GOV. ALEXANDER OPENS CAMPAIGN

Praises Prohibition and Depreciates War Talk.

PAYS ELOQUENT TRIBUTE TO NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION.

Chief Executive of Idaho Makes Vigorous Defense of His Own Administration and Answers Critics.

Declaring that the great prosperity now being enjoyed by the people of this country is only in its beginning and that it is due to the wise legislation of the Democratic party, Governor Alexander in a speech to a good sized audience at the Lavering Tuesday night, asserted that at the bottom of their hearts all the people regardless of politics rejoice over the statesmanship of Woodrow Wilson, which has kept them out of war. The governor closed his address with a statement of his own achievements as chief executive of Idaho, quoting figures to show that state taxes had been reduced greatly by his economical conduct of public affairs and by the elimination of graft under his administration.

Introduced by Chairman A. R. Hicks of the county committee, Governor Alexander said in substance and in part:

Although this is called the formal opening of the campaign in Twin Falls county the Democratic campaign really began three and a half years ago when congress under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson began to carry out the unparoleled program of wise legislation, the greatest in the history of mankind for 300 years. While we are enjoying the greatest prosperity known in the history of the country, we have only to look abroad to see a sad and horrible spectacle. While we are building school houses, the people of foreign lands are building instruments for the destruction of lives and property, and are preaching the doctrines of hate instead of the principles of peace. The peace government is neither Democratic nor Republican in origin, for it was started 2000 years ago by the Prince of Peace, but the man who is the living representative of the Prince of Peace today, among the heads of nations, is Woodrow Wilson, who has guided this great nation through the perils that surround it without embroiling it in war. "He wants war!" in spite of the attacks on President Wilson, by those of other parties, there is not a man or woman in this house tonight, Democrat, Republican, Socialist or Prohibitionist who is not glad from the bottom of the heart that we are not at war. War produces two great undesirable classes: millionaires and paupers. We do not want either. We want people of moderate means enjoying prosperity, and it is this class that suffers most from war. The only people who want war are politicians, who wish to get into office and are willing to offer other people's sons on the altar of their country. War would cost billions of dollars and something far more valuable than gold, the most precious treasure of the nation, its young men. They say that we should go to war with Mexico. Why should a great people like ours want to war with a torn, distressed and impoverished nation like Mexico? We are strong and united and educated. They are weak and divided and ignorant. Here we have a public opinion that expresses itself on the platform and in the ballot box. There the only means of expressing public dissent is by revolution, and there will be revolutions there until the time when they work out their salvation and find a peaceful means of expressing popular will. We cannot give them this by going to war with them. We can only exhibit them a friendly hand like we did to Cuba and help them to build up a great state, so that they can get the land into the hands of the people who will work it and lay a foundation for prosperity similar to our own. All Latin-America, seeing that we intend to do justice to Mexico, is already becoming friendly toward us and trading with us and a business will spring up that will be a benefit to everybody.

Some months ago, as governor, he said he had called on the mothers of Idaho to give up their boys to go to the border. They responded nobly. As the regiment left for the border the mothers of many of those young men stood and saw them depart. These mothers did not want war. They were willing to offer their sons for the cause of the country, but they did not want sacrifice made unless it should prove necessary, and they thank God that under the guidance of Woodrow Wilson it has not been necessary.

They tell us that this prosperity that we are enjoying will end with the war abroad. Now, they do not really believe that. One of the great light and power companies is investing $2,500,000 in southern Idaho. Why? Because they know that this prosperity is going to be permanent and that these investments will pay more and more as time goes on. All the great financial companies are investing large amounts of money, feeling that they will reap increased profits from a prosperity that is just beginning instead of nearing an end. If things are going to smash at the end of the war in Europe, the very worst thing that a man can do is to invest money, because if things go to pieces his investment will be worth less than the money. Now, there are Republicans here, I am sure, and if they think that the prosperity is likely to stop with the end of the war, they ought to advise people to quit investing now, and they ought to quit investing themselves until they see how things turn out. Is there a Republican in this house who will get on his feet and move that we advise the people to stop investing their money until the war is over? Will they stop investing their own money? Of course not, for at the bottom of their hearts they feel that this prosperity is going to continue.

I will tell you some reasons why this prosperity is going to continue. In the first place, the Democratic party under Woodrow Wilson, has passed the federal reserve act. Lately the other fellows have pretended to discover that this act is not a good one. You go into your national banks and you will see a little card fastened up bearing the words "Member Federal Reserve." The politicians may claim that this is not a good measure to try to fool the people, but they do not deceive the banker. The banker knows. And they don't fool the people. This legislation has insured plenty of money and free circulation where money is needed. You used to hear a great deal about money power and the money trust. You do not hear that any more, because this legislation has destroyed the money trust. You do not hear people complaining about lacking money to move crops because they no longer lack it.

Then we revised the tariff. Somebody will say that we need protection. Well, the fellows who are selling thirty-cent wool and eight or nine dollar lambs do not need protection very badly. The demand for goods under Democratic prosperity has been so great that prices have all gone up. The other day my wife bought a dollar lamb roast and when she told me what it was and what she paid for it, I took out a dollar bill and laid it on the roast and the bill covered half the roast. When I told my wife she said it was my fault because I had talked her into voting the Democratic ticket and times had become prosperous and prices had gone up.

After a discussion of the child labor bill, the income tax bill, and good roads bill, eight hour bill and the rural credits bill, Governor Alexander turned to state issues. He began this part of his speech by saying that he would ask the people to look upon him as an ordinary human being who was capable of making mistakes and who had made some of them. He was just an average man trying to do the best he could. Every merchant who bought goods knew that sometimes he made a mistake and bought the wrong goods which he had to sell at a loss. He

WILL RECEIVE REPORTS OF WORLD SERIES' PLAYS

Detailed Account of Each Game Will Be Telegraphed to R. M. Mercer by Associated Press.

Baseball fans in Twin Falls will have an excellent opportunity to follow each and every play of the game in the world series between the National and American leagues, for R. M. Mercer, proprietor of the Model Cafe, has made arrangements with the Associated Press to receive a detailed account of every play and every game. The press notices will come through the local branch of the Western Union and the telegrams will be given to the crowd by megaphone, after which the notices will be posted in the window of the cafe.

Mr. Mercer says he has gone to considerable expense in securing this feature for Twin Falls' fans, but feels that interest which will be shown in the accounts, will to a great extent repay him for the expenditure.

The first report covering the weather, condition of the field and line-up of teams, will reach Twin Falls soon after nine o'clock in the morning, and the regular reports of the game will come in over the wires shortly after noon.

As decided by the national baseball commission Tuesday, the first game of the series will be played on the Boston National field. The second game will also be played at Boston, while the third and fourth games will be played in Brooklyn or Philadelphia, after the National league race is decided. If the series goes beyond four games the fifth game will be played at Boston on October 12, and the sixth at Philadelphia or Brooklyn. The place of playing the seventh will be decided by the toss of a coin and in case of a tie game or postponed game the clubs will remain in the city until such game is played off.

BUSINESS MEN BACK FOOTBALL

Movement Started To Get Community Behind Team

FINANCES PLEDGED TO MEET POSSIBLE DEFICIT.

Old Coaches Volunteer to Help Regular Head—Effort Made to Arouse a Community Spirit.

The business men of Twin Falls will get behind the high school football team this year and push for their success both financially and in the way of physical training, in order that the boys may not only feel that they have, but will have the support of the community as a whole.

It is not intended that money shall be contributed at the start for the purpose of carrying the team through, but that sufficient support be secured to make good any deficit that may exist at the end of the season. At the same time, old football players and coaches have volunteered to assist Professor Naffzger in his training work so that he may devote his energies exclusively to the training of the team while the volunteers will look after the instructions necessary to teach the individual players to protect themselves against injury and to best handle themselves individually.

The community support manifested so strikingly here in baseball circles has not appeared in football heretofore and the hope and belief is expressed that the result of community appreciation will prove as satisfactory in the last as in the first.

A systematic campaign to increase attendance will begin shortly, and the backers believe that they will be in a position to assure lovers of the sport that they will get more than the worth of their money in solid enjoyment every game.

PROMINENT YOUNG BUSINESSMAN WEDS

William H. Macauley and Miss Helen West United In Marriage Monday Morning.

William H. Macauley and Miss Helen B. West, were married Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Edward's Catholic church by Rev. N. P. Hahn, rector. Miss Gladys Channel was bridesmaid and T. C. Macauley best man. The young couple took the morning train for Salt Lake City to spend their honeymoon. They will make their home in Filer.

The bride is the daughter of Harry West, one of the original settlers of the Twin Falls tract. The groom has been connected with the Macauley brothers firm in this city and is now manager of their Filer branch. Both of the young folks are widely known in Twin Falls and vicinity.

MODERN LAUNDRY TO BE ERECTED

Construction Work Soon to Begin on New Building at Corner of Fourth Avenue and East Third.

A new modern laundry will be erected shortly at the corner of Fourth avenue east and Third street east, opposite the power house, by Watt brothers, experienced laundrymen, who recently came to this city for the purpose of looking over the situation. Frank L. Watt has been here some months and was joined last week by his brother, who has been conducting a laundry at Gooding. The new structure will be of brick and the machinery will be of the latest patent.

Details in regard to the new enterprise have not yet been made public.

GOVERNOR TALKS IN TOWNS OF COUNTY

Addresses Made at Hansen, Kimberly, Filer and Buhl—Hollister Meeting Cancelled.

