

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK

VERY HUMAN PERSON

Interesting Interview With the Famous Singer Who Visited Twin Falls, Idaho

(By Jessie Warrington)

That greatness and fame are not measured by affections and a cold and haughty manner; or that those traits are necessary to greatness and fame, are illustrated vividly in the character of Madame Schumann-Heink. And because of the fact that these traits hold no place in the life of this great singer and that the qualities of unaffectedness, of sincerity and kindness are predominant, combined with a magnificent voice, Madame Schumann-Heink takes a place in the hearts of the people of the world seldom granted any one. Those facts constitute the human interest—points—the character of this great woman. "To see her and to hear her in conversation are equal privileges with hearing her magnificent voice, and people are the better for having sat in her audience, whether or not they are lovers of music."

A note was sent up to the madame some two hours after her arrival in Twin Falls asking if she cared to give an interview and she immediately sent word back that she would be glad to see the interviewer in her room in the Hotel Perrine after the concert.

Madame opened the door herself, smilingly held out her hand and said: "Come in. I thank you for the nice note and for coming to see me."

Madame drew her chair close to mine, smiled kindly and began to talk. She speaks with a German accent that is pleasing and interesting and renders her English more delightful.

Her kindly face shows strength of character and is crowned with beautiful, soft, gray hair most becomingly arranged.

Madame asked how I liked the concert and her gown, which was of white and a beautiful shade of blue, adorned with silver. "My voice was in good condition tonight," Madame remarked, "and I gave one of my best programs here. When I had performed three years ago I thought that if I lived I should never sing again, yet—I am singing, and here I tell you is practically no loss in my voice."

"You say I have wonderful expression and feeling? Ah, yes, one must live, and suffer, to sing or write to touch others. I sing from here," and Madame laid her hand over her heart. "I sing always from here. I put my soul into my singing, and besides, I love all people and sympathize with them in happiness and sorrow."

Madame then spoke of her family and her boys. These facts are interesting. She has five children, three sons and two daughters. Her youngest son is 29 years; she has had eight children; five boys—two of whom died last year; and three girls and all are married but one. She has nine grandchildren; her oldest child is a man 34 years old and the youngest is 19 years of age.

As she sat talking of her home, her early struggles and the sorrows of her life, one almost forgot that she was a world-famous singer who has been honored by all people, including the crowned heads of Europe; she was now a loving mother and lonely, probably thinking of her home and her children. As she spoke of the son who telling her he was not worthy of such a wonderful and brave mother if he did not answer the call of his native land, went to join the German navy and from whom she has not heard since July of last year; and as she told of the boy who died last year ago and who must have been a favorite, she bowed her head in grief. Her strong face worked with emotion for a moment, but she quickly hid her hands and said: "I must not. And when she lifted her face and smiled her eyes were brimming with tears and two big tears were in her cheeks.

"I do not believe our loved ones are so far from us when they are taken by death," Madame resumed, "I think always of the boy I lost. When I am singing it seems to me he is standing beside me and when I think trouble is coming always it seems that he puts his hand, this way, and touches my head to hide her eyes. "But you have had sorrow, too, and I must not talk of these things," she said kindly.

"I am a German, but I am also a loyal American. I love America and all the people who live here. I cannot keep my heart from aching for Germany, and also for the people of all the warring countries."

Then, looking forward, with her hand on my knee, she asked earnestly: "You work for several newspapers—and read and hear all these things—Oh, cannot you tell me how to get heard, when this terrible war shall stop? Oh, it is no affair! Surely, you do not think it will continue another year?"

It was plain that Madame's heart was torn and for some moments she was silent as she fought to control her emotions. When she spoke earnestly and emphatically, now with her hand on mine, then with her hand clasped tightly.

"Oh, if I could speak to all Americans, and to every American I would say: 'Be prepared, Oh, be prepared. You must be better prepared than I tell me, why should the life of men remain at home when the poor men and the men with families must always work and fight and die for their country? It is not right. It is not right. They are not even being trained to serve their country. But I must not speak of war and such things. My life has been hard, sad, and bitter—times—but I go on doing my duty to the world, and everywhere. That is what we all should do. We must not be selfish."

"The madame then turned to her table and took from it a pale pink carnation and gave it to me. Just then I noticed that a tray bearing a lunch stood near the door, and an interrupting Madame's luncheon. "Ah, no," she replied kindly, "I shall eat, if you will permit, and you shall eat with me."

"You people must have worked hard to get so large an audience on such

New Year Attractions

100% Over-Strength 8 Mitchell-Built Bodies

24% Extra Luxury 31 Extra Features

We have to offer you this year some new results of the famous Mitchell methods. Some new attractions which we pay for out of factory savings.

These are due, like all the Mitchell extras, to John W. Bate, the efficiency engineer.

EUROPEAN DURABILITY

Mr. Bate fixed for all Mitchell parts a standard of 50 per cent over-strength. That standard has long been considered extreme. But it gave to the Mitchell unique endurance. It meant safety, long life, small repairs.

Seven Mitchells built under that standard have averaged over 175,000 miles each, or some 35 years of ordinary service.

But three years ago Mr. Bate spent an entire year in Europe. The leading engineers there—in England, France and Germany—were adopting high standards. They were aiming at lifetime cars.

So Mr. Bate resolved to attain in the Mitchell the per cent over-strength. That is, each part twice as strong as needed for.

