WILL ADDRESS THE PEOPLE

Governor Will Define His Position on Political Questions—Meetings at Hansen and Kimberly Today and Hollister, Filer and Buhl Tomorrow

Governor Alexander will address the people of Twin Falls and vicinity at the Lavinger theatre tonight at 8 o'clock, formally opening the Democratic campaign in this city in behalf of the Democratic party. State issues will be discussed and national issues touched upon by the chief executive of Idaho. A general invitation to every body to be present, has been issued by the committee.

Governor Alexander and party arrived at Hansen on the noon train today and after addressing the people there came on the afternoon train to Kimberly, where he is now speaking. Tomorrow morning an address will be delivered at Hollister and at 2 o'clock p. m. at Filer, after which the governor will go to Buhl for a night meeting.

ACTION IS RESULT OF AUTO COLLISION

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Steele Sue Henry Siver, for $1275—Assert Negligence and Willful Injury.

J. A. Steele and Clara Steele, his wife, have brought suit in the district court for $1275 against Henry Siver, for damages which they allege resulted from an auto collision on the Kimberly road, for which they claim that the defendant was responsible.

Plaintiffs allege that they were driving in their auto along the Kimberly road at the rate of fifteen miles an hour at 11 o'clock a. m. on August 24, keeping well on their own side of the highway, when defendant coming from the other direction "driving at a great and excessive speed, carelessly, negligently, willfully and with design to injure plaintiffs herein," so manipulated and drove his automobile into them when but a short distance from said plaintiff's car, turning directly toward them, the said plaintiffs, so that it collided with great force with the automobile driven by said plaintiff.

Plaintiffs allege that the auto in which they were riding was repaired at a cost of $15 and suffered injuries of a serious character to the value of $200. It is further alleged that the plaintiff, Clara Steele, suffered injuries, by reason of physical and mental suffering, for which damages of $1000 should be given.

MRS. CHIPP ORGANIZING W. C. T. U. IN COUNTY

President Chipp of the Idaho W. C. T. U. who attended the district meeting at Knoll last week, and spoke at the joint meeting of the Twin Falls Anti-Saloon League Sunday, went to Filer Monday and organized the society there. Tonight she will hold a meeting at Curry. Mrs. Chipp has expressed her pleasure with conditions in this part of the country and, in common with Twin Falls members, she declares that she is delighted with the "entertainment" furnished by the people at Knoll.

NEWSPAPER SAID TO BE INCENSED OVER NEWSPAPER CRITICISM

Legal action is said to be contemplated over an editorial published last week in the Twin Falls Chronicle with reference to B. T. Newbery, of Kimberly, Republican candidate for commissioner of the first district, to which Newbery alleged that he reflected on his integrity as an official in connection with the erection of the court house and other acts of his, while he was on the board on a former occasion, and that one of the terms used seemed to convey a reflection on his morals. It is reported that the candidate has filed the matter below the court house and is now endeavoring to have the article published without furnish the basis for a prosecution, should the publisher fail to remove the article from the paper, and that a local firm of lawyers have been consulted relative to the steps, if any, that should be taken.

WILSON ANSWERS HIS OPPONENTS

President Says That Interests Desire His Defeat

REPUBLICAN THUNDER WOULD MEAN WAR HE DECLARES.

Scenes Wall Street Manipulators For Opposition to His Fight Against Special Privileges.

SHADLOW LAWN, N. J.—President Wilson, in his address to the Republican challenge, made his foreign policy a campaign issue and warned that the return of Republicanism would mean war in one form or another, to the brink of war.

To avoid it, he urged that young Democrats—a league of such were his ideal—should be elected. Some members of that party have even declared themselves in favor of war.

"I can draw no other conclusion," he said, in his warning. "Our opponents have found fault with our foreign policy. They have said that it is all wrong. It has resulted in peace. Therefore it appears they want war. Some members of that party have even declared themselves in favor of war."

It was the president's first thrust of the campaign and his audience followed him gladly.

SAYS G. O. P. IS DYING

Previously he attacked the Republicans as representing the "interests" and had almost directly predicted their death as a national party is coming. The speech was delivered as one of his series of Saturday afternoon talks at the autumn White House. Three thousand heard him. Most of those were members of the Young Men's Democratic League who descended on the town with a whoop during the early afternoon.

Wilson declared that the eyes of the world are on the coming election. "Officials of foreign governments," he said, "will watch it carefully. They regard it as a fundamental final choice with regard to our foreign policy is to be made on the seventh of November."

The president said the shadow of the European struggle and Mexican intervention across his speech.

Opponents Want War

The return of Republicanism, he said, would mean war. He said that the Republicans are the party of war. He said that the Republicans are the party of war. He said that the Republicans are the party of war.

Hence, Wilson said, Republican

He said that the Republicans are the party of war. He said that the Republicans are the party of war. He said that the Republicans are the party of war.

Investors Rebuffed.

"They have talked to me and I know exactly what they want," the president said. "I have declined to give it to them and now they are going where they think they can get it. And there is every reason to believe that, at any rate, to believe that their calculation is well founded."

The president continued: "From the time they were elected in November, it is going to be practically impossible for the present administration to handle the critical matters concerning foreign relations because all foreign statesmen are waiting to see which way the election goes."

This situation goes so far, he said, that the present American peace conference is affected seriously because "hostility to Mexico is being traded upon by one of the original political parties."

The president used wit, humor and abuse as he pounded the Republican party pitilessly.

He suggested the Republicans had given no definite ideas of their general plans, but that "the people now want to know what is to be done with war."

Democrats' Progress.

"The country," he said, "has witnessed the life and death of two parties, and unless I am mistaken, it shortly will witness the death of another party—the party of the future. It went first. Then was born the Republican party. This party accomplished its purpose of abolishing slavery, but since then the increasing dem-

MYSTERIOUS CASE STIRS WESTEND

Alfred Harkleroad's Disappearance Subject of Inquiry

SEARCH FOR POSSIBLE GRAVE PROVES TO BE FUTILE.

Wife Says He Left Home After Fuss Over Where the Family Shotgun Should be Placed.

Where is Alfred Harkleroad, who disappeared from his home on Reedford road, two miles from Buhl, on January 27, but a bitterly cold day, and has not been seen since? Since this question was first asked at Sunday night by Buhl people two months ago, it has left no stone unturned to answer it, and Sunday night, acting on the suggestion that the man might have been foul play, he visited the Harkleroad home with a number of others, tore up the cement floor in the barn and conducted a searching examination of the premises without results.

