

~~SAYS HE SUFFERED LOSS AGGRE-~~
GATING SUM OF $2,900.

Alleging that there was plenty of water in the Salmon dam during the year 1914, if delivered to him according to contract; that during 1915 the Salmon river company failed to operate its system of distribution at times when it might have done so; that the state of Idaho and plaintiff in the suit performed all their duties required by law, and that by its acts the company indicated that payment of purchases price on his land on the Salmon project for the year 1915 had been waived by the company, M. A. Parrott yesterday brought suit in the district court for $2,998.00 which he alleged to be due as a result of the alleged failure of the company to fulfill the terms of its contract with him.

Relative to the year 1916, no statement is made that there was a waiver enough to comply with the terms of the contract, but it is alleged that defendant did not operate the system for several periods when it might have been operated. It is also alleged that the contract shows the payments of such a chase price for the year 1916 as still due, although defendant prior to and during 1916 waived payment of such price for profit, and, in fact, is represented as to induce plaintiff to believe that the payment of said price chase price for said year was and would be waived as a condition to certain other payments named in the complaint, which plaintiff alleges that defendant has not paid. On the basis of such action damages aggregating $1,999 are claimed.

Taylor Cummins Says He Found Sentiment For the President Strong In All Three States.

That Ho, Indiana and Illinois are going for Wilson is the opinion of Taylor Cummins, who recently returned from a visit to those states. Mr. Cummins says that in Ohio public opinion is strongly in favor of the president and that the prosperity is unbounded and that people have confidence in the administration and express deep dissatisfaction with the manner in which Hughes is conducting the campaign. The Buckeye state many Republicans expressed disgust with the methods of campaigning followed by their candidate. The same feeling was expressed by people with whom he talked in Illinois and in Chicago. Ohio Democrats are confident that they will elect their state ticket as well as carry the state for Wilson.

M. W. A. TO HAVE PROGRAM AND INITIATION TONIGHT

There will be an initiation and banquet in the local camp of the Modern Woodmen of America tonight. A class of thirty-five will be initiated. Addresses will be made by Congressman Addison T. Smith, by W. H. Tye of Boise, deputy head commissioner, and Dr. W. C. Hummel, of Marysville, state medical examiner. A banquet served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church in the Baptist church parlors, will conclude the affair. The local camp has a membership of over

Grand Lodge of Idaho Masons Electing Officers Today—Will Adjourn
This Evening.

The Masonic Grand Lodge began the work of electing officers this morning. John W. Bloomfield, of Nampa, was chosen for grand master; Sherman Coffin, of Boise, for deputy grand master, and Andrew Loundsbury, of Albion, for senior grand warden. The meeting then adjourned until this afternoon when the rest of the officers will be elected and resolutions will be adopted. The grand lodge will adjourn this evening. A car ride to Great Shoshone Falls last evening was enjoyed by the visitors to the city.

The Masonic reception at the hall of-the-order-Tuesday night was attended by a large number of visitors from surrounding towns and by practically all the members of the local lodge. Only Masons were present. A number of talks were made by members of the order here and by visitors. A program including piano selections by W. B. Coburn, violin selections by N. Schettler, songs by Wilton Peck and readings by Boyd H. Fuller was given and much applauded by all present. Refreshments were served.

About 120 members of the order, including delegates, are here from outside the city. Grand officers present are Francis Jenkins, M. W. G. grand master; J. D. Bloomfield R. W. deputy grand master; Thurman Neloff, R. W. senior grand warden; Charles Himmel, R. W. grand treasurer; George B. Kaeppner, R. W. grand secretary; W. B. Goodheart, W. grand lecturer; Archel Cummins, W. grand lecturer; Edgar Meek, grand marshal; Jonas W. Brown, R. W. grand chaplin; J. A. Lipsett, R. W. grand senior deacon; B. Hyatt, W. grand junior deacon; H. Grant, W. grand steward; G. D. Aiken

A number of the Masons were accompanied by their wives, who are being entertained by the Eastern Star during the time that the grand lodge of the A. F. & A. M. is in session.

Attendance Continues to Increase—
Total Number of 1939 on Rolls Last Evening.

Athletics, music and all special features of the Twin Falls public schools are already being organized for the year and the teachers in the high school and the grades are all busy. The total number enrolled on Wednesday evening was 1929, about 400 greater than on the opening day last year. The totals for the different grades in all the schools follow: Grade 1, 238; grade 2, 209; grade 3, 196; grade 4, 180; grade 5, 240; grade 6, 67; grade 7, 188; grade 8, 161; first year high school, 102; second year high school, 100; third year high school, 81; fourth year high school, 87.

MEXICAN CHARGED WITH PASSING BAD CHECK

Salvador Bouchea, a Mexican, is in jail charged with passing a bad check for $10, to which was forged the name of Frank Housman, on T. J. Lloyd. The check was on the First National bank and made in favor of Joe Aguilar. A plea of not guilty has been entered. A plea of not guilty will be held later.

Town at Terminals Doing Great Business—Crops and Prices Prove Satisfactory.

While not "enjoying" a boom the town of Hogerson is in a more prosperous condition than ever before, a good many of the businessmen with whom a representative of THE TIMES talked during a brief visit last week. The bank deposits are enormous for a town of that size and all the merchants are selling lots of goods. The dry farmers are growing good wheat, and the wheat raisers are getting good prices. The Salmon tract is good and would have been exceedingly heavy had it received another irrigation. The tract with Jarbidge and Contact is large and growing. There is only one house going up at Hogerson at present, a small frame farmers' building, and more expected to follow as soon as the crops are disposed of.

Democratic Candidate Candidate F

Primary Election.

Nine more candidates filed lists for their election expenses Wednesday and of the nine, Judge Lawrence Jones claims that he went to no expense at all in the primaries. On the other hand, George W. Wilcox loads the dice to date with a primary election campaign of $140.95. The names and expenditures of the candidates follow:

L. Hanson, none; J. Byhoe, $2;
M. Sims, $22; J. H. Barker, $12.80;
Nihart, $16.35; F. M. Kendall, $26.60;
P. O. Horrigan, $35; G. L. Kinn
$38.75; G. W. Wilcox, $140.95.

Receives Fourteen Votes For Democratic Nomination In Fifth District.

The nomination of E. J. Malone, Filner, for the office of commissioner for the first district on the Democratic ticket, constitutes the only material difference shown by the official count of the primary election by the county commissioners from the authentic returns published in THE TIMES.

Malone received fourteen votes, while the other candidates received a dozen others. An effort was made to file his name as a candidate for primary nomination, but the petition arrived one day too late to permit name to go on the primary ballot.

The other candidates on both tickets carried the same as these given in THE TIMES last week.

ALLEGED KIDNAPPER IS

Probs. Judge A. W. Ostrom, this morning discharged, on motion of county attorney, the complaint against V. C. McDonald, arrested this way for the alleged kidnapping of his daughter, aged six years, from her mother. McDonald and his wife were released and he claimed that he had secured consent to take the child while Mrs. McDonald declared that such was not the case. When the girl was called for hearing today, her mother and child had disappeared, and the complaint was continued until today but no complaining witness had been produced.

DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE TO FILL
LEGISLATIVE TICKET

The central committees of the Democrats and Republicans will meet tomorrow at the courthouse and perfect an organization for the coming year. The Republicans are of the opinion that they have nothing to do but bury, while the Democrats will handle the cares of selecting a legislative caucus. They should consider the fact that the trouble-making element among the trouble-makers is three men on their ticket for the legislature, the house of the legislature, whom the trouble-makers would "stay put," the followers of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson. They found themselves this week without the sign of a ticket, all candidates for the legislature. James Fitzgerald was the first to get his hat out of the ring, after which he was followed by H. A. Lawrence and Lawrence Hansen thought he would not be lone some, so he came in. Just what the committee will want it gets together is yet to be

Larrow Construction Company
Finish Early In October—Pres
Eccles Visits Twin Falls

That the sugar factory will be ready to turn over to the Assignment Committee company on 15 October will be ready to handle the best of when it is time to deliver it, was a statement made by the Larrows of the sugar company yesterday in the TIMES reporter. No date was definitely fixed by the company, as the difference, but no doubt about its being ready in time was voiced.

President Brookes of the Assignment Committee said: "The Larrows of the city between train Sunday and announced that he intended to resign and look over the situation in the Hull."

ALL MACEDONIAN FRONT IS SCENE OF ALLIED GAINS

In their offensive north of the Somme in France, French forces against the German lines of trench warfare captured front line and other trenches and have taken about 1500 prisoners.

The new attacks were made on the front from Comblies to the river. Since the Germans had been ordered to dig trenches that it required only half an hour for them to overcome the resistance of the Germans and make themselves masters of three and three-quarters miles of front.

East and south of Comblies they seized additional trenches along the Bethune-Peronne road, which leads to the German front northward through the towns of Arras, Bethune, and Peronne and Arras.

A serious impediment in the way of the Germans for the movement of their transport from the north to Peronne is the capture of the railway station at Arras.

Along the Macedonia front the heavy offensive of the entente continues. Bulgarian trenches on a front of two miles and to a depth of 800 yards are being destroyed by the French and the Turkish army. The French west of the Vardar river near Majdanag, which lies about four miles south of Glogovci, has been evacuated. The aid rendered by the French, have made additional gains east of the river in the Lakno-Takovo region. The army of the Teutonic allies is declared to have sustained heavy casualties in the latter engagement.

Official reports are that the Bulgarians have evacuated the forts at Kresna, the Sogon, and, which have been captured in August. The presence of entente warships off the town is given as the reason for the withdrawal. It is not improbable that the British and French along the Struma front may have been partly responsible for

Merchants' Association Declares Ha-
Holiday For That Date In Order t

At a meeting of the Merchants' association Wednesday morning it was decided that in the interests of the success of the county fair at Filer next week, the merchants would declare a half holiday beginning at noon Friday, September 22. This would afford an opportunity for a large crowd from Twin Falls to attend the fair on that date. To this end, H. E. Barber was appointed to communicate with the various merchants about the city, informing them of the association's decision and asking them to cooperate.

An effort is being made in both Buhl and Flier among the merchants to reach a similar decision and the several merchants here feel that such action will insure a good attendance and successful day for the fair.

In the absence of Captain M. Roberts, president of the association with the militia at the border, G. V. Shroot of the City Marketing company was elected to fill the vacancy.

GLUTTONS DIE EARLY

AVERS BROTHER JONATHAN

Document Just Issued by Uncle Sam
Grows Eloquent in Denouncing Gormandering.

"What profiteth a man that he gain the whole world yet lose his health?" asks the United States' public health service in a document just released. "Naturalists say that long ago the prehistoric waters were infested with a species of enormous shark which finally became extinct by reason of the working of its voracious appetite. Thus nature eliminates the over-fed. "The desire for ease of life and plentiful diet is universal and is the great stimulus of man and animals alike. When man becomes greedy and takes more food and drink than his nature discards him. "In the race for power and place, for ease of circumstance and relief from the stimulus of hunger, the modern man is apt to forget that unless he is careful of his body he will soon be made to suffer for the infraction of nature's inexorable physical law. With the loss in body tone comes an equal loss in mental acuity and the brain which for a time was able to operate despite the complaints of an over-fed, under-exercised, self-poisoned body, stops working. "Statisticians have discovered that the mortality rate of persons in the United States over 45 years of age is increasing. The strenuous life of today is not alone responsible for this. Lack of health-giving exercise, superfluous diet, lack of refreshing sleep, over-stimulation, the high pressure of the race for power, wealth and position plus physical neglect—these bring early decay. The goal is reached—wealth is amassed—honor, position and power are just being grasped when the spirit of—disappointment—comes to the victim of gluttony. The brilliant mind becomes clouded, the steady hand is no longer accurate, the eye which once gazed fearlessly on the whole world is dimmed and it is not long before the final break-up occurs. All of this was entirely preventable. "Other things being equal it is the man who leads the well-balanced life who lasts the longest, whose work to the end is uniformly the best, he who neither over-works nor over-plays, neither over-eats, over-drinks, nor over-sleeps, he who maintains a standard of simple, healthy diet in moderation, who offsets mental work with physical recreation, who is as honest with his own body as he is with his own business. When success comes to such an one his physical and mental condition is such that he can enjoy in peace of mind and contentment of body the fruits of his labors. "The regulations of U. S. public health service state: 'It is the duty of officers to maintain their physical as well as their professional fitness. To this end they shall be allowed time for recreation and study whenever their official duties will permit.' If the government regards it as essential that its military experts shall be maintained in this way, is it not equally important to every citizen that he similarly maintain a high standard of physical integrity?"

FREEMAN "WOULD NOT PAY FOR A DEAD HORSE"
A jury in the case of W. D. Cowger against P. P. Freeman, both of Hollister, was tried in the probate court before a jury, with Probate Judge A. W. Peterson at trial judge. Freeman hired a horse from Cowger and the animal died while in his service. Cowger wanted pay for the horse and Freeman would not agree to give it to him.

Buhl News

(From Buhl Herald)

Twelve and one-half bushels to the acre was the yield of alfalfa received by F. E. Chamberlain, living west of Buhl, on six acres. This crop was raised on school land purchased by Mr. Chamberlain for $35 per acre. The crop will return him $100 an acre, a pretty fair interest on his investment.

One day last week, John Leighty brought his trusty Ford to town and filled its tank full of gasoline at 30 cents per gallon in preparation for a long trip to the South Fork. But, alas! During the night, while Morpheus wrapped John in blissful unconsciousness some deep-eyed villain tapped the gasoline tank and left only enough to keep the car to Bismarck-Corral Hills.

A novel legal question comes up in the case of the sale of Clear Lakes Power & Imp. Co. on execution issued to satisfy judgment of W. C. Hazzard in that Mr. Hazzard as an individual, serves summons on W. C. Hazzard as president of the company. The sale will be held at Gooding on September 15 and it is rumored that certain other creditors of the company will attempt to restrain the sale of the property on the ground that the service of the summons as above stated is illegal.