He has now accomplished that. Now, for the first time, we need no double-strength in every important part.

A LIFETIME CAR

But double strength for American roads means more than double strength for Europe.

To find what it meant Mr. Bate has worn out fifty cars in tests. He has devised machines for applying to parts the most radical of shop tests.

Now over 40 parts in the Mitchell are built of toughened steel. Important parts are given greater over-size. Parts which get a major strain are built of Chrome-Vanadium.

The result is a car which ought to render a lifetime of good service.

ONE EXAMPLE—SPRINGS

One example is the Bate cantilever springs. In rough-road service, springs break frequently. But in 18 months, used in thousands of Mitchells, not one Bate cantilever spring has broken. Not one leaf of one. That same high standard now exists in every Mitchell part.

NEW LUXURIES

Now we occupy our new body plant. With the yards it covers 14 city blocks. Under Mr. Bate's efficiency methods it will save us hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Out of this new saving we have added 24 per cent to the cost of our finish, upholstery and trimming.

Our finish coats are now fixed by heat, in enormous ovens. This gives a deep, rich finish and a lustre that lasts for years.

TWO SIZES

MITCHELL—a roomy, 7-passenger Six, with 127-inch wheelbase. A high-speed, economical 48-horsepower motor. Disappearing extra seat and 31 extra features included.

Price $1460 f. o. b. Racine.

MITCHELL JUNIOR—a five-passenger Six on similar lines, with 120-inch wheelbase. A 40-horsepower motor—14-inch smaller bore than larger Mitchell.

Price $1150, f. o. b. Racine.

Also all styles of enclosed and convertible bodies. Also demountable tops.

We have added 50 per cent to the cost of our leather. We have added 50 per cent to the cost of our cushion springs to give you better upholstery. No other make could possibly offer such luxury at the Mitchell price.

31 EXTRA FEATURES

This year we give you 31 extra features. That means attractions which other makers omit.

There is a power fire pump, a new-type control, an extra-cost carburetor, a ball-bearing steering gear. There's an engine primer at the driver's hand. There's a light in the tounge, a locked compartment for valuables. The headlights are reversible. The Mitchell includes 31 such extras without extra price.

DUE TO THIS MODEL PLANT

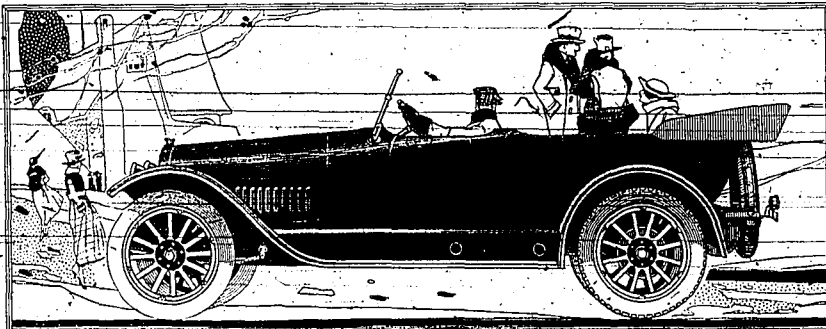

All this extra value is due to this modern efficiency plant. This whole factory, covering 45 acres, was built and equipped under John W. Bate. By efficiency methods it has cut our factory costs in two.

Nowhere else, we believe, could a car like the Mitchell be built within 20 per cent of our cost.

See what extra value this saving brings to you. See the extra strength, the additional equipment, and the extra features. You are bound to want them. But you cannot get them at the Mitchell price in any but the Mitchell cars.

See your nearest Mitchell dealer. If you don't know him, ask us for his name.

short notice," Madame remarked, with a question in her voice. But she was assured that no work was necessary, that the mention of her coming was sufficient.

"You have a fine country here," she said. "I am sure you are very happy in this wonderful place. And today I saw your beautiful falls—they are splendid. I had a ride about your city and I left a small sum for the fund for the poor of your city. I am a Catholic, but I have people of all religions and I think they like me. I am what you call a democrat. If I want to stay here three or four days, I would speak to me on the street, because I know they like me, and I love them."

"What does Madame think of the moving pictures?"

"She smiled and replied: 'Ah, yes, the movies, they will soon be holding an even more prominent place in our entertainment life than now. But I am sorry they are silent. In that way they lack the human touch—and people become mentally lazy—they use only their eyes. But some are very good and I hope they continue to improve. I sometimes attend them. You know I must not talk during the show when I must sing in the evening, so sometimes I sit in the front row—accompanying, and I go to the movies for there I cannot talk' and Madame's eyes twinkled. Madame spoke especially of William S. Hart as one of her favorite motion picture actors, and as a favorite idea of Miss Evans, her companion.

"Do not believe the making and uncomplimentary things you so often hear about our country, extra, and artists, who are before the public," said the Madame, with a note of pity in her voice. "People make no allowance for temperament. And you hear them say, significantly, that there is a cloud about this one and that. Do not believe these things. And, I think, it more often is a mist, only a mist, which looks like a cloud; but is driven away by the light of the sun, and all sympathy as the mist we see in the morning is driven away by the light of the morning sun."

"Soon there came a slight pause—sitting time for the interview. I gathered up her wraps. Madame smiled: 'yes, it is time to go. I must pack—and six o'clock comes early in the morning.'"