In addition to speaking at Twin Falls, Governor Alexander addressed meetings at Hansen, Kimberly, Filer and Buhl this week. Owing to a slight illness, Wednesday morning, he was unable to meet his appointment at Hollister. The governor in several of his speeches replied to those who censured him for being away from the capital by saying that he wanted to get out among the people and find out their needs. He said that the politicians of the opposition wanted him to stay in Boise, so that he would not toll tales out of school on them.

TRACT POTATOES GOOD FOR SEED

Government Expert Finds Them Relatively Diseaseless

TWO FIELDS PROVE ABSOLUTELY EXEMPT FROM TROUBLE.

Others on Which Experiments Are Made Show Practical Freedom From Disease.

The Twin Falls spuds will prove desirable for seed on account of the relative absence of disease in the opinion of O. A. Pratt, of Jerome, representative of the United States department of agriculture, who was here this week making an examination of the potatoes around this city.

Among the fields in which experiments have been conducted he found one from which rhizoctonia had been entirely eliminated and others in which it was present only in a negligible way. He also found that fusarium wilt had been eradicated from one field in which experiments had been conducted and reduced to small proportions in another. This led him to the conclusion that this would be a good country from which to secure seed potatoes.

GAMBLING CASES ARE DISPOSED OF

President of Steamfitters Get in Bad by Failing to Pay Fine When Jailed.

With the fining of J. S. Jonasson $200, which he is "earning" in jail, and the location of Jack Short at Curry, from which place it is alleged he will come to Twin Falls and "come across," ends the chapter to a gambling raid made some weeks ago, when Police Officer Ham saw a quiet game through the transom and then took the players into custody. The men were playing on a bed when the policeman arrived. The officer recognized all of them and they all agreed to come to the police court and plead guilty. The next day James Johnson and John Scrim made their appearance and paid a fine of $20 and costs. J. S. Jonasson and Jack Short disappeared. An inquiry led to the disclosure of the fact that Jonasson was running the game, and this was followed by the filing of a state charge. Jonasson went east and afterwards returned to Buhl, where the officers had some difficulty in locating him. Police Officer Ham, who knew him personally, at length went down and recognizing his man brought him back. The minimum fine under a state charge is $200, which Jonasson was unable to pay. He is president of the Plumbers and Steamfitters union here.

Jack Short was afterwards located by Policeman Ham at Curry, and agreed to pay without further prosecution.

MULL GETS THE ELM PARK SEWER CONTACT

Proves Lowest Bidder—Other Bid by C. H. Helmer Was Somewhat Higher.

The Elm Park sewer contract was awarded Monday to C. H. Mull, the lowest bidder. There were but two bids, that of Mr. Mull, which was $7,339.70 for cash, or $7,559.89 on time, and that of C. H. Helmer, which was $7,732.20 for the work on time, with four per cent off for cash. It has not yet been determined whether the bond or the cash bid will be accepted in the case of Mr. Mull.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES TO MAKE SCHOOLHOUSE CAMPAIGN BEGINNING AT CURRY TONIGHT

The Democratic county candidates will begin their campaign tonight with a meeting at Curry and will stay on the job until election day. In many instances two meetings will be held in different districts on the same night, the candidates dividing into two groups. Meetings have been billed up to October 30, all evening meetings:

The following are the dates up until and including October 14:

ALL IS IN READINESS FOR "CAPTAIN RACKETT"

Dress Rehearsal Tonight Will Round Cast Into Shape For Performance Tomorrow.

Everything is in readiness for the presentation of the comedy "Captain Rackett," to be given under the auspices of the Women's club tomorrow night at the Lavering theatre. The cast, which is completely composed of Twin Falls business men and women, has been working diligently for the past fortnight and the showing made thus far will assure a good performance and the dress rehearsal this evening will complete the preliminary work.

Several features have been added to the evening's entertainment and these will make the play somewhat different from the usual run of amateur performances. Between acts vocal solos will be given by Mrs. C. M. Biggs and Edith Holcomb, and as both ladies have voices of recognized beauty and quality this feature will be a welcome one. Another feature will be that of the ushering, for nine young ladies in costume will have charge of the seating arrangements. Music for the evening has been kindly promised by William Coburn and Neil Shettler.

Friday evening's performance is a benefit for the Women's club and the members of this organization have been conducting an active ticket campaign to assure the success of the venture. This method of raising funds was considered by the women to be a pleasanter and more effective means of reaching the public, than would the personal soliciting of subscriptions.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN OPENS MONDAY NIGHT

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, to Speak—Hughes-Fairbanks Meeting Friday Night.

The Republicans are to open their campaign in Twin Falls Monday night with an address at the Lavering theater by United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska. Prior to this opening gun of the campaign, the work of preliminary organization will take place at the Parish hall with an address by Shad L. Hodgin, of Boise, at the close of which a Hughes-Fairbanks club will be organized.

A meeting was held Monday night at Buhl at which county candidates and others spoke. Cigars and light refreshments were on hand.

DOCTORS GATHER IN TWIN FALLS TODAY

Twenty-fourth Annual Meeting of The Idaho State Medical Association in Session.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Idaho State Medical association convened here today at the Elks hall. The meeting was called to order by the president, Dr. Truman O. Boyd, and adjourned after a short session until after lunch in order to allow physicians coming in on the noon train to arrive.

NO FURTHER WORD FROM DR. WILSON—THOUGHT GOOD SIGN

Dr. H. W. Clouchok said today that he had received no word relative to Dr. H. W. Wilson's condition since the dispatch which he received Tuesday, which was published in THE TIMES. He considered this a good sign, as he would be informed should any setback occur.

PROFESSOR IDDINGS LIKES TRACT

Professor E. J. Iddings, head of the agricultural department of the University of Idaho, was in the city last week visiting County Agent W. N. Birch and Professor E. J. Fjelsted. He declared that he was delighted with agricultural conditions here.

PRESIDENT WANTS NO DISLOYAL VOTE

Sends Cutting Answer to Letter From Critic In New York City Censuring His Course.

LONG BRANCH—President Wilson made it plain Friday he wants no "disloyal" American to vote for him. He expressed indignation at a telegram received from Jeremiah O'Leary, of New York, president of the American Truth society, accusing him of being pro-British and saying he had failed to obtain compliance with American rights. The president sent O'Leary a telegram which the officials indicated Wilson had desired to put into stronger language.

The message follows: "Your telegram received. I would feel deeply mortified to have you or anybody like you vote for me. Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

Partisanship in the east has been swept aside by the wave of patriotic approval accorded President Wilson's telegram to Jeremiah A. O'Leary. The New York Evening Post, which has not been supporting the president, says in a leading editorial tonight:

"Hurrah for Woodrow Wilson. This is the cry that we may be sure to spring to the lips of millions of American citizens as they read in their morning papers today the stinging reply sent by the president to a telegram sent him by the impudent blatherskite who is the head of the Pro-German association that calls itself the American Truth society. We do not envy Mr. Hughes and his feelings as he reads these few brief lines.

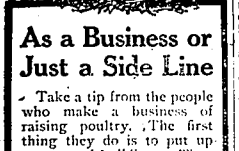
"Self respect alone demanded just such an answer and the soothing effectiveness of the message plainly springs from the intense indignation which inspired it. How many votes will be turned to Wilson by this episode we cannot venture to estimate, but it is certain that it has warmed the blood of many Americans who had been cold or hostile and made him feel like registering at once approval of the president's splendid utterance and disgust at the enemies he made, by casting a vote for Woodrow Wilson. That it has not lost the president a single vote is too obvious for dispute, the only question is not whether it has helped him, but how much. And we are inclined to think that the answer is, very much indeed. The American people have a great fondness for strong words that are said at exactly the right time and exactly the right ring."

The Brooklyn Standard-Union, Republican, in an editorial headed "Disgusting attack on the president," says in part:

"President Wilson's answer to Jeremiah A. O'Leary's offensive and stupid telegram, is one every American will read with delight. The president's cool contempt for the attack is shared by all true Americans, of every political party whatsoever."

Characterizing O'Leary as "The Soul of Hyphenism," the New York Globe, Republican, declares:

"President Wilson is to be congratulated on the straight from the shoulder answer that he has returned to the insulting telegram of Jeremiah A. O'Leary."



As a Business or Just a Side Line

Take a tip from the people who make a business of raising poultry. The first thing they do is to put up some good buildings. They pay particular attention to the details of correct construction.

The well-built poultry house provides plenty of sunlight, fresh air and space enough for comfort of the chickens and convenience for cleaning. Location is an important point. Make sure of good drainage and shelter from rough weather.

See us about the material for your buildings. We will help you to build the best poultry house for your needs, whether you make a business of poultry or whether it is only a side line.

ROOSEVELT SCORES THE ADMINISTRATION

Former President Grows Sarcastic When Speaking of the Mexican and European Situation.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—With bitter invective and scathing sarcasm directed at President Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt today opened his stumping tour for Charles E. Hughes.

The occasion was a made to order, get together rally, as the local committee put it.

Roosevelt's address was confined almost entirely to telling why, in his opinion, President Wilson should not be re-elected.

"Cowardice, blustering hypocrisy and verbosity, when action should have been taken," were some of the charges made against the president. He explained his speech was to be a "fighting speech."

Most of the demonstrations during the speech were confined to laughter when Roosevelt, in a high falsetto, sarcastically criticised the president's handling of the submarine and Mexican situation.

The real applause came when he referred to his settlement of the anthracite coal strike situation when he was president.

At times Roosevelt spread his attack on President Wilson into a verbal curtain of fire to include "peace at any price Tories and Copperheads" of present times.

Roosevelt declared the president has "blustered and uttered fine words." He picked out innumerable phrases the president has used at various times in international notes and speeches, and held them up to ridicule in sneering falsetto.

