On this subject, General Crowder gave a statement to the International News Service, which appeared in Sunday's reading as follows:

"There is nothing to resent at this stage of the enforcement of the law. All-American boys are being called, and thirty-one years have been enrolled for military service. Preliminary call was issued merely to provide for any possible emergency in case of an army, and interests of the government only as a punishable crime of desertion, to appear, examined, and automatically drawn and paid posted as

Smith Strives to Get Road Money

Congressman Asks to Have Part of Highway Appropriations Put in Twin Falls.

WASHINGTON—Representative Andrew T. Smith is endeavoring to induce the secretary of agriculture to spend a portion of the appropriation for experimental roads in Twin Falls county in this county. He is convinced that people in that section in their plan to make a systematic improvement of the roads through the issuance of bonds, in addition to the experimental roads in that section of the state under the federal appropriation for good roads.

There is great activity among the farmers in Twin Falls county, Idaho, toward the comprehensive system of road building. I earnestly recommend that a portion of the appropriation for experimental roads be spent in this county. It is the most populous county in the state. Although it is less than ten years old, it contributed three and one half times the amount for the Red Cross and has sent over four hundred young men into the military and naval service during the last year. On account of its location at the foot of the Snake of the people in that locality, it seems to me no better section can be found to in which to expend a portion of the federal appropriation for good roads. It would be a great encouragement to the farmers, and the people generally, in their efforts to make Twin Falls county the banner good roads county in the state.

Bennett Renews the Potato Cellar Talk

Gives Suggestions Regarding the Best Way to Save Spuds in Idaho.

"I consider the potato storage question acute at present," says E. Bennett of the university extension. "The potato cellars that have been mentioned for the most part are not as well built as they should be. The country being new, the growers have not had a sufficient amount of experience in the matter. The plan worked out as carefully as the Greeley district of Colorado. They have been building cellars there, more or less, for years. They have learned that the great essential is to get their foundation sufficiently firm to hold the weight of the roof without settling. The cellars should be built on piles and rafters of sufficient size to prevent sagging. In my travels here I have found many cellars that are showing signs of weakness in these directions.

Locate cellar on level land or through a knoll, never set into a side hill. Select a well drained location.

Excavate to sufficient depth so as to have soil for covering top and ends three feet thick usually is sufficient.

A large cellar should have a driveway through with doors at each end.

A good roof and double doors, well fitted, are two essentials.

Build the roof in made of soil and straw, not because of cheapness, but on account of their superior insulating qualities.

Water-proofing over the soil is desirable if the expense is warranted.

Rafters should be sound poles, four by four in diameter, naturally rounded, set fifteen inch centers, or 2x12 sawed planks.

Purils should be not less than 12-14 in diameter.

Posts should be eight inches at top and not more than ten feet between centers.

A thirty-six foot cellar should have two rows of posts.

Each square foot of floor space in cellar will carry 800-pounds-of-potatoes piled four feet deep.

LEAVES TOO LATE FOR CO. D TO COME

SAN FRANCISCO DEPART-MENT GIVES PRIVILEGE
LAST NIGHT TO BOYS

Most of Them Have Been Home and Others Have Seen Their Relatives in Boise—All Make Fine Appearance.

Although word was received in Boise from San Francisco last evening granting leave to Company D to come to Twin Falls on one day in a body, it has been found impracticable to take advantage of the liberality of the government, owing to the fact that virtually all the boys have seen their relatives and about one-half of their number have been to their homes. The problem of getting a special train pledged for use Saturday was solved last night by the departure of another consideration is the fact that the company is busy at present. It leaves on guard duty, among them, and is held on its drilling, and that it is necessary to work hard all the time before going to Palo Alto, which will be in a week or so. It was originally supposed to be boy week. Leave today for California, but a change of plans intervened, so that the company will not leave until a few days longer than anticipated.

All of them are well and looking fine. They are ready for any continuing duty which may be assigned to them. The boys who went from here, who had no relatives in the regiment, were delighted with the fine soldierly appearance of the young men.

JIM WAS SWORN TO— JIM DID THE SWEARING

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—There was a bird down in Pennsylvania who was a hunter for the first time. His name was Jimmie Swift, a big, stout fellow, and every time he got a lucky break he thought Gabriel was blowing in his trumpet for the final blow. The toughest of the tough was Jimmie coming out behind in a game with a cross-eyed pitcher. The score was ten to five in Jimmie's favor.

The hunter on first takes a big lead and the pitcher looks to the plate, but whips the ball over to first. The cross-eyed pitcher had his goat—he didn't know whether the man on the mound was going to pitch to the plate or to first.

Two strikes go across on the slinger because he's too wild to hit, and he's been attacked by a virus disease and the desire to wander off in some cool place all at once. Just as the cross-eyed pitcher sets himself to pitch, the runner on first takes a big lead and the pitcher looks to the plate, but whips the ball over to first. The batter takes a mighty Casey and the pitcher is satisfied.

