LAST GERMAN COLONY TAKEN BY THE BRITISH

German East Africa—at Length Conquered by Lion—Eight Hundred Thousand Men in Death Grip at Cambrai—Reinforcements for Both Sides—Lull Falls on Fight in Italy

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Germany stands today shorn of every inch of her colonial possessions. All of the German troops fighting in German East Africa, the only place where Germany was still making a stand in her colonies, have been conquered by the British, it was announced in dispatches from Cape Town today.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Prince Rupprecht, the German commander in chief was unable to renew his infantry attacks along the Cambrai salient during the night but the German artillery was active, the war office announced at noon.

British positions at Meuvres and Bourlon were heavily shelled, but there were no infantry attacks. Meuvres and Bourlon lie west of Cambrai, on the northern side of the salient.

The southern side was assaulted all day Monday and the increase in the cannonading to the north indicated that the Germans were getting ready to resume their attacks in that district.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Forty divisions of British and German troops, or 800,000 men, supported by formidable arrays of artillery on both sides were engaged in the 48 mile Cambrai front between Meuvres and Vendhuile.

The heavy tides of battle which have been running back and forth across this field since the British drive opened two weeks ago today have claimed an enormous number of dead soldiers. Ground is still covered with the bodies of men that fell in the early stages of the fighting. So intense has been the artillery and machine gun fire directed by both sides that burial squads could not venture forth.

The Germans have continued to pound both sides of the Cambrai salient but with the exception of a slight dent made on the southern side in the Marconing-La Vaccario sector the British lines have remained intact during the past 24 hours.

The Germans fighting with great fury continue to hold their positions and the British counter-attacks which have been in progress for the last few days are being held back. The British in this part of their front is shown by the fact that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of staff of the German army, has moved his headquarters to give some of the German divisions to the counter-attacks.

The British show that Germany is calling upon her youth. Many of the prisoners are mere boys. Students of German universities are being called up in Russia, two years in advance of their regular schooling. The expelled and expelled are being trained for service during the winter.

There are indications that Germany is preparing to try for a decisive stroke. Germany has been waging such a campaign that is why the Germans holding cavalry in readiness for fighting in the open.

Both the direct drive and the counter-attacks have opened the drive of the Germans ten days later, and were begun with surprising force by surprise by launching a "Tank offensive" without artillery preparation. Then the German army is making an attacking movement which caught the British off their guard.

Fresh troops are being thrown into moving up reinforcements of troops from the rear. Already there is an immense number of cannon in action, the number running into the thousands, and the rear is incessant all throughout the front.

ROME, Dec. 4.—The great battle of the Piave, which began three weeks ago today and in which the Germans hoped to crush the Italian army and overrun all of northern Italy, has developed into an absolute deadlock.

Bren still has settled down upon the Italian artillery duelling in some sectors, it was stated in dispatches from the front today.

The Battle of the Piave was reported from the flows of the Piave river, where it flows into the Adriatic. In addition to the reciprocal fighting, there was some fighting between patrols and raiding parties.

British monitors lying in the Gulf of Venetia were observed to fire at German positions under constant fire. The accuracy of the British shells has proved very destructive. Three bridges that the Austrians were using for the transport of supplies across the delta were destroyed by direct hits at 11,000 yards.

REPORTED KILLED IN ACCIDENT

A report is current in this city that late last night Mrs. M. Gant was in an auto accident in California, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Gant and the serious injury of her child.

BOLSHEVIK REPORTS SUCCESS

PETROGRAD, Dec. 4.—The Bolsheviks have announced that they have captured the city of Tatarsk and that the officers of the garrison, including the commander, have been sent to the rear.

MARKET REPORTS DELAYED

Market reports were delayed today on account of the necessity of running the wires of President Wilson, over the wires.

President Asks War Be Declared On Austria As Tool of Germany

AMERICANS ARE COVERED WITH GLOOM IN FRANCE

ENGINEERS WHO FOUGHT WITH BYNG'S MEN UP TO HIGHEST STANDARD

Many Were Spanish War Veterans

Officials Await the Report of General Pershing Which Will Give Complete Returns of Those Killed and Wounded.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Washington today is joyful to the extreme because of the great work done by the engineers, coming from what was intended to be a semi-non-combat body—the railway workers organized as engineers. These men, caught by the return of the German against Byng's men in northern France, dropped their railway tools to take rifles and do their bit with the British.

It was pointed out by very officers here today that all of these men are far beyond the draft age and that many of them were veterans of the Spanish American war. They were enlisted as railway workers for the purpose of rebuilding and operating the railway behind the western battle-front. But from the very moment they got on the job they have just now on getting right up to the front line and they have pushed the railway far closer to the front trenches than any of the other engineer forces of the French and British ever tried. It was in the nature of an experiment made by General Pershing that these engineering officers say, but the experiment of carrying the railroads far into the shell swept zone already has proven the worth and benefit of the new innovations of the war.

NEW WATER SYSTEM PLAN LAID BEFORE THE COUNCIL

Burns and McDonell Outline Complete Method of Furnishing Water to the City—Will Cost $372,000—Meeting to be Held Later at the Laying Where Idea Will be Illustrated by Slides and Explanation Made to the Voters.

A complete water system for the city of Twin Falls to be constructed at a cost of $372,000, and capable of extension without the discarding of any of the money spent in its construction, is the purpose of the plan laid before the city council last night by Burns & McDonell, consulting engineers. It is estimated that as planned it would supply a city of 15,000 inhabitants.

While the water is for the present to be drawn from the lowline canal, steps are to be taken at once to protect the city in case of need by deep wells. Arrangements for the sinking of one of such wells have been made, the well to be put in on the city ground north of the reservoir. A complete filtering plant is planned, which will also provide for the use of chlorine water for the protection against menageries which may get through the filter. The proposition to vote bonds will be submitted to the people and before election a mass meeting will be held at the Laying at which the system will be explained by means of slides. The mayor and council declare that they expect to invite the most thorough discussion and searching criticism. If necessary the plan can be extended to 10,000,000 gallons capacity. The following excerpts from the report sufficiently explain the proposed new system to give a general idea of the plan:

In order to deliver to the city adequate sparkling water at all times, that would be abundant from the lowline canal, producing bacteria coming from any chance contamination or pollution, a modern filtration plant should be built to filter all the water from the canal supply. On account of there not being any reserve storage available, the plant should be of capacity to supply the maximum demand at all times and provide for a future increase in consumption. For a population of 15,000, for fire protection the system should be capable of delivering ten (10) fire streams of 150 gallons each or a rate of 8.1 million gallons per day. The maximum consumption for 15,000 with the leakage loss

STOCKHOLDERS CANAL MEETING EXTRAORDINARY

FIRST ELECTION OF DIRECTORS UNDER THE NEW DISPENSATION

Surface Indications Are Smooth and Peaceful

All Preliminaries Settled and Nominations Made at the Forenoon Session Without a Clash or Friction.