He frequently departed from his text. Discussing the president's conduct of the submarine issue he said:

"You ask me what I would have done? I would have seized every interned German ship. Then the German chancellor would not have blatted as he did that Germany once again is able to start out on more unwarned torpedoings of merchant ships."

Sarcastically referring to Wilson's high flown phrases, he said:

"The men who founded the Republican party in Michigan in 1854 called a spade a spade, not an agricultural implement for tilling the ground."

AUTO POLOISTS TRAVEL ABOUT IN REGAL FASHION

Big Private Car Has Accommodations For 15 People, Seven Autoes and Necessary Supplies.

The Hankinson auto poloists who will stage some exciting contests in Twin Falls October 8, 9, 10, are due to arrive here Saturday and the arrival will be made in most regal fashion. A big special car is the traveling home of these men and every accommodation is included which will assure the comfort and convenience of these dare-devils who daily take their lives in their hands to furnish thrills for thousands of spectators.

Provision is made for 15 people in this "traveling palace," as their car has often been referred to and the Hankinson party spend their entire time while traveling, in the special "R. A. H." car.

Ten berths, a state room, a kitchen, a living and dining room and fully equipped garage are all carried on this car, in addition to supplies and accessories for seven automobiles. Six auto polo cars aside from a large Chalmers press car are carried in the special car.

During the past six months this car with its party has traveled over 8000 miles and has visited 15 states throughout the middle west and the northwest, having shown at Springfield, Ill., Minneapolis, Detroit, Milwaukee, Des Moines, Kansas City and half dozen cities and towns in the middle west.

Press reports from the various cities in which the Hankinson auto poloists have shown all state that the exhibition presented by these men is exciting to the highest degree, and offers more thrills in a short time than does any other sport. Continual repairs are necessary for the parts broken in the contests and no expense is spared by the management to present a contest worthy of being seen.

VICTOR MURDOCK STANDS WITH WILSON ON STRIKE ADJUSTMENT

NEW YORK—Victor Murdock, editor of the Wichita (Kansas) Eagle, and a pioneer of the progressive movement in the west, has declared unqualifiedly in favor of President Wilson's course in avoiding a nation-wide railroad strike. Referring to Candidate Hughes' opposition to the eight-hour bill and his insistence that arbitration should have been compelled, Mr. Murdock's newspaper says in part: "But Mr. Hughes, like the Republican newspapers failed to point out how this could have been done. Th railroad men took the position that the eight-hour day was not arbitrable. They refused flatly to arbitrate. Under the circumstances, then, unless the eight-hour day was granted a strike would have been inevitable. Would Mr. Hughes have preferred a strike with its inevitable burnings and disorder, its bloodshed and prostration of industry, its stirring of class hatred and suffering of millions of people, to the settlement that Mr. Wilson effected? For the strike of 1894 gives a faint idea of what might have been expected in 1916 if the president, following Mr. Cleveland's precedent, had attempted to settle it by force.

"The great mass of people will undoubtedly feel that Mr. Wilson was wiser in his generation than Mr. Cleveland, or than Mr. Hughes. The Adamson bill does not effect a permanent settlement. Further measures are necessary and should be adopted as the president has recommended.

"As to the 'surrender' of the president to the demand for an eight-hour day, progressives demanded that measure of social justice four years ago and it certainly ill becomes anyone who supported that platform to rail at the president for helping to secure for the railroad men a measure so manifestly due to labor."

POCATELLO EXCURSION WILL VISIT TWIN FALLS

Excursion Will Go As Far As Buhl and Stop Here—Oratory Will Be On Tap.

Word has been received by the Twin Falls commercial club that the Pocatello Commercial club will visit this city on October 18, on the occasion of its trip over the Twin Falls branch. The excursion will go as far as Buhl. Whether the stop here will be made going or returning has not been decided. The party will travel on a special train. It is planned to bring the visitors up town, bid them welcome and show them as much of the city as possible during their stay. Details of the program have not been worked out as they will depend on the time at the disposal of the Pocatello people. Speaking of this matter the Pocatello Tribune said:

Representatives of local wholesale and distributing houses will make the trip, their wives accompanying them, there will be special illuminated effects on the car, and the members will enjoy a day of getting acquainted with the neighbors. A good many have already signified their intention of joining the excursion.

Buhl News

(From the Buhl Herald)

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wade of Idaho Falls, spent Monday in Buhl. Mr. Wade is president of the Buhl Department store and also proprietor of the Wade Bros. store in Idaho Falls. He was especially pleased with the outlook at Buhl in the mercantile line.

A. E. White, a contractor recently of Seattle, Wash., has located in Buhl where he will engage in this work. Mr. White has had considerable experience in the building line. He secured the contract to build a school house near Buhl soon after coming to the city.

Webb Hubbell left this morning for Pocatello, where he will enter the Idaho Technical Institute. Webb will make a strong addition to the football teams of the institute. While on the Buhl high school team he was considered one of the best high school players in the state and was a big factor in putting the local team in the place they held as the champion high school team in the state.

Governor Alexander appointed Gustav Kunze as a delegate from Idaho to the irrigation congress that will be held in El Paso on October 4th. This convention is attended by delegates from all states where irrigation projects are located, and is one of the most important events held in the west. The appointing of delegates is carefully made and Mr. Kunze's appointment comes as an honor to him.

Mrs. Aldrich, secretary of the Presbyterian board of home missions, gave a very inspiring and helpful address at the Ladies' Missionary society of the Presbyterian church. In the evening she addressed the King's Daughters at Mrs. McClusky's home. Mrs. Aldrich's home is in California and she works in all states west of the Mississippi.

John Wm. Johnson, living seven and one-half miles from Buhl, brought in some remarkable specimens of alfalfa Monday. Some of the plants measured nearly eight feet in length from where the stalks were cut just above the ground to the top. Mr. Johnson placed the samples with T. H. Miller, who is gathering an exhibit to send to the land show at Omaha, conducted by the Union Pacific railway.

The Iamit circle met last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Kunze and hold an interesting meeting. Mesdames Kunze and Tanner were hostesses. Mrs. Bertha Morris of Twin Falls, gave a splendid talk on the subject: "Home, School and Church." Mr. Kunze gave an address in his usual interesting way on farming and stock raising. He also spoke of the donation from Frank H. Buhl for the school agricultural farm.

COMMENT BY EXCHANGES

HUGHES WOULD REPEAL EVERYTHING

IN a speech at Milwaukee, last week Candidate Hughes made his first definite statement of purpose, as a shackled slave of special interests, to repeal the whole Democratic legislative accomplishment, reported by a staff correspondent of the Chicago Tribune with Hughes in Wilwaukee, as follows:

"Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 20.—The first burst of applause came when he said in the principal city of the state of La Follette that the La Follette seamen's bill must be repealed; the next when he said that the Underwood tariff must be replaced by a protective tariff; the third, when he declared that the whole democratic legislative accomplishment must be wiped off books for the good of the country.

"Progressives at once began asking what about the legislation that the Progressive party indorsed four years ago and most of which has been passed by a Democratic congress under President Wilson. Judge Albert D. Norton, Progressive candidate for governor of Missouri four years ago, who is now stumping the west for Wilson, said:

"'At last we know where Mr. Justice Hughes stands... He would wipe out the whole legislative accomplishment of the Democratic administration, a record in which Progressive members of congress shared.

"'Mr. Hughes means that he would repeal the child labor law, the federal reserve bank law, the farm loan law, workingmen's compensation act, the non-partisan tariff commission law, the income and inheritance tax laws, the merchant marine law.

"'The judge would repeal the law preventing the dumping of European made goods on this country at the close of the war, the law giving the president power to retaliate against foreign governments which violate American rights, the good roads law, the eight-hour-day law and some forty other constructive measures which have been written on the statute books since President Wilson came into power. In other words, he would undo all the good that has been done.

"'Do the mothers of this country want the child labor law repealed?

"'Do the Progressives who indorsed the 1912 platform of their party want the non-partisan tariff commission law which they advocated and which the Democrats gave them, repealed? I think not.

"'Do the business men of this country who are prosperous under the federal reserve law want the money power transferred back from Washington to Wall street? I think not.

"'Do the farmers of this country want the farm loan law repealed? The law that gives them money at a low rate on long time? I think not.

"This will be great news for the Progressives and it will show that despite the fact that the Republicans have yelled loudly that Progressives are back in the stand pat ranks, the Progressives have nothing to expect in the way of reform from Mr. Justice Hughes and his backers.'"

CHILD LABOR BILL NO FAKE.

LARGE praise which was unstintedly bestowed upon congress and the administration in the first few days after the passage and approval of the child labor law, was later modified in an important degree by the alleged discovery that there was a "joker" in the bill. Under a "thirty-day clause" inserted in the measure as a late amendment it has been charged that its beneficient intent was nullified, and that it was not after all such a good thing as it seemed. This criticism does not appear to appeal, however, to the officials of the national child labor committe. According to a statement just put forth by Mr. Owen R. Lovejoy, the industrious and efficient secretary of the committee, the bill is in all respects satisfactory, and he feels to enter a protest against all assertions to the contrary. Moreover, he brands as absurd the attempt to use the measure as campaign material, for both Democrats and Republicans were represented on the senate committee that passed on the final form of the bill, both parties stood solidly for it in this form, and if on roll-call only the Republican senators from Pennsylvania voted against it, there were also Democratic opponents, ten in number from the southern states. Whether a "gold brick," therefore, or the real article, one party is as much responsible for it as the other—either in blame or in credit.

