GROWTH OF IMPROVED ROADS

Mileage of Surfaced Highways Has Been Increasing at Rate of 15,000 Miles Yearly.

Rapid increase in total expenditures for roads and bridges, growth of building and maintenance activities under state supervision, and a sharp decrease in the proportion of contributions in the form of statute labor mark the development of highway work in the United States during the past 12 years.

The total length of public roads in the United States outside the limits of incorporated towns and cities was about 2,652,000 miles on January 1, 1916. Of this, about 277,000 miles, or 11.3 per cent, were improved with some form of surfacing.

Concrete Culvert.

partments supervised the maintenance of nearly 62,000 miles of main and trunk-line roads.

The increase in expenditures for road and bridge work in the United States has been from approximately $80,000,000 per year in 1904 to about $282,000,000 in 1916, an increase of more than 250 per cent.

An increase in the uses of better and more expensive types of roads also is shown by the recently compiled statistics. This development has been due, in large part, to the great increase in automobile traffic. It is estimated that there are now approximately two and one-half million automobiles in use of the roads of the country, or one car for every mile of road.

COUNTY IS BUYING TROUBLE

Road That Will Not Outlast its Cost is Liability—Finally Becomes a Total Loss.

When a county or township builds a road that will not outlast its cost, that county or township is buying trouble and paying cash for it. It borrows money to buy a liability—creates a debt to buy something that will be a continual expense until it finally becomes a total loss through being worn out.

LIVING ON NEGLECTED ROAD

No Man Can Be Cheerful and Neighborly, Nor Can He Be a Really Good Citizen.

The man who wrote the famous line "Let me live in a house by the side of the road," had in mind, of course, a good road. No man can be cheerful and neighborly, no man can be a really good citizen, if he lives in a house by the side of a neglected road.

REASON FOR GOOD HIGHWAYS

It is perfectly obvious that you have got to have an intricate and perfect network of roads throughout the length and breadth of this great continent before you have released the energies of America.

PROFITS FROM FALL CALVES

Farmers Find It Most Profitable to Have Cows Fresh in Autumn—Needs Less Feeding.

Because more milk would be produced in the year and calves would be raised cheaper, farmers find it most profitable to have their cows fresh in the fall months.

The cow gives a large flow of milk at the beginning of the period of lactation. In the spring the milk yield, which gradually falls off, is suddenly increased when the cow is turned on fresh pasture.

Calves born in the fall need mainly milk and eat little grain during the period of winter feeding. When spring comes they are ready to be turned on fresh pasture.

At the Ohio experiment station some calves born in the fall were raised for about $5 less than others born in the spring. Under average farm conditions this saving would be even greater, as no grain would be fed to fall-born calves on pasture, while those at the station were given grain because of pasture shortage.

"GENTLE" BULL DOES INJURY

Few "Don'ts" Given by Expert of Missouri College to Be Followed in Handling Bulls.

Following are a few "don'ts" which can be followed to advantage in handling a bull:

Don't overfeed him when young or keep him overweight when mature.

Don't use him too heavily before he is mature.

Don't abuse him. You can get better results by gentle but firm handling.

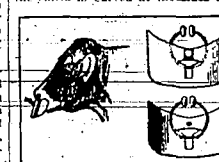

Don't keep him confined. Give him plenty of exercise.

Don't trust any bull at any time. It is the "gentle" bull that does the damage.

CALF WEANER IS EFFECTIVE

When a calf weaning this winter tries to get away from its mother, the sharp point pricks its nose, and the shield is curved at the sides and prevents side sucking. Since the device is suspended freely from the nostrils, grazing is not interfered with.

KEEP CORRECT MILK RECORDS

Note Production of Each Individual Cow and Save Heifer Calves From Large Producers.

