FAMOUS FOOD CONSERVATORS THURSDAY NIGHT

MEETING OF MEN OF NATIONAL REPUTATION AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Work for Conservation and Bonds

Judge Lawrence Hansen in City Yesterday to Arrange the Meeting—Large Crowd is Expected to be Present.

Mr. Lawrence Hansen, Hansen, Idaho. Dear Mr. Hansen: Wish you would arrange for a public meeting to discuss the food conservation problem at the High School next Thursday at 2 p. m. and at Twin Falls on the same date at 8 p. m.—I will give you as much publicity space in my papers as possible, and also with any organizations. I don't anticipate that you will have any trouble in arranging for a hall to hold our meeting. I expect to be there myself and also have some good speakers with me. Trusting that we will have a rousing meeting for this great patriotic work. Sincerely yours, R. F. BICKNELL.

The question of conserving the food of the nation has been discussed for months and there is a feeling of general interest in the message that now comes of national importance. Mr. L. M. Pierce, of San Francisco; Edward L. Trook, of New York; Charles C. Criss, of Washington, D. C.; and Alfred Atkinson, of Bozeman, Mont., are in the state helping Food Controller Bicknell.

The friends of freedom throughout the country, according to dispatches they are enthusiastic over the report that our government has declared war on agriculture, and food that assures are thereby given that victory will soon perch permanently on the allied banners. The following is the substance of the report:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Millions of bushels of cereals in excess of the expectations at the beginning of the year will be the contribution of American fields and meadows towards the winning of the war, according to official estimates of the department of agriculture this afternoon. While the October figures show a falling off in the estimates of the department, they are still far greater than the roughest expectations of last winter.

Wheat crop of 553,797,000 bushels will be harvested although last winter a production of but 639,890,000 bushels was forecasted. A 2,519,750 bushel crop of corn will be produced although a crop of only 2,583,241,000 bushels was estimated last winter. Similarly all cereals will turn out above expectations.

The cropping report of the bureau of crop estimates published last evening following the report of its correspondents and agents:

Spring wheat, October 1, indications 242,450,000 bushels. Chance since September 1, 7,909,000 bushels. Yield per acre indicates 14.1 bushels. Average 106 per cent of 1916. Fall wheat, October 1, indications 658,750,000 bushels. Change since September 1, 7,909,000 bushels. Price October 1, 20.05 cents. Yield per acre indicates 12.7 bushels. Per cent of 1916, 107.5.

PEACE BLOC WINS IN REICHSTAG SAYS DISPATCH FROM AMSTERDAM

Germany and Austria Expected Now to Offer Peace Without Indemnities or Annexations, According to German Newspaper—Negotiations on That Basis Not Acceptable to United States Unless Assurance Is Given, Through Government Responsible to the People That Move Is in Good Faith.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9.—A new peace offer from Austria and Germany will soon be made containing terms of no annexations and no indemnities, according to a dispatch from Berlin today.

The telegram quoted the Deutsches Tages Zeitung as its authority. This information it true, shows that the "Peace Bloc" in the German Reichstag has won a victory for a peace on the basis of status quo ante and that the Pan-Germans have been vanquished.

For some time the peace party in Vienna has been bringing strong pressure to bear upon Berlin to state definite peace terms which would be of such a nature as to secure recognition in the allied capitals.

The Deutsches Tages Zeitung said that its announcement of the forthcoming peace note was made on high authority and the central powers would agree to surrender all of the French and Belgian territory overrun by the Teutonic armies.

It is understood that the clause relating to indemnities will state that neither side shall ask for compensation.

This important news from Berlin comes at a time when the reichstag was planning its debate on peace terms. The debate was to have opened yesterday afternoon but it is understood that it was postponed to allow the leaders of various German political factions to confer.

At the conference, said the advices, the majority of the "peace bloc" in the reichstag decided to renew their pressure upon the imperial government to state its peace terms in a definite way.

Opinion is expressed that the peace intervention of the pope had a strong influence upon both the German and Austrian governments.

While definite mention of the Balkan question was avoided, it is understood that the central powers, wearied by war, and with their finance on the point of complete exhaustion are prepared to approach that question in a manner they hope will be acceptable to the entente.

(By John Edwin Nevins, International News Service Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The United States will reject any German proposals of peace that carry with them only a demand for the restoration of the status quo ante bellum.

High administration officials made this plain today in discussing the report, printed in the Deutsches Tages Zeitung, of Berlin, that a new peace offer, with that suggestion as the basis, is about to be made by the central powers.

President Wilson, they pointed out, had such an offer in his mind yesterday afternoon when addressing the newly organized league for unity he said that the war must continue until the enemy is beaten. This statement, taken in connection with his reply to the pope that no peace offer could be considered from the German government until that government was made responsible to the German people, was declared by officials today to mean that the president will not change his announced attitude even though the peace bloc in the German reichstag should compel the government offer to end the war on the basis of "no indemnities and no annexations."

This does not mean, however, that the administrations favor either annexations or indemnities. On the other hand, it is considered certain that the president himself would base peace entirely on a basis of restoration if the present German atrocity could be robbed of its powers and the government reformed so that the people would control.

Officials refused to be quoted today on the new Berlin suggestion. Privately the following was set out as the position of the administration which can be expected if any new peace offer comes from Berlin via the Vatican or any other way:

"The United States entered the war to safeguard the democracy of the world.

"It earnestly desires peace but only a peace that will be lasting and not a truce to allow slavery to reform and renew the conflict.

"Discussion of peace by officials at this time would be interpreted as such discussion in the past, by the German leaders as an admission that this nation was not solidly supporting the president in his determination to prosecute the conflict to its conclusion.

"Peace offers that carry with them simply restorations of the status quo ante will be rejected for the reasons clearly set forth by the president in his plan they speak and the reply to the pope.

"Further peace propaganda in this country at present is extremely dangerous. Therefore officials will not discuss it but will continue every possible effort to increase the efficiency of the army and the navy."

CANAL CO. STOCKHOLDERS MEET IN IMPORTANT SPECIAL SESSION

The Special Meeting of Stockholders Called to Change Articles of Incorporation and By-laws Under and in Accordance With H. B. No. 84, Passed Last Winter, Is in Session Today.

A scant hundred were in the Lavoring at 10 o'clock this morning when order was called by Mr. E. M. Sweeley, who had been previously agreed upon as temporary chairman. Upon motions in due form, the temporary chairman was made permanent, and Mr. George C. Leth was elected secretary.

Upon sustained motion by Mr. Fisher, the chair appointed Messrs. A. G. Fisher, S. P. Atherton and W. F. Alworth a committee on rules and order of business. There was some appearing over the election of tellers, but the following were finally named and declared elected: Messrs. McPherson, Smith, Saunders, Stuart Taylor, Dr. Eason and E. L. Cowan. This was followed by the nomination from the floor and the election after the declarations of Messrs. Rink, Brown and Goodspeed to serve of a committee on resolutions consisting of Messrs. J. H. Seaver, DeKlotz, Judge Gates, C. J. Wartz and J. W. Fran.

