All shortenings are short. Some are shorter. That means they are richer.

Cottolene is a particularly short shortening. It sets the highest possible standard for purity and richness. You use one-third less of Cottolene than you ordinarily use of other shortenings. The results are perfectly delicious.

RECIPES

Rolls

7 cups pastry flour 1 level tablespoon

GERMAN HONOR DRAGGED IN DUST

Solemn Promises Made to Belgians Proved to Be Worse Than Worthless.

ALL APPEALS WERE FLOUTED

Pathetic and Dignified Supplications of Municipal Governments Answered by Rebuke and Heavy Fine, Imposed by General Hopfer.

Over the earnest protest of Cardinal Mercier, heroic head of the church in Belgium, the terrible plans of the Kaiser's high officers concerning the deportation of the people were carried out. The solemnly pledged word of the German governor general of Belgium counted as nothing in the malignant hate shown by the Kaiser's creatures.

Cardinal Mercier attempted to persuade the German authorities to abandon their terrible plans for the seizure of Belgium to assist in the prosecution of the war, reminding them of their solemn promises in the past: "Malines, 30th October, 1918.

"Mr. Governor General:

"The day after the surrender of Antwerp the frightened population asked itself what would become of the Belgians of age to bear arms or who would reach that age before the end of the occupation. The anxieties of the fathers and mothers of families determined me to question the governor of Antwerp, Baron von Huene, who had the kindness to reassure me and to authorize me in his name to reassure the agonized parents. The rumor had spread at Antwerp, nevertheless, that at Liege, Namur, and Charleroi young men had been seized and taken by force to Germany. I therefore begged Governor von Huene to be good enough to contact me in writing the guarantee which he had given to me orally, to the effect that nothing similar would happen at Antwerp. He said to me immediately that the rumors concerning deportations were without basis, and unhesitatingly he sent me in writing, among other statements, the following: 'Young men have no reason to fear that they will be taken to Germany, either to be there enrolled in the army or employed for forced labor.'

"This declaration, written and signed, was publicly transmitted to the clergy and to those of the faith of the province of Antwerp, as your excellency can see from the document enclosed herewith, dated October 16th, 1914, which was read in all the churches.

Solemn German Promises Broken. Upon the arrival of your predecessor, the late Baron von der Goltz, at Brussels I had the honor of presenting myself at his house and requested him to be good enough to ratify for the entire country, without time limit, the guarantee which General von Huene had given me for the province of Antwerp. The governor general retained this request in his possession in order to examine it at his leisure. The following day he was good enough to come in person to Malines to bring me his approval, and confirmed to me, in the presence of two aides-de-camp and of my private secretary, the promise that the liberty of Belgian citizens would be respected.

"To doubt the authority of such undertakings would have been to reflect upon the persons who had made them, and I therefore took steps to allay, by all the means of persuasion in my power, the anxieties which persisted in the interested families.

"Notwithstanding all this, your government now tears from their homes workmen reduced in spite of their efforts to a state of unemployment, separates them by force from their wives and children and deposits them to any territory. Numerous workmen have already undergone this unhappy lot; more numerous are those who are threatened with the same acts of violence.

Mercier's Moving Appeal. "In the name of the liberty of domicile and the liberty of work of Belgian citizens; in the name of the inviolability of families; in the name of moral interests which the measures of deportation would gravely compromise; in the name of the word given by the Governor of the Province of Antwerp and by the governor-general, the immediate representative of the highest authority of the German empire, I respectfully beg your excellency to be good enough to withdraw the measures of forced labor and of deportation announced to the Belgian workmen, and to be good enough to reinstate in their homes those who have already been deported.

"Your excellency will appreciate how painful for me would be the weight of the responsibility that I would have to bear as regards these families, if the confidence which they have given you through my agency and at my request were lamentably deceived.

"I persist in believing that this will not be the case.

"Accept, Mr. Governor General, the assurance of my very high consideration.

"D. J. CARDINAL MERCIER, "Arch. of Malines."

Municipal governments in Belgium appealed to the German authorities to observe their promises. The two documents which follow illustrate Belgian appeals and German answers.

"In the matters of the regulation made by the German authorities on October 20, 1914 (specification of a list of workmen to be drawn up by the municipality)

"The municipal council resolves to maintain its attitude of refusal.

"It further feels it its duty to place on record the following:

"The city of Tournai is prepared to submit unreservedly to all the exigencies authorized by the laws and customs of war. Its sincerity cannot be questioned. For more than two years it has submitted to the German occupation, during which time it has lodged and lived at close quarters with the German troops, yet it has displayed perfect composure and has refrained from any act of hostility, proving thereby that it is animated by no ill-spirit of bravado.

"In his declaration dated September 2, 1914, the German governor general of Belgium declared: 'I ask none to renounce his patriotic sentiments.'

"The city of Tournai reposes confidence in this declaration, which it is bound to consider as the sentiment of the German emperor, in whose name the governor general was speaking. In accepting the inspiration of honor and patriotism, the city is loyal to a fundamental duty, the loftiness of which must be apparent to any German officer.

"The city is confident that the straightforwardness and clearness of this attitude will prevent any misunderstanding arising between itself and the German army."

Answer to Lecture and Fine.

Malines, 22d October, 1918. "In permitting itself, through the medium of municipal resolutions, to oppose the orders of the German military authorities in the occupied territory, the city is guilty of an unexcusable act and of a complete misunderstanding of the situation created by the state of war.

"The clear and simple situation is in reality the following:

"The military authorities order the city to obey. Otherwise the city must bear the heavy consequences. As I have pointed out in my previous explanations.

"The general commanding the army has inflicted on the city—on account of its refusal, up to date, to furnish the lists demanded—a punitive contribution of 200,000 marks, which must be paid within the next six days, beginning with today. The general also adds that until such time as all the lists demanded are in his hands, every day in arrears beginning with December 31, 1918, a sum of 20,000 marks will be paid by the city.

"HOPFER, Major General, "Etappen-Kommandant."

The Commission Syndicale of Belgium was likewise also attempted to induce the German authorities to abandon their terrible plans.

Recited Wrongs of Workmen.

"Commission Syndicale of Belgium, "BRUSSELS, 30th Oct., 1918.

"To the Governor General of Belgium: "Excellezcy, The measures which are being planned by your administration to force the unemployed to work for the invading power, the deportation of our unhappy comrades who has begun in the region of the etapes, move most profoundly the entire working class in Belgium.

"The undersigned, members and representatives of the great central socialist and independent syndicates of Belgium, would consider that they had not fulfilled their duty did they not express to you the painful sentiment which agitate the laborers and convey to you the echo of their touching complaints.