Madame has no maid with her. An instance that shows the independent and democratic character of the great woman occurred in the hotel. "Excuse me," asked someone of Madame, indicating her accompaniment, Miss Evans. "My maid?" exclaimed Madame. "Ah, no, she is not my maid."

She is an artist and a dear friend of mine. A strong, active woman like me does not need a maid!"

Madame arose from her chair to assist with the wraps. "You do not have to go?" she questioned.

"Only five or six blocks."

"Ah, but that is not, and corrected, 'and be careful, the walks are icy.' And her parting was more that of a friend than a stranger.

As a further instance showing the democratic character of the famous singer, this incident is given: Miss Alfonsie, the violinist, who lived for some time in Twin Falls and who went to Los Angeles last year, wrote a friend here of an interesting incident which took place in Los Angeles. Miss Alfonsie was playing the violin in a large cafe in that city. It happened, one day, that Madame Schumann-Heink came in the cafe and at the close of one especially pleasing number which Miss Alfonsie played, the Madame arose from her place and going to Miss Alfonsie, congratulated her before the large crowd of people in the cafe, and advised her to continue her work. In which she is receiving considerable recognition. Miss Alfonsie wrote her friends that this gracious act and the kindly words of praise and encouragement were worth more to her than the all the applause and congratulations she had ever received.

All of which is given only to show the splendid magnetic qualities of Madame's gracious personality—her wholesome unaffectedness—her real greatness and magnanimity. The world has produced many great singers, but there never was and never will be, in the hearts of the people, but one Schumann-Heink.

MORE MEN THAN WOMEN HAVE APPENDICITIS

Surgeons state men are slightly more subject to appendicitis than women. Twin Falls people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adol-r-ka, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This mixture removes such surprising foul matter that ONE SPOONFUL relieves—almost ANY CASE—constipation, acid stomach or gas. THE INSTANT, easy action of Adol-r-ka is surprising. BIG AUSTRALIAN SLUGGER PROVES A POOR ACTOR

Little interest shown in Dan Darcy of the Antipodan boxer now on the American stage.

(United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Dan Darcy, king of the Antipodan, hereafter found the American public far away from the idea of clenching up their fists just to see him wait a few rounds with Freddie Gilmore and to demonstrate the punches he used to win his way to Australia fame.

His junket, through eastern cities has been one of the most dismal fly-versa history ever has been called upon to chronicle.

Despite the fact that Darcy had received more publicity in a few weeks than the average stranger gets in a lifetime the public didn't fall for his theatrical efforts. His first stop, Bridgeport, Conn., showed the way the wind was blowing when the boxer wasn't even comfortably filled.

Jump was made to other towns the same day, but country farmers say again in his appearance. When

Philadelphia was reached Darcy was so discouraging with the number who wanted to be his audience that he left the theatre and it was only by argument and threat that he could be induced to return and entertain the eighty or so fans.

The reason for his failure should be apparent and need not be a warning to other theatrically ambitious sports. Folks who really are interested in ring battles don't care to see a horse-stap-out-a-stage-and-morally go through the motions of a fight. They want to see him fight.

Any one who expects Darcy would have no trouble at all in jamming a fight arena with fans to see him battle. Others who go to a theatre to be entertained are rarely interested in the doings of the boxers, so they fail to become greatly excited.

Darcy was out of his sphere when he went on the stage. He will have to get the roadshow reputation before he can hope to make sardine rowdies of theatres. He is no all-around fighter, not a theater-packer.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?
BEING ANSWERED TODAY

Noted Politicians and Others Give Their Personal Definitions of the Term.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Famous men and women gathered here from all parts of the United States to discuss "What is Patriotism?"

Included in the list are such personages as Ethel Root, former war secretary; Simon, Rear Admiral Fluke, Theodore Roosevelt, Ned Mc Cormick, Mayor Mitchell, Alton B. Parker, Howard E. Coffin, Samuel R. Gammon, William Brewster Taylor, H. H. Hagedorn, Senator Borah, Prof. Edward E. Steiner and others.

This meeting is called the Congress of Constructive Patriotism, is under the auspices of the National Security League and is aimed at better military, naval and industrial preparedness in the United States. There are seventy three delegates from New York City alone.

The subject is to be discussed in a non-partisan, non-political spirit. The women are to take an important part in the discussions. There are expected to be about 100 delegates present.

"The object," said S. Stanwood Menden, chairman of the league's committee on congress, today, "is to establish a lecture system by experts who will take up the matter of preparedness at points throughout the country in a non-partisan, non-political way." Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard has this branch of the work in charge.

The well known men and women citizens present today are expected to give their personal definition of what patriotism really is.

ANOTHER SALMON TRACT EXPOSURE HEARD FROM

Twin Falls Times.
Twin Falls, Idaho.

Gentlemen: I perused the article in your paper of January 16, so ably written by Mr. Ray Deachman on the Salmon tract situation, with great interest.

When I went to Idaho in July, 1914 to reside with my family on my 150 acre tract during the month of August in order to make final proof, I did so with a firm conviction that I would possibly remain there to enable me to look after not only my Idaho farm, but also to look after other western interests. This was my reason for taking my entire family and Mrs. Becker's maid, two in all, so as to give them a constant opportunity to learn the conditions and decide on our future plans, and all went well until we had been on the land a short time and learned conditions as they actually existed as to water supply. Then we decided to await results and after spending the necessary time there returned to Wisconsin. I did not think, however, even then that there would be permitted to develop the candidate that we saw.

