

HICKS AND PIKE LEAD DEMOCRATS

County Committee Organizes For Campaign Friday

A. M. DOWEN SUCCEEDS HIMSELF ON STATE COMMITTEE.

Meeting Declares Against Vacancies of Ticket—Republicans Chase Young,
Taylor and DeLong.

The Democratic county central committee organized Friday afternoon by electing A. R. Hicks, chairman; Dr. W. F. Pike, secretary-treasurer, and A. M. Dowen, member of the state committee. Two of the legislative candidates for personal reasons had filed tentative withdrawals with the old committee, but did not pass a resolution that "it is the sense of the committee that we are opposed to any vacancies on the ticket and that the committee is hereby instructed to appoint a committee of three, who shall be authorized to fill vacancies should any occur." A resolution was also passed instructing the chairman to appoint a committee of five, who with the chairman and secretary shall constitute an executive committee.

All actions of the meeting were taken unanimously, and all officers were elected by acclamation. A number of talks were made indicating a feeling of harmony and enthusiasm. The committee voted that where no new committeemen had been elected at the primary, the old member should hold over. The personnel of the new committee follows:

Murphy, Ed. Tread, P. H. G. Morgan, Rock Creek, Leroy, Twin Falls No. 1, Thomas Dovey; Twin Falls No. 2, W. F. Pike; Twin Falls No. 3, P. O. Bortune; Twin Falls No. 4, A. H. Hays; Twin Falls No. 5, C. H. Hays; Twin Falls No. 6, John H. White; Twin Falls No. 7, Thomas Robertson; Kimberly, O. G. Zuck; Bortune, H. L. Lewis; B. Russell; Butte, M. Hammond; Buhl No. 1, Jacob M. Shank; Buhl No. 2, E. C. Swanner; Lucerne, W. O. Harrison; Lucerne, C. H. Hays; B. Brewer; Maroon, E. E. Gilbert; Thometz, W. J. Treublood; Shoshone Basin, Lester A. Joslin; Clover, F. D. Weaver. The personnel of the new committee follows:

Amsterdam, W. J. Hilt; Deep Creek, vacant. In the case of Deep Creek, which is a new precinct, the matter of selection was left to the executive committee to fill. While the Democrats were gathering in the office of County Treasurer Harvey Coggin, the Republicans were meeting in the office of County Assessor W. B. Hootch. The committee organized by the election of W. J. Young, chairman; Stuart Taylor, secretary-treasurer, and Carl DeLong, member of the state committee. Resolutions were passed there and, as the meeting was held behind closed doors, the proceedings have not been made public. It was understood that no resolutions were passed.

BURLEY CHILD KILLED BY FALLING AEROPLANE

Girl's Neck Is Broken When Aviator at Fair Dashes Down Into the Crowd.

Burley, Ida.—Ruby Beecher, 10 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Beecher of Burley, was killed instantly when a tractor biplane driven by Aviator B. F. Shank of Chicago, engaged for three days of exhibition flight at Minnesota fair, plunged into a crowd of spectators lining the race track. The child's neck was broken, and several other persons were injured. The machine was a complete wreck. Shank circled the field three times to gain speed and was trying to rise. When facing north he crashed into the crowd. The high altitude is held responsible for the mismanagement of the machine.

WORLD ONION RECORD BROKEN AT FILER

D. L. Beemer Makes Acre That Will Yield 600 Bushels—Bayer Is Astonished; Says It Is Greatest Known.

D. L. Beemer has an acre of onions that bids fair to take the world's record for yield. An onion buyer who was here the first of the week stated that the onions beat anything he ever saw, and he is buying onions all the time. He says that he has never seen here to produce 600 bushels, and if this proves true Dave will have the world's record on onions.

TWIN FALLS LANDS SERIES LEADERSHIP

Loses Sunday's Game, But Jerome's Defeat Leaves Locals at Top of the List.

STANDING OF TEAMS.

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Twin Falls	8	3	.728
Jerome	6	5	.545
Burley	6	6	.500
Rupert	6	6	.500
Shoshone	6	8	.429
Kimberly	0	11	.000

Though Sunday's game was dropped to the Burley aggregation, four to one, Twin Falls is undisputed leader of the league, by reason of Rupert's defeat of Jerome, Twin Falls' closest contender. This leaves the post-season series, for the championship of the Southern Idaho league, to be played off between Twin Falls and Shoshone, winner of the first series. A league meeting of the officials of the league will be held in this city this evening at which time decision will be made as to when and where the three or five-game championship series will be played. An excellent series should be played as it is understood that Shoshone has made arrangements for the return of Fletcher Alexander and some of her other stars of the first series, to aid her in capturing the pennant.

MRS. CARRICO HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Machine Runs Into Ditch and Turns Over—Injuries Are Not of Serious Nature.

Mrs. George B. Carrico was badly hurt Saturday last Saturday just after noon when the auto driven by her husband ran into the ditch in front of the Methodist church on Third avenue and turned over. Mr. and Mrs. Carrico were coming toward town from their home on Addison avenue and desired to turn out at the intersection of Third and Main. The car was traveling at a moderate speed, Mr. Carrico noticed Leonard Bradley coming down Shoshone street after them at a slightly greater speed and in the process of overtaking them. Thinking to get ahead far enough to turn without getting in the way of the Bradley car, Mr. Carrico increased his speed considerably, with the result that he got beyond the proper place for turning before he attempted to switch around. When making the turn he saw his mistake and put on his brake in full, so that the car was running slowly when it struck the ditch. Mrs. Carrico was thrown against the side and bruised considerably, but not dangerously injured. The car was not badly damaged.

DR. E. O. WOODS JOINS U. S. HEALTH SERVICE

Former County Physician Will Be Stationed at Seattle—Dr. Weaver His Successor.

Dr. E. O. Woods, former county physician, has received an appointment in the United States public service as assistant surgeon and has been stationed at Seattle. In a letter to North & Stephan in this city, he stated that he might be at that point for a year or so. He added that he at first declined to enter the army service, but learning that war was probable he determined to seek a place in the public health department. Dr. Woods sent in his resignation to the board of commissioners last week. It was accepted and the appointment of Dr. Weaver, who has been acting in his place, was made permanent.

Canisius, of Buhl, for $55,110 for alleged damage resulting from alleged failure of defendant to deliver 4200 hundredths of wheat which they claim to have purchased from him. Plaintiff alleges that $300 was actually paid on the purchase price of the wheat.

BOND ELECTION ON OCTOBER 24

Voters Will Pass on $40,000 City Building

BONDS FOR INTERSECTIONS ALSO SUBMITTED.

City Council Holds Long Session and Passed on Many Matters of Public Interest.

With Mayor E. M. Sweeney and President R. E. Dobler absent, the council organized last night with Councilman F. F. Bracken in the chair and remained in session until after midnight, transacting all kinds of routine business, besides passing an ordinance for the submission on October 24, of propositions for issuing $40,000 bonds for a city building; $10,000 for putting in of cross crossings as might be deemed necessary by the city engineer, should be submitted; $10,000 bonds for the paving of the intersections of Shoshone street and main sewer, $1000 avenue paving. The amount needed for intersection paving will be incorporated in the ordinance as soon as the city engineer has completed his estimates, and the vote will be taken on definite amounts.

The council opened with a request from L. S. Smith that he be permitted to move his popcorn stand to the edge of the street inside the fence around the Bugh building excavation work. W. E. Nixon wanted leave to attach to shaver in nearby district from plots on Rose avenue, just off the Blue Lakes boulevard. He said he would build a couple of houses if permission should be granted. The city engineer stated that a private sewer district could not legally be intruded upon from the outside territory. It was agreed that several regular requests had been made. The city attorney said that where the proposed sewer from territory not in any sewer district would connect with a main sewer, such connection might be made, with the consent of the city engineer, provided that it was put at such place as would permit its extension should a sewer district be formed later. In this case, the owner must pay all costs. The whole matter, including the sewer request, was referred to the city engineer for further investigation and future report.

Jerrol Bros. had trouble to air. He wanted to know what had become of the Shoshone street paving. The council informed him that at the meeting set for hearing complaints, only Councilman Bracken appeared and that "one swallow did not make a summer, or a single blue bird spring." The council set for October 18 for rehearing of protests. It is understood that there are no protests, but since there was no quorum the first time, another opportunity must be given.

