CANDIDATES OF F. B. CHAIRMAN ASKED TO QUIT

DR. WHITE WILL SUGGEST RETIREMENT IN INTEREST OF HARMONY

Open Meeting to be Urged

Long Discussion Regarding Conditions Last Night Results in Final Harmony—Dr. White Is Thanked by Vote.

P. E. Dean—I think that we are together, Doctor, and all that is necessary for us to do is to elect a chairman for the next year...

Dr. White—"It would be impossible for me to say that they would resign before consulting them said the chairman of the farm bureau at the meeting Saturday."

Mr. Dean—"Will you ask them to resign?" Dr. White—"Yes, I will."

Dr. White has agreed to ask the candidates nominated by the farm bureau to resign before the annual election. We have had a long and interesting discussion...

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Dean and Dr. White had been invited to attend. On account of the crowd it had been found necessary to meet at the rooms of the Commercial club...

From the several districts, with one exception had been selected at the meeting of chairman; the one exception being on the part of the north-western district...

A vigorous attack was made by many on the plan to keep the directors in continuous session. It was pointed out that the directors were not only the general relations met only occasionally and then for a short time...

plan of electing one director each year from a different district and allowing all the stockholders a voice in selecting him. He said that this might be a good thing to do...

P. E. Dean suggested that inasmuch as the main point centered around the methods pursued in selecting the ticket by the farm bureau be re-arranged through and urged that Dr. White get them to resign before election and all to re-elect a ticket in an open election.

Dr. White demurred on the ground that the matter would have to go behind the chairmen. He said that the chairman had many proxies which they were in duty bound to vote for certain men...

The Farm Bureau has recently been re-organized. It has a new and very high, consisting of three new men, and though the Farm Bureau has been in existence for less than a year, they have effected many important changes in the by-laws...

One district should have an influential director, and the voters of the other districts feel that it is unfair to have one district so heavily represented. It is suggested that one district should have an influential director...

Such a plan is in direct opposition to the plan of the present, and yet the president of the Farm Bureau is to go to France to fight the identical thing that he has been instrumental in making but the management of this system, autocracy.

Early in the year there was a strong sentiment among the class of stockholders to elect a ticket in an open election. This sentiment was expressed by E. R. Hobbs...

Thanks-Giving

"Thank God for grace." —Browning. "Blessed be the Lord, who has not made us as other men." —Shakespeare. "Thank God, Bless God, all ye who suffer not more grief than you can weep for. That is well—that is light grieving!" —Browning.

AUSTRO-GERMAN DRIVE ON ITALIANS PROVES FAILURE

The night on the Combrail front in northern France was given over to violent cannonading.

British positions in the sector of Bourlon wood, three miles west of the German base of Cambrai, were heavily bombarded by German guns. There were no infantry actions.

Violent fighting with bayonet and sword for the possession of the village of Fontaine Notre-Dame and Bourlon three miles west of Cambrai was reported from northern France today.

Advices from the front told of fierce hand to hand struggles among the ruined houses of those villages and the fate of Lens and Arras. The Germans apparently have reinforced many of the fresh troops coming from the eastern front and are evidently determined to fight to the last gasp before they give up their key positions at Cambrai.

Paris, Nov. 28.—The work of preparing for the supreme inter-Allied war council is being rushed to completion.

Rome, Nov. 28.—Important gains have been made by the Italians in the northern Italy, said a dispatch from the Italian headquarters today.

West of the Brenta valley the Italians made a number of counter-attacks inflicting severe losses upon the German army.

The Italian lines in that mountain district have been extended.

Portis on Rivers to be Placed Under Martial Law by the United States Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The military policing of water fronts is to be extended to ports on the inland rivers. It was announced at the department of justice today that all river ports on water deep enough for the discharge of 500 tons will go under the same martial law which already has gone into effect on the New York water front and shortly is to be instituted at other ports.

MILITARIST IS URGING BIGGER GERMAN ARMY

VON FRYTAG SAYS THEY DIDN'T HAVE ENOUGH ARMY OR NAVY

Wants Empire Prepared for Next War

More Complete and Extensive System of Training Than Ever Demanded for Germany After She 'Gets Hers' This Time.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 28.—With Germany facing the prospect of a great world conflict now raging, Prussian militarists are already looking forward to "The Next War."

It is written by Lieutenant General Baron von Froytag-Loringhoven, who was quartermaster general of the German army when General Falkenhayn was chief of the German general staff.

Another bond issue. Total appropriations including loans to allies and central authorities for the present fiscal year have already reached $1,200,000,000.

"General" von Froytag then argues for a greater German navy to cope on sea with the increase of the German army on land.

Popular interest in the senate will be centered during the early days of the session on the outcome of the proceedings against Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

The "victory" of the anti-trusts in the senate will bring the so-called Susan B. Anthony resolution to submit the question of national women's suffrage to the states into the foreground.

In one chapter of "training" the writer says that the reports of German boys must be utilized for military purposes and that the principle of two and three years compulsory military training must be continued.

WAR PARAMOUNT AS CONGRESS CONVENES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Here new scenes of the importance of the war to be settled by Congress at the session beginning on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Confronted by a war budget staggering the imagination, an accumulation of problems of the utmost importance to the war surpassing in volume and importance any legislative program in American parliamentary annals.

Whether they will be able to make this a real campaign issue remains to be determined by the developments of the day.

Foremost in the list of legislative needs are the gigantic money bills, including bond issues, increased war taxes, and appropriations exceeding the unprecedented figures of the last session.

The measure, consisting of $1,000,000,000, is to provide approximately $2,500,000,000, substantially the amount of the war revenue law passed in October.

The passage of such a bill means that heavier levies, probably a billion dollars additional, will be imposed on the citizenry.

Popular interest in the senate will be centered during the early days of the session on the outcome of the proceedings against Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin.

The "victory" of the anti-trusts in the senate will bring the so-called Susan B. Anthony resolution to submit the question of national women's suffrage to the states into the foreground.

LETTER FROM LOCAL BOY LAUDS Y. M. C. A.

In a very interesting letter written at Hempstead, New York, Thomas Irwin of Kimberly writes of many good things in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. work that is carried on among the boys who have "joined the colors."

The toughest period of an American soldier's life consists of those seven nerve-racking days that he spends aboard a transport, going "over there."

Stowe's Pharmacy has kindly consented to take care of this matter, and all the men who will give a dollar or more to this cause may pay their subscription to Mr. Stowe, or mail their dollar to Stowe's Pharmacy or the Kimberly Advance.

of or group of organizations, working at the present time with an aim toward benefiting the army, either as an organization, or individually.

Every regiment in this camp has its Y. M. C. A. reading and writing tables, as well as pen, ink and paper, are provided free of charge. Straps, money orders, and certain commodities necessary to soldiers, such as canteens, are sold by the man in charge.

All these homelike touches help to make a soldier's life more agreeable, and I feel sure that the majority of the boys enlisting what is being done for them.

Candidly, if you wish to know whether or not the army Y. M. C. A. is worthy of support, I take the greatest pleasure in telling you that in my opinion, it most certainly is!

Sincerely, THOMAS G. IRWIN

Romantic Spell Falls and Secret Love Affairs Reach Zenith. Are Consummated in Pretty Weddings.

Thursday of last week was Cupid's day in Kimberly, and many of the good citizens of the village were taken by surprise when it was announced that two of Kimberly's popular young ladies had given their hands in marriage to well known young men of the community.