"They have seen the machinery taken from their factories, the most diverse kind of raw materials requisitioned, the accumulation of obstacles to prevent the resumption of regular work, the disappearance of one by one of every public liberty of which they were proud.

"For more than two years the laboring class more than any other has been forced to undergo the most bitter trials, experiencing misery and often hunger, while its children are left away right and die, and the parents of these children can never convey to them the affection with which their hearts are overflowing.

Patetic Appeal Disregarded.

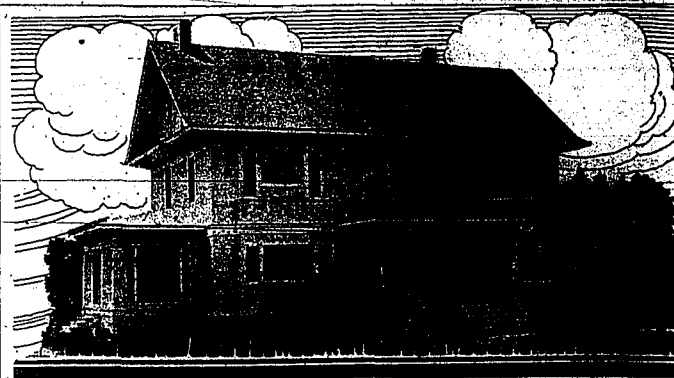

"Our laboring class has endured everything with the utmost calm and the most impressive dignity, representing its sufferings, its complaints and heavy trials, sacrificing everything to its ideal of liberty and independence. But the measures which have been announced will make the population drain the dregs (of the cup) of human sorrow; the proletariat, the poor upon whom unemployment has been forced, citizens of a modern state, are to be condemned to forced labor without having disobeyed any regulation or order.

"In the name of the families of workmen among which the most painful anxiety reigns at present, whose mothers, whose fiancées, and whose little children are destined to shed so many more tears, we beg your excellency to prevent the accomplishment of this painful act, contrary to international law, contrary to the dignity of the working classes, contrary to everything which makes for worth and greatness in human nature.

"We beg your excellency to pardon our emotion and we offer you the homage of our distinguished consideration."

(Approved) signed by members of the national committee and the Commission Syndicale.

von Bissing in his reply, November 8, practically admitted the truth of the complaint by attempting to justify the measures protested against.

BLUE LAKES ADDITION

The Residential Masterpiece

Wherever you buy a place for your home, ask yourself these questions:

- Are the residents of a class you would enjoy having as neighbors for your family?
- Will there be public improvements, such as street paving, sidewalks, shade trees, sewer and water mains?
- Are there schools and churches near?
- Is the property restricted against stores, shacks and other undesirable conditions?
- Is the location in a growing district where values will rapidly increase?

All of these questions can be answered "YES" at Blue Lakes Addition, the most beautiful residence park in all Idaho. Big homesites, 60 feet wide, for $1300 to $1500 each, with terms if desired.

Doing Our Part

Did you ever notice the difference between the size of a crowd in a store Saturday afternoon and other days of the week?

The telephone company is now serving a "Saturday afternoon crowd" every day.

Since the war began the business activity of the country has been expanding with abnormal rapidity. This has required constantly more and more telephone service for the business houses.

Complete telephone systems have been built and are maintained at more than fifty training camps over the country. This has taken a tremendous amount of equipment and the services of a large number of skilled telephone men.

Many of our men are constantly engaged in installing and maintaining the equipment used only by the Government in this country.

In addition to this, our Government needed skilled telephone men in the prosecution of the war, and these could be furnished only by the telephone companies of the country.

In spite of the war and what it has meant to this company in the increased number of telephone messages to handle, the enlistment of so many of our trained men, the shortage of equipment and the high cost of materials—

In spite of all these obstacles, we are meeting the needs of the public for telephone service in a remarkably successful way.

JESS WILLARD WILL FIGHT FULTON

(Eddie Geiger, Staff Correspondent)
CHICAGO, Feb. 27—Jess Willard, who telegraphed to the writer today said he had decided several offers to fight Fred Fulton and that he probably would sign for the match. Willard telegraphed from Jacksonville follows: "Have several good offers to box Fulton. Will probably sign with him soon. He seems to be popular favorite. The number of rounds and place for signing the bout is immaterial to me." Willard's statement that he intended to sign with Fulton probably means that Jack Dempsey, the new sensation of the heavyweight ranks, will not get a chance at either Willard or Fulton until after the Willard-Fulton bout. Willard's wire was in answer to a query as to what consideration he would give Dempsey but his reply entirely ignored Dempsey.

BLUE RIBBON DAIRY

Here's a Model Menu for the Week

(By Virginia Carter Lee)
Glancing through the menus for the coming week, the home caterer will notice that each day is designated according to what it is expected to accomplish in conserving the food supply.

Tuesday is arranged as the beefless day, this plan being followed by many of the hotels and also of the dining rooms. The housewife should remember that when she plans for a wheatless day it must really be a honest wheatless day, when not a particle of the precious wheat flour is to be used for even thickening sauce or gravy. This reminder is given because we are so in the habit of using a spoonful of wheat flour without thinking that we are not to do it unconsciously.

In the tomato soup given on Monday, the instant tapoca—that requires no cooking—is used for thickening. This ingredient is very helpful for such a purpose, but I would suggest that the sauce or gravy be cooked in a double boiler, so that there will be no possibility of its scorching. Five fish meals have been arranged for during the week. The corn and oyster fritters given on Tuesday combine fish and vegetable in a most appetizing manner. In this recipe, as only nine oysters are required, half a pint of the shells will be sufficient. Add the scalded flour to the vegetable soup, served at the same meal, and you will notice a decided improvement in the flavor.

The macaroni and celery pie, for Friday's luncheon, is another palatable and rather unusual dish, the addition of the seasonal sauce and the grated cheese, giving it a piquant flavor. A dish of this kind that is inexpensive helps to conserve the available supplies of the week and keeps the household budget within the prescribed limit.

Purchases at the butcher's during the week include one pound and a quarter of veal kidney, at 40 cents a pound; a roast forequarter of mutton, weighing four pounds, at 30 cents a pound; a quarter of a pound of salt pork at 30 cents a pound, and one three-pound steak at 35 cents a pound. At the 9-cent market, two pounds of Spanish mackerel at 22 cents a pound; a pint and a half of scallops at 60 cents a quart; one pint and a half of oysters at 50 cents a quart, and one pound and a quarter of pan fish at 18 cents a pound.