E. J. Finch brought up the matter of securing water for the Sixth avenue hotel. He said that the water supply was now, and with water would be easily beautified. The council voted to put in a tap. Construction Engineer Brown brought up the matter of the placing of poles on Main and Shoshone streets under the new contract. He was instructed to act under the order of the City Engineer Bybee in the matter. Mr. Nixon, nothing down east by his failure to connect up as a private individual, came back strong in his official capacity as a member of the library board. He said that the board had broken the salary of the librarian, and he had paid the honorarium out of his own pocket. The council voted $500, which it is understood will be taken from the work from the door until January 1.

A report from the city engineer to the effect that the sidewalk asked for by the city engineer, and the sidewalk might be installed provided that it were placed close to the lot line, opened a regular Pandora's box of difficulties. James W. Palmer was on the floor.

CHAIRMAN HICKS NAMES COMMITTEES

Honorable Executive Committee and Committee on Vacancies Selected.

The Democratic executive committee was filled yesterday by Chairman A. R. Hicks of the county central committee, by the appointment of Judge J. M. Shank of Buhl; Senator O. O. Zuck, of Kimberly; Thomas Dovey and F. O. DeLune, of Twin Falls, and W. F. Brewer, of Hansen. A committee consisting of O. G. Zuck, J. W. Tanner and Dr. W. F. Pike was appointed to fill vacancies.

WIFE'S JOKE MADE HUBBY SPEED SOME

Owner With Chief Cop Pursues Supposed Car Thief, and Catches His Own Wife.

"It was surely some joy ride," laughed a Twin Falls matron Friday night on the Blue Lakes boulevard, as Chief of Police W. J. Taylor sent a shot through the tire of the auto in which she was riding, bringing the flying car to a halt and ordered the supposed car thief to get out, only to find that the suspected robber was the wife of the man for whom he was pursuing the car. It was a joke on hubby. The masculine partner of the concern was in a card-room when he heard his auto outside begin to chug. Running to the door he saw the vehicle turn a corner and start down Main street. He ran out and called to policeman Taylor who was on the corner, but some one was running away with his car. The two commenced chase and the pursuit began. The leading car dodged around corners and gradually worked to the outskirts of the city. It was a smaller auto than its pursuer and had more powerful engines, so that it was impossible to overtake it. Finally, when the boulevard was reached, both turned on "full throttle" and a speed of fully thirty-five miles an hour was attained. Taylor fired several shots in the air without effect. Finally the owner of the machine declared that he was tired. The first shot at the tire smashed it and brought the race to an end. Expecting to find a desperate character in his wife, the cop knew his cannon ready for action, only to discover that it was a woman's prank on her husband. Hubby thought that he could bring the car back from its place, near the Perrine coupe, where it came to a stand still, and let the wife and the owner of the pursuing car go home. He changed his mind in a few minutes, however, and walked back to the city for a tire.

CASTLEFORD FIELDS PRODUCING HEAVILY

Big Clover Yields Reported by Trench Brothers and J. Heller—Jerrol Bros. Make Much Out.

Red clover seed, while not yielding very heavy around Buhl is making some good yields in the Castleford fields of the Trench Brothers. Jerrol Bros. are threshing their field of red clover seed this week and expect it to average 10 bushels to the acre. The Trench Brothers' red clover seed has averaged an average of 11 bushels to the acre of alfalfa on a field of twenty acres. Jerrol Bros. near Castleford, received an average of 92 1/2 bushels of oats on 17 acres, 70 bushels per acre of wheat on 9 acres.

NOTION TO DISMISS NORTH SIDE SETTLERS' SUIT OVERVIEWED

Judge Dietrich of the United States Court at Boise, last week overruled the motion of the Twin Falls-North Side Land & Water company to dismiss the cases filed some months ago by a number of the settlers of the tract, and briefly discussed the time of the "reversibility case." The contention of the company in its jurisdiction to try the case on its merits.

The ruling by Judge Dietrich is taken to mean that the court holds it has jurisdiction over the case and that he set down for trial at some future date. The principal contention of the plaintiffs is that the main canal is not large enough to carry an adequate supply of water, and they ask the court to require the company to remedy this defect which they allege. BOISE MASONS PLEASSED WITH THEIR VISIT TO TWIN FALLS

The advance guard of prominent Boise masons, who were attending the forty-ninth annual Grand lodge session of Idaho at Twin Falls, arrived home this morning, all bespeaking their hosts. They had been given them in the Magic City and stating that the session just closed was, in point of numbers, the largest session in the history of the order. The fact was that there were fifteen past grand masters in attendance, and number of the members of the notable pioneer Mason, Jonas W. Brown, one of the first Masons to hold that high office in the state.

DIG ALFALFA SEED CHOP AND GOOD PRICE ASSURED

A good crop of alfalfa seed secured to growers in the valley this year, says the Hagerman Herald. The prevailing price at the machine at this time is 15 cents, and the seed cleaned 15 to 16 cents, with the certainty the price will advance materially within a short time.

IDAHO REGIMENT BEST SAYS CHAPLAIN

Reverend A. Stewart Tells of Conditions at Front

POST EXCHANGE FOR MEN IS A WELCOME SUCCESS.

Democracy of Officers Is Reason Given for Success and Good Handling of Idaho Regiment.

"You folks at home may doubt that we are the best regiment on the border but we are, and I ought to know. And the reason for the high standing of the Idaho regiment is the democracy of the officers. It is a 'democratic' regiment, and the men of Idaho are more nearly like regulars, and the men can be put anywhere, and are capable of taking themselves to any conditions." So said Chaplain Stewart of the Idaho regiment to the crowd which packed the Baptist church Sunday evening to listen to his talk on "Conditions on the Border." His talk was informal and of great interest to the friends and relatives of the boys at the front, and his message gave his listeners a closer view of the conditions to which the militia is subjected. Mr. Stewart is home on thirty days' furlough and at his own expense is telling of his experiences and those of the Idaho regiment in order that those interested in the warfare of the boys may understand conditions as they really exist.

It was a bunch of home-sick boys that left Boise for the trip to the border," said Mr. Stewart, "and there was little on the journey to cheer the men. The way there was a long one of recognition until we reached Tucson, Arizona, and there we received our first real welcome. The women of Tucson, God bless them, were awaiting them with cases of milk, food, fruit, sandwiches, cookies, postal cards and letters. The boys were all thoughtful and thoughtful boys to many eyes."

"When we arrived there we found conditions with a man and men of the different companies were taken to fill out extra companies such as those of the machine gun and support companies. The boys were all there unless we hit upon some plan of our own. As the old fashioned 'canteen' was tabooed we hit upon a new one. I spoke to the colonel about it and he fell in with the plan with enthusiasm. A post-office was placed at the front, and canteen food, candy, combos, shoe laces and so forth may be sold to the boys, and the idea came to be filling the canteen with the boys' mail. The profits were to go to the mess fund of each company. We built a store of food, and stocked it with $2000 worth of goods. With no capital as a start we did a business for the month of August amounting to $8000, of which the profits were $1000. This divided among the companies left $14.4 a man, no small sum on the border. The building was situated on the border, and the boys had to pass by, so its inviting appearance is largely the cause of its success. Speaking of mail, I suppose many of you mothers, wives and sweethearts have received letters from the boys lately. This isn't exactly true, for according to Honeyey, who is my assistant in the postoffice here, the boys are receiving more mail a day than you folks in Twin Falls, and this is saying something when you realize that the population of Twin Falls is 9000, whereas there are only 1100 of us. We love to handle the mail and it's a tonic for the boys when they receive some word from home. There is comparatively little sickness on the border. It averages one-half of one per cent. milder than any town in the United States. Great credit is due the medical corps in maintaining sanitation in camp. The boys are all well and happy. I hope you mothers don't have too much fear about having sent your boys off with the Idaho regiment. Our officers are for them from the front to the back. We ought to be proud of those officers from the colonel down to the second lieutenant."

"Some of you folks may think a chaplain with the regiment does nothing but read the service. The mistake. Besides caring for the spiritual needs of the boys, I run a barber shop, a laundry, telegraph office, and with the help of the boys, I run a printing and developing shop. These boys are also (Continued on Page 12.)

BRITISH CRUSH SOMME LINES

German Front Crumbles Before
Terrific Assault
THOUSANDS OF TEUTON PRISON-ERS CAPTURED.

