HIGH COST THE CAUSE OF COMING LAUNDRY RAISE

SEATTLE MAN EXPLAINS NECESSITY FOR ACTION OF SOUTHERN IDAHO CONVENTION HERE

SAYS COST OF MATERIAL FROM 150 TO 600 PER CENT HIGHER

Twin Falls Plants Both Modern and Progressive - Praises City, Its Hotels, People, Public Buildings and Public Spirit

The laundrymen are practically the only people who have not raised prices materially as a result of the increased cost in labor and material, said E. L. Moore, of Seattle, who represents a machine manufacturing concern, yesterday.

Practically every laundry represented at the meeting here is equipped with the latest and best machinery and uses modern methods of producing laundry work.

SUES TO COMPEL SALE OF 81,000-GAL WATER RIGHTS

The Twin Falls Land & Water company, the old irrigation company, yesterday filed suit in the federal district court, to compel the Twin Falls Canal Co. to sell and the state land board to approve of sales of water rights for approximately 81,000 acres of land, but the present land board is subject to irrigation by jumping. The plaintiff claims that the canal board has no power to withhold the water rights where demanded. The plaintiff has an interest in the proposed sales of 4000 and 6000 acres is subject to irrigation by jumping.

WAR PROBLEMS DISCUSSED BY LEADING BUSINESS MEN

Denunciation of Those Who Store Great Quantities of Needed Supplies is Yelled in The Gathering by Speaker

TOLEDO, O., May 22.—Following a series of addresses on war problems as they affect grocers, nearly five thousand members of the Retail Grocers Association will attend a banquet in the Terminal auditorium tonight that will make heavy inroads on grocers' supplies of the city which is entertaining them in annual convention. The day's program includes addresses by many noted educators and leading business men of the country.

Confronted with a food crisis, five thousand retail grocers from all parts of the United States met here yesterday for their national four-day convention to discuss the question of feeding a nation.

Not since the Civil War have retailers faced such grave problems of feeding a nation at war, with a food shortage on one hand and steadily rising prices on the other, according to J. J. Ryan, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

GERMANS SURPRISED BY SUDDEN OFFENSE OF THEIR ENEMIES

Over 60,000 Prisoners Taken During Offensive and Tens of Millions Permanently on the Defensive By Great Movement

ALLIES WON MUCH IN GREAT DRIVE SUMMARY SHOWS

By PERRY ARNOLD (United Press.) NEW YORK, May 22.—Something like 145 square miles of French territory regained; more than 60,000 prisoners taken; from 76,000 to 250,000 killed and stoppage of all plans for a German-ventured offensive have been the results achieved in data in the great Franco-British offensive.

The figures are purely estimates. Neither the allies or Germany have yet issued accurate lists for this fighting. The front is so irregular that it is difficult to trace out actual movements.

The strategy of the famous Hindenberg retreat was to force the British and French to make their much-advertised spring offensive over ground chosen by the German commander and against positions defensively prepared in advance.

Hindenberg selected the last few days of winter as the time in which to make his retreat. He had planned to start for the spring offensive to begin and that the spring thaw would melt the roads and make it difficult for the allies to pursue.

The allies planned a spring offensive of their own on some other front, confident that the German army would be drawn away with a minimum of German losses.

This section of the Hindenberg line has been crumpled and is dubbed the Wotan line by the Germans, after the Norse Supreme God. The Wotan line is protected by the so-called Oppy line.

From Quant, the Hindenberg line runs through Broen, Tils, Verdun, St. Quentin, La Fere, Lens, Sissonne, Craonne, across the Aisne and down to a point north of Rheims.

ADMIRAL PEARY WILL MAKE CAMPAIGN FOR RED CROSS

(United Press)
TACOMA, Wash., May 22.—Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole and one of the most famous of the Arctic explorers, and a Captain in the British army will open a membership campaign for the Red Cross here tonight with a big meeting in the city.

RED CROSS NOTES.

Five Red Cross work is being done by rural clubs. "Ninety club," southeast of town has eliminated refreshments and hostess and all guests pay 5-cents each every time they meet, the refreshment sum both to reach the Red Cross.

The Kimberly auxiliary divided its rural population into twelve sections and one section in a district and one square brought in forty members in one afternoon—That is help!

The Christian Scientists America have raised up to this something like $300,000 for Red Cross work and the end is not yet.

