COLD STORAGE HOARDING IS EFFECTUALLY STOPPED

By KENNETH McKELLAR, Senator from Tennessee.
Written exclusively for the International News Service.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Practically ever since I have been in congress, now nearly six years, I have been urging government regulation of articles held in cold storage, believing that such legislation will bring about lower prices for such food articles as are ordinarily preserved in this manner.
The provisions of my bill are substantially included in Section 6 of the Food bill recently passed. Section 6 of that bill provides as follows: "That any person who willfully hoards any necessities shall, upon conviction thereof be fined not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for not more than two years, or both. Necessary shall be deemed to be hoarded within the meaning of this act when either (a) held, contracted for or arranged for by any person in a quantity in excess of his reasonable requirement for use or consumption by himself and dependents for a reasonable time; (b) held, contracted for or arranged for by any manufacturer, wholesaler, retailer or other dealer in a quantity in excess of the reasonable requirements of his business for use or sale by him for a reasonable time; or (c) withheld, whether to furnish necessities produced in surplus quantities seasonally throughout the period of scant or no production; or (d) withheld, whether by possession or under any contract or arrangement from the market by any person for the purpose of unreasonably increasing or diminishing the price."

The furnishes to the Food Controller, Mr. Hoover, full, ample and complete authority to prevent under audit rules and regulations, as may be determined by him the hoarding of food products in cold storage to enhance the prices.
It is a complete realization of everything that I have been fighting for on this subject for the past five years. Not only has the Food Controller the right to regulate under ample powers, but the department of justice has also a duty to perform, inasmuch as the act directly prohibits hoarding and fixes a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment or both for hoarding.
If foodstuffs are held hereafter in cold storage for the purpose of enhancing the price thereof, it will be because the Food Controller and the department of justice fail to do their duty and not because of any fault of the law.
In a recent article Admiral Samuel McGowan says a graphic account of food cold storage speculators undertaking to unload on the navy an immense "surplus" amount of poultry that had been accumulated by it. Why did the packers accumulate a "surplus" of poultry? There can be but one answer and that answer is a desire to make in this great crisis an unconscionable profit.
The meat and egg packers, by means of cold storage, can keep foodstuffs virtually indefinitely, and in that way can control the price to suit themselves, piling little foodstuffs on the market or much foodstuffs on the market, as they deem advisable to their own interests.
Senator Horan's figures given in the senate, comparing the business of farmer & company and Swift & Company for the year 1913 with the business of these same two companies for the year 1916, tells the whole story. In 1913 farmer & company made net profits of $6,028,697, in 1916 they made net profits, $29,100,000 and in addition declared a stock dividend of $80,000,000. In other words, this firm made marvelous profits in 1913, and then made $100,000,000 more in 1916—a difference of $84,000,000. Swift & Company made in 1913 $3,250,000 and in 1916 $20,465,000, and declared a stock dividend of $2,000,000.
Other food packers did relatively as well—Can anyone doubt who is reaping the benefits of these high prices? Can anyone doubt who is fixing these high prices? They are enabled to manipulate these prices every day by means of cold storage. Whenever Mr. Hoover does his duty in reference to these packers, and I believe he will do his duty—to wait on Mr. Hoover. The law has been in effect a fortnight or more. The people are waiting for results, and they are entitled to have them. I am hopeful that effective action will not be delayed.

MISSISSIPPI DELTA IS PROVING BONANZA
(International News Service)
GREENWOOD, Miss., Sept. 8.—Land in the Mississippi Delta has doubled in value within the last two or three years. "A few years ago land could be bought for from $10 to $15 an acre. Some of the same land two years ago could be bought for $50 an acre. Today it is selling at $100 an acre. In corn and cotton some of the delta land is producing single crops that bring returns of from $150 to $200 an acre each season. Plantations of a thousand acres have been known to more than pay for themselves in one year."
KENTUCKIANS TO PROTECT DRAFTED MEN'S FARMS
(International News Service)
HICKMAN, Ky., Sept. 8.—Dadd, one of the wealthiest men of West Kentucky, has started a movement to save the homes of men drafted into the army. He has announced that any mortgage or note he holds against a man drafted into the army will be automatically canceled from the date of enlistment to the date of discharge. Mr. Dadd points out that unless this practice is generally followed thousands of mortgages on farms and two homes will be foreclosed while the farmer is at the front. He has also announced that he will make good for all those men employed by him who enlist or are drafted the difference between the government pay and the wages he was paying them at the time of enlistment.