Among the rumors circulated are alleged contradictory statements said to have been made by members of the family, and the sudden disappearance of Harkleroad's stepson, Fred Marks, after he was said to have been conducting an investigation.

Prior to the time of the disappearance of Harkleroad, he was working for George Gorath, a Buhl merchant, in whose service he earned $50. He did not call for the money and some time after he quit work Mrs. Harkleroad asked Mr. Gorath to pay her. The merchant refused unless an order were produced. A few days later she returned with an order signed "A. Harkleroad" and collected what was due.

It is stated that nothing had been said about the disappearance of Harkleroad by members of the family after he left. It is further stated that when asked about this time, where her husband had gone, Mrs. Harkleroad at first stated that he had gone to Colorado and had not returned. She was formed another neighbor that he had gone to Ely, Nevada. It is claimed that a spring by a neighbor addressed to Harkleroad was returned.

All spring and summer the neighbors kept whispering about the supposed mystery, the rumor gradually extending beyond the limits of the vicinity until it reached Sheriff Kendall, who acted promptly but quietly. Following a day of evidence and following down on report after another, he was about ready to ask Marks in regard to the matter, when the latter disappeared on September 8. It is said that the sheriff was investigating the matter and making inquiries. Marks alleged to have gone at once to the home of a neighbor, and got a boy to accompany him to Gooding to whither place they rode on horseback, the boy returning with the horses. All efforts to locate him have failed. Further investigation has continued and every scrap of evidence that can be found has been considered. Last Friday, Deputy Sheriff J. W. Thompson, County Attorney John E. Davies and Probation Officer on the Oregon road, near the neighborhood. Friends of Harkleroad said that he was of a sociable disposition and that they doubted whether he would have been without friends. He was known, and saying goodbye. The party visited the home and talked to Mrs. Harkleroad. She said that her husband had gone mad and that she had a right to have her gun should be hung. He wanted to put them over the door and she would not let him. He was not permitted to put the guns over the door, he would leave. She replied, "Keep those a good while before you come back and try to do again." She said that she had no knowledge of any fight between Harkleroad and her son. Later she said that she was not aware when Harkleroad left, but that Fred told her that he had gone and that he went to Colorado. A girl named Hazel Hoover told the investigation that Clara Hargreaves, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Harkleroad, (Mrs. Harkleroad was married three times) told her that her father had a fight and that the former left home because of it.

It was said that Harkleroad had some money deposited in the Buhl bank which was drawn out by his wife after his disappearance. Mrs. Harkleroad told the officers that her husband was a gambler and that he had been found in the Buhl hotel in Colorado or Nevada. She suggested several towns. Letters have been sent to Nevada and others in all the places named, and also to all the

HANSEN BRIDGE TO BE VOTED ON

Call Will Be Issued for Special Election November 7

YOTING PRECINCTS TO BE THE SAME AS FOR GENERAL ELECTION

Matter Has Been Up Some Time—Delay Occasioned by Obstacle to General Bond Issue.

The formal order for the holding of an election on November 7, on the proposition to vote $20,000 for the erection of a bridge over the Snake river at a point known as "the Hansen bridge site," will be issued this week by the board of commissioners, as soon as it is drafted in proper form by County Attorney J. E. Davies, who has been instructed to prepare it.

The matter has been under advisement for some time, and considerable discussion in regard to it has taken place. The commissioners, contemplating erecting a bridge across the river out of part of a general road and bridge bond issue, which they intend to submit and hoped would carry, but finding that the Idaho law was so constructed that a general issue could not be voted without taxing the Buhl independent road district for funds which it could not share, the plan was not adopted. In the meantime the people of the Hillside district across the river voted $20,000 to build their part of the structure.

After considerable consultation the board came to the conclusion that the proper course would be to submit the proposition to the voters of the county to build the bridge. Hope has been expressed that considering the small amount of the levy, the voters of the Buhl district will consent to support the proposition, even though they might have opposed a larger bond issue.

The time and place for holding the election will be the same as those for the general election.

APPEAL FOR VOTES FOR PROHIBITION

Enthusiastic Addresses Made at Meeting of W. C. T. U. and Anti-Saloon League Sunday.

That the people should be on the alert and not relax vigilance for a moment until the amendment for statewide prohibition had been placed safely in the constitution was the substance of all the talks made yesterday afternoon at the joint meeting of W. C. T. U. and Anti-Saloon League at the Buhl church.

Congressman Addison T. Smith, Mr. J. Sweeney and Dr. J. F. Shepherd all made earnest appeals for action. The President of the W. C. T. U., closed with an eloquent and forceful address. A collection for the carrying on of the work was taken up at the D. C. MacWatters, general manager for the Twin Falls-Oakley irrigation project, failed to secure the consent of the state land board to rescind its order made last spring giving to the settlers on that project an extension of time in which to make final proof. In November the board will be the matter of the Carey act, which allows settlers and homesteaders to be considered in that time. Mr. MacWatters explained the company's wishes to cut down the acreage in the project to $50,000 acres, as recommended by the board, and that the Carey act, which only allows homesteaders to claim with the government, the right of the settlers of the latter project. Irrigation company had claimed the settlers had no rights. They thought they had, the governor said the state had been forced to go into court, and that the Carey act, which allowed settlers to have their land, was established by the courts.

THE VERA CRUZ INCIDENT AND THE A. B. C. MEDIATION—Result of the Arbitration

By JAMES D. WHEELAN

In this, the closing article of this series, it would perhaps be well to recapitulate, in order that we may see the ground covered. We have seen the criticism implied in the sneer that we went to Mexico to get an apology for an insult to the flag and failed to secure it to be idiotic, since Huerta, whose followers were responsible for the insult, fled the country, and those who had been fighting him could not be held responsible for his wrong doing. We have further seen that no American tradition was violated in arbitrating the question of firing a salute, after a demand for such salute had been made, as President Grant, under circumstances as provoking, had entered into negotiations on that very question and finally agreed to forego the salute which he demanded, and which under international law he was entitled to demand. We have further seen that in acting on the suggestion of the A. B. C. powers that we arbitrate the question, we were proceeding according to the principles of the Bryan peace treaties which we had signed with thirty nations. Finally, we have seen that these treaties, adopted by so many nations were the culmination of sixty-five years of effort on the part of great American statesmen of all parties, and that so far from being the means of weakening us in the respect of the world, the very fact that so many other nations entered into these treaties was itself a proof that they offered a long sought solution for some of the vexed questions of diplomacy.