Most Notable Advance Since Anglo-
French Offensive Began In July.
Bulgars Drawing Back.

Smashing the German line on a front of six miles north of the Somme in France, the British forces have made probably the most notable advance since the Anglo-French offensive began July 1.

Three towns, two woods and the possession of nearly all the high ground between Comblès and the Poz-ieres-Bapaume road fell to the British.
Not only did the Germans lose these points but the British drive imperiled the Comblès and Thiepval positions at either end of the British front. The gaining of the high ground north of Comblès gives the British command of the approaches to Bapaume.

The advance on the northern end of the front was for a distance of two miles. Courciottes, east of Thiepval and north of the Pozieres-Bapaume road, and Martinpuich, south of the road, fell into hands of the British.
Further south they took Fleureux and the high wood, making secure their possession of Glincy. The Bouleaux wood, north of Comblès, also was lost to the Germans.

Many Prisoners Taken.

The Germans under Crown Prince Rudolf, of Bavaria, fought stubbornly to hold their ground. London says, and the fighting was severe all along the line. More than 2,000 prisoners were taken by the British.

Aiding the British in attacks on Comblès, the French have taken additional trenches north of Le Prieux farm. South of the river three German trenches near Berry En-Santerre taken by the French, who also captured 200 prisoners.

Unofficially it is reported the Bulgarians retreated 12 miles in front of the entente rush and Athens reports the abandonment of Kastoria by the Bulgarians.

LARGE PRESBYTERY MEETING IN BUHL

Delegates Pass Resolutions Commending the City For the Courtesies Received.

The delegates to the meeting of the Twin Falls Presbytery which was held in our city this week, from the Presbyterian church agreed that they had had one of the best sessions in the history of the Presbytery, says the Buhl Herald. One delegate said: "I will surely come to every Presbytery meeting that is held in Buhl. The people certainly treat us very well."

One of the very interesting features of the Presbytery was the conference of S. S. workers on Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made for the future succeeded in various churches were discussed by the delegates. The spiritual tone of the entire conference was on a very high plane. It is to be greatly regretted that more could not have attended this conference. Special credit should be given Rev. J. K.
McClintock, S. S., for working up the conference.

On Wednesday evening Rev. W. B.
Snoddy gave a splendid sermon on the theme, "The Church Corner Stone." It showed careful thought and preparation. In substance his thought was that modern criticism may attack the Bible but it cannot destroy its power
nor importance of the Chief Corner Stone, Christ.

Nothing of general importance took place during the day, Wednesday. In the evening Dr. R. M. Donaldson, D.
D., of Boise, gave the best address that has been given in Buhl for some time.
His theme being "The Vital Message of the Church of Our Age." In a very striking manner he showed the great power the church has in the present time. A good sized audience listened very attentively to his message.

The music of the popular meeting was very fine. On Tuesday evening the choir sang a beautiful anthem. On Wednesday evening Miss Burr and Mrs. McCuskey sang a duet which was greatly appreciated. On Wednesday evening "Hear O Israel." The solo was a rich treat for music lovers.

On Wednesday all delegates and their wives, together with Mrs. C.
D. Snyder with Mrs. L. F. Constant as assistant hostess. The dinner, service and hospitality of the home were lovely. The dinner was contributed by ladies of the church.

The Presbytery passed resolutions thanking the local church for the royal entertainment, the choir for the music and the ladies for their hospitality.

HOPE TO HAVE COAST
ROAD READY BY SPRING

SAN FRANCISCO.—A real effort to have the coast highway from Mexico to Canada marked and placed in good shape for tourists by next spring will be undertaken by the International Highway association, following a report made by Albert Gill Waddell and Jack Griffin, who recently made the run in the famous world's champion non-stop Maxwell.

Secretary Charles Heffer Linderman of the highway body has outlined a plan of action which, it is expected, will be endorsed by every chamber of commerce and commercial and civic body in the cities touched by the coast route. Active in the work will be J. E.
Montgomery of the Marshallfield chamber of commerce, one of the most strenuous and effective good roads advocates in the west.

"The principal thing to overcome is the effects of the number of takes which have been sent broadcast regarding touring conditions on the coast route," said Secretary Linderman.
"The report of the Maxwell party shows the coast road in fair shape and of such construction as to permit of easy summer travel."

MARSHALL IS FORMALLY NOTIFIED

Will Run Again To Assist Wilson, Says Vice President.

LAUDS EXECUTIVE AND UNCOVERS HUGHES' FALACIES.

The Grave Question Now, Declares Marshall, Is Whether Wilson Can Continue An Honorable Peace

INDIANAPOLIS—Thomas R. Marshall formally accepted the Democratic nomination for the vice presidency here Thursday night, not for additional honor, he said, "but in the hope that I may assist in the re-election of Woodrow Wilson, who has not walked where the path has led but who has walked where there was no path and who has left a trail."

In a speech of acceptance phrased in characteristic vein, the vice president sketched briefly the legislative acts of the administration, in which he said he had been "an onlooker," and eulogized the president. A change of administration, he declared, would not dare repeat a single one of the measures put on the statute books since March 4, 1913.

"The American people this year have made their own issue," said Marshall. "The real issue of this campaign is that thought which goes with the faith in the work of business, which engrosses every mother, wife or sweetheart, which sits down with them at every fireside and goes to bed with them in every home—and that thought is, 'Can the president of the United States continue to so patiently manage our international affairs as to maintain honorable peace?'"

President Pleads Guilty.

"The one bright, peaceful spot under the sun this day is America and it is because the president pleads guilty to the charge of using words rather than shot and shell and sharpness. If America is to lend the world that new formula for distant goal where brute force shall be bound by wisdom and conscience in fetters which it can never again break, then these are the hours for more words."

The vice president made a caustic reference to the refusal of Theodore Roosevelt to accept the Progressive presidential nomination, declaring the former president was a leader "who promised he would lead at Argonne, but who, after deserting at Bull Moose run, and now had 'turned his back on the holy land.' He predicted that the issues put forward by the Republicans would not be accepted as such by the people in the present abnormal year, adding: "You cannot interest a bridegroom in the tariff nor a widow in the coffee trust."

Leading Question.

The all-important question of what the Republicans would have done regarding the Louisiana, Mexico and Belgium, said the vice president, had not been answered by the party's presidential candidate, Charles E. Hughes. He added that "first Americanism" should be categorically defined by those who had coined it, and declared the people would not be willing to discharge one doctor because he was criticized by another who offered no remedy.

"In my opinion," said Marshall, "the average American wants to know what is in the partnership with candidate Hughes in his 'form Americanism.' Does the firm consist of Hughes and Roosevelt, of Hughes and Eisenhower, or of Hughes, surviving partner of the firm of Hughes and Huerta?"

Third Ceremony.

Marshall's notification ceremony was the third of its kind to be held in Indianapolis this fall. The other two nominations were for J. Frank Hanly, the Trotter president, and Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican vice presidential nominee.

Martin H. Glynn, former governor of New York, delivered the speech of notification after having been introduced by J. M. Adair, candidate for governor of Indiana, chairman of the ceremonies. All the speakers praised the present Democratic administration. A big parade preceded the ceremonies.

Buhl News

(From Buhl Pioneer)

Buhl is experiencing a home building boom and many substantial houses are being erected on lots located in the adjoining subdivisions. Parties building for renting purposes have no difficulty in securing tenants and many of the homes have been rented before construction work has been started.

Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock Miss Ruth Olson was united in marriage to Glen Gould, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Laura Olson, on 11th avenue. The wedding was attended only by relatives of the young couple and was conducted by Rev. Evans. Mr. and Mrs. Gould left that evening for southern Utah and Nevada, where they will visit for several weeks. They will be at home to their friends after October 1st.

Postoffice Inspector H. E. Ballard was in Buhl this week to make a report to the department on the new city delivery which Buhl is entitled to. The granting of city carriers is based on mail receipts of the postoffice. While here Mr. Ballard stated that he believed Buhl was the smallest city in the country to be given city delivery. Mr. Ballard also said that the only thing that would delay putting in the carrier system was the lack of street crossings throughout the city. Herman Anderson is erecting an addition to his pool hall in the rear, which will be used as a bath room, says the Buhl Pioneer. He is also connecting the barber shop with hot

WILSON PLANS

HIS CAMPAIGN

Through Addresses at Shadow Lawn and Letters Expects to Give Views to Country.