Despite the excitement of the primaries, one hundred and forty voters were cast at the school board election held in the high school building on Tuesday. The vote resulted in the following: G. M. Harding, 123; E. B. Johnson, 107; C. L. Brown, 29; Taylor, 1; H. R. Eary, 2; C. H. McQuinn, 2. But two candidates had been talked of for the two vacancies on board, Mr. Harding and Mr. Johnson. Both men had agreed to run. The other gentlemen were not candidates but received the scattering vote.

The Pleasure Producers will be moving pictures of the bathers in the city swimming pool Sunday afternoon if the weather permits. V. J. Amant, director of the company, stated to a Herald reporter that he desired to have as many bathers in the pond as possible that afternoon. The pictures of the swimming pool have been shown throughout the state and will be a good advertising medium for the town. One evening next week the Pleasure Producers will show a photo play taken in Twin Falls.

STREET CAR RESUMES RUN

TO GREAT SHOSHONE FALLS

The electric railroad resumed operations this week with J. G. Moore as manager. The cars leave at 7:30 in the morning and bring in the school children. They leave again for the falls at 3:30, taking out the children and then remain until 6 o'clock to bring back workmen who are fixing up the line. When the line has been repaired thoroughly a regular schedule will be announced. N. McCracken, who has leased the system, contingent on delivery of certain auto cars, expects to take over its active management as soon as the cars arrive.

School was begun in earnest this year the first day, contrary to former custom. Enrollment took place Thursday and Friday of this week, thus eliminating the task of enrollment and registration the first day of school. The students met with their instructors in the auditorium at 9:00 a. m. and were assigned to their divisions. The morning classes were run through while the new pupils registered in the office. Much trouble was encountered in the evening classes of agriculture. An attempt was made to organize new courses with partial success. Classes in stock judging and animal husbandry are assured. There are many new students this year, as well as teachers. They are fast becoming acquainted, and soon will become a part of the school. Some of the former students are coming back and a few who have spent the summer elsewhere are just returning.

News from the Mexican border leads us to believe that the more militant high school boys will return in the course of three or four weeks.

Miss Elvira Spafford, who spent the summer in the east returned Monday. A meeting of the football boys Monday morning resulted in the discussion of rules that evening. The first practice was held Tuesday morning at the ball park. There were but six boys of the team who were registered Monday, present. Passing and punting were the only factors emphasized during the evening. Falling on the ball was practiced Wednesday in addition to the former evening's practice. The first scrimmage will probably take place today. Two full teams are expected regularly hereafter. The schedule for the season has not yet been made out, but a game is expected in the near future.

The enrollment this year is slightly under normal. At this time last year, the total was 438. At present it stands at 405, with a gradual daily increase. Five hundred are expected by mid-term.

Reorganization of school clubs will take place at an early date. The German club, under the supervision of Miss Goebel, will meet this week for organization, and will hold a regular meeting the third Thursday of this month.

The Agricultural club will probably be abandoned, owing to the lack of student support.

The Latin club, under Miss Biggs, will be organized in a few days. The Debate club will meet for organization Wednesday of next week. Mr. Mitchell has some new plans in which the boys should take much interest. He has not disclosed them, but will do so at the next meeting.

There are some excellent debaters in school this year and many good debates are expected. The full swing, with a large enrollment. Under the supervision of Miss Morao, an enterprising chorus is expected.

The Scientific club has not yet been heard from.

There has been much discussion as to the advisability of organizing a French club. A few days will tell.

BABY SHOW AT

FAIR CALLED OFF

Case of Infantile Paralysis Causes Commissioners to Act—No Fear of Epidemic Among Children.

The Better Babies show at the Southern Idaho fair in Piler was called off yesterday by order of the board of county commissioners on receipt of the report of Dr. C. D. Weaver to the effect that a solid case of infantile paralysis had developed in that town and that Dr. Folk of the state board of health had recommended that no changes be taken. Dr. Weaver said that he had visited the home of David Warner, near Buhl, Tuesday afternoon and that he found a girl baby, twenty months old, suffering from the trouble. This child had been exposed to the disease at the home of Ben Ray near Castelford, whose baby was also suffering from the same trouble. Dr. Weaver said that all the cases were very mild. He said that there was little danger of contagion, as the disease was contracted principally through the discharges from the mouth and throat of those afflicted. The fair people had reopened and children in the town were attending moving picture shows as usual. He did not think that there was danger of an epidemic, were the slightest precautions taken, but would recommend that at least the baby show be called off. This was ordered.

There is no scare here, as no case of the trouble has developed in this city, and only one in Piler, one in Castelford, and one near Buhl, none of them serious.

LEARNED PREDICTS

A CLOSE ELECTION

Heard Little Political Talk On Trip East—Prosperity and Building Noted Everywhere.

"I suppose that people are talking politics in some places in the east, if you get into the right crowds, but I heard very little of it on my trip," said Ed S. Larned, who returned this week from Nebraska and Michigan, "but the greatest activity in all lines that I have ever seen prevails. I went to Omaha with sheep and then went to my old home in Lansing, Michigan, to visit. From what I heard there I am inclined to think that the Republicans will win back the governorship now held by a Democrat, but I cannot say about the result on the national ticket to that state. From all that I could hear on the trains and elsewhere I judge that the present contest will be unusually close.

"Lansing is exceedingly active, having many big factories, but I saw evidence of prosperity all along the line, and much building everywhere."

Mr. Larned was formerly business manager of a local newspaper and returned from journalism a year and a half ago to go into the sheep business near Buhl. He is a Republican in politics.

Easy Money

It looks like easy money during the summer months when the pigs almost take care of themselves. But it's just as well to look ahead and plan a comfortable hog house for the colder months. We have sold considerable material for hog houses. Consequently, we have picked up a few good points on design and construction. Keeping up with the procession is not enough for the General—he must lead. And lead he does—in volume, quality and price. The General's leadership is due to the enormous resources at his command—the five m's of modern manufacturing—men, money, mills, machinery and materials.

Men who have learned the roofing business through years of practical experience are in charge of every department of the business. Men who have made a life study of the blending of asphalts comprise the General's Board of Expert Chemists.

Money—the means to promote efficiency, increase output, reduce cost, prevent waste—is at the General's call in abundance.

Mills—the largest roofing mills in the world are the General's. They are advantageously located at points where cost of fuel, access to raw materials and quick distribution of finished products are most favorable.

Machinery—the most modern known to the roofing business, equips each of the General's enormous mills. Not a dollar is left unspent which would speed up production, increase quality or lower costs.

Materials—the food of the mills—is bought by the General in enormous quantities, and stored. This means the pick of the market and favorable buying, and no loss from idle machinery, due to shortage of materials.

Thus the success of CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is no secret, but is due to a combination of resources and experience without parallel in the roofing business.

CERTAIN-TEED is made of the best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with a scientific blend of soft asphalts, the formula of the General's board of expert chemists. It is then coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which keeps the inner saturation soft and prevents the drying-out so destructive to the ordinary roof.

CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to ply (1, 2 or 3). Experience proves that it lasts longer.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roof, from skyscraper to small residence or out-building.

CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

AN ISSUE AT LAST.

The Adamson bill establishing an eight hour day for railway employees has become an issue in the national presidential campaign. Anything becomes an issue in these days when real issues are scarce. The bones of the tariff are again being dragged from the party closet by Republican leaders, an activity to which the rank and file of the party is not lending its unequal approval.

As usual in these pre-election months congress and the president are denounced; and characteristically of the Republican presidential nominee, he is denouncing vigorously without outlining any definite substitution which he would have worked out had he been the occupant of the white house in the place of Wilson.

Mr. Hughes certainly is impressing the country by what appears to be his lack of imagination. The ordinary mortal, with an ordinary imagination, has but little difficulty in pointing out other people's mistakes and telling what he would have done under the circumstances. Since what he would have done, was not done, he usually can make some pretense of getting away with it. At least he does not face the danger of having to stare facts in the face. With Mr. Hughes, Mr. Wilson has committed grievous errors. Mr. Hughes points them out; tells us they are errors; and in most indefinite terms tells us what results he would have secured had he been president, but does not tell us how he would have secured them. Obviously he either does not know, is afraid of losing votes by expressing himself, or simply lacks imagination altogether.

So with the Adamson bill. After the past few weeks the people were expecting Mr. Hughes to say the solution of preventing the railway strike was wrong, without saying how he would have averted it. The people were not disappointed, for Mr. Hughes rose to the occasion grandly. But here to set up an alternate program would have alienated one side of the struggle or the other and might offend the general public, the third party to the controversy. Mr. Hughes applied the same treatment to this delicate topic that he applied to the neutrality issue; making statements that the pro-Germans and the advocates of a break with Germany, Roosevelt, the Outlook, and others; all interpret to mean just what it to mean. Thus the "Fatherland" and "The Outlook" at sword points, both regarding the neutrality issue as the most vital of the campaign, both proposing exactly opposite courses—are both convinced by Mr. Hughes' speeches that he agrees with them. In some respects Mr. Hughes must be admitted the peer of Mr. Wilson, and diplomacy seems to be of his strong suit.

Technically and as an abstract proposition the Adamson bill is just as bad as its critics say it is, but the majority of the people doubtless feel that it was justified as the only means of averting a calamity, and giving to both sides time to get together and settle their differences.

While Colonel Roosevelt suggests that the course which he followed in the anthracite coal strike should have been followed in this, and that a commission should have been appointed representing all elements interested, it should be remembered that the coal strike was actually in progress five months before action was taken in the case. A railroad strike lasting five months and extending over the country would have been a disaster of the first magnitude and one which should have been averted if possible. It is suggested by others that the policy which President Roosevelt followed during the panic of 1907 and which Grover Cleveland followed during the gold raid in 1894 are similar to the course followed by the administration and congress in the present crisis.

WILSON'S SERVICE TO AMERICA'S FARMERS

Remarkable Record Set Forth in Letter by the President on Signing Bill.

NEW LAWS; NEW OUTLOOK

Farm Loan Act, Federal Reserve Bank, Provisions for Warehouse and Marketing Facilities Are Part of Program Executed by Democrats.

No administration has ever done so much to advance the agriculture interests of the United States as that of President Wilson. The record is set forth clearly and effectively in a letter written by the President to Congressman A. F. Lever, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington.

August 11, 1916.

My dear Mr. Lever:

It has given me much satisfaction to approve today the bill making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, and for other purposes, because the bill not only contains very generous provisions for the improvement of farm production in the nation and for investigations and demonstrations in the field of the marketing of farm crops and of the organization of rural life, but also contains three well conceived measures designed to improve market practices and the storage and financing of staple crops. As the passage of this bill marks the practical completion of an important part of the program for the betterment of rural life which was mapped out at the beginning of the administration, I feel that I cannot let the occasion pass without conveying to you and your associates in both houses my appreciation of the service rendered to the nation in strengthening its great agricultural foundations. The record, legislative as well as administrative, is a remarkable one. It speaks for itself and needs only to be set forth.

1. Appreciation of the importance of agriculture has been shown through greatly and intelligently increased appropriations for its support.

2. Particular pains have been taken to foster production by every promising means, and careful thought has been given to the problem of increasing the meat supply of the nation.

3. Greatly increased provision has been made, through the enactment of the Co-operative Agricultural Extension Act, for conveying agricultural information to farmers and for increasing the capacity to apply it. This piece of legislation is one of the most significant and far reaching measures for the education of adults ever adopted by any government. It provides for cooperation between the States and the Federal Government. It is a highly important and significant principle. When the Act is in full operation there will be expended annually under its terms, from Federal and State sources alone, a total of over $2,000,000 for the direct education of the farmer; and this amount is being and will be increasingly supplemented by contributions from local sources. It will permit the placing in each of the 2,550 rural counties of the nation two farm demonstrators and specialists who will assist the demonstrators in the more difficult problems confronting them.

4. Systematic provision for the first time has been made for the solution of the problems of the conservation of agriculture, which concerns distribution—marketing, rural finance, and rural organization.

5. Provision was made promptly for the creation of an Office of Markets and Rural Organization and the Department of Agriculture, including those for enforcing new laws designed to promote better marketing, have been increased to $1,200,000. The more difficult problems of marketing are being investigated and plans are in operation for furnishing assistance to producers of perishables through a market news service. A similar service for live stock interests will be inaugurated during the year.

6. The problems of securing the uniform grading of staple crops, of regulating dealers and traffic in them, of developing a better system of warehouses, and of providing more available collateral for farm loans has been successfully dealt with.

7. Under the new Futures Act standards for cotton have been established, the operations of the futures exchanges have been put under supervision, and the sale of cotton has been placed on a firmer basis.

8. Under the new Grain Standards Act will secure uniformity in the grading of grain, enable the farmer to obtain fairer prices for his product, and afford him an incentive to raise better grades of grain.

9. The United States Warehouse Act will enable the Department of Agriculture to license bonded warehouses in the various states. It will lead to the development of better storage facilities for staple crops and will make possible the issuance of reliable warehouse receipts which will be widely and easily negotiable.

10. Of no less importance for agriculture and for the national development is the Federal Aid Road Act. This measure will conduce to the establishment of more effective highway machinery in each state, strongly influence the development of good road building along right lines, stimulate larger production and better marketing, promote a fuller and more attractive rural life, add greatly to the convenience and economic welfare of all the people and strengthen the national foundations. The Act embodies sound principles of road legislation and will safeguard the expenditure of the funds arising under the Act not only, but will also result in the more efficient use of the large additional sums made available by States and localities.

11. The Federal Reserve Act benefits the farmer, as it does all the other people of the nation, by guaranteeing better banking, safeguarding the credit structure of the country, and preventing panics. It takes particular note of the special needs of the farmer by making larger provision for loans through national banks on farm mortgages and by giving farm paper a maturity period of six months.