The wedding of Miss Eva Wilson and Mr. Willard Dunn took place on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dunn, of Kimberly, with Rev. V. G. Backman officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left Friday night for Boise for a few weeks. They will return again to Kimberly and make their home here.

the near future, and thus it appears that the Kimberly's love affairs, which have been making for some time, some of them unknown to the rest of the community, are fast being fulfilled. Thanksgiving in Kimberly is to be a Cupid's season.

Mrs. Fred Burns left Tuesday of this week for a month's visit in Northville, South Dakota, taking the two little girls with her.

Mrs. J. W. Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Scott, gave birth to a fine baby boy. Both mother and baby are doing nicely.

Miss Sellier, daughter of our new telephone manager, is now working in the First National bank with John Strayer, Ralph Fry and Boyd Schmidt, who are working in Milner, were home over Sunday, visiting.

Mr. Tilling, of Rock Creek, was in Kimberly Saturday, for an extended visit with his father, Lawrence Tilling, who has been duck hunting this week on the Murtough lake, and report good success.

W. R. Summers left Saturday with three cars of sheep for Chicago. Mr. Tom Hutchinson and John LaSalle, both of this place, have each purchased "rifle" acres of land near Gooding. Mr. Clarence Decker of this place made the sales.

W. M. Martin has accepted the position at the Geni State Lumber company recently held by George Hatch. George Smith has left for an extended visit to Nevada.

Louie Brock, formerly of this place, was transferred to Long Island, New York, and expects to sail for France in the near future.

R. W. Sitters met with what might have been a serious accident Saturday evening while turning on an electric light in the livery stable. He received a shock which sent him to the floor. As both hands were on the light he was unable to get loose. One of his helpers pulled the wire away, and Mr. Sitters escaped with but few injuries. One hand was badly burnt and he reports having bruised his arm when he fell on the cement floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone spent Sunday at the Bull Sweating home. The Wood river fishermen returned Sunday evening and report fair luck.

Clarence Decker motored to Gooding Friday and returned Sunday. Lealie Zerk will leave Friday morning for Lenark, Ill., where he expects to be with the winter with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Della Frank is the new central girl at the telephone office. John Wolfe of Twin Falls was in Kimberly on business Saturday.

L. G. Stottler says he believes the smallpox would not be as severe as the time he spends aboard a transport on his way to the battlefields of France.

Amusements on U. S. Troop Ships

Eighty Dollars Will Provide Music—Stowe's Pharmacy Handles The Subscriptions

The toughest part of soldier's life is the time he spends aboard a transport on his way to the battlefields of France. The sailings of troop ships are unheralded. They slip out silently in the night. There are no tender parings at the pier. No one to say to our soldier boys, "Good-bye, good luck, God bless you."

Amusements are sadly needed on the transports. William Stowe, local pharmacist to who this matter was first mentioned by the Edison music manufacturers and who will take charge of the local subscriptions, says that $80 will provide music on a transport for the duration of the war.

A HIGHER CALL

Many calls come to the individual during these times, calls to buy Liberty Bonds, calls to help the Red Cross, and the Y. M. C. A., calls to conserve food—and to produce food and clothing in greater quantities. These are worthy calls and the respect and response of every patriotic citizen of the nation, and especially so when they call for those calls are only the echo of a greater call, that of freedom, human rights, and civilization, that of love, co-operation, advancement and justice.

No one is in doubt concerning the hopes and ambitions of America in this great hour. The eyes that have not power are as far from being selfish as the east is from the west. A higher motive and a more worthy aspiration than the highest of any nation than that which caused the United States to throw aside, or rather we should say, cast on the waters, her greatest ideal for peace and prosperity, in order that she might defend the rights of humanity in every part of the earth and take up the banner of all men and classes of men those ideals which she hoped to attain for herself.

Among all the nations of the world, there has never been in the history of human affairs a nation as philanthropic as the United States. The sake of moral and religious freedom, that men might live, learn and be occupied according to the highest ideals of their nation, America has ever continued to be the champion of democracy, of human liberty, of the oppressed and of justice. The eyes that have not her haters are confronted with presence of liberty and industry.

Throughout her history she has followed the leadership of great Christian spirited men, whose high sense of honor and justice, have led her through the darkest and darkest of times and an age of highest ideals and the purest hopes.

It is not that we would neglect the needs of the extent of the call that she is without sin, and that there are no needs and demands for great social and economic readjustments in the things of her life, but that we might impress upon the minds of her citizens that she does stand out prominently as the champion of truth, and of the highest standards of human and even long before those things days if indeed it is possible that they may be happy, when we stand on the shore awaiting to welcome home again sons who left us in order to do their duty, who come to us deformed, crippled, diseased, and broken down in health for the remainder of their lives, or perhaps when they return, they must face a long and bitter season of reconstruction. Then we must rebuild the towers of civilization which have fallen, once more spread abroad upon the divine justice and systems.

The citizens of America, because of their high calling, the conscience of no other people in the world can appreciate, those higher and more worthy calls that come to us from the nation itself, but arise out of congestion of conditions and circumstances which in union with divine will demand that such calls be heeded.

We speak of an eminently higher call than ever came to the nation, it is the call of the divine, of human nature, of mortal and human necessity, of future efficiency, and of future peace, the work of reconstruction. After this great war shall close, and earth, churches and school and the institutions of art and progress, stand in the divine task of re-population with great progressive men and women the destitute fields of industry and culture.

We know that we must repopulate the world with great men and great women; men and women of great mental and moral courage to take up the great work that the human race has never or likely ever will know. The greater the reconstruction, the building in a few short years the civilization which untold centuries have labored on in the past.

It will not be this generation, who will have to face the reconstruction period, but we will be the other generation, and probably at a time when that other generation will yet be in its youth. Therefore, the greater the effort we make now, the greater the responsibility rests upon our shoulders. For without being efficient ourselves, how can we teach others to be, and without upholding a high standard of character, how can we expect to create in our offspring that standard which will be necessary in the upbuilding of the future?

This call to greater earnestness, to greater efficiency, to greater morality is that higher call which we must hearken to and which demands our response. Are we as Americans equal to it? WE AIME.

HERBERT HARDIN WRITES AGAIN OF ARMY LIFE

Second Letter From Kimberly to Reveal World Pictures of Army Life in Training Camps.

The following from Herbert Hardin, son of John Hardin of Kimberly, is a second letter received this month, telling of the interesting affairs and activities of American army life in the great training centers of the nation.

Dear Dad:

Will try and write to you a few lines concerning my army life at the present time; my pleasure, my misfortunes, etc.

To begin with, since I have transferred, I like the army much better than at my old station as I enjoy the work I am now doing—work for "30th—My days work begins here at 8 a. m. and leaves off in the afternoon at 5:45, having between 11:45 and 12:45 for dinner and recreation. After these hours I am free to do as I like and am permitted to leave the post at that time every day if I so desire, which makes it almost like any other position in civilian life.

My work consists almost entirely of typing and clerical work, which, owing to my commercial education in four years of high school, enables me to handle the work without any difficulty, and, as I like the work, the army is far from burdensome in my opinion. I have covered lines of clerical work in no way similar to that of civil life, and it requires some time for a new man to become accustomed to the form, etc. used.

It would be rather hard to explain all my work here in the office. I am filing clerk and assistant correspondent, and, in fact, everything that comes out of this office I enter in the correspondence book and file a copy of the letter, so that I can find any letter written down here at any moment's notice, although there are from fifteen to thirty written every day. Besides this I issue the canteen orders, the Post-Exchange where the men can buy certain articles that they might need such as tobacco, towels, and in fact almost anything that a soldier has any use for. This order is entered in a book for the purpose and in fact being the soldier's next pay. If he so desires he is permitted to draw one-third of his pay in this way, and as some of the boys have a habit of being paid most of the time, this canteen idea comes in very handy to them. These things that I have mentioned constitute the larger part of my work, though I have considerable odd typing to do besides, along various lines.