The literature and other matters gave me the conviction that the great state of Idaho, would not permit a questionable deal such as this to be pulled off and give its aid and sanction if it was not all right, and if an error had been made, surely the state of Idaho would not permit to lose a portion of their inheritance to make amends and corrections, and for this reason it should be an easy matter to get still through the legislature to have the state of Idaho prosecute the matter and assume all expense in connection with an adjustment of the affairs.

While on this subject permit me to ask your indulgence in my addressing some other matters that have come to my mind.

When the bonds in connection with irrigation of Idaho lands were bought and offered to the public, very expensive methods were being resorted to, such for example, as the payment of exorbitant prices for the bonds, extensive offices maintained in large cities, etc. It looked like a great big gamble and now the Idaho settler is paying the freight and I believe a thorough investigation covering the financing methods employed will disclose the very considerable percentage of profit to certain a receiver and the proceeds of the sales of securities was used in a sort of high finance, such as the purchase of land, the building of a dam, etc., and the confidence of the promoter and that the promoters were in the thing for the principal purpose of getting larger through unloading the securities and those who bought them, no doubt knew they were investing in a question.

While security, but took a chance in the hope of getting large profits. It is all well and, as these investors do not lose a portion of their investment than to have the settler

ALLEGED FRUITS HOLD UP
NEW DOMESTIC ETHICS

WASHINGTON.—Scramped with letters and telegrams urging that the 50-acre homestead law, recently enacted, is being utilized by wealthy stockmen of the west to subdivide large areas of the public range in direct violation of the terms of the law, Secretary of the Interior Lane has decided to designate no land for entry under this law until he can make a thorough investigation and determine whether or not fraud is being attempted.

Charles, pointing in any that in all western states his stockmen have been subverting the law and other employees to make applications for land under this law thus obtaining prior right to enter. In this way, it is alleged, frauds are being attempted similar to dummy entries made under the old timber and stone act. But no land can be actually entered under the 50-acre law until the department regulations have been issued, and then only such land can be entered as is designated for stock raising and homesteading by the secretary of the Interior. As yet Secretary Lane has made no designations.

The secretary can prevent perpetration of fraud if, under investigation, he becomes convinced that extensive fraud in stock raising of his stock is being attempted.

THE NEW "HINDENBURG"

A great number of citizens of the United States have viewed with ill-concealed impatience, and to say, displeasure, the extreme caution and conservatism with which President Wilson has conducted the repeated, prolonged and delicate diplomatic negotiations with Germany. But whatever such persons may have thought, or said, regarding this matter—however sharply they may have criticized another and yet another note of protest and warning, without action, there is not one of them who will not be forced to admit, now that the President has acted, that his position is a very much stronger one than it would have been under similar circumstances, at any time in the past. This is true as regards its acceptance by and effect upon other neutral nations; and especially is it true as to the way it will be received by Teutonic sympathizers in our own country.

Unquestionably it will be the verdict of history—probably admitted in the very near future, if not at the present moment, that he has shown great wisdom with fortitude under the immense responsibility devolved upon him, and with rare judgment has chosen the psychological moment for the grave and epoch-making step he has just taken. What may follow is as yet "in the lap of the Gods"—and the temper of Kaiser William! No sane American citizen, and least of all our President, desires war. Upon the contrary, all dread and deprecate it. But no American worthy the name would willingly purchase peace at the price of National dishonor and disgrace. As the President said in his calm and carefully considered address to Congress, the violation by Germany of solemn pledges, leaves our country "no course consistent with dignity and honor" save the one which has been announced as having been taken. The next move would naturally belong to Germany, but the President plainly foreshadowed the possibility of an actual war declaration upon our own part by saying, after an expression of disbelief that German ruthlessness could go so far:

"If this confidence on my part should unhappily prove unfounded; if American ships and American lives should in fact be sacrificed in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before the Congress to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our women and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas."

The response of his countrymen to the position thus taken by their president was, just as it should have been, one of immediate and enthusiastic support. To quote a few representative leaders: Ex-Presidents Taft and Roosevelt pledged hearty support—the latter offering the personal services of himself and his sons; Senator Tillman at the head of the Senate Naval committee said: "I am glad if it were not done, it would pass from anybody to go where we please on the high seas"; "The only thing that could be done," said Senator Chamberlain; "I'm with him," said Senator Lodge, of the foreign relations committee.

The thing that will be first anxiously looked for is the effect upon other neutral countries. In the mean time, and all the time, patriotism must be put aside and patriotism given full sway. This will give men and each woman in high or in humble sphere, do his or her duty to the country, the president and the individual.

THE WORLD AT BAY

It is inconceivable that Germany should deliberately take such steps at this time as must obviously lead to a rupture of relations between her and the greatest of all neutral powers. But inconceivable as it is, it is difficult to look the facts in the face and arrive at any other conclusion.

Those who think that they see in these latest developments an evidence of German desperation, a desire to drag into this conflict all the powers of the world, in order to justify the German government in the eyes of its own people for the humiliating terms of peace that would inevitably follow—people who hold to this belief are very apt to be to discard it for we have seen Germany on the brink of being crushed time and time again, only to see another German offensive follow the apparent defeat, and still more territory fall into the hands of the Teutons.

Events of the past, in this unparalleled world war, serve only to confuse the future. The unexpected and the impossible seem to be the rule.