12. It was essential, however, that banking machinery be devised which would reach intimately into the rural districts, that it should operate on terms suited to the farmer's needs, and should be under sympathetic management. The need was for machinery which would induce business methods into farm finance, bring order out of chaos, reduce the cost of handling farm loans, place upon the market mortgages which would be a safe investment for private funds, attract to agricultural operations a fair share of the capital of the nation, and lead to a reduction of interest. These needs and these ideals have been met by the enactment of the Federal Farm Loan Act.

I am glad to have this opportunity to take part in the execution of this large program, which, I believe, will result in making agriculture more profitable and country life more comfortable, and attractive, and, therefore, insure the retention in rural districts of an ancient and contented population.

Faithfully yours,
WOODROW WILSON.
Hon. A. F. Lever, Chairman,
Committee on Agriculture,
House of Representatives.

WILSON A PROGRESSIVE BEFORE PARTY WAS BORN

Eighteen months before the birth of the Progressive Party, Woodrow Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, gave the definition of a Progressive and so classified himself in an address before the Kansas State of New York, January 20, 1911: "By Radical I understand one who goes too far; by Conservative one who does not go far enough; by Reactionary one who won't go at all. I suppose I must be a Progressive, which I take to be one who makes, adjusting policies to facts and circumstances as they arise."

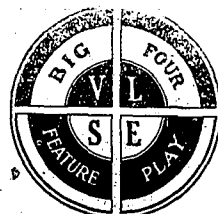

Under Democratic influences during the six-year period since standstillism was overthrown in the House of Representatives in 1910, ninety per cent of the program of reform advocated by the Progressive Party has been enacted into law. "Feasible government," which is now making desperate efforts to "come back," has been driven from power under President Wilson's administration and will have no place in Washington so long as he is in the White House.

MEXICO IS COMING BACK. Saved From Conquest, It Is Working Out Its Own Destiny.

Encouraging news continues to come from Mexico, and the drab of President Wilson's critics grow tamer all the while. Mexico has seen much misfortune, but borne many trials, has experienced many tragedies, but there is a buoyancy to the present situation that gives cheer to friends of that long-suffering republic. Americans, coming from that country, bring optimistic assurances. They declare that there is much better government there than for many years, that Carranza money is increasing in value, that business is picking up and that law is being respected.

The New York Evening Sun, a Republican newspaper, which usually criticizes everything President Wilson does, is compelled to recognize the fact, telegraphed from San Antonio, Texas, by William G. Shepherd, war correspondent of the United Press, who has been one of the keenest observers of conditions both in Europe and Mexico. Mr. Shepherd, sent from a long service abroad, was back recently to the Mexican border. After a careful survey he reported conclusions which the Sun displays under the heading: "Mexico Coming Back; Business Grows Bright—Confidence in Carranza Increasing and Things Look Up." In part Mr. Shepherd says:

Mexico is coming back. It's not a dead rubber nation; it's got a bounce in it. A summary of the news from the heart of Mexico, gathered in the last three weeks along the border from Americans incoming from Mexico, shows beyond doubt that conditions are improving, confidence in Carranza is growing, the situation is gaining buoyancy, Carranza money is gaining in value and business is picking up.

COMMENTS BY EXCHANGES

COUNTY DIVISION NONSENSE. THE next legislature no doubt will be called upon to create several new counties. If the signs of the times are not all sallow and jangle with certain wide places, in Idaho thoroughfares. Legislation begotten through dickers and trades of this kind will be legislation that in future will rise up on its hind legs and mock the makers thereof. The swapping of votes for any old thing if by so doing Bangtown or Bladenville can do the regalia of a county seat, will be scurvy birds of forbidding aspect. It was unfortunate that the constitutional convention which had the opportunity to do so failed to place a limit on this kind of legislation. As at present half of the time of the members will be occupied in examining blue prints and tracing rod lines on the map that every village of a dozen or less inhabitants may eventually into county seat burghs. County division measures will prove stumbling blocks in the way of wise and needed legislation by the next Idaho rampastrophe—Hagerman Valley Herald.

THE following item taken from the Boise Statesman, a rabid Republican paper, shows they themselves admit a saving in taxes under the administration of Governor Alexander: "Tax levies in Idaho for 1916 were reduced $155,000 over 1915 by the state board of equalization when it made up the schedules for the year. Tuesday, most of the saving being made in the general tax levy, which was whittled down from $700,000 for 1915 to $545,000 for 1916. The reductions were announced after the board had cut valuations of the main line of the principal railroads in the Panhandle county 5 per cent, in keeping with general reductions made on utility and timber values in northern Idaho."

Levies for the general interest and sinking fund and the public building tax were increased by $25,000. In late care of bonds and interest to be paid in 1914 the board raised $200,000. In 1916 the board raised $10,000. In 1916 the board raised $55,000.00—Grangeville Free Press.

The Vera Cruz Incident and the A. B. C. Intervention.

By James D. Whelan

YOU went down to Vera Cruz to get an apology for an insult to the flag—did you get it? The "pose" which the Republican dry goods box diplomat puts to the Democratic street corner salesman, after which he withdraws feeling that he has crushed his antagonist and forever settled a question of international law and public policy against the administration. The interrogation in question is not confined to men on the dry goods box. It is insinuated in the addresses of men of national reputation in whom many have confidence and with it goes the imputation that because of the failure of President Wilson to secure some sort of apology from somebody for the affront offered to the flag by Huerta, American prestige abroad has suffered and American citizens are in some way shamed by their official heads. It is easy to answer the imputation. On April 9, 1914, the American flag on an official boat was fired on by soldiers of the Huerta garrison at Tampico. An apology was demanded by Admiral Mayo in command of the fleet and was refused. An expression of regret was voiced by Huerta but no salute was fired. Some correspondence followed without results. On April 20 the president held the matter before congress, which endorsed his course. In order to prevent the landing of ammunition at a critical time the American navy took control of the custom house at Vera Cruz and a battle was fought in which seventeen Americans and number of Mexicans were killed.

Work was at once begun concentrating American forces at Vera Cruz for a march to the interior. At this juncture the representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile considered their good offices to bring about an adjustment. May 20, a month after the matter was laid before congress by the president, the representatives of the Huerta faction met with those of the United States. Carranza representing the other element of Mexicans agreed with the general ideas of the mediation conference but not with the method pursued and declined to send representatives. On July 15 Huerta resigned and fled from the country. Only three months and six days elapsed from the time that the flag was fired on until Huerta was a fugitive. Less than a month elapsed from the time that the trouble took place until the mediation was proposed and an even month elapsed between the time mediation was offered and the sitting of the court at Niagara Falls. Even had the United States determined to go to war to drive out Huerta and had it with that in view rejected the offer of mediation, the forces of this country could under no circumstances have accomplished the result by July 15. So far as Huerta was concerned the expedition "got results." Had it gone on, there can be no question that the dictator would have been eliminated, but at a great cost of blood and treasure and at the end of a long war.

Huerta gone, who should then apologize for the Tampico incident? Carranza? Surely he was not a party to the offense. Would you hold Huerta in the country by some occult means and make him come across? I repeat, who would apologize?