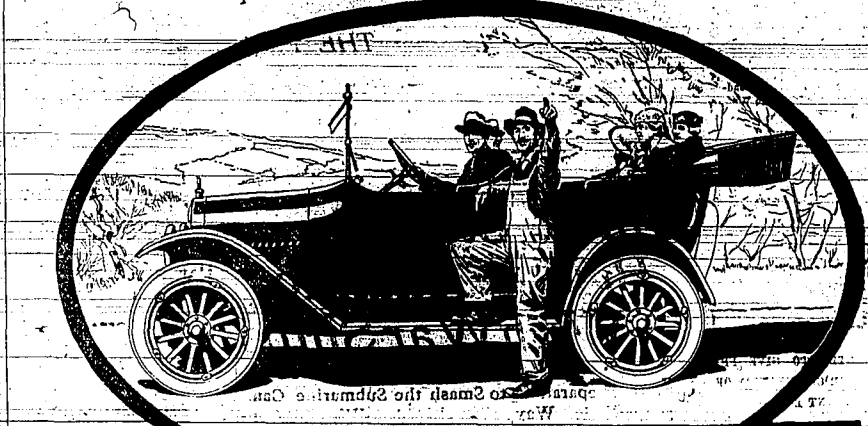

You cannot always buy good cows, but another way to get a good herd together is by keeping records of the production of each individual cow in your herd and saving the heifer calves from the larger producers. These calves being from a good registered sire and from selected cows, it will not take many years to build up a first-class herd.

CALVES GROWN ON SKIM MILK

Cost Is Less Than Where Whole Milk Is Fed—Animals Make Better Gains in the Feed Lot.

The cost of growing calves on skim milk was less than where whole milk was fed, or where the calves ran with their dams, and the skim-milk calves made better gains when put into the feed lot than the others did, according to some experimental work at the Kansas station.

It cost $2.26 per 100 pounds gain on the calves fed skim milk, $2.99 per 100 pounds gain on whole milk, and $4.41 per 100 pounds gain where the calves ran with their dams. When these same calves were put into the feed lot the skim-milk calves made the fastest gains and the whole-milk calves next.

Prices Increased May 1st Order Now and Order Quick

We have expected a price increase right along and only the immense quantity being produced will enable us to sell at the May 1st price—we, of course, have no assurances that further increases in price will not be necessary.

Everything that goes into the Maxwell is the best—this we do know and can prove. The steel is the finest that money can buy—the motor—no finer, no tougher, no steeper can be built according to our experience and the steeper the hills and the tougher the roads the more the Maxwell seems to like them.

Our April allotment will be delivered to us at the old price. That's agreed and that's fair to us and we are going to be fair to our customers.

But after May 1st we can't buy a Maxwell for a penny less than the new price and we shan't sell you one for a penny less than $665.

Come in—study this car—see if we are right or wrong about it.

When we say biggest value, we mean it and we can prove it by any known tests or standards. We put it up to you to judge after you consider these features.

Maxwell Style Same as Highest Priced Cars The Maxwell lines are pleasing to the eye. The design conforms exactly to the prevailing style, as illustrated by any number of high priced motor cars.

Comfort to the Point of Luxury The Maxwell car is roomy. It seats five passengers in comfort. There is plenty of leg room in front and rear. The long semi-elliptic Maxwell springs and the soft, extra-deep upholstery make riding easy.

150,000 Miles Not Unusual There are Maxwell cars in daily use which have already run over 150,000 miles. Think of it—more than 20 years of average driving! There are Maxwell cars in the mountains and in sections where there are rough roads or no roads, that have gone 50,000 miles—50,000 miles that would wreck and tear most cars to pieces.

The World's Endurance Champion This record was set by a five-passenger Maxwell stock touring car, by running for 23,022 miles—44 days and nights—WITHOUT

BRIDGE GRAFTING INJURED FRUIT TREE

Details of Bridge Grafting—A, the Trunk of a Tree Girdled by Mice; B, the Wound Cleaned and the Bark Along the Margins Trimmed Back to Healthy, Growing Tissue; C, a Sclon With Beveled Ends Ready for Insertion; D, Longitudinal Section of the Trunk With Sclon in Place, Showing Their Insertion Under the Bark of the Trunk (W); E, Sclon in Place Ready for Waxing.

Bridge grafting, the use of scions or small limbs, to connect the cambium above and below a large wound or girdled strip, may be practiced successfully on almost any kind of fruit tree, that can be propagated readily by grafting. It is used more often with the apple than any other fruit, but pear trees often are treated in this way, especially in certain sections. There seems to be no reason why the method should not also be successful on plums and cherries. Peaches, however, graft less readily and there may be some question as to the usefulness of the method in the case of this fruit.