Now as to recreation. For a soldier in San Francisco, there is nothing for him to do at most times. The people of San Francisco have certainly opened up their hearts and throats to their poor soldiers, and are trying in most every way to make soldiering more pleasurable for him. Most every night in the week there is a dance, program, or variety of something similar for the soldiers. At these places the boys meet respectable people and enjoy, in fact a great variety of nice young ladies. If anyone does not care to dance there is always something else for him to do which he might enjoy more, like music and singing, etc. These matters are absolutely free and the soldier is put to no expense, whatever in going outside of "cat" bars.

Also there are four soldier clubs in the downtown part of the city, where no one is allowed but soldiers and sailors. In these clubs there are lounging facilities, books, papers and magazines of all descriptions, pool tables, games, writing material, music in abundance, and in fact everything to make it possible for a soldier to enjoy himself. Besides these we have the army Y. M. C. A., which is a great deal on the same plan as the clubs. So between the clubs, Y. M. C. A., and the entertainments, house parties and dances given by individuals, it is a very easy matter for one of Uncle Sam's men to enjoy himself to the full extent.

I have met here some very nice people; people which, I suspected in my first vision of San Francisco, did not exist. For I must say that upon my first arriving in this great metropolis, I was far from being satisfied. I longed to be back in Sunny Southern Idaho. However, I found that Fresno was not so bad after all, becoming acquainted as I did that there were some very nice people living within her bounds, and people who take an interest in Uncle Sam's men. One very poor chap who has never been away from home before and at times has a "toughing down" habit, to be back home again and be with his friends and loved ones. Not mentioning any names, but I have known some fellows, one fellow, I am sure of who looked very dissatisfied when his mind happened to wander back to the old home, but upon being invited to some nice place for dinner and having a good old meal on the same order as mother used to make, with lots of music and singing, the homelickness disappeared. I am enjoying a clean life and not forgetting the teachings of our dear old dads and mothers—the years gone by, we make the most of it. And so by living as a soldier and those people that are kind to some of us homeless boys, are helping to the great and good work that is being done. As it is growing late, I will close this and go to bed.

SMALLPOX EFFECTS KIMBERLY

WAR WORK AMONG WOMEN
Just as the Red Cross auxiliary of Kimberly was getting down to real hard constructive work for the coming Christmas season, another broke out in Kimberly, and after only two days of hard earnest work the ladies were obliged to discontinue their efforts for the time being. However, in the two days devoted to the work of sewing and preparing Christmas boxes for the boys at the front, many excellent things were accomplished, which delighted the Twin Falls ladies very much.

U. S. OFFICERS DISCARD HELGOLAND PLAN

Irwin Barbour (U. S. Staff Correspondent)
—WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The result of the conversation of American's three outstanding naval geniuses—Admirals Benson and Mayo and Vice-Admiral Sims—with the British and French Admirals, talk in naval circles here of "going after the German bases" has suddenly fallen away. Only a short while ago the Army and Navy Club and other places where the more enthusiastic and radical of the naval officers gathered, were the scene of the military conversation of what would be done to the Germans, and of frank and outspoken criticism of the "retrograde" methods of the European allies, especially England in not "at least trying" to smash the German "west triangle," of which Helgoland is the apex and principal fortress.

Through their excessive abroad however, America's naval leaders have learned by bitter experience that facts and figures are not available to the American navy—that any naval attack on Helgoland is a very close and a very sudden. Furthermore, the impression has grown here since some of the amphibious secret information has spread among the British, that a German attack on Helgoland is unnecessary as well. The "commercial blockade," although a slow process, will have eventually a more effectual, the same effect—that a breaking through of the German naval defense would have immediately. And, furthermore, it is now considered that an attack on Helgoland is the very thing that the Germans hope for. They hope for it because, knowing that any attack on fortified shores is invariably more costly to naval forces than to land defenses, they may be able to cripple the allied fleets to such an extent that their own would be on a parity with the British and a naval excursion from beyond their headlines with the prospect of a victory which would open the sea to them would be within the realm of possibilities. As it is now, they are able to above water and their submarines, on the word of competent officials, are towing more in effectiveness every day and hour than the war continues.

Hardwood Floors

Are the mirrors of the smile of dancers and the romping child. When the blustering, cold rain spells make life outside disagreeable—and when you are bent upon a good time the hardwood floors have a wonderful attraction.

You can easily forget the gloom outside for the pleasure to be had inside.

The cost is so small—the pleasure so great—the wear so much longer that it will pay you to let us estimate the cost.

One of the great and decisive struggles of the war is on in Italy—and at the present time all is favorable to the entente allies.

An Idaho hog sold in Portland Monday for $100. There are some left in the state that, on a comparative basis of hoghishness would bring at least $100.

A huge percussion bomb was found on the Grand Trunk railway track at Detroit Tuesday. "No clue," but a day of reckoning is going to overtake some of those assassins!

A note addressed by the president to the people of Russia making clear the attitude of the United States under existing circumstances seems to be expected in Washington.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, has finally said something, namely: "I favor the immediate expenditure by the government of $100,000,000 for freight cars to relieve the traffic congestion."

One of the most cheering acts of our national administrators is the placing of every seaport under martial law, whereby a really strict and effective surveillance of all comers and goers will be enforced.

The three American officers, four non-coms and eight privates, who sustained the first casualties received by the U. S. troops on the French front, on Monday received the "croix de guerre" from the French authorities.

After spending six of her nine sons to war, Mrs. Richard McGurran, of Chicago, lost her husband and one of the remaining three through an auto accident last Tuesday. Justice is said to be blind, and it sometimes seems as if Providence couldn't see any too well.

It has been decided that league base ball will continue next season, war or no war. Well, perhaps the entertainment is quite as badly needed as ever before; and, as salaries are to receive a "slashing cut," some of the "good eyes" may exchange a ball bat for a ball gun.

In preparation of a field for artillery practice in connection with the camp at Dos Moines, Iowa, the authorities took over a field containing thirty acres of unhusked corn. While they were making the improvements, once they turned nine hundred Iowa soldier boys into the field at once—and the corn was husked in just forty minutes. Lively scene, that!

WAR PROFITS TAX—ANOTHER VIEW

Comes now the mining men of Idaho, and raise a howl about the excess profits tax passed by the last congress. While agitators are charging that it is grossly inadequate the mine owners say that it is excessive and unscientific. Unscientific it is like most of the other taxes in this country and always have been. But it is not excessive, and though high enough for a starter, it will probably have to be raised later. The mining interests would hardly be more satisfied with a really scientific tax than they would with this one. They are doing a good work in suggesting the unscientific character of our taxation "system," since it may lead to consideration of the subject.

"BUREAU" POLITICAL DOPE

Apparently innocent matter contributed to certain monopolistic newspapers as "bureau" or "Special" news from Washington, is intended to quietly stick a knife in the administration; and do all the political-harm possible to the men who hold offices. Spley writeups of alleged incidents, which may or may not have occurred, are so constructed that nobody can deny them; for names are generally omitted, and these are written with a view of causing dissatisfaction among the people. Considering the fact that the object of this special matter is, compiled under the direction of Jonathan Bourne, the most slippery and unscrupulous of the whole special privilege bunch, its plausibility and poison can well be understood by those who know his record. Take the "Statesman Bureau" story, published Monday, regarding the alleged fact that some subordinate in the service of Food Administrator Garfield was found with his office too hot at the time that his chief was advising the use of less coal—it may or may not have been true. If true, he was only one in hundreds connected with the department and the incident was insignificant. But note the subtle insinuation in the beginning and ending. The first paragraph reads: "The waste of coal by the fuel administration is becoming the standard joke of Washington." The closing paragraph is: "The practical joke—and it was thoroughly practical—filled utterly to teach a lesson."

