

TREVELYAN PLEADS FOR PEACE CAUSE

British Statesman Says People Are Tired of War

WOULD WELCOME SETTLEMENT OF EUROPEAN STRUGGLE

Draws Bad Picture of Conditions Resulting From War—Urges Good Offices of President.

WASHINGTON—Charles P. Trevelyan, the famous writer and statesman of Great Britain, has sent to this country by hand-messenger to be delivered to President Wilson the following remarkable open letter which has been given to the American Neutral Conference Committee, whose object is to urge our government to mediate through a conference of neutral nations the support the President in any effort for peace, for publication.

Mr. Trevelyan is one of the leaders of the international movement in England. He is in the House of Commons and when the war broke out he resigned from the government with Lord Morley and John Burns. He is one of the founders of the Union of Democratic Control and has spoken constantly, in spite of unpopularity, in favor of a negotiated peace. He has deprecated the cult of hatred during the war, has resisted conscription, and has defended the freedom of speech and writing in Great Britain.

He has made a speech in the House of Commons calling attention to President Wilson's readiness to hear the voice of the peace-loving nations, which was listened to with great interest and evoked from Mr. Lloyd George a half apologetic for his reputation of American mediator.

Mr. Trevelyan's open letter is as follows:

The relative strength of America is the vital factor in Europe is changing away. It is not the loss of money and of credit. It is not only the waste and degradation of provinces during the war, but the economic catastrophe and political upheaval which will follow in its wake. It is not only the millions of dead and disabled among the young men, but it is the complete collapse of the old national standards. Three years ago we could have said that the world would make it impossible to know the truth about the failure or success of military or diplomatic efforts. Government and the press would be officially suppressed and garbled; that newspapers would print just what government consented to let them say. We would anyone who believed three years ago that nearly two thousand Englishmen would have been imprisoned for conscription, or condemned to death, and only resented at the last moment, and many killed in the trenches, and that many of the things and many others are the price of war like this. After the war, tyranny and militarism may possibly be the price of the victory. In the present popular reaction in Germany and in Great Britain. But in Germany they will cling with fierce tenacity to their autocrats and in Britain to their new found opportunity. It is in this struggle that the profound effect of America may be felt with its unbroken support of the rights of the democratic success, its faith in peace. If in these things it remains faithful, it will not only secure its own peace, but it will be the beacon to the old nations in the hour of their agony and despair.

For the first time a responsible British statesman openly avowed his belief in a prolonged war of attrition. Coming immediately after the gravity of the British losses on the Somme, he began to tell the British public some notion of what a war of attrition meant to them, many moderate supporters of the war have begun to ask seriously whether it is not time for the government to formulate its real objective and see how nearly the German are ready to meet them.

If I were asked to briefly define the attitude of the mass of my countrymen I should say that they are heartily sick of the war. They are aware of the weariness of the Germans and the willingness of the German government to negotiate, and that consequently they regard us as belligerents and therefore are not yet prepared to advocate it. But if once it were brought home to them that our approval of the League of Peace amounts to American cooperation in the objects for which they profess to be fighting—a secure civilization. Sooner or later our

Dr. Jesse C. Bruce, field secretary of the board of church-extension of the Presbyterian church was in the city Friday in connection with the construction of the new Presbyterian church in this city. A dinner was given in his honor at the Hotel Perma and later a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan of whom he was the guest while in the city. Dr. Bruce officiated at the marriage of Mr. McMillan and his first wife at Peoria, Ill., in 1889.

AGED WOMAN IS BURNED TO CRISP

Fire in Tent Sunday Morning Kills Mrs. Scritchfield

SON THOUGHT SHE HAD ESCAPED UNTIL HE WAS OUTSIDE.

Awoke to Find Tent in Flames—Had Desperate Fight to Save Life of Baby—Family Destitute.

Wrapped in a blanket thrown to her by her son, N. B. Scritchfield, who supposed she was making her escape, Mrs. E. M. Scritchfield, aged seventy-three years was burned to death in a tent at the Oregon Short Line tracks near the park Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock, by a fire which started from a cook stove. Early in the morning the younger Mrs. Scritchfield awoke and started the fire in the stove after which she went back to the bed in which she, her husband and a two month old baby slept. They all fell asleep. About 7 o'clock the young man awoke to find the whole top of the tent on fire. He sprang up and threw a blanket over his mother, who slept in another bed at the same end of the tent, telling her to run. He and his wife, the younger woman becoming excited dropped the baby on her own bed. Scritchfield sprang back into the tent for the baby and found himself enveloped with flames. Unable to carry the baby out he threw it through the door, and after two or three minutes he was seen getting out himself. He thought that his mother had escaped but when he saw that she had not, he again turned back for the door, but he was unable to get out and the smoke and gas can of coal oil near the stove exploded, scattering everything—and causing such a tremendous flame that further escape of the woman would have been suicidal.

The young folks who escaped are all slightly burned, but not seriously hurt. Everything which they had was destroyed in the flames. Mr. Scritchfield came here from Oregon a short time ago. He lived for a time in South Boise, after coming to Idaho. He has been working around and the family is without resources.

The funeral of Mrs. Scritchfield was held from the Crosby chapel at 10 o'clock this morning. The services were conducted by Rev. C. L. Bent of the Methodist church.

G. C. Taber was the first person to put in an application with City Clerk H. L. Williams for a plan right under the new city ordinance. He applied Monday for the right to construct a $22,000 bungalow back for Reynolds brothers, Second avenue south. George S. McGraw, later on the same day, put in application for the privilege of erecting a $1000 bungalow on Blue Lakes boulevard.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4.—In order to remove the embargo on shipments of livestock from the Kansas City stock yards was received today from Washington. An embargo placed on the yards recently on account of suspected cases of foot and mouth disease among cattle in the central west.

It is thought that plan will affect the course of the war—it will shorten it. The war is not so that plan ought to be the first of the terms of peace. It is altogether impossible that, as the war drags on wearily for the next few months, the newly declared peace should be insulating more and more on the value of the new American policy until it becomes the plain hope of salvation for Europe.

ATTORNEY SNOWS ELOQUENT ORATOR

Moving Address at Elk's Memorial Sunday Afternoon

BOISE MAN DISCUSSES QUESTION OF FRATERNITY.