Has Germany concluded that it has more to gain than to lose by America's participation in the conflict?

Does Germany feel safe in the assurance that the spirit of America will not tolerate the shedding of American blood on battle fields of Europe? Or does Germany depend upon its ability to make the transportation of troops to Europe too hazardous to warrant the attempt?

Is Germany convinced that the United States is already lending all possible aid to the allies? Or that her repudiation of the restrictions imposed on submarine warfare by international law, will enable her rather to restrict the shipments of munitions and supplies to the allies from this country?

Has Germany concluded that our navy can do her little, if any, harm?

The allies' control of the seas is undisputed, insofar as keeping the enemy's naval forces in their harbors is concerned. But the allies are unable to protect their own commerce from the ravages of the German submarines, and under a regime of unrestricted activity it is just within the limits of the human imagination to foresee the complete destruction of the commerce of the world, or rather its total abandonment during the remaining months (or will it be years) of the war. Therein seems to be the only key to the present situation.

Figuring that she has little, if anything, to lose by the open hostility of this nation, and the destruction of all commerce with the allies to gain, has Germany carefully figured the cost and cast the die?

If the future bears this out, it will stand out in all history as the most desperate resort of a warring nation; a means by the adoption of which, Germany must assume to ultimately humble, or at least, to make of no avail, the naval and military forces of the world.

The resolution requiring the submission to the voters at the next general election of a constitutional amendment raising the pay of the legislators from five to seven and a half dollars per day, was defeated. Some declared against it on the grounds that it was immodest to ask for an increase in salary, but inasmuch as it was in all probability would not effect many of the present legislators, that argument fails to ring true. It is more likely that because of the fact that not many of these expect to profit by the raise the resolution was overwhelmingly defeated.

A THREATENED PANHANDLE SECESSION

North Idaho voices vigorous protest against the suggested removal of the state university to some point in southern Idaho. Indeed, she goes quite a little farther. Her representatives and senators in the state legislature met the other evening and renewed the talk of secession. It is said a resolution to this effect will be introduced within the next few days.

All of which is probably not to be taken too seriously. Beneath it all one seems to see other motives at work.

Moscow is no place for the state of Idaho to attempt to build up a great educational institution. The section is served fully as well as Idaho can ever hope to serve it by the big Washington school at Pullman. Moscow is difficult of access from the sections of the state most likely to patronize its university.

The North knows this just as well as anybody else. But this knowledge hardly lessens its desire to keep the university with them; nor does it in any degree diminish their ambition to spend more state money on the Moscow institution. There is a double purpose: the more state money invested in the Moscow school, the less likely of success in any attempt to move it southward.

A modest little demand for a couple of hundred thousand for new buildings and improvements comes from the University, supported by its northern friends. The South, looking on with enthusiasm for the cause, starts to talk removal, with no other hope in mind probably than preventing an increase in the state's investment at Moscow. The North's comeback is talk of secession, the materialization of which it probably regarded about as seriously as the talk of moving the University south, although we do believe the latter to be a meritorious proposition.

The outcome of the whole affair will probably be the continuance of the state's educational institutions along the same absurd lines as at present, for any of the sections that at present have state institutions are not overly anxious to have the subject raised, for fear that in the shake-up, they may be separated from what they already have. Funds will probably be appropriated to properly maintain the schools, and for needed repairs; but it is very doubtful if any material increase of investment in any of the institutions will be approved.

And this is probably just about what both the North and the South expect.

The state board of education was presenting the needs of the Lewiston state normal before the house committee on appropriations Saturday, and in receiving the more pressing needs of the hour, the report stated that although the institution was sadly in need of a new building, it had reluctantly concluded to waive a demand for such a building at the present time, concluding that it need of some of the other improvements more. This led somebody to inquire as to the number of men now attending the normal. It developed upon reference to the records, that there were nine men there. But the people foot the bill—so what's the difference! However, there are some other "crying needs" of that institution besides the much required dormitory for nine, that it may not get.

Hansen and Barker voted against lowering legal rate of interest from twelve to ten per cent. The newspaperman voted for it—naturally.

Governor Alexander remarks that appropriations for a crop that can be grown in southern Idaho without irrigation.

The close of the proposed forty-day session will see the legislature nicely started.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY ISSUE IN ARGENTINE

Appointment of Former Oil Attorney
Rabes Sturm—New Administration
Head Proves to be Expert Politician.

(UNION PRESS)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 6.—Minister of Agriculture Bueyrerendo is being pounded heavily by the anti-administration newspapers here because he was legal advisor in Argentina for the Standard Oil company up to the time of his appointment to President Irigoyen's cabinet.

The care and development of the country's oil resources are among the duties of the department of agriculture. The Standard is suspected of wanting to secure possession of the government-owned Comodoro Rivadavia oil fields. Critics of the administration say this is a bad combination of circumstances. Dr. Bueyrerendo is no longer on the Rockefeller payroll, but government critics say his sympathies will likely be with his former employer, and they hold that the appointment is inconsistent with the promises of radical reform made by the new administration. The movement for retrenchment and efficiency is carried to the most extreme lengths in some cases.

Minister of Public Works Torelli has abolished afternoon tea in his department. He figures that he will save the time of the employees a value he can barely estimate. The tea and its adjuncts used to cost about $62,800 annually.

All this same-time evidence is accumulating that the new head of the nation is an accomplished politician.