The careful reader would see that the story referred to the alleged condition said to have been found in a single room of a subordinate, but the casual reader would gather, as it was intended that he should, that the whole food administration was grossly regardless of the very things which they were themselves advising. And then in the same story was another insinuation contained in the words: "The official, as usually is the custom, was 'out at lunch.'"
Fair criticism is always desirable. This sort is not fair. It is of a char-

Entertainment at Hansen—The school children and members of the American-Lab-Leo-Wash club will give an entertainment and bazaar at the Hansen school house tomorrow evening, Friday, November 30, for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Box Social Success—The box social given by the public school at Berger Friday evening was a success and a fair. The proceeds of the sale of thirty boxes amounted to $120.00, which will go toward purchasing a Victrola for the Berger school. A very interesting and successful program was given by the children of the school.

"Balmed" Lots of Eggs—Mrs. Allmon of Pleasant View Ranch has sold this summer from April until the first of November, two hundred and eighty six dozen eggs. Her seventy chickens are Rhode Island Red and Plymouth Rocks. She is now giving them extra care and hopes to reach the three hundred mark before long.

JULIAN ELTINGE IN "THE COUNTESS CHARMING"

GOOD LOOKING AND FUNNY THE GREATEST OF WOMAN IMPERSONATORS IS SEEN IN THE SCREAMINGLY FUNNY FARCE AT IDAHO COMMENCING TODAY

STAR OF "COUSIN LUCY" THE "FASCINATING WIDOW" AND OTHER SENSATIONAL PRESSERS AND BRILLIANT PLAY OF FUN FARCE AND FICTION.

WHEN you see Julian Eltinge "all dolled up" in feminine finery at the Idaho he considered, well, know why he is considered the greatest impersonator of women in the world.

As the Russian Countess in "The Countess Charming" he surpasses anything he has ever done in his brilliant stage career. In this play he fools sweethearts, friends and foes alike, and winds up in a peck of trouble because he fooled the police also.

Fixes Fashions in Towns For a number of years Mr. Eltinge has made a sensation on the stage by the number and gorgeousness of his gowns and in this, his first photodramatic production, he handles an entirely new wardrobe of unusual variety and style.

A Real Life Plot The plot is a whirlwind comedy in which the audience is "in" it, but in which the suspense is continued throughout as this "dual" character as a beautiful Countess tries to help the Red Cross fund and himself to a bride.

Vandeville and Music The vaudeville program for Miss Nora Starr of Wendell visited friends and relatives in Twin Falls and vicinity last week.

Held in Church—The first religious ceremony in the new Presbyterian church was performed last Friday when Rev. A. H. Brand united in marriage Joseph D. Kolb and Miss Olga Green, both prominent Buhl people.

G. A. R. Ladies Election—The ladies of the G. A. R. will hold their regular monthly business meeting in the I. O. O. F. hall on Saturday afternoon, December 1. All members are urged to be present as there will be an election of officers.

Stone Leaves on Business—A. L. Stone of the Alfred J. Brown Seed company has gone to Montana and Washington on a business trip. He says that those interested in making pea or bean contracts with his company will go can do so at either the warehouse or by calling on William or Thomas Barrington. He says that if bean men produce sufficient acreage his company contemplates getting planters to furnish bean growers another year.

Fix Crippen Grade—D. Marquard, of Jarbidge, who was in the city yesterday, said that things are progressing nicely on the Crippen grade and the balance of the machinery for the Long Hike will be hauled this way.

Gamblers Again Up—Emma and R. H. Gammater have been cited to appear in the probate court December 3 on account of alleged criminal treatment to their little girl, Eleanor. Gammater was previously fined on a similar charge.

Allred Wants Hay—Wife was received today at the office of County Agent Donald McLean from Harvey Allred, head of the state bureau of farm markets that thousands of tons of hay would be wanted at $20 a ton by the bureau, or through the bureau. He urged all interested to inquire either of him or of County Agent McLean. There is a discrepancy of about $2 a ton between the price here and at Kansas City, but as cars are not available and as it is not known what the price will be when they are, hay owners are not getting as much comfort out of this as they otherwise might.

Pilfering Boys Arrested—Emil Nadeau, a fifteen-year-old stepson of a man named Reed, who lives across the street from the South Park grocery, and another boy about the same age named Lester Samuelson, were taken into custody yesterday by Probation Officer V. J. Ormick. The boys, on being charged with pilfering things, said that they had taken three extra auto tires which they alleged that they sold at the Hanson second-hand store. They also claimed that they had long been in the habit of extracting meat from grocery stores from wagons and autos. They said that they took these to their homes where they were accepted without questions being asked as to where they came from. The Nadeau boy said that he and a younger half brother, aged nine years, had helped their stepfather haul hay from other people's fields for their team. Nadeau was paroled to go to the Biney & Gould sheep ranch at Richfield, the proprietors of which know the boy and said that he would make good. The father of the Samuelson boy promised to inquire where he got things, to keep him at school and to keep him in nights, so he was also let out on trial.

Thursday and the days following looks unusually promising. Miss Georgia Chantress is booked, a comedienne—whichever who comes exceptionally highly recommended. On the same bill are Marion and Winters in "Cabaret Capers," an original novelty number.

With the Film Folk

With the release of Cecil B. DeMille's superb photodramatic production of "The Woman God Forgot," the new Artercraft spectacle featuring Geraldine Farrar, the prediction may confidently be made that it promises to equal, if not surpass, the splendid record achieved by "Joan the Woman," in which the celebrated diva made her first cinema appearance under Artercraft auspices.

"The woman a strange thing to say of a man, but it is undoubtedly true. Julian Eltinge, the talented female impersonator, actually has a handsome wardrobe of woman's fashions than most stars of screen stars. He shows many of these off to good advantage in "The Countess Charming."

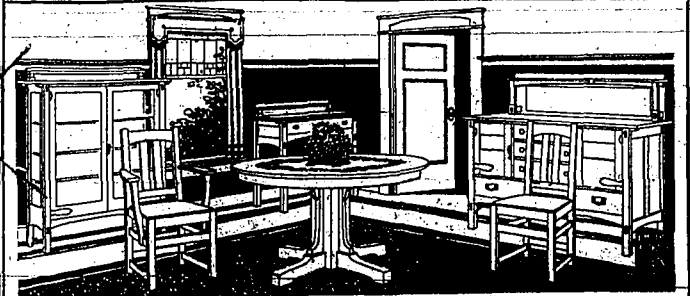

Yosemite hasn't all the waterfalls in California. They've got one at the Mack Bennett studio, where Paramount comedies are being created. It required six months to build and will be destroyed in one minute by an explosion, following its appearance in a forthcoming fun film.

Jazzville has been created in California—Jazzville, wherein the scenes of the stressful comedy, "A Country Hero," which will be a vehicle for Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, are being staged. The story which is being developed in the streets of this quaint village will be one of the most original, as well as the funniest, that has ever been done into a film.