"But," it will be objected by the wise men on the street, "didn't the fact that we agreed to arbitrate this matter give the impression to the people to the south of us that we were afraid to fight, and thus render it more difficult to deal with them?" No.

There is no fallacy more widespread and perilous than this, that it is necessary for a big nation to have a club and use it on every possible provocation when dealing with a smaller and weaker one, in order to impress the latter with a saving sense of inferiority. This mischievous error led to more than one Indian war. When the red man came to the conclusion that he was going to be licked anyhow, he fought, often unjustly and always with cruelty, but fiercely like the proverbial cornered rat. Now, there are Mexicans ignorant enough to believe that they can lick the United States, if some one for whom they have respect tell them that, and no doubt some of Huerta's followers at one time thought that very thing. But that is not the opinion of the average Mexican. Personally, I never knew one who did so, but my personal acquaintance with them has been limited to those who could speak English. However, Professor Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago who spent many years in Mexico, in his authoritative book "Mexico and the United States," put out two years ago by the Bible house in Chicago, gives what I believe to be, and what everyone whom I have met who had lived long in the country has told me is the fact, that the average Mexican of over fair intelligence feared invasion of his country by the United States. Whoever has read the excerpts from the Mexican newspapers, reproduced by the Associated Press, the United Press or the International news service during times of strained relations between this country and Mexico during the past few years, cannot fail to have noticed that the argument used by Anti-American press to arouse the people there against this country was that "The Northern invaders" were coming again to take their country and were seeking an excuse to invade Mexico and either annex it, or take much of its territory, and that Mexico must fight them anyhow. The utterances of the sensationalist papers here have been quoted as having the weight of authority and as revealing our real motives. I might remark that to a Mexican what we call the Mexican war is "The Northern invasion," and he is under no delusion in regard to who won, which might lead him to think that defeating the United States would be an easy task. It sometimes nerves him with the courage of despair, but never with contempt for our prowess. What has been true of Mexico, in regard to the interpretation put upon our acts, has in a great measure been true of all Latin America, as the excerpts and cartoons reproduced in papers and magazines in the United States from South American newspapers abundantly prove.

The case with which we took Vera Cruz proved to Mexicans that we could whip them.

An illustration of the superiority of the exercise of common sense over force, when force would drive desperate people to violent deeds, is furnished by an incident in connection with the trouble with Huerta known as the "Tampanco affair," an incident perverted from its real import by that most adroit of politicians, Colonel Roosevelt. In an editorial in which the Mexican policy of the Wilson administration was sharply criticized on other grounds, the Salt Lake Tribune, the leading Republican paper in the Intermountain country, on March 31, 1915, in discussing this matter, said of Colonel Roosevelt's attack, "An attempt is made to put the administration in a bad light because of the Tampanco affair. The outstanding fact is that a little diplomacy and caution saved the lives of all the Americans, whereas a little of the action which Mr. Roosevelt suggests might have ended in the death of all of them." The facts of the case were that the Mexicans, driven to desperation by false reports of proposed American invasion, declared that in an attempt to land they would kill all the Americans. The battleships withdrew, under orders, a short distance and allowed the people to be taken up by English hand German ships from whom the Mexican rabble feared no invasion. The rabble knew that they would be beaten were the Americans to land, and were in a desperate state of mind as a result. One would think to read the abuse of the administration for this eminently sensible way of handling the matter that the politicians on the outside regret nothing so much as the failure of the Mexicans to kill the Americans at Tampanco. Even had we desired to invade Mexico at Tampanco, the course taken to withdraw American citizens out of the hands of the mob, without endangering their lives, was the proper one to pursue.

Spanish-Americans was once friendly. Long before the historic Monroe doctrine was promulgated, indeed before the independence of Latin America, within a year after the fall of the countries to the south came to the United States to work out theoretical plans for a closer union of the people of the Spanish colonies with this country. Within a year after the Monroe doctrine was given to the world Simon Bolivar, the liberator of South America, was on hand with a plan for a conference of all the countries on the western hemisphere, and the union of the west in defense against the east was one of the dreams of Thomas Jefferson and other great American statesmen. The fact that all the conditions of Latin America are patently after ours shows the esteem in which we were held.

Of late years, in fact since our diplomacy days, the relations between this country and the nations to the south, have notwithstanding the increasing friendship along some lines, as a whole been strained. I shall not attempt a detailed explanation of why this has been so, but the fact is undeniable. "Lack of confidence" describes the situation. The result in a purely logical way has been unfortunate. Instead of all the western hemisphere being united in defense, the effect has been to make us the defender of the whole hemisphere against aggression, without the co-operation of the other nations benefited. Yet while they lacked confidence in our purposes from some over reason, the situation could not well be otherwise. Trade followed popular sympathy from those countries to Europe.