DR. WHITE AND TIMES REPORTER HAVE HOT COLLOQUY OVER ETHICS OF THE JOURNALISTIC PROFESSION

Refusal to Agree to Publish a Still Unwritten Communication Without First Determining Whether Libelous or Not Leads to Animated Discussion as to Duties and Responsibilities of Newspapermen—Final Parting Friendly.

"Say, we are going to tear things wide open on account of the action of the commissioners today," said President White of the Farm Bureau Friday night, to James D. Wholan of the Times staff, "and I want to know whether you will publish anything that I may write about it. I sign my name to it."

"We will publish it if it is not libelous," replied the reporter.

"There," said Dr. White, "I see that I cannot get before the people except through the 'columns of the Farm Bureau News.'"

"Oh, yes you can," replied the reporter; "you may say anything that is not libelous over your own signature and we will be glad to publish it personally pass on all ordinary matter, especially in the Sunday Times of which I am editor; but Colonel Longley as general manager has the final word in case of doubt, and I should not O. K. anything that might result in making the Times liable for libel, without consulting him. I cannot assure you without seeing it that anything you might see fit to write would be published. I would not do that if I had that final say so. No intelligent, self-respecting newspaper man would, in my opinion, turn his columns open to anyone on earth with the assurance that anything written by that person would be published.

"I see that the newspapers are all afraid to tackle this thing or stand with the farmers when the country and city are lined up against each other," declared President White.

"You see nothing of the sort, although you may think you do," responded the reporter impatiently; "you know that you can get a fair hearing in The Times."

"You said that you would not publish my article," retorted President White.

"I said nothing of the sort, you know it very well," said the reporter, "and you are deliberately perverting what I said for the purpose of creating a false issue. You asked me a question in a way which you knew would necessarily bring a conditional answer which you are twisting to suit your own purpose."

"I asked you the question to see what you would say," flashed back President White.

"To be sure you did," said the reporter, "and when you got the answer, you deliberately misconstrued it to suit the purpose you had in mind, which was to show that the press was owned by influences you claimed to be fighting."

"Well," said President White, "there isn't anything to get hot about. I want to get before the people, but I shall use the Farm Bureau News for that purpose. I do not want to have my article here penciled. I do not see anything to get hot about, of course. I do not especially enjoy being called a liar when I am one of two gentlemen discussing a question of public interest."

"No," answered the reporter, "and I do not enjoy intimating that anyone is a liar. But, I will say that anyone who owns or influences the Times is owned or controlled by any element, or that free access for all legitimate communications cannot be secured in columns as well as a private one, at least. You have been treated fairly by The Times and you know that it will be only the other day we published a long article by you."

"And then attacked me about it," said President White.

"We did what?"

"Well you criticized part of it in your editorial columns," said the Farm Bureau head.

"To be sure," said the reporter, "we expressed our opinion editorially. Is it your contention that a newspaper is bound to turn over unlimited space to you to publish what you like, agreeing to publish all of it before hand, and then be restrained from expressing any opinion on it? Speaking of myself personally, I wrote the Times news stories on the Republican speakers last fall. I wrote many articles, some signed and some editorial, criticizing those speakers, in some instances severely. Yet several Republican candidates as well as other Republican members of the legislature, and on some occasions complimented me personally, because while their doctrines were criticized, a fair and true statement of them was published so that people could judge whether the criticisms were fair or not. We contend that is the proper spirit. Do you insist that those opposed to you must hold their peace? Moreover you have frequently complimented The Times on its fairness."

"Yes," said President White, "and I meant it. Only the other night, at the Parish hall I mentioned that and complimented you. When a host named charged in Salt Lake City that all the press was owned and that they could not break into it, I said that we had a paper in Twin Falls, and we could get a hearing. I admit that you have been absolutely fair in the past, and have for that reason favored you."

"Yes, but we also gave a great amount of space to you when you had only the Rootgrowers' association and before you had any favor," replied the reporter, "yet after we had done all this, you cast doubt on the good faith of the paper as myself in your own office, by saying that when I learned the influences that were opposed to you, I would not dare publish your interview. We did not write it and the paper did publish it, didn't it?"

"Yes, and the intimation I made was disproven by the publication," said President White.

"Yes, but it should never have been made, as it was an unwarranted reflection both on the paper and on me," said the reporter. "In spite of this and of further evidence of good faith on our part, you repeat the same thing more forcibly tonight, because I intimated that it was impossible to get to the forehand to publish anything that might be written, even if it should lay us liable for the result."

"Oh, well, I would be responsible," said President White. "I would sign my name to it and that would relieve you of any liability. I would sign my farm for writing what I expect to do."