Mechanical injuries which may be remedied are usually inflicted by animals, by burrowing insects or by insect pests, especially by weevils which gnaw such holes in the bark as to cause local injuries which may call for bridge grafting. The trunks of pear trees are not infrequently completely girdled and killed by pear-blight. Bridge grafting is done in time, however, may save the tree. The method also is useful when large areas of bark have been killed by sun scald or other troubles. Protection of trees against rabbits and mice, and disease is, of course, better than having to bridge graft to overcome damage.

Grafting in Spring. To be effective, bridge grafting should be done in the spring before growth starts, though sometimes it can be done after growth starts if dormant scions for the purpose can be secured.

Prepare the wound in the tree, by cutting away all dead tissue and thoroughly cleaning the injured parts. If possible, cleanse by washing with a solution of bicarbonate of mercury, copper sulphate, or some other antiseptic. The irregular edges of the bark above and below the wound should be cut back into a level surface. The healthy cambium is under the bark. For the grafting, select scions from wood of the previous season's growth, either branches which grew the preceding season or cuttings of one-year-old wood. The scions should be a little longer than the space which is to be bridged, so they will arch slightly over the central part of the wound.

Flatten the scions at each end of the same side of the scion with a long sloping cut so that the wedge-shaped ends thus formed will be relatively thin and permit their being thrust well under the bark without causing any swelling or injury to the cambium at the points of insertion. The plicings of the scions will be facilitated if the bark at the margins of the wound is slit for a short distance at the points where the scions are to be inserted.

Flaying Scions. In flaying the scions it is of the greatest importance that the cambium of the scions which is exposed in the sloping cuts at the ends be brought into intimate contact with the cambium that lies under the bark at the margins of the wounded area. The union of scion and tree can occur only where the cambium layers of the two come together. The scions may be secured in their proper position if need be by driving a small nail through each end into the trunk. This will aid in drawing the cambium of scion and trunk closely together.

The operation is completed by thoroughly covering the area occupied by the ends of the scions and the margins of the wound with grafting wax, strips of waxed cloth, or by some other means that adequately will prevent the cambium from drying out. Some operators cover the entire wound, scions and all, with wetted wax. Where the bridged portion is in a near level ground, many operators cover the entire area with waxed cloth.

When the wound is so large as to make ordinary bridge grafting impossible, another method of bridging may be used. Two-year-old trees are planted about the base of the injured trees and the top ends of the branches which first been cleaned as in the other method. As the tops of these trees are so large to manipulate readily in the manner described, they are used in the same manner as the scions, being drawn through the cambium and cut just above the wounded area in the bark of the tree to be treated. The tops of the small trees are shaped to correspond with those being together in such a manner as to be the substance of one into contact with that of the other. Small nails may be driven through the tops of the trees into the trunk to hold the parts firmly together. The wounds incident to joining the tops of the small trees to the trunk of the large one should be well covered with wax, to prevent drying out. Sometimes cord is tied around the trunk to aid in holding the tops of the young trees in proper position.

While bridge grafting is seldom used on shade or other ornamental trees, W. P. Fitch, the author of a most instructive bulletin on Bridge Grafting (No. 710), which has been recently issued by the United States department of agriculture, writes that this method of grafting would probably prove successful in overcoming certain types of insect injury. It is certainly well worth trying.

DISCOURAGE PSYLLA BY CLEAN CULTURE

Removal and Destruction of Rough Bark Leaves Insect Little Hiding Chance.

The pear psylla passes the winter as an adult or fly, and lays its eggs in early spring. The practice of clean culture and the removal and destruction of rough bark leaves the flies few opportunities to escape from spray applications that kill by contact. The best means of killing the flies is to spray during a period of rain weather, which occurs in early April. The most satisfactory mixture to use is three-quarters of a pint of tobacco extract (40 per cent nicotine) in 100 gallons water, to which are added from three to four pounds of dissolved soap. Eggs which are about to hatch and the newly emerged nymphs are easily destroyed by the lime-sulphur solution.