Two pounds of butter, for table use only, at 63 cents a pound; half a pound of margarine at 30 cents a pound; seventeen eggs at 62 cents a dozen; six quarts of milk at 12 cents a quart; one pint of buttermilk at 7 cents, and two-quarter pints of cream at 12 cents each will be necessary to follow the menus as given. DAMP LOAF OF BREAD REVEALS WHISKEY FLASK

(By International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 22.—Local postoffice employees noticed a leaking package, and one of them investigated. He found two loaves of home made brown bread, one of them was very damp. The end dropped off and a broken pint bottle of whiskey was found in a hole scooped out of the heart of the loaf. The package was addressed to a Camp Funston soldier and read: "From a friend who knows what hard tack is." The whiskey was turned over to the General Hospital and the postal authorities are investigating.

There were about fifteen sailors in the group when the attack was made. Food Will Win the War

ALABO part of the world is coming to the position that Belgium is in; coming to the stage where the primary and important thing in life is enough food to keep alive. Food has now taken a dominant position in the war. The American people must prepare themselves to sacrifice far more than was at first thought necessary. The cold facts are: France, Italy and England have just enough food to keep them going ten or twelve weeks. When America's food shipments stop—the allied nations begin consuming into this slender store and begin a swift march into actual famine conditions—which would mean defeat in short order. Europe then must live on America's surplus. BELGIANS HERDED IN CATTLE PENS

Participant's Testimony of Degradation Accompanying Deportation From Mons.

SCENES OF FIENDISH CRUELTY

Women Forbidden to Give Food and Clothing to Men Facing Privation and Cold—United States Appeal Unheeded.

Conspicuous among cold-blooded acts of cruelty committed by the Germans, to their everlasting disgrace, the deportation from Mons is prominent. Official documents published by the committee on public information tell part of the harrowing story.

A vivid sketch of the deportations from Mons, ordered by German authorities, drawn by a participant, may well be cited here:

"I will take the 18th of November of last year [1916]. A week or so before that a placard was placed on the walls telling us, capital city of Mons that in seven days all the men of that city who were not clergymen, who were not priests, who did not belong to the city council, would be deported.

"At half past five, in the gray of the morning on the 18th of November, they walked out, 9200 men at Mons, myself and another leading them down the cobblestones of the street and out where the firing would be less than in the great city, with the soldiers on each side with their rifles fixed, with the women held back.

"The degradation of it! The degradation of it as they walked into this great market square, where the pens were erected, exactly as if they were cattle—rather great men, with their lines—the lawyers, the statesmen, the heads of the trades, the men that had made the capital of Halanaut glorious during the last 20 years.

"There they were collected, no question of who they were, whether they were busy or what they were doing, or what their position in life. 'Go to the right! Go to the left! Go to the right!' So they were turned to the one side or the other.

"Trains were standing there ready, steaming, to take them to Germany. You saw—on the one side—the one brother taken, the other brother left. A hasty embrace and they were separated and gone.

"You saw the women in hundreds, with bundles in their hands, beseeching to be permitted to approach the trains, to give their men the last that they had in life between themselves and starvation—small bundles of clothing to keep them warm on their way to Germany. You saw women approach with a bundle that had been purchased by the sale of the last of their household effects. No one was allowed to approach to give her man the warm pair of stockings or the warm jacket, so there might be some chance of his reaching there. Off they went!"—John H. Gade, in the National Geographic Magazine, May, 1917.

The Belgian women sent a touching appeal to Minister Whitlock:

Appeal of Belgian Women. Brussels, Nov. 28, 1916, 48 Rue de la Madeleine. His Excellency, Mr. Brand Whitlock, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States of America.

"From the depths of our well of misery our supplication rises to you. In addressing ourselves to you, we denounce to your government, as well as to our sisters, the women of the nation which you represent, in our midst, the criminal abuse of force of which our unhappy and defenseless people is a victim.

"Since the beginning of this atrocious war we have looked on helplessly and with our hearts torn with every sorrow at terrible events which put civilization back into the ages of the barbarian hordes.

"Mr. Minister, the crime which is now being committed under your eyes, namely, the deportation of thousands of men compelled to work on enemy soil against the interests of their country, cannot find any shadow of excuse on the ground of military necessity, for it constitutes a violation by force of a sacred right of human conscience.

Called "Monstrous Extremity." "Whatever may be the motive, it cannot be admitted that citizens may be compelled to work on enemy soil, directly, for the enemy against their brothers who are fighting.

"The convention of The Hague has consecrated this principle. "Nevertheless, the occupying power is forcing thousands of men to this monstrous extremity, which is contrary to morals and international law, both these men who have already been taken to Germany and those who tomorrow will undergo the same fate, from the outside, from neutral Europe and the United States, no help is offered.

"Oh! The Belgian Women have also known how to carry out their duty in the hour of danger; they have not weakened the courage of the soldiers of honor by their tears. "They have bravely given to their country, those whom they loved. The blood of mothers is flowing on the battlefields with that of their sons. "Those who are taken away today do not go to perform a glorious duty; they are slaves in chains who, in a dark cell, thrice a day by hunger, prison, death, will be called upon to perform the most odious work—service to the enemy against the fatherland. Rights of Honor and Conscience. "The mothers cannot stand by hostile such an abandonment; is taking place without making their voices heard in protest.

"They address you in the name of the unalienable rights of honor and conscience. "It has been said that women are 'all powerful supplicants.' "We have felt authorized by this saying, Mr. Minister, to extend our hands to you and to address to your country a last appeal.

"We trust that in reading these lines you will feel at each word the unhappy heartbeats of the Belgian women there still, in your broad and humane sympathy imperative reasons for intervention.

"Only the united will of the neutral peoples, energetically expressed in countenance that of the German authorities.

"This assistance which the neutral nations can and, therefore, ought to lend us, will be refused to the oppressed Belgians?

"Be good enough to accept, Mr. Minister, the homage of our most distinguished consideration."

(Signed by a number of Belgian women and 24 societies.)

The United States government did not fail to respond to this touching appeal and to others of a similar nature. The American embassy at Berlin promptly took up the burning question of the deportations with the chancellor and other representatives of the German government. In an interview with the under secretary of state for foreign affairs, Mr. Grew was handed an official statement of the German plans, which is, in translation, as follows: German Camouflage.