"It certainly would not relieve us for you to sign your name," answered the reporter, "since the law provides otherwise and neither you nor the Times can either repeal or construe it. Any lawyer will bear me out when I say that the paper is equally liable with the writer for a libelous publication."

"When you are muzzled," said President White.

"No, you are not muzzled unless you desire to write libelous or untruthful matter," replied the reporter. "And the law is a good one for the protection of the good name of honest people." Suppose a man named Richard Roe with a reputation for being something at once civilly and criminally libelous and publish it in the Times over his own signature, unjustly charging Mr. Black a merchant with being a thief and then quietly slip away to avoid arrest. Suspicion is cast on the name of Mr. Black. If he is not liable where is his redress? As a matter of fact, we are, as we should be, responsible both, criminally and

"You mean that you are responsible for what appears in your news as well as your editorial columns?" asked President White.

"Certainly," said the reporter.

"I did not so understand, and spoke in ignorance of the law," said the Farm Bureau man.

"Well," said the reporter, "if you spoke in ignorance of the law I made reflecting on your veracity so far as intention is concerned. Bring in your article. Perhaps it may be necessary to get an attorney, it pass on whether it is libelous or not, but I assure you that Mr. Longley will give you a fair deal. I am glad you see our position at last."

"Yes," said President White, getting back to the old "bone of contention," "I see that you cannot afford to antagonize the merchants here. I do not think that it is any use to write the article and bring it to you."

The ear of the Farm Bureau president was approaching and the reporter with deliberate emphasis said: "Doc, do not give the Times a dirty deal about this thing. If you have anything to say, bring it in. Then if the Times thinks it libelous and turns it down, you go ahead and publish it all JUST AS YOU WROTE IT, in the Farm Bureau News, with the statement that the Times did refuse and let the intelligent farmers of this county determine for themselves whether the Times was justified in refusing it, or not."

The White ear stopped, and the president turned and held up his hand to the reporter. "All right," he said, "it will do that. I will write it and"

"BULL-CON" STATESMANSHIP

"I am willing to take practically all war profits," Senator Hollis declared, "they are a trust fund in the hands of those who make them, and the government should have no compunction in reaching out and taking them."

"We want only the profits, not the out of blood," shouted Senator Johnson. "We would not disturb normal peace profits. But the American people do demand that we should reach out and catch these swollen war profits and toss them into the melting pot of war."—Washington Press Reports.

Following the lead of "Huttlings Bob" LaFollette, a number of senators, including our own, rang in the changes on this sort of refrain. For instance Senator Borah got off this choice bit of eloquence which his organ ran across the top of its columns to show the Statesman that it stood in: "What a pity dollars and cents are not flesh and blood that we might lay the conscripting hand upon them to make them help win the war." Surely this was something worthy of a leading place in the Examiners'.

All this sort of sentiment is an appeal to prejudice and does not make for sound reason. The intimation that war profits are in some way dishonorable runs through it all.

When this country was born it was contended that, subject to the penalties provided by international law (confiscation of cargoes if caught on the sea), private individuals had a right to sell contraband to either belligerent. This was advanced on the principle that where nations favorably situated were enabled to trade anywhere on earth, they would be less apt to develop a class interested especially in making munitions and contraband of war. As this class was supposed to favor war, the doctrine of American statesmen and text-writers was to the effect that the permission of private individuals, firms and corporations to sell subject to the penalties named, was conducive to peace and not to war. This doctrine was directly contrary to the theory that there was anything wrong in Americans so selling. Their privilege of so doing was regarded as tending toward maintenance of world peace, not tending to war. To be sure, this permission was not regarded as an infallible preventive of war. From this altitude, based on great text-writers on the laws of nations who lived before the nation was born, the United States never varied a shadow. Other nations shifted as their interests dictated until at last at the Hague tribunal all agreed to the principle without reservation.

Where do war profits go? Well, at the beginning of the war a lot of them came to farmers on the Twin Falls tract to pay for horses to go to France to draw war vehicles. Some of them have come here for wheat and beef and butter and other products needed across the water, which are just as necessary as munitions.

Men making munitions, and to such these statesmen had reference, are just like other men. So far as they are conducting a business, they are in it for the profit. That's what or-everybody is in any business, as such, for. They may or may not be patriotic. Most of them like most other citizens, are patriotic; most of them contributed huge sums to the Red Cross; many of them have sons in the army, either "somewhere in France" or ready to go there. But they, like every other person in any line, are patriotic as citizens, and not per se as business men, distinguished from other people.

Before the war, these people sold comparatively little goods for war purposes. To hold them down to the profits that they were making before the war would be just as absurd as to hold anybody else down to such profits.