The meeting of the stockholders of the Twin Falls South Side Canal Company for the purpose of electing three directors, under the articles of Incorporation and by-laws as amended at the October meeting, and for such other business as might properly come before it was called to order at 9:45 this forenoon by Mr. C. J. Wurz, temporary chairman. Mr. E. N. Doy acting as secretary. On motion Dr. White temporary organization was made permanent.

Motion was made and carried that any but those legally entitled to vote should participate in the proceedings; and this was followed by an order for segregation—in obedience to which the chair invited all voting members to take front seats and all others to go back among the seats; and posted doorkeepers to direct incomers in the way they should go.

Pending the seating arrangement and pursuant to motion, however, the chair appointed Messrs Ben McPherson, Miller and Deaton committee on order of business.

While this committee was out, voters were chosen, upon nomination from the floor, as follows: B. P. McPherson, C. F. Leopold, J. L. Barnes, G. C. Letts, T. J. Pringle and L. V. Sanner. Dr. White's suggestion that the Farm Bureau name three having been ignored as being undemocratic.

The committee on order of business made a report which, after some minor amendments, and under which, the reading minutes of previous meeting having been dispensed with, nominations for directors were made and resulted as follows: West District—J. H. Barker (530) and Claudio Brown (100).

CASES OF TURKEY AND BULGARIA CALL LESS URGENTLY FOR ACTION

Struggle Must Continue Until Autocratic Power Is Broken—Believes in Equal and Exact Justice to All at the End of the Conflict—Fight Is for Emancipation of Deceived Teutons No Less Than Other—Contempt for Anti-War Agitators Voiced—Message Shows That President Is Spokesman of Allies and Shows Why Interlial Conference Was Silent.

(By John Edwin Nevin I. N. S. Staff Correspondent) CAPITOL, WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The United States intends to win the war. It will utilize all of its power and resources—men, money and materials—to that end.

It must at once declare war on Austria Hungary because that nation now is a "vassal state of Germany." It need not do so at this time so far as Turkey and Bulgaria are concerned because they now are negligible quantities.

Those who desire to bring about a peace before that purpose is achieved can go elsewhere.

This was the message which President Wilson brought to the joint session of the congress today. His address was probably the greatest of his state documents to date. It carried with it a complete answer to the recent letter of Lord Lansdowne. Farther than this it replied in detail to the pacifist clamor in the United States who have been demanding that this country outline its war aims.

When the president delivered his address today it was at once apparent that much secrecy had surrounded its preparation. It explained why it was that the allied conference in Paris failed to restate as had been expected the war aims of the United States. This, as was the case in the reply made to the pope's peace proposal, plainly had been left to the president.

Today's utterances re-stated completely the objects for which the United States is fighting. Again Germany was told the terms on which it can have peace. These terms will be liberal—very liberal—but only when the battles are over and democracy is triumphant over autocracy.

Significant in the extreme was the declaration by the president that there will be no compromise with German autocracy and German brutality. He took the Prussian declaration of peace without annexations and indemnities and turned the argument on the German military caste. And he repeated anew his belief that a complete and lasting peace will be made only after autocracy is crushed and the nations allowed the people to rule themselves. And in this program a place in the sun for all peoples and the freedom of the seas, as outlined by President Wilson in his message to the senate prior to the United States entry into war, again was given a most prominent part.

The greatest applause came when he declared that the war would be won only when the German people say they themselves want peace. Every senator and representative with the exception of Senator La Follette rose and cheered the sentiment. The next marked applause followed the appeal for an immediate declaration of war upon Austria, although a number of senators and representatives joined Senator La Follette and remained in their seats at this time, did not arise and cheer. Much of the applause at the telling points in the speech was started by Chief Justice White, who sat with the members of the supreme court on the floor.

The members of the senate went in a body to the house chamber shortly before 12:30, headed by Vice President Marshall and Senator at Arms Higgins. The front row of benches in the house chamber had been reserved for the senators.

Vice President Marshall designated Senator Martin, the majority leader, and Senator Gallagher, the minority leader, to represent the senate in welcoming the president and in escorting him to the speaker's desk.

The president arrived at 12:23 and was given a tremendous ovation. Seven minutes later he began his address.

Older Boy's Meet Arousing Interest

Will Be Held Here December 14, 15 and 16—Has Important Bearing On The Year.

Much interest is being manifested here in the forthcoming Older Boys conference, which will be held in this city for three days, beginning on Friday, December 14. The following statement of the conference's purpose and importance has been furnished for publication.

Idaho boys are in the army and navy. Idaho boys are in high schools. It has been a great task for the Interstate Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. A. to give full attention to each group. This state knows well what is being done by the Y. M. C. A. for its soldiers of the great "war area," but it perhaps does not realize the things that are being planned by the Y. M. C. A. for "the boys at home" who are more or less patiently waiting and preparing to do their bit.

The Girl Who Was a Soldier Boy

HOW I WENT "OVER THERE" WITH PERSHING'S DIVISION

By HAZEL CARTER

Mrs. Hazel Carter of Douglas, Ark., in a young woman, twenty-two, whose young husband, Corporal John J. Carter of the United States army, was ordered to France with the Pershing expedition.

Determined to accompany him, she obtained a soldier's uniform and fell in as a private in his department. She was five months before she was discharged.

It is a story of romance, dramatic in its qualities, full of the soldier color and still in its own way, since Mrs. Carter is the first to relate the details of her voyage and safe arrival first hand—on that made history.

CHAPTER II—
Right Among the Army—"Dough-boys."

It may not seem far to most folk from a large moored alongside a transport, over the side and aboard, but it looked like a long, tough journey to me.

Three days and nights I toiled and sweated and worked on that large unit. I thought I would drop, but all the time I was figuring and watching—waiting for the chance to get aboard the big blue colored ship on which my husband and another piece of the Pershing expedition were to go to France. This watchful waiting wore my mind nerves and weary body.

Finally there was even more activity than on the previous days and legs began to bustle and cluster and fuss busily about us, as I knew if I were going to make a break it would have to be then. It gave me a good idea of how a soldier feels before he goes "over the top" for the first time.