RED CROSS PROGRESS.

Two little groups of people have kindly put themselves at the disposal of the Red Cross for most needed work.—One group—composed of Mrs. McRobert, Mr. and Mrs. Munson, Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Simson went one evening last week to Hollister. Mrs. McRobert with her thorough knowledge of the organization and methods of the Red Cross gave such explanation as would answer the many questions in the minds of those not well versed in the work, having the way toward organization and subsequent work.

Following this Mrs. Munson went to talk an organization from a business man's standpoint, followed by Mrs. Irwin on subjects akin; Mrs. Simson finished with statistics and Mr. Hooper's idea of the Food Conservation of this country, and how the Red Cross worked with that, and what Mr. Hooper expected of the Red Cross at this time. The result was an organization with a membership of 23 to start, and definite arrangements for a committee to spend a day at the sewing room here getting onto their methods so they may see intelligently by themselves for the cause.

The other group, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. White chose Sunday afternoon for their visit to Rogerson.—Mrs. White presented the Red Cross and its ideals and the plans of the agent for conservation who is soon to reach the town to talk to our women, while Dr. White talked to the men along Twin Bureau lines. They met with the utmost interest and sympathy from both men and women. An auxiliary to our Red Cross chapter is being organized at that meeting of something like 25 members, and will report for work.

These are excellent services, and we welcome it, and say "let the good work go on."

FREIGHTING TO JARBIDGE.

(By Miss Tolsted, Jarbidge Creek.)
They are climbing the hills to Jarbidge—
I'm watching them as they go,
Patiently, steadily and slow.
Those horses are trained for this labor,
And the well worn road they know.
As they trudge on over the dangers,
From the sliding ice and snow.
And their drivers are called, the freighters,
I call them brave young men,
With a heart as kind as a woman's,
And a helping hand to lend.
Their faces are flushed by the rough winds
Their hands are freezing, I know,
As they haul the food into Jarbidge,
Through the mud and ice and snow.
Oh times, while crossing the mud-flat hills,
They stop for an hour or two,
Their wagons have sunk in the quagmire
And they have to shovel them through,
With the snowstorm beating around them,
With the darkness of night overspread,
When unaided an lift out the wagon,
Then load and again put ahead.
Oh! they are wet, tired and hungry,
And ill the need is lifting and keen,
And their eyes are anxiously peering
For the lights of the Wayside Inn.
There they know that supper is waiting,
A fire burns hot on the hearth
And they'll meet a hearty good welcome
In that little oasis of earth.
They will rest and dinner at Hot Springs
E'er they climb up Freighters' Defeat,
Their eyes looking out for the boulders,
That come tumbling down at their feet.
Then they creep along on the ledges
With a yawning chasm below.
A slip—and the team and the freighter
In the jaws of death would go.
Thus they haul the food into Jarbidge,
And the people anxiously wait,
Gazing down the trail for the coming
Of the slow-moving four-horse freighter.
They are glad to welcome the freighters,
And hasten to lift off the load,
While the ask off the trouble and danger,
That they met along the road.
We think, I can see in the future,
The laying of the iron rail,
And hear the screeching locomotive,
As it climbs up the freighter's trail,
And the slow-moving freighter a day,
By the gold from the Long Hike mine.

And the woes of the freighters forgotten with the changing sands of time.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

THE RED CROSS DEPARTMENT

MRS. JOHN E. WHITE'S TALK SATURDAY DEEPLY IMPRESSIVE

The board of the Federal Rural Club met in the high school auditorium Saturday afternoon, May 19, for conference on many things—among their conservation, Mrs. J. E. White presented the subject convincingly, saying in part as follows:

"That the subject of conservation was important, because sixty million men had been taken from the world's work in other lands; that we had contributed so largely in consequences that food supply in our land of plenty was only sufficient till next September, and it is for us largely to supply the world—300,000,000 bushels of wheat for the world cry?"

"This means organization by every one—what is your part, what mine? What for ourselves? What collectively for others? It all depends on how well we play our part."

She announced the conference with Mrs. Kelley as the proponent of the subject to Mrs. White, asking her to become chairman of conservation in this section.

