary is generally only a university of crime; the reformatory the college; and the reform school the high school. Those who go to the first, in many states, usually finish their education. The proper care for abnormal youth is one of the greatest problems of the age, and one that is least attended to, because its solution is left to people who are grown up themselves, and who are callous to all things not directly concerning themselves. The adult, not one, but all, are to blame for this horrible state of affairs, and while God, in His infinite mercy, will doubtless find reason for pardoning such children as these, the only hope of the voters, both men and women, who fail to act, is to be found in the parable of the camel and the needle's eye.

The activities of a sub-squad in any particular case will do little good. The causes for juvenile crime are fundamental. The laws in some states for the care of such cases are the disgrace of an enlightened civilization.

Dr. Brady in his "Health Talks" to the Statesman demolishes the ancient "Early to bed and early to rise" proverb, and says, "Lie late if you would really be healthy, wealthy and wise." How about those who lie all the time, both late and early?

The Theatres

Miss Enid Markey
Who appeared in "The Iron Strain," "Alone On," "Between Men," "The Conqueror," and "The No-Good Guy," is Frank Keenan's leading lady in the newest Triangle feature, "The Phantom," at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday, one evening only.

AMERICAN STYLES THE THING SAYS JOSE COLLINS

Jose Collins, presented in the splendid feature picture "A Woman's Honor," which will be seen at the Isis Wednesday and Thursday, is an Englishman as can be seen, but she has the American girl's idea of independence in style. Her natural beauty and chic make her an ideal fashion model. As soon as it is announced that Miss Collins has been engaged as the star of a musical comedy, modesties from all over the country send requests by wire or special delivery mail requesting the honor of clothing her in her new part. They know that she will be a greater advertisement than space bought in newspapers or magazines.

Up to the outbreak of the world war Miss Collins was forced to wear Paris gowns. In vain she besought the specialty shops to have their own designers build her gowns. The answer was always the same: "Oh, no, Miss Collins; anyone with your reputation and standing on the stage cannot afford to wear anything but French fashions."

In the fall of 1914, when Miss Collins went to the modiste's to buy her new gowns, she was amazed to have the proprietress of the establishment approach her in great distress. "Will you do about your gowns, Miss Collins?" she inquired. "We can't get the Paris models."

"Think goodness," was the unexpected retort. "At last I'm going to have something to say about my own clothes. And this is it: From now on my clothes are going to be American from hook to hem. This Paris business is like a superstition—it has no foundation, no reason for being; it is a superstition, a prejudice, a desire to do what others have done before you."

LIQUOR CAMPAIGN

TACTICS EXPOSED

ver dollars clinking together and when the call for prohibition voters was made at the end of the entire person in the audience arose. Applying this to the state of Idaho, Mr. Wells said that the brewery men themselves were better off under the old wet regime. The Coast d'Alene brewers turned into a champagne factory. The Nampa brewery was making non-intoxicating beverages, the Boise Brewery company was producing the Idaho Produce & Fruit company. All were employing more men than when they were making beer. Not only that but the number of arrests for crime had materially decreased and with them the court costs involved in prosecutions. The number of men sent to the penitentiary for the first six months under prohibition had decreased to nearly one-half what it was under the wet regime for a similar period. In response to the statement that prohibition had failed in the southern states and in the dry states of the liquor interests of the north, he produced copies of letters and telegrams from governors and mayors denying the statement, and asked the people to take the word of these men against the word of the bootlegger.

He ridiculed the statement that as much liquor could be sold under prohibition as under license laws which permit the importation of booze by the train load. Mr. Wells censured the good citizens who would not actively assist in securing evidence for the prosecution of bootleggers. He said that three men in Twin Falls had told him Saturday that they had some idea of how the law was being violated but would not consent to give evidence or to let their names be known. In Lewiston seventeen business men and church members had helped him get evidence that the law was being violated and then all went out of town before the matter could be brought to a head and remained away until the thing was over. In Boise under the new administration every dry policeman had been discharged and wet men had been put on. A policeman had "tipped off" a local bootlegger when a raid was expected and within two hours after the raid was made and proved futile, the bootlegger was seen walking around with his gun. He denounced the forces behind the new Boise administration and said that 500 of the 523 majority in the city had been of assistance. Mayor Robinson was colonized. The new administration had promised to make the town as dry as the outcome one but failed. When a big of the leaders of the recent movement with their official court records was brought to the Statesman for publication, she refused it as a paid advertisement. He said that the bootleggers about Mayor Robinson throughout the campaign. Mr. Wells made a stirring appeal for everyone to get behind the sheriff and prosecuting attorney and put the bootleggers behind the bars, to watch for colonization, to stay with the campaign until election time.