Absent Brothers Ever Upperoft, In Minds and Hearts of Members of B. P. O. E.

With words of rare eloquence Edwin Snow, of Boise B. P. O. E. Lodge, No. 310, deeply moved the audience in his address to the Elk's lodge at their memorial service at the Lavington theatre Sunday afternoon. Mr. Snow in substance said that all of the fraternal orders who were the guests of the Elk's, none other showed as much interest in the absent brothers, whether temporarily abroad in this world, or gone to the eternal home, as the Elk's. In every lodge at one hour before midnight, whatever the occasion, everything stopped for a few moments in order that all the members present might think of those who had gone, and an Elk wherever he might be would know that his brothers at home would think of him. He declared that no difference was made in the order on account of religious belief and that no bigot could be an Elk. There were within the order men of every conceivable religious belief. There were also those who were in doubt. These, indeed, needed the fraternal help of an order like the Elk's, perhaps more than those who were of firm faith. For they could not see with confidence, "Oh, death, where is thy sting; oh, grave where is thy victory?" could find in the greatest calamities a sure consolation. It must be so, he recognized that there were in this world those whose faith had been shaken, and these especially needed the fraternal help of an order like the Elk's. Life, by gradually depriving us of friends and leading us to realize the transitory character of all things, earthly preparation us for death and this is one of nature's compensations but the hope of a life beyond is the greatest of all consolations.

The ritualistic work of the order was splendidly carried out and the musical program, both vocal and instrumental, was of unusual excellence.

BASKET-BALL PRACTICE ALREADY UNDER WAY

Prospects Look Good For Another Successful Season In Indoor Sports.

Immediately after the close of the football season, basketball practice was begun in the school gymnasium. Though rather early in the season, the prospects for the indoor sports are looking very bright. The school is having a winning team this year, seen exceptionally good. The school still retains two of last year's stars, Brice and Scott, and the new recruits, Cracken, who won a letter in every kind of athletics last year, and played a fine game at guard. Two subs, Dewitt and Smith, are promising this year, and bid fair to make the team. Melvin Strong, a new fellow in school, has shown up well and is expected to run a close race with Scott. Gordon Neumann, the fast quarter-back, is out for forward and the indications are that he will to all probability land that position.

Scott, the captain of the football team is running Boone, Bailey and Perrine a close race. Others who have chances to make the team are Hopper, Patton and Shamburger.

The season last year was somewhat short, but six games being played, Twin Falls winning three of the games. Hopper was out stringing competitors, winning two games from Twin by a narrow margin. "Buhl and Flier were beaten so badly as to put them out of the race for the season. Gooding won a game from Twin when the boys were playing in poor form, and has not yet recovered from the shock. Tim Scott will miss Lohrer, the steady close basket shooter, and Rowberry, the long distance shooter as well as Goodner, the fast new recruit.

Hopper is probably the most dreaded opponent this year as it was last. They retain four of last year's men, and have an abundance of material to fill the vacancy. Buhl, Flier, Bailey, Kimberly, Shooshoo, Gooding, Heyburn and possibly others are either prospects or players.

Contemplating organization of a basketball team. Though there will be a maximum of competition, the prospects are bright. The power of competition as to the outcome of the season. Coach Nafziger is much pleased with the material, so far as quality and quantity is concerned. He is already. Owing to the early season and the indecision of the various schools, no definite schedule has been made. It is probable there will be no games before Christmas vacation.

TROOP TWO FIDELITY NIGHT.

Troop two of the Boy Scouts will meet Friday night instead of Tuesday night this week.

BUHL ROAD BONDS BEATEN SATURDAY

Surprisingly Small Vote East at Election

CASTLEFORD ALONE GAVE NEARLY REQUIRED PER CENT.

Active Fight by Buhl Men Had Effect Among Voters in Eastern Part of District.

Special To The Times

BUHL—With a total vote of more than 200 below that of the June bond election, the Buhl independent highway district Saturday again defeated the good roads bonds Saturday. The vote stood 538 for the bonds and 536 against them. Of the total vote of 1,074, it would have required 538 to have won the election for the improvement. In Buhl, the total vote stood 433 for the bonds and 151 against them; in Castleford, the favorable 154, while the opposition polled eight-two; the Lucerne vote stood twenty-nine to fifteen for the bonds.

At the previous election Buhl stood 382 for and 583 against. It will thus be seen that Castleford, lacking little of giving the required two-thirds vote. At the previous election Castleford gave sixty-seven votes for the issue and forty-seven against it. Allowing for the creation of the Lucerne district, where thirty-seven votes were cast the falling off of the Buhl vote seems remarkable, especially in view of the fact that the Castleford vote more than doubled, increasing from 112 to 238. The total vote cast at the previous election was 1,677, of which 997 were for the bonds and 680 against them. The explanation generally offered is that owing to the active fight put up by certain men in Buhl who opposed a large bond issue at present on the ground that plans for its successful expenditure had not been successful in some instances, regarded the battle as lost and did not work to get out the affirmative vote, as actively as they had in the June election. The fight against the bonds was most effective in the northeast and southeast parts of the district, where many of the people are away from the county, details of the plans for the roads.

HOSPITAL APPEAL

T. O. Boyd today filed an appeal from the action of the power of county commissioners in letting a contract for the erection of a county hospital to W. G. Reed. The appeal is taken on the ground that the county does not have a legal right to construct a county hospital for any other purpose than the care of indigent poor and that the inclusion of the board is to accept patients.

PREDICTS FAIRBIRD WILL BE BIG TOWN

That Fairbird will soon be a big town and that it will have five thousand inhabitants before the end of next summer were predictions made yesterday by C. W. Dyer, who is now living in the Nevada camp. He says that the boom days are over and solid development is under way. Mr. Dyer says that not only do the people of Fairbird favor the plan to annex part of Owyhee county to Twin Falls county for the purpose of building a highway, but the people of Three creek, in Owyhee county, are in favor of the annexation.

MUNSEN & HARDER BUILD WAREHOUSE

Structure Will Double Their Warehouse Capacity

GROWTH OF WHOLESALE BUSINESS NECESSITATES ADDITION

New Structure Will be 100 by 100 Feet and Will Be Two Stories High—Will Be of Brick.