"The government is to be regarded as our 'big brother' in this matter, for 'agent' even as men have their county agent. This appointed woman is to go about among the towns of our tract, reaching—conservation of food, conservation of food, and the women must organize and get ready for this experience. While we feel ourselves absolutely 'recommending' in reality we are probably the most extravagant country in the world, because we have had excessive production—the government quotes $70,000,000 of food stuffs wasted annually. Do we know how to economize as Europe does? Let this trained woman convince us. We must learn conservation of food; caring for it properly; using it intelligently; cooking what the family needs, no more—none to throw away—the chickens—they must have cheaper today than we. We must not hoard, thus taking foods out of circulation; but we must raise and eat every thing possible; must learn to successfully put down eggs to preserve from meat. Each family must raise enough for itself until the next crop comes. Now say some of us have energy enough with which to buy the needed maybe not—it may not be here to buy! The slogan is for every woman to provide for her own family; to eat and put down to dry; for our agent will touch us to dry many things and then we will not need cans. Van Camp will no longer can pork and beans, for both will keep without.

We may come to rations in this broad land of ours; but if we do so we will be eating the same as our brothers and sisters starving that we will not care for that trial.

We must be organized for this; wake up those who are asleep—if we can each provide for himself then we can send our excess away—to those who are starving now.—Our agent will teach us substitution. Can we put on our tables now a meatless meal and keep up the family strength? Let every club have its consultation committee to meet and go into these things with this new agent.

There are different ways of approach to these things—the laboratory demonstration and the kitchen demonstration.

Some of us can watch laboratory methods where every appointment is perfect and every home and embody the ideas; some of us feel that if we get the instruction and five or six women in one of our own kitchens we can do better work. Let us employ both methods. We must learn not to skimp in butter and cream; thus making an impalpable food which will not be eaten and so into these things with this new agent.

This is the only individual thing we can do—the only thing women can do better work. Let us employ both methods. We must learn not to skimp in butter and cream; thus making an impalpable food which will not be eaten and so into these things with this new agent. This is the only individual thing we can do—the only thing women can do better work. Let us employ both methods. We must learn not to skimp in butter and cream; thus making an impalpable food which will not be eaten and so into these things with this new agent.

The following is a complete copy of the poster that will be put up. Questions will be asked for you to answer in the order in which they appear.

It must have been no small disappointment to Theodore Roosevelt to have his cherished plan of going to France at the head of the first American military contingent suddenly and completely frustrated.

It has taken over forty days after our declaration of war to pass a law through congress even providing a method for raising an army.

It has been charged that Germany wants the center but it now appears that the only line-up upon the "breakdown of Europe" is a wide strip controlling the Balkans and stretching thence over Turkey, Bulgaria and Austro-Hungary to the North Sea.

The papers are of late filled with instructions with regard to economical marketing, cooking and eating.

Ahead the great event of June 5, when ten million of American young men will register for military service.

Spain has suspended diplomatic relations with Germany pending reply to complaint regarding attack on the Spanish steamer Patriote.

Someone wonders whether their presumed acquaintance with Greek and Latin roots will help our college boys in their present agricultural efforts.

Some people are wondering if any part of the duty of the new food control commission will be to feed the moneyless hungry.

A Russian paper says the trouble with the disaffected workmen is that under the new regime they are only allowed six holidays a week.

All records were broken last Saturday when the senate passed a war budget appropriation carrying over three billions of dollars.

The government's aviation plans for the first year include fifty-five hundred airplanes and six thousand airmen.

GOVERNOR LISTER SAYS WAR WILL BE LONG

Changed Mind After Long East—Says Washington People Were Against Draft But It Is Fair.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 22.—Here in Governor Lister's view to the people of the northwest:

"When I left for the east I held the conviction that we were entering upon a few months' war. I now feel that the authorities will be making a grave mistake if their preparations are not based on the probability of a long, long war. Our chief fault as a people is that we have the idea of victory constantly in our minds. We never speak of defeat. Right now, too many people see victory and see what defeat would mean to the country."

"The present intention of the United States government is to send the troops to France and fight a pitched battle."

"Remember we are facing what is still the strongest military organization ever known in the history of the world. The end will not be in sight. Our allies need our help. With troops in France, it is up to those at home to build up the food supply, as the front in the field will be of the greatest importance as the man in the trenches. I can say that the fear of over-production which looms so large to many people here is not a matter to be considered. There will be no surplus, no matter how much we raise."