A subscription collection for the cause was taken at the end of the meeting.

HILL SAYS EIGHT-HOUR DAY

MEANS MANY RECEIVERS
ST. PAUL, Minn.—Louis Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad company Friday night said that railroad in common with other railroads of the northwest would never accept the eight-hour day principle as its adoption would mean receivership for the big railroads of the country. Whatever the outcome of the conference at Washington, in which the Great Northern heads have not participated, his road would not accept the principle, Mr. Hill said, even though it had to "stand out alone against it."

THE MUTUAL GIRL AND HER AUNTIE

LUCILLE: Aunt, don't you think it is about time that we were putting in our supply of winter coal?

AUNTIE: I was thinking about that just yesterday, dear, and am glad you reminded me. You know it is always best to get one's coal during the summer, for you are then sure to get good service and besides the prices are lower.

LUCILLE: Let's try Nye brother's coal again, auntie, for you know we had so much satisfaction from the last lot we ordered. I understand they have a new brand of coal now called "HI-HEAT", the first of its kind in Twin Falls, and a number of friends, with whom I have talked, highly recommend it. Mrs. Redding was telling me the other day that the trial load of "HI-HEAT" coal they ordered pleased them so well that they were going to put in a supply of it for winter. It is new coal in this territory, and the Nye brothers feel fortunate in being able to secure the agency. Mr. Redding says that "HI-HEAT" coal costs no more than other brands of coal, and trial has shown it to have many superior qualities. Less of it goes farther, he says, and it makes a hotter flame with LESS SOOT.

AUNTIE: Call them up right away, Lucille, and put in an order. We can't afford to lose this opportunity to get our supply.

MORAL: IT PAYS TO GET THE RIGHT KIND OF COAL, AT THE RIGHT TIME, AND FROM THE RIGHT DEALERS.

SCHOOL MATTERS ARE STIRRING IN FILER

Board Will Open School September Fourth—High School Session Called For Thursday.

The school board has decided that school will open on September 4, says the Filer Journal. This is about a week earlier than school opened last year. The change is necessitated by the fact that the teachers' institute is to be held at an earlier date. It is also desired to have school well under way by the time the county fair opens. The school will have an important part in this affair and the board has thought it wise to disperse school altogether during the three days when there would be a conflict. A historical pageant is being planned for the school, which will be given on children's day of the fair. The election on the rural high school proposition has been called for Thursday, the 24th of August. This election will be held in each of the six districts adjacent at the school house from 1:00 to 3:00 p. m.

Residents living west of town report that innumerable tourists going through on the Idaho state highway, continue straight west without turning north into Filer on Yakima avenue. The road is comparatively good on the county road running west of town and end of Yakima and tourists are not aware that they should turn north until they find themselves out in Washington district, two miles off the road. An inexpensive sign placed at the end of Yakima, by some enterprising business house or the commercial club, would greatly benefit the town and the tourists.

The relatives of Mrs. M. B. Ripley gave a birthday party in her honor last Sunday night. The most delightful evening was spent in music, cards, etc. Refreshments were also served. Those present were: M. G. Ripley and wife of Twin Falls, Dr. Wyatt and family of Buhl, J. E. Wyatt and family of St. Louis, Geo. Davis and family, L. O.

TALKS ON THRIFT.

OUR CRIMINAL WASTE OF FOOD.