Aboard at Last.
They were getting ready to cast off the barge, and most of the officers were lining the rails of the transport stern row to try and get a glimpse of me. On that deck I decided to go below and stay as quiet as possible.

What the devil are you doing?
"I had come to attention at once and saluted."
"Who are you?"
"Carter, Sir, K. Company."

"Yes, Sir," I answered and saluted. When he had gone I was trembling all over and I proceeded more carefully, for I may be sure it was the first time I had ever been aboard a big ship—the first time I had ever seen salt water, in fact—as I didn't know my way around very well. Besides, I got downstairs I found that one of the transport's decks had been made into a big bunk room with the partitions knocked out and bunks in tiers of three each. There was a couple of the boys from Company K and followed them to the section in which they were quartered. They looked like old home wags to me, and I went over to sit on the edge of the top bunk and sit on my perch and still close harmony all over the place. But they didn't recognize me, so I threw my weight into a middle bunk that was empty. I was lucky to find one to spare, because they were using all the available space on that ship. The bunks were made out of canvas, stretched very tight, and they rode comfortably enough when we could get started.

Under Way.
The men were all around me, many I had known in Douglas, but they didn't bother with me, because I guess they were a little bit at leavish from seeing an anybody was bound to get into it like this. I was glad to get the sober atmosphere got me to longing for that lingerie there. You could barely cut it with a knife. The old timers probably put me down for a "sissy" because I was a new-comer. Finally I straightened myself up and thought: "Back up! You're a dace of a soldier!"

stayed out of the way of my husband although I had seen him and knew we was aboard. He was quartered further away from me than I was with the K company. If I had stayed with me a few hours more my goal would have gained; I would go to France with my husband. Five minutes later we were ordered to get up and get ready to go. I still I longed for some lingerie—and a bath.

After leaving port whether we steam directly for England or what the old I am not permitted to say. Besides, what I could tell would amount to much, because I will admit the ocean looked the same to me all over, and I don't see how the captain kept from getting lost.

That night we settled for the sea, and over me was a rookle and under me an old timer. It was quite a sandwich, although of course neither knew there was a girl in the bunk between them. Perhaps they would have been more careful of their language at first if they had.

The man did not address altogether at night, but pulled off their shoes and loosened their shirts. If it had been otherwise I would have been gone sure. We never knew when we would be called for submarine drill, and about half the time on the sea we had to get up at half past 12 in the morning—what for I am not allowed to tell.

The Timid Rookie.
We had hardly cleared the harbor when the rookie quartered above me began to fret about submarines. "What's the matter?" I hollered up. "Are you afraid of U boats?" "No, I'm not," he said cheerfully about them. "The conversation seemed to relieve the strain, for he talked along continuously for company I guess, until the old timer down below me broke loose with some remarks that would have to be printed on asbestos paper and concluded:

"Say, Alf, if you're just to get killed, I wish you'd go outside and do it and get it over with. I'm honest, but what needs it get a little good out of this life?"

The outbreak resulted in a lot more rumbles from other parts of the bunk room and at length the crew were ordered to get up and get ready for the next day. There were some snorers in that outfit.

See Her Husband Again.
"Say," he said, "I'm on, but I'm not going to tip you off. Don't worry, I just saw your old man, and he knows you're aboard now. A few of us old fellows in the kitchen got 'em in the know, and we'll cover you up. I'll swap bunk with you tonight, and you can sneak up to mine after lights are out. Your old man is bunking right above me."

So far I had kept out of my husband's way because I was afraid he might order me to report myself. Since then I have been in the kitchen a few times where he would have to be at certain times I could easily do this. Of course at home I gave the orders, but the discipline in the army is different, and I realized the soldier's training might force him to do what I didn't like to do. However, when Private Smithers brought me this message I could hardly wait for "lights out" so I could sneak forward to see and talk to him.

MARRIED
On Saturday afternoon a little wedding party assembled at the home of Mrs. J. A. Brantley, Mrs. M. J. Jordan, Mrs. C. E. ## U. S. Road Aid How Appropriated

The United States Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, Gives Out Information.

The federal aid road act, approved on July 11, 1916, by the president, appropriated $100,000,000 for the construction of five years—1916 to 1920, inclusive—to be used in co-operation with the states in the construction of the country's road system. The total of the construction of road projects during a period of ten years—1916 to 1925, inclusive—to be used in the construction of the country's road system within national forests. The national forest road appropriation, amounting to $100,000,000 each year, has been placed in the hands of the forest service to be expended upon applications for aid from the various states and other organizations. The appropriations become available annually on July 1. The first appropriation being made in 1916.

For the five states located in the interior of the district of the forest service, with headquarters at Ogden, Utah, approximately $267,000,000 are available for forest road work from the act annually. Applications for aid have been received for a large number of roads of which six have already been approved. The secretary of agriculture, two of these roads are located in the State of Idaho, one in Nevada, and three in Utah. The roads are: the Snake River-Yellowstone National park; the second is also a portion of a state highway, extending from Salmon, Idaho, to Dittmer, Idaho; the third is a project in Nevada known as the Charleston-Jarbidge project, and in a portion of the Snake River valley, the mining town of Jarbidge, Nevada. The three in Utah are known as the Ephraim Orangeville, Logan, Garfield City and Hicker, Fruittland and the Yellowstone National park; the second is also a portion of a state highway, extending from Salmon, Idaho, to Dittmer, Idaho; the third is a project in Nevada known as the Charleston-Jarbidge project, and in a portion of the Snake River valley, the mining town of Jarbidge, Nevada.

The first is a portion of the state highway connecting the two important valleys of San Pato and San Raphael in the State of Nevada. The second is a project in Nevada known as the Charleston-Jarbidge project, and in a portion of the Snake River valley, the mining town of Jarbidge, Nevada. The three in Utah are known as the Ephraim Orangeville, Logan, Garfield City and Hicker, Fruittland and the Yellowstone National park; the second is also a portion of a state highway, extending from Salmon, Idaho, to Dittmer, Idaho; the third is a project in Nevada known as the Charleston-Jarbidge project, and in a portion of the Snake River valley, the mining town of Jarbidge, Nevada.

Some of the military critics believe that the fighting along this front has been most savage that the war has ever produced. In the morning the message changed hands three times, being taken first by the British, then by the Germans, only to fall into the hands of the British again on Saturday night and Sunday.