The dormant spray is made when the blossom clusters buds begin to separate at the tips. It is very effective against the eggs. For this purpose spray with one gallon concentrated lime-sulphur solution to eight gallons of water.

NEGLECTED ORCHARD IS FARM DRAWBACK

Furnishes Breeding Place for Insects and Other Pests—Unprofitable to Owner.

The neglected farm orchard is a drawback for the man in the neighborhood who cares for his trees. It is not only the home of insects and other pests but an unprofitable investment to its owner. First class fruit is never raised in such an orchard. The farm orchard, as a rule, is largely neglected. There are so many things to employ the farmer's time that he cannot see after the welfare of his many trees. One man says he will never put out another tree because he cannot take care of them but that he will buy his fruit from orchardists. He knows the harm done by neglected trees.

WINTER PRUNING IS GENERAL PRACTICE

Exercise Care in Making Cuts Close to Main Trunk—Moderate Work is Favored.

Fruit growers do not need to wait until spring to prune their orchards, says W. G. Dickey of the division of pomology at University of Minnesota. Results at University Farm show little or no difference of the wood when pruning has been done any time between November and May. It is best to cut close to the main trunk of branches, no stubs will be left 60 and decay, though the "retarding" of wounds with a white lead and oil paint or with copper grafting wax was less successful in the case of cold weather. Winter pruning is better than heavy pruning.

RELIEF-KNITTING MEANS OF MAKING WOMEN PROSPER

AMERICAN WOMEN IN LONDON STARTS NEW INDUSTRY WITH BLENDED RESULTS.

THOUSANDS KEPT FROM POOR HOUSE THROUGH IT.

Systematic Buying Enables Workers to Live on Small Salary—Product Has Wide Sale—Many Articles Made for Suffering Belgians. London, April 8.—After a two year dust with poverty, Mrs. C. E. Jenkins, a member of a pioneer Minneapolis family, has managed to skewer the lean spectre of want to the old reliable knitting needle. Her relief knitting factory which struggled into being as a result of her initiative has become self-supporting. Her first factory was located in the basement of her home in Minneapolis. It was a financial support, though random donations will not be discouraged. Guaranteed aid from the economic relief committee has been withdrawn.

To appreciate what Mrs. Jenkins has done it is necessary first to understand the situation. The poorest of London's buying power is an American woman who has created an institution solely to keep out of the poor house her fellow countrymen. The factory can hardly be called an infant industry.

Jenkins' factory is not a charitable institution. It is a business. It is a factory which produces goods for sale. It is a factory which produces goods for sale. It is a factory which produces goods for sale.

Mrs. Jenkins knew these women included many invalids and aged women who would possibly go to the workhouse if they had no other means of support.

Dear, good Mother:
You would smile if you were here today with the children. They have had a fine new interest since they had their photographs made; it is playing "take our pictures."

You know THE BISBEE STUDIO makes everything a sort of game for the little people and my bright-eyed Ted and Emily saw every detail. When Mr. Bisbee rolled two backgrounds in place for the corner effect you like so well in Ted's drummer-boy picture, he told the children he was going to help them build a play-house.

But Emily and Ted are not the only little folks who love to dwell upon their good times at Bisbee's. The other day when I went down to the studio to return Baby Betty's proofs, I met a woman who was ordering from proofs of her little daughter's pictures. And though the child was photographed on her second birthday and her parents did not get their mail for a week after, so the mother told me, when the proof envelope was opened the little girl looked carefully at every proof—then she said with the most puzzled expression "Where's Baby's mummy?"

And not long ago, Mrs. Bisbee says, when Mr. Bisbee was walking along the street, he heard a childish voice exclaim "Oh, mummy, look! There goes my picture-taker man!" Perhaps now you discover the secret of the natural little poses and the lovely expressions which you admire so much in the pictures we sent you of the children. And you are not surprised that little Emily cried when the last exposure was made and said she was not ready to go home. Or that she has asked nearly every day since when we are going again to "the big, pretty play-house" which is her own name for the Bisbee posing-room.

I forgot to pack my crochet hook when we were leaving for Idaho; would you mind sending it? It is in the top drawer of the sewing-table.

Love, lots of it, to Mother, from Ruth.