When a calamity such as the San Francisco earthquake, the Danes flood or the sinking of the Titanic occurs, the world stands aghast at the frightful waste of life and property as measured in dollars and cents and then the whole world pines the penalty. But these happenings cannot be averted. They are costly but infrequent—part of the price of our modern civilization, and constitute but a small fraction of the waste cost of the world.

We wouldn't have a forest fire, by, but we would have the lumber that comes out of it. Nations do not waste their big things willingly. Only a great war can ever bring a nation to the point of destroying life and property recklessly, as part of the game. But there is a waste that is going on constantly that is more costly than war, as costly as war may be; for war accomplishes something—at least it settles a quarrel. The waste we refer to is the waste of little things, for these in the aggregate prove as costly, although less noticeable, than the waste of large sums.

While little indulgences, such as drinking, smoking, candy and sodas, are not particularly waste, they are not profitable expenditures. They get us nowhere and do no particular good. But even passing these as permissible, the most inexcusable waste is in the line of food. It is not what comes in the front door, particularly, that counts, but what goes out of the kitchen.

The total cost of food in this country cannot be even approximated, but eminent authorities place a dollar a day as a fair average for the food value of the American people. This means a cost of about $5,200,000,000 each year. So eminent an authority as Doctor Wiley estimates that at least one-quarter of this is wasted. And this is entirely possible. Notice as you dine at restaurants how much untouched food goes back to the kitchen—not to feed some poorer mortal, but to go out in the garbage. It seems so perfectly natural for some people to merely play with a dinner, standing choice cuts of meats and fowls back to the garbage can. We waste more than we eat. If the doctor is right, this means a food waste of $1,200,000,000 a year and the pity is it does not one any good—not even the pigs, for they would thrive better on a less costly diet. One large country house a few years ago lost most of its herd of 300 hogs from feeding "swill" swill. This food, if conserved, would feed all the hogs it would build two battleships. It would buy all the land to some states. It would pay off the national debt in a single year. It would run the government for twelve months.

The waste of money cures itself, for soon there is no more to waste. The same is true when the bank runs dry and the easy money flows no more. But this frightful waste of food can go on for years without end, and we wonder why living costs so high.

It takes four years to raise a port-carhouse steak, and to send half of it back to the kitchen is an economic crime. If you waste a forkful, soon that last tree will be cut, if you waste land it will soon be barren. If you waste this you will never succeed. If you waste money, you will soon have no more to waste, but you can keep no wasting food, until you eat no more, and wonder why you are poor. Better take inventory of what goes out in the garbage bucket and see how much you contribute towards this enormous sum, so big is the proportion that we fail to grasp the magnitude.

YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS COME MIT GRUESOME MURDER

them. They did not resist. The parents of the boys lived in the South Park addition to Twin Falls last winter and they went to school here. They at once recognized Mr. Ormsby as probation officer. They at first denied complicity with the murder, but shortly afterwards broke into tears and confessed that they were guilty. Later

I am a law graduate of Michigan University and have had over ten years' general practice in the law. The probate judge has jurisdiction of important matters in addition to the settlement of estates and in many states is required to be a lawyer. On that theory I am a candidate for the office of probate judge at the Republican primary on September 21st. I have also had several years' successful experience as superintendent of graded schools, which should be of great assistance in handling the delinquency court work that comes before the probate judge. If nominated and elected, you shall have my best service.

H. E. POWERS.

they repeated the confession to Sheriff Kendall and County Attorney Davies. Among the trifles found on the rig were a gun and watch that did not belong to the murdered man. They claimed that they found these on the road, but later told Sheriff Kendall that they robbed a house near Dwyer's ferry. They said that when they went back to the Hamill ranch before the killing, they intended to steal the horse and drive to the home of their grandfather, W. M. Retherford, of Lebanon, Ore.