This question has never been answered. Some, indeed, but not the shrewd national political leaders, have intimated that Huerta represented the country and that his successor Carranza, succeeded him in that capacity and should be made to apologize for the acts of the man against whom he was fighting at the time that the incident occurred. The theory is hardly answering since it has not been put forth by respectable authority, but a word in regard to the status of the parties involved might not be amiss in order to clear up misapprehension on the part of some relative to the position in international affairs that Huerta and Carranza then occupied with reference to the United States.

In an opinion handed down in 1858 by Attorney General Black in the case of the Georgiana and Lizzie Thompson the status of unrecognized revolutionary forces is set forth as follows:

"A revolutionary party like a belligerent power is supreme over the country it conquers as far and as long as its arms can carry and maintain it. Although it has been doubted whether a mere body of rebellious men can claim all the rights of a separate power on the high seas, without absolute, or qualified, recognition from foreign governments, there is no authority for a doubt that parties to a civil war have a right to conduct it with all the incidents of lawful warfare within the territory to which they both belong." The opinion was to the effect that where a ship obtained custom house clearance from one faction it could not be punished or impounded by the other when the latter triumphed. The rule is a good one and works both ways. If Carranza could not lawfully hold an American responsible for an insult to the Huerta forces, he could not under international law be held responsible for an insult offered by Huerta or his forces. So far as the salute was concerned, the flight of Huerta ended the incident. Nor did the transactions end with the Huerta government constitute recognition. The appointment of a special representative by President Taylor to go to Hungary during the Kossuth rebellion there did not constitute recognition of the insurgent government. During the administration of President Hayes the United States refused recognition to President Diaz for a whole year and to President Blanco of Venezuela for a year and a half, and we had representatives at the capitals of Mexico and Venezuela during the entire time who had all sorts of informal negotiations with the powers in charge. France informally received Benjamin Franklin, who represented the colonies, for years before according recognition to the United States.

The soundness of yielding to mediation, judged by the historic policy of the United States, and the benefits flowing from such acceptance of mediation by the A. B. C. powers are open questions which I hope to discuss later, but the intimation that when Huerta fled somebody not at all connected with him should have been compelled to apologize is too absurd to merit further discussion.

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, with his daughter Gloria, winters at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She is the only girl who is captured by the Seminole Indians. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Frenau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Frenau at the theater; he has forgotten Gloria. Later Frenau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous. Frenau goes eloping with Gloria. It rains in the pneumonia. Doctor Royce is summoned. Frenau's fiancée, Lois, threatens him with the police. Gloria becomes suspicious. Frenau plans to have Muriel send Gloria a bunch of telegrams. Gloria sees from a window an attack made upon Frenau. Doctor Royce convinces her it is delirium. Later, a telegram, followed by a letter, comes to Frenau from the country home. The telegrams are returned. She sees the supposed suicide of Frenau reported in the paper. Gloria swears to find the murderer of her lover. Royce tells what he knows of Frenau to Mr. Stafford. Together they seek to prevent scandal from enveloping Gloria. She accuses them in her mind of conspiracy against her. Gloria goes to Daving's country home. She meets Muriel, who flees at once. Gloria goes to Palm Beach. She leaves for the North. She is recognized by her only-time caper, the young Indian who rescues her. Gloria, at night, calls on her rescuer. She also the tramp who attacked Frenau. She follows the tramp when he leaves the court, and finds herself in a low saloon dance hall, and is selected by one of the patrons as his partner. Doctor Royce, however, follows her and when he discovers a rescue call down a riot on their heads. The hall is raided and the doctor, finding Gloria and Royce, is arrested and taken before Judge Freeman.

FOURTEENTH EPISODE

The Floating Trap

"Thank heaven, nobody knows of your escapade," Pierpont Stafford was just saying to his daughter Gloria. She had declined to be frightened by his account and had almost won him to a smile across his breakfast coffee cup when his eyes fell on the headlines of the morning paper. He nearly went over backward. The butler, who was venting a glimpse of the headlines over his master's shoulder, nearly went over forward.

Pierpont threw the paper down in a rage. Gloria picked it up, and what she read caused her mischievous smile with one whisk—this is what she read:

POLICE NET GLORIA STAFFORD.

Milford's Beautiful Daughter, a Recent Debutante, Caught in Raid on Etan Side Dance Hall.

Dr. Stanford Royce Battered in Battle.

Gloria was stupefied. She sat in a daze while her father went through the other papers. Equally hateful headlines or worse were in all of them. He pushed them before her. She pushed them to the floor. Then brother David came in. He carried a bundle of papers, too. He was furious. Gloria meekly waived him and his papers away.

Pierpont glowered at her. David

The miserable silence was invaded by the second man who appeared and reported:

"If you please, sir, there's an army of reporters at the door."

Gloria threw up her hands in despair. David sprang to his feet. Pierpont pushed him back and stalked out in a towering fury. He ordered the newspaper raiders off. They bombarded him with questions. He had to take refuge in the house. He returned to the dining room livid with wrath. He ordered the servants out. He thundered at Gloria.

"Now you see what would have happened if you had told the police about your delirium on Gloria, trying vainly to break in. At last he was exhausted and she spoke:

"But, daddy, it was no delirium."

I saw poor Dick murdered. Last night proved it. For I saw the man who killed him. Why did the judge let him go. Why don't you want him captured?"

Pierpont stared at her, then took her to the window and pointed to the crowd of reporters. He shook the newspaper under her eyes, saying:

"Any one and only reason for silence is this publicity! It is horrible!"

"To one of Gloria's training and position the reporters were almost more perilous than the police."

Suddenly she stared and pointed out of the window at two figures, rugged figures straggling up the drive as if they had wandered from the slums and were lost. They were the water. Calmly, and his little boy, Stan, whom Gloria had befriended at the night court. She had forgotten them and now they arrived at the most inopportune moment. Calmly, had Gloria's card in his hand. He saw the reporters and grew uneasy. He pushed through and rang the doorbell. Gloria insisted on their admission and greeted them warmly.

Pierpont stared at the shabby water in disgust. He looked at his watch. He started to go. Gloria nabbed him. She told him that she had promised the water a job. Pierpont said he had no jobs for waiters. Then he ordered Gloria to lunch with him at the Bankers' club.

"The very idea," she exclaimed. "Get Calmly a job there."

"In those clothes?" Pierpont exclaimed.

"Buy him a new outfit," was Gloria's solution.

Pierpont was enraged, but she had her way as usual, and he motioned the waiter to come with him. Calmly kissed Gloria's hand. The boy tried to follow him and clung to him in terror. Gloria knelt down and called the boy. Stan ran to her and let Calmly go with Pierpont.

The boy Stan looked about the room as if he were in heaven and Gloria the winged angel that flew there with him. He threw his arms around her again, let her fall back to earth. The butler in horror took the boy's dirty hand from Gloria's shoulder and tried to cleanse it on a napkin. It blackened the napkin, but the hand was not visibly blackened.

Gloria laughed, but the boy in a chair at the table, and called for finger bowls. The butler brought them. Gloria called for soap and a towel. This was appalling. The butler almost muffled. Then she washed the child's hands with soap in the finger bowls. They turned out to be surprisingly white.