BRAZIL STIRS UP PARAGUAYANS TO OPPOSE GERMANY

INTERFERES IN POLITICS OF NEIGHBORS TO LINE HER AGAINST TEUTONS

The Government Has Been Wholly Neutral

Old Line Politicians Join in Movement to Better Their Fortunes by Campaign to Oust Present Administration

By John W. White, Jr. Staff Correspondent.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 8.—For some time past there have been strong feelings in the internal politics of Paraguay, the situation being between the civic elements, which are opposed to the present government, and other dissenters who have joined in the fight against the government, headed by Senor Franco, whose cabinet contains such famous personages as Scherer, Gondra, Saguro, Guana, Chirife, Velazquez, Solor, Gonzalez, Durato and Zubizarreta.

Since the time, not far past, when the tyrannical of the army and the blow of the state succeeded each other with great rapidity, politics in Paraguay have had a quiet period in which the national government were slowly but surely recovering under the auspices of the present government and the public has on several occasions demonstrated its faith in the government.

Now, all of a sudden, the opposing elements form a conjunction with the present government, who are always personal enemies of the existing government, no matter how good it is, and begin to foment an insurrection as a blow against the state. And it is said on reliable information that international politics are playing an important part in this state of affairs. It appears that Brazilian diplomats believe it necessary to keep alive this opposition in order to combat the strong pro-German tendencies of the government, which until now, however, has maintained a strict neutrality.

In view of the Brazilian activities in the internal affairs of Paraguay, the present situation are not difficult to understand, some such disturbance usually occurring in South American republics which permit outside influences to direct their affairs.

The Paraguayan newspapers and those of this city openly charge the Brazilian embassy with having aided and kept alive the tension between Paraguay and Bolivia concerning the old litigation, regarding the frontier between the two countries. The charge appears reasonable in the face of the fact that Paraguay and Bolivia have let the question lie dormant for a long time with the great Chaco district claimed by both, but in only a formal manner, each being content to let the other make his counter claims, because of the weakness and wildness of the section in dispute.

Franklin Auto Agency Installed in Twin Falls

Gooding Motor Company Takes Over Sale of Air Cooled, Light Weight High Grade Cars.

The Gooding Motor company, which during the past year, has sold hundreds of automobiles to the people of Twin Falls and surrounding sections, announces that it has now accepted the sales agency for the Franklin air cooled car, which was received last Thursday were at once all sold, and that requests for demonstrations have been received from every part of its territory.

The Gooding Motor company has had something of a spectacular career in the Twin Falls section. Under the personal management of Mr. G. C. Hynes, who has been assisted by a corps of skilled salesmen, they have during the past seven months secured over a hundred cars to the people in this section.

It was demonstrated, however, that what was wanted by the population was a particularly the car for particular people. Something that was handsome and different from all other cars, and which had been developed by the company, finally decided that the Franklin car, with its year of distinctive record of low cost of operation, fourteen years records show an average under all conditions of something over 25 miles of travel on one gallon, economy in oil, the use of the electric light, the six cylinder touring car, weighing little more than 2200 pounds. As a consequence the car rides calm, rough roads are driven with ease, comfort and safety, and the car lasts longer. As a matter of fact, there is a doubt expressed in the minds of some Franklin owners whether the car will ever wear out.

At least it is known that Franklin cars have been subjected to heavy usage through a term of years, and that the factory has given Mr. Hynes the day they were bought. Franklin cars when sold at second hand bring very nearly the price at which they were first sold. As a matter of fact, there is a doubt expressed in the minds of some Franklin owners whether the car will ever wear out.

The Gooding Motor company has arranged to secure a large number of these cars. We have ordered all that the factory will give us. Mr. Hynes said the salesman report that since it has become known that the Franklin was to be placed on sale here, that numerous requests for demonstrations have been made. It may be interesting to note that the first of the Franklin sold in this section, was taken by Mr. D. Murphy of the Twin Falls neighborhood, who had become years ago to buy a Franklin for the use of Mrs. Murphy and the family, and ordered his car as soon as any announcement was made of our taking the sales agency.

JARBIDGE CAMP IS FORGING AHEAD TOWARDS HIGHEST PINNACLE

Great Development of the Famous Long Hike Property and Organization for Further Extension in the Future Are Described.

Jarbridge—Our great camp is slowly proving itself; it is gradually forging ahead in its proper position of importance as a gold camp. It will soon begin a production of gold bullion that will stimulate all greater development. The mining district of Jarbridge covers a large area and there are many most promising surface showings which as yet have received no attention, besides the numerous prospects which have been more or less developed. The unrelenting work of the past year has unquestionably proven that the mineral value of the Jarbridge district was vast and that there are many untold wealth, or bodies have been cross-cut ten, twenty and even thirty-five feet wide, with good pay dirt, which has been seen. Long Hike vein has received the most development of any so far in the camp, and it is estimated that this mine has already netted up to the tune of $100,000 worth of ore opened up and ready for the mill. Work on the big mill for this mine is being pushed, the grading is being done, the foundation is being laid, walls and foundations are completed, considerable quantity of lumber and timber are on the ground and the mill is being put up. The machinery is beginning to arrive. The mill will be run by electric power, which will be furnished from the Jarbridge power house, which is on the Snake river. This power line is under way and is expected to be in camp some time before the mill is finished. The mill will have an output of 100 tons of ore per day. The future in the future development of the district. Several long tunnels are projected to be run as soon as this power line is completed. The power line will be used. The transformer station will be located just across the river from the center of town and distributing lines will be run to the Jarbridge and Bourne gulch to the Sprigart, Phlox, O. K., and Legitimate mines, and to the mill the Legitimate company. The Jarbridge mill will run way up the river to the higher mill and mill; and another up Bonanza gulch to the Success, Ajax and Success mines. Probably as the work or which can be taken anywhere, there will be a revival of development work in the Crater section of the district, where there are numerous very promising prospects.