"Against the unemployed in Belgium, who are a burden to public charity, in order to avoid friction arising therefrom, compulsory measures are to be adopted to make them work so far as they are not voluntarily inclined to work, in accordance with the regulations issued May 19, 1916, by the governor general. In order to ascertain such persons the assistance of the municipal authorities is required for the district of the governor general in Brussels, and to the districts outside of the general government, i. e., in the provinces of Flanders, lists were demanded from the presidents of the local relief committees containing the names of persons receiving relief. For the sake of establishing uniform procedure the competent authorities have, in the meantime, been instructed to make the necessary investigations regarding such persons also in Flanders through the municipal authorities; furthermore, presidents of local relief committees who may be detained for having refused to furnish such lists will be released."

Mr. Grew pointed out that the deportation of "worthy" Belgians with their families would injure the German cause abroad. In his official summary of the negotiations which he carried on he says:

"I then discussed in detail with the under secretary of state for foreign affairs the unfortunate impression which this decision would make abroad, reminding him that the measures were to principle contrary to the assurances given to the ambassador by the chancellor at general headquarters last spring and dwelling on the effect, which the policy might have on England's attitude towards relief work in Belgium. I said I understood that the measures had been proposed solely by the military government in Belgium and that I thought the matter ought at least to be brought to the chancellor's personal attention in the light of the consequences which the new policy would entail on general headquarters. He indicated in reply that the foreign office had very little influence with the military authorities and that it was unlikely that the new policy in Belgium could be reversed. He said, however, in answer to my inquiry, that he would not disapprove of my seeing the chancellor about the matter."

Solemn Protest by United States. "The formal protest of the United States is as follows:

"The government of the United States has learned with the greatest concern and regret of the policy of the German government to deport from Belgium a portion of the civilian population with the view of forcing them to labor in Germany, and is constrained to protest in a friendly spirit but most solemnly against this action which is in contravention of all precedent and those humane principles of international practice which have long been accepted and followed by civilized nations in their treatment of non-combatants in conquered territory. Furthermore, the government of the United States is convinced that the effect of this policy if pursued will in all probability be fatal to the Belgian relief work so humanely planned so successfully carried out, a result which would be seriously deplored and which, it is assumed, would seriously embarrass the German government."

This protest was followed by those of the pope, the king of Spain, the government of Switzerland and other neutrals. The view of a neutral, except, perhaps, to lead the German authorities to draw a tighter veil over their deplorable proceedings. But the evidence has in some measure come forth, although the full extent will not be known until the liberation of whole Belgium.

Former President Taft is Selected. Asked to Represent Employers at Great Labor Conference—Hope for Amicable Settlement. WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—Former President William Howard Taft today was selected by the employers as their representative to the public on the labor planning board. If he accepts the appointment, it will be necessary for him to visit Washington and sit with the board. The labor men have not yet selected their representative. The board held a brief session at which the Taft selection was announced and adjourned until tomorrow morning. The conference is the most important ever held on the subject of labor. It is hoped that an agreement can be arrived at without further legislation. URGES EMPLOYMENT OF STUDENT LADS ON FARMS (By International News Service) CHICAGO, Feb. 26—Edward H. CLAIMS OF THE TIMES ARE FULLY SUSTAINED

President Wilson speaks rhythmically of the "establishment of equality of trade and tariff." It is a pity that President Wilson still labors under the "political delusion" which obsessed his predecessor, Jefferson, that all men are equal. He certainly will not dare apply it to an odious comparison between the rice-eating, rat-masticating, stink-eyed, two-wheeled, black-skinned and the clear-eyed, vigorous, sturdy American workman who wishes to live well himself and wishes his family to be reared in comfort and ease under the best of circumstances. There can be no equality of labor conditions between the splendid American workers and the cheap alien coolies, and Mr. Wilson knows it. The American workman is the highest classed in the world. He should be the highest paid.

The above quotation taken from the current issue of the American Economist, the mouthpiece of those great manufacturing interests that are continually howling for special legislation, is a proof of the charge made by the TIMES December 16, and repeated since from time to time, with arguments to show its truth, that the crusade against the administration in and out of congress on the part of the representatives and organs of those industrial elements that sought special legislation, had for its primary purpose the defeat of the great international policies proposed by President Wilson and, since the Russian revolution, fully endorsed by the allies.

The above quotation when circulated as it will be by German agents in the Orient as the utterance of an influential American economic journal cannot fail to arouse antagonism against us at a time when three Asiatic powers, Japan, China and Siam are at war with the German empire, and are looking after our interests in fields which we would otherwise have to protect.

As far as the economic imputation, for its own argument, contained in the present attack is concerned, it is sufficient to say that American labor is better paid than Asiatic labor because it is more intelligent and productive. Japanese labor in its own country produces more than formerly, and is paid more than formerly, simply because with increased education and intelligence it has learned to organize and demand more. Only two weeks ago the wires carried a story of an increase in wages from the cause in Japan. Neither the American Economist nor its clients want American labor to get good wages or short hours. Manufacturers have always fought eight-hour laws. Let anyone who thinks that interest in the laborer is what stirs the breast of the privileged, read the Pacific Coast Manufacturer from month to month. Every labor organization is denounced. Labor laws are denounced. Minimum wage laws are denounced. Every privilege asked by any manufacturer is lauded. If manufacturers are to get special privileges on the theory that they will then pay more to their men, certainly minimum wage laws for all their employes should be passed, so that their workers will be sure of getting their share of the "rakeoff" collected from the ultimate consumer who "pays the freight." Neither the American Economist nor the Pacific Coast Manufacturer would stand for this policy for a moment.

The attack on Jefferson is characteristic of the friends of privilege in all generations. Gladly may every true American accept the compliment thus paid to their great president that he still holds to the "delusion" that all men are entitled to equality in the recognition of their moral rights as men, which is obviously the meaning of the equality spoken of in the Declaration of Independence. Naturally, neither the American Economist nor any other mouthpiece of privilege loves Jefferson, or Wilson, or the Declaration of Independence, as the definition of terms of Democratic Peace. The Wilson peace terms constitute an International Declaration of Independence and our modern Tories do not like them.

The friends of the war for democracy were generally slow to believe that the attack on Secretary Baker was an effort to discredit the administration at home and abroad for selfish reasons, but now they seem to be convinced. The evidence is, too, conclusive.

February 14, two months after the TIMES made this charge, and gave reasons for its belief, Congressman George Huddleston, of Alabama, in a brilliant speech showed up the ramifications of this intrigue. He recalled a significant statement published in the New York Times, before congress met in December, to the effect that the great captains of industry would demand that they be taken into the inner councils of the administration in the conduct of the war. He quoted the Chicago Public of January 26, as saying (two weeks after the TIMES made its charge) that the TIMES should "sit on the supreme seat of President Wilson and Secretary Baker in the eyes of these antagonistic monopolistic elements" "in that they actually desire a democratic and stable peace. . . . Today Mr. Baker in bearing the brunt of the most powerful and virulent offensive launched in our generation against a public man. Mr. Wilson is the real target, and the attack will be transferred to him—the moment the financial community becomes convinced that he is determined to adhere to policies already declared."