Long Branch, N. J.—The part President Wilson is to take in the campaign for his re-election was discussed here Thursday by the president, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary Tamm.

The president will begin his "porch campaign" at Shadow Lawn next week. Although he has decided to make no speeches away from here except before non-partisan organizations, his political advisers said Thursday the president expected to be able to get his views before the country effectively.

The campaign for re-election of the president will follow the lines of his speech of acceptance. Through speeches to delegations here and through letters, he will amplify points made in that address, and will accept the challenge of Charles E. Hughes, the Republican nominee, on the issue created by the settlement of the recently threatened railroad strike.

Mr. Wilson also has decided to devote himself strictly to telling of the achievements of his administration.

PREDICTS VICTORY

FOR THE DEMOCRATS

BOISE—That north Idaho will pile up a substantial Democratic majority for both the state and national ticket at the coming election in November, is the prediction of George W. Tanshill, a prominent north Idaho attorney, who is in the city on business before the state bank examiner. Mr. Tanshill states as a significant fact concerning the interest which the Republicans are taking in politics this year that at Lawton, while there was no contest in the Democratic party, there were more Democratic votes cast at the primary election than were cast by the Republicans.—Capital News.

COUNTY DIVISION.

It is evident from the primary returns that a good many voters in this and the east end of the county are not awake to the serious proportions that the county division matter has assumed.

While there is no sense in becoming unduly alarmed over the situation, there is every reason in the world why voters who are not in favor of any division of the county, should not close their eyes to the facts as they exist.

There is a certain fallacy about the whole matter that is entirely too popular, and should be corrected before election. Many people seem to rest securely in the belief that the state legislature passes upon the subject in a wholly disinterested way, entirely upon the merits of the situation. Nothing is farther from the truth, and a good many voters would be sadly disillusioned to awake some fine day with the information that the state legislature had created a new county from the old.

It is very closely within the truth to say that the merits of the case have practically nothing to do with the action the state legislature may take.

The people in Twin Falls county who are not in favor of partition do not want to fool themselves about this.

There have been many counties in this state most foolishly divided. The influence of these counties in state affairs has thus been reduced considerably below the prestige that the larger, undivided counties can command. Thus the senators and representatives from the smaller counties find it to their interest, all other matters being equal, to cast their vote to accomplish for the larger counties just what was done with their own, and to reduce the prestige of the larger counties to the level of theirs.

Aside from these considerations there are a number of communities in Idaho that look at the growth of this section and particularly the city of Twin Falls with more or less apprehension; some of these other cities are affected with nothing more than a natural jealousy for the position they have heretofore maintained; but some of the other cities are feeling the growth of this section in business ways. These places can be depended upon to exert their influence, just as it was exerted at the legislature two years ago, to divide this county, the object of course being an attempt to impede the progress of our city.

In addition to these considerations a general swapping of votes among delegates who foster pet division schemes of their own, can always be expected.

On top of all these, if Twin Falls sends to the legislature a representative who openly stands for the division of the county, and who can be depended upon to solemnly inform the next session of the legislature that his presence there is an indication that the people of Twin Falls county are not very serious in their opposition to county division, the partition of Twin Falls county can most surely be looked for.

There are very few circumstances under which we would seek to deny to the west-end representation in the state legislature; but when Mr. Fred Nihart, the west-end candidate, fails to assure the voters of Twin Falls county that if elected, he will not work directly against their interests in the matter most vital to them, to-wit: county division, then it is time to deny to the west-end representation in the state legislature, in the person of Fred Nihart or any other man who will not represent the wishes of the entire county, instead of the wishes of just the minority division element.

NOT THE SAME.

Zealous partisans of President Wilson are tempting a tardy defense of his "settlement" of the railway strike menace by declaring that what he did was as justifiable as Roosevelt's course in forcing a settlement of the anthracite strike in 1902," says the Statesman.

"As a matter of fact conditions were not the same in 1916 as in 1902—Roosevelt had an actual strike to contend with; he forced the unwilling party to accept arbitration."

"This is what Roosevelt did: 'Mitchell went to him and asked him to hear the miners' side of the case. He consented, and made an appointment and asked Mitchell to bring the other union leaders with him on the date set. He then wired to the mine operators and owners to be at Washington on the same day to present their side of the controversy. Each group of men went without knowledge that the other side was to be present.'"

The Statesman follows this with a long, involved article filled with characteristic misrepresentations of President Wilson, which may be dismissed without comment as its patent unfairness will be evident to readers.

The quoted statements are misleading. In the first place Democrats are no out-and-outers that there is any similarity in the method used by Roosevelt in treating the anthracite coal strike and that used by President Wilson and congress, including a majority of thirty among Republicans in the lower house, in preventing the railroad strike. The great difference is shown in the statement of the Statesman that "Roosevelt had a strike on his hands." Wilson and congress acted to prevent a strike.

Again the description of what took place in the interview with President Roosevelt is false in its essential features. Not only did the operators refuse to comply with the request that they not argue the situation, but they virtually charged the president with bad faith because of alleged failure to protect their property with federal troops, claiming that if military protection were furnished most of the members of the union would go back to work. Finally they refused to submit the matter to a board selected by the president and left, persisting in such refusal. Moved by the statement of the operators that many of the strikers would go back to work if furnished protection, the governor of Pennsylvania a few days later sent 10,000 militiamen into the anthracite districts to protect the mines and mine workers. On the same day the union voted unanimously to continue the strike. The falsity of the operators' claim that they could work the mines if furnished protection being shown up, it became evident that the strike would be won by the workmen, so J. P. Morgan approached Roosevelt in their behalf with a proposal that a certain sort of commission be appointed. The workmen, realizing that they would arbitrate if the president were given a free hand in selecting the commission. Seeing that the game was over, the operators yielded.

It will be seen that the thing was not settled at the mere request of the president to both sides to get together, and was not settled at all until the operators saw that they were losing the fight. Nor would the railroad strike have been averted by any presidential request.

Perhaps the Statesman desired to have the country suffer from a great railroad strike for a few months, in order to "have something on" President Wilson, but san folks who place patriotism and prosperity above the advantage of the trusts, will take the view that the administration was right, as it usually is when the Statesman dissents from its course. Seventy-three Republicans in the lower house took the same view, as did Senator La Follette in the senate.

President Roosevelt's course, while somewhat tardy, was beneficial and gave the losing party a chance to save its face without fighting to the last ditch. It undoubtedly hastened the day of settlement and might have proven abortive were it adopted earlier under the circumstances then existing, but it is better to prevent a strike than to stop one, when possible.

WHO STEUOK BILLY PARKHURST?

It will probably take a man with the making of a better auditor than "Farmer Bill" Parkhurst to figure out just how the Parkhurst majority in Lincoln county and Richfield precinct came to be on the wrong side of the ledger to the extent that it was. Bill went over the state carrying the light to the heathen of other counties and forgot to do any missionary work at home. While he did not "save" the state for himself, he made a pretty good showing, and returned with a good sized deposit of votes, trusting that the laborers in the vineyard at home would have enough balance on hand to meet all requirements. The man with the one talent was a Napoleon of finance as an accumulator compared with Bill's workers at home. At least the scriptural conservative broke even and didn't drop the wad placed in his care. Not so Bill's backers (!) The vote of Lincoln county showed that he was beaten four to one, while his own precinct bettered that had average by returning a five to one majority against him. As there was no place of exterior darkness into which he could consign the unproductive ones except verbally, he had to go into the gloom and do his own gnashing.

Some people say that it is the normal fate of a newspaperman who tries to get into office. Others say it is retributive justice on a newspaper man for trying to get into farming. Both are wrong. It is a case of man trusting to his friends at home while he hustles on the frontier.

The Theatres

FAMOUS ROMANCE WILL

SHOW AT LAYERNING
"Ramona," the best-loved heroine in American fiction, has been endowed with life and motion, and Twin Falls will be given the first chance next Saturday at the Layerning theatre to see with the eye the beautiful half-breed California maiden, who heretofore has been visible to the imagination only through the pages of Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson's delightful romance.