The Elkorok Mines company is working on the pipe line which will supply the mill with water. The water is to be taken out of Bear creek about three-quarters of a mile from town and brought down and across the flat to the mill. THE ORPHEUM THEATRE FARMY WONDER (International News Service) DEPARTURE. The Central Illinois phantom lion is stalking again. A twenty-four-hour search started by deputy sheriff armed with shot-guns and loaded into auto-wheeled, aided by volunteer citizens, this morning had failed to disclose any evidence of the beast, which reappeared Sunday night five miles west of here, according to a story brought in by Earl Hill and Chester Osborne, who were driving a road along a country road. A huge, tawny animal ran out of the underbrush and sprang at the rear of their car, they said. Its claws tore a piece of the back-seat, but they threw on more speed and raced away from it.

Maybe, just perhaps, it's a cow, a farmer living nearby hinted today. He has one which was picked near that point that is missing, he says. And its pet is an automobile. The lion appeared first in Platt county, where it was said to have slain a man. Later residents of Lincoln-11, reported having seen it.

Plant Will Not Thrive in Poor, Barren Earth and Does Best in Slightly-Cool Weather.

Many persons who have attempted to grow cauliflower are doubtless wondering why they met with more or less failure. Cauliflower requires a rich soil to produce satisfactory development. If simply will not grow to do any good in poor, barren earth, and it is useless to try to grow it unless the soil is or can be made very rich.

Cauliflower does best in a cool soil and still better if the weather is slightly cooler than is required to produce some other vegetable crops. Feed the plants. Apply manure that has strength in it, but avoid any manure that has heating properties. Well-decayed horse manure well mixed with cow manure, will produce the bestest results. Apply to the bed where the plants are to be set, spade or plow under, and then during the growing season, apply it to the surface, and especially along the rows pretty close up to the plants, but keep from touching them if possible.

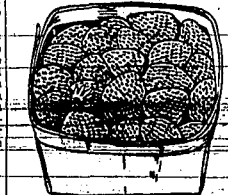

Liquid fertilizer from such manure will give satisfactory results if applied during the growing season. A little wood ashes added to the manure from which the liquid is made, applied at the time the heads are forming will increase their size and weight. Bend over the longer leaves to protect heads from sun, and flower white heads will be grown.

SALE OF STRAWBERRY CROP

Every Producing Section Has One or More Marketing Associations - Necessity of Labor.

A report of the detailed study of the marketing and distribution of strawberries made by the United States department of agriculture contains many interesting facts.

The investigators found that with the increase of the importance of the industry more elaborate methods for the disposal of the crop have become necessary. Practically every important producing section has one or more important marketing associations. These organizations relieve the grower of many of the details connected with the disposal of the crop, and in some cases even maintain a labor bureau for securing the much needed help during the picking season.

Strawberry Basket.

In certain cases, too, a number of local organizations by concerted action have secured a high degree of uniformity in the grade and pack of the berries, which is reflected in the better price obtained on the markets.

A difficulty that has increased with the development of the industry and the growing practice of shipping strawberries over long distances is the scarcity of labor at picking time. In order that the berries shall reach a distant market in good condition, it is necessary to pick them regularly and to the proper time. This requires a large force of pickers. On the other hand, pickers, due to a few rainy days, may cause the pickers to migrate to another section, causing considerable loss to the growers. Hence, it is thought that the report regarding the minimum number of working days within the limits of the normal harvesting season.

AXLE GREASE IS NEGLECTED

Equipment is to be overlooked. Proper Lubrication. Grease is a necessity. Neglecting axle grease can cause a lot of trouble. It is a good idea to check your axle grease regularly. This will help to keep your wheels running smoothly and prevent a lot of wear and tear on your tires. It will also help to keep your car from overheating. So, don't forget to check your axle grease!

YOUNG FARMERS CAN ASSIST

Winning War is to Help Produce Food. Young farmers can play a big part in helping to produce food for the war effort. By growing and raising crops, they can help to ensure that there is enough food for everyone. It's important for young farmers to get organized and work together to support the war effort. They can help to increase production and reduce costs, which will help to keep the price of food low for everyone. So, young farmers, get out there and start producing!

FACE-ONCE-WAS EXPRESSIVE

In Modern Times, Says Writer, General Aim Seems to Be to Conceal Emotion of Every Kind.

We are accustomed to the idea that our facial expressions are keys to the lives we lead, and that one who understands human nature may easily read human faces. That this is true to a large degree is unquestioned, for we have only to look about us to judge for ourselves of the happiness or unhappiness of those with whom we happen to come in contact. Indeed, in the ages long since past, before even spoken language permitted the free interpretation of man's emotions, the human countenance, was the chief means of expressing, says the Charleston News and Courier. One by one the great thoughts of the ancient era have been reproduced as far as possible in the eyes and general expression of the face, now flashing out with startling significance, now shining with tranquil assurance, now displaying ugly lines and charac- teristics. As civilization advanced, however, and the means of human intercourse broadened and developed the need for transmitting the inner needs and energies into facial expressions, and, unfortunately, it is often difficult to read correctly the message of the countenance. Where in former days the natural effort of all human beings unconsciously though (if many things have) seemed to be to give the eyes and mouth open upon their faces, the general aim now is to conceal emotion of every kind.