The Best Time to Build Poultry Houses

is spring or early summer. Cement floors and foundations must have a chance to dry. Otherwise, the house will be damp, and poultry does not do well in a damp house. The hot days of mid-summer will dry the house, making it warm and healthy for fall and winter use.

It is not necessary to build expensive houses, but they should be serviceable, fairly roomy, well lighted, well ventilated, and dry.

Maybe we can help some on the plans also. We are always glad to be of the utmost use to our friends.

COMPANY K MEMBER DIES ON THURSDAY

Death of Guardman is Attributed To Heart Failure—City Ticket to be Nominated Tonight

Herbert Leonard, a member of Company K, died Thursday morning at 6:20 o'clock, from a complication of Bright's disease and heart failure, says the Buhl Herald. He was ill but a few hours, and was out on the street the evening before, conversing with the boys—and apparently feeling as well as anyone. He was called at the Hotel Grand, and was attended by two persons, Dr. Monroe and Pat Hamilton, when he died. Mr. Leonard came to Buhl from Cozart, Oregon, two years ago, and has been a member of Company K since their call to the border. His mother and a brother, George Lewis, of Cozart, have been informed of his death by telegram, and they arrived Saturday. The funeral was held Sunday under the auspices of the Moose lodge and Company K members. The services were conducted by the company, and burial made in the Buhl cemetery. Rev. Van Patton conducted the services.

The matter for the nomination of a city ticket, consisting of a mayor and four aldermen, was postponed from last Tuesday evening until this morning at 8 o'clock. The meeting was held in the Buhl high school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Interest at 8 o'clock in the coming election at the time draws nearer. No new candidates have been mentioned since last week, though the process of entering upon fewer number is going on. Thomas Clinton is raising support for mayor, and E. R. Sherman is still in the race.

The regular business session of the student association was held Monday morning at the high school. As it was voted on at the last business meeting to have music at all school meetings, patriotic songs were sung by the students. A large American flag has been hung on the stage, and the reading and singing of a patriotic article on the situation in Belgium. Many of the students are contributing to the Belgian relief fund. This movement was started in the Freshman class.

Arthur Hughes, of Twin Falls, was in Buhl the latter part of last week auditing the books of Buhl Independent school district, having been employed by the board of education. Mr. Hughes has taken the figures he obtained concerning the amount of this fund the district has received from the county and checked up the records to learn if the district has always obtained its share. This is the first time the books have been audited during the past three years.

About three hundred women met in the Masonic hall Tuesday afternoon, following the patriotic parade and speaking on the Buhl school lawn, and formed a Red Cross society of Buhl, with a chartered membership of eight.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. W. W. Alford; vice president, Mrs. W. H. Harvey; and secretary-treasurer, Miss L. Chamberlain. The membership fee is $1.

A parade and patriotic demonstration was given in Buhl Tuesday afternoon, in which all the pupils and the teachers of the Buhl schools, the boy scouts, Company K and the citizens of the town took part. Seven hundred people were in the parade, and fully 1200 met on the Frank H. Buhl school lawn for the singing of patriotic songs and to listen to patriotic speeches.

The committee of ten which was appointed as a result of the patriotic meeting held in the Fox theatre last Tuesday evening, met in the Commercial club rooms Friday evening, and organized by electing a permanent chairman and a secretary. C. H. McCowan was made permanent chairman of the committee, and C. G. Manning secretary-treasurer.

A request was sent him by Secretary Nihart of the local commercial club in regard to aid in securing the same for the Congregational church. T. Smith wired Monday a note that he had taken the matter up with the labor commission and that he expected immediate steps in the matter.

HUMANE SOCIETY URGED FOR CITY BY A LECTURER

MISS LILA VAN KIRK SAYS THAT ANIMALS ARE RECEIVING CRUEL TREATMENT.

SAYS RANGE HORSES SUFFER AS MUCH AS OTHERS

Denounces That Use of the Nose Bag For Horses—Boys Should Not Be Allowed to Handle Horses Until They Develop Judgment.

"I should be glad to remain in this city for some time if I could interest the people in the cause of humane treatment to dumb animals," said Miss Lila Van Kirk, the noted, traveling lecturer on the humane society yesterday. Miss Van Kirk came here to deliver her famous talk on Italy in a public hall, but discovering that the people were interested in the war and the departure of Company D rather than in business, she did not deliver the talk publicly but did address the Business Woman's club at the F. M. Towne residence Monday night.