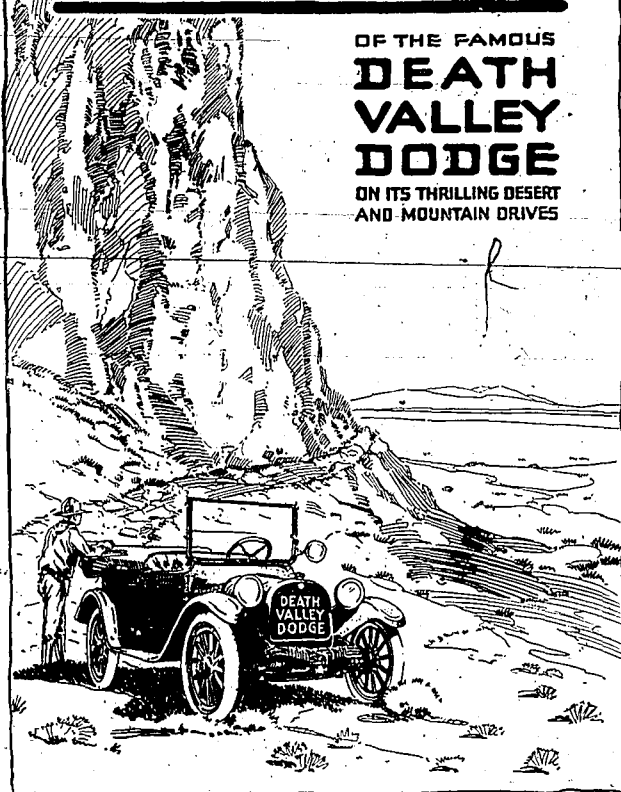

In this paper I propose to show that the leading investigators and observers who have studied the situation without regard to party advantage, regardless of their personal opinion as to the wisdom of the A. B. C. or similar devices as permanent institutions, have agreed that this interference has resulted in the most salutary recurrence of the confidence and the desire to heartily co-operate, which has long been absent from the relations between this country and Latin America. William I. Hull, Ph.D., professor of history and international relations of Swarthmore college and author of "The Hague Conventions," "The New Peace Movement," etc., and an opponent of the permanent adoption of the theory on which the A. B. C. is based, says in his work, "The Monroe Doctrine," "This (A. B. C. mediation) and its acceptance by the parties at issue has been hailed with joy by Latin America and has received the approbation of the rest of the world . . . and has produced a more genuine belief in the sincerity of the United States advocacy of international pacifism than any other recent event in history." I regret that Professor Hull and the interested office seeking politician cannot agree on this matter, but since they cannot I prefer to take the word of the least interested investigator, one with such a world-wide reputation for fairness and ability.

Far from an undiscriminating admirer of President Wilson's attitude on some phases of the Mexican ques-

2000 feet of motion pictures of magnificent scenery. Showing the only car that has ever crossed Death Valley on its own power. Death Valley is conceded to be the most dreaded region in America. It has been the cause of more deaths by thirst and starvation than any other equal area on the earth's surface.

You here see a common Dodge Brothers stock car driven over some of the worst grades that lie outdoors, to the top of the Funeral Range of mountains, over a mile high, then in less than fourteen miles drop to the floor of Death Valley, 150 feet below sea level, with a temperature of 144 degrees. You see the car go for miles where there are no roads, smash its way through the cacti and mesquite brush, over rocks and malpais boulders, which twist and warp it from end to end until nothing but the very finest vanadium steel can stand the terrible strains. Then across miles of shifting sand dunes and dry alkali lake beds, across a desert area on which many an explorer has gone to death. On its return journey you see it pass the most famous scenic spots in Yosemite National Park, ford rivers and mountain washes and as a grand climax to the worst trip any car has ever taken, covering a distance of 975 miles, race for miles with "The Owl," the fastest train on the Southern Pacific.

No lecturer connected with this, as it's the Dodge Brothers car and—

HUGHES AND THE ADAMSON BILL

Former Secretary of State Olney asks why I did not urge twenty-eight Republican senators to filibuster to the last ditch? Well, I do not believe in filibustering, for one thing. If congress, through its majority, was determined to pass the bill, there was no reason whatever why its action should be merely delayed by filibustering.

Arguments along this line really come to this—that in some way the administration should have been saved from itself.

"The truth is that the executive destroyed the moral strength of the situation when he threw up his hands, yielded the principle of arbitration and went to congress demanding the railway wage bill as the price of peace. Congress, so far as the moral of the situation was concerned, ratified a surrender already made. The administration chose its ground; it selected its ground carefully and with manifest view to partisan expediency. In the closing days it acted with swiftness and it cannot now cry that a Republican candidate a thousand miles away should have saved it from carrying out its fixed determination."—From Hughes' Saratoga Springs speech.

It is hard to credit Candidate Hughes with ingenuousness in making the above evasive statement. When the demands of the men on employees on one hand and the railroad magnates on the other were before the president and congress it would have been pertinent for Hughes to have offered a suggestion as to what should be done. He did not do so, but waited until a course had been adopted irrevocably and then said that such course was a wrong one, still carefully refraining from telling what he thinks should have been done. Had the president refused to take steps to end the strike that he did take, Mr. Hughes could then have said that such legislation as the Adamson bill should have been enacted. He evidently wants to catch "a comin' an' a gwine. In no other matter has he shown himself up in the light of a knocker so completely as in this. Much water ran under the bridge in our Mexican and European complications while he was on the supreme bench and could not with propriety discuss these issues or suggest a course of action. But in this case he had ample opportunity to suggest a course of action. If he had any ideas that would have averted the strike without the enactment of legislation similar to the Adamson bill it was his duty to suggest it. He did not. In all fairness he should now refrain from stalling and whining over what has been done. Moreover, the reason which he sets up for failing to suggest a course of action while the legislation was pending, shows an utter lack of appreciation of the duties of citizenship. He did not want to "save the administration from itself." But if the law is as bad as he says, it was a question of saving the country. No wonder he can see nothing in President Wilson's act but "partisan expediency," since he knows nothing else himself.

He has no complaint to make over other filibusters indulged in on other matters by Republican senators, matters that, according to Hughes, are of less vital importance than this. He has declared this measure to be of a character that tends to national disaster. To say that a senator who believed this to be the character of the measure, would not be justified in using every parliamentary means to prevent it is the height of absurdity, and unworthy of any presidential candidate. When the bill was before the lower house a large majority of the Republicans present and voting, supported it. When the measure came to the senate, a reasonable amount of time occupied by Republican senators in discussing the bill would have thrown it back a couple of days and brought on a strike which would have rendered preventive legislation worthless and would have killed the bill. The Republican senators with few exceptions did not discuss the measure at length and ended their talks purposely, as a result of a caucus, in time to allow its passage before the time for the beginning of the strike arrived. Only Senator La Follette, among the Republicans, voted for the bill. Why was there such a difference between the action of the senators and the action of the members of the lower house? Are we not justified in being as suspicious as Mr. Hughes is and saying that the action of the senators was manifestly partisan. Are we not justified in assuming that Candidate Hughes and his senatorial advisers determined after the measure left the house to attempt to make it the issue which they sadly needed?