MEANING OF $7,000,000,000 Spent at Rate of a Dollar a Minute. It Would Take 13,318 Years to Dispose of It All.

America's war loan of $7,000,000,000 surpasses the powers of the mind to grasp. Thomas F. Logan, writer in Los Angeles, says in the Field of the Future it would take 13,318 years to dispose of the appropriation. Landed out at 6 per cent, $10 could be spent every second for an indefinite period without touching the principal.

DISCOVERS 'MINISTERS' TO BE PROTEGÉS

Ministers of the Gospel are undertaking to evade the national income tax. According to information received here, while the national income tax collectors are making trips to St. Louis and other cities where a large number of ministers are making trips to sell their goods, they are also making trips to other cities to evade the tax. The tax collectors are making trips to St. Louis and other cities to sell their goods, but they are also making trips to other cities to evade the tax. This is a serious problem for the government, and it is important to find a way to stop it. The government should take steps to ensure that all ministers are paying their taxes. This will help to ensure that the government has enough money to pay for the war effort.

Public Forum

A COMMUNITY BENEFICATOR

The public services rendered by nearly every agency is quite generally recognized. Everybody knows and appreciates the place and value of a bank in the community. It fills a place second to none in the financial affairs of a community. So does the school in the educational life of the community, the church in the religious life, the gymnasium and ball ground in the recreational life, and the theater and moving picture in the aesthetic, artistic and amusement interests of a community.

But there is another agency present in every city, which renders a very large and a necessary service to the entire community, directly and indirectly. It is the newspaper. Often it is called the "fourth estate" because by a certain type of citizen as a parasite. Sometimes it is ignored. Never is its value and place in the community fully recognized except by a limited few who are willing to face all the facts. These facts speak for themselves. A newspaper is not only the daily, the semi-weekly, the weekly magazine, the news review, the religious and trade journals, and all others. All these have their places and are indispensable in their places. But it is especially the small city paper, serving the interests of both the city and the surrounding country which we have in mind now. Such a paper is the Twin Falls Times. Together with the Sunday issue, it comes out three times a week, the issue being the latest news from the wire.

MURDER ROOM IN ST. JOE - A BRIDAL CHAMBER

(International News Service) ST. JOSEPH, MO., Aug. 5.—The room which Mrs. Harriet Maria McDaniel was murdered a year ago became a bridal-chamber this week. Oscar D. McDaniel, former prosecutor of Buchanan, who she was arrested and later acquitted of the charge of murdering his wife, returned this week from a honeymoon trip through the cat with his new bride and occupied the house in which Mrs. McDaniel was murdered.

The marriage of McDaniel and Miss Zora Cook, twenty-one, on a leading society girl of the city, last week furnished another link in one of the most mysterious murder cases in the history of the country. Beginning with the murder of Mrs. McDaniel a year ago, continuing with the trial and acquittal of her husband, then adding more tragedy when John E. Krueker, shot and killed his wife and committed suicide, the case now takes a new turn with the marriage of the pair.

Mrs. Krueker had been called "the woman in the case." Miss Cook is the sister of C. A. Cook, manager of the Bell Telephone Co. in St. Joe, who is one of the two men arriving first at the McDaniel home after the murder.

NEW MEN WITH DRAFT NO. 88 TO ORGANIZE

(International News Service) MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 5.—The Local League of Women Voters is organizing permanent district committees to aid in the work of the League. The League is a national organization of women who are interested in the improvement of the government. It is a good idea for women to get organized and work together to improve the government. The League can help to ensure that women have a voice in the government. It can help to ensure that women have the same rights as men. So, women, get out there and start organizing!

MILITARY SERVICE OF ALIENS

The question of the exemption of aliens from the operations of the selective draft forms one of the "ticklish" matters now confronting the United States. It would seem that those people who come here and enjoy our hospitality and protection and who make money working in this country, should not escape the responsibility of helping protect it and still remain here. A story is going the rounds about an alien who accepted a year's volunteer as follows: "Hello, John, you go fight? That's good. By'n by I get your good job, go to your house, do anything I want." It would look only fair that unless the services of the alien is needed in some walk of civil life where his leaving would disturb production, he ought to be given the alternative of either submitting to draft or leaving the country. In the Civil war the draft law held all who had declared their intentions to become citizens liable. The British government protested that if they had not exercised the right to the franchise, granted them by the laws of certain states, they should be allowed a reasonable time to leave the country after the passage of the act. They were given sixty-five days by the United States government to either leave or hold themselves liable to draft. The present selective draft law makes liable "male citizens, not alien enemies who have declared their intention to become citizens."

The following twelve countries have treaties with this country specifically exempting their nationals from compulsory military service: Argentina, Republic, Congo Free State, Costa Rica, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Paraguay, Serbia, Tonga Islands, Morocco and Persia. Several of these countries are at war with Germany and their nationals will fall under the plan to deport them, where requested, for military service under their own flags. The United States is endeavoring to have the exemption provision in the treaties of the others waived by common consent.