Continuing on the theme of ill treatment to dumb animals, Miss Towne declared that the people of the east failed to feed properly and often treated the animals brutally. "It has been said that range horses are tough and do not need gentle treatment," said Miss Van Kirk, "but when a horse is taken to drive and ride he is no longer a range horse. If you ride him to town and tie him up he will suffer just as much as any other horse unless he is fed properly."

"I see horses driven here having feet that are not properly cared for and a number of instances of cruelty or neglect. I believe that the city ought to have a humane officer. Dogs are mistreated and undressed as well as horses are and people frequently seem to have no idea that they are doing wrong when they heartlessly starve them or cause them to suffer. I am sure that there are many instances of this kind to be found in Idaho though cruelty is more in evidence in the case of the horse. Should the horse be kept by him without cover on a winter's day for five hours, but for one-half hour, the owner knows the penalty that will be inflicted, and most of them will not run the risk of what it will incur."

The bones of horses and cattle in the spring time bring out the mountain and by the roadside, and the story of the winter's agony and the cruel neglect of owners. "Does that go to prove that they get used to the cold and the people neglect those who own all that they have to their horses and cattle."

The crime of the east is overloading of the roads with a loss of eye-sight from being overdriven, spavined, and otherwise disabled, but the inhumanity of starving and freezing to death belongs to the horse of the west, where man, rather than pay for the winter's food, will turn this faithful creature out to die. In ancient days, that we call "hushion," the cruellest punishment which could be meted out to the criminal was death by slow starvation. In this day, an evil one, civilized, yet we offer this noblest of animals the cruelest death in return for the faithful service he has rendered.

If this is to be the cruel end, at least let a bullet find its way to the brain and close the life by sure and quick means to have no idea that they are doing wrong when they heartlessly starve them or cause them to suffer. I am sure that there are many instances of this kind to be found in Idaho though cruelty is more in evidence in the case of the horse. Should the horse be kept by him without cover on a winter's day for five hours, but for one-half hour, the owner knows the penalty that will be inflicted, and most of them will not run the risk of what it will incur."

Phar, Get Ther!—Meaning the TIMES classified advertisement, at one cent per word. One customer, on last Sunday morning's edition, called for a horse to plow and offered to sell an incubator and a iron lot before Monday noon he had his plow, and sold his incubator and was dickered on the town lot. Another, who offered a buggy for sale, received four proposals to buy during the first day after.

the nostrils allowed to be used. Still worse are burp sacks, covering both nose and reaching to the eyes, and with no air holes at all, out of which men, to save a few cents, are pleased to feed their hungry horses. Would he willing to cover his own head to the verge of suffocation in the same way and thus enjoy his meal? Why then should a horse be treated in this manner, who deserves as good a meal as himself? Watch the horse strive to free himself from the harness which is creating a scalding sore. Yet in this misery, the same for the horse as it would be for the man, he is driven and tortured.

It is not that the language of the horse is not understood. It is that so-called humane beings will not heed the mute appeal for justice and mercy. The hand that is loosed on the approach of the hand tells its own story of the fear of another blow that cannot be resisted and must be silently borne. The boy that is pared down to fit a shoe, the corn that is ignored and the feet that have become pavement sore, without care or attention of the owner, are a few of the sufferings daily inflicted upon an animal, giving its very life's blood for man, and this in many instances in rural communities where a humane society exists. All these matters are punishable by law.

Boys without judgment, because they are cheap, are given charge of the horse, far more intelligence than themselves, and the whip, used more often than the carrot, is a punishment inflicted for an effort to do the driver's bidding.

Miss Van Kirk said that she expected to leave in a few days but would remain longer could she interest the people in the formation of a humane society in this city. She said she would do the work as an incident to her occupation as a lecturer.

ETTINGER SHOWS WONDERFUL GOWNS IN "COUSIN LUCY."