This appeared to clear the decks for action—which began when a motion prevailed that Dr. White, the First Bureau president, be asked to present a resolution requesting the reorganization of the Canal company, which everybody knew had been evolved by that organization, with the intention of having it adopted at this meeting. Dr. White took the platform and occupied an hour and a half in a full explanation of what was proposed to be accomplished and how. He began by showing the immense financial interests involved, running up into tens of millions; declared it to be the loose and imperfect system of the past, and no individual that was being criticized; most emphatically averring that it was not scalps, but efficiency, that was being sought by the proposed changes.

FRENCH JOIN BRITONS IN GRAND MOVE

HEAVY FIGHTING RESUMED IN TRENCHES WEST OF YPRES TODAY

Followed Usual Bombardment

Russian Army Prepares for Winter Quarters—Movement in Former Czarland Stopped by the Rain.

(L. N. S. Leased Wire) LONDON, Oct. 9.—The French have joined the British in the offensive by which the allies are trying to drive the Germans back from the Belgian coast.

The war office announced today that the British, in conjunction with "their allies on the left" attacked the German positions over a wide front north-east and east of Ypres.

Heavy fighting continues. Lunging forward through a rainstorm and across a field through the deep and sticky mud, the allied troops assaulted German positions lying near the Ypres-Menin road and thence northward past Bevelare, Broedseinde and Prochlam.

The object was to clear the Germans from that part of the Paschenche line, and the allied troops made good.

The attack followed a violent bombardment of the German trenches. At points the Germans put up a feeble resistance, getting some sniping in cash, which was being brought to town to cash miners' checks. They took the mail bags from the wagon and brought them to a point behind the postoffice, where they went over their contents.

For a time searching parties scoured the area. One of the men found guilty Sunday was a leader in the search. Finally his overcoat, with a blue lining, was found under a pile of laundry in a room in the town.

A search of his rest resulted in the discovery of a .44 calibre pistol in a briefcase. The man was known as "Poker George," and that the latter was in the habit of leaving the weapon on the Success saloon. The evidence further indicated that on the evening in question, Edward Beck, whose trial began yesterday came into the saloon and asked McGraw to let him have his gun, as Kuhl wanted to be cuts by a sharp instrument, were abandoned resulted from the discovery of the pistol.

Sends Petition to Food Controller, Hoover Requesting New Basic Point

The petition, a copy of which is published hereunder, has been drawn by County Agent Donald McLean for the purpose of obtaining signatures, to be forwarded to Herbert N. Hoover, food administrator, at Washington. The McLeans had some of the petition endorsing the idea, it found practically by the administrator, will gladly assist in getting as many signatures as possible. All who desire to have the petition forwarded for consideration are invited to call at the office of the TIMES and affix their names. If they find it impossible to come personally, on account of the busy season, and will write a letter or postal card requesting that their names be affixed, the request will be complied with and the letter held for verification.

The following is a copy of the petition which will appear in the form of a telegram to Mr. Hoover: Mr. Herbert N. Hoover, Food Administrator, Washington, D. C.

Practically all the wheat through this region is milled either locally or in Salt Lake, Ogden or Denver. The basic price established for Portland, Oregon and Salt Lake, has been the farmers' in this region of the country at all. The farmer's cost and cost goes, the less the freight charge and the more the farmer's profit on the wheat. As the farmer of this section gets less for his wheat than anywhere else in the country, they cannot afford to carry on the establishing of a basic price at Ogden or Salt Lake. The farmers here feel very strongly that they are being discriminated against and that the situation seems to us to require attention. We feel sure that you want to do the best thing for all concerned and are free to use your authority in the establishing of a basic price at one of these points.

Your Old Clothes "Roof" the Soldiers

Low Maintenance Cost and Durability Made Feat Roofing Desirable For Cantonments.

Did you ever imagine that the old suit you discarded may go into a roof over your husband's or brother's head in some of the military cantonments where the new soldiers are in training? The high grade asphalt roofing which our government experts have chosen is what manufacturers call a "by-product" roof. It has a thick, soft felt made of old rags, and shingles come from tons and tons of our last winter's clothing that have been collected and made into roofing felt. This information will surprise many people, who may still have in mind the old-time "paper roofing" or "tar paper" or the later so-called "rubber" roofing, but these are largely by-products. The modern new roofing is made of soft, pliable felt which is saturated with several times its own weight of blended asphalt. This asphalt has become the established economy product for roof over lead as for under wheels, in preference to wood, or metal.

A writer in the Saturday Evening Post, Mary Roberts Rinehart, recently mentioned the extreme discomfort experienced by some of the Officers Reserve Corps men under metal roofs in the older cantonments during the summer. The cooler, non-conducting asphalt has brought about much more comfortable conditions in the best southern camps and it also keeps the interiors warmer in the extreme cold up north, where other camps are located.

"By-products" are playing a big part in this war. The Germans have carried the idea farther than any other nation. For fighting purposes they have followed the plan of using everything but the squeal. Uncle Sam is not far behind them in conservation now, and is learning more right along. In the case of the asphalt roofing, for instance, few people realize how far the economy hunt has gone. In addition to the fact that Uncle Sam's buyers and builders found this roof quick and easy to lay, low maintenance cost, long-lived, waterproof and weather proof, fire-retardant, and other things a good roof should be, it was pointed out that an asphalt roofing came in compact rolls it would save space in freight car-rates and that it would conserve lumber which is hard to get for shingles especially.

How many households look like this? How many houses especially as Uncle Sam does? With him, houses that "cannot be tolerated" because of the aggregate of the leakage, supplies and money would be simply stinging. When you consider the number and size of cantonments—a small city, each of them, and the millions of square feet of roof needed, the money saved in selecting a durable asphalt roofing is important.

Next time you go to visit "your neighbor" that has a cantonment, look at the roof and remember that your old clothes may be doing their little to "protect" him.

No Glad Hand Upon Departure

A Group of Twin Falls County's Soldiers Left to Leave Us Without Notice.

The six young men who left this city last Wednesday evening, on their final departure for the United States, felt approved that not a hand was lifted nor a voice raised upon the departure of these young men. Each feeling in the comparative lull to the TIMES that is published here-with.

We have your sympathy, and we believe that Twin Falls people will not lift their voices to repeat their "still" upon their final departure. It is not only a kindly feeling, it is again abundantly proven their patriotic fervor and loving regard for their mother town. They kindly remember that not only has an entire company once and again called for a demonstration upon its departure, but that detachments for the marine corps, the regular army have been continually faring forth in groups of all sizes, so that naturally, and without any abnormality of kindly feeling, the going of one small group might pass without deserved notice and the heart of our people still be warm toward the absent youths who go. The letter follows:

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4, 1917.
Editor Twin Falls TIMES.