She drew a wet towel down his cheek and it left a white canal. She laughed again, but more soberly. She pondered a minute, then made up her mind and motioned to the butler: "Griggs, what he needs is a bath. You may give him one."

Old Griggs muttered and shook his head. Gloria gave him one of the looks she ruled her father with. "Run along now, while I telephone for a complete trousseau for him."

Griggs grumbled. Stan did not want to leave Gloria, but she kissed him, carefully selecting the clean streak on his face, and assured him that Griggs was a nice man. She watched while Griggs led the boy by one clean finger to the servants' wing and one of its bathtubs. Then she ran into her own room. She called up her father's tailor, or, only to learn that it would take three weeks to make the boy's clothes. He could not possibly wait! She banged the receiver on the hook and ran through the telephone book till she found the number of a large man's furnishing establishment. A dainty gentleman answered the telephone.

"Send me a list of everything a boy has to have," she demanded. When the clerk ventured to ask what his measurements were Gloria answered, "Measurements! How do I know? Do you have to have them?"

When he said that to her, Gloria called for her maid, and sent her to measure, a piece of paper, and ran to the servants' quarters. She was about to enter one of the doors when she caught a glimpse that made her retreat.

Old Griggs, with coat off, sleeves rolled up, and a towel for apron, was just lowering the boy into the steaming water. He dropped the boy with a splash and, whirling, flung himself against the door. He spoke through it:

"It's a damned nuisance, making the boy be hide in the tubs. Gloria explained, Griggs opened the door a little and clutched the tape measure. He took the boy's dimensions and called them out to Gloria, who repeated them to her secretary maid. Griggs had to thrust his arms into the water two or three times to reach the boy's knees and heels. He was most graciously unhappy.

Gloria ran back to the telephone and resumed negotiations with the clerk. When he had transcribed the numbers, he promised to deliver the goods in a jiffy. A jiffy is a long time to a boy just out of a tub, and when Griggs explained to Gloria that Stan's entire wardrobe consisted of one shirt, towel and two safety pins, she had more thinking to do. She solved the problem by sending her maid to fetch a pair of her silk pajamas.

By and by there was a knock at the door, and Griggs carried in Master Stan. The pajamas were worlds too big for him, but he was almost unconsciously improved—white and pink with curls of gold and the eyes of a cherub. The laundries do not always send things back better than they went, but Stan had gone out a grumpy and he came back a prince.

Gloria embraced him, called to the maid for a pair of her satin mules for his bare feet, and took him in her lap and cuddled his curls. He was her doll and she went a little into those curls to think that she would never have a child of her own. She remembered her own childhood and the nursery where she and her brother had been indulged in every toy that money could buy or ingenuity invent.

She hastened up to the great room where Stan had never had any nursery besides the streets or any toy except some "stuffed" make-believe. He did not merely know how to play. Gloria had to teach him. He was an apt pupil with the horse and drum. He pounded and blew till Gloria covered his ears. He tried to climb the hobby horse with the drum still on. He got off head first on the other side, but he soon mastered the horse steed.

His attention was attracted by a picture of Indians on the walls. They were doing a scap-tango about a white captive. Stan wanted to know all about it. He had thought Gloria an angel before, but she grew still more wonderful when she told him that she herself had been an Indian captive. He seemed to be a trifle disappointed when he learned that she had never been honored by being tied to a stake. She saved herself a little by explaining: "It might have been worse than tied to a stake if I hadn't been rescued by Mr. Free-I mean, Doctor Royce."

Then she fell into such a deep meditation that Stan could hardly recall her to finish the story. It was not yet ended when the butler and the second man marched in with two towers of pastebored boxes—Stan's trousseau had arrived.

Now there was excitement, indeed, and Gloria and Stan forgot the maze of Indians in the thrill of dressing and being dressed. Gloria began to fear that she had adopted a hopeless fool when she saw how Stan strutted in his flury. In his knickers and frilled shirt, his starched collar, silk tie, patent leather shoes, and derby hat, he looked like a pocket Bean Brummel. And their rapture turned to alarm.

The Butler Gives Stan a Bath.

The boy began to cough, to turn red and purple in the face, and to shake with paroxysms.

"Oh, dear! O, dear!" Gloria moaned; "He's had a bath, and it's given him pneumonia. The doctor! Quick, I must get him to the doctor!"

Dr. Stephen Royce was trying to practice the proverb, "Physician, heal thyself!" He was dressing the wounds of battle he had received the night before in Gloria's defense. He was plastering his fist and approving it for its good work when a caller was announced. It was Lois Stafford. She had reported of her affair with the dead Frenau and was trying to live it down—Gloria was about scandalizing and distress. She wanted to know if there was not some way she could do Royce told her that there were always poor people in plenty and lonely she gave her the address of some of his patients who would never pay, but whom he treated with none the less care.

As she was leaving she met Gloria coming in with the boy. Royce was disgusted because Gloria looked angry. He should have been delighted at the visit of possible jealousy. Gloria coldly informed him of the boy's bath and its terrible consequences. She made the boy cough for the doctor. Royce did not seem to be as much impressed as Gloria had been. He set the boy to laughing and told him to put out his tongue by making faces at him which the boy mocked. Then he said:

"It's nothing. Just a little tickling in the throat, eh?"

"I guess so," Stan confessed. "I am tickled all over."

He gave the boy a lozenge for medicine and turned to Gloria. She asked him again why he had tried to deceive her about the delirium.

"Why don't you tell me the truth now? What is Lois to you?"

Royce protested that Lois was nothing to him and that a doctor has his secrets—like a priest. Gloria was furious. She gathered up the child and went about to storm out, but she paused, meditated, whirled, and went to him impulsively.

"Forgive me. You saved my life twice. You fought for me then, why against me now?"

He answered sadly, "I am not fighting against you, Gloria. Some day you will know it, but not from me."

Gloria went out sadly and Royce indulged in a little delirium of his own, cursing his luck in managing always to have his devoted misanthrope. He was glad that Lois repeated her liaison with Frenau, but he wished that she had chosen some other person for father confessor or some other time to call.

In the majestic blue dining room of the Bankers' club, Gloria found Calmly already installed. Pierpont's influence had secured the engagement for him and money had provided the next costume that changed Calmly almost as much as Stan had been changed. The cap and gown placed a cushion on a chair for Stan and motioned Calmly to lift him into it. Calmly had not yet recognized his own boy, disguised as he was with a bath and rich man's clothes. But Stan recognized his father and hugged him with vigor to the amusement of Aunt Hortensia, who had been invited to

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Three strong reasons urge you to buy the Ford car. First, because of its record of satisfactory service to more than fifteen hundred thousand owners; Second, because of the reliability of the Company which makes it; Third, because of its large radiator and enclosed fan, streamline hood, crown fenders front and rear, black finish, nickel trimmings, it is most attractive in appearance. To these must be added its wonderful economy in operation and maintenance—about two cents a mile; likewise the fact that by reason of its simplicity in construction anyone can operate and care for it. Nine thousand Ford agents make Ford service as universal as the air. Financing car $369; Runabout $345; Coupelet $505; Town Car $595; Sedan $645; f. o. b. Detroit. Gloria's Romance dawn and clinging to the weeping Sias. Gloria could not understand. She said, "But I should think you would be glad to have your wife sent back." "No, no," Casimir sobbed. "Poor people who are going to die are sent away from the hospital so they will not die there."