In 1907 in the midst of a panic which the report of the industrial commission says threw 234,000 railroad men out of work and which Senator Aldrich pronounced the worst financial panic in the history of the nation, J. P. Morgan asked as a condition for the avoidance of worse consequences, that assurances be given that the Tennessee Coal & Iron company could be absorbed by the steel trust without prosecution under the anti-trust law. He also agreed, in behalf of his own and other banks, to help check the panic by loaning at interest $25,000,000 to the investors, provided that that amount were deposited with him from the treasury without interest being charged by the government. President Roosevelt gave the assurance with reference to the absorbing of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company, Secretary Cortelyou deposited the money with Morgan's banks and the panic was checked. THE TIMES believes that the technical violation of this law under the circumstances was excusable in order to avert the disaster that a refusal to comply would have entailed, but it was yielding to a holdup. President Roosevelt did not call congress together to repeal or amend the law, he set it aside in order to meet the situation. Technically this was executive usurpation and no word of denunciation was uttered by Hughes who was then governor of New York.

When president Wilson, in order to avert disaster before it occurs, asks congress for legislation that will prevent it and congress passes the requested law, in favor of which a majority of Republicans voting in one house go on record, the man who describes himself as "100 per cent candidate," says that it is a case of executive usurpation.

The plan proposed by President Wilson was not suggested by either the labor leaders or the railroad managers, but was a middle course, which the labor leaders accepted and the managers rejected. It lacked elements of a surrender to a specific demand which characterized the action of President Roosevelt, which Hughes failed to censure.

W. C. T. U. HOLDS MEETING AT KNULL

Stirring Resolutions Are Adopted by the Convention

EDUCATION AGAINST USE OF CIDER IS URGED.

Voters Requested to Support Constitutional Prohibition and Vote For Good Men.

Passing resolutions in favor of urging the people to vote for constitutional prohibition, and for men who will enforce the law against the sale of alcoholic liquors, the sale of tobacco to minors and gambling and favoring the education of the people against the use of cider, the Woman's Christian Temperance union of the Southern Idaho district, held a successful meeting at Knull Saturday.

The program published in THE TIMES last week was carried out, in full. The convention was held in the Knull Baptist church and lasted two days. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Joseph Blake, president; Mrs. Mary Griggs, of Knull, vice president; Mrs. James Bower, of Twin Falls, recording secretary; Mrs. E. V. Borg, of Twin Falls, corresponding secretary; Mrs. McDowell, of Kimberly, treasurer.

Delegates from this city were Mesdames Henry Heartfield, James Bower, J. Blake and E. V. Borg. Mesdames Voss, Scott, McDowell and Summers attended from Kimberly.

The following are the resolutions of the convention:

Whereas, the temperance cause of Idaho having received strength and encouragement because of the splendid work done and because of the increase of public sentiment of temperance with an increase of membership, we, the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Southern Idaho, in this our second district convention, assembled at Knull, Idaho, resolve:

1. That the blessing of the Heavenly Father in temperance work we renew our efforts to the wonderful and righteous cause.

2. That we make a strenuous effort to reach as many voters as possible and encourage them to be loyal to their privilege of the ballot, to register and that we may gain the constitutional amendment, and to elect men who will enforce the law regarding the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, and the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to minors, also to enforce the law against gambling.

3. That we will ever hereafter try to elect men who will support national constitutional prohibition.

4. That we will do everything in our power to encourage purity of living and thinking among the young people.

5. That we use our influence to enlighten the people in regard to the harmful indulgence of cider drinking, which can be accomplished through the work of the elder league.

6. That we will urge our ministers of the different churches to give a sermon on Christian Citizenship just before election and that we recommend the observance of the temperance cause in prayer at the mid-week prayer meeting following the sermon on Christian Citizenship.

7. That we will encourage the observance of prayer in christian homes at the noon hour.

8. That we extend our heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Chipp, our state president, and to the ladies of Kimberly and Twin Falls for their co-operation and help in this district meeting.

9. That we extend a rising vote of thanks to the Knull union for their splendid hospitality to the visiting delegation.

places where it has been learned that he formerly lived.

Neighbors suggested that a concrete floor had been placed in the barn this spring and that possibly a grave might be found under this. Sunday night Sheriff Kendall, Deputy Sheriff Thompson, Probation Officer Ormsby, accompanied by Chief of Police J. F. Baymiller of Boise, visited the premises. Several neighbors were along. The concrete floor was ripped up, but no evidence of any grave was found.

The disappearance is still a mystery. Sheriff Kendall says that he is anxious to get it cleared up, in order that the innocent may be relieved from false insinuations if there were no foul play, and that the guilty may be punished if there were.

"THE SPOILERS," BIG FEATURE PRODUCTION COMING SOON

It has been the fashion of late to picture the work of famous authors, and Solfe has advanced this as a fine art in "The Spoilers," from the book of Rex Beach, in most apt and dramatic form. This moving picture play in nine reels had its first public representation at the splendid and beautiful new Strand theater on Broadway New York City, and has continued there as the feature, attracting for its perpetuity and popularity. It followed this success as a regular feature at the Strand theater, on Michigan avenue, Chicago, where it has continued to do wonderful business to "capacity houses." The significant voice of the great centers where this picture has a showing, speaks volumes for this production, which undoubtedly will become a phenomenal attraction, wherever presented. "The Spoilers" is as well as an as blooded a romance as any that has appeared in the American class during the decade. It has been visualized in stunning fashion, reflecting upon the astuteness of its progenitor, Wm. N. Selig, and the deep, live, sympathetic sense of its producer, Colin Campbell, as well as in the vigorous and responsive action of Wm. Farnum and all the other artists enlisted to make it a star cast extraordinary.

The idea has been "The Spoilers" for the first possible open date.

"THE COUNT" IS THE NEWEST CHAPLIN

Proclaimed by everyone who has seen it "the best one yet!" Charlie Chaplin's newest feature offering, "The Count," coming soon to the Orpheum, is setting the whole country laughing. It is brimming full and running over with typical Chaplinian antics, and just to make certain that he has overlooked no laugh-getters, the inimitable Charlie adds a few brand-new capers for good measure.

From the moment when Charlie first appears with his tape measure, in a tailoring establishment, until he vanishes from sight down the street after a day in high society, there is no let-up—no laugh paces upon another, until you daze fairly ache. In this two-reel offering Charlie resorts to his old-time makeup, with the familiar baggy trousers, the funny cutaway coat, his dinky derby, diminutive moustache, slender cane and Chaplin shoes. Supporting Charlie in "The Count" are Edna Purviance, Eric Campbell, Leo White and Charlotte Mineau.

ANNA LUTHER DISCOVERS

NEW WAY OF VAMPIRING

Anna Luther, the charming heroine in "The Beast," the Isis offering Wednesday and Thursday, has discovered a new style in vampiring. Like so many other actresses of the screen, Miss Luther's ambition was to play vampire parts. In her new picture, "The Beast," she realized her dream—or so she says.