Dear Sir: A few lines in commemoration of the patriotic and self-sacrificing SIX national army men who left Twin Falls on the evening of October 6th.

Compared with the send-off given by other small towns, it was not a "pop" out of us men. Not a soul was there to greet us. Other towns come out in throngs to greet their men, with flags waving and hands playing. It should be just a little before the last contingent of army men leave and show us their appreciation for the loved ones who leave their homes to protect the others.

Through the medium of your paper, I think good results will obtain. Hoping you should wish the people in this matter and keep the Twin Falls on the map as a patriotic city, we are yours in the name of Liberty.

STUMP-BURNING PLANS

Several Have Been Carried Out With Fair Success.

Simple Method Evolved by Professor Ferris of Mississippi—Two-Inch Hole is Bored Through Stump and Fire Started.

Several plans for the slow burning of stumps have been devised and carried out with a fair measure of success. Professor Sparkle of Seattle, Wash., advocated a system of charring by which air is admitted to the fire through a long pipe. Combustion is carried on in the heart of the stump instead of on the outside. A description of the system appeared in the solutions about a year ago. It requires some skill to obtain results by this method, as several of our readers wrote saying that they had tried it without satisfactory results. It is better suited for the destruction of the woods of the Pacific coast than for those of the East.

A simpler plan has been evolved by Professor Ferris of Mississippi and is shown in the accompanying diagram, consisting of a 2-inch hole bored diagonally through the stump. The upper end of this hole is at the surface of the ground, the lower end on the opposite side and about 18 inches below the surface. The earth is dug away and a fire started at the lower end. The angle the hole makes with the ground is soon burned out. This plan has been found successful with pine stumps on lighter soils. It will no doubt be found practicable with stumps of other species of trees.

HONEY IS VALUABLE ASSET

No Farm Complete Without Few Colonies of Bees—Movable Frame Hive is Sufficient.

No farm is complete in its conveniences and business methods without a few colonies of Italian bees comfortably housed in a most convenient hive. Honey is one of the farmer's most valuable assets, and in many places a dozen colonies will gather 75 to 100 gallons of honey during a single season. North in many places 75 cents a gallon. All the bee waxes is a movable frame hive, in which the honey is stored in a convenient manner for the farmer to get at any hour he may wish to have honey and butter.

WASTED LAND ALONG FENCES

Department of Agriculture Reports That Ordinary Rail Barrier Occupies Twelve Feet.

Few farmers stop to think how much land is taken up by the fence. The fence itself takes little room, but it is impossible to grow anything in a central feet on both sides of the fence. The department of agriculture reports that the ordinary rail fence occupies a strip over 12 feet wide. About 5,000 feet of such a fence takes up an acre of land. Hedges take up a little more than the rail fence, the width varying according to the width of the hedge row.

GOATS ARE THRIFTY FEEDERS

Animals Are Easily Raised and Meat Highly Desirable for Food—Little Capital Needed.

Goats are very thrifty feeders. They are easily raised and the meat highly desirable for food. Kids soon reach the age when they may be sold for the market or slaughtered for fresh meat. A few acres of rough land could hardly be made any better than for goats. A small area for pasture crops could be utilized for producing kids for the local market. It would not require much capital to start on a small scale, nor much labor to take care of the animals.

EXCELLENT FEED FOR DAIRY

Peavine Silage is Very Palatable, Containing More Protein Than That From Corn.

Peavine silage is an excellent feed for dairy cows, being very palatable and containing more protein than corn silage and approximately equaling it in the total nutrients. Because of its strong color, peavine silage should be fed after rather than before milking to prevent tinting the milk. It may be fed in as large quantities as will be consumed but is very satisfactory when supplied at the rate of about 25 pounds per cow per day.

PERTINENT POINTS

Chicago soldiers in recent revolution tried 1,000,000 men and only killed fifty people. That sounds much like the city apartment out for the duck season.

Some of the paper makers who complain about the price fixed by the government will no doubt also complain if they don't get the orders at that price.

The neutrals are pitifully begging for food supplies with which to bribe Germany to let them alone.

The question is asked what has become of the boy who used to raid his neighbors' fruit orchards? Well, some of them about now are hiding in their own little gardens with a supply of three cornered roots intended for the neighbors' boys who are suspected of believing.

The ones who are worrying about having to fight are not the drafted men, but those who are afraid they will get called next year.

The United States is not to fix the price of meats, but the public can feel sure that the dealer who have the enterprise to advertise will also have the enterprise to secure good bargains for customers.

The Frankfort explosion is called "accidental" but no doubt the Kaiser will pay the usual price for the job. Simple lines and color is said to characterize women's dress this fall, but there is nothing particularly simple about paying the bill.

The boy who won't study Latin because it won't help him get the money to buy a six cylinder car, is quite likely to be the one later who walks home because he hasn't enough money to ride on the trolley.

In the league championships, the Philadelphia Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates appear to be "sunk without leaving any traces."

The people who postponed buying Liberty bonds last spring because another issue was coming out in the fall, won't probably buy the new lot now, as there will be some more next spring.

As some restaurants now charge for use of table cloths, the next logical thing is to let out spoons, knives and forks, at so much per meal.

Merchants who run a standing ad telling about lawn mowers in winter and lawns in summer, are sometimes the same ones who complain that advertising doesn't pay.

The boys who quit school at an early age so as to earn some pocket money, will later be heard from applying for jobs to the boys who knew enough to stay in school until they were prepared to go to work.

"You can cut down that item and have a better roof"

There is no use in putting on an expensive roof when you can get a better roof and save real money by using

Certain-teed Roofing

CERTAIN-TEED is the best roof, not only because it costs less to manufacture, but also because it is weather-tight, light weight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant, and costs practically nothing to maintain.

It is now used as the preferable type of roof for office buildings, factories, hotels, stores, warehouses, garages, farm buildings, etc., where durability is demanded. CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10, or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3-ply).

There are many roll-roofings on the market, but only one CERTAIN-TEED. It pays to get the best. It costs no more to buy a CERTAIN-TEED roof than it does to buy a poor roof, but there is a vast difference in the wear. You can't tell the quality of a roofing by looks or feel. Your only safety is the label. Be sure that it is CERTAIN-TEED—then you are certain of quality and guaranteed satisfaction.

Certain-teed Slate-Surfaced Asphalt Shingles are supplanting wood and slate shingles for residences. They cost less, are just as good looking, wear better, won't fall off, buckle or split. They are fire-retardant, and do not have to be painted or stained.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes are the best quality paint materials, ground and mixed with mechanical purity. Made for all uses and in all colors. With paint, as with roofing, the name CERTAIN-TEED is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction.