WAR STAMP TAXES ARE NOW EFFECTIVE
(Quoted Upon To Produce Revenue of $100,000,000 Every Year For the U. S. Government.)

WASHINGTON—The war stamp taxes counted upon by treasury officials to produce $100,000,000 annually as part of the great revenue measures enacted by Congress last October, became effective Saturday.

From the beginning of the business hours Saturday, every broker, exchange, stock, produce or merchant transaction must keep strict account of the taxable dealings. The internal revenue bureau has issued comprehensive regulations to govern the collections. The taxes do not apply to bonds, notes or other instruments issued by the government or by state or similar, governmental subdivision, or to stocks and bonds of cooperative building and fire insurance companies. The taxes do not apply to shares of stock, payable other than at sight or on demand, promissory notes except bank notes issued for circulation and for exchange on demand, and 50 cents each additional $500, with all debt papers exempt.

DEAD BODIES STREW GROUND AT CAMBRAI

REPULSE OF GERMANS AFTER A FRIGHTFUL CARNAGE

No Thought Is Given to Losses as Teuton Masses Are Hurdled on British and Are Shot to Pieces.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The mighty struggle around Cambrai continues today with both the British and Germans stubbornly contesting every inch of corpse-strewn ground. The British, South of Cambrai, the Germans have made a concentrated effort to break through the British lines on the edge of the city. The British and French armies joined on the northern end of the Somme front.

Some ground was taken by the Teutons at a terrible cost in human life, and the British were compelled to give up the village of Masnières, but the Germans failed to achieve their main objective.

Coincident with the battle at Cambrai there has been another flare-up of fighting on the west Flanders, near the corps doctrine, where heavy artillery duels have been in progress for a week.

Field Marshal Haig's men drove forward and gained the gains of a local nature on the northern end of the Masnischele ridge and there were indications that a big fight is in the offing in this sector.

Some of the military critics believe that the fighting along this front has been most savage that the war has ever produced. In the morning the message changed hands three times, being taken first by the British, then by the Germans, only to fall into the hands of the British again on Saturday night and Sunday.

For the first time in the war the Germans sent forward artillery to support their infantry. The attacking pace with the attacking soldiers into the very forefront. The artillery was sent in to protect the attacking British tanks at a close range.

The British used a considerable amount of cavalry for covering purposes in the morning. The British to the front on Friday when the Germans began their encircling movement against the Cambrai salient.

ROME, Dec. 3.—Frustrated in their attempt to cut through the Italian lines on the Asiago plateau and the Piave river with their infantry, the Austro-German invaders are now trying to blast their way forward with their artillery.

In isolated districts there have been reports of fighting. But the struggle now raging must be classed as an artillery battle.

Figures loom large now-a-days. On Monday the cash balance on hand in your Uncle Sammie's money drawer was two billions five hundred and fifteen millions four hundred and seventy-one thousand four hundred and seven dollars ($2,515,471,407). Does any one have any practical idea as to how much money that is? At all events, it is the biggest cash balance in the history of the country.

Washington dispatches indicated a more or less serious clash between fuel director Garfield and food director Hoover over the question of priority in the use of railway transportation. Hoover contended that the need to move food was paramount, while Garfield had already secured a flat call on cars for coal. This raises a peculiar question, the answer to which probably would depend, in each individual case, upon whether the affiant was the more cold or hungry at the moment.

HURRAH FOR TWIN FALLS BOYS

The victory over the Nampa team, which has given the Twin Falls team the state football championship, is another sign of the Twin Falls spirit that will help put the city still more on the map. The use of an expression which is not quite fitting, especially as applied to this city. Even if the city may go to sleep, at the switch on the road, bonds proposition, it is there with the punch and the goods most of the time. The younger generation that is coming up is ready to take the place of the older ones and will run right over it and kick goal if it does not bump itself.

Notices of such action were served on the canal board and on the directors. Judge J. R. Bothwell, Saturday. No time for hearing has been set but it is understood it will be taken up on the return of Judge W. A. DeLoach from Gooding, where he is holding court. Should the contention of the petitioners be upheld, the meeting will be null and void. The next regular meeting will be held January to elect five directors as provided under the act by-law.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Margaret M. Wilson, the five months old child of F. A. Wilson, died in this city November 20. The funeral was held at the Crosby chapel the following day under the auspices of the International Bible Students. The funeral of Peter Marchal was held from the Catholic church, November 24, at 9 o'clock a. m. Services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. N. P. Hahn. Interment took place in the Twin Falls cemetery. The funeral of L. Seyerberg, of Honesworth, was held November 28, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Catholic church, and was conducted by Rev. N. P. Hahn.

spirits. But I know that none of these speak for the nation. They do not touch the heart of anything. They may safely be left to stir their uneasy hour and be forgotten. But from another point of view I believe that it is necessary to say plainly that we here at this time of action consider what part we mean to play in the settlement of its searching issues. We are the spokesmen of the American people and they have a right to know whether their purpose is ours. They desire peace by the overcoming of evil, by the defeat of the forces of the world that interrupt peace and render it impossible and they wish to know how closely our thought runs with theirs and what action we propose. They are impatient with those who desire peace by any sort of compromise—deeply and indignantly impatient—but they will be equally impatient with us if we do not make it plain to them what our objectives are and what we are planning for in seeking to make conquest of peace by force. men are ready in the name of their people to accept the common judgment of the nations as to what shall henceforth be the basis of law and of covenant for the life of the world—we shall be willing and glad to pay the full price for peace, and pay it ungrudgingly. We know what that price will be. It will be full, impartial justice—justice done at every point and to every nation that the final settlement must affect, our enemies as well as our friends. You catch, with me, the voices of humanity that are in the air. They grow daily more audible, more articulate, more persuasive, and they come from the hearts of men everywhere. They insist that the war shall not end in vindictive action of any kind; that no nation or people shall be robbed or punished because the responsible rulers of a single country have themselves done deep and abominable wrong. It is this thought that has been expressed in the formula, 'no annexations, no contributions, no punitive indemnities.' Just because this crude formula expresses the instinctive judgment as to right of plain men everywhere it has been made diligent use of by the masters of German intrigue to lead the people of Russia astray—and the people of every country that agents could reach in order that a promissory peace might be brought about before autocracy has been taught its final and convincing lesson, and the people of the world put in control of their own destinies. But the fact that a wrong use has been made of a just idea is no reason why a right use should not be made of it. It ought to be brought under the patronage of its real friends. Let it be said again that autocracy must Found Nothing But Work - Twin Falls county has been accumulating a colony from Dighton, Kansas. Those who first came wrote of the milk and honey, and others came to see. Some time last September two brothers from Dighton, Kansas, came west to Twin Falls, provided they found it all that had been represented. So they loaded their furniture in a truck and with their families, they journeyed - planning to find houses and spend the winter in a leisurely survey of the country, and buy property for the spring if the situation invited. After ten days of unavailing search for houses, or a house, in Twin Falls, a former neighbor back in Kansas came to their rescue by offering a shack on his place where a tenant had lived. As they could find no place to store the extra furniture, they bought a team and wagon and took it to the country. This was in the height of the threshing season and the demands for help came so thick and fast that they were never able to leave the other day. "Well, I never saw any place like this. You can't find a house to live in - but you can find about a dozen to rent for each day. I came out here intending to take it easy, and here I've been working as steady as ever. times - to get additional settling and in an emergency storage supply. In order to utilize the full capacity of the old reservoir, the filter plant would have to be placed into deeper than present expensive rock excavation of about two feet deep over a head of about ten (10) feet.