"We face as a nation the most serious work in our history. We believe that a majority of the state of Washington were opposed to the conscription idea. But conscription will remain in force. Who else will go to the front can best be spared at home."

"We must all get together and stand by our nation and our state and every man must do his part in the effort to win this war, regardless of personal sacrifice."

OHIO WOMEN WILL BE ALLOWED TO VOTE

Fees of Suffrage Failed to Get Enough Signers To The Referendum Petitions.

(United Press) COLUMBUS, O., May 22.—One million Ohio women today were granted the right to vote by the state's elected officers in the fall of 1916.

Although the act, signed by Governor Cox February 21, was subject to a referendum, the state legislature failed to secure the needed number of signatures to prevent it becoming a law.

The bill was introduced last winter by Representative James A. Reynolds, Cleveland. It passed the lower house, 72 to 50, and the senate approved it 17 to 11.

Ohio is the fourth state in the Union to grant women partial suffrage, following the lead in Illinois, North Dakota and Indiana.

Eleven other states have full suffrage.

(United Press) WASHINGTON, May 22.—The house ways and means committee today passed a bill to increase newspaper rates, doubling the rate for the first and second zones and increasing them still more for other zones.

The senate passed a bill authorizing the interstate commerce commission to regulate rates during the war.

In a report submitted by Admiral East, chief of the navy department today in connection with the accident yesterday on the Mongolia, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Edith Aronson and her husband, two red cross nurses, it was revealed that shells made during the Spanish war had been given armed American ships to fight in the Philippines.

The preliminary report of the naval board indicated that the breech block was secure. One theory is that a part of the shell carried by the brass cap split at firing; so far as can be discovered the ammunition was faultless.

Changed Mind After Long East—Says Washington People Were Against Draft But It Is Fair.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 22.—Here in Governor Lister's view to the people of the northwest:

"When I left for the east I held the conviction that we were entering upon a few months' war. I now feel that the authorities will be making a grave mistake if their preparations are not based on the probability of a long, long war. Our chief fault as a people is that we have the idea of victory constantly in our minds. We never speak of defeat. Right now, too many people see victory and see what defeat would mean to the country."

MRS. IRWIN'S SPEECH QUOTED IN U. S. SENATE

Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts Refers to It in Speaking of American Spirit.

The speech of Mrs. T. H. Irwin, delivered at the first Red Cross rally in this city has echoed far and wide today as an employee of the Committee of Public Information, reports that Senator John W. Weeks in the United States senate April 23, 1917:

"I have no patience with the sentiment which parades that song, 'I Don't Want to Be a Soldier. I do not believe it represents American womanhood. I do not believe it represents anything but a skulking fear to avoid responsibility."

"The sentiment expressed in an incident which took place in the town of Twin Falls, Idaho, recently. I happened to see an account of it in the New York Times. I do not propose to read it out; but Mrs. Irwin, who had listened to some pacifist argument made a speech which I think should be given general circulation."

"I have lived in peace and quiet under the Stars and Stripes for almost 60 years. I have helped to build a home and rear my children in this great land of splendid churches, institutions, and schools, and in all this time no sacrifice for my country was ever asked of me until now. Can I do less than love my boy?"

"Let us send our boys with cheers and a few tears at possible. When one of our boys stands on lonely guard-duty at night, thinking of home, let us be glad to have him say, as he remembers how mother cheered his going:

"Gosh! Wain't mother a great old sport? Didn't she buck up fine?"

"That is the kind of sentiment I believe that moves the American mother and what they want to demonstrate to 'these boys' a 'real-veteran' as few as 15-year-old boys. It is the U. S. Ranger after the war captured the Drake and had taken her crew an 11-year-old boy. His name was John Downes. A visitor to the ship, seeing this small boy, said to him, 'My boy, why did your mother let you go?' His reply was, 'My mother did not let me go; she sent me.' That is the kind of spirit that is the opposite of 'I don't raise my boy to be a soldier.' That is the kind of spirit that I believe is in the breast of the American woman."

EASTER SUNDAY BROUGHT DEATH AND DESTRUCTION TO REIMS

By Henry Wood.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
REIMS, Holy Week—On Easter Sunday, 1917, Reims, as an inhabited city ceased to exist.