Explaining the "thirty-day clause," which has been the subject of partisan criticism and ridicule, Secretary Lovejoy insists that there is no fraud or "joke" about it. The provision in question read:

"No producer, manufacturer, or dealer shall ship or deliver for shipment in interstate or foreign commerce. * * * any article or commodity, the product of any mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment situated in the United States, in which within thirty days prior to the removal of such products therefrom children under the age of fourteen years have been employed, or permitted to work."

Mr. Lovejoy says that this was intended chiefly to prevent evasion of the law by the storage of child-made goods in a warehouse—it does not relate to shipment in interstate commerce, but to removal from the factory; and it was necessary as a matter of simple justice, because without it a manufacturer who once employed child labor would find his goods debarred forever from interstate commerce even though his child employees were discharged.

Surely the bill ought to be as nearly air-tight as human language can make it. It was framed by eminent constitutional lawyers, and having been before congress for three years, and thoroughly considered, it cannot be said to have been jammed through at last. Its friends and sponsors believe it will stand every test of its constitutionality in the courts, and express themselves as confident that whether the next president be Mr. Hughes or Mr. Wilson, the law can and will be enforced in accordance with the will of the American people regardless of politics.—Deseret Evening News.

BORAH QUITS CAMPAIGN.

MYSTERY surrounds the abandonment of the national campaign by Senator Borah, who has cancelled his speaking dates and returned to the city of Washington. Borah has been heralded in the public press as the speaker most in demand and if he has been unable to draw crowds it certainly augurs ill for the Republican national ticket, and no man was ever known to abandon a campaign where the crowds were up to his expectations. It would seem that Borah has found the bottom has dropped entirely out of the Republican campaign and certainly no one would go to hear Hughes after reading one or two of his speeches if Hughes were not a presidential candidate. Borah dealing in Republican platitudes and with his chief harking back to the days of Mark Hannaism would fail to interest the public and would perforce find it necessary to abandon the effort.

It would seem that some plausible reason would have been given to the public for Borah's desertion of the stump instead of the curt announcement that he had quit and returned to Washington. If Borah cannot draw the crowds and instill life into the campaign, there are but two men who can get a hearing for the Republican cause, Roosevelt, who has a personal following, and Hughes, who is the nominee.

This is but another evidence that standpat Republicanism is dead and that the effort to galvanize it into life will be found a woeful waste of time, energy and money. But the special interests are determined to make the experiment and as they have money to burn it is as well that it be squandered in this dying effort as in any other manner.—Boise New Freedom.

CONTEMPT IS IGNORANCE.

THE Pocatello Tribune takes occasion to say in regard to Senator Dubois' having charge of the Wilson campaign that, "It will relieve the Republicans of the intermountain states of any suspense that they might otherwise have entertained as to success of the Republican ticket."

Inasmuch as these words are written in a spirit of smartness and cocksureness, and after the manner of professional ring sportsmen, we feel entitled to say that they mean nothing at all. If any political party comes to that point where victory is certain, it is certain they will meet defeat. Wise politicians, like great warriors, give their opponents the benefit of every doubt as to their ability. At every election it may be seen that dogmatic party lines are weakening and that it is more difficult to forecast results. The game is more open, and men of opposite persuasions are more and more inclined to honor each other's integrity. This means that the fond dreams of greatest Americans are working into form and that government by the people is succeeding. Political parties will always exist and should, but the baneful type of "party man" shall join the harmless minority of bigots.—Blackfoot Republican.

BODY OF KATIE MARTIN FOUND IN SNAKE RIVER

BLACKFOOT, Ida.—The body of Katie Martin, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Martin, who live near Moreland, was found in the Snake river about 22 miles below Blackfoot last Saturday, says the Idaho Republican. In attempting to cross a channel of the river near the old Acuff ranch in a wagon a party composed of the Sparks and Martin families were thrown into the water and all were rescued except Katie. A long search failed to disclose the lodging place of the body, which was not seen until last Saturday when Carl Anderson, looking for brush roofing, saw it in the shallow water. Coroner E. T. Peck was summoned to take the body to Blackfoot and prepared it for burial.

REPUBLICAN PRESS COMMITTEE OVERLOOKED THIS ONE.

"Wall street experienced the most active stock market session since 1907 today and also witnessed its twentieth consecutive million-share day."

The above is from Dunn's Trade Review of September 20th.

It did not appear in the last press bulletin promulgated from Republican headquarters in Chicago.

Perhaps the reference to the great depression which began in 1907 under Republican administration had something to do with its omission.

Or was it omitted just because it reflected an era of unprecedented prosperity? Or as Governor Alexander might say, because Democratic prosperity is "unconstitutional?"

MAKING DR. WILSON AN ISSUE IN STATE POLITICS.

The Boise Statesman, which enjoys an extensive circulation in southern Idaho by the grace only of its Associated Press connections, is forcing the Dr. Wilson incident into politics. Its editorial department is working at a fever heat, its cartoonist sitting up nights, and we even suspect that in addition to its alleged "Nogales Correspondent" it has appealed to its fiction bureau for "first aid."

The Statesman has employed every device known to a certain and not much respected class of news perverters, to make it appear that Dr. Wilson's injury was the result of a deliberate attempt on his life, coolly premeditated by Mexican soldiers in the service of the Carranza government, and after the alleged offense, condoned by that government. In its characteristic sneering phraseology it says that "at least a 'strict accountability' note" should be sent, from which it is easy to gather that the Statesman, for political effect at the present moment, if for no other reason, would take the position that military action, with all of its direful consequences, should commence forthwith. The parents of the boys on the border will be apt to think this proposition over.

Now examine the facts:

Dr. Wilson was injured ("shot down"—the Statesman puts it) by a bullet at 1:30 Sunday afternoon, at Nogales, the shot striking him in the leg and inflicting, no doubt, an ugly but not dangerous wound. (The Statesman's headlines Monday implied that Dr. Wilson's condition was critical, although the sensational "lead" was not borne out by the dispatch which followed.) Dr. Wilson was at once removed to the hospital, to which he will be confined for perhaps ten days. (The Statesman lays no little stress upon the doctor's "suffering from a painful wound," in its efforts to arouse popular indignation, whereas Dr. Wilson's associate in Twin Falls was advised Monday that his condition was not serious and that he was in no pain, and would leave on his furlough for his home in Twin Falls in ten days.) At the time of the shooting Dr. Wilson was at the railway station awaiting the arrival of the train.

Across from the depot and the tracks, on the Mexican side of the border, from the vicinity of the Senora bank, the shot was fired that struck Dr. Wilson. Who fired it, who it was fired at and why it was fired, are questions that are answered by Major Carroll in his telegram to Dr. Wilson's associate: "A Mexican soldier fired at an escaping Mexican prisoner," which agrees with the Associated Press account of the official report of General Plummer to the war department.

How different from the Statesman's fiction!

How different from the vivid tale of the Mexican soldiers drawing lots in a restaurant to determine which of them should kill the doctor. How ineffective for political purposes is the real story as compared with the blood-thirsty, murderous recital that the Statesman gave its readers as "news."

Someone will say—"But Major Carroll's report was a censored version, perverting the truth to exonerate the Wilson administration."

One answer is this—found in the Statesman's own editorial columns, where it was piling up glory upon itself for getting this bit of news while the Associated Press was unable to secure it. To newspapermen, who are familiar with the workings of the greatest news-gathering organization in the world, the Associated Press, the Statesman explanation tells the story in itself. The Statesman's boast that it furnished the Associated Press with this big scoop from its Boise office is too funny for anything.

But here are the damning facts in so far as the Statesman's account is concerned, secured for THE TIMES from a source that it regards as entirely reliable. They are facts that the Statesman editor could have had and should have had in his possession:

First—Dr. Wilson was in civilian clothes.

Second—Dr. Wilson was one of the crowd at the depot awaiting the train.

Third—The Senora bank, from which vicinity the shot came is over a half mile away from the depot.

We would suggest to our readers that they make the simple experiment of trying to distinguish any particular man in a crowd, dressed as the others are, at half or a quarter of the distance which the shot that hit Dr. Wilson had to travel.

We would suggest to our readers, most of whom no doubt are personally acquainted with Dr. Wilson, that they inquire of themselves whether he is the type of man whom anybody would single out to kill. Dr. Wilson is not an aggressive man in the sense of being one who is looking for trouble; or one who is apt to incur the enmity of any one. Dr. Wilson is of the quiet, plain, unassuming type that makes friends with all of his acquaintances and has no enemies, he stands high in the estimation of his friends, and in his medical profession. That some Mexicans were "out" to "get" Dr. Wilson, as the Statesman infers, is in itself, too silly for serious consideration.

That in view of these facts, which the Statesman has access to in just the same degree that we have, the Statesman should attempt to stir up a public passion to the limit to which the Statesman is endeavoring to drive it, to result in the death—not alone injury—and maiming of any of the very best of Idaho's boys, to punish a people who are uneducated, uncivilized, poverty stricken and half starved, more to be sympathized with than massacred, is a proposition which we are lacking strong enough language to properly condemn.

Knull Items

(Special Times' Correspondence)

Mrs. Milton Dossett left last week for an extended visit with her sister at Brighton, Colorado.

James Nelson took in the Gem State fair at Boise last week and while there invested in some registered sheep for the improvement of his flock.

Miss Amis Jones of Boise, sister of Raymond Jones, is here for a visit with her brother and his family.

Dr. Campbell of Denver, Colo., son of D. F. Campbell, is visiting this father and looking after the interests of his ranch. Dr. Campbell has been an army surgeon, and is now first lieutenant of the U. S. army.