The right of one nation to force into military service a national of another country who has neither declared intention to become a citizen, nor exercised political rights, and who is represented by treaty, adjudication, or one of the questions of international law on which there is not complete unanimity of opinion. On this question J. David Thompson, law librarian at the Congressional library, after calling attention to several opinions of authorities says: "Although it will be observed that there is some conflict of opinion indicated in the extracts submitted (offentimes doubtless to be partially or wholly explained by the nature of the correspondence or the address of the letter) the general rule would seem to be that in the absence of treaty stipulations a country has a right to impress for military service those within its territory, even citizens of another power. But this right is, on grounds of comity and reciprocity, to be exercised sparingly, because almost certain to be followed by urgent representations by the government of the citizens concerned."

In an address before the American Society of International Law at its 1911 session, H. T. Kingsbury made the following observations, which at this time would seem especially appropriate: "Since compulsory military service to a foreign country can always be avoided by timely departure from it, there appears to be no reason why, in itself, it should necessarily form an exception to the general rule that a government may, if it chooses, require the same support, whether personal or pecuniary, of aliens whom it permits to reside within its borders as it requires of its own citizens. Discrimination against aliens is doubtless contrary to the trend of modern civilization, but there is no foundation in international law for discrimination in their favor."

PROCEED

The way to proceed is to proceed. The way to organize for a good road campaign is to organize for a good roads campaign. To be sure there are certain preliminary facts that must be ascertained by the committee in charge. One is whether the proposed bond issue shall be submitted to the county as a whole or only to a new district to be created at this end. Another is what sort of road is to be built for the money if voted. The people will want to know that. They will want information beforehand in regard to the road and how long it will last, and repair cost and other information that competent engineers can furnish.

When the question is at hand, the work or organization will consist of getting people together to show them the facts and to form clubs to educate others. For some time the matter of organizing for the Hanson bridge was "up in the air" last year. Several meetings were called without avail. Finally four taxpayers and one non-taxpayer met in the rooms of the Twin Falls Commercial club. The latter moved the election of a chairman and secretary then and there. After some tendency to demur because there wasn't a better attendance, the meeting elected officers and began a campaign that resulted in the carrying of the bonds. The people had been initially interested but not interested enough to attend meetings. When the thing was put up to them in an understandable way in a campaign of real education, they voted the bonds. Most of the people who voted for the Hanson bridge bonds were at best only remotely interested in them from a financial viewpoint, and many of them were not interested at all. They voted for them because they felt it was the right thing to do. Most people have a very direct interest in good roads and will vote for them if they get the proper information and see that the plan is feasible.

THE HOME GUARDS

The Times has on several occasions mentioned the advisability of organizing a company of home guards and getting them out to drill. The company has been organized in the face of certain obstacles for which nobody was to blame, and a good attendance has been at the most of the drills, so that an efficient company can be depended on to get in line in case of trouble, which everybody hopes will not come.

It would be worse than useless to overlook a certain unfortunate tendency of mind that is developing among some of the boys who have attended the drills regularly. They complain at the absence of business men and the remark was made Tuesday night that some of the merchants felt too proud to come out and drill, but would expect them to get out and fight for the protection of their places of business in case of trouble. Certainly, this is a mistake. The businessmen want to get out and drill as well as anybody and are not deterred by the unworthy sentiments attributed to them. They are busy men and cannot always conveniently get away. And yet, in the interest of harmony, peace and good will for those who possibly can, to strain a point and get out, even at some sacrifice to themselves, to the drill at least once a week.

The boys who are drilling regularly do not expect businessmen to come out in any great number tonight, when they have tickets for the big musical festival, but they are expressing the hope that more will be on hand next Tuesday.

AUTOCRACY VERSUS POPULAR GOVERNMENT

An autocrat is a supreme ruler whose power is unrestricted and irresponsible. Such was Louis XVI, and Napoleon in the height of his power, and the czar of Russia until a few months ago. And such is the Kaiser today in his own empire, and practically such even in Austria-Hungary and Turkey. An autocracy is a government in which there are no constitutional rights of the people, or in which these rights are no limited and so ignored that the people have little or no voice in the affairs of their government. Caesarism, Napoleonism, Germanism, Kaiserism all are but different ways of spelling autocracy. In America we have never known by actual experience its meaning. France has been free from it since the last of the Napoleons. England has gradually freed herself from it since the Great Charter was demanded by the people in the thirteenth century, and by which many constitutional rights of the people were created from an autocratic power. Russia is, we have on her way to freedom. She has thrown off autocracy rather than accepted popular government. Whether she will remain free from autocracy and gradually develop popular government yet remains to be seen. If the sane leadership of Russia is strong enough to assert itself and make itself heard, Russia will yet be counted among the great, democratic nations of the world. If the cranks and demagogues of Russia get themselves

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

There are, perhaps, many things which might be done to beautify our city and make it a more desirable place in which to live. But the one thing which we have in mind now is of enough interest to justify particular mention. It is the matter of beautifying the parkway between the streets and sidewalks. There is no doubt as to whose duty it is to keep these parkways seeded, watered and mown. It ought to be even more than a duty, it ought to be a matter of pride on the part of every property owner in the city to keep his parkway as well as his lawn inside the walk in good condition. That such care would enhance the value of the property is quite generally recognized. But it ought to be done simply as a matter of making our city beautiful. Pressure ought to be brought to bear upon absentee owners to induce them to keep their property cleaned up and in good condition. This year most vacant lots are under cultivation but the parkways in many places badly need attention.