While the remainder of the Christian world celebrated the resurrection of Jesus Christ and the resurrection of spring with all its rebirth of new life, the last 17,000 inhabitants of Reims, under the deadly deluge of thousands of German shells, gave up at least their two and a half year struggle to retain in their city the breath of life.

For Reims Easter spelled not Resurrection but death.

The final evacuation of the civil population of Reims marks the end of one of the most obstinate and heroic efforts in history of a people to cling to its homes.

Before the German declaration of war in August, 1914, Reims was a proud, prosperous and happy city of 117,000 population.

When the first shells of German planes, from France, the inhabitants of Reims, unlike those of scores of other cities and towns, refused to flee. Even a German shell struck the city. Marna threw back the angry revengeful German hordes onto the city, the population still clung fast.

But finally the bombardment of the city and the incandescence of the cathedral, filled with German wounded, the inhabitants began to yield.

The Germans refused to give the lives even of their own wounded what hopes might the civil population have of protection?

In the winter months and even years that followed in which Reims was intermittently shelled by the Germans some 100,000 of the population finally left.

But the remaining 17,000 or 18,000 refused to allow their city to become extinct.

They organized an underground cell life of schools, municipal, social and business activities. Occasionally, when obliged to come out to the light, some one of the remaining 17,000 German shells, but as a whole they refused to leave.

When in the middle of March the local authorities put into operation the system of sugar cards it was found that Reims still contained over 17,000 people.

With the German retreat which gave freedom from the danger of possible extending as far as Reims, the faithful 17,000 rejoiced in the idea that Easter upon its arrival might really mean resurrection for them and for their city.

But this time they reckoned without the Germans.

The latter apparently had chosen in advance Holy Week for the final destruction of the city. On Palm Sunday, the anniversary of Christ's entrance into Jerusalem for his Martyrdom, the Germans began their final martyrdom of the faithful city. Nearly a thousand shells were thrown into the city and they and the local authorities immediately suggested the final evacuation of the city.

But the faithful 17,000 merely shrugged their shoulders and said: "Oh, but we've seen much worse than that back in 1914."

On Holy Monday another thousand shells were thrown into the city. The faithful 17,000 began to look a little dubious, but cheered each other up heroically.

"Just a little more patience," they said, "and France will win yet."

But on Holy Tuesday another thousand shells desecrated the city. The local authorities and some bills printed begging the faithful 17,000 to flee, but the bombardment was so terrific that it was impossible to post the bills.

On Holy Wednesday, there came still another thousand shells. The two newspapers of Reims, Le Courrier de la Champagne and L'Echo de l'Est, which had never missed a single issue even under the severest bombardment, ceased their publication.

Inviting their readers at last to abandon their homes as they were abandoning their newspaper plants.

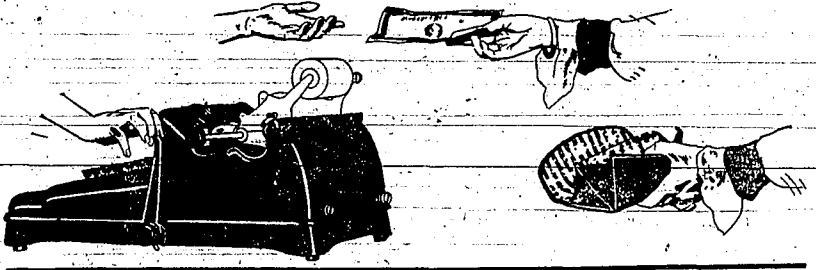

On Holy Thursday another thousand shells hurled into Reims, but the faithful 17,000 still clung on. The authorities prepared more posters, not inviting their readers to abandon the population to flee immediately. The bombardment again prevented the posting of the bills and the 17,000 still refused to leave.

Then on Good Friday, the Germans, almost as though aware of the obstinacy of the 17,000, took the matter into their own hands. Not only was the number of shells increased but their size as well—and the faithful 17,000 clung to their city. The famous German 210-millimeter shell as intimately as it had long known the smaller calibers. The population could no longer say "Who's your daddy in 1914," but still it clung on. Reims was their city, their city of their homes.

But the German fury only increased. On Holy Saturday, to the preceding number of shells along with the 210's was added the shells filled with naphthalene gas. It was then and then only that the faithful 17,000 admitted their defeat.