Owing to the great increase in their business during the past year, the wholesale firm of Munsen & Harder have begun the construction of an additional warehouse 100 by 100 feet in dimensions and two stories high near their old warehouse at 320 Fourth avenue South, and are pushing it to completion as rapidly as compatible with the best workmanship. The new building will exactly double the warehouse capacity of the firm. C. E. Munsen, of the firm, said yesterday that they were not branching into new lines, but that the growth of Twin Falls business necessitated the additional floor space in order to take care of their growing business.

The wholesale business of the firm in all lines has grown greatly within the past year and the future of the city as a distributing point is declared assured.

Felt Peil has the contract to put up the building.

NEW SYSTEM IN OPERATION

Sixty Extra Light Centers Give More Uniform Illumination Than Was Formerly Had.

The new lighting system for Twin Falls was put into operation Saturday night for the first time. Manager R. D. Kline of the Power company said yesterday that the new system was not yet completed as to details, as they would have to paint the poles and make minor improvements. The lights are now all on and the reflectors installed. At the intersections where the old poles were the lights are still on, but the new system seems to throw the light better toward the middle of the blocks. There are now sixty new light intersections, at an extra cost of about $25 a month. This will be increased about two dollars monthly by the installation of the new extra lights ordered last night by the council.

The appearance of the city at night has been much improved by the change.

At the expiration of the period of the old contract in February, the city will have to pay for the fuel used in the illuminations around the park, court house and school.

MOTOR SPRINKLING BEFORE THE COUNCIL

Fred C. Spencer Has Plan to Modernize the Work

WOULD GET LONG TIME CONTRACT FROM THE CITY.

Matter is Referred to the Street Committee—Several Matters of Interest Are Attended to.

The council at a slow session last night, when Mayor E. M. Sweet, even before the meeting, at attack of tonsillitis referred a tentative proposition from Fred C. Spencer to purchase a truck power sprinkler; board a report from B. B. Kline, president of the power company with reference to the new lighting system and ordered in two new light that had been requested by the board, ordered the settlement of the W. F. Spear claim for water overflow; instructed the city attorney to offer to settle the claim of Mrs. A. S. Green for $400; rented the present offices for another year at an increased rental of ten dollars a month; passed the sewer continuing ordinance and allowed the usual bills.

The Spencer proposition involves the entering into a contract for several years, or for time enough to justify the investment in the motor truck. Mr. Spencer said that this system would save wear on hydrants, as he would carry three trucks as much water as the present system, and could have the dirt streets all watered by 4 o'clock in the morning, after which he could put another shift on, clean up the paved streets and then devote the rest of the day to the bad places in the streets. He said he could get an outfit now for $4200, which ordinarily would cost $5000, and if the city wanted to buy one instead of having him get it, he would turn over the contract. He said that he had extra trucks which could carry the tank if necessary, should he get the contract. The regular one got out of repair. Street Commissioner W. F. Porter said that the cost of sprinkling for the last year had been $2700 and that the regular one got out of repair. The contract had been taken at bad rock and probably could not be renewed at any price as favorable terms. Moreover, the department of the sprinkling district would necessitate at least one more horse, and the cost of the horse and harness would be about $400. Mr. George Herriott said that his own opinion was that there was nothing which would prevent the city from having a sprinkling system. He said that this was not final. He suggested that should a contract be entered into, the city secure the interest of the Power company in the purchase of the machinery should it desire at any time to do its own sprinkling. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Manager R. D. Kline of the Idaho Power company reported that he had all the lights in this new system on Saturday night. The Power company said that the light near his place was not on, and another light was reported as not working right. Manager Kline said that he would attend to the matter. The council then granted a petition of residents in the neighborhood of the intersection of Third avenue and Blue Lakes boulevard for a light, and on the recommendation of the street commissioner, ordered one put in in front of the South Park grocery, where there is a dangerous intersection.

Taking up the report of the city attorney on the claim of Mrs. A. S. Green for damages sustained by the overflow of a ditch, the council finally acted on his recommendation that the Green for damages sustained by the overflow of a ditch, but that this had not been done. Technically, it is said that the claim should have been paid by the canal company, but that the city would probably be immediately liable, owing to the fact that consent had been given to the city to change the course of the ditch through the land rented by Spyer.

JARBIDGE PAYROLLS GROWING STEADILY

Winter Causes No Cessation In The Gold Camp

ALL THE BIG COMPANIES ARE PUSHING WORK.

Stray Elks Lodge Organized and Social Time is Planned—Members Elect Officers at Meeting.

JARBIDGE, Nev.—There is a steady and substantial increase in the payrolls of the camp; the Long Hike is pushing development work with the usual number, the O. K. is running along steadily, the Tacoma interests have let contracts on several claims, and Mr. Wingfield's engineers are doing considerable work. With these three big interests at work there is every assurance that next season will be a very active one for the Jarbidge district.

The Shoup and Sloan interests have incorporated the Elmore Mines company to take over the Long Hike and their other holdings in the camp, and application has been made for patent for 24 claims.

Mr. Wingfield has been working the Elmore property for several weeks and has been sampling several other properties, and it is very probable that he will soon buy some of the most promising, and further he will have considerable trouble in the future.

The Tacoma interests have installed a compressor outfit at the lower or cross-cut tunnel on the Legitimate in order to facilitate the work and intersect the vein more quickly; this tunnel is now in about 150 feet and has nearly 400 feet more to run to the vein.

They have bonded several more of the groups of claims and now have a solid line of claims from the Kiyi in Bourne gulch across the head of Bonanza gulch, taking in the Ben Hur, National and Ajax groups, and including The Surprise group on Bonanza Ridge. There are several very good showings of ore that will run well, and the indications are that some valuable deposits will be developed by next summer.

Our winter has started earlier than usual and there is very good sledding around town already, when some years there will be hardly enough snow along the canyon all winter to make sledding. Commerce freight is still on the road from Deeth and a large amount of work is being done over the summits to try and keep the road open so that this freight can be brought into town. Much of this freight is for the mining companies and is quite necessary for their operations.

Repair work is being done on the Chispen grade, so that it will be passable this winter, this road will soon be the only chance to get into camp for several months.