Could not some plans be worked out to improve the appearance of our city in this respect, and to prevent it from getting in such a condition another year?

THE OMISSION OF LINES

Omissions sometimes change the meaning of sentences and this happened in the Tuesday issue, in the editorial "Booth and Germany," the statement "The (Germany) did not strew the mines, however," should have read "She did not strew the mines, however, as the principal method of blockade." There was no intent to acquit Germany of strewing mines, which she undoubtedly did before England began the practice.

The other omission was in the news story regarding the disposition of the petition for the sewer in the Jones addition in the account of the council meeting. The petition was turned over to the city attorney for use in drafting the required ordinance.

Clothing is Now In Its New Home

Established Permanently With All New Fixtures Location Vacated By Majestic Pharmacy.

After a strenuous week of remodeling, painting, and placing of their large stock of men's furnishings, the Clothing is now established in its new home at 118 Main Avenue north. This is the location just recently vacated by the Majestic Pharmacy.

A large force of carpenters and painters was immediately set to work following the removal of the drug store, and the store room was completely remodeled and renovated into one of the most up to date and modern clothing establishments in this part of the state.

The interior woodwork, shelving and clothing cabinets is of natural oak. The shelving at the right of the right of the store extends nearly to the rear of the building, where the office is located. On the left side are placed the forty feet of clothing racks, and it is the intention of the proprietors to add about ten feet more to this. The light brown granite in Montana before coming to Idaho, are the proprietors of the Clothing.

PLAYING THE FIELD

By Jack Volock, (International News Sport Editor) NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Rating the members of a ball club according to their value is a tough problem for anyone to tackle, because the value of a player often fluctuates. There have been several vivid examples of this during the present season for a number of players who were almost unknown at the beginning of the season but whose particular brilliancy have come to the front.

The question of who is the most valuable ball player on a club, if applied to Detroit, would be simple. The answer is Cobb. But whether they be pitchers, catchers, infielders or outfielders, it remains that there are few Coobs, or near-Coobs. Take the five leading clubs in the two big leagues this year and apply the elimination test to indicate the players. The problem is a brain-twister to say the least, but it is probably a safe bet that if the matter was left to a vote of the fans, the players who would stand out brightest would probably be the following:

American League—Eddie Roush, Chicago; Babe Ruth, Boston; Ty Cobb, Detroit; Tris Speaker, Cleveland, and Frank Baker, New York. National League—Freddie Schupp, New York; George Cohan, Boston; Grover Alexander, Philadelphia; Walter Cruise, St. Louis; Jim Vaughn, Chicago.

There are other players on each of the above named clubs who could stand out for a lot of sports if the fans were given a vote. Eswede Nieseberg has won his way into the hearts of the Sox fans. He attributes much of the success of the Sox infield to the little shortstop, Carl Mays, another pitcher, has been a pillar on the Boston team. Bryant has had help in keeping the Tigers going when it seemed that they must surely rank with the weakest of the league.

William Leonard's victory over Johnny Kilbano pleased thousands of New Yorkers, but not a one among them, not even Leonard himself, was more pleased than was Al Atout, to whom Kilbano took the featherweight crown. Able glinted over Kilbano's defeat as follows: "I have been anticipating this thing for more than a year. I know that it would come sooner or later," said the New York fighter.

"A long, long time ago I told Benny Leonard that Kilbano was made for him; that he would be a sucker for my punch and I proposed to set him a match. It must be admitted now that I had the right dope. "I know a lot of people will say this is my grave, but I'll say that Kilbano can't fight. He never could fight and he has just been bluffing his way along. I am still sore because Kilbano is so sure of himself that he was favored by the referee. If he had whupped the way Leonard whipped him, I would have whupped him."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Friction between business interests and the administration is increasing. The officials of the Bethlehem Steel company today refused to discuss the return of the company to deliver steel for the intended loan in France because the price was too low.

Labor troubles are hampering the government work around New York. Work on the Peabody park marine cantonment which was to accommodate 40,000 men, has been stopped on that account. "A thousand men have struck the Peabody park camp and the secretary of Labor Wilson sent Conciliator John Moffatt to try to settle the difficulty.

NEW MAID IN PARAMOUNT Nina Byron, the clever ingenue supporting House Peters in "The Hot Chute," will be seen at the Paramount theater on Friday and Saturday, makes her first appearance on the Paramount program in "I'll Be Right With You," which will be featured in support of Mr. Peters in this Palace-Paramount production promises a brilliant hit.

The production for Friday and Saturday, includes two of the best vaudeville acts presented on a local stage. Here's a sensational crack shooting novelty with special scenic effects, and the funny midgets figure which sing, talk and dance.