"I am vampiring," says Miss Luther, "but I'm doing it in a new way. Instead of molding a man's character in such way that it leads to his destruction, I am influencing him for his own good. In 'The Beast' I met a rough westerner who knows nothing of culture or refinement. When I get through with him, he is the perfect gentleman from pump to pompadour."

In her new picture, Miss Luther has been so successful that she believes she could do the same thing in real life. She is hankering now to come across a fellow man, so she can use her wiles to raise him.

"If I could measure the dimensions of his fall," says the dainty little actress, "I believe I could regenerate him. It's just like working out a picture puzzle—trying to find where the rough little corners are, and smooth them off."

"I call this kind of work vampiring, because I believe vampiring consists merely in having such power over a

JARBIDGE CASE TRIED

IN SAN FRANCISCO

J. M. Hourly Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses Up In Federal Court.

The return of W. G. Greathouse from San Francisco, where he was called to testify in a federal case against J. M. Hourly, brings back to the minds of those who have lived in this section for some time and who are familiar with mining deals, the situation which developed against Hourly, says the Elko Free Press.

The case in Frisco was brought to trial extradition of Hourly from California to Utah on the grounds of obtaining money under false pretenses, and Hourly made a strong fight, according to Mr. Greathouse.

Coming some time in 1915 and continuing, J. M. Hourly represented himself as being a mining promoter—having large properties which he sought to interest the public in and thus get working. He finally represented that he purchased property in Jarbridge, and filed papers in the county recorder's office here to that effect. It is alleged.

Making an extensive campaign all over the country and into the south of Utah, he succeeded in obtaining shares in the Jarbridge mine, but in the midst of it all he was taken very ill, removed to California and placed in a hospital, owing to his illness which was of long duration, he was not in position to undertake the opening of the properties, and parties to whom he allegedly sold shares, procured a warrant for his arrest on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses—also seeking to remove him from California to Utah for trial.

Mr. Greathouse was called as a witness to testify as to the filing of the papers in the recorder's office here. It is understood that Mr. Greathouse testified that no papers had been filed in the office as alleged by Hourly.

The judge presiding over the case stated at the close of the trial that he would decide the matter Tuesday, or yesterday, but it has not been determined how the matter was settled as yet.

Mr. Greathouse enjoyed his trip to the coast very much, and made the most of his time while there though his stay was of necessity short. He was glad to get back to Elko, however, for "There's no place like home" and popular W. G. is a great man for believing in the little spot he calls home. And, at that, guess he's right.

tion, Henry G. Hodges, A.M., of the University of Pennsylvania, takes the success of the A. B. C. mediation as an indication of the direction which the relations between this country and other republics on the western continent must take in the future. In his work "The Doctrine of Intervention," he says: "There is a growing opinion that in the future development of the positive side of the (Monroe) doctrine the United States must act in conjunction with those states of this continent that have reached, or may reach, a sufficient degree of development as to be considered as ranking among the most advanced nations. It is suggested that the A. B. C. of South America should be considered as having attained such a position. Others may be added from time to time as their actions and conditions may warrant. (Others were added in later Mexican negotiations—J. D. W.) Having outgrown the ideas of our fathers, the broader interpretation presents the only hope for the future existence of our great national policy. The increased support and confidence which it has gained by its agreement with the new members would insure its acceptability among the smaller states of this hemisphere. It must not be overlooked that a great measure of its success is due to its acceptability by those whom it most intimately affects."

"Representative men in the United States are now arguing, against its (the Monroe Doctrine's) further continuance in its present form, as tending to promote the isolation of this country and a possible coalition between some of the South American and European states against the United States."

Weighty words these from a work that might well be read by those who do not desire to accept without question the criticisms of administrative policies, made by hungry politicians "On the outside a-looking in."

Within the past ten days, a veteran statesman, Richard Olney, a former secretary of state whose courage and ability are admitted by all, has testified to the "inestimable value" of the A. B. C. and the entire course of the Wilson administration relative to Mexico, in improving our relations with the rest of the western world, while within the same time there has been published a statement of Henry A. Wise Wood, chairman of the committee on conference on national preparedness, that the union of the nations of the western hemisphere "in hearty, co-operative support of the Monroe doctrine will prove a sufficient substitute for a large standing army."

Last of all in support of the wisdom of accepting the offer of mediation of the A. B. C. powers let us turn to a work which has an introduction written by so uncompromising a foe of President Wilson as Nicholas Murray Butler, a work by a man who is chairman of the committee on foreign trade relations of the National Chamber of Commerce, which is far from friendly to the administration; a work written by a man who has experienced "Diplomatic" Charles H. Sherrill, former minister to Argentina. Page after page of eulogy from a man who figures conditions first hand, detracts to the effect that the great value of this A. B. C. mediation is not yet appreciated, that a high court of public opinion, which the world might emulate has been formed in the western hemisphere, that it is a step at once practical and popular; that no development since the Monroe doctrine was promulgated can equal it in importance and that it will form the base of a triangle of peace on which the harmony of the world will eventually be reconstructed because it has been founded on justice and on an understanding and appreciation by each one concerned of the attitude of the others. This in substance is the doctrine advanced by this practical diplomat and keen, far-sighted business man, who is far from writing a brief for Woodrow Wilson. In order that the work be appreciated I wish that it might be widely read.

That the superstructure which Sherrill predicts will be built will not be completed today or tomorrow any student of human affairs and of the history of nations will readily understand. But it is unthinkable that the American people through ignorance of the widespread human influences already manifest to those who have taken the time to observe it, will undo the good that has been done through adherence to our professed policy of arbitration, and replace a policy of construction by a hazy policy of hate, which will result in loss of prestige, of honor and of financial advantages.

We Can Save a Few Men $175
On the HUDSON SUPER-SIXNote These Important Facts
Prices Will Advance Soon

We have been notified as follows about coming Super-Sixes:

There will be no change in models. The only changes, if any, will be minor refinements. But this year's production is nearly sold out—both of open models and enclosed. The new production—starting December 1—will be built from materials contracted this year, at enormous advance in cost. And, to maintain present standards, those cars must cost $175 more.