DEMURE "YOUTH" IS CHANGED INTO DASHING WESTERN GIBL

It is a far cry from the demure role of "Youth" in "Evyroman" to that of a dashing mountain girl who rides, shoots and matches her wits against a gang of outlaws, but that is exactly the transformation that occurred in the life of Miss Carol Holloway.

MANY OF US REMEMBER THE GREAT PLAY "EVERY WOMAN" THAT APPEARED AT THE LAVERING THEATRE LAST WINTER.

Miss Holloway's work in this picture is a splendid example of her iridescent versatility. Miss Holloway was born in Williamstown, Mass., and was educated in an exclusive girls' school in stock productions, she was chosen for the role of "Youth" in the original "Evyroman" company and after several seasons in that role, is now featured in "Fighting Trail."

MAN VERSUS MAN--TO A FINISH

The sort of work that William Duncan—the greatest fighting man on the screen—reveals him. If you want real excitement, real diversion, real thrills, don't miss a single chapter.

"THE FIGHTING TRAIL"

Greater Vitaphone's greatest melodrama, starring William Duncan. Duncan in the masterly athletic play of photoplay—he knows not the meaning of danger. Every picture fan will witness over Duncan's super-stunts in and envy the muscle and the nerve that makes 'em possible. Duncan accomplishes the impossible in every single episode of this entrancing story; which you must see and read every week!

NOW FOR ADVENTURE

You are starting now along "The Fighting Trail," a road drama with thrills and adventures such as no screen drama has ever shown.

This great story, the first episode of which is shown today, is the most hair-raising melodramatic romance of the great outdoors ever produced and one that is certain to enthral you.

It is the story of a life and death struggle for a mineral deposit of fabulous value wherein a fearless man and an heroic girl stake their lives against a gang of lawless desperadoes and the ferocity and the fierceness of a band of outlaws who shatter the law and destroy men's lives in their mad pursuit of fortune.

Every kind of thrill and danger of the air, the land and water is met with in the story and the most hard-riding, quick-shooting, fighting men, afraid of nothing on earth, meet in battle time after time and struggle for supremacy with grim valor.

This wonderful photoplay has for its stage the vast outdoors, with the mountains and the desert always in the background.

William Duncan, the greatest fighting man on the screen, and Carol Holloway, a woman turning in the most fearless girl in the world, play the leading roles in this marvelous drama and you will follow their adventures with breathless interest and admiration and their experiences will be so realistic that you will feel as if you knew them.

CHAPTER ONE "THE PRICELESS INGREDIENT"

Barterman leaned forward impatiently in his chair.

"There is nothing further to be left to these gentlemen," he said. "Only one thing remains: We must go ahead though the cost be millions. Do you agree with me?"

Barterman looked at the directors' table merely staid. They were afraid to answer. Men of millions, rulers in the world of finance, capable of buying the Stock Exchange into furious panic by a mere utterance, they feared to say the words that would start a man of a million turning to carry out a mighty aim. Still, as they stared across the table at Barterman, they shrank. Strong, wealthy, powerful they were, Barterman was greater. He glared at them in a moment and spoke again:

"I repeat, gentlemen, what I have just said. My words were quietly spoken and calm, but they carried the whole force of his character. He fluted the yellow sheet of a cablegram in his fingers. "This message is decisive. It means possibly conquest for our country. Alone, it is enough for me. I do not know where he obtains the great explosive in existence; you were present when the government tests were made and announced successful. You know, also, that cinabar is a necessary ingredient of that explosive. We must have cinabar, and gentlemen, I intend that we shall have it."

"The supply of California has been worked to the limit," Spivey has explained. Her famous resources have been exhausted. There is but one man who can fill our orders for cinabar. He is a man of a million. We must obtain him, wherever he obtains the supply and I don't care. I know that he can meet our demands, and I know that he is honest. I am satisfied. Gentlemen, what do you say?"

It took but a moment, after the doctor had been reached by his conference, for him to pick up the telephone and call a number. He did not delay an instant. Time, at this moment, means lives. He reached Gwyn's secretary, then Gwyn.

"Mr. Gwyn," he questioned. "This is Barterman. We would like to see you immediately on a matter of grave importance. We sit for you, Gwyn."

Barterman hung up the receiver and turned again to the men about the table. "Gwyn is coming right over. You can take him absolutely by your confidence. He is surprising young for the influence which is made available to a director. And he is just as big as his job. And he's on the level."

The others nodded.

"I was less than fifteen minutes before Gwyn was announced. He came into the room with a briskness that contrasted sharply with the august dignity of the directors who were deliberating over such a weighty problem, and shook Barterman heartily by the hand.

Barterman lost no time in getting to the point.

"We have been conferring about our new explosive," he announced. "You no doubt have heard of it. There are certain ingredients which are essential in the manufacture of it and which we are desirous of obtaining. One of these is cinabar. It is imperative that all our plans and operations be absolutely confidential for there will be much in our actions that will be available to the Central Powers. We realize that our extra money might be the discretion with which it is made, is closely followed by the agents of those Powers. Now, Gwyn, as for me, we have chosen to supply us with cinabar, as we understand that you have an unlimited supply and because you are able to deliver it in quantities that we can rely upon your confidence."

"I thank you for the honor of taking me into your confidence," Gwyn replied. "I am in order for me to meet you, and I shall have to cancel immediately all orders for the future."

"But what shall pay you wellly, respected Barterman?"

"However," continued Gwyn firmly, "since we are agreed on the most important point, I can supply you with what you require—I happen to know, gentlemen, no matter through what channels of information that you cannot manufacture your new explosive without cinabar. I believe, also, that I am the only man on earth who can locate the latter. Therefore, while you are engaged in your explorations of the greatest in existence—I control it. My price to you, gentlemen—the lowest I can afford—will be a bonus of 175,000 dollars and the market price for all of the material with which I furnish you."

"Gentlemen," asked the leader, "what disposition do you care to make regarding Mr. Gwyn's proposition?"

"It is nothing! It is everything!" Barterman shouted impatiently. "This price may be ridiculous, but it is also reasonable—it is important. There is no need of further discussion. We have agreed on it, and I am sure, Mr. Gwyn. It would be useless, I understand our situation, as he informed us. He knows that we cannot secure cinabar anywhere in the United States—or anywhere on God's earth that that matter—except from him, and he intends to charge us for it accordingly. I don't blame him. He is a business man. Moreover, he controls our whole enterprise and its success, as well as a national credit. As gentlemen, Mr. Gwyn is a man to depend on. It is worth two millions of dollars, to my mind, to have his support instead of some one else. I demand, in your own interests, that you accept this proposition. If you refuse, you may carry out your own affairs, but your enterprise will suffer. I am prepared to start for the West in the limited time that I have. I mean to go, and I shall expect the same from you. I know I shall receive it."

Barterman turned to Gwyn. "We accept, are you prepared to start for the West in the limited time that I have?"