A few days ago the stray elks in the camp met at the office of Attorney O. J. Van Pelt for the purpose of organizing for social and other benevolent purposes. Those present were O. J. Van Pelt, C. W. Dyer, Frank E. Simons, George Winkler, Jack Muir, Newton Crumley, John Cary, Roy W. Woodgate, H. E. Robinson, Harry W. Dills, Richard Swanson, C. J. Winter and Mr. Sullivan.

A temporary organization was effected with O. J. Van Pelt as president, Newton Crumley for treasurer and Roy Woodgate for secretary. A dance committee was appointed to arrange for a dance on New Year's eve. A relief committee was appointed and other committees were talked of. A registration book was opened for all stray elks to register and join the organization. An adjournment was taken to the Success Cafe where a banquet had been prepared. A very lively time was enjoyed with Mr. Van Pelt as toastmaster. The evening was pronounced unusually fine and the service was unexcelled. Arrangements were started to get up a class to be taken to Twin Falls, the nearest college city, to be initiated into the order.

Fred Terhune, the jeweler has moved to the new building opposite the Jarbidge hotel, where he has a well equipped establishment.

Frank E. Simons, has finished his theatre building opposite the Log Cabin Saloon, and is giving time over to appreciative crowds on every mail evening with extras on Sunday.

J. H. Herby, formerly of Deeth and later in Rochester, has bought a building on Main street and opened with a fine stock of dry goods, gent's furnishings and shoes.

George Stroble, the furniture man, is putting up a frame building twenty-five by fifty feet and will move his stock out of the tent which he has occupied for the past six years.

J. Scott Fleming is erecting a building twenty-four by forty feet on the corner of South Main street and East Dear Avenue.

to congress the immediate necessity of making an appropriation for the purchase and rehabilitation of the entire system.

ROBERT M. McCRACKEN. A conference was held here on Thanksgiving day by representatives of the settlers on the project, with Governor Alexander. It was decided to take immediate action to make a showing before the appropriations committee of the house so that provisions for the King Hill project could be made in the general appropriation bill to go to the next congress. The governor wired Senator Borah and Representatives Smith and McCracken to urge the project matter.

upon misinformation. It finds that there is no surplus labor in Germany that could be diverted to the production of the goods in question. Moreover, the supply of labor is not even sufficient for producing the demands of home consumers besides the vast quantities of war materials needed; and instead of wages being so low now that manufacturers would find this a favorable time for producing cheap goods, the report points out that "wages of all workers have abnormally increased in proportion to the increased cost of living."

The entire range of textile industries, which constitute a very large segment of Germany's economic activity, are now wholly eliminated from manufacture for export owing to lack of the raw materials; supplies of these are so short that they were long ago confiscated by the government in order to conserve them for military requirements, and only such small quantities are liberated for the requirements of the civilian population as are absolutely necessary. This is also true of the rubber and leather trades. In fact, there is not one single industry that could be named in which conditions as to raw materials, supplies, labor and wages, are such as would render it possible for manufacturers to turn out goods with a view to storing them for sale abroad after the war.

DEMOCRATS WILL CONSIDER APPOINTMENTS THURSDAY.

The Democratic county central committee meets Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the office of the County Treasurer Coggins for the purpose of considering candidates for appointment to state offices. Senator O. G. Zuck of Kimberly is mentioned for land commissioner; Dr. W. S. Decker, for state veterinarian and Col. R. H. Barnes for superintendent of the State Soldier's home. There are rumors in regard to others who are said to have friends who are urging them to get in the race for different offices and who may call the attention of the committee to their excellent qualifications.

NO DUMPING SAYS TRADE COMMISSION

Federal Investigation Fails to Find Surplus Abroad

CHEAP GOODS IN ABUNDANCE ARE NOT DISCOVERED.

Many Industries Destroyed in Germany by Reason of Expert Workers Being Called to War Front.

WASHINGTON, D. C. In a comprehensive review of foreign trade conditions, the federal trade commission has expressed an opinion that the much discussed after-the-war commercial competition from Europe will not come for some time after peace.

High costs of raw materials, increased taxes, probably higher taxes, to say nothing of the lack of capital and stocks of materials necessary to repair the wreckage of war, the report says, are expected to delay the full power of European competition until it regains its normal state.

Losses to the American exporter on a footing with his foreign rival by authorization of collective foreign selling agencies are recommended. A brief summary of the report made public last May, while it still was incomplete, recommended such legislation and was followed by introduction of the Webb bill which awaits action but has the endorsement of the administrators.

In studying the export situation, the trade commission, it is declared, has tried to take the problem in its broad historical aspect, considering the present war as a temporary interlude, the momentary influence of which it is difficult to estimate.

"It is frequently asserted," said the report, "the manufacturers and producers of the belligerent countries will take effective measures to regain their former trade. It is likely, however, that some time will pass after the close of the war before they will be able to exert their normal competitive power."

The American association of commerce and trade of Berlin has been investigating the rumors circulated abroad to the effect that Germany is preparing for dumping enormous quantities of cheap goods there after the close of the war. According to those rumors, Germany has mobilized a vast army of ill-paid old men, women and children, to work on cheap staple goods for export, consisting chiefly of steel and iron goods, dyestuffs and others. It is further represented that vast quantities of these goods are being stored for shipment when the war ends.

According to the association's weekly report, all such rumors are based

WORLD RECORD MADE IN RUHL

Cowtesting Association Shows Magnificent Results

GREATEST RECORD EVER SHOWN IN AN ASSOCIATION.

One Cow Made Profit of $101.28 for Its Owner During the Year—Report is Complete.

The association average of the Ruhl Pioneer Cow Testing association for the first year's work establishes a United States record for the number of pounds of butter fat per cow. The average production for the year was 304.6 pounds of butterfat, and this western division of the U. S. Dairy Department report that this is the greatest production per cow which has ever been made in a testing association. Other cows have produced a greater number of pounds of butterfat in one year but no other association has established a record with such a high average for all the cows enrolled. During the year, the names of 601 cows were entered on the roll of the official-tester's herd-book. Twenty-four herds were entered during the year, and at the close of the year thirteen of these herds had purebred representation.

The records of the tester, O. T. Koster, show that there was a net profit per cow in the association of $39.62. The report shows that the ten highest cows in the association made a net profit of $78.69 per cow, while the ten lowest averaged but $5.84 per cow. The largest net profit for one cow was made by a Jersey owned by A. Carlson, which added him $101.28 for the year. The lowest cows produced resulted in a net loss of $12.55 for the year's work.