Lot no man suppose that because the purposes of this sinister monopoly machine have been temporarily thwarted, by the disproof of charges made in its crooked campaign against Baker, that it has accepted defeat. The utterances of the American Economist is evidence to the contrary. Congressman Huddleston in speaking of its "organization and ramifications" says:

"The organization of the anti-democratic group is wide spread and effective. It has its dependable representatives in every important country, and has but to touch the wires to arouse them to intense activity. It has its grip on the great financial institutions, business organizations and subsidized newspapers. Its response is powerful and instantaneous—a fearful and dangerous machine. . . . All of which is in accord with what this paper has urged from the beginning of a malevolent crusade, obviously unfair in character and conduct and following a careering rigging of the press, and the laying of a foundation for an assault by the newspapers wearing the brass collars of the seekers for special legislation."

ROOT STILL A PATRIOT

Those who have been claiming that the philosophy of the address delivered by Ethel Root at the Republican meeting in New York the week after was grandly wise and a most judicious partisan action in opposition to the war policy of the president, was inapplicable to the present situation, have not been giving much space to the following utterance by the same noted statesman in a letter sent to the Congress of National Service at Chicago last Thursday:

"Another thing I wanted to say was about the effect of criticism on the conduct of the government. Of course there have been mistakes and shortcomings. It would be a miracle if there were not. Everybody agrees to that. Nor do I wish to see that the government makes mistakes and shortcomings it is a good thing to have them pointed out. Sincere and constructive criticism of executive conduct is the most useful thing. But we must all be careful that neither shortcoming nor criticism tends in the slightest degree to divert or decrease the attention with which we all support and re-enforce the president and his civil and military officers in carrying on this war. . . . I am glad to be talking on this subject during the Civil War which is worth recalling now. He was superior to any of the 1641 Ohio Infantry in September, 1864. He said: 'There may be mistakes made. Sometimes things may be done wrong, while the officers of the government do all they can to prevent mistakes; but I beg of you as citizens of this great Republic not to let your minds be carried away from the great work we have before us. . . . The struggle is too large for you to be diverted from it by any small matter. When you return to your homes, rise up to the dignity of a generation of men worthy of a free government, and you will carry out the will of the people.'" of the delegates. A decent soldier does not desert his post. No foreign minister can carry on negotiations of such far reaching importance if he does not know, if the whole world does not know, that he is supported by the confidence of the majority.

"Either you must have confidence in my ability to carry on these negotiations for peace, and then you must help me, or you have not this confidence, and then you must denounce me. There is no other choice."

SOCIALISTS SAW GERMANY'S ERROR

Urged That Inhuman Deportations Be Stopped Because of Effect on Neutrals.

GERARD SUMS UP SITUATION

"Germans Will Stop at Nothing, and the Only Thing They Respect is Force" — His Reply for Cruelty Told by Whitlock.

Aroused by the indignation shown by the whole world over the ruthless deportations of the people in Belgium and France, socialist deputies in the Reichstag protested against the continuance of the practice. Ambassador Gerard's evidence shows the extent of the horror.

In the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of December 2, 1918, the following protest against the deportation of Belgians to work in Germany appeared, and respectively by Socialist Deputy Haase and Deputy Dittmann, members of the Reichstag: "Thousands of workmen in the occupied territory have been compelled to forced labor; we earnestly ask the government to return to these workmen their liberty, especially in Belgium. In truth, we (the Germans) find no sympathy in neutral countries; even the pope has made a protest against this practice and several neutral states have done the same. Common sense itself demands that we abandon this procedure which moreover is in opposition to the Hague convention which we have signed."

"In opposition to the secretary of state, I must recall that when formerly the Belgian workmen who had fled to Holland returned to Belgium, Governor General von Bissing promised that they would be sent from Courtrai under no circumstances be deported to Germany. This reassuring promise has not been kept."

Ambassador Gerard's interesting testimony appears in his recent book: Ambassador Gerard's Evidence. "A president (during my visit to America in 1910) impressed upon me his great interest in the Belgians deported to Germany. The action of Germany in thus carrying out the deportation of the male population of Belgium into virtual slavery had roused great indignation in America. As the revered Cardinal Farley said to me a few days before my departure, 'You have to go to the times of the Medes and the Persians to find a like example of a whole people carried into bondage.'"

"Mr. Gray had made representations about this to the chancellor and, on my return, I immediately took up the question. . . . It was informed that it was a military measure, that Ludendorff had feared that the British would break through and overrun Belgium and that the military did not propose to have a hostile population at their backs who might cut the rail lines of communication, telephones and telegraphs, and that for this reason the deportation had been decided on. I was, however, told I would be given permission to visit these Belgians. The passes, very eerie, which alone made such visiting possible were not delivered until a few days before I left Germany."

Belgians Forced to Make Munitions. "Several times Belgians who were put to work in Berlin managed to get away and come to see me. They gave me a harrowing account of how they had been seized in Belgium and made to work in Germany and how relations to be used probably against their own friends. . . . I said to the chancellor, 'There are Belgians employed in making shells contrary to all rules of war and the laws of civilization. He said, 'I do not believe it.' I said, 'My automobile is at the door. I can take you, in four minutes, to where 80 Belgians are working on the manufacture of shells.' But he would not let me go."

"Americans must understand that the Germans will stop at nothing to win this war, and that the only thing they respect is force."—James W. Gerard, My Four Years in Germany, 1917, pp. 283-2.

A similar point of view is expressed in an article entitled "Vae Victis" from the Hungarian newspaper Nevezsazn of Budapest (quoted in K. G. Osullivan's "Militarism in World War I" Belgium and Germany, 1917, pp. 13-14). Mixed Hungarian Opinion. "Mechanical skill, and especially qualified mechanical skill, is for the moment a more important factor than usual, and as it must be obtained where it can be obtained, Belgium had to suffer in accordance with the old saying which always holds good: 'Vae Victis' (woe to the vanquished). In this mechanical skill and the arms which exist there are millions under the glorious and fortunate banners of Poland; in Belgium under the banner of necessity."