"I am prepared," he answered, "to start for anywhere in one hour. I am with you to the greatest extent of my power. I depend upon you absolutely. I need not say that I shall expect the same from you. I know I shall receive it."

Barterman, chief representative of the Central Powers in the United States laid his newspaper on the desk before him and delved into the pockets of his secretary. He drew therefrom a door tipped quietly from the room. When Von Bleck thought he thought of grave and important matters, he would make it known by precedent that he preferred to be alone.

Barterman, left alone, proceeded to read a newspaper he had picked up when he had so perturbed him. It seemed to stick from the rows of type in words that spelled the destruction of his nation, his power, of his country, and yet he saw toward the last of it a ray of hope—the hope which he must make a reality. He read:

"The terrible power of the new explosive which the Central Powers have developed and promises to be the nation's salvation in the present great conflict. This remarkable power is due to the new explosive which has recently been invented and with this explosive the power of a cablegram can be translated into a cablegram; the only drawback—which is a truly menacing danger—is the extraordinary small supply of cinabar, the chief ingredient of this new explosive."

He read from his chair, laughing, though more with scorn than mirth, as he looked at a door at his back to an adjoining room. There, leaning over a long table, were his associates, ready to do his bidding, reading the cable translation of a cablegram which they had just received and deciphered. They gazed their superior with dignity and respect. His mere presence and his austere mien were comforts to them.

seems almost impossible to obtain it. I learned that—fifteen minutes ago, through a confidential agent, that the contract for cinabar has been given to the Central Powers, and that the Central Powers are now receiving shipments of it from the West by the Santa Fe Railroad. If we get Gwyn, and get him off, or get his mine, we shall have accomplished our purpose. This cable, as you know, places at our disposal the information of the Central Powers to locate this engineer and other men more wealthy than he ever could be. It is a matter of life and death until I return or you hear from me, Good day."

CHAPTER TWO

Von Bleck walked hurriedly back to Gwyn's office, donned his hat and coat, and strode out, leaving the others in the inner office, conferring. That could mean nothing until they heard from the West.

Twenty minutes later, Von Bleck was walking into the building in which was located the office of John Gwyn. He had a proposition in his mind, a proposition with which he intended to startle the young engineer. It was a proposition which would make the remainder of his life—and all that would be necessary for him to do would be to cancel the cinabar contract.

As he passed through the revolving doors and walked toward the elevators, a crowd was surging toward the street. One of these, a young, stately man, who carried a suitcase, fairly rubbed arms with the agent of the Central Powers. It was John Gwyn! Neither took particular notice of the other, they having been previously met. Gwyn went through the revolving doors and entered the elevator, to be driven upward to the former's office.

"Mr. Gwyn," he inquired of the secretary, "is he here?"

"I'm sorry, sir," was the reply, "but Mr. Gwyn just left a few minutes ago, on a matter of business. He is not here just in clear up a few matters and left with his suitcase. Is it something important? Perhaps I could help you. He has left me in charge and is not here."

"It is important," Von Bleck broke in, "and I can see no one but Mr. Gwyn himself. When does he leave?"

"He goes on the Limited to-night," was the reply.

Von Bleck was about to leave the office, when his eye caught sight of a picture hanging on the wall in the outer office. He looked over it casually and scrutinized it. In the foreground was a young man, pipe in mouth, roughly clad in mining attire and who, cautiously down the aisle to the "miner's country."

"Is this your employer?" he questioned.

"That is Mr. Gwyn," the secretary answered.

Von Bleck took another careful look at the picture, gazing at the young man, who had met with his associates earlier that day. He folded the paper solemnly and replaced it in the envelope. Then, as he was reaching the length of time which he had had for Gwyn's suit case, he put the packet of letters back into the bottom of the bag.

Gwyn's birth. A glance assured him that his absence had not been noticed. The young engineer was still sleeping peacefully and Von Bleck, moved by the strenuous events of the previous day and his hasty departure, it required but a moment for Von Bleck to slip the suit case back on the rack near the window, where he had found it, and to hurry back to his own birth.

Gwyn arose early the following morning, dressed, and used several articles from his trunk. The latter returned to him that it had been tampered with. In the wash room he met Von Bleck, who was attending to his toilet, and nodded to him. The latter turned the salute and watched keenly from the corners of his eyes to see if Gwyn should have any sign of the suspicious that his belongings had been tampered with. He was greatly relieved to learn that he was not.

Early on the fourth day after leaving New York, the Limited drew into the little Western town of Barstow, at the foot of the great range of Sierra Mountains. John Gwyn, his bag packed, and his wraps on, was ready to alight and start on his important mission. As soon as the train came to a stop, the young mining engineer jumped lightly from the platform and proceeded to the local hotel, which was located a short distance from the depot. Von Bleck, as the Limited changed again, starting on the last lap of his journey to the West, Von Bleck, who had been watching alertly from his seat for Gwyn to depart, jumped from the train. He whispered into the porter's ear, slipping a crisp bill into his hand at the station. The colored worthy grinned knowingly and nodded. With a jerk he threw open the vestibule door on the side opposite the station. Von Bleck stepped down, grasped the hand of the porter, and swung out. The train was moving rapidly now, and the jump was perilous. The car was cutting a distance from the station. He whispered into the porter's ear, slipping a crisp bill into his hand at the station. The colored worthy grinned knowingly and nodded. With a jerk he threw open the vestibule door on the side opposite the station. Von Bleck took one glance at the ground flying by under the train, sprang into the air, and went sprawling to earth.

Don Carlos Ybarra trudged up the last few steps to the summit of the mountain, the burden of two heavy wooden cases which he bore upon his shoulders. They were a heavy load for one so old as the rugged old man, but he was strenuous and energetic, and his muscles were hardened by years of rustic living in the West. His gray hairs were no symbol of weakness. Don Carlos was a man, hard and sturdy, and would not be outwitted. As he reached a clump of bushes beside the footpath on which he was walking, he paused for a moment, looking about for a second, and then passed the shrubbery, revealing the entrance to a spacious cave. He tore his hands from the bushes, and stepped into the cave, and came out again. As he looked carefully about him, as if to satisfy himself that no one was eavesdropping his actions, and then started to walk toward a little hacienda several hundred yards away, which served as his mountain dwelling. He turned his back, two minutes ago, and appeared from behind the undergrowth, but a few yards from the cave's entrance, and he was walking toward a small group of buildings, ever striking Don Carlos.

OMITTED FACTS IN BORAH TALK

(From Sunday Times, Republished by Request)

The TIMES has less objection to what Senator Borah says than to what he does not say when he talks of taxing the swollen revenues growing out of the war.

The senator's hazy propositions; that much of the tremendous war cost as it is possible should be raised by taxation at the present rather than by bonding the future; and that it is the burden duty of congress to distribute the burdens of such taxation equitably and fairly, are both in perfect accord with President Wilson's message, as quoted by him, and are beyond cavil or criticism on the part of any patriotic citizen.