Bills are out announcing a public sale at the M. A. Thometz ranch, October 11. Mr. Thometz has some high bred stock for sale.

Mrs. Aldrich of Oakland, California, field secretary of the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church, was here last Monday in the interest of missions and held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Johnson.

There will be the usual services at both churches next Sunday morning and evening. You will be welcome at either church.

Miss Marion Milligan is sick at this writing with la grippe.

The W. C. T. U. convention of the second district of Idaho, which was held here last week, was one of unusual interest. There were a number of delegates from the other unions and after the two days' work with Mrs. Chipp, the state president, all went home benefitted and enthused and feeling more than ever the responsibility that rests on the voters in the near election. Are you registered? The convention voted unanimously to request every minister in the district to preach a temperance sermon before the election.

The dust was laid last Saturday night—the first time since last spring. Idaho is a "dry" state.

Miss Elva Averill of Rogerson, returned last Monday after a two weeks visit with friends at Curry.

Roy Wright is erecting a new barn in place of the one that was burned last summer.

D. S. Rice returned to his old home in Oregon last week for a final settlement of business affairs. He made the trip with Mr. Roy Holloway and family in their car.

We don't like a "knocker," but think as much of him as we do of a man that has a kick coming and will not register it. We would like to know and think we will make it our business to find out who is responsible for such road crossings as we have here at Knull. Is it the railroad or is it the state of Idaho?

John Klipatrick and W. J. Cahill spent three or four days last week looking over the country around Nampa and Caldwell.

20TH CENTURY CLUB PLANS ENTERTAINMENT

Meeting of State Federation For First Time in Twin Falls Matter of Interest.

The meeting of the Twentieth Century club on Tuesday afternoon took the form of a business meeting and kensington combined. Plans were discussed for entertaining the delegates of the state federation meeting to be held here October 10-13. This is the first meeting to be held in Twin Falls and the club members wish to uphold the reputation of the town for hospitality, and each considers it not only a duty but a pleasure to contribute her share toward making the visiting delegates welcome. It will be a number of years before Twin Falls will again have the opportunity of entertaining these ladies from all over the state and every effort is being made to make this visit one that will be recalled with pleasure.

Under the direction of Mrs. J. E. White, the members of the rural federation clubs are preparing to serve the banquet to be given on Thursday evening, October 12.

Mrs. Schroeder, in charge of the afternoon's program, called on different ones to tell what they would like to see accomplished by the club this year. A number of practical suggestions were made, and judging from the interest and enthusiasm shown, the work done this year will compare favorably with that of former years. Those called upon were Mrs. Clouchek, Packard, Hart, Blue, Edwards, Ripley and Hill. The following written by Mary Stewart and read by Mrs. Wilbur Hill, was admired by all:

Keep us oh Lord, from pettiness,
let us be large in thought, in words, and in deeds. Let us be done with faultfinding and leave off self-seeking.
May we put away all pretense, and meet each other, face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice. May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous. Let us take time for all things that make us grow calm, serene. Give us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are one.

May we strive to touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all and oh Lord God, let us forget not to be kind.

Robert Logan gave a number of beautiful selections on a Victrola, that were very thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Next Tuesday, October 10, is Idaho day, in charge of Miss Jessie Warrington, and it is hoped all the members will be present as the program will be an interesting one.

NOGALES WEEKLY IS FEATURE AT ORPHEUM

Manager Anderson Has Received Second Installment of Pictures—Also More From the Sawtooth Range.

The second installment of the Nogales Weekly, in which are contained scenes of great interest to all people of Twin Falls, was received Tuesday by Manager Anderson of the Orpheum, and together with the second installment of the picture being taken in the heart of the Sawtooth mountains, which was received at the same time, will be a feature of the Orpheum program for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The pictures from the border, which mostly deal with the activities of the Second Idaho regiment, were obtained through the enterprise of Mr. Anderson, who, realizing the interest attaching to the life of the men at Nogales, sent his "movie" machine south and placed it in charge of "Nick" Wenzel, who is taking the scenes for Mr. Anderson. Mr. Wenzel, while in Twin Falls, had taken a number of pictures with the machine and his experience has resulted in some excellent views. Three hundred feet of film will arrive weekly and after being shown in this city the pictures will be sent over the state.

This week's section contains a general panorama of the Idaho camp, a scene of the Second Idaho pa ticing drills, Second Idaho maneuvers, and a scene in which the Idaho boys are shown receiving their "ditty" bags, which were presented them by the women of Twin Falls. This last scene is of particular interest for it shows the men closer up and the local boys may be plainly seen and recognized. The picture is clear and distinct and the pleasure of the boys with their gifts is plainly noticeable.

There are about 500 feet in the installment showing views of the Sawtooth range, and this week's picture goes farther to show the beauties of Idaho. Several scenes are shown of Lake Alturas, surrounded by snow covered peaks and crags. A view of a storm over the lake is particularly striking. This is the first motion picture camera that has been taken into these mountains, and the photography is in charge of Ralph E. Woods.

Are You Going to Have a Public Sale?

I am again prepared to clerk your sale and purchase your paper, and am in position to quote you rates that I am certain will appeal to you as attractive.

I have a plan for the arrangement of terms that appeals to the various purchasers as being more equitable than those formerly in vogue in this community, and that will, at the same time, save money for the man holding a sale.

If you are contemplating holding a sale, let me submit my proposition to you.

I have money available for real estate loans, and at attractive rates.

Come in and let us show you how easy they are to operate. On sale at Western Auto Company, Twin Falls, Idaho.

The public is invited to be the jury; you, the reader, are to judge.

Our record for the last ten years is the evidence of our success. We rest our case.

Our whole form of government is determined by the vote of the majority. The opinion of the many, not the few, is accepted as reasonable and right. We are willing that our studio shall be judged on this basis.

One hundred people may be prejudiced in our favor, indeed, five hundred people may estimate us too highly, but the majority of the Twin Falls country could hardly be mistaken. You would not throw away the evidence of the majority as worthless would you?

It is this fact we offer you: we have the patronage of the majority. This is no idle statement; we make it deliberately; without proof, we would be foolish to say it at all; we have the proof along many codes of reasoning. The judgment of the majority—it is worth while.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Taber delightfully entertained several friends at dinner Tuesday evening at their home on Ninth avenue. The table was centered with a basket of asters. The remainder of the evening was spent at cards.

The fortieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Fuller was celebrated last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hill. All the children and grandchildren of the couple were present to spend a pleasant day.

Mrs. C. M. Hill entertained informally Saturday for Mrs. Walter Trager, of Boise, who left that evening for her home after a visit here. Mrs. Trager is a daughter of Rev. John Gourley, former pastor of the Presbyterian church in this city.

On Thursday, September 28th, Wayside club was pleasantly entertained by Mrs. A. V. Strain. The afternoon was devoted to fancy work and to planning for the convention banquet in October. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

The Hoag home was the scene of a pleasant dinner party Wednesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hoag delightfully entertained several friends. The table was graced with a bowl of flowers. The balance of the evening was enjoyably spent at the Idaho theatre.

A very pleasant social meeting of the Shamrock club was spent at the home of Mrs. W. R. Gwinn, Thursday, September 28. The afternoon was passed in sewing and relating anecdotes. Delightful refreshments were served, after which the club adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs. Gish, Thursday, October 12.

Ingleside club met on Wednesday, September 27, at the home of Mrs. J. H. Shettle on Addison avenue. Plans for the coming year were discussed and the yearly election resulted as follows: President, Miss Clara Walters; secretary, Mrs. J. H. Shettle; treasurer, Mrs. Peterson. The next meeting will be with Miss Ratcliff.

Monday afternoon was delightfully spent at the Putnam home when the four lowest in score of the Euchre club entertained the high scores. The four ladies being the Mesdames Olsen, Wolfe, Johnson and Miss Cashin. At the close of an afternoon enjoyably spent at cards, the guests were ushered into the dining room, when a delicious luncheon was served by the hostesses.

Mrs. N. A. Pettijohn was very agreeably surprised Saturday evening by the members of the Oakes Corner club and their families. The Pettijohns are moving to their new home on Sixth avenue east this week. The club members presented Mrs. Pettijohn with a beautiful Community berry spoon as a token of their regard for the departing member. The guests departed at a late hour after partaking of a substantial luncheon.

The members of the cast of "Captain Rackett," the play being presented tomorrow night at the Lavering theatre by the Business Women's club of this city, were most pleasantly entertained Friday evening at the home of Florence Near, and again Monday evening at the home of Jessie Warrington. The hostesses had provided delightful refreshments which were welcomed by all after their strenuous rehearsals during the early part of the evening, and much enjoyment was had by everyone in relating the humorous situations which occur in the comedy.

One of the interesting affairs of the week was the kensington given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Samuel Hart announcing the engagement of her daughter, Fannie, to David C. Girdner. At four o'clock the postman arrived and presented each guest with an envelope containing a small heart bearing the names of the prospective bride and groom and wedding date, which is set for November 22. Congratulations were extended to Miss Hart by the guests present including the Misses Roberts, Amos, Mildred and Margaret Morgan, Evans, Cashin, Cox and Putnam, the Mesdames Tabor, Hoag, Hollingsworth, Patrick, Cooksley, Gates, Costello, Seligman, Putnam, Epler, Cox and Graves. The rooms were beautified with autumn leaves and roses and the tea table which was presided over by Mrs. J. M. Cooksley was attractively decorated in hearts, kewpies and red shaded candles, which cast a soft glow of red light over the darkened dining room and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by the Misses Carmen Cox and Marie Roberts.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

SEVENTEENTH EPISODE

The Tell-Tale Envelope.