"Ramona," which is a cinema-opera production of the novel, from the studio of the famous California director, W. H. Clark, will open on one day's engagement at the Layerning theatre, Saturday, September 23, and there will be a complete operatic score has been written and arranged to follow every moment of the story flashed on the screen, and this score is interpreted by a symphony orchestra of twenty-five musicians. A chorus of mission singers will be heard in the beautiful hymn at dawn, so vividly remembered by readers of "Ramona," and several other vocal numbers scattered admirably interpretative of the spirit of the California romance.

"Ramona" is credited with having set a new high standard in the recently developed art of the moving picture. You ever saw a girl who ever saw bring her to me. We will give a long and adequate test to the theory that prevails throughout America that youth, beauty and grace, backed by good plays, can make a star of the first magnitude out of a girl of whom the public has never heard."

Jane Caprice is the girl who answered all of these descriptions. "The Shrine of Happiness" is the second Gold Medal play to be shown here. Miss Jackie Saunders, the star in this feature, is called the "Madame of the screen." In this picture she is said to be at her best. The picture will be shown at the Idaho theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Remember too, those same good numbers in sheets, pillows cases and towels at the same low prices as we have been selling them.

Remember, too, those wonderfully good values in house dresses. Splendid fitting, nicely made; good ones as low as 38 cents, not forgetting those "Handy Dandy" and maternity styles and nurses' stripes.

Remember, too, we have those splendid canvas coats that are just the thing for these cool nights and mornings for you men folks and for the boys to wear to school. Mackinaw coats for men, big boys and little men. All at "Right Prices."

TO MR. CASE, SECRETARY OF THE FAIR, AT FILER:
Our store will be closed all day Friday, the 22nd, and we are coming over on the ten o'clock train and spend the day with you at the Fair grounds.

TO OUR GOOD FRIENDS AT FILER:

Closing the store at noon, getting a hurried lunch, and catching the one o'clock train would not make much of a holiday, so we will make it a full holiday on Friday and come over and spend the day with you.

TO ALL OUR FRIENDS:

Those who have been such good friends, loyal to the store, coming back often, and bringing others with you, telling us that the goods we have sold you were satisfactory. You will be interested in knowing that our business is growing. Our sales for July showed an increase of more than 40 per cent. over the same month last year and our sales for August showed an increase of over 60 per cent. compared with August of a year ago.

We still have the same good numbers in hosiery for men, women and children. The same good black and the same RIGHT PRICES and the same splendid numbers in underwear for all members of the family.

SOCIETY NOTES

The G. U. Pleasure club held its last meeting for the summer Thursday afternoon with Mrs. J. H. Rogers. The club have been kept of the different partners including during the summer and it was found that Mesdames Karls, Steel, Putzier and Newman were the losers, and upon them falls the duty of entertaining the women and their husbands at some future date.

The occasion being her birthday anniversary, a six course dinner was served after which a birthday cake was brought on holding the number of "Candles" corresponding to Mrs. Conover's age. After the usual toast and good time the party went to the Idaho theater for the remainder of the evening. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Conover, Mesdames Parsons and Philbrick, Misses Besse Conover and Stella Porrine, Messrs. Roy Hood and Roy Richards, Master Melvin Philbrick.

School Notes

Plans for the usual assembly programs are being formed by the various divisions. The custom in the past has been to have a weekly entertainment given to the auditorium by each division in succession, thus enabling every person in school to appear on the platform. The programs vary from readings to plays, and from music to debates. Each school organization and club also is frequently called upon to participate in this school activity. As schedule is made out for the election of the school year and each division and organization is then notified as to the approximate date it is expected to appear. The system of entertainment was a decided success last year, and there is no reason why it should not continue to be so in the future.

The election of the "Coyote" board will take place in the near future, probably within a week. The editor-in-chief, and business manager, are to be chosen from the senior class, according to usual custom. Assistant editor and assistant business manager from the junior class, and a class reporter from each of the four classes. Athletic editor and exchange editor are to be elected by the student body. The support of everyone interested in the high school insofar as the "Coyote" is concerned, is earnestly solicited by its student supporters.

The seventh and eighth grades of the Bickel school have been transferred to room 3 of the high school this morning. The new building under Mrs. Krengle, history under Mr. Mitchell, domestic science under Miss Hunsate, manual training under Mr. Smith, and penmanship under Miss Schorn.

This year's football team will be composed of a large group of new men. The only veterans left are Scott, Carter, Avant, fullback; Bailey, guard; Newman, quarter (not a regular); McEachern, half back and running back (lar). As yet, two full teams have not appeared on the grounds. Scrimmage will not be on the daily program until the signals have been made. They will be studied, possibly tomorrow or Tuesday evening. Stiff limbs and sore muscles are annoying the majority of the boys who have been out. They attribute it to the run home after practice. Much objection has been raised in regard to the cold shower, but Coach Votter believes it better than hot water, which they will receive once a week.

A dance was given by the Younger set at Coulton hall Friday night. It was attended by about a dozen couples.

A class in French three has been organized and is now under the supervision of Miss Goebel. The extent of this subject hitherto has been French one and two.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, with his daughter Gloria, is a successful young man who has chosen out of the restraint of a governor from whom she repeatedly has been banished. Gloria is a young girl who has been banished from her home by her father, Pierpont, for her love of a young man named Royce. Gloria is a young girl who has been banished from her home by her father, Pierpont, for her love of a young man named Royce. Gloria is a young girl who has been banished from her home by her father, Pierpont, for her love of a young man named Royce.

man, transported the three to Pierpont's country place. Royce smiled. Pierpont grew more furious. "Oh, I'm not afraid of her just because she is only a child," she got to obey me and get rid of them." "Tell her so, sir," said Royce, amused at the old man's helpless bluster. "Oh, I'll tell her!" Pierpont snarled. "Where is she?" No one knew. Royce suggested that she had probably gone to the country place to see her new playmates. So Pierpont ordered out with Royce. He told Royce that he would really have to get rid of the unwelcome guests, if only to prove to Gloria that she was not yet the absolute boss of the family. That victory was worth going miles to see," said Royce. They reached the country place, only to find that Gloria had not been seen nor heard of. Her three guests were there, however, installed for a long stay. That victory was so heartened at having a water's family, to wait on that he offered his notice. Pierpont decided to invite the waiter's family and save the butler. He took them to it, and Gloria, who had been waiting for him, came to the house. He stalked forth like a constable with a writ of eviction. The boy Stas caught sight of him and ran and swung his arms about his neck and began to tell him of the wonders of his own country place, of trees and flowers and birds and animals—commonplace things to Pierpont, but miracles to the boy from the slums. Casimir had gathered an armload of flowers for his sick wife, and he was glowing with the feeling that she was better already. Pierpont had a great deal of Gloria's impulsiveness and a great deal of her astounding tenderness. He lost his temper in flashes, but his charity burned steadily and deeply, and now Stas had won his heart. He could not unclasp that child's arms. In fact, he lifted Stas to his arm and held him there while he told the butler he could leave without notice if he did not like the guests of the house. Also Pierpont told Royce that he must take particular care of Casimir's wife. Royce laughed at the old man's complete collapse, and said: "It's a pity Gloria isn't here to see you. I wonder where on earth she is." "She's somewhere out tonight," he said, "but she's sure." Pierpont growled, as he stared at his section of the Hudson, where, fighting against the current, a little tug was visible, towing an old canal barge loaded to the water line. Then he added: "She's probably on that barge now, adopting the barge-masters' family."

He could imagine nothing more extravagantly impossible, in any way, than that. And yet, the truth kept pace with his extravagance. For Gloria was indeed even then on board just such a barge being towed upstream by just such a tug. Only Gloria, and now adopting the barge-masters' family, she was being adopted by it. She was a prisoner and her life was in pawn. Gloria's curiosity as to one problem was solved. She had not out that her vision of Frenau's murderer was not a delirium. She had seen the assassin and heard him accused by his own daughter. One trouble with satisfying curiosity is that every curiosity satisfied opens up new curiosities. Gloria now was frantic to know why Gideon Trask killed Frenau and how Trask's daughter was involved in the crime. Next, she was curious to know how she was to escape with her knowledge, once she had it. When Trask heard Gloria's voice over his shoulder accusing him of the crime he was denying, he whistled as if an angel had spoken with the voice of conscience. An angel would have been hardly more surprising than the look of Gloria on the stairway of the barge. Trask had no idea of Gloria's identity. He could not imagine who she was, and he came, or why she accused him. He stood transfixed a moment, then moved toward her with a moment. Gloria retreated up the steps, but he leaped at her and dragged her down and seized her by the throat, as he had seized Frenau.