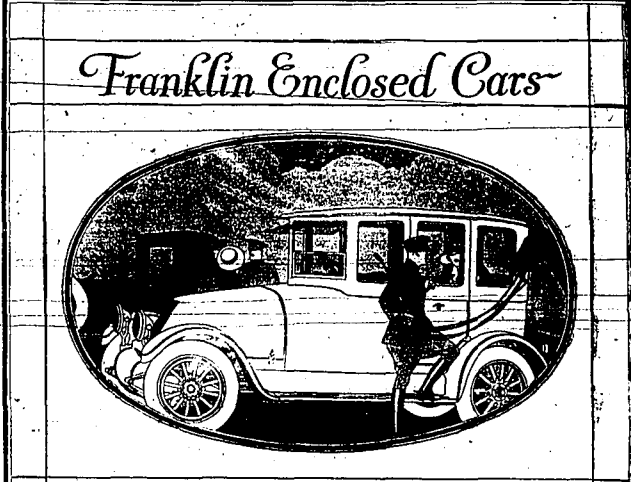

Dorothy Dalton, Ince's famous Triangle star, has completed her first picture for Paramount under Mr. Ince's direction. The title of her latest production is "The Price Mark."

Being expelled from school, running away twice, interrupting an elopement impersonating a famous danseuse are only a very few of the many adventures that keep pretty little Ann Pennington of the Ziegfeld Follies busy in her latest Paramount picture, "The Antics of Ann," which is to be the attraction at the Idaho first of the week.

Morbid Crowd at De Saulles Trial

Women Faint as They Try to Crowd Into Room—Defendant Tells Dramatic Story.

MINNEOLA, L. I., Nov. 26.—Three women fainted and many were hurt and several men lost pieces of their wardrobe, when the doors were opened after the noon recess today in the trial of Mrs. Blanca de Saulles.

The crowd jammed their way into the narrow passageway, pushed, shoved and elbowed into the doors, a mass of screaming, crying humanity that got beyond the control of the police. With the force of an avalanche they rushed the doors, hurled them both open and poured pell-mell and top of one another into the court room.

In the rush one young girl was hurled to the floor and was only saved from serious injury by bailiffs who fought to hurl back the crowd.

In the midst of the excitement Justice Manning appeared from his private chambers and rapped for order. With his face white with passion, the judge ordered that the court room be cleared.

"Such conduct is worse than disgraceful," the court said. "Clear the court room of all but newspaper folk and witnesses and permit those to come in who have passes."

"When the chairs are all filled, then close the doors and clear the hall," he continued. "This is not a circus or a theater, but a court of justice." Casting aside her apathetic manner as though it had been worn for a mask, Mrs. Blanca de Saulles, on the murder of her husband was again clever, keen, flushing-eyed Latin girl of former years when she took the witness stand today.

Without hesitation and apparently with well studied preparation, she answered the leading questions submitted to her by her counsel.

There was a slight flush in the usually pallid cheeks and an expression of the eyes which seemed to glow in the witness' appreciation of the import of her testimony.

"Jack" de Saulles was last named by the girl wife. She told of incidents to show that the former Yale football star had been friendly with other women after their marriage.

Her testimony for the greater part had much to do with the alleged disputation of her fortune by her husband. "When he found out how much money I had ($100,000) he was very much disappointed and said to me this I do not very much."

She told of the many amounts she had given him ranging from $500 up to $15,000. She told of two blank checks she had signed before leaving on a trip to Europe. These checks were later filled out by her husband for $5000 each, she said.

"When I asked him what had become of the money, he said he had paid it for a house on 78th street in New York city," she said. "Later, I found that he had only paid $7500."

A copy of "Town Topics" detailing the doings of the Duke of Manchester was then introduced because Mrs. de Saulles testified she had read it after having had her attention called to it by friends. The article was a scathing denunciation of the Sunday brawls held in a cottage rented by the duke at Premium Point, L. I.

The story told of how Jack de Saulles assisted the Duke in entertaining prominent doctors and devotees of the night life of Broadway, also of how one woman did the Lady Godiva stunt some clothes parade in the ocean.

Later Mrs. de Saulles moved into the house at 78th street where she made ready to receive her husband who was then in Canada.

On his return she said he told her he was going to Europe on war contracts. De Saulles did not return from Europe—she declared.

She said she had called on him in London.

"When I arrived there he told me I could not go to the hotel he was stopping at because he was too busy and there were too many men," she testified.

She went to visit her friend at another hotel, she declared and the subject of her separation caused much comment among her friends.

Who in London she said, she went to a hotel and asked if her husband was there.

"Who are you?" the clerk asked. "I am his wife," was the reply. "Which one?" was the rejoinder.

On another occasion de Saulles showed her a card from a woman who was well known to the lower world.

"I asked him if he knew her well," she said, "and he told me he did."

"Then I asked if he ever kissed her and he said he did. That made me feel miserable."

By a peculiar trick of fate, she explained, she was prevented from taking passage on the Lusitania on its final trip. A misunderstanding of her husband's orders prevented the trip, she said, then adding:

"When I heard of its going down, I wished I was on it."

The witness said de Saulles drank a great deal and was in the habit of giving parties at home and then absconding himself.

"I was very unhappy," she added "and asked him if he wouldn't try and do better."

"If he could not help the kind of a life he was living as he was not made to settle, down."

She told him she wished to come to Idaho and he permitted it, she said. She visited with her baby in 1915 and, as she left the United States she testified she was happy to get away, she said. She testified she did not tell her mother, or others about her married troubles.

Headquarters Are Again on the Drift

Moved Temporarily to Revolving Office—Sewing Room in Mr. E. Bascom—Other R. C. News.

Headquarters will be found temporarily in room 2 in the Barclay building in the rooms occupied by the recruiting office. It is with deep regret that the present quarters are vacated, which were placed at the disposal of the Red Cross only until such time as they should be rented.

The Red Cross sewing department is nicely settled in the basement of the Methodist church. The large shipment of yarn, so long delayed has arrived and the knitting will be continued at the sewing room instead of the headquarters as formerly.

Experienced knitters are badly needed as the demand for socks and sweaters increases as winter advances.

Surgical Dressings.—Surgical dressings are being prepared in the basement of the high school in the room formerly used for sewing.

Two night classes have been arranged for on Monday and Tuesday evenings of each week.

Anyone wishing to join either of these classes please communicate with Mrs. Blagel.

The gown and cap which must be worn by anyone doing this work may be obtained from the Episcopal Guild in a coat of $2. This may be ordered from Mrs. Alan Saylor.

Mr. Collins Much Improved.—Mr. Joseph Collins, director of bureau of civilian relief in the northwestern division, who arrived last week in a critical condition, is convalescing at the Twin Falls hospital. His sister arrived from Seattle on Sunday to accompany him home.

Mrs. McElbert's Returns.—Mrs. McElbert returned from New York on Sunday. She reports all fine at Camp Mills and that the fruit cakes reached their destination in good condition.

Godmother Packets.—The Christmas packages and donations are coming in generously and the list must be in by Friday noon as all are to be shipped December 1st.

Membership Drive.—The Red Cross Christmas membership drive will take place from December 17th to December 25th. Let every citizen of Twin Falls county help bring the national enrollment to the 15,000,000 mark.

Red Cross Seals.—Red Cross seals are for sale at headquarters. Make this a Red Cross Christmas by using them freely on your cards, letters and packages.

Teachers Join in "National Sport".—A mass meeting of the teachers of the public schools was held on Tuesday evening at the high school for the purpose of learning to knit. Instructions were furnished by the knitting department of the chapter.