The casual listener to his address on Wednesday evening at the Laying Theatre might have gained the impression that under the revenue bill just enacted, the munitions manufacturer escaped, when as a matter of fact taxes, which in case of extremely high profits reached sixty per cent, have been provided for. Not only that, but the surtax feature of the income tax section provides for income taxes as high as sixty per cent for incomes exceeding $100,000. So that when the money gets into the hands of the big stock holder, it is again subjected to taxation.

We quote the summary of the law which provides that the graduated tax of 20 to 60 per cent on excess profits of corporations, partnerships and individuals shall be levied on a basis of invested capital compared with invested capital of the three pre-war years of 1911, 1912 and 1913. This is a substitute for the Senate taxes of from 12 to 60 per cent, based on a similar comparison of pre-war and present profits.

Income tax section (of the Senate bill) virtually unchanged except for the rearrangement of surtax on incomes between $15,000 and $40,000. The graduated surtax of from one to 50 per cent of incomes of from $5,000 to $1,000,000 and over was approved.

The Senate increase of from two to four per cent of the income tax on corporations and "joint" stock companies and "individual" tax was approved, together with the new normal, individual tax, of two per cent on incomes of unmarried persons in excess of $1,000 and married persons of more than $2,000.

The new rates on inheritances, with those of Americans in military service exempted, range from one-half of one per cent on $50,000 estates to ten per cent on estates of $1,000,000 or more.

In other words your corporation or individual making first pays a regular income tax. Then, according to war-profits tax ranging, according to the rate of net earnings, all the way from twenty to sixty per cent of its excess profits. Lastly, after the money is divided every individual who draws more than $2,000, and if unmarried more than $1,000, is subject to income tax. Finally, should death come before tax is levied, on all estates of $50,000 and over.

Now Senator Borah did not say that these taxes were not levied, but we are certain that the impression received by many in his audience was that these profits practically escaped taxation.

The fact that Senator Borah did at one time during his address incidentally remark that he believed twenty per cent to be a small average proportion to take from the profits of corporations is another observation that he thought three billion dollars, instead of a billion dollars should have been taken, did not prevent some from laboring under the misapprehension suggested, as a discussion with men on the floor demonstrated. The fact that a graduated war profits tax, had actually been written into the law, which, whether adequate or not, increased in proportion to the size of the profits, was not only not definitely stated but was not even clearly intimated.

Another thing; many of these corporations have invested vast fortunes in new buildings and special machinery for the manufacture of war supplies which at present are necessary for the government, and when war closes every one of the great factories and the buildings connected with them will be dead loss. The fact that practically the entire additional tax revenue in certain cases will be lost, should be taken into consideration in figuring the rate of profits that these men should receive, for they not only must figure on making enough to replace what they put into their business, but a reasonable rate of profit besides.

The TIMES does not mean to say, and in previous discussion distinctly repudiated the idea that it meant, to imply that the sixty per cent, plus ordinary corporation income tax, plus normal income tax and inheritance tax, was sufficient for the first levy. What it contended then and still contends is that all the facts should be taken into consideration. The question of how much this business will bear, only one way to secure this result and that is for each machine to manufacture its own supply. This state of affairs cannot be brought about in a satisfactory manner in the midst of a war, where the activities of the government have been necessarily extended to so many directions.

The TIMES heartily approves of the idea that war profits in munitions making should be abolished. There is only one way to secure this result and that is for each machine to manufacture its own supply. This state of affairs cannot be brought about in a satisfactory manner in the midst of a war, where the activities of the government have been necessarily extended to so many directions.

KUHL GUILTY OF MURDER

McGraw is said to have turned over the gun. About 8 o'clock at night Kuhl and Beck came together and Beck started to get into the car, but he was stopped by Kuhl, who pointed a revolver at him and ordered him to get out of the car. Kuhl then fired the shot which killed McGraw.

The following is the story of the testimony in the trial of Kuhl. Kuhl was found on the letters in the mail bags, as written by E. M. Stamminger, editor of the Idaho Free Press to whom the TIMES was furnished a copy.

The Jarboe murder trial on the district court that has been going on for more than two weeks past, has been one of the most interesting cases held in this county. Due to the fact that the evidence was mostly circumstantial, but also that a line of evidence was introduced new to the district court, the case attracted attention all over the United States; that of palm prints.

Due to the fact that three men were convicted charges with Kuhl, Kuhl Beck and McGraw, and that the court granted them a separate trial, the evidence being practically alike for each case, the court requested the Free Press to refrain from publishing the happenings and evidence in the first two cases on the grounds that it would cause a strong prejudice against the third man charged with the crime. This was held. This is the reason why almost nothing has been printed in these columns.

But as the evidence of the first case is now all in and the palm print evidence will be used only in the Kuhl case against the defendant, we have secured from the testimony of the experts, and in interviews with them the following interesting article:

When the district attorney's office was introduced charges of the murder of Kuhl, Beck and McGraw, and not of Beck and McGraw.

When the district attorney's office was introduced charges of the murder of Kuhl, Beck and McGraw, and not of Beck and McGraw.

dent of the county bureau of identification at Fresno, Cal., who had made a specialty of enlargements and lantern slides of prints, besides being a leading expert on fingerprinting. The enlargements and negatives were made of the bloody print on the envelope and the one taken of Kuhl's palm by Sheriff Jarboe, both being placed on the same plate so that the comparisons could be made and seen by the jury.

Mr. Stone says that last spring at a leading national meeting of eight Pacific coast fingerprint experts, the pictures of the two prints were submitted to the convention, and each of the expert witnesses subsequently pronounced the two prints an having been made by the same palm, it also passed on by other national fingerprint experts who concentrated with Mr. Stone in his decision.

But owing to the fact that this sort of evidence—palm prints—was something new to the courts of law, the experts had to go to extreme lengths to convince the court that the evidence was admissible. Ordinarily in the country the courts are not familiar with the distinctive features, or peculiarities, all of that is necessary to establish the fact that the prints are identical, except in the case of a person, that in the Kuhl palm prints the experts had selected 13 points of similarity for comparison, more than twice as many points as were made.

This was made possible by the fact that the bloody print on the envelope, which was the fleshy portion of the left hand, contained a particularly distinct feature of a "subulterity" and which was duplicated in the print of Kuhl's palm. The experts in testimony before the jury went into details in exhibiting every peculiarity, pointing out on the enlarged print where and how they selected a peculiarity and how the two compared.

Mr. Stone, at the conclusion of his testimony was asked by the state if he could make a positive statement as to whether that same identification on both envelopes and the prints of Kuhl's palm, answered: "I am a positive as it is humanly possible to be positive of anything, as positive as I am that I am in this court room, and that those two prints were made by the same hand."