As an expert on revolutions—for he himself spent a large part of his life as a conspirator and revolutionist—President Irigoyen has been quietly taking precautions to prevent any governmental overturning during his own six year term. And he did it so cleverly that only now is the public beginning to realize it.

There have been predictions that his radical program would lead to a revolutionary outbreak. Revolutionary methods have been openly advocated in connection with some of the recent strikes in Argentina.

The president's theory is that he can hold his own while the army is with him. On a peace basis it is only about 17,000 strong but even this is not so bad, in a country of 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 population.

Long ago, when he was an anti-government conspirator, Irigoyen won to his views the rank and file and lower grades of commissioned officers. Government after government, however, took pains to see that Irigoyen's views were not promoted. So when he assumed office as president, Irigoyen found the army too heavy with men in the chief commands who were his political opponents.

Nobody noticed it at first, but he had hardly taken the oath of office before he began detaching these officers from positions where they really controlled army men and landing them in "civilian" positions in the capital or assigning them simply to "wait or-dors." In their absence their underlings were lifted into the higher ranks either by means of out-and-out promotions or as "acting" commanders.

One of the most revolutionary plans the Irigoyen administration in Argentina is fostering today is a scheme, might or might not appeal to Uncle Sam, to make the national army pay for its keep.

The proposition is to use the troops as a sort of gendarmerie, especially with a view to guarding the frontiers against "contrabandistas" and to the collection of "protection" revenues, which will not only give a better service than the country has had before but will save the salaries of the officials who have been doing such work in the past.

POSTPONED BOAT RIDE

TOMORROW NIGHT AT IDAHO

Telly McCarroll who was snowed-blast last week and unable to appear for his match with Young Hackenschmidt Saturday night, has arrived and the bout will take place at the Idaho theatre tomorrow (Wednesday) night. McCarroll is considered one of the best wrestlers in Idaho or Oregon. He met Hack in Pendleton about two weeks ago and the latter gained a decision over him by dislocating his ankle, but McCarroll comes with blood in his eye and states that Hack will not be able to get hold of that ankle again. McCarroll acquired his high standing as a wrestler by defeating such men as Howard Jacobs, amateur champion of Idaho and Utah, Albert Foley of St. Paul, ex-lightweight champion of the world, "Butch" Adkins, coast middle-weight champion and several other prominent wrestlers of his class. Young Hackenschmidt is light heavyweight champion of the world and has held that position for the past six years.

C. E. Knutt lost Thursday. Lots of work done. A good time and a roomy dinner.

Mr. W. E. T. U. meeting at the W. W. Nicholson's was postponed from Thursday to Friday afternoon, on account of the death of Roy Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Keven, Mr. and Mrs. John have returned from a two-month visit in Iowa. They had found their trip very good and are back to Idaho.

Word has been received here that little Floyd Victor is quite sick with pneumonia at the home of his grandparents in Nebraska. We are hoping the next word we get he will be improved.

Mr. Johnson was all smiles last Monday morning on account of a new grand son at the Malone home, January 29. Mrs. Malone will be remembered as Miss Lulu Johnson, and we extend congratulations. Miss Mamie Johnson was at home over Sunday.

Miss Verma Steer spent Sunday with 2nd Falls friends.

A. G. Wilson and T. M. Baird are installing some new machinery in the feed house of Knutt in order to receive beans, something quite necessary on account of so many beans being raised in this vicinity.

Rev. A. C. Evans of Alcoa will preach for the Rev. A. J. Kammann at Shoshone, next Sunday. Rev. A. C. Evans will preach at Alcoa the same hour will date.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herge, entertained for dinner last Saturday night the Neale and Solberg families on account of Mrs. E. J. Collier's birthday. Not necessary to say that they were royally entertained and all about Mrs. Collier many detours of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kammann returned home last Saturday after a three-week visit with their son, Rev. A. J. Kammann.

Another wedding occurred in the Baptist parsonage Thursday, January 25. The happy couple were A. B. Wilson and Nora Goffman. Mr. and Mrs. Goffman Foster were the only witnesses. Mr. Caldwell officiated. Their new home will be the one on 7th St. and Mrs. Foster. We are glad to have them come to our community, and extend our best wishes for their continued happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kammann returned home last Saturday after a three-week visit with their son, Rev. A. J. Kammann.