Should it prove to be the case that these industries were not making very much more than others, then a tax of eighty per cent of the war profit would put them out of business.
We use the term "VERY MUCH MORE" advisedly, for every one who thinks knows that these companies have invested much in installing machinery and erecting structures that will be worthless after the war, and they will probably have to install more right along until the war collapses.

To adopt the suggestion of Senator Hollis and cut war profits to nothing would mean the closing of these factories. Neither LaFollette nor Johnson would continue in business without profit. Brady and Borah wouldn't either, we opine. If there were stock available in public securities, it would continue to make profits, to close the factories now would be a fine thing for Germany, but not a good for this country until it could get organized to make its own munitions and the war might be over with Teuton victory by that time.

There is a neat bit of sophistry in the comparison between drafted men and drafted industries. When you take a man for war, you have to take the whole man. When you conscript capital engaged in production, you do not take the whole industry and divert it entirely from its ordinary operations; if you should, you would destroy its usefulness. You take from it what it can stand and still function.

We doubt some armor plate and munitions factories have held up the government in the past. Secretary Daniels contends that it was, because they were trying to do this that he failed to let contracts provided for by congress for ships, while vainly urging that congress build government ship yards and factories big enough to supply the government. Today we find ourselves unprepared to take over these factories in a body weighed down as we are with other duties and responsibilities. We may after a time get at that point; we cannot do it now, without a loss of time that would be fatal. If we close these factories by unwise taxation we shall help the Germans, sacrifice our troops and receive the blessing of the U. S. W. W.

One of the senators on the finance committee said that he had studied the question involved for two years.
The committee had labored night and day to get up a fair bill with the aid of four experts of international reputation. This seems to have been true; of course, the committee was divided, LaFollette being in the minority, but before the measure is condemned it ought to be intelligently discussed.
We believe, the committee tried to make the levy so as to secure the same results intended in the draft law (take profits up to a point where they could be spared without crippling the industries taxed).

A good deal of political economy of the antediluvian age has been waded by statesmen. Much has been said about unemployed wealth. There is none such. The conscription of wealth under the senate bill may not have gone far enough. It should not go far enough to cripple any needed industry, and right now, all industries securing war profits, from farming to munition factory are needed. If the taxes on the war profits are not high enough they should be raised. An intelligent argument should show why they should, instead of an appeal to prejudice, would go farther with the people.

GERMAN PRETENSES

There should be no doubt about the absolute autocracy of German government; no matter how often we are reminded that they have a nominal elected legislative body called the Reichstag. In the first place, the members of that body are not popularly elected, a few persons of consequence having more votes than the many common people. In the second place, as the editor of the "North American Review" puts it, "The Reichstag is not a Congress or a Parliament; it is a debating society, permitted to exist for purposes of deception, but utterly powerless." Any one who may in the past have thought of the German Reichstag as in any manner like our own House of Representatives, is asked to carefully read the following, from the New York "Times":

The real legislative body of Germany is the Bundsrath, which is to hear, hardly anything. The Bundsrath has not only legislative power, but executive and judicial. The Reichstag is called but it should pass a resolution, the Bundsrath can veto it. The reason we hear so much of the conversational Reichstag and so little of the potent Bundsrath is that the Reichstag meets in public to indulge in oratory, the Bundsrath in private to act.

The Bundsrath is not a body of representatives of the people. It is appointed by the Kings and Princes; its sixty-one members are nominated by and directly represent the monarchs of the twenty-five states composing the German Empire. When the Bundsrath meets the Emperor and the Kings are in session; its members are their ambassadors, not in any respect the delegates of the people.
When it is said that the Bundsrath has the power to veto any legislation passed by the Reichstag, it should be meant in that the Princes have that power, for the Bundsrath is the German monarchy in session. The Reichstag is merely what it has been called by called in Germany, "a hall of echoes."

There are officials who are called Ministers, but there is no ministry.
The so-called Ministers are merely heads of departments, whom the Chancellor is not obliged to consult to receive orders, they are not more than bureau chiefs. The Chancellor is the only Minister. He is responsible to the Emperor. The Reichstag cannot remove him and cannot as in liberal monarchies, compel his resignation by a vote of lack of confidence in him. It can only storm at him so long as the Emperor is satisfied. Under the Emperor he is supreme, accountable to no man.

And after digesting the foregoing, the reader only needs to know that no change of constitutional law can be effected without the votes of forty-seven of the sixty-one members of the Bundsrath; and that the Kaiser himself appoints seventeen—three more than is necessary to defeat any measure.