The body of Hamill lay where he fell until Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, when C. C. Vance, who has charge of a sheep ranch nearby, came to the cabin to inquire if any stray sheep had been seen. He at once went to Rogerson and reported, getting there a few hours after the boys passed through. Coroner C. J. Crosby was at once notified that the body of a dead man had been found and left for the scene. Sheriff Kendall and Deputy Sheriff Herriman were both in the Shoshone basin serving papers and looking up matters connected with their office, and were within four miles of the cabin at one time, though they were not aware of what had taken place. They did not arrive in Twin Falls until late on Thursday night and were not informed in regard to the fact that a dead body had been found until Friday morning. The appearance of the body as Coroner Crosby found it was such that a superficial examination led him to believe that it was possible that the man had been thrown from a horse and it was not until a medical examination was held that it was finally determined that he had been murdered. Sheriff Kendall and Deputy Sheriff Herriman at once left for the scene. They struck the canyon trail and followed it on foot for about thirty miles over impassable roads and canyons until they arrived at San Jacinto, at which place they learned that the boys had been seen, and tracked it back to the Bridge ranch, where they were informed that the vehicle had gone east. This threw them off the trail. Sheriff Kendall, accompanied by Perry Moon of Twin Falls, took one direction and Deputy Herriman and Don McCloud of Rogerson took another. Singularly enough, although the boys had been seen, fixed in Rogerson, nobody has been found who saw them there. The sheriff had again caught the trail, when the boys were captured at Dubul.

The coroner's inquest was held yesterday afternoon. Probation Officer

Ormsby had engaged counsel to look after the rights of the boys. C. C. Vance told with great care of finding the body doubled up with feet underneath and hands doubled. He thought that the skull had been crushed. He said that he had met a man while going to Rogerson to warn the officials and that the stranger had promised to go back with him and the body had not done so. He thought the wound in the head of Hamill might have been made by a soft nosed bullet.

Mrs. W. C. Smith proved the most interesting witness. She said that the boys came to her grandmother's place Monday. They remained for a short time and then left, returning about 5 o'clock. When they came back they went with her little boy to the creek to fish. They stayed all night and again fished in the morning. Late in the morning a shot was heard near the creek and she told her little boy to come home as it was dangerous. The other boys stayed by the creek. About 11 o'clock Hamill arrived with the dog and asked if it belonged to the Smiths. The visitors said "No, it's our dog." Then Hamill accused them of stealing his gun, fishing tackle and provisions, mentioning in particular a can of condensed milk. He then told the boys they must hand over his stolen stuff and they consented. Her grandmother then told them not to come back. The pistol which they fired was found on the bank at that time and Hamill recognized it as belonging to Frank Phillips, another neighbor. Hamill said that the boys had thrown the contents of his vital rattlesnake medicine into the tea kettle and had taken the needle from the hypodermic syringe used to inject the medicine after a snake bite. Then Hamill returned and said that the boys had given him the slip. He talked about what should be done, and said that he had with him some machine which he failed to leave when there. He borrowed a can of evaporated milk to take the place of what he had lost. On leaving he remarked that the boys had told him that they had left a note that they had stolen at the end of a log near the Smith home, and asked over to the log indicated he found it, and held it up as he was bidding them goodbye. That was the last she had seen of him.

When Mr. Smith was on the stand counsel for the boys questioned him in regard to whether there was feeling on the part of the cattlemen against the settlers. Mr. Smith said that he had heard so, but the matter had never been mentioned to him by any of the cow men and none of them had indicated any ill will in his presence. Deputy Sheriff Herriman then took the stand and testified in regard to finding several pieces of bone and an empty shell near the place where the body had fallen. He said they learned that the boys tried to sell the horse at the San Jacinto ranch and when asked peculiarly by a cowboy if they had stolen it, denied the charge and drove away. He described tremendous canyons into which the wagon had been followed. The cedar creek embankment was over 200 feet deep. Perry Moon testified along the same line and told about the finding of the old straw hat worn by Hamill. It was torn on one side. He also found the can of milk near where the body was discovered. This was on the occasion of the first visit with the coroner.

Dr. Conigher described the wounds in the head. The right eye was gone. There was a small hole in the back of the cavity which was made by some foreign substance. The right side of the head was terribly torn and part of the bones were gone, while others were smashed to a pulp. The brain was completely gone. The jaw bone was broken. Asked as to what cause he said violence not inflicted by the hand of the person on whom the violence was done. Asked if it might be done by a soft nosed bullet, he said that it might.