The report which follows is said to be one of the most complete and far reaching of any of its kind ever published and from the number of facts which may be obtained from it, the dairymen have decided that dairying pays. The men of this association are going to make a more determined effort to weed out the less profitable cows, and it is predicted that the results of the next year's record will far exceed those of this year.

The "Ruhl Pioneer" was the first cow testing association to be organized in the state of Idaho. The objects of this association are: To determine the exact production of each cow and determine the amount of profit or loss for the year. To determine the best cows from which to save the better calves in order to improve the average production per cow.

To determine the most profitable feeds and methods of feeding. To weed out the "loser" cows. To improve dairy conditions in general and raise the standard of dairy business in this community and state.

To make a monthly test and keep a close record of the same. To prevent losses in the skim milk this quite frequently overlooked even in association work.

To create a mutual, co-operative spirit among the dairymen. The records shown in the following pages were in most cases made under adverse conditions, several herds were poorly housed, while others were not given the care becoming a milk cow, in one or two instances the cows were far from healthy and unprofitable.

As a majority of the members of the association were selling cream on a "butterfat" basis, the average butterfat price 24 cents was used in valuing the product of the herds, the average price paid at the cheese factories was 25.1 cents, thus the selling their product at the cheese factory receive 1 about one-third more for their product. It is necessary, however, in this work to value the product on a uniform basis.

No credit was given for calf, skim milk, or manure, it being assumed that this will mean offset the cost of labor, veterinary services and association dues.

The grains and silage fed to the cows was weighed, the hay and other roughage were weighed where it was possible to do so, all feed was charged at the retail market price a uniform rate for each month.

Comparative Skim Milk test for the year showing improvement and value of butterfat saving to members follows:

Average skim milk tests for October 2430 of one per cent.

Average skim milk tests for September, 2590 of one per cent.

Total saving in test 2550 of one per cent.

There were twenty-one separators in the association for the whole year, averaging an average of 4500 pounds a day.

Multiplying this by the saving in test in skim milk 10.35 pounds butterfat saved daily times 274 cents is a saving of $2.74 daily. 865 days in the year times $2.74 equals $2390.05 saving for the year.

Twenty-four herds with a total of 337 cows completed the year's work. The total number of cows on the record throughout the year was 581, while at the close of the year the records contained names of 504 cows.

Seven purebred sires have been purchased by members to replace grades throughout the year. Fourteen purebred cows and heifers have been purchased by members during the year. At the beginning of the year's work ten herds in the association had purebred cattle, at the close of the year's work thirteen herds had representations of purebreds. Members of the association tested six cows for A. R. O. records during the year.

The average skim milk test for the month of September was .8590 of one per cent, this was one 1-100 of one per cent higher than the test for six months, the cause for this being that since the new system of cream grading has gone into effect the tendency has been to skim a heavier cream, thus resulting in some cases in the separator throwing over some butterfat.

The highest 2 year old for butterfat production was Helen Glory 395.227, a purebred Jersey owned by Geo. A. Childs. Her production was 492.1 pounds butterfat.

The highest 3 year old for butterfat production was Fortune, a grade Holstein owned by A. Stauffacher, with 477.9 pounds butterfat to her credit.

The highest cow for milk production was Nubbia, a grade Holstein, her production being 14,623 pounds of milk.

The highest average butterfat test was that of Walters, a grade Guernsey, owned by H. B. Sherman, with an average test of 6.71 per cent.

Leading herds for Butterfat production: C. E. Long, 399.8 pounds butterfat; A. A. Stauffacher, 377.7 pounds butterfat; H. H. Silver, 357.7 pounds butterfat.

Leading herds for milk production: A. A. Stauffacher, 11,546 pounds milk; Gustav Kunze, 1153 pounds milk; H. H. Silver, 10855 pounds of milk.

Leading herds for economical production: A. A. Stauffacher, 08.8c per pound butterfat; A. Carlson, 09.2 cents per pound butterfat; Geo. A. Childs, 09.6 cents per pound butterfat; C. H. Wilson, 09.6 cents per pound butterfat.

Leading herds for net profit per cow: Geo. A. Childs, $62.46 profit per cow; A. Carlson, $61.35 profit per cow; A. A. Stauffacher, $60.65 profit per cow.

Comparative butterfat averages of five herds and five low herds: High herds—Milk, $578; butterfat, 366.4; value of product, $29.20; cost of feed, $42.41; profit, $57.29.

Low herds—Milk, 7617; butterfat, 163.6; value of product $71.91; cost of feed, $40.25; profit, $31.70.

SISTER-IN-LAW OF J. W. TANNER BURNED FATALEY.

The Filer Journal in its current issue contains an account of the fatal burning of Mrs. J. M. Tanner of Omaha, as a result of her clothing catching on fire from a gas stove. She was the wife of the editor of the Omaha Democrat, who is a brother of J. W. Tanner, editor of the Journal. Mrs. Tanner was answering a telephone near the store when her skirt caught on fire and before it could be extinguished, she had received injuries from which she later died.

HIGH PRICES AND LEGISLATION.

It is easy enough to denounce those who invest in foodstuffs in anticipation of selling them at an increased price, but the fact must also be kept in mind that if nobody stored things in expectation of realizing a profit, the people would be like the wild Indians, who generally ate up all that they could get, without much thought of the morrow. What is happening differs only in degree from what has always happened, and the principle does not differ much from that which actuates the housewife to put up preserves, jellies and the like when fruit is cheap, in order to have them when fruit becomes dear. Since people have lost the art of preserving things for themselves they should starve if nobody would preserve anything for them, and no one will do this solely for the good of his health.

Just now, the people naturally turn to congress for a remedy. They have so long depended on legislation to cure all ills that this seems the natural course to pursue. It is safe to predict that congress will pass some kind of law which will prove about as effective as the old fashioned anti-trust laws did.

To a certain extent the evil provides its own antidote for the future. The people will learn to carry their own insurance, by packing their own eggs and putting up their own fruit against the threat of shortage, and the statesmen will calmly claim credit for modifying the trouble. The man who will make it more difficult to corner the market on foodstuffs, and if people who have the facilities will only take care of their own family shortage, there will be a more uniform of price charged for articles the year around.