Shots that are fired from guns do not often hit the people they are fired at. The coolest target puncturer grows excited when his target is a man, and more excited when it is a woman. Gideon Trask was not an expert with the rifle. He had been crazy enough to take the life of Dick Freneau—to wring it out of him with his hands. He thought he had escaped detection until, with an appalling abruptness, Gloria Stafford—though he did not know her name—charged him with the murder and declared that she had seen him commit it before her very eyes.

He had not been quite crazy enough or quite wise enough to kill her then and there when she was alone and at his mercy. He thought to repair the consequences of his delay by shooting her down now that she reappeared with an armed force at her back. So he fired at Gloria where she stood in front of the pilothouse demanding his surrender.

They told Gloria afterwards she was brave as a veteran and faced the assassin coolly. But she told the truth when she said that she was paralyzed with fear, so frightened that she could not even show her fright.

When the muzzle of Trask's rifle spat at her, she heard the bullet sing past her ear. She was already wondering whether she were dead or alive, whether the next one would strike where she heard the first one thwack. The pilot grunted and mumbled: "He got me!"

She forgot Trask and whirled round to see the pilot fall across his own wheel. The yacht wavered and swerved in its course. Gloria was the nearest to the pilothouse. She had been a pupil of the pilot only a few minutes before. She ran to him, lifted him aside and seized the wheel by its projecting spokes, just in time to keep the yacht from crashing into the barge at full speed. She made a sharp turn, the yacht swerved and ground along the side of the barge. Gloria meanwhile was alarmed more for the life of the pilot than her own. She began to call "Stephen! Doctor Royce!"

But Doctor Royce was too busy to hear her call. His immediate interest was not in a wounded man, but in wounding a man. When he saw that Trask was aiming his rifle at Gloria again, his whole being thrilled with a ferocity unknown to him before. To save Gloria from being hurt he would have massacred a hundred Trasks.

He leaped aboard the canal barge before the deckhands could make fast. He sprang at Trask and seized the rifle he held. He twisted it out of Trask's hands before he could fire a second shot.

But he was pounced upon at once by Jed, who pinioned his arms and flung him to the deck. The captain of the yacht, following close after Royce, laid hold of Jed and dragged him away before he could harm Royce. But he left Royce supine on the deck, with Trask's fatal clutch on his throat.

Gloria, wondering at Royce's not answering her call, clung to the wheel till she saw the cable fast, then she ran forward to the edge of the upper deck and saw why he failed her. He was in the baleful clutch of Trask. Gloria, looking for a weapon of rescue, could find nothing but a life preserver tied to a rope. She began to swing it about her head in circles of increasing diameter, like a lasso.

It was revolving at a violent rate when it reached Trask. It smote him aside and dazed him into loosening his grip for just a moment. This was long enough for Royce to shake free and regain his feet. He hurled himself at Trask, but Trask, seeing his victim erect and menacing, lost courage and ran. At the edge of the barge he slipped and sprawled. He would have fallen between the yacht and the barge into the river if the yacht had not swung alongside in time to catch him. It held him up, but it held him as in a giant lemon squeezer, and it squeezed his bone and flesh with dreadful force.

Gloria saw the agony in Trask's face and the sight was horrible. She saw the yacht swing free again. Trask's body dropped into the water.

Now the life preserver that had served as a weapon returned to its original purpose. Gloria threw it to Trask. Suffering as he was, he seized it automatically and hooked his elbow through it.

Now Royce also reverted to his purpose as he knelt down and clutched at Trask's collar as Gloria hauled him in like a great fish. One of the deck*hands leaded off the barge and the* yacht and kept them from closing in again like scissors blades. Another deckhand helped Royce drag Trask to the deck.

He was heavy, and his agony seemed to increase upon him when the desperate necessity of swimming was over. He fainted the moment his dripping body was stretched out, and Doctor Royce had, as it were, to save his life twice, first to bring him back from the swoon of pain, and then to bring him back from the annihilation of his shattered machinery.

Meanwhile Jed was locked in a ferocious wrestle with the captain of Pierpont's yacht, who called the engineer to his aid. As the engineer told Pierpont, "I had to knock him senseless before I could knock any sense into him."

And now Nell Trask, who had turned from one battle to another, tearing now at Royce and now at the captain, recovered from the stupor with which she had watched her father's disaster and, leaping over to the yacht, knelt by him, calling to him with wild appeals and threatening Royce as his slayer.

Gloria came running down from the upper deck and stood gazing at the result of her work with utter dismay. Trask was crushed and perhaps killed. Jed was unconscious, and Nell seemed to have gone out of her mind.

Gloria felt that her head was covered with blood guilt. The sobs of Nell were heart-breaking. Gloria forgot all her resentments against Nell and her father. She forgot that Nell had kept her prisoner. She saw only that Nell was a motherless daughter who saw her father dying.

She caught the girl in her arms, held her in spite of her resistance, murmuring: "Forgive me, you poor child! It's all my fault, but we won't let your father die. Doctor Royce is a splendid physician. He saved my life. He will save your father's. You can trust him."

Nell also forgot all other emotions in that one necessity for hope. She turned eyes of prayer on Doctor Royce and bent him on the shoulder with imploring hands, urging him to bring her father back. It was not Royce, but, doubtless, nature that brought Trask back to consciousness. Royce received the credit and the gratitude, however, when Trask's eyes opened and his tortured lips moved.

Nell and Gloria were overjoyed at the miracle, but Royce was the more alarmed the more he studied Trask's body with fingers searching everywhere and finding everywhere the hints of broken bones and internal lacerations. He pretended none the less to be confident, for the sake of all three, Trask and Nell and Gloria.

A bucket of water restored Jed roughly to what wits he had. He came up yelling, as if the fight had not been interrupted. They had to tie him up to keep him from continuing the war.

It had taken this much time for the tugboat to round upon its course and come alongside the barge. The crew had watched the scrimmage with impatient envy. They came aboard now ready for carnage. They were armed with weapons of every sort, and with zest for blood. The yacht crew gathered itself to meet the onset of these re-enforcements.

Now came the opportunity of Pierpont Stafford to use some of the heaviest artillery of battle—finance. He was too old and too little used to fisticuffs to attack roustabouts with a blow for blow. He put up the shield of his pocketbook. The captain of the tugboat led his little army forward in a wedge, demanding with tugboat emphasis:

"What kind of pirates are youse, anyhow, and what you beatin' up the old man fur? For two cents I'd—"

Pierpont answered:

"That's what I want to know. What would you do for two cents?"

"I'd t'row de whole bunch of youse into de river."

"I see," said Pierpont, "and what would you charge not to?"

This stumped the captain. He could not quite make out Pierpont's drift. As he pondered, Pierpont gave him a chance to look into the depths of a wallet full of bills of a size and number that had not been seen hitherto in his circle. Pierpont kept moving the bills under the tugboat captain's very nose. They had the effect of catnip to a cat. The captain began to purr, also to reach out for the money.

"Let us understand the transaction," said Pierpont. "This man Trask is wanted on a serious charge. He had escaped from the jurisdiction of Judge Freeman. He was probably bound for Canada. I happened to have steam up in my yacht, so I came after him. I'll take him back and deliver him to the judge. You take the barge on up the river and deliver it to the consignee. Is that the agreement?"

"That's the agreement, sir," said the captain, "pervidin' I'm took care of proper."

"Would those take care of you?" asked Pierpont, holding out two bills.

"What does 'C' stand for?" asked the captain. "I can only count up to 'double X.'"

"C stands for a hundred," Pierpont explained.

"Two C's will just about take care of me, sir," said the captain. As soon as he touched the bill he touched his hat, called his crew back to the tug and set forth once more on his twice interrupted cruise. Pierpont ordered Jed released to care for the barge. He asked Nell to go with him, but she preferred to stay with her father, at Gloria's invitation.

Nell was sullen with Gloria, but Gloria was neither surprised nor resentful. She would have thought less of Nell if she had been too easily placated by her father's persecutors. Trask was no more responsive to Royce's ministrations. He was bewildered with pain and terrified by his captivity. He was as little grateful as a lion that has been trapped and bound.

To Royce he was doubly a mystery, both as a patient and as a criminal. If he were guilty of murdering Freneau, then his life belonged to the state, and it was Royce's curious duty, as a citizen physician, to save Trask's life so that the state might take it.

Royce had done what he could to keep Gloria from investigating the murder. He had lied to her, knowing that Freneau had been killed by some person from some motive unknown to him. He had told Gloria that her account of witnessing the murder was only a delirium. He had lost her confidence and her respect, and they were precious to him. He did not know that Gloria was tormented by a dual emotion toward him, one of suspicion and rancor, one of gratitude and affection. Gloria was helpless in the quarrel of her emotions. She could neither love nor hate Royce perfectly, neither trust nor distrust him.

While Gloria was at a little distance Royce was questioning Trask in a low tone, trying to persuade him to speak the truth, warning him that he might not have a long opportunity to unbosom himself of his crime. But Trask's mouth, distorted with suffering, was also twisted with a sneer of hate. He would not even answer Royce's questions.

Pierpont had drawn Gloria to one side, and he said: "Well, now that you've got your man, what are you going to do with him?"

"Find out why he killed Dick," Gloria said, "and then turn him over to the police."

"In spite of all the publicity?" Pierpont asked.

"In spite of all the publicity," said Gloria.