Expert Hoffert illustrated his testimony by the means of a professional enlarging room was furnished and the enlargements of the prints were thrown on a screen, and every line was magnified many thousand times, so that the fine lines and peculiarities could be clearly seen. The legal battle between the attorneys on the admission of the palm prints occupied the attention of the court for two days and was bitterly fought by the defense. With the jury excluded from the court room the two experts were placed on the stand and every point was given to the court the enlarged pictures of the prints; the methods that were to be used by the state in presenting the evidence to the jury and the testimony of the two experts, even more fully than given to the jury, were brought out before the jury. Their words were the substance of the following: "It was a most interesting part of the case and the court room was daily filled with men and women attracted by the interest in this testimony." The next case will be that of Beck, one of the three charged with the crime. It is not expected that either of the two remaining cases will compare as well in time as the Kuhl case.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING is a business proposition pure and simple, and is so regarded by all intelligent advertisers.

GOOD BUSINESS MEN Do Not Advertise in a Newspaper Through Friendship or for Charity. They Do So Strictly for Their Own Benefit; to Bring Their Wares to the Attention of Its Readers; and the More Readers the More It is Worth to the Advertiser.

NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION is alone the fair basis for advertising rates. This is recognized by both advertisers and papers—a certain approximate value being allowed for each hundred bona-fide subscribers.

THE TWICE-A-WEEK TIMES Has So Increased the Number of Subscribers That It is Giving to Its Advertisers Over Thirty Per Cent More Publicity Than Was the Case Six Months Ago; and, therefore, announces an advance in its Advertising Rates, Beginning Nov. 1, 1917.

UNDER THE NEW RATE Advertisers Will Get More for the Money Than They Did Six Months Ago; and the TIMES Will Receive Some Return on the Greatly Increased Investment and Expense Incident to the Progress It Has Made.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS COMING IN HIS LATEST AND BIGGEST COMEDY

"DOWN TO EARTH" FINEST PICTURE THIS STAR EVER PRODUCED—TYPICAL OF "DOUG" HIMSELF AND HIS SCHEME OF LIFE—IS HIMSELF THE AUTHOR—SHOWS THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, author and star of "Down to Earth," another rip-roaring comedy backed by a "real idea" for a plot, is booked for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, afternoon and evening, at the Idaho theater. A little quieter than some of the others, perhaps, in that there is none of the melodrama and the athletics have a rest, it is still conceded by critics everywhere to be the BEST picture yet produced by the HIGHEST star in the world.

Don't Miss This One

Right here, at the beginning of this little story, we are going to tell you that the picture will start each evening, 7:15, and that it runs two evenings before the usual Saturday evening jam. And the front seats at the Idaho are thirty feet from the screen, the screen being against the rear wall—unlike conditions in most theaters where front-row patrons are only a few feet from the picture. At the Idaho there is a full view of the screen from the front seats.

"Doug" the Author and the Star

Douglas Fairbanks wrote this story himself; Anita Loos, who is responsible for all of Doug's recent successes, wrote the titles and gave the whole crowd a bunch of names that are a whole-arming fun in themselves; and John Emerson is the director of all the big Fairbanks pictures. If this combination needs anything more, it is there—all in this one picture: hundreds of little fine touches that produce laughs, quiet humor and witty sarcasm; excellent photography; appropriately selected scenes, and—Miss Eileen Percy, his co-star in "Wild and Woolly."

Neither the machine nor occupants were hurt, but much and got out shortly afterward.

Liked Twin Falls—About a month ago the Tribune received a long letter from Heenan, Oregon, a locality of this city and county, but who has lived in the Twin Falls district in Idaho for some time. We have been expecting to print the letter in full, but lack of space has prevented the same. Mr. Ericson is greatly pleased with that section of the country and says that all that is needed to make it blossom like the rose in water and that irrigation has done wonderful things for the people of Idaho. Twin Falls has grown to be a wonderful city of 10,000 inhabitants who are of the most energetic nature. In fact, he says, "every person in a household has a live wire, if you please." Mr. Ericson makes his home at Berger, a short distance from Twin Falls—Volga (South Dakota) Tribune.

The Times Smoke Fund, by means of which forty-five cents worth of smoking material for every twenty-five cents contributed, will reach some American soldier in France. It has already been given a nice send-off, but the initial report from Twin Falls should not be confined to one or two dozen packages. We wish and expect to report at least a gross of them, and any one who can find it in his (or her) heart to add one or more is urged to respond at once.

Authority on Bees—Dr. E. F. Phillips, apiculturist of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be in Twin Falls on Thursday of this week and will bring the important branch in industry upon which he is a specialist of high standing to the attention of all interested at the commercial club rooms, at two o'clock p. m. of the day mentioned. The secretary of the Commercial club is endeavoring to fit a club luncheon to the occasion; but as yet it is not sufficiently well informed as to time of his arrival.

Galful Gales—Speaking about unbelievable profits from farm production in the great West, the following rural wander over the following: Mr. B. Corcoran owns one hundred and sixty acres of land in the vicinity of the city of Idaho. On this land he raised and fifty-five acres of this farm was in wheat this year and the crop has been harvested. Threshed, marketed and stored in a barn. Corcoran received a check for $13,855.55. This amounted, of course, in 8900 per acre average, which is a very high yield for this favored part of the agricultural world!

Is Surprised by Shower Miss Anna Anderson was very pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening by a magnificent shower given for her by the Misses Adeline and Gertrude Melcher, at their home at 519 Third avenue west. The rooms were prettily decorated with flowers and hearts. She received many beautiful gifts, and the guests reported a splendid time. The guests were: Mrs. J. H. James, Schlichting, Anderson, Knight, Hoffert, and Werthar, and the Misses Esther Anderson, Marjorie and Margaret Melcher, Eleanor, and Nellie Cass, Jennie Larson, May Halbert, Lucille Lindvall, Anna Wedeman, Julia Lindvall, Anna Anderson, Gertrude and Adeline Melcher.

Vote on Church Site—All members of St. Edward's Catholic parish who are over twenty years of age will vote next Sunday by ballot on the question whether the present site of the church which is planned to erect, or whether the site at the corner of Fifth avenue and Second street north, owned by the Presbyterian church, will obtain. The new site has been offered as a donation, contingent on the raising of $15,000 for the construction of the church. Those who are reported to be some who favor taking the lots and meeting the conditions, while others are said to favor the present site. The vote will be taken place at both morning services.

Whopping Closing Sale—C. McMaster, noted for large and successful horse sales in the past, has leased his farm and is now advertising an auction which will include other stock and poultry, machinery and harness. The one registered Percheron and the one imported registered Percheron are five minutes and are offered for sale; also ten head of cattle, all high class and some of them registered. Also 150 head of hogs. The sale will close at 10 o'clock on Friday, October 19; the auction will be held at the McMaster farm, a mile north and slightly east of Hollister. After the stock named is disposed of, good horses will be sold at the barn in the city. The ranch sale begins at 10 o'clock on Friday, October 19, at Col. R. H. Clayton and E. O. Walters are auctioneers.