The settling basin is of concrete construction, divided into two separate units, with a total capacity of one million gallons or a settling period of four hours when the plant is filtering at the maximum rate of six million gallons. The approximate diameter is 35 feet by 120 feet by 10 feet. The floor will be sloped to drains for flushing and cleaning when necessary. One half may be cleaned while the opposite half remains in operation. From the settling basin the water will pass into flume which distributes the settled water coming from the settling basin to the filter units.

The filter units will consist of six concrete basins, each with a sand area of 19 by 20 feet inside dimensions. In filtering operation the water level stands about two feet deep over the top of the sand bed. A small amount of the chemical flocc remains in the water coming from the settling basin and in passing through the sand this flocc is collected on top of the sand bed and forms a light scum on the

The main feed line will be from the 20-inch line on Third street west. Lateral distributing lines branch off and connect with the main parts of the line on Sixth street west and north line on Fourth street south and east. All lines will be laid in new pipe or will be replaced in the near future, should be laid with cast iron pipe. New lines have been laid in the vicinity of the district where there is now paving, but elsewhere the lines are laid in the streets. Practically all the lines between the railroad and seventh avenue north and east and between Sixth street north and west, and Fourth street south and east should be replaced with the lines on Main avenue and crossing Shoshone street and the line on Eighth avenue north and east where paving has been proposed.

In the new system no 4-inch pipe lines are used for runs over three blocks long and these are replaced by 6-inch and 8-inch iron pipes. The whole system is so designed as to have a uniform pressure over the whole city with adequate fire protection at all points. Gate valves have been so placed that with a few exceptions not over four blocks of a line need be out of service at a time for repairs.

It is planned to install 83 new fire hydrants and with such spacing that no house will be over 400 feet from fire hydrant. Twenty-four of the present hydrants will be moved to new locations and 27 will have new connections to the new main. All of the present hydrants will have steam connections with cut off gate valves on the hydrant branch. It is here recommended that the city should install some special hydrants for the use of the street sprinkling wagons and flushers.

LETTERS FROM TWIN FALLS MAN IN PERSHING'S FIRST CONTINGENT

Lieut. Homer Youngs to His Parents

The First Review Described—The City Visit—Americans in the Trenches—Cold Rains Continuous—Letters and Socks Most Desired.

The TIMES is permitted to publish extracts from a series of letters from Lieutenant Homer S. Youngs to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Youngs of this city, covering the period from the first review of American troops on French soil until they went into the trenches. Lieutenant Youngs went from Moscow, where he was a member of the faculty of the state university. Having won a second Lieutenantcy in the regular army upon examination, he was almost immediately promoted, as was his Indian brother, now waiting at Camp Mills with the rest of Company D, for a chance to cross to France. He is the wife he left behind him; and it will add so much of personal interest that we cannot refrain from whispering to the TIMES readers that his special anxiety to hear from her is explained by the fact that he had been a father for some days, his last letter was written—number of two cablegrams sent having been delivered to him. Lieut. Youngs is the official censor for his company, and takes good care to keep within the limits, since each one of his own letters bears his "O. K." and official signature.

Somewhere in France, October 15, 1917.

Dear Folks: Today has been a red letter day for the soldiers. Our first division, composed of the first troops to get out on French soil, all seasoned, trained soldiers, passed in review for Marshal Joffre and General Pershing. Before me, I am proud to belong to the first regiment of the first brigade, of the first division. We will be the first to go into action, and the first to "show" the world how Americans can fight.

Early this morning we formed in the company streets, and the regiment marched in full field equipment to a big plateau, where the other regiments formed one by one. Four regimental bands played the Marseillaise while General Pershing and General Joffre, and Pershing marched past us. Then the good old "Star Spangled Banner" was played, and every man, I am sure, was filled with pride and patriotic feeling. It would stir the blood of any real American. At the word of command the troops swung into column of companies, and marched past the reviewing post—each company saluting on arriving opposite General Joffre. There were a lot of movements in action, and I suppose you will see the pictures in the states before long. (We have.) I don't suppose you will be able to pick me out. I was in command of one of the companies of the third battalion, immediately behind the colors of the 16th Infantry.

After we had all passed in review the officers fell out and we had the great honor of being personally presented to General Joffre. He shook hands with each of us, and spoke a few words of encouragement. General Pershing also. Then General Joffre made a speech which was translated by an American officer. The main part of it was the man. The French folks call him Grandpere Joffre.

I have been very busy this last week. My company commander has been on leave of absence and I have been in command of "L" company for the past three days, but he returned this a. m. and took the responsibility off my shoulders.

The regimental judge advocate was taken sick last week, and due to a shortage of officers, the job fell to me. I tried two cases Saturday in the special court-martial, and one this afternoon after we returned from the review. A judge advocate continued to a prosecuting attorney. He holds up the government's end of the case. It is new work to me, and I have to study like the devil. I am sure I will have another job, that of battalion intelligence officer. As soon as we go into active service on the front lines I will be transferred from the company and will be on the battalion staff, directly under Major Craik. The work will be very interesting, accounting, patrolling, observing, and maintaining information of the enemy in every possible manner. I will have a picked detachment of the very best and keenest non-commissioned officers and men under my command.

It has been three months since I heard from him. I think he owes me about three letters. I don't even know where he is now. Germaine wrote that she had heard from you. Why don't you write to me, too? Promotion is very fast now. I am not far from the head of the list of first lieutenants, and in all probability will get my captaincy before the winter is over. I sure hope so, for the increase in pay will come in very handy. Well, if I am going to get up in time for reveille in the morning I will have to turn in.