We Have Cars Yet to Come

We have some cars yet due us at the present price. Some open, some enclosed. They will be sold at present prices while our allotment lasts. After that, every car shipped to us will cost the higher price.

You can save that difference—$175—by buying your Super-Six now. And you'll get the same model as buyers get who buy after December 1. Consider that fact well.

The Fair Hudson Policy

This is another striking evidence of the fair Hudson policy.

The Super-Six is a monopoly. This marvelous motor—adding 90 per cent to engine efficiency—is a Hudson patent.

Its supremacy is unchallenged. It has won every world's record which can possibly prove any quality you seek in a motor.

It has made the Hudson the largest-selling fine car in the world. Yet this year's demand was hardly half supplied.

Still this car has been sold at a minimum profit—at a price far below cars of lesser performance. The only advance for next year is the added cost of materials. And that advance will not apply until these materials are used.

FINE RECORD MADE
BY SECOND IDAHO

Capital News Correspondent, Home
From Border, Says Men Want to Go
Into Mexico or Come Home.

BOISE—Earl Wayland Bowman, who accompanied the Second Idaho Infantry to the Mexican border as correspondent for the Capital News, arrived in Boise this morning from Mexico.

"There are just three things that stand out vividly in one's mind after studying for weeks the Mexican situation closely and then getting again a breath of real Idaho air," said Mr. Bowman today.

"The first of these is that Idaho is best. Arizona is wonderful, Mexico fascinating and rich, but home—Idaho is best."

"The other thing that one remembers, especially after being with the Idaho boys on the border is the wonderful fitness of the Second Idaho for any service that may be required of it, the readiness of the Idaho regiment to do its part when the order comes to cross the line."

"There is no regiment of state troops on the border that has the rating the Second Idaho is given in the estimation of military authorities."

"At San Bernardino I met the recruiting officer who is stationed there to secure enlistments for the California state troops as well as the regular army. He deplored the unfitness, generally, of the militia regiments."

"There is one regiment of state troops though," he said, "that is ready for anything—those Idaho fellows. They are good—I never saw a better looking bunch of men and since they have been on the border I've watched the reports of their work—it all the states furnished a regiment like that we would have an army."

"That is the comment heard all along the border about the men from Idaho. They have proven worthy of the state. The people at home need not be ashamed of the Second."

"Only one thing—the boys either want to come home, go into Mexico and claim it up or leave definitely that they are going to be held all winter as border guards. The uncertainty is the only thing that troubles them."

"Personally, unless there develops some startling conditions I expect the whole regiment will be sent home before long. It hurt to have to leave the fellows but business and other troubles forced me home temporarily, at least."

"This message I bring from the regiment: 'We're hungry for the folks at home—for Idaho—but we're ready to stay here all the last turkey's scorching if Uncle Sam needs us.'"

"That is the spirit of the men of the Second Idaho—I don't know how you folks feel but I'm proud of the lovable, rollicking, unticketed savages."

MAXWELL'S AID UNCLE SAM.

An ever-increasing demand for the Maxwell chassis for light delivery purposes is reported by the Maxwell Motor company, Inc., of Detroit.

This demand has increased correspondingly with the great increase in the demand for the standard Maxwell passenger car models.

Recently four commercial vehicles, the bodies all mounted on Maxwell chassis, were installed in the postoffice department in Mobile, Ala.—These cars are used particularly for the handling of the United States mails to and from trains and steamers and also in the handling of the parcel post delivery service.

Although these cars have been in the government service but a short time, it has been amply demonstrated how they expedite the service. The postal authorities at Mobile are well pleased with the increased service that followed the installation of the Maxwell fleet.

THE MUTUAL GIRL AND HER AUNTIE

LUCILLE: I was talking to Mrs. Watson this morning. You know who I mean? The Mrs. Watson who lives on that five-acre tract.

AUNTIE: Yes, dear, what about her?

LUCILLE: We were talking about buying groceries and supplies. She said she always bought at the SOUTH PARK CASH GROCERY CO. They cater to the farm trade, and while you must pay cash, you get a better price and higher grade of goods.

AUNTIE: That is very reasonable, Lucille. One always gets a better bargain if they pay cash. It has been my experience in life that the contented, happy and thrifty people in life are the ones who pay as they go. A grocer who demands cash can always give more for the money. They do not have to charge extra to make up for the time they must wait for payment. A grocer must pay his bills as well as any one else, and if he gets cash he can easily afford to sell cheaper. And I have also found it is much better to trade where a man makes a business of catering to one class of trade. Mrs. Watson is a very wise woman to select the South Park Grocery as they are catering to the farmers. She naturally gets better results.

The greatest number of articles were exhibited by Miss Hoag and her beautiful work was greatly admired. The finest piece of crocheting was the large table cover by Mrs. E. E. Smith of Twin Falls, and the champion piece of embroidery was the bed set, (day slip and sheet) made by Mrs. Corneille Allen of Albion, Mich., and Ida M. Allen of Plier. Mrs. Allen did the exquisite work when 75 years of age and it is of fine linen, embroidered in fine linen thread, and is perfect in every detail.
Two quilts with fine quilting were exhibited by Mrs. Otto, and were much admired, and of especial interest to all were the hand made baby clothes and the old fancy dress made in 1860 and exhibited by Mrs. Kessler, and the "ugly" of "St. Without" glasses, and the telling, Mrs. Griffith was gaily marching down the street on his way to war, and wearing this same coat, when he first saw Mrs. Griffith. The wedding took place after the war.

Mrs. Bidwell exhibited a silk lob cabin quilt made by her mother at the age of 21 without glasses, and the homespun table and bed linen and colored coverlets made in the Houghton families more than 175 years ago received much interest.
All who contributed in making these department a success are heartily thanked by those in charge.

ernization of the party has been apparent. So soon as this party put into power men who were attorneys of special interests, its decadence was rapid. And the Republican party, as now led, believes in government by attorneys of the special interests.

He designated the Democratic party as the most progressive of any and expressed surprise at the "company kept by some Progressives" with the big P. He claimed that the treasury department performs functions better since the federal reserve law passed and added that previously representatives of Wall street had a desk in the institution. He spoke, too, of the passing of the "buttonhole lobby" and of the Democratic party's idea to liberalize legitimate business.

The following are some of the striking passages in the address:

Special interests with stakes in Mexico are working for the success of the Republican party.

Republicans say my foreign policy is wrong; then the only alternative to my policy is war.