They still hung out till Easter morning—the morning that had seen the resurrection of Christ and that ever since has been symbolical of new life and new birth—and then getting together their few possessions, went under a new deluge of shells they went out from their city and Reims remained a city without life and without breath.

When the Cash Crosses the Counter

"That's the instant that spells profit or loss," says a successful small retailer.

"It's too late to begin protecting your profits when the money's in the cash drawer," says W. H. Dinger, of Martins Ferry, Ohio.

"You've got to get every cent of that cash before you count it, believe me—and as I do a strictly cash business, I've learned by experience that errors in adding cash items have helped to put many a small business man on the rocks."

"Here it is—'hurry-up' time in the morning—clerks busy—store full of customers. The cash register bell rings constantly and coins drop into the drawer in quick succession."

"But has the correct amount of money been taken in for the goods that have passed over the counter? That's the question."

"Did the clerk add up those items correctly, or did she miss the total by ten cents one way or the other?"

"My experience is that you can't depend on human brain additions. I used to have lots of little mistakes made in adding cash sales, and it cost me a good deal in a year."

"When the mistake was in my favor the customer usually detected it—when it was the other way it nearly always 'got by.'"

One-Sure-Remedy
"I've got a sure cure for figure losses. It's a little Burroughs Figuring Machine, and I use it right on the counter for adding all cash transactions."
"It gives me an accurate check on the cash when it crosses the counter—it is my assurance that I am getting all the pennies that I should."
"I look on my Burroughs Machine as the 'link' between the customer's purse and the till."

Saved $2.00 in Ten Minutes
"The Burroughs helps in lots of other ways. I hadn't owned it more than ten minutes before I caught errors in invoices amounting to $2.00."

"You see, it's my able assistant in buying, selling and bookkeeping and pays its own salary plus a profit."

DR. ELMER I. GOSHEM AN ORATOR OF NOTE

Some Interesting Side-Lights on the Personality of Dr. Goshem, the High School Commencement Orator.

Dr. Elmer I. Goshem, who is to deliver the address at the high school commencement in the Laying next Thursday evening, is said to be one of the foremost public orators of the country. In connection with this statement from our townsmen, Col. W. S. Campbell, the TIMES is given some interesting personal facts with regard to Dr. Goshem, who was a class mate of a son of Col. Campbell's in Northwestern University, of which both were alumni, class of '94.

One of the red-letter events in the history of that university by the way, is the defeat of Michigan State University in the annual competition debate between the two institutions after having lost the three previous contests in succession. The question was, "Resolved that the annexation of Hawaii would be beneficial to the United States." The affirmative was maintained by the Michigan trio and the negative by Elmer I. Goshem, Herbert S. Hudley and Charles B. Campbell, carrying the colors and the honor of Northwestern. Much was made of the contest at the time. Michigan put forward her very strongest men; the judges were selected from different states, from none of which were from Illinois or Michigan; the debate was held at the Michigan University seat, Governor Hildet of that state presiding; a great audience was present, including large representation of both student bodies.

BECCO

Taxation Without Justification.

Out of the travail of taxation without representation this nation was born; therefore today there exists a congenial abhorrence for undue taxation, even though it be well justified. The protest now expressing itself through the press is the evidence of this inherent antipathy. Every citizen of these United States, by birth of adoption, would gladly give their lives for their country; but in spite of their patriotic impulses, when their respective causes then to pause and think seriously as to whether or not they can pay such an exorbitant tax without jeopardizing the support of the younger members of their household during a long siege of war.

Bills are now being drafted that the family with the small income must necessarily be limited, and if the war is to continue for eight or ten years, and at the very beginning of warfare in this country food and taxes are to be placed beyond the reach of the business men of small capital, what will be the condition of its close?

Our educational institutions on this coast are most all in their infancy, not yet able, even during affluence, to continue to stand alone. In this field economy, that so plainly now manifests itself, the majority of the students will not be able to return to college this fall, thereby shortening the labor of years, and it may take a generation, or the close of the war, to pioneer the new fields of work to its present highlands state.