Lots of love to all. HOMER.

October 23, 1917. Dear Folks: Today is a sort of holiday for me and I'm taking a little rest. My company is on guard, and another officer is officer of the day, so there is nothing for me to do.

Last Saturday I got a day's leave of absence and went to a large city near here, to make some necessary purchases. I bought a trench coat, rubber boots, gloves, etc. But I can't get any good heavy wool socks.

It was quite an agreeable trip. I got a room in a nice hotel, with a hot bath, and good French cooking. I went to a moving picture show, saw an American photoplay, and almost persuaded myself that I was back in the states. However, all the windows in my hotel were covered with blankets to keep out the cold, since the air raid of two days previous, and from my hotel I could see the ruins of several "Malsons," completely ruined by the bombing. A German machine gun corner had been blown off the railroad station across the street, by a recent raid.

I will tell you more about my daily duties, and my plans, but the censorship regulations won't allow.

We now have our full complement of officers in this company, and my work is much lighter. A bunch of officers have recently arrived from the American training camps, and being assigned to the regiment. Officially, I am now a first lieutenant in the 63rd Infantry, attached to the 16th Infantry. I don't even know what the 63rd Infantry is, but suppose I will be ordered to join it at some future time.

Tell Ruth that I have adopted another sister, a little French girl, about ten years old who lives next door to me. Her father and brothers are at the front, one brother has been killed. I have a very nice little girl, and I am going to talk a little English, and says she is going back to America with me after the war. He name is quite romantic, Ferande l'Andre.

I saw a German plane being shelled on my visit. It was Saturday. It was a very nice, so high as to be almost invisible, with little white puffs of bursting shrapnel dotting the sky all around it. None of them touched it, however, and it went its way unharmed. I expect it probably met a French aero squadron before it got back to its own lines.

We have all the windows darkened at night, and to be very careful, so that German planes will not be able to locate us and drop bombs. There is comparatively little drunkenness or disorderly conduct among our men, much less among the troops here in the trenches. It came much sooner than we expected. I can't tell you anything about the movements of my regiment, but I will tell you a little when the ban is lifted, I may be able to tell a little about trench life.

This is a tiresome job. All I have to do is sit at headquarters and answer the telephone, then to make the rounds of my sentinels. I make a couple of rounds in the morning, one in the afternoon and two at night, one before, and one after midnight.

With lots of love, HOMER.

France, Oct. 27, 1917.

I am stationed in another French village, with a platoon, guarding the billets of a battalion which has gone up front. I suppose you have read in the papers that the German troops are in the trenches. It came much sooner than we expected. I can't tell you anything about the movements of my regiment, but I will tell you a little when the ban is lifted, I may be able to tell a little about trench life.

This is a tiresome job. All I have to do is sit at headquarters and answer the telephone, then to make the rounds of my sentinels. I make a couple of rounds in the morning, one in the afternoon and two at night, one before, and one after midnight.

I wish you would send me my air mail boots, and my hat. I also have a pocket knife, one with a clip point blade. The French knives are a joke, made of tin. I turned out a letter to you, but I haven't got a letter from the states for ages. The mail has all been held up somewhere, probably will arrive in ten or twelve days, that is unless the mail ships have been torpedoed.

not put me on something else before I fairly get started. I see a good many newspaper correspondents, and they seem to be of the opinion that the war is drawing to a close. Germany's morale is just being broken, and they are being heavily beaten by the French and English. I do hope the Italians will stand up against them. It is a favorite stunt with the Germans to take their troops who have been badly punished by the French and English, and have lost their morale, and put them against a weak foe, and let them win a few victories to bolster up their courage, then put them back in the lines, where the French and English have the same success to show over again. It is too bad that there is always a weak ally that the Germans can beat.

Freed by Jury from Murder Charge She Romps With Her Little Son on Long Island.
(N. S. Leased Wire)
ROSLYN, L. I., Dec. 3.—In her beautiful home at "The Crossways", Mrs. Blanca de Saullles, freed of the charge of the murder of her former husband, Jack de Saullles, Broadway favorite and Yale athlete, played and romped today to her heart's content with her son, Jack de Saullles, Jr.
The fear that her boy was being estranged from her had disappeared and the mother is again the cheery beauty of earlier days.
The state of apathy disappeared, a tint of crimson mounts the unusually pallid cheeks and the eyes flash the fire of youth, vigor and love—love for her boy.
Relatives of Jack de Saullles have abandoned all possible hope of going into court with the plan to prevent the mother from taking her son back to Chile or elsewhere to live. The verdict of acquittal makes the mother the child's guardian.
Mrs. de Saullles received representatives of the press yesterday. While discussing the trial and her own affairs, the boy was brought to his mother, and, she said, "my happiness is now complete."
"I have no immediate plans for the future," she told her guests. "I have no money left and I might have to go to work. No, I would not touch a cent of the money left him (Jack de Saullles). We might go back to Chile to live but for the present we will remain here."

In view of the high price of milk, butter and eggs this cake is as timely as it is good.

Oatmeal Soup
One and one-half cups tomatoes, five cups water, one-half large onion or one green pepper chopped, one and one-half teaspoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup oatmeal. Boil the water. Add oatmeal and other ingredients. Boil together for three-quarters of an hour in a covered saucepan, frequently stirring. Strain for small children.

Bolled Rice With Milk
One cup of rice, one and one-half cups of milk, one-half ounce of butter substitute, one teaspoon of salt, two and one-half cups of water. The measurements of the articles of this recipe contain the following food units:
Rice ..... 544
Milk ..... 150
Butter substitute ..... 125

Cook in a double boiler until the rice is soft and has absorbed all the liquid.

Soup
Put an Feu—Take two to four lbs. of plate ribs of beef (according to the size of family), cover with a quart of water to each pound of meat; let come to boil and skim well. Three medium sized carrots; one small white turnip, or piece of yellow turnip; one onion; two leeks;—small piece of parsnip, a sprig of parsley; one bay leaf; tiny pinch of thyme; half a teaspoon of white black pepper; four cloves;—a small piece of celery, if in season, or pinch of celery salt. Salt to taste. Boil gently six hours.

It is best to tie the meat in a compact flat piece. Red cabbage boiled and served with this is excellent. The meat served for dinner contains is delicious, as it has a beautiful flavor. Serve mustard pickle with it.