Gloria was furious. She proposed to investigate the hospital, and sent out the funds in charge. Meanwhile she insisted on going to Casimir's home and taking Casimir with her. She paused only to telephone Doctor Royce to meet her there. He was difficult to understand as a man, but as a doctor he was ideal. Sias dashed away with Casimir and Sias, while Hortensia and Pierpont held up their hands in despair of her.

When Gloria's chauffeur and footman heard the address she gave them they thought they had misunderstood. She repeated it in most positive tones. They raised their eyebrows in a way that insinuated, "What next?"

Coincidences do happen now and then in real life—not quite so often or so gracefully as in fiction, and yet not so white. In fact, coincidences make life what it is. And so it chanced that the murderer of Dick Freneau whom Gloria had followed from the night court had found a hiding place in the same block where Casimir lived.

Gloria recognized the region as soon as her limousine turned into it. She recognized the saloon and dance hall where she had found and lost her man. But she did not recognize the murderer's daughter in the crowd that gathered about the unusual limousine when it drew up along the garbage cans.

Nell Trask was looking for her father, and she paused to see the fine lady descending from the palace car. In Nell's arms was the child of Richard Freneau, a beautiful creature like its father. Gloria, hurrying through the crowd, could not help pausing to admire the baby and to twinkle the little finger it held up. There for a moment the two women paused with Dick Freneau's child between them; and neither dreamed that the other had ever heard of him. Gloria passed on into the tenement and Nell went to seek her father.

When Gloria was led up and up a gloomy staircase to the one dismal, barren room which Casimir and his wife and their child had had to call home, she felt that her right to complain of any woes that had befallen her.

The sick mother was outstretched on an old bed by a dark widow. A neighbor's wife, who introduced herself as "Mrs. Slattery, thank you kindly," was sitting by her. Casimir ran to his wife, and kneeling with terror at her appearance, dropped on his knees. She embraced him with long white arms so gaunt that they frightened Gloria. Sias ran to the other side of the bed and clambered up. His mother turned, staring at him, and only realized after a long look that he was hers. Then she gathered him to her poor bosom with a sob of pitiful rapture.

Mrs. Slattery rubbed off a chair with her apron and invited Gloria to rest herself, but Gloria went to Casimir's wife. The wretched woman clutched her hands and held them to her cheek, while Sias and Casimir both explained to her who Gloria was. They told her that miraculously Gloria had performed and they plainly hoped for another, but Gloria was filled with a dread that money would be useless here. She promised glibly, but her heart felt helpless.

Doctor Royce came at last and she had some hope that he might redeem the life of the victim of life. He made his examination and spoke cheerfully enough, but Gloria was sure from his tone that he was lying, too. She led him out into the hall to question him. He shook his head gloomily. Gloria protested.

"But surely there must be some way to help her!"

"Not in this cavern," Doctor Royce insisted. "Of course if she were in the country somewhere—in the air under the sky—but what chance has she of that?"

That was so easy that Gloria laughed aloud. "Oh, if that is all, I'll furnish the air and the sky. I'll take them all up to our country place at once. You get them ready. I'll go tell my father that we are expecting guests."

"But what will he say to—"

"What does it matter what he says?" said Gloria as she ran back into the dingy hall to scatter good news like flowers. She ordered Royce to attend to the details of transportation and hurried away to inform her father that she had invited three strangers to his country estate. Gloria's feet skipped down the stairway and she was humming as she stepped into the limousine and told the footman, "The office!"

The car started and was checked almost at once by a tangle of trucks. Gloria, looking about impatiently, caught sight of Nell Trask and her father just leaving the opposite tenement. She recognized the old man. She was dumfounded. As she gazed, they were lost in the crowd. She saw that the car could not be turned around. Every moment was precious. Impulse told her not to lose this precious chance. She obeyed impulse.

Without pausing to inform the chauffeur, Gloria opened the door, dropped out, and ran after the Trasks. She picked them up again after a while. She saw a policeman. She resolved to order him to arrest the criminal. As she hesitated, she saw Trask stop and tenderly relieve the weary Nell of her baby's weight. He fondled and kissed the child and laughed with a grandfatherly foolishness. Gloria turned away from the policeman.

She followed at a little distance, wondering what to do. The best thing would be, she felt, to find out where he lived. She followed for blocks. The Trasks climbed the stairs of the elevated. Gloria went up after them. She took the next car on the same train. It seemed that they would ride on forever. For uptown they got out. Gloria got out. She trailed them at a greater distance now because the streets were sparsely populated. The street sloped sharply down to the river. Moored to the wharves were a number of huge, cumbersome barges. To one of these the Trasks clambered. They went down into it through a cabin door.

Gloria was in a plight. She had traced her fugitive to his home. But his home was about to move. A tough-looking tugboat with a tough-looking crew was already fastening a towline to the barge. There was no policeman in sight anywhere. The men loitering about the barges did not appear to Gloria as desirable Samaritans to ask for help.

Another of Gloria's impulses stirred her feet almost against her will. She ran along the wharf, crossed a plank to the Trask barge, and went to the cabin hatchway. She heard voices of anger coming up. The girl was upbraiding her father for deserting her and accusing him of a further crime. She was crying hysterically.

"You killed him. He is dead and you killed him."

The old man denied the charge with frenzy. He laughed at it, swore that he was innocent. The girl was already persuaded and this so enraged Gloria that she darted down the steps and cried out at Trask.

"You did kill him. I saw you."

The Black Man's Burden.
The late Booker T. Washington used to tell this story: He said in one of the black counties of southern Mississippi a meeting was held in the city hall at the county seat for the purpose of organizing a movement to encourage the emigration from the North of desirable skilled labor. As one of the promoters of the plan was leaving the building after the gathering had adjourned, he was halted by an aged darky of his acquaintance.

"Kunnel," inquired the old man, "what you-all been doin' in thar to-night?"

"We're trying to work up a scheme to bring more white people down here," explained the gentleman. "What do you think of the idea, Uncle Zach?" "Well, boss," said Zach, "they's already mo' white folks in dis country now dan us niggers kin support!"—Sunday Magazine.

Question of Physical Labor.
"Do you think Bacon wrote the Shakespeare plays?" "What difference does it make who wrote them?"

"A great deal. If I've got to go through my library and paste in Bacon's name wherever Shakespeare's appears, I want to know about it early so that I can begin."

Played With Fire.
"She talked to him just to let him know she wasn't afraid of old bech-lors."

"Yes." "And he talked to her just to let her know that he wasn't afraid of widows."

"Well!" "Oh, they're married now."

I WISH TO EXPRESS MY APPRECIATION OF THE EXCELLENT vote given me for probate judge in the recent primary election. If elected next November will see that the office is conducted in such manner as to merit the approval of all who support me.