The present cost of living is appalling, but if it should teach the people a needed lesson in forethought and frugality, it will not have been wholly in vain.

The boycott on certain articles, the price of which are unduly high, will have a tendency to counteract the high prices of such articles temporarily, and perhaps permanently, as during the boycott substitutes will have to be used, and some of the substitutes thus temporarily adopted, will be used after the present crisis is over. Altogether, the situation is a pretty good illustration of the economic law that, while an imposition may exist for some time if not pressing enough to overcome the law of inertia which makes people tend to keep on doing what they have always done and keep on using what they have always used, yet should this imposition become oppressive, it must result in a sudden breaking away from old habits and the formation of new ones, conforming to new conditions and necessities.

The situation in this case is serious, and it is to be hoped that it will ultimately result in producing enough good effect to balance the evil and suffering that it is now causing.

WATCHFUL WAITING NEEDED.

Friends and foes of Protection are alike agreed that the close of the war will bring new and critical problems for the United States, and while there are opposing views as to the precise form of the menace the future holds for us in the matter of immigration and of trade, there is no doubt whatever about the necessity of preparedness of some sort to meet the unknown conditions that will then confront us, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

The above statement is true. Everybody admits that the United States will be confronted by critical problems at the close of the present war, and nobody knows what they will be. One school of eminent thinkers says that we will have to face competition from nations possessed with the highest degree of efficiency as a result of the war, while another, equally famous school of thought, says that this efficiency is along military lines only and that the war, by diverting the best workmen from ordinary lines of production, has rendered many of them less efficient and that the production of these nations and rendered them permanently inefficient. On one hand it is said that the disorganization of industry abroad will result in immigration to this country, while on the other it is contended that the scarcity of men abroad will cause many former residents of the war stricken countries to go back. Differing from those who assert that the war will prove injurious to American industry because of the immense production that it is assumed will take place, are those who say that Europe will come out of the war broken and exhausted and will be unable to buy our goods because unable to produce anything to sell to us. Since the time that work was laid off on the tower of Babel, there has never been such vocal discord as exists in this country in regard to what is likely to follow the war.

Several contradictory arguments are used by the same people. Some of those who argue that laborers from Europe will go to Europe to produce great quantities of goods there to be sold in competition with American made goods, will in turn say that these foreign made goods will drive American made goods out of the market because foreign labor will be cheaper. It must be evident that if laborers are induced to leave their jobs here and go to Europe, they will only do so because they can get better pay there, and if they get better pay abroad than here, then cheap foreign labor will not exist.

It was formerly argued that the cheap labor of free trade England would produce goods so cheaply that American mills would all be closed, and this contention is still held. But no sane argues that urge it, particularly the American Economist, in the same breath insist that England is going to adopt protection, in which case there is any virtue in its argument, means that it will no longer have cheap labor with which to make things that our mills manufacture.

The Van Clave Advertising agency last week issued a protest against the gloomy prediction of industrial disaster, which it is alleged, must overtake us at the close of the European war, and the protest is well founded. Without assuming to know what will happen, and venturing an opinion, which is as likely to be right as any other, and which we reserve the right to change without notice, we believe that those who are nearest right who contend that it will take Europe some time to get back to normal production; and that while she is getting back, we will suffer somewhat, but not much, by reason of her lack of ability to exchange goods with us. But there is no reason for alarm unless we allow these crying "woes" to stampede us.

Since nobody knows just what will happen, nobody knows how to avert it, if it is going to be bad; or to take advantage of it, if it is going to be good, so the only thing that we can do is watch and wait and have our commissions keep tab on the trend of things.

THE SAME—ONLY DIFFERENT

The Buhl Herald attempts to "get funny" in regard to the proposition for Twin Falls county to annex six townships of Owyhee county for the purpose of enabling it to construct a road from Rogerson to Jarbridge at a trivial cost. The proposition has been made subject to the approval of Owyhee county and the cooperation of the officials of that political division has been asked in the matter, so that the terrible fear of vaulting, imperishable ambitions of Twin Falls, which is supposed, by the Herald to haunt the recesses of the hearts of the Owyhee people is in reality a very faint tremor, indeed. The Herald argues that this action is in no way parallel to asking for the annexation of the part of the northside tract opposite to the site of the Hansen bridge. The only difference between these propositions lies in the fact that they are not at all alike. If a small strip of a third county lay between Hansen and the river, so that this county could not improve the road to the bridge site, there would, if this strip of territory were inconveniently situated with reference to the other county, which is convenient to the river, and Twin Falls county should propose, with the consent of all concerned to annex the strip, so that it could help build the bridge for the mutual benefit of the people on both sides of the river, there would be some similarity between the two cases.

MORE ALLIED IMPERTINENCE.

Perhaps nobody ought to be greatly concerned over the refusal of the allies to grant safe-conducts to the newly appointed Austrian ambassador, Count Tarnowski von Tarnow, as the diplomatic misunderstandings between the United States and the dual monarchy can be discussed as well through the Austrian charge at Washington as through the ambassador with the suspiciously Muscovite name.

The affair is practically worthy of attention as indicating the state of mind of the allies, and their unreasonable opposition to the ordinary courtesies. There is an element of impudence in it. When Ambassador Dumba exceeded his duties in this country, President Wilson did not need the assistance of the allies in order to get rid of him. The chief executive said "Beat it" in diplomatic language and the representative of the successor of the western empire skeddaddled. The impertinence of the allies in assuming that we need a teacher to tell us what we shall read or in what manner we shall conduct our diplomatic affairs is monumental.

England has a legal right to shut out the International News service and the Hearst newspapers from her domains. She is foolish in so doing, even though the service had, the papers named are far from being either fair or reliable, but she has this right. It is none of our business whether she allows her people to read what they want to. But when she interferes with American firms in their legitimate business enterprises, and with our diplomatic relations, she exceeds her rights.

At the beginning of the war, the German diplomats succeeded in making more mistakes than the allied statesmen. They long failed to understand the temper and point of view of the American people. Dr. Dernburg was the first German noted in diplomatic circles who got the correct vision and after he began to see how we looked at things, the diplomatic attitude of the central powers began to improve, at least temporarily. On the other hand, evidently not wishing to be outdone in the clown act, British diplomats began making fools of themselves. They are still at it, and the result is that popular sentiment in their favor in this country is on the wane.