She tried to scream, but she could not make a sound. Nell attempted to restrain her father, but he turned on her with terror and wrath: "If she goes away, I go to the chair!" He might have throttled her then and there, but there was a jolt, the barge shook as the towline dragged it away, and down the hatchway came the voice of Trask's helper, Jed. Trask hurried Gloria against the wall and warned her that if she made a sound it would be her last. He would bring her neck and throat her into the river. Gloria covered in utter dread of him and remembered the fate of her poor lover, whose body the same stream had received and kept for days.

Gloria's Arguments Were Poked With the Poker.

When Trask stamped up the cabin stairs and banged the hatchway down Gloria studied the girl. She had been beautiful, and still was pretty but too sad. Just now she was too angry. Nell had been fighting against her father till this unknown woman appeared from nowhere. Now Nell was all for her father against the world.

Gloria spoke to her, questioned her about Frenau. Nell did not answer at all, only in grumbling monosyllables. Gloria tried to bribe Nell to let her escape. Gloria offered larger and larger sums till Nell would have been dazzled if she had been convinced. At last she spoke:

"Say, do you think you are? The Dime Savings bank? And who do you think I am? I ain't a delirium. If your father had all the money you're making up he has, do you think you could buy my father with it? No!"

Gloria liked her better for that, but she was none the less determined to escape if she could. She talked no more, but she thought harder than ever before.

Nell went on getting her father's supper at the little stove, clattering the pans and jabbing the fire with the poker angrily.

Gloria had often steamed up the Hudson on her father's yacht. This

The very name Frenau seemed to madden Trask. He emitted a loud yelp of hate and derision and left the table. He moved toward Gloria, but changed his mind or deferred his purpose and went up the stairs, closing the hatch and fastening it above. There was nothing reassuring in his last look at Gloria.

Nell was clearing up the table when she saw that Gloria was faint with hunger or terror. She offered Gloria the remnants of the supper. Gloria was glad to get it. She ate like another pauper. She felt that she would not have what strength she would acquire. Her will was dancing as she tried to think out a means of escape. She could not fight Nell and her father and the big man, too. She could not overcome them with force, and she had no weapon but her five wits, and they had never been trained to such problems.

She was as helpless before them as she had been when she was a little fifteen-year-old girl at Palm Beach and her governors had given her a problem in algebra (a-b)(x-b). She had stared at that (x-b) as she stared at this one.

Doctor Royce had happened along then and smiled at the easy task. He could probably solve this problem, too, but he was not here. She was alone and the solution depended solely on her.

She thought and thought while Nell cleared the table. She offered to help Nell and was permitted to aid in the work. When the last dish was removed to the wash basin Gloria and Nell took opposite ends of the conch tablecloth. When it was folded twice the two girls began to bring the two ends together, as people do who are folding tablecloths.

Nell stopped short at the proper moment; Gloria went toward her. The solution came to her in a flash. Instead of putting given two ends of the tablecloth in Nell's fingers, she whipped the cloth over her head, brought it down around her elbows, and after a furious struggle, forced Nell back into a chair and knotted the tablecloth corners under the arms.

She snatched a pair of dish towels from the wall and tied Nell's feet to the legs of the chair. Nell fought like a wild woman in a straitjacket, but the knots held.

Gloria was out of breath, but she was proud as Punch over her victory. She stood up panting and exclaimed: "Well!"

So far so good. But there was still Trask to settle with—and Jed—also. She had not tablecloths enough for all three, and she doubted if she could hoodwink those giants in the anno way.

Another scheme occurred to her. She had noticed Nell poking up the fire at the little stove. Now Nell was quieting down and it was safe to leave her.

She ran to the stove, lifted the lid and set the poker in the red coals. It was a grand idea and she was tremendously enthusiastic. But the poker was not. It was in no hurry whatever. They say that a watched poker never glows. Gloria heard somebody working at the hatch before the poker and attained as much blush as a hard-boiled slinger feels on his cheek at a little mistake.

She heard Trask's footsteps. She could see his feet on the stairway. She stared at the poker and whispered: "Hurry up." The poker was in no hurry.

Trask paused to call Jed, then he began to come down the stairway. Gloria was stupefied to see how much there was of him. His face appeared that of all and it appalled her. He carried a rope in his hand.

Trask did not see Gloria at first. But he caught sight of the animated blotter in the rocking chair and it frightened him. He stared back. But a snatched shriek came from the depths. "Tai Tai! It's me! She did it!"

Trask understood that of the witch woman had performed another of her feats and he was sure that he was under the voodoo. Then he saw Gloria standing by the stove. She looked so small and so timid that he regained courage. He roared at Gloria and moved toward Nell. Gloria cried: "Stand back!"

Trask was so astonished by her impudence that he laughed. "Why, you little dirty pullet, I'll tie you up and drop you in the river!" "Oh, you will!" said Gloria.

She snatched the poker from the fire. Trask laughed at it. She hit the table with it—and sparks flew. She rubbed it on the wooden top of the table and smoke arose. There was a hissing sound. Trask shuddered. Gloria jabbed at him with her red-hot sword. He could feel the searing pain of it before it reached him. When it arrived where he was he was not there. Gloria was a trifle conceited over her success.

And now, what next? She saw the rope in his hand. He had brought it to tie her with. The next idea came. She snatched a trifle.

"You thought you would tie me up, did you? Well, you can just tie yourself up!"

Trask could hardly believe that anyone would be cruel enough to inflict such an insulting injury. But Gloria's arguments were poles with the poker.

If Trask had been more intelligent and less confident, and had known how, he might have tied himself up as the cabinet tricksters do—so that he could slip out easily. But this was before him at the time, and Gloria was vigilant.

She made him fasten the rope around a stanchion, then knot it about one wrist, then pass it around him till he looked like a package of Gloria's own tying. The last knot she attended to herself. She set the poker on a plate within easy reach, and knotted, and knotted, and knotted. Trask gnashed his teeth with rage, but he could not budge. He yelled just once, then he seized a dish towel, whirled it into a roll and gagged him so that he could not even gnash his teeth.

Gloria heard footsteps along the deck overhead. Probably Jed was coming down. The poker was cold. There was no time for reheating it. Something must be done at once. She put out the lamp that Nell had lighted, she set at the foot of the stairs a wicker rocker, she laid out on its seat and fell back to await developments.

Jed came down the stairs in the dark. As he left the last step he put his foot in the wicker rocker as he was in a trap. Jed went on over with a crash that shook the barge. He was yelling that he was being bitten to death by a wildcat, when Gloria sidled past him, ran up the stairs and out on deck. She closed the hatch, fastened it and gnashed her teeth at the darkness.

She looked about her now and saw that she was in the middle of the Hudson river and a great distance from either shore. The view was magnificent in the gloaming, but she had had enough of it and the hateful tug was turning over the water and dragging the barge farther and farther north.

She saw the tiller of the barge flopping idly, and it occurred to her that if she could get free from the tug she could steer the barge where she liked. Somewhere below was her father's home. Stas and his father and mother would be waiting for her. Perhaps her own father was alarmed. It was time for her to go home. She should take her prisoners back to her father and deliver them to whatever punishment seemed right.

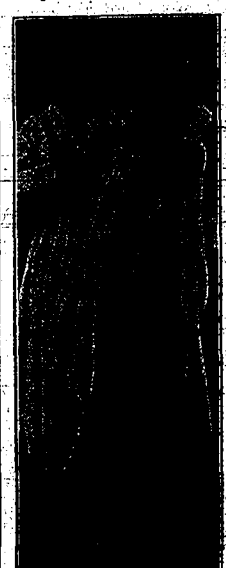

She had never steered a canal barge, but she imagined that it would be about the same as a motor boat in general principles. Fortunately the barge had been carried so far north that the current would act as engine power.

She was delighted with the scheme. She went forward and saw the big hawser sagged in the middle and cut the water. The tug had begun to move to its work, churning up a noisy wake. She could see the backs of the crew of the tug where they sat smoking and solemn and bored to death.