SWEDEN AND GERMANY

There are several reasons why Sweden leans toward Germany in the struggle in Europe. In the first place she is the most autocratic of the Scandinavian nations, although her form of government is less so than that of Prussia, the controlling state of Germany, and the Swedish ministers are responsible to the diet, or parliament, and not responsible to the monarch as in Germany. In the second place, Sweden has had a feud with Russia since the days when Charles XII of that country fought with varying fortune and final disaster with the Muscovite soldiers of Peter the Great.
St. Petersburg, now Petrograd, was built on land captured from Sweden during this struggle. Later czars wrested the Baltic provinces from the big Scandinavian nation, including the greater part of Finland. This left a bad feeling which has rankled ever since.

The immediate cause for the leaning toward Germany at present is to be found in the necessities of Sweden.
In his International News Service letter, published in THE TIMES, August 14, Karl von Weizsaeck, the famous writer showed how utterly dependent

THE ORPHEUM THEATER

the Swedes are for many necessities on their Teutonic neighbors. He said that there was a pro-ally party in the country, which had great strength, but that its members, while sympathizing with the cause of the entente, did not even think of trying to get their country to join them. He said that were the importation of coal from Germany to stop all the street railways and private railroads in the country would quit running within a month.
Salt, matches, glass and chemicals are also imported from Germany to ship-manufacturers. On the other hand, the Germans demand vast quantities of Swedish iron.

The German submarine and mine system seems to work so effectively in the Baltic as to keep the allied fleet and make it impossible to ship things to and from England for purposes of trade. Considering all these things, the "judging" of Sweden is perhaps not so surprising as it might otherwise seem.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Phone No. 83
Sold Second-hand Store—D. W. Brunk has sold his new and second-hand store to Walter Lee, who is now running the Baker room.

Ladies of G. A. B.—The Ladies of the G. A. B. will meet with Mrs. Edna Brachman on next Saturday afternoon. The afternoon will be spent in sewing for the Red Cross. Every member is urged to be present.

Big Clothing Sale—J. E. McCulloch who lives on the state highway 1700 and a half miles east of Hansen, having decided to quit the ranch, offers for sale eleven head of horses, three cows and 150 hogs, besides a lot of farm implements and machinery and household goods. The sale will begin at 11 o'clock next Monday morning and will be conducted by Col. H. H. Lue. There will be a free lunch at noon.

Mr. H. A. Vincent and Wife, of this city, have been enjoying a visit from the father of the latter, Captain C. P. Haseltine, of Ripon, Wisconsin. Captain Haseltine is a veteran of the civil war, having been a member of one of Illinois' most noted military organizations—the Chicago-Mercantile Battery, which was raised, outfitted and largely manned by the Board of Trade in the city named. Although past eighty years of age and once reported "killed in action," the Captain seems both hale and hearty.

New Library Books—The following juvenile books have been added to the Twin Falls Public Library: "Nellie's Silver Mine," Jackson; "Napoleon Bonaparte," Sprague; "Little Black Mingo," Bannerman; "When I Was Little," Kelley; "Ladzie," the "Little Lake Dweller," Wiley; "Tree Dwellers," Dopp; "Sunny-sulky Book," Rippey; "Patty Tates," Anderson; "Household Tales," Grimm; "More Than Conquerors," Gilbert; "Story of King Arthur," Pyle; "Frank in the Woods," Castlemont; "Frank in the Mountains," Castlemont; "Cophomore Co-ed," Lee; "Junior Co-ed," Lee; "Senior Co-ed," Lee; "Boy Scout Crusade," Burritt; "Fighting a Fire," Hill; "Caroars of Danger and Daring," Moffett; "Abbie Ann's Martin."

ATHENA Underwear for Women and Children.

Here are the features that give Athena its comfort, its softness and its tailored fit.

Sloping Shoulders and Sleeves

Conform to the shoulders without wrinkling under arms.

Perfect Shoulder Stay

Keeps garment from stretching across the shoulder, and holds sleeve in place.

Curved Armhole

Brings arm seams to the natural curve of the shoulder and holds garment snugly and smoothly up under arm, doing away with unnecessary cloth.

Three-Cornered Gusset

Is so shaped as to relieve the usual strain at the thigh. Insures greater comfort and longer wear.

Low-Neck Sleeveless Suit

Just as a woman is fuller across the bust than the back, so this garment is made with extra fullness in front.

Patent Seam

This consists of a plait on each side of the back, instead of extra cloth in the middle, where it causes discomfort. Always stays closed and allows sufficient room, sitting or standing.

Single garments as low as 50c. Union Suits as low as $1.00. A style for every taste—a weight for every temperature—a price for every purse—a scientifically improved underwear.