It has been decided that the boys as well as the girls will take up knitting as part of their school work and some of the pupils are already proficient enough to "teach the teacher."

Thrift is the order of the day; economical food recipes are printed in the Pure Food section every Tuesday. Read them in the TIMES with profit.

GET 7 PER CENT MONEY.—Farmers! If you want a loan on your farm, call at my office in the Bank & Trust building, Twin Falls, Idaho. I will make it for you promptly at 7 per cent—not 7 per cent and commission. Why pay more? No charge and no delay for examination. Make these desired arrangements by seeing me at once. C. A. The Girl Who Was A Soldier Boy

HOW I WENT "OVER THERE" WITH PERSHING'S DIVISION By HAZEL CARTER

Mrs. Hazel-Carter of Douglas, Ariz., is a young woman, twenty-two, whose young husband, Corporal John J. Carter of the United States Army, was ordered to France with the Pershing expedition.

Determined to accompany him, she obtained a soldier's uniform and fell in as a private on his departure. She was ten days at sea on the transport before discovered through a coincidence at the arrival of the famous division in France, she was returned home against her wishes.

It is a story of romance, dramatic in its qualities, full of the soldier color and still in of real news value, since Mrs. Carter is the first to relate the details of that voyage and her arrival first hand—she is the only one.

COPYRIGHT, 1917, BY THE BELL SYNDICATE

CHAPTER I I Decide to Go to France.

IT'S a long way from Douglas, Ariz., to "some port in France," but I made the trip flunked up as a dough-boy, and I would go farther than that to be near my husband. However, the "old man," an every commanding officer is called in the army, sent me back on the same transport after I had spent five days in "hot" within sight of my husband, but out of reach, and five nights walking the floor and without sleep.

I am going back again and pay my own way and get behind the lines and take care of the boys. I know so well when they are hit. The doctor says these stories is going to help pay my fare, and then I won't have to fool the officers, as I did, with the regulations and rules which on the same line and mean to each other as the conformation of a man permits, knees straight without stiffness, body erect, from the hips inclining slightly forward; shoulders squared and falling evenly; arms and hands hanging straight down, thumbs outward, little finger opposite seam of trousers, head erect, chin slightly drawn in without constraint, eyes looking straight in front, catching every "mean" in the air. That is the position of a soldier. * * * I looked them all right.

I think the authorities were mean not to permit me to land in France. As long as I was there, I decided to see if they didn't have stretched a point and allowed me to have had a look at the war. But they were firm. They said if you might see an example for other girls to follow and the first thing you know Uncle Sam would have a crop of lady soldiers on his hands. "At that," I cannot see why I shouldn't be a soldier and a good one too. My father was a regular in the Seventh Cavalry. I am the wife of a soldier, one of the bravest, best Samuels under the flag. He is over there now on the job, doing his bit to make the world safe for democracy, as they say. And I am over here praying he won't stop a German while hanging while at it.

It was when the idea of posing as a "soldier" came to me that I met my husband, John J. Carter, who was a corporal in the Eighteenth Infantry, stationed at Douglas, Ariz. He belongs to K company. There was a lot of talk among the boys for a long time about being ordered out. None of them knew where the Eighteenth would be sent. They used to come to our house in Pringleville, right outside of Douglas, when they were off duty and do a great deal of sunbathing and playing. Some of them thought they would be kept on the border to see that things remained quiet there and kid with the Mexicans. Others and some thought they would be sent to Pershing to France. The old timers were pulling for the latter.

As I look back now I must have had the germ of the idea in the back of my head ever since I was a little girl. It even to myself. You see, I was married, only... last December, and the thought of my husband going away and leaving me behind stirred my imagination. We went together for a year and a half before we dug up the yearson. I wish I had that year and a half with him now.

One day Corporal Carter came home from the supply depot, where he had been on gunk duty. The minute I saw his face I knew he had his orders. He was not excited, because he is an old timer at soldiering. He told me he was leaving the next day under secret orders. There was not much warning. The troops just packed up and left. I did not tell him I was going, too, because he knows I always go through with anything he tells me to do and it might have worried him. But I had determined to make a try at it anyhow. That evening and the next morning, while he was busy attending to the details of packing and getting out, I was pretty busy myself. I knew where there was a discarded khaki uniform, regulation army, that would fit me. By the uniform I mean the trousers, coat, shirt and campaign hat.

I wondered that I took it so calmly, but of course he thought it was on the level and didn't realize that I had decided—had no hint of it, in fact. No sooner was he out of sight than I began to do some very tail hustling. I went to a lady barber and told her I was my hair cropped close to my head, soldier's style. I had an unusually good head of hair, long, luxuriant and black. The barber—almost wept when I insisted it had to go. She cut it so I could part it on the side. The only time during the operation I had a pang of regret was when she began shaving my neck. The razor made me realize I was in for something mighty big. I had a good laugh when I took my first peek in the mirror at myself as a boy. I wasn't bad. The lady barber did not laugh. The sight of such a sacrifice seemed to make her sad. She told me most folks wanted to grow hair—not lose it.

After the hair cut it did not take me very long to jump into my uniform. I have spent much of my life on a ranch, where I wore riding breeches or khaki overalls, so the clothes were familiar to me and did not feel strange. I was right at home in them. I never was happier in my life than when I took stock of my makeup. A sure enough soldier and I said to myself—very positively:

"I'm going with John and the troop." I left the house just as it was. It seemed a small matter to me at the time. I felt that I had promised my husband I would go to his family in Kentucky and remain there until his return. Instead of this, I found myself in an automobile speeding for Douglas, Ariz. The troops were even then in training. With me was "Tuffy," my bulldog. That was the only hurt, leaving Tuffy. I would have tried to get her enrolled in K company as a mascot, only they do not allow dogs.

Everything was confusion around the station. Soldiers and civilians were hurrying here and there. Girls were building their sweatshirts, cleaning their clothes, and the boys were even then in training. With me was "Tuffy," my bulldog. That was the only hurt, leaving Tuffy. I would have tried to get her enrolled in K company as a mascot, only they do not allow dogs.

I did not look long outside the train for fear I might be recognized, though it was difficult to slough out any strange soldier, because there were so many raw rookies who had just enlisted and had not had time to get acquainted much. I figured that the cook eat because he was the safest place, because there I could be busy doing something, and I would be easier for me to get by unnoticed. So when the cook came along I fell in with them and went into the car. They thought I was a new one and never paid any attention to me. Of course, my long connection with the army helped me, since I knew the regulations and customs better than most of the rookies.

Dog Almost Betrays Her.

Tuffy almost spilt the beans for me. She had given the chauffeur who was to take care of her, while I was gone the slip and gone out on a rail hunt for me. You can fool a man, but you cannot fool a dog. The minute she spilt me she came on the run, with a leap and a bark. Quite a lot of the older boys were looking at me through every minute they would notice her silent attentions. I tried to chase her away. She seemed to regard this as an insult and barked happily. I grew cross and pushed her aside, ordering her home. She stood and looked at me in a surprised way. I could not seem too familiar with her and play my part. I had to treat her as a strange dog. As we were on our way along she came after me with a bound. I pushed her away from the steps and walked up poor Tuffy, she wanted to be a soldier's worst way. I wanted to leave her to many some men among the recruits—more boys some of them. They had to obtain the consent of their parents before they could enlist. I passed for one of these boy soldiers.

Ready to March.