Julian Ettinger's new play entitled "Cousin Lucy" is describing scenes of the winter ring circus of fun and fashion. Ettinger has again surrounded himself with a host of girls who appear in the most beautiful and elaborate costumes and elaborate frocks. The soul of the feminine promise to be stirred to a state of ecstasy by the descriptions of scenes which forms the second act of the piece. It is said that nothing could ever before been put on the stage. It is in this act that Ettinger himself acts as a model to show off gown after gown to no selective fashionable buyers. All the frocks, wraps and hats worn by Julian Ettinger in this and the other two acts of "Cousin Lucy" are furnished by the central dressmaking establishment in New York and represent the forthcoming modes in feminine apparel. New models are sent him each week and in this way this fashion-exhibiting star is able to give his public glimpses of the styles months in advance of their arrival in local establishments.

THE LIBERTINE IS STARELING PRODUCTION.

"The Libertine" featuring the work of dramatic star, John Mason and Alvin Hanlon, which shows at the 15th street today and tomorrow is reported as being the most sensational American drama ever enacted on the screen. This production tells a story of the modern American working girl, and of the pitfalls and temptations with which she is confronted. It touches with delicate fingers into the depths and teaches a severe lesson. "The Libertine" lays the blame for young women's indiscretions on the fatal lure of wealth and luxury. The private showing was recently given to the clergy of New York City. They were so impressed with the value of the production that they concluded their applause lasted for over five minutes.

The New Gossard Corsets for Spring

WHILE retaining all those qualities that have characterized and famed Gossard corsets in past seasons, they strike a new note in corsetry—a subtle change that is reflected in a more delicately beautiful outline and in an even more graceful flat back. Youth is the keynote in the style of these new Gossard models.

Without any undue pressure, you are assured absolute comfort and freedom of movement because the Gossard secret of scientific boning assures the most perfect support where it is needed; proper breathing is induced and the whole body thrown into the happy, poised, advocated by your physician.

This is the Thirty-second Announcement and Proclamation of Gossard Corset Styles for Spring and Summer, 1917

The new models vary in height of bust and length of skirt—as they should—to meet the individual requirements of the various figure types, but the general tendency is toward less corset, lower bust and shorter skirts with a smaller waistline indicated by skillful, designing rather than actually expressed.

Be fitted today to one of the many models designed for your figure type and you will find it up. An expert corsetier who understands your corset problems will deem it a pleasure to fit you without obligation.

- (Continued From Page 3)
- that the papers did not prosper as well as they should and were consequently unable to give their readers as good service as they would if they received the cooperation of the advertising public. This in turn reacted on the community.
- In the matter of good roads, Mr. Hackman said that the building of such highways would do much to reduce the isolation which removed the people from the city and vice versa. The result would be greater harmony and co-operation. He suggested relative to the matter of the government plant, that it being understood that either in this or an adjoining state the water generating the required power to reclaim the land. Until recently the east refused to assist the west in reclaiming the arid lands. This was because the east feared the agricultural competition of the west. Now, however, the danger of food-shortage and the need of the eastern states and they were ready to do all in their power to increase this supply. This immense tract of the Brucous should be at once reclaimed. Regarding the freight rate complaints arising from Charlotte Proctor, Mr. Hackman said that they would have more influence if prepared by a man representing the whole community than if presented by each individual shipper. By himself he declared that he knew that the railroad men were friendly toward this city and that they would co-operate to bring about satisfactory results. With reference to the Omaha delegation to be here April 21, he said that he believed they should be induced to remain over night, if possible and get in touch with farmers and everybody. He was instructed to take the matter up with reference to the secretaryship he urged that a live man be retained and induced to push things.
- Dr. John E. White in behalf of the farm bureau expressed pleasure at the co-operative spirit manifested and promised to help further in the interest of the whole community.
- W. M. Denton urged union of effort, especially in view of the national danger. He said that the secretary should be a community leader.
- Whit Hance spoke of efficiency in management. Arthur J. Peavley talked about pushing forward the interest of the community. S. B. Bolton urged hard work for the Twin Falls tract. H. Nordson Young made a fine broadcast.
- After voting to instruct the directors to get the right sort of secretary and not stand in excess of the meeting, which was largely attended, adjourned, with all feeling fine.
- The board of directors met tonight to take steps toward carrying out the plans approved by the meeting.