Being Tales of Those Who Reached the Front Page and Then Dropped Back to Obscurity

"General" Jacob S. Coxy recently if by his views on public affairs had changed since he led his little army on Washington in 1894. "Not a bit," he replied, "but I'm no longer a crank or an agitator." No one now can pick him out of a crowd. You see most of the people in the country have come around to my point of view in the last few years and see things as I saw them in 1894.

"You'll see men in both the old papers telling the country today just what I was trying to tell the country when I marched on the capital," he was hoisted and jailed for doing it. "Coxy's army was the concrete expression of the unrest that prevailed throughout the last 1894. His 'soldiers' felt that certain laws ought to be changed, reforms were badly needed, and with dogged footsteps and clear understanding of the national situation they started out to voice their protests in the only way they knew."

The little comedy, for which it turned out to be, was dramatized by Coxy with a fine feeling for things theatrical in their influence on the country at large. His example was followed by others and numerous armies of undisciplined men followed him.

Coxy was soon after released, and in the years that followed he earned his living through the medium of manufacturing. In 1916 he became an active participant in the Ohio senatorial race, taking for his platform a large merchant marine and adequate coast defenses.

The country then began to realize that "General" Coxy was far from being the raggad vagabond it had been led to believe, and later he turned up in New York City at a event at the Waldorf-Astoria, equipped with plenty of money and numerous diamonds.

In reality Jacob S. Coxy is a man of rare personal charm and great ability, and is now well established as a business man with considerable financial interests in Ohio and other parts of the country. When in Washington, he is a familiar figure about the New Willard and is extremely popular. He was asked employed sprang out of the ground like magic. In Montana, California and Texas these vagabond armies captured trains, stormed food depots, and did many acts of violence which in the hour run accomplished nothing, with the possible exception of starting a new train of thought from the little thinking public. In this mental change, which for the past fifteen years become more and more evident, Coxy has perhaps unwittingly played a stellar role, for it was primarily his demonstrations which encouraged like spirits to come out in the open and fight for what they considered right. Coxy was never an anarchist. He did not believe in revolution, but did believe in needed reforms and "out" in his own way to get things straightened out. Today the quiet studious philosopher, that is just what Coxy appears to be, continues his talks and travels in the hope that he will eventually bring the country to his way of thinking.

SERVICE THAT SATISFIES

AUTO BUM TAKES PLACE OF THE BRAKE RIDER

Now that the railroads are exercising more stringent precautions to keep hobos out of their yards, and off the right-of-way, the "automobile hobo" has come more into prominence, says the Eastern News. Every traveler in the states where population is thick has come in contact with these gentry, and even in the Rocky mountain states where the road-hopping tramp is far more infrequent, one meets an occasional specimen of the genus. But up to this year, the average hobo has chosen the easier method of riding the roof or the side-door Pullmans, rather than to walk until a kind-hearted motorist approached and consented to give the potstomach a lift.

Since the declaration of war, however, the railroads have been watching their yards closely, and the average vagrant has found it indeed a difficult matter to board a train without being challenged and ejected. And therefore this summer has seen an increase of many hundred per cent in the numbers of the automobile tramp. In New York state a number of the modern gentlemen of the road were met on a recent trip. One had left Taunton, Mass., to join a wild west show in the middle west and had not secured a job, so started for home by the automobile route. He had worked his way to East Chatham, N. Y., a point on a detour not far from Hudson. "He was on the route to Pittsfield and refused to journey to Poughkeepsie or New York. In his talk he said that traveling by automobile was an easy way to get home, as the motorists were always obliging where they had accommodations in the way of an empty seat. He had also found them obliging in the way of money and had lived well on route. He asked for some one to accommodate him with a ride, and said that traveling by modern means was far better than the huckle berry route, with which he was familiar."

Another gentleman of the road who travels far and fast is the soldier boy or the navy man bound for his home from some one of the many emergency camps all along the well traveled touring routes. Every one nowadays likes the soldier, and especially the white trooper or regular who has been at the border. One of these, a man of the Second regiment, was picked up by the writer in New York state and taken from Florida to Albany. He was one of four brothers, all in the army and hailing from Troy, and was on guard at one of the large camps here. A friend with him had agreed to take his trick for a couple of days and he was homeward bound when he asked for a ride, and got it with pleasure. His talk of army life more than repaid carrying him, and on leaving he gave his name and regiment and promised to write frequently from the front.

Some of the tramps on the road are passed by, for no one would want them in the car. Most, however, take care of their appearance and knowing that a certain harlinger of success is looking neat, they take care of their clothes and keep faces and hands washed, and heads looking neat, such men have little difficulty in securing a ride.

There is, however, a certain element of danger in picking up the road warrior as all may not be of the real sort of man one would like to encounter. In this respect there is the reports from California of real danger in carrying these road side harlingers, as there have been reported in that country assaults and even killings by the passengers who have then run away with the car. Nothing of that sort has appeared in the east, but it may come some day. The tourist is not always safe in taking any one along and would do well to look carefully and judge quickly of the nature of the man before stopping to pick him up. At a glance many may be honest and then again one's judgment may be off by a number of degrees.

The fact remains though that tramp-like and "bumming" a ride by automobile has come to be a custom and the rough experience of traveling broke back or blind baggage is being replaced by more comfortable traveling in soft seated automobiles.