"The question remains: for what kind of work will the Germans use the Belgians? . . . every kind of work in Germany is war work, whether it is called agricultural or industrial work. As the deported Belgians have not given their consent, their use is contrary to the laws of humanity. The policy of the Germans in Belgium and Poland is equally to be deplored. Instead of aiming at bringing us nearer peace, it serves to embitter our opponents and to arouse more hatred toward us amongst the neutrals. Many times and more than once we have had occasion to observe that the neutrals show more sympathy for Belgium than for any other belligerent.

Old Men and Boys Taken.

The news dispatches indicate that the deportation and forced labor of Belgians still continues. In a dispatch from Havre (New York Evening Post, September 13, 1917) it is stated: "The removal of the civilian population of Belgium continues, according to address received here. The farms of Boulers, immediately behind the battle line in Flanders, had been evacuated completely. Ostend is being emptied gradually, and two thousand persons recently have been sent from Courtrai."

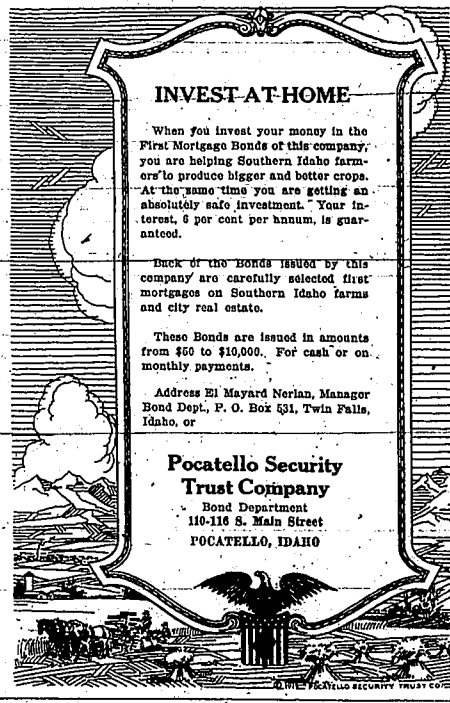

In another dispatch from Havre (Washington Post, September 24, 1917) it is stated that "the German military authorities at Bruges, Belgium, are concentrating forcibly all the boys and men of that city between the ages of fourteen and sixty to work in munition factories and shipyards. The rich and poor, shopkeepers and workmen, all are being taken, only the school teachers, doctors, and priests escaping."

German Officers' Beliefs. Related in "The following 'Order of the Day'" shows how the town of Huy escaped the fate of so many Belgium and French towns. Drunken German soldiers were frightened and began to shoot at the town. The commanding officer condemned this because it was not done by his order and because two German soldiers were wounded. It is evident that massacres and arson were permitted only when commanded by the officers.

"Last night a shooting affray took place. There is no evidence that the inhabitants of the towns had any arms in their houses, nor is there evidence that the people took part in the shooting. On the contrary, it seems that the soldiers were under the influence of alcohol, and began to shoot in a senseless fear of a hostile attack."

"The behavior of the soldiers during the night, with a few exceptions, makes a scandalous impression. . . . It is highly deplorable when officers or noncommissioned officers set houses on fire without permission or order of the commanding officer, or as the case may be, the senior officer, when by their attitude they encourage the rank and file to burn and plunder."

"The miserable behavior of the men caused a noncommissioned officer and a private to be seriously wounded by German bullets."

"Major Von Bissing's Report of Minister Whitlock. One interesting result of the deportations remains to be noted, a result that once more places in relief the German capacity for blundering, almost as great as the German capacity for cruelty. Until the deportations were begun there was no intense hatred on the part of the lower classes, i. e., the workmen and the peasants. The old Germans of the Landsturm had been quartered in Flemish homes; they and the inmates spoke nearly the same language; they got along fairly well; they helped the women with the work; the poor and the humble having some of the hundreds of prisoners had are among the privileges of the upper classes. It is conceivable that the Flemish population might have existed under German rule; it was fortunate in its origin and anti-French views. But now the Germans have changed all that."

"They live a life a mortal blow to any prospect they may ever have had of being tolerated by the population of Flanders; in tearing away from nearly every humble home in the land a husband and a father or a son and a brother they have lighted a fire of hatred that will never go out; they have brought home to every heart in the land, in a way that will impress a horror indelibly on the memory of three generations, a realization of what German methods mean, not as with the early atrocities in the heat of passion and the first lust of war, but by one of those deeds that make one despair of the future of the human race, a deed coldly planned, studiously matured, and deliberately and systematically executed, a deed so cruel that German soldiers are said to have wept in its execution, and so monstrous that even German officers are now said to be ashamed."

"WHITLOCK"

Mr. Hoover's Conclusions.

Mr. Hoover's mature conclusions on the German practices in Belgium which he wrote for the pamphlet issued by the committee on public information, reinforce the detailed evidence already presented.

September, 1917.

I have been often called upon for a statement of my observation of German rule in Belgium and northern France.

I have neither the desire nor the adequate pen to picture the scenes which have needed my blood through the two and a half years that I have spent in work for the relief of these 10,000,000 people.

"The sight of the destroyed homes and cities, the widowed and fatherless—the destitute, the physical misery of a people but partially nourished at best, the deportation of men by tens of thousands to slavery in German mines and factories, the execution of men and women for petty offenses of their loyalty to their country, the sacking of every resource through financial robbery, the battening of armies on the slender produce of the country, the denudation of the country of cattle, horses, and fowls; all these things we had to witness—dumb to help other but by protest and sympathy, during this long and terrible time, and still these are not the events of battle, but the effects of a grinding heel of a race demanding the mastery of the world."

With Mrs. Morgan Nesbit presiding, the program began with reading by pupils of the first and second grades. This was followed with a piano solo by Miss Margaret Wilson. The paper upon the subject of "The Education of the Child from Six to Twelve," by Mrs. E. M. Sweoley was the event of the afternoon and received high praise from all who heard it. Miss Nesbit then rendered a much appreciated vocal solo. Mrs. Jerry Sigging accompanied. Similar associations met at the Bickel school last evening. The hall was crowded and in each case carried a set program, but the TIMES was not able to secure a detailed report. Time for publication, as it will like to have done.

Japs Not Called—A report that Japanese residents of military age had been called to the colors in Asia was denied today by Tom Kora. All transcripts of all the allies are now in use transporting Americans to Europe and could not be spared if such a call came. Besides Japan has already an ample military force and is taking care of the Asiatic situation.

Big Time of Homestead—Twin Falls Homestead 1341, B. of A. C. celebrated the twenty-first birthday of the order on February 22, with a large class adoption, oyster supper and a dance. The order, although only twenty-one years old is now said to be the largest beneficiary organization admitted men and women on terms of equality.