Japan Friendly to United States

Former Times Employee, Now in Navy, Says Land of Mikado Does Not Want to Fight Us.

"I believe Japan to be the last nation in the world that would enter a war with the United States," said Sid McDonald, a former Times employee, who is here from the San Francisco navy yard, visiting his sister, Mrs. Wilbur Hill, and who has spent four weeks in the city of Gooding. "Japan trades more with the United States than any other country," he continued, "and her prosperity depends on the continuance of that trade. I have been told on good authority that the Japanese navy exports are to this country. We were in Japan at the time of the coronation in 1916 and we were treated with the greatest enthusiasm and courtesy by all the people, and I believe that they were sincere about it. The certainly showed us a splendid time and every possible consideration. Japan is a beautiful country, one

Vivian Martin Delighting Admirers in Pretty Love Story--"Little Miss Optimist"

"LITTLE MISS OPTIMIST" MAKES DECIDED HIT WITH CLEVER VIVIAN MARTIN STARRING

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS "DOWN TO EARTH" AT CANTON-PICTURES

(First Night Review) "Go, like pictures like them!" With a sigh the young lady in the "seat behind" expressed her opinion of "Little Miss Optimist" as "the best" (based upon the screen). And the young lady had it steered up about as near as we can get it to you.

Young, old, men, women and children, regardless of tastes and preferences, all agree on such a picture as pretty little Vivian Martin was seen in Monday evening, and will be seen in Tuesday and Wednesday at the Idaho.

A pretty little love story of the girl herself, and the organist, mystery and comedy, with the final exposure of a murderer as he drops a toll-toll battered dime in the collection plate, is a combination that cannot fail to interest and thrill. Vivian Martin it is a delightful entertainment. "Little Miss Optimist" makes you laugh when the tears are near the surface. Her view of life is "Lalok doesn't happen; it's what you do with what happens."

The Youngville. Santry and Norton have a dance in the city. The dance is a success, and ends with some whirling dancing that lives up to the name. The other number, the Lamarr-James, is a musical comedy, which was also well received.

OF THE SCREEN

Jack Pickford and Gertrude Hitt's friends will be interested in knowing that they are working on a screen adaptation of "Tom Sawyer," taking the scenes where "Tom" himself had to be a hero. Charles Ray, new Paramount star, has a strenuous time in his picture, "The Son of His Father." Too many stars. Billie Burke's next picture will be "Arms and the Girl."

FAIRBANKS COMING AGAIN THURSDAY

As an especially big feature at the Idaho theater Thursday, Manager Mangel announces Douglas Fairbanks in his new Artcraft picture, "Down to Earth" written by himself and adapted to the screen by clever little Anita Loos. John Emerson, producer of previous Fairbanks-Artcraft triumphs, again plots the activities of the evergreen star in this production with notable results.

In fact, it is freely predicted that "Down to Earth" is undoubtedly the greatest Fairbanks screen vehicle ever given the popular star, the reason for this, no doubt, being the fact that he wrote it himself, independently adding to his accomplishments as an author.

Douglas Fairbanks has come to Wyoming to work on a new picture. Another Mary Pickford Artcraft is booked for the Idaho at an early date. It is none other than "The Heers of Sunnysbrook Farm."

Mexican Official Arrested Yesterday

Claims Immunity and Mexican Consul General Upholds His Contentions in Point.

(U. S. S. Released Wire) NEW YORK, Oct. 8. Jesus Martinez, Mexican vice consul at New York City, was arrested here today on the charge of retaining to comply with the requirements of the selective draft law.

Martinez claims exemption by being a member of the Mexican diplomatic corps. His contention is upheld by Juan P. Burns, Mexican consul general in this city. Burns hastened to make the $5,000 bail under which United States Consul Jesus Martinez held Martinez arrested today. The hearing is set for next Thursday.

Under present interpretation of the law Martinez stands in the light of a deserter and may be turned over to military authorities for court-martial. District United States Attorney Content is uncertain regarding the subject of jurisdiction in the case.

to carry their physical examination out to the limit which strict compliance with the regulations of the military department at the concentration camps. All this will be changed in the next draft. The examination will be complete in every way and the men who pass the doctors will be certain that they will be retained when they are called for active service.

Whether all of the men still on the eligible list will be examined was a question on which General Crowder was dumb today. He called attention, however, to the fact that he has some four million dollars available for use in continuing the work of his bureau and that the men will be in a long way in conducting examinations.

GIVES WOUND-HEALING DISCOVERY TO COLLEGE
BERNICE, Cal., Oct. 6.—Having discovered a substance which has proved remarkably successful in curing wounds and in causing wounds to heal at once which for months, or even years, had refused to yield to treatment, Dr. T. Brillford Robertson, professor of bacteriology in the University of California, has just executed a deed donating to the University of California all his patent rights in this valuable new substance.

The appalling profits resulting from the discovery are to constitute an endowment, the income to be applied to medical research.

This substance, made in army hospitals in Europe and in civil hospitals in America, "have proved the greatest value of the discovery." The appalling number of men wounded in the present war makes the discovery of special timeliness and value. Several new substances and new methods have been found by the "medical investigators" of the world since the war began which are extremely useful in combating infections in wounds. This new substance, however, "Tetheim," has a field of usefulness all of its own after other methods have rendered the tissues aseptic, and wounds still sometimes refuse to heal—especially where frost bite, burns or varicose veins have injured the vitality of the tissues. There are thousands of such cases in Europe today and they occupy the hospitals for an exceptionally long time, consuming drugs, time, space and food and frequently such cases have to be discharged unhealed. It is precisely these cases—the most expensive and most disabling types of wounds—which "Tetheim" will cure. Since it stimulates the sluggish tissues, and enables nature to work its own repair.

WORK ON LOCOMOTIVES FOR FRANCE IS RUSHED
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—American locomotives for war service in France are being manufactured at the rate of thirty a day. The first locomotive was turned out of the shops twenty days ago and the others were accepted. Orders have been given for 680 of these locomotives and for more than 3000 standard gauge freight cars. Narrow gauge equipment for use along the battle front has also been ordered. Orders for the first locomotive were placed with the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia on July 15. The first locomotive was completed on August 9.

Especially designed boilers, known as "superheaters," are being placed in these locomotives. In all other ways they are similar to the locomotives built in England. They are built by the Baldwin company.

The locomotive is not of the type used in this country. On roads where the heaviest type of engines in this country would haul 90 loaded freight cars this war locomotive would haul but 60 loaded cars. It is painted black and gray and marked with the letters, "U. S. A." The locomotive alone weighs about 168,000 pounds, with a tender—about 375,000 pounds.

Box cars for use by the American armies in France have three times the capacity of the standard gauge cars used by the French railway, and they have the usual coupling devices which will be interchangeable with the French equipment.