The London Post this week took a very superior position. Heretofore it was generally assumed by the British that they were at war in the interest of Belgium or in the interest of humanity, but it appears from the Post that the real reason that Great Britain is expending blood and treasure is that she is determined to save the United States from German aggression. According to this paper England could have had peace at any time with Germany on condition that the latter be given a free hand in America. Of course, it is very kind of Great Britain to save us from ruin at such tremendous expense, but being wayward folk and full grown, we sometimes would like the privilege of attending to our own business just a little and taking the consequences.

Later dispatches from abroad, said to be semi-official, announce that the allied governments have about determined to reconsider the refusal in the Tarnow case, owing to our strong representations, and that they will yield, as Germany did in other cases. Due allowance should in all cases be made, it is true on account of the state of frenzy of the belligerents, but it is the glory of the Wilson administration that with quiet firmness foreign nations have been brought to regard international law, without bluster and without war.

THE SOLDIER VOTE.

Captain Biggs corrected the report that if the boys could vote they would vote "unanimously" for Hughes. In nearly every state vote taken Wilson won or tied Hughes. Even the Minnesota boys were for Wilson. But it is all over now and this is the glad Thanksgiving time let us all rise and sing.

—From the Piler Journal.

Election prognosticators of all sorts were at sea at the recent election. It was predicted freely that all border states except Texas would vote to rebuke the administration and that there was even some doubt about the Democracy of the "Lone Star State." Texans went Democratic by about four to one, while the other border states all went for Wilson by safe pluralities. The soldier vote created some surprise, as it was assumed by conservative political writers that it would show about the same proportion of votes for the Democrats and Republicans as parties that were shown by what comes. The administration seems to have had relatively something the best of it in those states in which the soldiers voted. For instance, Wisconsin went Republican by a big majority, while, according to press reports the soldier vote showed a majority one for Wilson.

AGREEING ON MEXICO.

Now that the election excitement has died out, people of all parties are taking a more rational view of conditions south of the Rio Grande. Democrats no longer insist that it is unthinkable that intervention in Mexico should come, and Republicans no longer declare that the United States should plunge into the country, all by itself without taking thought as to what effect this action might have on South America. Goodwin's Weekly only the other day was one of the most radical in its demands that the United States "do its duty" all alone, but it has modified its position in this respect and in its last issue said:

"The easiest course for our government to pursue now is to call upon Brazil, Argentina and Chili to unite on a program, and make a joint demand upon Mexico for an adjustment, backing the demand by ships and if need be by armies and make an end of the long-drawn-out bloody farce that for years has held the boards in this country."

A few days ago, when Villa was in Chihuahua, the necessity for considering intervention seemed more acute than it does now when he is again beaten. With the signing of the agreement by Carranza and the defeat of the bandits, those who look on intervention only as the last resort are in its downfall, but it is well to note that both parties are discussing the matter of possible interference with less regard for politics than they did before November 7.

MOST IMPORTANT UTTERANCE ON WAR.

Perhaps the most important utterance by any statesman of international repute with reference to peace that has been made public since the war in Europe began is that of Charles P. Trevelyan, which was given to the press today. It shows that the people of England are not desirous of an indefinite war of attrition, while not favoring "peace at any price." The German statesmen have already indicated that they are prepared to talk terms though not intimating what they would consider proper concessions. Whether the plan suggested by Mr. Trevelyan is the surer one or not, the underlying idea is good and the communication casts such a brilliant light on the situation as it exists in Europe today, that it should be read by every American citizen.

FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

When William Farnum began work in William Fox's new pilot-play, "Fires of Conscience," he had just recovered from a six weeks illness. His face was white and his powerful frame seemed smaller. Everyone looked at Farnum, and wondered what had happened to the old strength which had stood by the actor through so many hardships.

They did not have long to wonder. As so often the case, making moving pictures, the scenes towards the end of the film were taken first. Farnum began his work with a fight and H. J. Hebert was his opponent.

They were getting ready for rehearsals of the scene, and Hebert said: "I don't want to hurt you, will, so yell out if I'm going too recklessly. I know you'll sit weak from your sickness." Farnum smiled. "Don't be afraid," he said, "I'll stand as much as you put into it."

When the fight was over, the actor was victorious. His face was flushed, and he was happy. "If I could do that every day," he gasped, "I'd never get sick. It's the best medicine I know of, and it's the best thing in the world to keep one going."

DUSTIN FARNUM IN

"THE VIRGINIAN."

"The Virginian" with Dustin Farnum in the leading role, which comes to the Idaho theatre Wednesday and Thursday, is said to be the most artistic production yet made by the now famous Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company. "The Virginian" by Owen Wister, and the play of Kirk La Shelle, is composed of four hundred scenes, requiring a cast of three hundred players in its five parts. Those who have seen the "Virginian" claim it is far superior in every way to the "Squaw Man," in which Mr. Farnum played for the Lasky company.

Civil Case on Trial—The case of E. O. Kano against Anton Machotech of Buhl was decided yesterday in favor of the plaintiff by the jury to which it was submitted. The suit was a note given by Machotech for stock in the Farmer's and Stockgrower's bank of Pocatello, for which the defendant claimed that he did not get value received. Last week the jury in the case of the Western Lumber company against R. J. Day gave a verdict for $1400 to the plaintiff. In the case of Mrs. Corsett Abramson against Robert Rogerson, the jury by a special finding reported that the partnership between the parties had not been dissolved, which made a verdict for the plaintiff impossible. The Wahart company against the Farmers & Merchants bank is on trial today.

Pastors of pink crepe paper suspended from the chandelier were tied at the four corners of the table.

The regular meeting of the Twin Falls Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Potter, 245 Fourth avenue north, next Friday afternoon, December 8, at 2:30 o'clock.

An excellent program will be carried out under the leadership of Mrs. J. W. C. Burke, who having spent the summer in the east in a state that is still in the wet season, brings back the message that there is still many buds needed to clear the fields that are ripe for the great harvest.

Resolutions concerning National Prohibition sent out by the National W. C. T. U. convention just closed at Indianapolis, will be brought before the meeting for adoption.

All women interested in Christian citizenship and a higher social standard are urged to be present.

Invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Stanford, daughter Bettie and son Stanley; Mr. and Mrs. John Glendon, daughter Margery and son Bruce; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. W. and daughter Edna; Gladys Carlson and daughter Virginia; Mrs. May Glendon; Mr. A. A. Carlson and sister Alice; and Mr. Frank McAuley.

Mrs. Alexander's Friendship Day at the Twentieth Century Club was very much enjoyed by those fortunate enough to be present. On the stage, giving in a quaint, homey appearance, were a spinning wheel of long ago days, and an armchair—'A Friend' and 'A Friend's Forgiveness'.

Two beautiful poems on friendship were read by Mrs. Edna McKay Olson. This number brought the hearty applause always accorded Mrs. Olson. The paper of the afternoon, 'The Meaning of Friendship', was read by Mrs. E. E. Morse. This was listened to with a great deal of interest, and gave one much food for thought. The first number on the program was a medley of old time favorite songs arranged for piano and violin by Mr. Wm. Coburn, and Mr. Schetter, accompanied by Mr. Coburn.

A vocal solo, 'Love's Old Sweet Song' by Mr. Wilton Peck, followed. This was encored and Mr. Peck responded with 'The Rosary'. It is certainly appreciated when those not connected with the club in any give so generously of their time and talents for the club's entertainment.

The program closed with a very quaint and enjoyable number. Mrs. Dwight and Mr. J. E. B. in picturesque costumes of many years ago, sang 'Autumn Song'.

Mrs. Dwight seated at the spinning wheel, and Mrs. White in the armchair. The program was a most interesting and enjoyable one. It was definitely decided to hold the meetings each Tuesday at four o'clock.

The program for Thursday, December 7, is to be Post's Day, in charge of Mrs. H. J. Youngs. This promises to be an interesting and enjoyable affair, and that the attendance will be large.

In the Perkins-Anderson wrestling match last Saturday evening the referee awarded a draw, giving each man a fall. Dutch Anderson was given a fall after the man had been wrestling one hour and 15 minutes. The second fall was given to Tom Parks after 30 minutes.

Practically every student of the high school was present, and it required four tables reaching the length of the high school gymnasium to seat the spectators. The football team occupied the position of honor, being seated at a table in the center of the room.

The students of the high school building waited upon the tables, and it was particularly noticeable that they all wanted to wait on the football boys. The students were given a chance to see the game, and the referee announced it a draw. The length of time which the men had been wrestling without either getting a clean fall was the reason for time having been called.

FIGHT WITH CONSCIENCE GIVES VIGOROUS ROLE TO WILLIAM FARNUM IN NEW PHOTOPLAY

FIRES OF CONSCIENCE ALLOWS PLAY TO ACTOR'S GREAT HISTORIC ABILITY. STORY TELLS OF BIG MAN'S BATTLE WITH TWO FORCES.

Two fights, one against himself, the other against those who are breaking the laws of mankind, give William Farnum opportunity to display his remarkable histrionic ability in William Fox's new photoplay, 'Fires of Conscience.' Farnum takes the part of George Baxter, a man of impulse, who has fled to the west after killing the man who had ruined the happiness of his home.

In Arizona, Baxter meets Nell Blythe (Nell Shipman), a good woman, who makes her living by singing in the dance halls and saloons. She realizes that some influence is spoiling the life of the 'big man she loves, and she begs him to go east and face justice. He goes.

In his native city, he is tried before a judge (William Burress) who is father of the man he had killed. The judge knows that his son's death was deserved, and instructs the jury to bring a verdict of 'not guilty.'

'This,' he says, 'is a case of the unwritten law.' Freed from the shadow that has cast its gloom over his life, George Baxter returns to the west, and finds Nell waiting for him.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES REPORT ON THANKSGIVING

Many Families Receive Aid—School Children Are Liberated with Contributions.

(Associated Charities Report) There has never been an age when social service and the keeping of the poor and needy, has been so universal. Characteristic of Twin Falls community, was the giving at Thanksgiving. Not one needy case reported, but was abundantly served.

Among these were six families in which there was sickness. It was especially gratifying to have daughters of jelly, fruit and home-made bread for these cases. Several families were furnished dinner by neighbors. The Associated Charities sent out dinners to eleven families, and three old men, all forty-eight years of age. One family was made of some kind, coffee, butter, a quart of cranberries, and a package of sugar were added to each donation. A box of apples was also divided among the families.

Sufficient potatoes and other vegetables were donated, so that each family was given besides an abundant dinner, a half-ack-of-mixed-vegetables. Contributions were received from the following:

2 large boxes from Royal Nephews; 3 parcels, Mrs. Wolf and friend; sack vegetables, fruit, beans, Blue Lakes Club; Bread and canned fruit, Mrs. I. B. Perrine; turkey, Mrs. Leakey; 6 complete dinners, Mrs. N. B. Harris; dinners for 8 people, Miss Powers' room Washington school; 1 chicken, unknown; 2 2-ounce packages 1 package onions, unknown; 20 lbs. beans, 12 squash, canned tomatoes, unknown; 2 chickens, sack potatoes, unknown; eight packages vegetables, 1 chicken, 6 cans fruit, 3 glasses jelly, 1 can pickles, box spaghetti, Miss Cox room, Bickel school.

Each morning, per contribution, came the little third grades from the local school, their eyes sparkling with their enthusiasm over helping somebody have a cheery Thanksgiving. The five roster in his sack, taxed one little orphan to the utmost, as he deposited him at the door.

Miss Powers' children urged that their donation go where there were little children, and thither it went to a wagon, not overly warm, where three little folks were huddled huddled. What a lesson for the children in Christian charity and good citizenship. The contributions for Associated Charities at the union service was $45.56. This was the largest collection ever taken at Thanksgiving service.

An Early Finish.

"You are sentenced to be shot at sunrise," announced the villain of the melodrama. "Have you anything to say?" "Very little," answered the comedist. "Sunrise is an early hour. I shall not allude."

And then the base drummer hit the drum a violent crash.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Lending a Helping Hand.

"What a beautiful dog, Miss Elsie!" exclaimed her faithful admirer. "Is he affectionate?" "Is he affectionate?" she asked archly. "Indeed he is. Here, Bruno, come, good doggie and show Elsie how to kiss me."—Lafayette Home Journal.