THIS DOG HAS SOME TALE; WE'LL TELL IT

(International News Service) PORTLAND, ORE., Aug. 9.—F. A. Pierce, a goat raiser of Canyonville, Ore., has little to do except market his goats and collect the money. His little dog "Shep" does all the work and shoulders the responsibility of herding and protecting the animals. "Shep" has a method all his own in taking care of his charges. Instead of driving them, "Shep" leads the goats. At sunrise "Shep" is striding around trying to get someone to open the gates. After that he starts off for the mountain pastures with his flock accompanying along behind. All day he leads them to the choicest spots for feeding.

Late in the afternoon "Shep" gives the signal and the procession starts for home. If he arrives before the children or the household have come home from school, "Shep" leaves the goats at the gate and rushes to the schoolhouse to notify the children that it's time to open the gates.

If molested by animals or strangers the goats run to "Shep" for protection. Pierce, with the aid of "Shep," raised the champion goat exhibited at the San Francisco exposition.—The animal's hair measured 41-1/2 inches long.

OR HE MIGHT WANT TO WIND 8-DAY CLOCK

(International News Service) MEMPHIS, TENN.—Aug. 9.—A young farmer from Arkansas walked into the Federal building here, went to the engineering department and made application for job as night watchman. He explained that he wanted to be sent to one of the cantonment camps to "guard the soldiers." He was told the soldiers were able to guard themselves, both day and night.

WHAT HIS FACE DISCLOSED

Ink-splashed Dashed-Famous Traveler Would Let No One Stop Him From Having What He Wanted.

In his new book of personal recollections, "In Good Company," Cousin Keraban tells a characteristic anecdote about Edward Whymper, the famous traveler and mountaineer. The two men had gone for a Sunday morning ramble, and after walking some four miles they came to a waterfall.

Said Whymper: "I had some very stiff blisters for breakfast. Do you mind if I call in here and slake my thirst?" It was within the prohibited hours, but Whymper, nevertheless, knocked sharply and loudly in his usual masterful way, and when the door was opened by a frowsy-looking man in shirt-sleeves, said dryly, in more senses than one, "I am thirsty and want a drink, please."

"Are you a bona fide traveler?" inquired the man. "This rather ticked Whymper, who glanced down at his dusty attire, and quipped of the landlord if he didn't look like one. "I don't know," replied the man, looking at Whymper very hard in the face. "But tell me what you do look like if you wish, for I am going to like a man who, if he's made up his mind to have a drink, would have it whether he was a bona fide traveler or not, and, what's more, wouldn't let no one stop him from having it."

HAD HIS OWN EXPLANATION

Man Viewing Millais' "Trust Me" Gave Novel Interpretation of Picture to Companion.

A lady and gentleman were standing before a picture by Millais, called "Trust Me," in which an elderly squiro confronts his daughter, who holds a letter behind her back. The picture admits of more explanation than one. For Mr. Millais has that faculty of putting his deepest expressions into his faces which puzzle us, as the expression of real faces do, says London Tit-Bits.

But the one this gentleman was overheard giving his companion is as new. "We will be bound to say, to the painter's and to our readers, "You see," he said, "she has got a letter in her hand which she is keeping back from the man in the red coat. Well, he is the postman, and has just given her the letter—I suppose it's from abroad. She hasn't the money to pay the postage, so she says, 'Trust me.'"

The explanation was given with perfect gravity, and in apparent good faith. It was gratefully accepted in the same spirit, and the lady seemed proud of her companion's fatigues in so rapidly reading the riddle.

Destroying Old Letters.

There is only one good way to clean your desk of old letters. That is simply to take one each drawer in its turn, and turn it upside down over the waste-basket, without regard to whether there is anything valuable in the contents. There isn't anything valuable there, or you wouldn't have cast it among the old letters in the first place. Furthermore, if you begin re-reading letters, you know it, and you'll wind up with almost as burdensome an accumulation as you started with. And you know before you start that the letters you'd like to keep are the ones you dare not keep, especially if you're married. So throw them all away at once. It will set an admirable example to your wife, who has an attic full of the same grade of junk.—Kansas City Star.

On Closing the Eyes.

Going to and from your place of employment in street cars or in autos close your eyes. There is nothing to see, and nothing to do, and with commonplace shops. The boulevard are lined with horrid billboards that advertise tobacco and liquors. The women and girls on the car are not worth staring at. The men are all closely shaven. They look more like women than the women look like themselves. Close your eyes. Shut out the beastly spectacle of modern civilization. Gladstone used to always close his eyes when there was no need to use them. He rested his eyes at every opportunity. Do you then likewise. Gladstone got along without glasses until a ripe old age.—Los Angeles Times.

Some Neglected Foods.

Among the foodstuffs that American housekeepers have scarcely utilized are turnip tops, radish tops, mustard plants, sorrel and chick peas, among the vegetables, and the cheese product that can be extracted from whey. The greens mentioned may all be cooked like spinach or they may be made into delicious cream soups as they have been for centuries by European housewives. Enough sorrel grows in the average vacant lot in every city to make many pounds of cream soups. Chick peas are as nutritious as beans, and when served in a broth are just as tasty. They also can be made into a puree. Radish tops and mustard leaves make a cheap and appetizing salad.

Sure Thing.