They would have had a good laugh for the share. She found an ax on deck and attacked the big rope. She hit everything but the hawser, and when she hit that at last it was like hitting a huge rubber band. The ax bounced out of her hands and just escaped falling into the river. She picked it up and chopped at the hawser where it was wound. Every third or fourth blow hit the cable and severed a few strands. And finally the rope gave and flew. The barge quivered at its release from the tension, and the tug suddenly unblinded from its load, jumped forward and sent the crew sprawling.

Gloria ran to the tiller to steer her prize home. She was greatly disappointed when she heard the yell from the tug and saw that the pilot already was making ready to recapture the barge as soon as he could take in the tow. Also she could faintly hear the howls of her cabin and confused prisoners. If the tug men came aboard and released them, what would become of Gloria? Gloria wondered. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

CROWS' ROOSTS NOT MENACE

Federal Department of Agriculture Explains How Nature Has Arranged Things Beneficially.

The latest year book of the department of agriculture gives an account of one of the most interesting bird phenomena that still persist in the thickly settled eastern and central states—in "roosts" where crows gather every night in cold weather. Although, even in the nesting season, crows are more or less gregarious, their habit of sticking is most conspicuously displayed during the winter. In September they begin to migrate toward a comparatively small area of the country—the territory from Connecticut south to Virginia and westward beyond the Mississippi river. Their roosts are usually stands of pine or other evergreens, although sometimes they pass the night in groves of deciduous trees. Roosts are often established in the near neighborhood of large cities; one at Arlington, Va., just across the Potomac river from Washington, is supposed to have contained at times as many as two hundred thousand birds. Several other equally populous roosts have been observed in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Fortunately, the crows do not feed together, but as a rule disperse by day and forage over a wide area, so that the roost is not so serious a menace to crops in its vicinity as might be supposed. Youth's Companion.

Gloria Seized a Dish Towel and Gagged Him.

He was touched in a tender spot when he heard that his scapegrace daughter Gloria had invited three guests to make his secret retreat their more or less permanent home. She had not consulted him and the guests were the last people in the world he would have invited. It was nice enough for Gloria to take pity on poor water man, but Gloria was not sweet of her to adopt the child. Pierpont had even forgiven her by now for compelling him to hunt employment for the waiter. But then what followed? Gloria invited the boy and the boy and the father to make themselves at home in Pierpont's own sanctuary. That move was far more than too much.

"This has got to stop, and I'm going to stop it!" Pierpont stormed to Doctor Royce, who had, at Gloria's command, transported the three to Pierpont's country place. Royce smiled. Pierpont grew more furious. "Oh, I'm not afraid of her just because she is only a child," she got to obey me and get rid of them." "Tell her so, sir," said Royce, amused at the old man's helpless bluster. "Oh, I'll tell her!" Pierpont snarled. "Where is she?" No one knew. Royce suggested that she had probably gone to the country place to see her new playmates. So Pierpont ordered out with Royce. He told Royce that he would really have to get rid of the unwelcome guests, if only to prove to Gloria that she was not yet the absolute boss of the family. That victory was worth going miles to see," said Royce. They reached the country place, only to find that Gloria had not been seen nor heard of. Her three guests were there, however, installed for a long stay. That victory was so heartened at having a water's family, to wait on that he offered his notice. Pierpont decided to invite the waiter's family and save the butler. He took them to it, and Gloria, who had been waiting for him, came to the house. He stalked forth like a constable with a writ of eviction. The boy Stas caught sight of him and ran and swung his arms about his neck and began to tell him of the wonders of his own country place, of trees and flowers and birds and animals—commonplace things to Pierpont, but miracles to the boy from the slums. Casimir had gathered an armload of flowers for his sick wife, and he was glowing with the feeling that she was better already. Pierpont had a great deal of Gloria's impulsiveness and a great deal of her astounding tenderness. He lost his temper in flashes, but his charity burned steadily and deeply, and now Stas had won his heart. He could not unclasp that child's arms. In fact, he lifted Stas to his arm and held him there while he told the butler he could leave without notice if he did not like the guests of the house. Also Pierpont told Royce that he must take particular care of Casimir's wife. Royce laughed at the old man's complete collapse, and said: "It's a pity Gloria isn't here to see you. I wonder where on earth she is." "She's somewhere out tonight," he said, "but she's sure." was her first voyage on a canal barge. The place was extremely unlike her father's yacht, but the savor of the frying pan made Gloria democratically hungry. When Trask came back, however, his cold eyes took her appetite away. But not his own. She watched him wolf his food; she felt that he was half insane, a relentless fanatic with a wild crime.

His eyes kept rolling in her direction. He found her so mysterious that he was half afraid of her. He remembered the loneliness of that winter night by Soldiers' and Sailors' monument. He remembered the appearance of Frenau alone and no other human being in view. His very hands remembered the death grasp they took on Frenau's throat. He snarled. "That was one good deed, at least, he told himself."

But he could not imagine how this girl could have seen him. How could he guess that she had sat at her window and watched the whole tragedy. He began to grow superstitious. Gloria was apparently able to perform miracles. She wore the invisible cloak. Perhaps she would leave as mysteriously as she had come.

Finally he grew brave enough to shout out at her. "Who are you? What was Frenau to you?" Gloria knew that anyone who blusters is likely to be weak, so she answered coldly: "Never mind who I am. The main thing is, who are you and what was Frenau to you?"

The Vera Cruz Incident and the A. B. C. Meditation.

By James D. Whelan

THE hero of the Appomattox once demanded a salute for the flag, which under international law he was entitled to demand, and did not get it. Moreover, on the suggestion of Spain, of which the salute was demanded, he agreed to dispose with it, although insisting that he was right in making the demand. The incident is known as "The Virginus Affair" and presents a striking similarity to the Vera Cruz incident in many of its details. The trouble arose in the Cuban waters during the time that the ten years' war which raged from 1895 to 1898 was devastating that fair island. Conditions in "The Gem of the Antilles" with reference to respect for American rights previous to the trouble over the Virginus was much like those existing in Mexico before the Vera Cruz incident.

We know that for several years prior to the beginning of the Wilson administration (as well as since that event) a condition of affairs existed south of the Rio Grande that was unfortunate and unsatisfactory. Henry Lane Wilson, who was ambassador to Mexico under President Taft, declared that during the administration of President Madero alone, "eighty-four Americans had been killed in Mexico and not one murderer had been punished." It will be recalled that there was much disturbance during the latter part of the Diaz regime. In the course of the revolution, before Madero became president, so that it is safe to say that the number of Americans killed during that period of turmoil would swell the total considerably. Nor was it alone on Mexican soil that Americans were killed. On March 1911, as pointed out by Senator Borah in the senate in a speech delivered January 12, 1916, "seven American citizens were murdered just on this side of the border line near Douglas, Arizona, and eleven others were wounded." Besides these named specifically by Senator Borah the following incidents occurred during the Taft administration: On April 15, 1911, three Americans were killed and five wounded in Douglas during an attack on Agua Prieta. Four days later in an engagement at the same place, five more Americans were wounded on this side of the line. On May 12, 1911, at the storming of Juarez, five Americans were killed and eleven others wounded in the city of El Paso, Texas. The government at Washington held that these incidents were not intentional and repeatedly denied that intervention was intended. On December 12, 1912, when reports of intervention were again started, President Taft denied them and praised the policy of "patient non-intervention" which had been pursued during his administration. The overthrow and murder of President Madero, the ouster of Huerta under color of title and the repudiation of his government by Carranza, increased the turmoil already existing in the nation to the flag at the time by the Huerta garrison, and their commander.

To show the similarity of conditions in Cuba at the time that the Virginus affair brought the demand for an apology, afterwards revoked, we have only to turn to the messages of President Grant and to the writings of standard authorities on international law. The Cuban rebellion broke out at Yara in 1895. In his work "The United States and Foreign Powers," William Hervey Curtis says: "The interests of the United States were deeply affected, owing to the large amount of capital from this country invested in the sugar plantations and coffee estates throughout the island. In August, 1895, the Spanish authorities in Cuba issued a decree seizing the estates of all persons who were not of sympathy with the revolution. Under this decree the property of many American citizens, valued at millions of dollars, was confiscated. The protest made by General Sikes at Madrid resulted in a decree releasing such estates as were owned by Americans, but the authorities on the island paid little heed to this action, and it was not until a voluminous correspondence had taken place that any measure of relief was secured."