Getting the rest of my wardrobe was easy. I bought shoes, boy's size, which looked exactly like the army shoes. Canvas leggings and boy's underwear completed the outfit. I was ready and eager to be on the march. I was twenty-two and full of health and boyish in appearance. My husband said his farewell about noon. He was pretty blue, because he thought it would be good-by for a long time. He was the only one to see me first, last and always a soldier, and he did it as a soldier should. I suppose he had to do something—it was now or never. "Av, quit your kiddin'!" I answered boldly. "No Fritz can get me a prisoner. The soldier passed on. I had changed my voice and talked aloud. I sounded good. My first danger was over. I had fooled a man who knew me. Sleeping Quarters had been assigned to the men. I did not know exactly what I was going to do, because I was an extra and nothing had been provided for me. I might have to sit up all night, hidden away. But soon I saw the lines were once again being drawn. In the confusion of getting settled I grabbed a place and acted as if it belonged to nobody but me. I was in a compartment. Two other soldiers were there with me.

We were well into New Mexico before I ventured forward into the troop cars. The men were having a great time, singing and talking and calling back and forth. You could never have guessed they had said good-by to those they loved only a few hours before. If there was any one among them inclined to weaken at their prospects he was too much of a man to show it. In one car where there was a number of good voices they were harmonizing on the barber shop chord. Some one struck a blue note. There was almost as much conversation as if it had been a dud-dum-dum bullet. Soldiers always sing.

The men had eaten a hearty dinner. They were tired from the bustle and heart wrenching of getting off. They began to drop off early. Once their heads hit the pillows they were dead to the world. You would think they had nothing more on their minds than a pleasant forty-week's outing, so peacefully they slept.

I began to feel like turning in myself. The prospect of bunking in a stateroom with two strange troopers did not frighten me. I was one of them. It was easy to avoid detection. We slept with all our clothes on but our hats and shoes.

In New Mexico, well out of Arizona, it was I first walked forward—and passed my husband. I never gave him a glance but he recognized me. I can't remember exactly what he said, but it was something like "My God, what are you doing here?" He was not as much surprised as I thought he would be. He did not scold me. He was not even angry.

"Now that you are on the train I suppose you might as well go as far as Chicago," he added. "But you will be a good girl and stay straight home from there, won't you?" I told him I would think it over, but I could not promise. I was doing this on my own responsibility, and it was not up to him to interfere. He was quiet and gave me a long look. I tried to sneak forward at night and try to reason with him about my going to France to join the Red Cross. I was still with the cooks. Whenever I heard any one coming I'd grab a dishpan or something and get away busy. If an officer gave me a suspicious glance I looked him square in the eye and stood at attention like the rest of the dough-boys. Army officers are easy to fool.

Sometimes we laid up as long as twenty-four hours in a town. Whenever we stopped the soldiers had to get out and exercise. It was this standing out that gave me my first close call. We had been put on a siding in some town, and the troops were off stretching their legs. I was sitting in a seat talking with a young sergeant when an officer came through.

"What are you two fellows doing here?" he blustered. "Why aren't you out at exercise?" I don't mean he was grog. The United States army officers treat their men well. We were on our way along when she came after me with a bound. I pushed her away from the steps and walked up poor Tuffy, she wanted to be a soldier's worst way. I wanted to leave her to many some men among the recruits—more boys some of them. They had to obtain the consent of their parents before they could enlist. I passed for one of these boy soldiers.

Firts With Girl.

It was fun stopping at the towns. The people came down to see the troop trains pass through, and they certainly treated us very well. They brought us fruit and candy and cigarettes and all sorts of delicacies. The girls were especially enthusiastic. They struck up conversations with the soldiers, exchanged addresses and promised to write often. I talked with a number of girls on the way and they seemed to find them (Continued on page 8)

THE GIRL WHO WAS A SOLDIER

all. There is a packet of mail waiting in Franco now for Petrina Lee O. Carter. That is the name I chose. I remember particularly one little girl in a small town in Ohio. She was about twenty years old, dark, very pretty and very sentimental on the subject of soldiers.

"Where do you come from?" she called to me, as I was sitting in the car window.

"Arizona," I replied.

"Where are you going?"

"Somewhere in France," I answered proudly and hopefully too.

She looked so abashed that I got out and talked with her. We chatted for quite awhile. She took my address and said she would keep me posted on things back home when I was in the trenches. I carried the thing through to the end. I even kissed her at parting. She was awfully surprised, but thrilled at the romance of the situation. Being a Ronco is easier than being a soldier.

Just before we reached Chicago my husband came to me and begged me not to go on.

"It will be better for you to go home with the folks," he said. "You can study nursing and enter the Red Cross as soon as you qualify."

"Yes," I replied, "I can spend months in preparation, and when I finish they will send me to the eastern front or put me on some hospital ship or keep me on duty here in the U. S. A. Not for me! I will be no nearer you than I was before. And, besides, there will be a chance of my being sent for your lack of your lines. At least I will request that position."

"I command you to return," he said in his severest military manner.

"Will you let me see, Corporal Carter?" I promised and walked away. When the train pulled out of Chicago I was in the cook car peeling potatoes.

When we arrived in Hoboken the men went straight from the train to the transport. Here again my husband consoled with me.

Husband Again Urges Her to Return

"You've got away with it this far," he said, "Don't you think it is time to go back?"

"I'll say goodbye, and I'll go—I can," was my answer.

When the time came I fell in line again with the cooks and went aboard the barge.

The barge was tied alongside the transport where the Elchteenth was embarking. It was piled high with supplies which were being loaded on to the ship. These kept arriving all-day and for into the night. Great trucks loads of them were emptied out on the deck. This continued during the entire three-days we were anchored there. I worked like a Trojan, and my hands were well blistered, but my heart was happy.

There were no sleeping quarters on the barge, but there were plenty of mattresses. The cooks were quartered together. We slept on mattresses thrown on the barge and in the cabin. It was not uncomfortable. I used to wake up in the night, look out at the dusky form of the transport awning gently on the tide and pray I would not be discovered and taken aboard and sent out on to the ocean. The boys around me snored peacefully. They had nothing to worry them but the work of unloading the supplies.

Every evening there was a crap game in the cabin. It was what you would call a fading game—noney, with calls for "Little Joe" and the rest. The players got most of their fun out of joshing one another. One man usually took all the money in the next night, some fellow—a winner in another game would take it away from him, and so it went. Finally, the lucky survivor had it all.

There were few, if any, shore leaves after the men boarded the transport. The furthest they went was on the pier. Across the river, they could see the gay lights of New York beckoning. They had read often of the Great White Way. Few of them had ever seen it. Here they were, within a few minutes of it, yet it might as well have been a thousand miles away.

"I'd like to take just one snort," said a rookie to me one evening, as we were standing on deck, gazing across the river at the mass of lights we knew was New York. He was a big, raw-boned fellow, typical of the west. "I'd like to give the old town the once over, as long as I'm going over to fight for her. Gee, look at them lights. Must be a billion of them. And the buildings. Kinda tall, eh? If the Germans ever started shooting at them, good night!"

Over on the transport an accordion was whining "Sweet Adeline." It swung into "I've Been Working on the Railroad"—old trooper songs. Then came "Way Down Old Dixie" and "Coro field." The boys were harmonizing again. Always singing, singing, singing. Music is the safety valve of the soldier.

All the next morning there was an unusual hurrying to get the supplies aboard. We knew the hour of sailing was close at hand, although no orders had been given. You could feel it in the air, the same as you can an strong current of electricity had not seen my husband for three days. He was busy aboard the transport, and I kept close to the barge.