AUNTIE: Indeed, you know, we must have that piano of yours moved today. Now that we have the new home, there is no reason for leaving it at your Aunt May's any longer.
BETHEL: Alright, I will see about it today. Who do you think I had better get to do it?
AUNTIE: The necessary thing is to be sure you get someone who will feel the responsibility of moving a valuable piece of furniture. I believe I could have the Lyda of the O. D. Murtaugh News
Carolyn Truitt has purchased Ford of Farm Loan. Present in the Murtaugh Mercantile store and later on at the same place February 1. Mr. Hattner will then depart with his family to their old home in Idaho where they have a farm.
Mr. Golden left for their two-day morning to visit a son before going to his old home in the east. That night he received a message of the death of her mother, aged 94, at her home in Missouri.
The W. W. club will meet on Wednesday with Mrs. Hattner, St. Louis, who will be the guest of the club.
The Commercial club is progressing. They entertained about 45 of their friends in a most enjoyable evening in the school building. The evening was spent with games and a beautiful feast. A spelling contest was had by the members. The women and the ladies won. The ladies were represented by the men and the ladies also. After the game the guests found the ladies with corresponding letters and took them to supper. After supper a bean carrying contest was given by the ladies, which was won by Mrs. Jesse Hendley, who received a large decorated cake. The gentlemen did their serving in a rollicking manner. R. D. Hart, Hattner, Frost, Weichelt and Mr. Hoover had charge of the kitchen and serving room which they had artistically decorated. The ladies assisted at the punch table. They received several new members. H. E. Williams, W. C. Hall, Lew Rose, and Tracy Howard, were new additions to the club. After the dining room was cleared H. E. Williams and Tracy Howard rendered some well chosen songs, and a grand finale. All retired at a late hour wishing the Commercial club success, and complimenting them as royal entertainers.
Prof. Davis and Miss Bancroft's pupils have a concert on the pupils have charged in each room. The laughing side to entertain the winning side, by giving a party to them. The grades in this are for a month's work. Last Wednesday night the Losers entertained the winners giving them a party and served ice cream and cake. The Losers declared they would be winners next time so needless to say they are all working.
Rev. Vincent of Naupha has been assisting Rev. Smirke with a series of meetings the past ten days. They will continue a part of this week. The services have been good and all who have not attended have missed something good.
Roy Hunt spent Sunday with home folks.
James Boyd is making the frame school house into a neat bungalow for renting.
Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Kendall were among the Twin Falls business visitors Saturday.
A surprise party was given in the amusement hall of the L. P. S. church Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Tolman's birthday. After an enjoyable evening of games, a "lunch" was served. All departed at a late hour wishing them many more birthdays.
The W. W. club will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. E. S. True. The band has organized and has employed an instructor from Twin Falls.
Mr. and Mrs. Francis Johnson spent last week in Twin Falls, where they were having his eyes treated. They are slightly better but Mr. Johnson thinks he will leave soon for Omaha to consult a specialist.
Arthur Boyd is moving his family into the Frankie Terrill house and George Jensen is moving his family into the True house, vacated by Mr. Boyd.
Jas Johnson was in Twin Falls Saturday night to hear Mrs. Schumann-Holke.
Miss Blanche Worrell spent the week in Twin Falls as guest of a cousin, Willye Worrell and family.

Convert Your Car Into a Tractor

The Auto-Pull Tractor Attachment, as applied on a Ford car, will convert your car into a tractor that will do the work of six or eight horses. Will do your plowing, harrowing, drilling, harvesting and haul your grain to market. Best attachment for stump-pulling, grinding, allage cutting, also filling, salting hay and all kinds of stationary work. The picture shows an auto-pull tractor attachment operated by a 10-year-old boy, plowing three acres of soil per day, with a gasoline consumption of three gallons per acre. Fifteen minutes to put on—three minutes to remove. No changes on car necessary except rear hub bolts. Does not hurt your machine in any way.

AUTO-PULL ATTACHMENT BIG SUCCESS.
The Auto-Pull Attachment is not an untried experiment. It has been a success from the start. Hundreds of machines have been sold in all parts of Montana, North Dakota and Idaho. We have yet to receive a single complaint, but hundreds have written us expressing their delight and satisfaction with the work the Auto-Pull will do.
We want you to try it out on your farm, for an Auto-Pull Attachment is a commonly means many more.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED IN MONTANA, NORTH DAKOTA AND IDAHO
We are now making contracts and reserving territory for agents for 1917.
Our proposition is a liberal one and a money maker. Remember.
One demonstration tells the Auto-Pull Attachment.

Bethlehem's Bid on Shells for the United States Navy

To the American People:

The Secretary of the Navy has awarded contracts amounting to over $3,000,000 to a British bidder for 14 and 16-inch projectiles for the Navy because of very much lower prices offered by the English bidders.

We know nothing of the basis upon which the British bids were made, but the public is entitled to know the facts upon which we ourselves bid for the work.

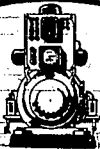

Two years ago we took contracts to make 4,200 14-inch shells at a price of $1,515,000. Up to now not a single shell has been accepted by the Government, although we have expended—in wages, materials, etc., on these orders $522,801, and we have not received a SINGLE DOLLAR on these contracts.

In addition, a literal interpretation of the contract might make us liable for penalties amounting to $200,000.

In the light of our experience, and knowing no other basis, we bid for 16-inch shells approximately the same price per pound as that which the Navy Department actually awarded a 14-inch shell contract one year ago.

the greatest surprise. Germany has now mobilized every ounce of effort for the expected decisive spring campaign. New troops are constantly going to the front, zeppelins are flying overhead and daily reports of new submarine successes mixed with reports that attacks by entente allies on all-aides have been successfully repulsed. The public is startled for further sacrifices and the feeling among the people is that Germany is a great powder magazine prelude for an explosion in a military sense that will shake the universe. The most important question here is how Americans and official correspondents can reach America. The present indications are that a large number will be stranded. It is understood that there are anywhere from 500 to 1000 Americans in Germany. The exact number has not been learned. Spain has formally accepted the request of the United States to look for American interests in Germany, though how long Spain will remain on terms of friendship with Germany is a problem, as a Roman wireless yesterday quoted the Spanish ambassador to Italy as saying that his country would follow the United States even to the point of declaring war. The British navy is reported to have sunk the ship Larkspur, which was carrying 1400 men, four being killed on the British ship.