It will probably give a shock to those confiding persons who get their information from "viciousness and interested politicians to learn that General Grant would enter into a "voluntary correspondence" in order to secure for American citizens a portion of the rights which the other party conceded by decree that they were entitled to. The man on the dry goods box will tell you that protracted correspondence is indulged in by "mollycoddlers, and such," and that real men always "act" when dealing with foreign nations. It may also be noted that in the instance cited above it was officials of Spain who confiscated the property and failed to restore it, and not irresponsible rebels or bandits as has been frequently the case in Mexico. However, the bandit and guerrilla was doing his part in Cuba. In his seventh annual message, sent to congress December 7, 1878, about the time that the Virginus affair was adjusted, President Grant describes conditions in Cuba as deplorable and shows the widespread destruction wrought by irregular warfare of the contending parties, winding up, however, by opposing either intervention or the recognition of the independence or the belligerence of the insurgents. Relative to general conditions, and without referring to either the contention of either party, he says: "The same disregard of the laws of civilized warfare and the demands of humanity which have heretofore called forth expressions of condemnation from the nations of Christendom, has continued to blacken the sad scene. Desolation, ruin and pillage are prevailing the rich fields of the country. Practically one-half of the high school enrollment comes from outside the Flor district. The old-school board met Monday and closed up the business for the past year. The new board was then organized by the election of H. J. Weaver, chairman; A. E. Anderson, secretary, and Elmer E. Haug, treasurer. The chairman then appointed the following committees: Finance, L. M. Smith and Jacob Musser; teachers, P. C. Graves and Jacob Musser; buildings and grounds, Elmer Haug and A. E. Anderson.

FILER
Last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wilkinson occurred the marriage of their son, Ralph C., to Miss Hanna Hille of Mountain Home. Rev. E. E. Crabtree officiating. The groom has charge of the tailoring department of the Wilcox barber shop. School reopened Monday with an enrollment of 310. Last year's enrollment for the first month of school was only 312, so considered a "copy" that he may be expected. The high school reopened with an enrollment of 38. This locks but one pupil of equaling the enrollment for the entire year 1915-1916. The attendance is expected to come up to 125 before the close of the year. BUN OVER BY AN AUTO WHILE STALKING COYOTE

Late Thursday, while E. R. Dooley was making his usual ride over the high line canal in his auto, he ran into an object in the tall weeds on the bank, and upon investigation discovered it to be Louis Schmidt, who was lying in wait for a coyote. He was stalking, says the Filer Journal, the car ran over the man's legs and as he made an upward move the brake rod caught him in the small of the back, injuring him painfully. Mr. Schmidt's clothes were completely torn from him, and it was necessary to carry him home in a conveyance that he might receive medical attention. No bones were broken.

NEW RESURVEY IS ORDERED FOR IDAHO

Government Engineers instructed to Give More Consideration to Present Lines.
A new survey of the Snake river valley has been ordered by the government, although technically no fault was found with the resurvey made last year. The reason for the new running of lines seems to be that sufficient attention was not given to existing lines in the resurvey of last year. A circular to the press this week by the department of the interior says:
Although the resurveys along the Snake river in townships 9 south, ranges 14, 15 16 and 17 east, executed in 1915 by James Spafford, U. S. surveyor, were made in strict conformity with the instructions caused to be issued by the general land office and the prior practice of that office, said resurveys have been rejected by the commissioner of the general land office and a new survey will be made with the existing property lines given more consideration in the resurvey. It is expected the surveying party will be on the ground for this work not later than November 1.

W. Lane, quartermaster, respectively of the First and Second Illinois regiments of infantry, he returned here for court-martial, was sent to the war department at Washington by Maj. General Funston today.
It is charged that they were guilty of neglect of duty in caring for government property by losing some 15 horses and mules valued at about $15,000 belonging to the United States army.
The lost animals were among others turned over to the two regiments when they came south. Receipts were given by the quartermasters. It is not known what became of the horses and mules.
Gen. Funston said he would prosecute every supply officer in the service guilty of this sort of negligence.

his feet at once and pointed out that this would prevent the beautification of the avenue and to assert that it was unfair. He said that the rights of property owners on that side of the street should be looked after and that if necessary to leave parking for them, the street should be widened from the property at the other side. He said that the narrow street was a result of spite work on the part of one man. The city attorney said that the street could only be widened from the lots of the fellows to the south by condemning their property and paying for it. It was suggested that they should build and place sidewalks and parking on the north side of Elizabeth and if the passageway was not then wide enough for passing to and fro, with vehicles, the other streets and the alleys could be used. J. S. Keel said he owned property on the north side of the boulevard and that it would suit him to have the street widened from the lots of the fellows to the south by condemning their property and paying for it. Mr. Palmer agreed that it would suit all property owners there. The city engineer was instructed to permit such paving and parking, the paving to be four feet in width.

Having gotten his hand in, Mr. Keel said he had a lot of things to lay before the council. In the first place, he wanted the block where he lives on Sixth avenue north paved. He was sandwiched in between non-resident property owners and grounds belonging to the school district. Conditions

BUTCH CAPTURED FLYING JACK RABBIT

Wonderful Things That Judge W. J. Smith Saw When He Got Up Early and Perfectly Sober.

That the wild and woolly days had returned was the opinion of Police Judge W. J. Smith Saturday morning, when he went forth on Main street to gather up his pair of "crowbats" that had broken loose and saw a full grown jackrabbit come tearing down the principal thoroughfare from the direction of the Idaho Department store toward the spot on the corner of Third and Main street east, where his honor was standing. The judge whooped at the longed-for one as he used to do in pioneer days, ten years ago, and his rabbitlike stopped, stuck up his ears and sat down for a moment, after which he fled down Main street at an increased rate. As the big bonny approached the railroad track, a man coming up town with a handsome (?) bulldog called out, "get him Butch." Again, equal to the occasion, charged into the street on the bewildered rabbit and had him while you could say "scat."

The temperate habits of Judge Smith and his well known reputation for truth and veracity are sufficient guarantees that all the above wonderful things happened.

Kimberly Items

Frank Watson, who has been running the electric hotel at the new bank and 1. O. O. F. building, met with a serious accident Thursday. While filling the hotel his coat sleeve caught in the cogwheels and resulted in the loss of his right arm. As our local doctor was not in town he was immediately taken to Twin Falls and at this writing is doing nicely. The people of Kimberly have raised in the neighborhood of $250.00 for Mr. Watson and think there will be considerably more raised.

The opening of the Wilson Bros. store Saturday, September 16th, was one of the greatest events and has been held in Kimberly for some time. The car was stopped and he was immediately picked up and the dust removed from his eyes and mouth, but other than being shaken up he was not badly hurt.

The Kimberly fire team, numbers one and two, crossed into Sunday with a score of 9 to 11 in favor of team number two. The game was real interesting and the fans all report they got their money's worth.

Arthur Allen was taken seriously ill while in church Sunday. He was taken home and is still ill at this writing.

Professor Downing was a Twin Falls visitor Saturday.

The Celebrated Crawford Players

In their transcontinental tour will be at the Gem Theater in Filer, during the fair, Sept. 20 to 23. Don't fail to see them and hear the wonderful music produced by the new electric calliope. This is the first electric calliope ever brought to Idaho, and is run by the battery of the Dodge Brothers car in which the Crawford players travel. This Dodge Brothers car was purchased in Kansas City, Mo., over fourteen months ago; has been in continuous use ever since by this company; has traveled over 9500 miles through Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho, through snow, mud and dust, and all the time pulling a 1500-pound trailer loaded with scenery and equipment, beside hauling five people and a two hundred pound electric calliope in the car. This is the fourth make of car tried by this company and the first one to do their work satisfactorily. It is now on the second set of tires, which is a wonderful performance considering the mud-carried and the roads traveled, the average of gasoline used is a gallon to every sixteen to eighteen miles and less than five dollars has been the expenditure for repairs and parts in the fourteen months. This car has never been stuck, but has taken its load through deep snow and mud and over three of the steepest climbs in the west, having pulled the Madison, Continental, and Ashton summits without unloading or without the slightest difficulty. This company has never missed a date during the fourteen months and for eighteen weeks straight played in different places every night (Sundays Excepted). During this time none of the company has ever ridden on the train.