Pierpont gave up the fight. He loathed the prospect of a newspaper scandal, but if it had to come, he must brace himself to endure it. He had done all that he could legitimately do, and more than that, to thwart the police, and now that the necessities of the law compelled him to give the law the right of way or suffer the consequences. He resolved to turn Trask over to Judge Freeman as a representative of the law and let the judge assume the future responsibility.

When the yacht reached the country house at length, Pierpont sought for Judge Freeman. He had left the house. Pierpont would have sent Trask on after him, but he was too weak to be moved farther. Besides, Royce was insistent in giving Trask the full benefit of his medical and surgical knowledge, and asked for a guest room to lodge him in.

Now Trask was stupefied indeed. He had expected that his enemies would throw him into a prison cell. And they had installed him in a luxurious chamber in a palace. And his daughter was established in an adjoining room whose fittings would have satisfied a princess. They almost terrified the poor habitant of a canal boat.

Royce decided to motor into the city to fetch his surgical instruments and bring out his assistant. While he was gone Gloria stole into Trask's room to question him, but he had passed into a state between sleep and coma, and she dared not trouble him. She found that Nell had fallen asleep, too, worn out with emotions of every sort. Gloria stole away to her own room. She was tired out, too. She felt that she was on the brink of discoveries that would mean everything to her. She was a little afraid of them.

She paused at her window, and, seeing Doctor Royce just stepping into his car, she paused on him. He was an incroasingly interesting mystery to her, very much at her beck and call in some ways, and absolutely beyond her control in others.

He looked back and waved his hand. She thought he waved to her and she answered his salute. Then she saw that he was signaling to someone else and had not seen her. It was a woman he was signaling to, for he lifted his hat. Gloria wondered who it was, and felt an odd quirk of jealousy. It needled her like a stitch in the side.

She would have felt a sharper stab if she had known that Doctor Royce was waving at Lois. Lois was with Casimir's wife, reading to her and comforting the sick woman as best she could. The slight had startled Doctor Royce, as much as it pleased him.

The wild and ruthless Lois had given up her perilous intrigues, indeed, if she could give herself to the monotony of ministering to the lonely and the sick and take pleasure and pride in such service as a substitute for a social lawlessness that had made her hateful in Royce's eyes.

As he rode on into the city he felt a great elation. He was not a religious man, but he loved a wholesome, healthful soul as well as a body that was clean and well. He had kept Gloria from learning of Lois' affair with Freneau for Gloria's own sake. Now he believed that undercover of the deception Lois' own soul had been enabled to redeem itself.

He felt that Lois had earned the right to have back the letters she had sent to Freneau. Whether she would wish to destroy them or keep them as a reminder and warning from her evil past, they belonged to her and to no one else. Certainly Royce had no further use for them.

When he reached his office and gathered up his instruments he took the package of letters from the safe and put them in his pocket. Then he returned to the motor and sped back to the Stafford country home.

It was a long ride and he was troubled about many things, about Gloria's determination to probe into the secrets that could mean only a cruel disillusionment for her, about the chances for Trask's recovery, and the dangers that threatened the Staffords if the newspapers or the police learned with what independence of the law the prisoner Trask had been captured and held. He wondered at his own connivance in the matter, and he shuddered to think how many illegal acts are constantly committed by the most respectable people.

When he reached the Stafford estate he stopped the driver of his car and got out, telling the man to take the case of instruments up to the house. Royce had seen Lois strolling about the lawn in a mood of solemnity. He felt that the time was appropriate for the surrender of the letters. He wondered if he had the right to deliver them over to her. Yet he knew that he had no right to keep them. It seemed that he had so tangled himself in the net of the Freneau affair that anything soever he did was bound to be wrong.

He hurried to Lois and called to her. She turned to him sadly and weakly. He knew too much about her for to face him without shame. He brought a little smile of relief to her along with a swift blush of guilt when he said:

"Lois, I have decided to give back to you the letters you sent to Freneau. I read only one of them, and I have forgotten, I think, what it said. I think you have earned them back, and I advise you to burn them up at the first opportunity."

He took the long envelope from his pocket and her hand was just moving forward to take it when he saw her blush vanish in a flash of pallor.

"My husband!" she whispered. Royce thrust the envelope back in his pocket just before he felt David's hand on his shoulder and turned to look into David's smile of comradeship.

Royce had to play-act with all his might to pretend a cheer that he was far from feeling. Once more the loathsome phase of deceit was uppermost. He could not control himself under David's eyes and he made an excuse to move on.

"I was looking for Gloria," he said. "She's over by the marble pool," David answered. Royce moved on, knowing that he was watched. He did not want to meet Gloria with those letters in his pocket, but he must go on with the role.

Gloria seemed a figure in a painting as she stood at the edge of the blue water in its white frame, with the formal shrubbery and the graceful colonnade back of her. The boy Stas was on one knee at her feet. He was sailing a tiny sloop on the tiny ocean.

As soon as Gloria saw Royce she beckoned to him with a cordiality that she regretted at once, remembering that someone else had waved to him before. Having just seen him speak to Lois, she felt sure that it was to Lois that he had waved when he left the house.

When Stas saw Doctor Royce he left the sloop to its fate and ran whooping to him. Royce caught the child in his hands and tossed him high, then brought him to the level of his shoulder for a hug and kiss. He loved children and children loved him.

He did not notice that the little groping hands of Stas had happened on the envelope full of Freneau letters and lifted it stealthily from his pocket. When he set the boy's feet on the ground again Stas ran away, brandishing the envelope and challenging Royce to a game of tag.

Royce's heart bounded with alarm. If the child had carried a stick of dynamite in his hand it would hardly have been more dangerous.

"Give me the letter, my boy," Royce said, putting out his hand.

Stas laughed and ran a little farther off. Royce followed, demanding. The more anxious Royce was the more Stas liked the game.

Royce was in mortal terror lest the letters fall from the envelope and somehow Gloria would learn their nature.

He made a dash for Stas. Stas whisked behind a juniper and circled it. Royce chased him through a clump of rhododendrons.

Gloria began to laugh and encourage Stas. At length Royce made a frantic rush for the boy, and Stas, growing breathless, made for Gloria's arms and flung himself into them, panting: "Take it! take it! take it! quick!"

He placed the envelope in Gloria's hands. She was about to return it to Royce without a glance. But the heavy seals on the back caught her eye and she looked down.

Instantly she recognized the envelope. It was the one that had fallen from Freneau's pocket the night he came to bid her good-by. It was the one that she had seen the crouching figure take from Freneau's pocket after Trask had murdered him and ran away!

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE.

A. L. Swim, Plaintiff, vs. William H. Vandover, Defendant.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale on Foreclosure of Mortgage.

Under and by virtue of an order of sale and decree of foreclosure, issued out of the district court of the Fourth judicial district, state of Idaho, in and for the county of Twin Falls, on the 7th day of September, 1916, in the above entitled action, wherein A. L. Swim, and above named plaintiff, obtained a decree against William H. Vandover, defendant, on the 2nd day of September, 1916, which said decree was, on the 6th day of September, 1916, recorded in judgment book 4, of the said district court, on page 199, I am commanded to sell all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the county of Twin Falls, state of Idaho, and bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

Lots two (2) and three (3) of block eight (8) of South Park addition to the city of Twin Falls, Idaho, according to the accepted plat thereof on file in the office of deeds for said county, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining.

Notice is hereby given, that on the 10th day of October, 1916, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, in front of the court house door in the city of Twin Falls, county of Twin Falls, state of Idaho, I will in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to satisfy plaintiff's decree with interest thereon and costs, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States.

Dated, September 8th, 1916.

FRANK M. KENDALL,
Sheriff of Twin Falls County, Idaho.
By W. G. THOMPSON, Deputy.

AUTOS AID CALIFORNIA FARMERS.

Old Dobbin, through the progressiveness of the California rancher, has come into his own on a broader scale in that state than elsewhere in the country, according to the best available data, in that great commonwealth much of the work done on the ranches, both in the central valleys and in the mountain counties, which in the past has been accomplished chiefly with the horse, is now being done in the more modern way with the motor car.

John R. Leland, a prosperous rancher of the Santa Cruz mountains, furnishes a striking example of the uses to which the rancher puts his motor car. During the past haying season, Leland hauled all of his hay from the fields to the stacks, a distance of nearly one mile, with the aid of his Maxwell 25 touring car. Leland would load the cut hay on an ordinary hay wagon, then tow the latter from the field with his Maxwell. Leland has many other uses for his car and states that he would be absolutely at a loss without his machine while at work on the ranch.

STATEMENT

Of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912.

Of TIMES, published semi-weekly, at Twin Falls, Twin Falls County, Idaho, for October 1, 1916.

STATE OF IDAHO, County of Twin Falls, ss.

Before me, a notary public, in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Harold M. Sims, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the editor of the TIMES, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc. of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher, Times Printing & Publishing Co., Twin Falls, Idaho; editor, Harold M. Sims; managing editor, same; business managers, same.

2. That the owners are: C. O. Longley, Twin Falls, Idaho; I. B. Finney, Twin Falls, Idaho; D. M. Denton, Twin Falls, Idaho; J. B. Burrows, Hollister, Idaho; Harold M. Sims, Twin Falls, Idaho.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: Wilbur S. Hill, Twin Falls, Idaho.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholders or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustees or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

NOGALES WEEKLY PACKS MOVIE HOUSE ON BORDER

Nogales Military Weekly proves a big success in Nogales, which is shown there before it is exhibited here. The clipping below is taken from the Nogales weekly newspaper. Number two is shown at the Orpheum theater the last half of this week:

Movie fans blocked traffic in front of the Lyric theater last evening when the first number of the Nogales Military Weekly was shown to a large crowd. The Nogales Military Weekly is produced each week by the Magic Film company and if the second number is anything near as good as the first their success is assured. The class of photography and lettering was unusually good, considering the fact that the picture was taken in the field at 7:00 a. m.