BET MEN STAND

PAT ON RATT

Could make more on wheat. Before the vote was taken, C. S. Maxwell was chosen as secretary, by the vote of 10 to 1. He made a strong plea to all to join the Farmers' Bureau now being organized in the county, expressing the belief that the organization of this organization the week before had much to do with the more conciliatory attitude assumed by the company towards the farmers. He read an extract copied from a paper published in Utah, giving a synopsis of a report of a farmer there, that which it was asserted that two years ago an "appalling inequality" existed between the profits per ton realized by the farmers and the price they received for their product. The report gave the profits for the companies in certain fields at $3.18 per ton, while the farmers were said to have received but thirty-nine and a half cents a ton. The question of a sliding scale against a flat rate was further discussed, though no further action was taken. It was alleged that some years ago a test at the experimental station showed twenty per cent of sugar. D. Zollinger said that in 1911, had gone as high as 40 cents, and previously as high as twenty-one per cent. Nobody, he declared, was to be taken into the percentage last year.

After a further discussion of the merits of the farmers' bureau, the meeting adjourned and the secretary of the Twin Falls County Farmers' Bureau began taking names of new members.

The members of the beet growers organization assert that they now have 5000 acres behind them and, doing so, the company has the 3000 acres claimed, and also deny the assertion that the Amalgamated men were signing up men while a recent meeting of the association was going on, as has been asserted by friends of the company.

Although no action was taken, the sentiment of those who discussed the matter was all in favor of the plan for the beet growers to hire a chemist during the coming year. The event that an understanding with the company should be arrived at in regard to price.

"THE MATRIMONIAL"

IS DOUG'S NEW FILM

Douglas Fairbanks, screen star extraordinary, will be seen at the Regency theatre Thursday and Friday in his latest Triangle play, "The Matrimonial." It is asserted that the picture is the best of its kind, and that it has previous runs of jumping, swinging, climbing and bounding in this newest picture; also, it is announced, he adds to his past program by riding the "rode" of a railway coach and walking from a roof to a telegraph pole along the wires. At the pole he stops long enough to get married by wire, and obliging linemen making the necessary connections with a unit that is in jail and Doug's fiancée, who is locked in a room in a hotel.

BUHL CO. BUSTED

FIVE TIMES ANN-OUT

Bill McMurray of Cassia county received notice that on the following day he would move that the vote by which the bill was lost be reconsidered. The purpose in so doing was to permit of amendment by adding an enabling clause, putting the question up to the voters of the proposed new county Friday morning the motion was made, but was lost by want of a second.

Saturday morning, to the surprise of everybody in the house, and to the utter consternation of the Twin Falls delegation, the clerk read the title of another Buhl division bill, introduced by the same author. The bill was referred by the speaker to the proper committee.

Late Saturday afternoon, Sims secured the floor and moved to indefinitely postpone the new Buhl bill. This precipitated a good-natured clash, Sims objected, saying he did not care to have his bill postponed in ruthless fashion. McMurray, however, in a printed and given-out consideration by the house. Sims replied that considerable time and already been consumed by the house in dealing with the merits of the Buhl county bill, and that some drastic medicine was necessary to save the house from spending the rest of the session on Buhl county matters; pointing out further that Lucas was the author of an enabling act that would soon be up for consideration, and that McMurray's act, by Peckham, was soon to be before the house. In view of this, it seemed a waste of time to consider a special enabling act for application to one county. Democratic Floor Leader Anderson endorsed this view.

Johnston, Republican floor leader, defended the author of the bill, saying that such action was not only discursive, but was in violation of the rights of a member of the house. A division of the house was called for on the motion, and it was found to have carried by a vote of 25 to 22. A go-proposals reconsideration of the matter, the vote was followed by a motion to reconsider and an amendment to say that motion on the table. Such an action would have secured a two-thirds vote in order to take the bill from the table. Young interposed with a motion to adjourn, expecting thereby to prevent the tabling of the motion to reconsider. The motion to adjourn carried almost unanimously.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—All Americans have been advised to leave Germany at the earliest possible moment. Confirmation of the killing of Richard Wallace, a negro seaman, has been received by the state department. The headquarter of the Belgian relief commission will be transferred from the United States to Holland in the event of a declaration of war between America and Germany. Reports from Berlin say that Ambassador Gerard is awaiting further word from Washington before completing his plans for departure. In a conference yesterday with the representative of the German foreign office, he formally requested his passport. The German press with the exception of the Socialist Vorwarts is firmly supporting the government.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Spain will apparently be the first neutral nation to join the United States in severing relations with Germany. The Spanish answer to the German note announcing the resumption of submarine warfare was forwarded to Berlin today. French newspapers and the cabinet worked late last night in drafting the note.

Whether the killing of Richard Wallace, the negro seaman, will prove a casus belli is the all-absorbing topic of conversation here. While it is generally conceded that this will depend on the circumstances surrounding the case, it is regarded as a foregone conclusion here that America will eventually become a formal belligerent and a declaration of war is looked for momentarily.

The American consul where the Haystack survivors landed has telegraphed Ambassador Page a report of the sinking. The ambassador refused to make the contents of the report public, and the consul is expected to make a further investigation.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 6.—Brazil today announced that a formal protest would be made at once to Germany against its policy of unrestricted submarine warfare. This announcement was made following a cabinet meeting. It was declared that every effort would be made to avoid an actual conflict with Germany. The ministry of marine today suspended all Brazilian navigation.