The Republican party as now constituted and led believes in government by attorneys for special interests. That party's last tariff was framed by the attorneys for special interests.

The Progressive party has real blood in its veins.

This country is progressive. I am

CHRISTIANITY WILL REDEEM ISRAELITES

War Will End With Freedom For Jews God Blesses United States By Keeping It Out of War.

That the Jews are persecuted now as never before, and that the race needs a Moses, a redeemer, and that required leadership and redemption will be at hand at the end of the present war, when the Hebrew race will again come into possession of the Holy Land, were thoughts suggested by former Rabbi Joseph Goldman in addresses made yesterday in the Christian and the Methodist churches in this city. Mr. Goldman says that this is the only land where real freedom exists not under the guidance of God it will be kept out of war to lead the nations into the path of peace.

Mr. Goldman said that Christianity proclaimed for 2000 years ago, came from Judaism. Christian people have not tried to repay the debt owed to Judaism by trying to extend Christian love to the Jew. Jesus said: "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The giving of a dollar a month to the church does not make a man a Christian. Living the life of Jesus Christ, a life of love and work, of unselfishness, of forgiveness, of the principle of love, is what constitutes Christianity. Judaism has been neglected by the Christian nations. Little has been done toward preaching the gospel to the Jew, but Jesus came first to the Jews. The people of Israel need the support of Christians today as never before. They need a redeemer, and this redeemer will come through Christianity. Of all great nations only the United States is today exemplifying the principles of Christianity. Other great nations are at war. This great country will be preserved from battle with other nations because its motto is "In God we Trust" not in the dollar but in God. The praise for preserving this land in peace should go to God, who has kept in its people the spirit of the love of God. This land is veritably a Holy Land, flowing with milk and honey, because the people are planted in brotherly love. Its people do not know the meaning of persecution, for they have never suffered it.

The former rabbi makes a special plea for the Jews in Russia. "If the people of this country could only know a little of the misery of the Jews in Russia," he said, "they would sympathize with them and would predate their freedom to work and to talk and to live and to love, and would become a nation of unselfish men." As soon as a Jew comes educated he is banished to Siberia. There are now two million educated men in Siberian slavery. The Jews are the first to receive the blame for anything that happens in Russia.

KIMBERLEY DEPOT TO BE ENLARGED

New Waiting Room to Be Added to Present Structure

ADDITIONAL SPUR TO BE PUT IN NORTH OF TRACK.

Beautiful Park Planned-Increase in Business Necessitates the Improvement.

Owing to a great increase in the business at Kimberly, the Oregon Short Line announces that it will move its depot across the tracks to the south side, add another waiting room and increase the capacity for handling freight. A spur will be put in on the north side of the present main track to handle the large amount of products sent out. A park will be fenced in to the south and east of the new site and will be beautified. Work will begin shortly on these improvements.

SIX THOUSAND MORE TO BLOODY BORDER

Ten Thousand Troops Now On Border Will Be Returned Home By General Funston.

WASHINGTON--The war department has ordered the Colorado, California, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, District of Columbia, Virginia, New York, Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Florida, Michigan and Minnesota guards to the Mexican border.

The order includes about 6000 guardsmen. Major General Funston was directed to select 10,000 troops on the border for return to their home states to be mustered out of federal service.

The order virtually sends all guardsmen now in mobilization camps of the states named, and leaves only 10,000 in all the country that have not seen border service. The remainder will probably be ordered south soon.

"DEATH VALLEY DODGE".

TREKS INTO MEXICO

Now-a-days Mexico is shunned by every motorist, but despite that fact "Death Valley Dodge" has been driven from California through Mexico and south to the recently exploited mud volcanoes that are creating such a disturbance far down in the Mexican Peninsula south of Imperial Valley.

According to Fred Alkire, who drove the famous old car on this, its latest journey, it was a trip to test the stamina of both car and driver.

"The only roads through that region," said Mr. Alkire, "are rough trails, first along the banks of the irrigation ditches, then across mesquite covered mesas, and finally over the barren alkali slopes, leading right to the base of the mud volcano.

"No car had ever climbed to that point before, and few if any will ever make the attempt again. Oftentimes we were up to the hubs in sand, then across bottomless sloughs a mile or more in width, where we were over the running board in liquid mud. We had to pull up the mud volcano slope the car was warped and twisted as it first lifted one wheel over a three-foot mud hummock, only to plunge into and through a hole equally as deep."

DUHL PIONEER IS LEASED TO J. E. TERRY

Former Editor of Albion Nugget To Edit Paper Founded by J. W. White--Will Be Republican.

As anticipated in THE TIMES last week, the Duhl Pioneer will henceforth be run as a Republican paper, the latest having been leased to J. E. Terry, who takes charge this week. The last issue ran the Republican ticket at the head of the editorial column, in a farewell statement, J. Warren White, founder and former proprietor of the paper, has the following to say:

J. E. Terry, who has been the foreman and manager of The Pioneer for the last couple of months, has taken a lease on the plant and will assume full charge the first of October. Mr. Terry's work on this paper and in the job department speaks for itself since he has been here and he needs no introduction to the business men and the people of Duhl and the surrounding country in general. For two years before coming to Duhl he was editor and publisher of the Albion Nugget, at Albion, in Cassia county, and has had other newspaper experience. It will be his purpose to give the people of Duhl and this end of the tract the very best newspaper that it is possible to publish, and the degree of excellence will attain will depend largely upon the manner in which the paper is supported by Duhl business concerns.

The writer is now, as he has been for more than a year, editor and publisher of The Idaho Call, published at Kimberly, and he will devote his efforts to that publication, for a time, at least, but desirous to dispose of his interests there that he may take a rest from newspaper work.

In conclusion the writer desires to make grateful acknowledgement to his many friends in Duhl and the Duhl country, who have stood loyally by him when standing by meant criticism and some times the loss of business. He desires to make acknowledgement to his audience, also, who have afforded him considerable amusement and in some instances have contributed various sums to the legal fraternity.

"Twin Falls, this name is Spolless Town," were the words that floated in golden letters through the dreams of street Commissioner Porter last night on his downy pillow after he had been informed by Mayor E. The ash can in the alley is to be so completely eradicated that the proverbial goat would starve to death. The weeds are to be cleaned, the ash heaps eliminated, the manure piles disposed of and the tail of the green apple invaded and destroyed. The people are to be invited to participate.