It took some speed from the camera man to keep up with the fast boys of the Idaho and Connecticut regiments. The crowd, both soldiers and civilians, packed and jammed the Lyric last night to see the first number. When shown the soldier boys screamed and yelled, whistled and shouted, stamped and howled, bellowed and roared and it was almost impossible to hear yourself think. The Military Weekly will be repeated again tonight. The management of the Magic Film company said that a new picture will be shown each week in Nogales and will also be exhibited in the home towns of the soldier boys. Get busy soldiers and write your home theater to book the Military Weekly.

"DAVY CROCKETT" WILL STAR DUSTIN FARMER AT IDAHO

The true beauty of the pure Georgian period decorations is excellently displayed in the interior views of "Davy Crockett," the Pallas-Paramount screen drama starring Dustin Farnum.

The Pallas emblem that marks this colonial romance assures the authenticity and correctness actually lived.

An interesting history is attached to the harpsichord that Eleanor Vaugh plays upon in this screen story. Made in England 15 years before the time of the story, that is, 130 years ago, by an Astor of the English branch of the great American family and brought to this country and sold by one of the New York Astors, who was not above dealing in pianos in those days, it has been in the possession of one family for over a hundred years.

This screen story of a great epoch in American history is the attraction at the Idaho theater, Monday and Tuesday, October 9 and 10.

"MISS PETTICOATS" ISIS OFFERING FIRST OF WEEK

"Miss Petticoats," from the book by Dwight Tilton, has been adapted to the screen by Harley Knoles, who also directed the play, and supported by a company of genuine players of merit, Alice Brady plays the leading role in a manner altogether pleasing and charming, at the same time giving the characters such a great impersonation as to make even her closest admirers gaze on in wonder. The many scenes requiring a sea or mill scene were filmed in the requisite localites, the old fishing schooner, the Chas. W. Morgan of New Bedford, Mass., as well as the Wamsutta Mills being utilized in the production of the World Film feature which will be shown on the screen at the Isis theater on Monday and Tuesday.

The program includes a "Musty Suffer" comedy.

IDAHO PRESENTS REID AND RIDGLEY IN "THE SELFISH WOMAN"

During the filming of the scenes of the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Selfish Woman," for the Paramount program, which will be seen at the Idaho on Friday and Saturday, and in which Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgley star, the latter, while dashing through the burning village at the head of the sheriff's posse, was overcome by the fumes of the sulphur and slipped unconscious from her horse. In the dark, the other horsemen were about to ride over her when she was aided by one of the cowboys who threw himself in the way. In discussing the accident Miss Ridgley said: "I don't remember a thing that happened from the time I struck the smoke until I found myself being revived, although they tell me I went through my part without a mistake."

THRILLING SCENES IN NEW LOCKWOOD-ALLISON PHOTOPLAY

Harold Lockwood and May Allison, the two popular metro stars, will be seen on the screen here at the Isis theater on Friday and Saturday, in "The River of Romance," a five-part comedy-drama produced by the Metro-Yorke company. The principal scenes of this feature were photographed in and around the picturesque Thousand Islands in the St. Lawrence under the direction of Henry Otto, who produced "Undine" recently, one of the best features ever made with water scenes predominating. The story abounds with thrilling incidents that absolutely demand the daring of two such fearless players as Mr. Lockwood and Miss Allison. It was written by "E. J. Rath," which is said to be the pseudonym of the wife of a well-known United States senator. A strong cast is seen in support of Mr. Lockwood and Miss Allison, including Lester Cuneo, one of the best heavy leading men on the screen, Bert Busby, Phil Mast, Dan Hanlon, Lee Walker, Mrs. Mathilde Brundage and Lillian Halpern.

An L-KO comedy is included in the program. This laugh is entitled "Tough Luck on a Rough Sea." A "shipload of laughter."

Scientific Proof of Maxwell Fuel Economy

In a test made by David L. Gallup, M. E., Professor of Gas Engineering, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, a stock Maxwell Touring Car made from 23 to 33.7 miles per gallon of gasoline at speeds ranging from 10 to 35 miles per hour. We reproduce a letter from Professor Gallup concerning this test.

DAVID L. GALLUP, M. E.
Consulting Engineer
Worcester, Mass. Sept. 1st, 1916.

Maxwell Motor Co. Inc.,
Detroit, Michigan.

Gentlemen:-

I beg leave to submit the enclosed blue print giving the results of an economy test made on a 1917 Stock Maxwell Touring Car, furnished by your Boston representatives.

The curve is self explanatory and needs no discussion other than the statement that the carburetor, which was stock, was adjusted to give the best combination of power, flexibility, speed and economy, for such conditions of touring as would ordinarily be encountered.

In tabular form the results (taken from the curve sheet) are as follows:

SPEED (Miles per hour)	ECONOMY (Miles per gallon)
10	33.7
15	32.7
20	31.2
25	28.8
30	26.1
35	23.0

Respectfully submitted,

D. L. Gallup

DLG/K

NOTE that no unusual means were employed to get these results. The car used was taken from stock; the test was made with a full load and with top and windshield up; the regular Maxwell carburetor was used.

Any Maxwell car is capable of giving this same economy in gasoline consumption.

Maxwell operating economy matches its economy in first cost, making it The World's Greatest Motor Car Value.

School Notes

A meeting held by the senior class yesterday for the purpose of electing class officers, terminated in the election of Theodore Holderman, as president; Zelma Larmour, vice president; Mark Bristol, secretary and treasurer, and Robert McCracken, athletic board. The first two and the last were elected unanimously.

The game with Shoshone, Friday, was a financial success, as far as Shoshone's transportation was concerned. All the money has not yet been turned in, and there are several bills yet to be paid.

The recent rain was a great boon to the football boys, in so far as the dust was concerned. They are practicing diligently for the game with Rupert at Rupert this coming Friday. They are going to run some new signals this week and it is hoped that they will not find it too cold to continue daily practices.

Condition examinations were given yesterday, for the benefit of those who failed in any subject last year, with a condition grade. School was dismissed early for this reason.

High school students wishing to sell lecture course tickets will be given an opportunity to do so, with a ten per cent commission. Special prizes will be offered for the first $25, $50, $75 and $100 turned into the office. They will consist of $1, $2, $3 and $4, respectively.

He said that he was not going to make promises to do the best he could if re-elected. That was implied. Every man running for office promised that; if he didn't nobody would vote for him. He would offer to the people as security his record for the past two years. He had pledged himself to reduce state taxes and had reduced them. The expenditures under his predecessor amounted to $1,800,000; the appropriations for the past two years were $1,265,00, a reduction of $535,000. In addition to this $270,000 had been saved through vetoes of needless appropriation bills. This means $805,000 saved to the taxpayers of the state. The tax levy for state purposes had been reduced.

Governor Alexander said that the Republican legislature had fought him. They tried to appropriate $2,000,000 for the state purposes, or $200,000 more than was spent under the Haines administration. He prevented this. It was charged that public institutions had suffered. All the public institutions were running as efficiently as ever and some of them had increased capacity, but through increased efficiency cost had been reduced. A few hangers-on had lost jobs and had to go to work for a living, and these were disgruntled.

When the treasury deficit was first discovered it was claimed that it amount to only $250,000. This was what was shown by the Ramstedt report, made by an honest Republican, who did not have time to go into certain matters that had been carefully covered up. Ramstedt was honest, however, and would not conceal the facts he learned on account of politics. A committee from the lower house examined the figures and pronounced them correct. The governor refused to accept the statement that $83,000 was all that was missing and the fourth investigation of the books showed a shortage of $154,000 for which the state sued the bonding company and which the bonding company has paid into the treasury.

Then the state "Fell into a Coffin." A young attorney named Coffin, seeing so much money coming to the state thought he ought to have a slice of it. Coffin had been employed in the attorney general's office for three months, and put in a claim for $14,000, or $680 a day, for alleged services in the investigation. The governor stood out against this claim and would continue to do so.

There was a scandal in the insurance bureau left over from the previous administration. The lower house appointed a committee to investigate and they pronounced things all right. The governor ordered an investigation and discovered a shortage of $700. The jury pronounced him not guilty, but the governor told the bonding company that he was short, the company agreed that he was and paid over the $700 without a lawsuit.

Saving of $40,000 at Blackfoot, of $12,000 on the sanitary board, and of a tidy amount on the horticultural board were pointed out.

Turning to the irrigation projects, Governor Alexander said that he was gradually getting them straightened out. The Oakley company had been compelled, through action brought by the land board on the motion of the governor, to deliver water to the settlers. He had moved, and the land board had adopted his motion, that action be brought to set aside the contract of the Twin Falls-Salmon River company. The attorney general had not yet acted on the order, but the suit would be brought. He appealed to the people to elect an attorney general who was not and never had been an employee of the great corporations and water companies. He was not reflecting on the personal honesty of these men, but they had been so long undercorporate influence that their minds were warped. He asked the people to vote for T. A. Walters, candidate on the Democratic ticket, and to vote for the other Democratic state nominees in order that the land board might be so constituted as to work harmoniously for the interests of the people. The monopoly held for years on the Bruneau tract had just been broken by a court decision and a vast quantity of land was being opened for settlement. More could be accomplished in the future with the proper sort of state management.

With an eloquent tribute to prohibition and an appeal for its maintenance, Governor Alexander closed his address.

Chairman Hicks then introduced S. P. Worthington, candidate for state treasurer, who made a short speech.