This soup is economical, as you have a delicious piece of meat to eat for dinner and your soup stock as well. The soup must be well skimmed of fat.

Rice With Tomatoes
Wash and drain one-half cup of rice, cook in one-tablespoon butter or dripping until brown, add one cup of boiling water, and steam until water is absorbed. Add one and three-fourths cups hot stewed tomatoes or canned tomato pulp, cook until rice is soft and season with salt and pepper.

Corn Muffins
To two tea cups sifted corn meal, add one-half pint milk; one dessert spoon sugar; two eggs, one scant-teaspoon salt; two teaspoons baking powder. Whip into light batter and bake in muffin tins, well greased, for about twenty minutes; even heat—serve immediately.

Raised Oatmeal Muffins
Three-fourths cup scalded milk, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt; one-fourth yeast cake, dissolved in one-fourth cup lukewarm milk, one cup cold cooked oatmeal, two and one-half cups flour.

Add sugar and salt to scalded milk; when lukewarm add dissolved yeast cake. Work oatmeal into flour with tips of fingers, and add to first mixture; beat thoroughly, cover, and rise overnight. In the morning, fill greased iron pan two-thirds full hot. Let on back of range that can may gradually heat and stir mixture to fill pan. Bake in moderate oven twenty-five to thirty minutes.

Corn Cake
To one and one-half cups sifted corn meal add one-half pint milk; one egg (white and yolk beaten separately); one scant teaspoon salt; one-tablespoon sugar; one teaspoon baking powder. This makes a very thick batter. Fry on hot, well greased grid-iron. This quantity serves four people.

DO YOU LIKE POPCORN?
The December Woman's Home Companion prints this recipe:
Popcorn Cake
1 quart popped corn.
1 cup sugar.
¼ cup of corn syrup.
¼ cup of water.
2 tablespoons molasses.
1 tablespoon butter substitute.
1-teaspoon-salt.
Pick over the popped corn, discarding all hard kernels, and finely chop the corn, or put through meat grinder, using a coarse knife. Put sugar, corn syrup, and water in saucepan, stir until it boils, and cook to 270 degrees F. or until candy-cracks when tried in cold water; add molasses and butter substitute, and cook to 290 degrees F. or until it is very hard when tried in cold water. Add corn, stir until well mixed, return to fire a moment, or tosser in then pour on buttered slab or tray, and roll with rolling pin as thin as possible. Cut in squares or break in small pieces. Molasses may be omitted.

New Teuton Drive in Italy Expected

ROME, Dec. 1.—A renewal of infantry fighting on a big scale was forecast today by the violent artillery duels reported from all parts of the front.

Advices from Verona, the Italian base, indicated that the Italians expect a drive in a new quarter.

For some time the Germans and Austro-Hungarians have been shifting troops along the Piave river and the Asiago plateau and military critics express the belief that the next assault by the invaders will be westward of the present arena of fighting.

Having failed to shako the Italian front on the Piave and the Asiago plateau the Germans may switch their main pressure to the sector between the Asolo river and Lake Garda, hoping to break through in that district and cut southward on the extreme western edge of the Venetian plain.

WELL KNOWN CITIZEN DEAD

He leaves a wife, two sons, Einar and Alfred Olden, in Chicago, a son, R. R. Olden, in Portland, a step-son, Nels Brown, in Twin Falls, a daughter, Mrs. R. B. Randolph, in Twin Falls, a daughter, Mrs. Anna Larson, in Sioux City, Iowa, whose three brothers also live.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. C. L. Bent at a time to be announced later.

THE FIGHTING TRAIL

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

AN EXTRAORDINARY PHOTOPLAY Each chapter is a complete story in itself, and a jump can be made from one to the other without in the least destroying the sequence of the story.

The marvelous adventure story of the great outdoors written by J. Stewart Blackburn and Cyrus Townsend Lord.

John Gwyn... William Duncan American mining engineer on whose shoulders rests the responsibility of furnishing the United States government with a rare mineral used in the manufacture of a very high explosive shell.

Synopsis of preceding episode John Gwyn, an American mining engineer, working a western mine to furnish the government with ingredients of an explosive essential to the manufacture of ammunition.

Man by a decoy note, is lured to the cabin. They manage to escape, but are pursued by the outlaws to a hanging bridge.

CHAPTER 10 "I'm sorry," said the Commissioner, "but I can do nothing for you. The sheriff gave him a significant glance, and he went on."

"I'm sorry," said the Commissioner, "but I can do nothing for you. The sheriff gave him a significant glance, and he went on."

Standing in the back of the bright red machine, one hand above her head and his foot on the steering wheel, he made a picture that drew the sympathy of every man in the crowd.

When Von Block drove off he did so with a definite purpose. Now that he had the deed recorded he must retain possession of the land.

"Well," announced Von Block, "this afternoon we'll capture the mine. Get busy now. I want results this time. Have a drink on me and then get to work!"

Van Block, Shoestring and "One-

Long," re-entered the car and drove to the station, where a long heavy-box was taken aboard and carried off into the seclusion of the forest near the mine.

Back at the mine Casey's men were preparing the midday meal. The two men who had been left as sentries came in from their posts, and every one was settling down for a comfortable hour when Rawls's first shot knocked the kettle from its hook.

Concluded next Tuesday See this story in Photo Play form to-day—Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night, at the Orpheum Theatre.

Sheep and Hogs in Twin Falls County In co-operation with the county agent, Mr. McLean, visits were made to a number of the small flock owners and hog men.

In general the small flocks are in good condition. With few exceptions, however, the lambs are not as large or in as prime a condition as they should be this season of the year.

The matter of housing the flock should be of prime consideration to every producer. You cannot expect a high production of wool and lambs except the flock be well taken care of during winter.

PRESIDENT ASKS WAR BE

tions. But when that has been done—no God willing, it usually will be—we shall at last be free to do an unprecedented thing, and this is the time to avow our purpose to do it. We shall be free to base peace on generosity and justice, to the exclusion of all selfish claims to advantage on the part of the victors.

"Let there be no misunderstanding. Our present and immediate task is to win the war and nothing shall turn us aside from it until it is accomplished. Every power that resources we possess, whether of men, of money or of materials, is being devoted and will continue to be devoted to that purpose until it is achieved. Those who desire to bring peace about before that purpose is achieved I counsel to carry their advice elsewhere. We will not entertain it. We shall regard the war as won only when the German people say to us through properly accredited representatives, that they are ready to agree to a settlement based upon justice and the reparation of the wrongs their rulers have done. They have done a wrong to Belgium which must be repaired. They have established a power over other lands and peoples than their own—the great empire of Austria-Hungary, other Balkan states, the states over Turkey, and within Asia—which must be relinquished.