OLGA PETROVA WEDNESDAY ONLY IN "THE WAITING SOUL"

In plays dealing with the great problems of life Mme. Petrova is at her best. She shines to unusual advantage in "The Waiting Soul," a play that will appeal to every woman.

In this powerful production Petrova portrays a woman who permitted love to rise above good judgment. She atones for her mistake and marries a good man, but how she risks up to threaten her. A visitor is expected in the family—a "waiting soul" is standing on the threshold of her home.

MME. PETROVA JOINS PABLOVA
"The Waiting Soul" is Mme. Petrova's last picture with the Metro company. Like most of the other stars, she has joined Paramount and her future productions will be shown in due time at the Idaho theatre.

Influencing the mind of the "waiting soul" or shall she tell the truth and face the scorn of casual familiarity? She tells the truth. It is a play that only Petrova could depict with the proper shades of dramatic power.

Entering From Gunshot—O. J. Ross of Jarbidge is in a local hospital suffering from a gunshot wound said to have been inflicted as a result of a dispute, which is said to have arisen over dice by an alleged gambler called "Slim." Ross is recovering and will be out in a few days. "Slim" is in jail at Jarbidge.

Important to Advertisers—The next issue of the SUNDAY TIMES will be published on Saturday evening in time for the mail, and will consist of an unusual number of pages, including the comics, filled with local and general matter of special interest. A large edition will be printed and it will go to all parts of the tract, by special delivery if necessary. All business men who desire to reach the public will do well to bear this announcement in mind when the advertising solicitor for the TIMES calls on them.

Denied The Necessaries—Just because the complainant, Stella Hood, and found it necessary, according to some of the testimony to spend $100 on a photograph recently, a cold-blooded jury of mere men yesterday returned a verdict not only in the case against Frank Hood, charged with failure to support his wife. Although the prosecuting attorney is said to have quoted the famous saying of James G. Blaine, "The luxury of yesterday is the necessity of today," the "good men and true" refused to be moved and acquitted the defendant.

The Idaho State Fair, which is to be held at Boise, September 24 to 29, inclusive, submits to the public an extended list of premiums that are claimed to total $25,000 in cash and $25,000 in "trophies." The stock department—horses, cattle, sheep and swine—are especially well cared for in respect to prizes; and the grounds and buildings are to be open to receive them and all other exhibits on Saturday, September 22. The boys' and girls' clubs of all kinds are also given recognition, as well as the mothers. Boise Day, September 26, will be distinguished by a barbecue given by the Boise Commercial club, to all fair visitors—and that does seem to be intended to shut out the men folk.

Business Removals—During the present week two well known business institutions will change location. Mr. D. C. Watson will remove from the "maker room" for "Belted Light and Power" from the Johnson Auto company's building to that now occupied by the Gooding Motor company, on Second street west, where he will not only have room for the exhibition of his wonderfully practical system under full operation but also for storage of the big new "Indico" plants which he is expecting in the near future. The room vacated by Mr. Watson will at once be occupied by the Irigoin-Lewis company, which under the management of Messrs. George F. Sprague and T. M. Robertson, has been demolished in the First National Bank building as long that memory hardly runs to the contrary.

The Times has received a handsome gift of "Catalogue and Bulletin of Information" of the Idaho State Normal School at Albion. From it we learn that there were 519 students in attendance during the last school year, with a training school enrollment of 260; that the current school year commences on Tuesday, September 18, with the annual reception for new students and new members of the faculty to be held on Saturday, September 22; that the first term ends December 7, 1917, the second term on March 8, 1918, and that the third term and school year will close on May 29, 1918; that a six-week summer term will open June 4 and close July 12, 1918; and that the institution is provided with a large and capable faculty and offers what appears to be an admirable curriculum to the would-be pedagogues.

A Breadless Picnic—Indicative of the absolute necessity for a sufficient amount of substantial rations Napoleon is credited with having said, "I would live only on my belly." Equally strong, if differently worded testimony to similar effect could doubtless have been obtained from any one of the small army of our public school teachers who were picnicking at the Blue Lake, about four or five o'clock last Saturday afternoon. For want about the time indicated that the preparation for serving a grand spread to the fifty or more jolly participants developed the fact that there was not a single morsel of bread of any kind or character included there in. Investigation and use of the phone showed the farther fact that some athletes do not eat an ounce of bread had been ordered the night before, from a local bakery.