Enthusiasm often makes riot on reason; generosity begets improvidence; extravagance begets waste; the highest and most-impulsive, malpractice efforts; therefore what wonder is it that our senate is slow in acting on the many proposals of the day? We, who are new in politics are wondering if our senators will be able to voice the sentiment of the people they represent. The people are protesting tax, and the great demands the war is making on our land seem to justify the imposition, yet it seems that discrimination must be made otherwise the rain that would follow would not swell our revenues to any great extent, but impose a load of taxes on the citizens to such that they will be put out of business, their creditors do-ruined and their children beggared. To take three-fourths of a man's income who earns $100,000 a year, and only take a tenth of the man's who makes a thousand, reads like anarchy, and certainly makes no sense, any policy ever entertained in our government. It may seem justly proportioned, but does it appear to one as fair and equitable?

Naturally our sex has not been in pollutes long enough to fully understand all of its intricacies. But this we do know, that the more important measures are submitted to us on which to vote, and it is difficult to understand why in vital moments of taxation it is not submitted to all the people, even if a special election should be held, and let the returns speak for the state. It is a matter of honor; whatever they do at Washington, D. C., along these lines, whether to the finite mind it seems just and equitable or adversely, let us hope we will all accept it as inevitable, and stop to quarrel about it, but humorously press forward towards the goal, which is a united peace, worldwide.

Witness Couldn't Climb.
The unique situation was presented in San Diego, Cal., of an adjournment of court to accommodate a witness who was too bulky and lame to climb the court-house stairway.

The change to a ground floor courtroom on the opposite side of the street was agreed to by the attorneys interested and the testimony of the bulky witness was taken.

NEW HIGHWAY BILL IS TO BE INTRODUCED SOON.

(United Press)
PORTLAND, Ore., May 22.—A bill will soon be introduced in congress providing for the building of a great highway which will parallel every section of the national boundary, excepting the one separating the United States from Canada, according to a telegram received here today from Sumner, Ill., who recently went to Washington to call for federal aid for the Pacific Highway. The construction of the marginal highway is urged as a measure of national defense.

So far Congress has not voted to grant pensions to those who are drafted, but fell to pass on account of physical defects.

ordered to survey the line along the west side of the city at a point where Frank L. Bull offered certain alleged lands for a park; the qualifying word "alleged" being used advisedly, as the present zoning of these lands is not "independent" but left at that point on which to establish a park or anything else more than the proverbially pupils are supposed to be familiar. If a resurvey should show the presence of any tangible amount of terra firma it is assumed that the city will shortly have a new park ground.

A proposition to open a street to the Moorman second addition was referred.

Following the action relative to the Kelsey contract, the council voted to send samples to the state chemist from the C. H. Boulman well two miles south of the city. Chairman Channell said that he would be in Salt Lake shortly and would discuss the question with the engineer who put in the waterworks at Everett, Washington, and Reno, Nevada; and would take up the question of pumps with manufacturing houses.

The council referred the matter of the hole in the ground near the M. M. Murlough place to the street committee and permitted the Home Lumber company to proceed with its improvements under the supervision of the city engineer.

On re-commissioning of 17th Street Fred A. Carlson, the city ordered 1000 feet of hose at once.

Thomas Robertson proposed to insure the Shoshone bridge but no action was taken on the proposition.

A proposition of a Mr. Rudolph to water certain lots in the Lincoln Park addition was referred.

COFFEE A FOOD IN REAL SENSE OF WORD

Experts Tell of Uses Put to Plant by Savages of Africa Who Subsist on It For Days.

By F. Milton Frankel, Ph. D. (The Tea and Coffee Trade Journal)

The protein content of coffee, so far as civilized man is concerned, is an absolute waste. The only constituent of coffee that are of value as the civilized world uses coffee, are those constituents that are water soluble, and can be extracted readily with hot water. When coffee is properly made, as when made by French drip method or percolated, the ground coffee only comes in contact with the hot water for a few seconds, and the protein, which is not only insoluble but coagulates on heating, remains in the un-used portion of the coffee; the grounds, coffee contains a large percent of protein—14 per cent. Comparing this figure with 21 per cent of protein in peas, 23 per cent in lentils, beans 25 per cent, peanuts 24 per cent, wheat flour about 11 per cent, and white bread less than 9 per cent, we can see just how much of this valuable foodstuff is lost in coffee.