"Germany's success by aid, by industry, by knowledge, by enterprise, we do not grudge or oppose, but admire, rather. She has built up for herself a real empire of trade and influence, secured by the peace of the world. We were content to abide the rivalries of manufacture, science and commerce that were involved for us in her success and to fall as we had or did not have the brains and the initiative to surpass her. But at the moment when she has conspicuously won her contest of peace, we throw them away, to establish in their stead what the world will no longer permit to be established, military and political domination by arms, by which to oust where she could not exceed the rivals she most feared and hated. The peace we make must, remedy that wrong. It must give the once free lands and happy people of Belgium and northern France from the Prussian conquest and the Prussian menace, but it must also deliver the peoples of Austria-Hungary, the peoples of the Balkans and the peoples of Turkey, alike in Europe and in Asia from their domination and the domination of the Prussian military and commercial autocracy.

"We owe it, however, to ourselves to say that we do not want to say to impair or to rearrange the Austro-Hungarian empire. It is no affair of ours what they do with their own life, either industrially or politically. We do not propose or desire to dictate to them in any way. We only desire to see that their affairs are left in their own hands in all matters, great or small. We shall hope to secure for the peoples of the Balkans, the peoples of the peoples of the Turkish empire the right and opportunity to live their own lives safe; their own fortunes secure against oppression or injustice and from the dictation of foreign courts or parties.

"And our attitude and purpose with regard to Germany herself are of a like kind. We intend no wrong against Germany; no interference with her internal affairs. We should deem either the one or the other absolutely unjustifiable, absolutely contrary to the principles we have professed to live by and to hold most sacred throughout our life as a nation.

"The people of Germany are being told by the men whom they now permit to deceive them and to act as their masters that they are fighting for the very life and existence of their empire, a war of desperate self defense against deliberate aggression. Nothing could be more grossly or wantonly false. We must seek by the utmost means and endeavor to cut and aim to convince them of its falseness. We are in fact fighting for their emancipation from fear, along with our own, and we are fighting for the fact of unjust attack by neighbors or rivals or schemers after world empire. No one is threatening the existence or independence or the peaceful enterprise of the German empire.

"The worst that can happen to the detriment of the German people in this that if they should still, after the war is over, continue to be obligated to live under ambitious and intriguing masters interested to disturb the peace of the world, men or classes of men whom the other peoples of the world could not trust, it might be impossible to admit them to the partnership of nations which, henceforth, guarantee the world's peace. That partnership must be a partnership of peoples, not a mere partnership of governments. It must be impossible, also, in such untoward circumstances to admit Germany to the free economic intercourse which must inevitably spring out of the other partnerships of a real peace. But there would be no aggression in that, and such a situation, inevitable because of distrust, would in the very nature of things, sooner or later cure itself, by processes which we assuredly do not intend to motion the wrongs of the very deep wrongs, committed in this war will have to be righted. That, of course, is the duty of the victors, and is justified by the commission of similar wrongs against Germany and her allies.

"The world will not permit the commission of similar wrongs as a means of reparation and settlement. Statesmen must die and they have learned that the opinion of the world has everywhere a wide awake and fully comprehends the issues involved. No representative of any self-governing nation will dare disregard it by attempting any such covenants of selfishness and compromise as went into the congress of Vienna. The thought of the plain people here and everywhere throughout the world the people who enjoy no privileges and have very simple and unopinionated standards of right and wrong, is the air all governments must henceforth breathe if they would live. It is in the full disclosing light of that thought that all policies must be conceived and executed in this midday hour of the world's life. German rulers have been simple and unopinionated candidly and fearlessly. As always, the right will prove to be expedient.

"What shall we do, then, to push this great war to freedom and justice to its righteous conclusion? We must clear away with a thorough hand all impediments to success and we must for the time being seek them out that will facilitate the fullest and free use of our whole capacity and forces as a fighting unit.

"One very embarrassing obstacle that stands in our way is that we are at war with Germany but not with her allies. I therefore very early recommended that the United States in a state of war with Austria-Hungary. Does it seem strange to you that this should be her attitude of peace? The argument I have just addressed to you? It is not. It is in fact the inevitable logic of what I have said. Austria-Hungary is not the ally of Germany, but she is mistress but simply the vassal of the German government. We must face the facts as they are and act upon them without hesitancy in this business. The government of Austria-Hungary is not acting upon its own initiative or in response to the wishes and feelings of its own people, but as the instrument of another nation. We must meet its force with our own and regard the central powers as but one enemy whose necessary destruction is conducted in no other way. The same logic would lead also to a declaration of war against Turkey and Bulgaria, but that is the tool of many. But they are mere tools and do not yet stand in the direct path of our necessary action. We shall go wherever the necessities of this war carry us, but it seems to me that, we should go only where immediate and practical consideration lead us and not heedlessly.

"The financial and military measures which must be adopted, will suggest themselves as the war and its undertaking develop. We will maintain the liberty of proposing to you certain other acts of legislation—whichever seem to me to be needed for the support of the war for the release of our whole force and energy."

The president further recommends further legislation regarding alien enemies: extension on price-fixing powers; laws looking to the systematic and economical development of natural resources under the control of the federal government; new laws permitting restricted combination combines among exporters; additional railroad legislation, of which more will be said later.

In conclusion President Wilson said: "It is because it is for us a war of high, disinterested purpose, in which all the free peoples of the world are banded together for the vindication of right, a war for the preservation of our nation and of all that it has held dear of principle and of purpose, that we feel ourselves doubly constrained to propose for its outcome only that which is righteous and of irrefragable intention, for our foes as well as for our friends. The nation that justly holds we must be of like motive and quality. For this we can fight but for nothing less noble or less worthy of our traditions. For this cause we entered the war and for this cause will we battle until the last sun is fired.

"I have spoken plainly because this seems to me the time when it is most necessary to speak plainly, in order that all the world may know that even in the heat and ardor of the struggle which when our thoughts are of carrying the war through to its end we have not forgotten any ideal or principle for which the name of America has been held in honor among the nations and for which it has been our glory to contend in the great generations that went before us. A supreme moment of history has come. The eyes of the people have been opened and they see. The hand of God is laid upon the nations. He will show them favor. I devoutly believe, only if they rise to the clear heights of His own justice and mercy."