DECLARATION OF WAR

"The action of the county commissioners in refusing this appropriation will defeat the road bonds."
"I am willing to keep this farm bureau going at my own expense if necessary until after the meeting of the canal stockholders. We have spent $25 on stamps sending out letters for protest and it is going to be kept alive until that time in spite of all and high water. The county will be better off under present conditions without a county agent than we get something better than a $1000 mail and I hope that the agent will be withdrawn."
"I shall have a more disagreeable fight on my hands here during the next few months than I would have had in the trenches. I volunteered to go but a large portion was already asking if I would remain here to carry this fight through."

Insisting that his opponent should train down to meet his weight, "Benzy Leonard" White refused to leave the ring Friday with "Frod Patton" Finch, although coached by the well known Los Angeles trainer Tom Castello.

The mix-up occurred during a general rag chewing over the allowance of bills for farm bureau expenses which the commissioners thought should not be paid unless O. K'd by the county agent and which Dr. White, as president of the farm bureau thought did not require such endorsement. The bills involved totaled $263.75, as follows: typewriter, $75; electric hospital $11; light and power, $10; telephone, $100; rent, $25; janitor, $10; telephone $11.85; Cloa Book store, $20.25.

White charged that Finch had stated that he "would get him," or words to that effect. This Finch vehemently denied. "While named a man whom he claimed had told him and Finch denied the charge and invited the farm bureau man out to settle the score. White didn't go, so the horrors of war were averted.

The best that can be gathered from the discussion before the commissioners is this: The commissioners hold that under the laws of Idaho, under which they have sole power to operate, the county agent alone is contemplated in dealing with the question of financing agricultural uplift. Certain funds are set aside in this county, $2200 all told for annual upkeep of the agent and they maintain that the bureau under the direction of the agent. The title of the statute under which the commissioners are proceeding is "Organizing and financing boards of county commissioners to appropriate funds for county demonstration work in agriculture and home economics" and its provisions are as follows: "That the boards of county commissioners of the several counties within the state of Idaho are hereby authorized to appropriate funds for demonstration work in agriculture and home economics within said counties, for the employment of a county agent, or county agents, in cooperation with the University of Idaho and the United States department of Agriculture, in accordance with the terms and conditions of the act of congress, 1901, commonly known as the Smith-Lever act, the provisions of which have been accepted by the state of Idaho."

George M. Cohan—America's Most Popular Comedian In His Famous Stage Success—"Broadway Jones"

UNCLE SAM'S FAVORITE STAGE COMEDIAN IN HIS INITIAL PHOTOPLAY—ARTCRAFT INTRODUCES STAGE'S BIGGEST PERSONALITY TO TWIN FALLS THEATER GOERS THREE DAYS—COMMENCING THURSDAY

BETSY ROSS designed the American flag, but George M. Cohan made it famous. Born on the fourth day of July, it is easy to understand that Mr. Cohan's great patriotism. And now George M. Cohan, he of Yankee Doodle renown, has added another vocation to his remarkable career. As an actor he first gained wide fame and popularized the American flag. Then as an author his plays and songs proved the big hits of Broadway and became as popular among the natives of Kookak as on the Great White Way. Finally as a producer of plays he added even greater laurels to his previous fame and now he is entering a new enterprise, something entirely different from any previous undertaking, namely the management of an immense chewing gum factory.

Chewing Gum Magnate
It will not be George M. Cohan's aim to improve the "breath of a nation" as evidenced by many of the big chewing gum concerns of late, but it is his idea to give the public a gum that will not only meet with instantaneous approval, but will be in a great demand as a result of one of the most enormous advertising campaigns ever displayed.

In order to get the best results Mr. Cohan took over an immense chewing gum factory several months ago and personally assumed the management, but for some time only the name of Cohan was used to become a chewing gum manufacturer—for the benefit of the motion picture camera in connection with the first Artcraft photoplay, "Broadway Jones." Makes Initial Bow The widely heralded motion picture debut of George M. Cohan takes place at the Idaho theater commencing Thursday and running three days, afternoon and evening. "Broadway Jones" is the greatest stage success affords him his initial screen vehicle in which he is supported by an excellent cast. "Broadway Jones" is known film favorites an Marguerite Snow, of "The Million Dollar Mystery" fame. Russell era would allow the amount claimed temporarily, Chairman Carlson said that the law would permit nothing of the sort. An illegal appropriation could not be legally defended. Any one could hold the board responsible for it. The proposition was wholly impossible. So the board acted by laying over the bills.