Though civilized man does not use this protein content of coffee, in certain regions of Africa it has been put to use in a very ingenious and effective manner. The Galla, a wandering tribe of Africa, and like most of the wandering tribe of savages, a warlike one, find it necessary to carry food on their long marches in a very concentrated form, as space and weight must be considered. Before starting on one of their marauding excursions, each warrior equips himself with a number of food balls. Each ball is about the size of a billiard ball and consists of pulverized coffee, held in shape with fat. One ball constitutes a day's ration, which, from the point of view of the civilized man, would probably prove very unpalatable, but from the purely physiological standpoint is not only a concentrated and efficient food, but has the additional advantage that it contains a valuable stimulant in its caffeine content, which keeps the warrior on to maximum effort, and so we see that the savage in the jungle of Africa has solved two problems, the utilization of coffee protein and the production of a concentrated food.

WAR TURNS THOUGHTS TO RELIGIOUS LIFE

Presbyterian Board of Education Sees Spiritual Awakening Resulting From Strife.

(United Press)
DALLAS, Tex., May 22.—The world war has prepared the youth of America for religious thoughts and instruction the Board of Education declared in its report to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church today.

"Traditions and conventions no longer satisfy. They are perhaps only beginnings of the fierce desire, of which we hear across the sea, to strip away the husks and get at the kernel of reality; but at least students are more accessible to earnest messages of the truth and to the burning challenge to service."

"They know that with tasks confronting them—a new order is being instituted—'Titanic spectacles of history electrify them.'"

The board of education, which was formed in 1819 in Philadelphia, recommended that its centenary be celebrated next year in that city. The general assembly will also be asked to act on a recommendation that the education and college boards be consolidated.

The report said 845 ministerial candidates were added under the past year with a total output of $31,202 and that the total business of the board was $214,802. The educators reported progress in their fight to have Bible instruction introduced as a part of the course in public schools.

This war has touched practically all "liberal" minds and has made the work more costly but has not disturbed its progress, the board of foreign missions reported to the general assembly meeting here yesterday.

Missionaries at work during the past year numbered 1,353, with 6,242 native helpers, the report said. In 2,063 schools 74,429 pupils received training ranging from kindergarten to college grades.

Receipts for the year were $2,526,369 which was more than the original appropriation called for. Increased cost due to the war, made an additional call for more than a quarter of a million necessary.

HARRY BENOIT BUSY IN HIS POSITION

Issuing of Press Notices Proves Absorbing—Work on Censorship Anticipated as Interesting.

In a letter to the manager of the TIMES dated May 14, after referring to other matters, Harry J. Benoit, formerly of this city and now secretary to L. Ames Brown, director of division of publicity, of the committee of public information, of which George Creel is the head, says:

"I am now connected with the Committee on Public Information in the capacity of secretary to Mr. L. Ames Brown, who is director of the publicity division and also assistant to Mr. Geo. Creel, chairman of the committee, which is also composed of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Navy. This committee as yet has not been authorized to perform the duties of censoring the war news, and will not be until congress has passed the pending censorship bill, which in all probability will be in the near future. Up on the passage of this bill, there is but little doubt that this branch of the service will be one of the largest in the government. Up to the present time the tasks of the committee have been confined to government publicity work, such as issuing press notices of all news emanating from the several departments of the government. The work is both very interesting and important and which work of censoring is and it will be very much more so. At present there are employed by this office some of the most eminent newspaper men and magazine writers in the country, and the staff will later be increased ten fold."

PROBLEMS AFTER WAR ARE CONSIDERED

Western Efficiency—Society—Conference Meets—Many Experts Are In Attendance.

(United Press)

CHICAGO, May 22.—The human factor in industrial preparedness was the keynote of the national conference, headed by the Western Efficiency Society which convened in Chicago today.

The purpose of the conference is to deal with the war with Germany and with industrial preparedness following the termination of the struggle. The keynote of the industrial preparedness program is being discussed by efficiency experts, educators, representatives of labor and businessmen from various parts of the country.

At tomorrow's session "labor and

Most people have a piece of furniture, a farm implement, or something else which they have discarded and which they no longer want.

These things are put in the attic, or stored away in the barn, or left lying about, getting less and less value each year.

WHY NOT SELL THEM?

Somebody wants those very things which have become of no use to you. Why not try to find that somebody by putting a want advertisement in

THIS NEWSPAPER?

Industrial preparedness will be the topic of discussion. Standardization as a preparedness measure problem, education of both the workman and executive; government control as a war measure; training of the coming generation of workers and executives and "after the war, what?" are some of the big questions the conference expects to answer.