Teachers Are Festive—The teachers in the Washington and Bickel school buildings took occasion to celebrate Washington's birthday anniversary with festivities of their own. The eight young ladies who constitute the corps in the Washington took dinner at the Perrine and then attended the Idaho upon invitation of Miss Ridenour, the principal. The Bickel men—the Washington—met better with a regular party at Mrs. P. J. Costello's, where the new members of the fraternity entertained the older ones. It was not announced as a masquerade, but although there were none but lady teachers of Caucasian descent, the party was a success with it that masculine habitations, as well as dark faces were in evidence during the evening. However this may be, the party was a success and a very enjoyable one by all participants.

Butler's Farewell Meeting—The announcement to leave this morning for Hattiesburg, Miss., and that he would meet his friends at Parish hall in an impromptu party, was given. Although not published on the street until about noon yesterday, certainly brought an enthusiastic and flattering response. The hall was crowded and the doors through the doors and into the street, with a cosmopolitan company that although, one-half were standing, remained to a late hour in seeming sympathy and approval. No program had been or was announced, but with the assistance of the orchestra, the entertainment furnished was much appreciated and generously applauded. There seemed to be a peculiar undertone of feeling; rather intensive in character, connected with this gathering, which was a simple expression of good will. So many conflicting explanations of this obvious condition were offered that the TIMES will not attempt to deal with a peculiar undertone that the Butler farewell was originally staged for the Methodist church, which would seem to have been its "natural" location, but was suddenly and at a late hour transferred to the Parish hall. Why this should have been a peculiar undertone disturbance—atmospheric and other. The immediate purpose of Mr. Butler's departure to Hattiesburg, Miss., to engage to sing for the soldiers boys in the great cantonments.

Ormsby Resigns as Probation Officer

Also as Clerk of Probate Court—Has Been Probation Officer Six Years and Leaves Vacancy Hard to Fill.

The resignation of Mr. V. H. Ormsby as county probation officer, and also as clerk of the Probate Court is in the hands of Judge O. P. DuVal. It has not been formally accepted as yet, but the understanding is that it will be as soon as a successor has been selected and appointed. In the meantime Mr. Ormsby continues to attend to the duties of the position. It is the peculiar and important, though sometimes rather thankless duties and responsibilities of the probation office that especially cause delay if not difficulty in choosing a new administrator. During his long incumbency of this position Mr. Ormsby has made a thorough study of juvenile delinquents and his object has always been to reform—rather than to punish. And his experience, his excellent judgment and tact, combined with an earnest desire to do the very best for the present and future welfare of the delinquent juveniles, have proven great assets in the success of his administration. From a humanitarian standpoint at least, it is to be regretted that the same spirit and purpose may be brought to a continuation of his work. Upon retirement from the position he will be understood that Mr. Ormsby will be—indeed, that he already has been—allied with the real estate business hereafter, and a new one—recently conducted by Mr. J. S. Keel; and here is wishing success to his new venture.

DOG TAKES MANY RISKS IN HIS LATEST PICTURE

The disregard for expense shown by the big motion picture producers is well illustrated in Douglas Fairbanks' latest production, "A Modern Musketeer," which will be shown at the Idaho theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The scenic called for scenes in the Grand Canyon of Arizona, and Fairbanks transported his entire company of fifty people there. The photography has an added value in presenting backgrounds of scenic splendor, which have been wonderfully reproduced by the camera.

Fairbanks' prudent host is that he has never faked a scene. "Patrons of moving picture theatres have become too familiar with methods used in the past," he says, "and are quick to detect the genuine from the counterfeit. I never use a 'double,' for if I did it would not be shown at all. In 'A Modern Musketeer' one of the biggest scenes is where we pursue Navajo Indians, who have kidnapped our hero, Major Daw, and Tully Marshall and I descended thousands of feet on ropes thrown from ledge to ledge. It was mighty cold, and the scene was a real one."

"A Modern Musketeer" is a typical Fairbanks production, combining melodrama and comedy.

THRILLING RESCUE OF THE FAIR MARJORIE DAW IN THE GRAND CANYON ANOTHER WONDERFUL VIEWS OF THE CANYON—JAMMED FULL OF ACTION—DON'T MISS IT—COME EARLY.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY THE NEXT TIME YOU go to the Grand Canyon in Arizona, take along the family clothes line and when you get there fix it from one precipice to another dexterity and back to a high escarpment again, and then proceed to climb it up and down. If possible, secure the services of a pretty, sixteen-year-old girl with blond curls and a hap-hazard smile, and save her from the Hopi Indians by carrying her on your back as you go hand over hand several hundred feet on your rope, while the canyon yawns beneath you. In case you don't care for this form of winter exercise, the next best thing you can do is to squander enough jitneys to take you to the nearest place where "A Modern Musketeer" is showing. That's the name of Doug Fairbanks' newest Artcraft film piece.

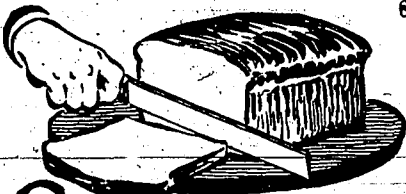

But for cliff clambering thrills, swinging out over the side of what is a mighty deep chasm, and little things like that, leave it to Doug. In several places it looked as though he took unnecessary chances but of course, these incidents—just add that much more value to the picture. Little Marjorie Daw is a particularly lovable little ingenue who fits the scheme of Fairbanks' picture perfectly. In a word the production is a whole of a feature.

SCREEN CHATTER

Enid Bennett, the pretty and popular Australian screen star, makes her Paramount debut under the auspices of Thomas H. Ince in "The Keys of the Kingdom." This is a story of the life and adventures of Mary Manning in the woods of Wisconsin with her invalid mother, her grim old grandfather and an old woman who has been watching every day for eighteen years for the return of her father, a "daredevil" who has been in a nearby town. When he finally does come, it is only in time to be present at his wife's funeral, for the shock of the sudden news that her husband is still alive, and that he has been further back than he thought, has broken her heart.

The latest Paramount picture to be made under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince, and which stars Dorothy Dalton in "The Stars and Stripes." In this production Miss Dalton has a role, greatly differing from the society butterfly part she has been taking recently. The picture is a story of a girl who, although a beautiful, intelligent, and successful business woman, manages to get away through the back door of a party given by her father, and is taken to a nearby town. When he finally does come, it is only in time to be present at his wife's funeral, for the shock of the sudden news that her husband is still alive, and that he has been further back than he thought, has broken her heart.