Referring to his charge, familiar to Times readers, that sinister political forces were fighting him, President White mentioned the name of County Auditor Finch, which caused the fireworks to break out. Finch wanted White to adjourn outside to settle the matter, but the storm blew over.
Commissioner Carlson said that he would be glad to help pay the bills personally, but was convinced that he could not do so without violating the law. He claimed that the original agreement as shown by the minutes, did not contemplate the expenditure of money for the purpose shown in the bills held over, and that he would insist on the O. K. of the county agent. He said that the county had equipped the office for the county agent, the court house and that the extra expense of hiring another office was needless. President White retorted that he would call an over the telephone at the headquarters of the farm bureau only to find that the agent was not there and that in consequence of this they could not get the information they needed.
And so the bills are lying on the table until the O. K. of the county agent and such subsequent action as may be taken by the board.

IDaho COMMENCING THURSDAY
Marguerite Snow, the well known screen favorite, has the honor of being George M. Cohan's leading lady in his first Artcraft photoplay, "Broadway Jones," in which she portrays the role of Joan Richards, the pretty, blonde, who with the right phrasing, born in Savannah, Ga., and educated in Denver, Miss Snow, became an actress at the age of 17. Her notable stage career she achieved a wide prominence in motion pictures, her characterization of the Communist Zadora in "The Million Dollar Mystery" being well remembered. Miss Snow makes an ideal "Joan" in "Broadway Jones" which is about to be released by Artcraft Pictures and it is felt that her portrayal in this subject will prove one of the features of the picture. Her first Artcraft picture shows at the Idaho theatre three days, matinee and evening, commencing on Thursday.

TROUPE OF SPANISH ARTISTS IS BIG FEATURE AT ORPHEUM
A troupe of Spanish artists will be the big attraction at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday and Thursday, matinee and night, presenting a real novelty and a highly entertaining act. The troupe includes some famous Spanish artists, Don Carlos Harro, violinist, Nelly Villa, known as the "Spanish Caruso," and who holds diplomas from musical institutions in Madrid, Seville and Valencia. The classic Spanish dance will be featured in the exhibition before crowned heads of Europe. The $2500 show will be in Seville, in her Spanish dance is called a novelty. Her dancing is a trapeze and a good one. His renditions of heavy compositions stand out in striking contrast against the average stage performer. The attraction is a treat regardless of one's musical taste or amusements inclinations. A complete change of program is scheduled for Friday with new photoplays and vaudeville acts.

MANAGER'S IRON CLAD GUARANTEE
"BROADWAY JONES" IS TYPICAL OF THE CLASS OF PHOTOPLAYS I AM GOING TO GIVE IDAHO PATRONS IN THE FUTURE—NOTHING BUT THE BEST IN EVERY PRODUCTION—FIRST CLASS PHOTOGRAPHERS—SET THE PACE. HE WILL WIN THE FIRST TIME AND YOU CAN HAVE MORE OF HIM SOON.
R. W. HAGER.

Dissect, the veteran character actor of many screen successes; Crawford Kent and Ida Darling.

The Story
The story tells of a small town youth who inherits a goodly inheritance and journeys to the Great White Way to "burn it up." After various exciting experiences he finds that his money has dwindled to nothing and learns that there are many unpaid bills to be met. After complications involving a rich widow whom he asks to marry, he turns back to his home town and starts life anew, taking over his father's chewing gum plant where now experience await him. Sparkling with a continuous series of humorous situations, offset by various dramatic scenes, the subject matter under the direction of Joseph Kaufman, presents a breezy story of rapid action and human interest, as well as the bit of the cutting theatrical sense. Frequently sought by motion picture producers without success, this story is being made into a screen subject and with George M. Cohan in the original character, should more than duplicate its stage popularity among patrons of new class pictures.

Announces New Policy

"Broadway Jones" is the first Idaho showing under what is called the Paramount Selective Big Star Plan. Under this plan the Idaho theater is not obligated to show every production put out by the Paramount of its several affiliated companies, but contracts for all productions of the stars that please its patrons. Under this plan, and judging by the popularity of the story with Twin Falls audiences, success of others that have never been seen here, with certain audiences, the Idaho theater has contracted for all productions of the stars that please its patrons. Under this plan, and judging by the popularity of the story with Twin Falls audiences, success of others that have never been seen here, with certain audiences, the Idaho theater has contracted for all productions of the stars that please its patrons.

Prices
Children's admission to these stellar programs will remain the same, matinee five and evening ten cents. Adult prices, matinee will be fifteen cents, evening twenty-five. The prices will be announced as the various attractions are advertised. The Idaho management is convinced that its patrons are willing to pay for the BEST PICTURES, and desires to assure its patrons at this time that these are the lowest prices that can possibly be put into effect for these attractions. Everywhere else they include no vaudeville—the Idaho will continue with its usual two acts.