Dr. Morgan, who followed, testified to the same facts and stated the same conclusion with reference to the possible effect of a soft nosed bullet.

Probation Officer Ormsby told of the confession of the boys. Asked to illustrate how they said that they held the gun, he started to show, remarking that there was a bullet stuck in it. After some comment he was asked to forgo the illustration. The rifle is of the Winchester make and a .35-30 calibre.

The jury then went to view the body.

We the jury empaneled and sworn in this inquest find the name of the deceased to be F. Thomas Hamill, aged 28 years, and that he came to his death on or about the 15th of August, 1916, from a gun shot wound by means of a rifle in the hands of Lynn Lovance and we recommend that said Lovance be held as accessory to the crime. C. L. Green, C. S. McMartin, James Martin, F. W. Wilkinson, Robert Rogerson, H. O. Milner, G. B. Holmes, O. P. Davis, L. F. Morse.

Relative to the characteristics of the Lovance boys, M. H. Ford, who lives in the South Park addition, near where the Pennywell family resided last winter, says that on one occasion, shortly before the Pennywells left for their ranch, the Lovance boys were playing with some other children when Lynn became enraged at the rest and particularly against his older brother and ran into the house and grabbed his father's gun, declaring that he would kill them all. The gun failed to work. Mrs. Pennywell was visiting at the Ford home when the children came and told her of the incident.

The preliminary trial will be held before Judge A. V. Carson later in the week. The body of F. Thomas Hamill was shipped to the home of his father in Pennsylvania last night.

LOGAN MUSIC COMPANY MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

Rearrangement Made With Grossman and Emes Which Gives Greater Opportunity For Display.

The Logan Music company began moving their stock of musical instruments and supplies Saturday to the room next door, formerly occupied by the Grossman and Emes chapel, and are now settled in their new quarters and ready to answer to the needs of their patrons. The new location gives the music company a greater opportunity to display its stock of pianos and phonographs, as heretofore it has been found impossible to show their complete stock in their old crowded store room space.

The rearrangement makes it possible to enlarge their quarters and provide for a more convenient display of their stock. The back partition of the room occupied by the music company has been removed and the chapel seats placed.

KINDERLY MAN FINDS HIMSELF IN MIST OF BLINDING SNOW

W. M. Arnold of Kimberly, accompanied by his wife and their guests, Mrs. J. O. Burkhalter and Miss Burkhalter, of Lewis, Iowa, had a sample of real winter thrust upon him Friday morning near Caroy, while returning from a trip through several sections of the state. The party found an inch of soft snow on their car in the morning and the heavy flakes were still falling when they pulled out for warmer climes.

The King's daughters circle will give a cooked food sale at Clay book store Saturday, August 25. All are urged to buy from the young ladies that day as the proceeds go to the children's home in Boise.

PRICE JUGGLING

It is customary in many piano stores to ask a very high price for pianos, and take your money at that price if you will pay it. If you are a juggler you get a discount from that price; if your neighbor is a better juggler than you he gets two discounts; and if some one else is an expert juggler he gets three discounts.

The result is that on the same make of pianos bought from the same store, you will find one man has paid $400 for his, another has paid but $350, while the close buyer has paid but $300, but that piano was worth only $300, to start with.

This is all wrong; a piano is a manufactured article and like all manufactured articles has a fixed value, and should, therefore, have a fixed price according to its value. You would not patronize a shoe store that charged you $5.00 for the same shoe that your neighbor bought for $3.50. Why will you deal with that kind of a piano store?

In Business for Profit

All merchants are in business for profit—for a livelihood. The merchants that follow the policy of selling goods at cost (or in other words with jobber's and retailer's profit clipped off) don't become millionaires. THINK IT OVER. It's very easy to put the price up and then reduce it, when the occasion demands an excuse for a sacrifice sale.

We are factory representatives for the LYON & HEALY PIANO, sold at a fixed price, by over four hundred dealers in the U. S., the best piano value in America for the money. Price $350 to $450; other makes from $175 up. Come in and let us prove it.