Shortly before noon I felt the tide and came. I went up a ladder to the top of the barge. For awhile I stayed there waiting for the way to be clear. Soldiers were hurrying back and forth on deck. No one noticed me. If they did they supposed, of course, I was one of them. I waited until the tide was that part of the transport was free of officers, because I did not want to be questioned just then. There was a period of confusion incident to getting under way. I came up and stopped over on the deck of the transport. We were on our way to France. (To be Continued)

Rogerson School Has Great Fair

Splendid Program and Many Prizes Features of the Gathering Last Week.

Fully 150 parents and children gathered at the Rogerson school-house on Tuesday night to hear the fine school program rendered by the pupils of the Rogerson school, under the able direction of their teachers, Mrs. Abbie Leighton and Miss Bertha Mayor, which was followed with talks by Miss Britton Wolfe, county superintendent; Miss Z. Fay Fowler, state club leader; Mrs. Alpha Holt, in charge of food conservation in this part of the state; County Agent McLean and Mr. Anderson, chief of grazing, from the district forest office at Ogden, Utah. Mr. Anderson gave a very interesting exposition of the work the government is doing to improve the range conditions and the results they have obtained since the ranges have been so administered. He had a lantern and slides and illustrated the lecture as he went along. Mr. Campbell, supervisor of the Minkona forest-association, and Mr. Anderson, discussed the questions about the administration of the forest after the talk was over.

This program followed the school talk which had lasted all day. There were good exhibits of potatoes, grains and garden truck which were judged by Mr. McLean. The Rogerson people themselves, under the able direction of their teachers, Mrs. Abbie Leighton and Miss Bertha Mayor, which was followed with talks by Miss Britton Wolfe, county superintendent; Miss Z. Fay Fowler, state club leader; Mrs. Alpha Holt, in charge of food conservation in this part of the state; County Agent McLean and Mr. Anderson, chief of grazing, from the district forest office at Ogden, Utah. Mr. Anderson gave a very interesting exposition of the work the government is doing to improve the range conditions and the results they have obtained since the ranges have been so administered. He had a lantern and slides and illustrated the lecture as he went along. Mr. Campbell, supervisor of the Minkona forest-association, and Mr. Anderson, discussed the questions about the administration of the forest after the talk was over.

Mrs. Holt judged the domestic science and conducted a bed-making contest in which four teams of girls entered and were very interested. Miss Fowler and Miss Wolfe judged the school work, which showed excellent attainments for this early in the year. The teachers deserve great credit for getting up such a creditable fair which was the first effort of anything of this kind ever made in that part of the county.

The merchants contributed generously for prize money and the whole district showed the community spirit in the way they attended and backed up the efforts of the teachers. They hope to make this an annual affair. There is no question of its educational value to both the scholars and people in the community. The list of awards follows:

The Dolec Light people came down from Twin Falls and brilliantly lighted up the entire hall with electricity. This added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

A prominent credit man recently said that he considers A Merchant who still clings to Horse and Wagon Delivery a Bad Risk.

The profit and loss account of America is being written by machinery. Methods that made men rich yesterday will make them poor today. The nose-bag has no place in a progressive community.

With corn at one dollar a bushel and gasoline at twenty odd cents a gallon the most extravagant truck is a money saver. But the is the thriest truck ever built. A penny counter, a general expense reducer. The greatest single force for better business that the past year has witnessed. At this moment when conservation of energy, time and dollars is so vital to national welfare, when merchants are making so many unexpected outlays—the Maxwell is fighting for economical administration, laboring day and night at a minimum wage and furnishing competent and reliable transportation at the lowest load cost at which goods have been carried in our time.

Maxwell maintenance and repair bills are the lowest of record. It furnishes American Commerce, never so badly in need of labor, a truck which even a boy can operate and understand.

Just the right size for the average firm. 2490 pounds. But muscled for giant burdens. Worm drive—a feature hitherto associated with the highest priced trucks.

Sold under the same guarantee as $5000 trucks are. Electric lights and generator. 10-foot loading space. 16 miles to the gallon. The lowest priced one-ton truck in the world and sold on liberal terms. $985—and it will earn its cost out of the savings it effects.

Pays its way from day to day.

CONGRESS FACED BY BIG WAR PROBLEM

The Senate has already passed the resolution with a proviso that it shall become null and void unless ratified within six years. Indications are that the House will adopt the resolution and of the opportunity of "passing the buck" to the States.
Soldiers "Moratorium."
The administration will put forward a new civil rights bill, sometimes called the soldiers' and sailors' "moratorium" bill, designed to protect men in both arms of the service against the annoyance of legal complications while at war, and to prevent unscrupulous persons taking advantage of their absence in the courts. The measure sent to Congress at the last session was believed unconstitutional and it will be presented in a somewhat changed form to meet the objections raised against it.
Several important measures relating to the draft are ready for presentation. Among these are the Chamberlain bill declaring aliens, with certain exceptions, liable to the draft. The measure has been passed by the Senate, but was held up in the House at the administrator's request to avoid international complications. Efforts will be made to have it passed at an early date in order to make more than a million aliens available for the army.

Do You Get Your Share of the World's Great Store of Pleasure?

Not one of us but has his share of the worries and troubles—They are the heritage of mankind and come unthought of. But the pleasures—we have them only as we make them. All about is the world's great store of the materials of happiness. From it we may choose and build the beauties and the joys of our lives as we will.

The wonderful art of Music!—what material is here for tinting with rose hues the shadows of life! Here is happiness such as all the world's treasure of gold cannot buy. And as much of it is yours as you will take!

The JULIUS BAUER PLAYER PIANO, makes easy the path to the height of this beautiful art.
With its new system of construction it marks an epoch in the development of the piano. Its tone quality and tone durability mark it as the greatest piano ever built.

Visitors always welcome. Come in and hear this beautiful instrument.

The president of the Farm Bureau openly made the statement that the Farm Bureau was the only body or means by which we could depend upon securing good men for directors, and if we would leave the matter with them that we could rest assured that the system would be properly managed.
Considerable objection has been found to the plan of employing a $4000 board to supervise a high priced manager, and that we will be going to the other extreme; but even if this $4000 should prove to be a virtual waste, it is of comparatively little consequence, for this leak could be easily corrected by the stockholders; but these other evils once firmly seated will remain long after the $4000 are forgotten.
It would seem that the only feasible plan now is to make the most of it and try and secure competent men for directors, and among the board, carefully chosen as they have been by different localities, surely there is at least one who would make an efficient man for the coming year.
E. R. HOBBS.

CANDIDATES OF F. B. CHAIRMEN ASKED TO QUIT

men that composed the Farm Bureau in favor of limiting the number of proxy votes that any one man could represent, but since the Farm Bureau feels that they are the "white chess" they seem to have no use for such an amendment, and as the Farm Bureau president explained "in answer to my inquiry 'they were too busy' to attend to the meeting to attend to it."
The president claimed that in electing directors for three years, the danger of dispensing with efficient men before they have had a chance to make good, and the danger of having an entire new board will be eliminated; put in the face of these assertions, they propose to make an entire change in the personnel of the board, but as a majority of the candidates are Farm Bureau men, we are asked to assume that they are fully competent, and safe men to tie to; but are they?

Are men who will either deliberately approve of such uncalculated and arrogant methods as these, or else be willing to be led blindly around by an ambitious organizer, safe men to intrust with the management of our affairs?
Personally I have always insisted on a board who would do their own thinking, and I see no reason for changing my views at this time; but now it seems that under the proposed regime we do not need a board who will do any thinking, as other powers behind the throne will do that for them gratis, and our system will be