Big Profits in Beets Says the Amalgamated Field Man

(The following article was written for the TIMES by F. D. Johnson, field man for the Amalgamated Sugar company. The estimate of twenty tons an acre is above the average, but assuming Mr. Johnson's figures to be approximately correct on a twenty ton basis, it is evident that at fifteen tons per acre at present prices there would be a comfortable margin to the good, which anyone can figure out, making due allowance for reduced cost of handling the smaller yield.—Editor, Times.)

At this time of the year when the food administration is making so many appeals to the farmers for more food stuffs, I think it is wise to be very careful in selecting the crops that are going to produce the most food per acre and that food in a condensed form. Owing to war conditions, Europe is not producing near the sugar that it is consuming.

Who are they asking to supply them with this very necessary food? The United States? Who are the food administrators of the United States asking to produce this sugar? The farmers in the beet districts where sugar factories are now established. Why? Because it is impossible for the sugar cane men to produce sugar for this year's delivery, from the fact that the cane they cut this year must be planted in 1916 and 1918, therefore, it is up to the farmers here in the sugar beet districts where the factories are ready and all necessary implements are on hand, the climate is ideal, the land is suitable and the water plentiful and with the price at $2.00 per ton for sugar beets, I know of no crop that we can grow that will bring larger profit to the farmer than the sugar beet.

The following are some figures that show the cost of producing twenty tons of a twenty ton crop of sugar beets to the acre. I say twenty tons for I am sure where a farmer will select first class land with a sufficient amount of fertility, that irrigates well, and having sufficient amount of moisture and the water will not have good drainage, giving the crop first-class care, preparing the seed bed properly and firmness to assure a good stand. Cultivating the crop as soon as the rows show up with the weeder, and probably weeding by hand to avoid discs to prevent the covering of the small beets. Have the beets thinned at the proper stage, for where the thinning is not done at the proper time the yield is hurt materially. Watch this part closely. After the beets are thinned, hoe and in first class shape at the proper time, your twenty tons of beets are practically made with the addition of one or two cultivations and irrigations. Do not start irrigating until you are sure you need it and never let them want for water until the crop is made.

Now, back to the cost of producing the twenty tons of beets to the acre:

Planting and preparing the seed	$5.00
15 lbs seed at 25c per lb	3.75
Planting of beets	.60
Cultivating five times at 50c	2.50
Thinning, hoeing, topping and weeding	3.00
Land, $25 per acre for an average of 12 tons and $1 additional for each ton over 12 tons	34.00
Plowing out	3.25
Hauling 20 tons at 75c per ton	15.00
Water maintenance	3.00
7 per cent interest on $35.00 land	24.00

Making a total of $93.56

I did not mention the wear and tear on machinery, for the machinery is generally furnished at the above prices.

Take twenty tons of beets at $3.00 per ton would bring $60.00. Slip your beet tops in a common hole in the ground like a potato pit—say 12 feet wide at the top and 8 feet wide at the bottom and from 2 1/2 to 4 feet deep and as long as you have beet tops to fill. Place 6 inches of straw on the bottom and four inches of beet tops, one half of one per cent salt, continue the layers of straw and tops and pack the same with a roller or wagon running over the same to firm them down until you have built above the surface of the land three or four feet and seal up tight with dirt, watching closely to keep the air tight. In six weeks time you will have ensilage from this crop of tops equal in feeding value to one acre of alfalfa. Figuring an acre of alfalfa five tons at $10.00 a ton, making a nice little sum of $50.00, and that is a low estimate in both yield and price of alfalfa.

You are not through with the profits of that twenty tons of beets yet, for the pulp that you buy for 50 cents a ton prior to January 15th, has a wonderful feeding value. The five tons of pulp, (ripe as feeders call it) will feed a fattening steer 100 days with a full ration of 150 pounds of pulp per day, that will 15 pounds of hay will cut this steer, if he is a good feeder, two pounds gain per day, making a total of 200 pounds for the 100 days feed, at 10 1/2 cents per pound.

Figuring that the steer will cost you 8 cents a pound and weighing 1000 pounds would cost you $80.00. The cost of pulp 5 tons at 50 cents per ton..... 250

FRANKLIN

The Franklin Owner Is The Satisfied Owner

There are many good and sufficient reasons for this— It would not be difficult to furnish a long list of these. Perhaps some of the more important of these reasons should be told. First and most important is the fact that it is the greatest AMERICAN CAR. This statement is made without reserve. Without regard to price it is the best car to be bought. Best in what way? You ask. In all ways. It is most economical in operation—using fewer tires and less gas and oil than any other car. It is lighter, better balanced, easier to drive and more comfortable than other cars. It lasts longer—is still a new car in all essentials when other cars of the same price or greater, have been worn out in giving the same service. It is the only standard American AIR-COOLED CAR. With the Franklin you avoid the summer trouble of heating engines and in winter, of freezing radiators. These are only a few of the reasons for FRANKLIN superiority. They are sufficient to induce the discriminating purchaser to choose the FRANKLIN CAR. Let us demonstrate its excellencies.

1200 pounds of hay at $16.00 per ton..... 9.00
Making a total cost of food for steer of..... $21.00
We will now figure that this 1200 pounds of hay will cut a 100 day feed, would bring you..... $126.00
Cost of feed and steer..... 91.50
Leaving the net sum of..... $34.50

Now you haven't fed any of this ensilage to this steer, and I wish to state that I haven't fed any of this ensilage with pulp, my steers, but I am satisfied I could feed some ensilage and cut away down on the hay, probably feeding some clean straw, for I notice when the men haul straw into corrals for bedding, the steers eat a lot of it. Look at the value you get from feeding these steers in the way of fertilizer. If you find that you want to feed more steers than you have pulp for, cut the pulp in half, feeding 50 pounds per day per head and food your ensilage that you get from the tops. Feed two steers to the acre instead of one on the ration of 100-pounds-of-pulp per day.

You still have more profit coming on that best crop. Saw you follow your beet crop with wheat—Your increase in yield would be remarkable. A farmer at Hiasan, plowed up ten acres of alfalfa in 1912, planted five acres to wheat and the other five acres to sugar beets. In 1913 he planted the ten acres to wheat. Where the sugar beets grew he harvested 31 bushels more wheat to the acre than he did where wheat grew in 1912.

Figuring the profit on the increase in yield of 31 bushels at the present price of $1.75 per bushel..... $56.49
The difference in cost and feed for the steer at the market price..... $4.60
Twenty tons of sugar beets at $3.00 per ton..... 1.80
Making a total of..... $269.89
Less cost of producing, interest on land, water maintenance and taxes..... 94.35
Leaving a total of..... $175.54
You haven't used your ensilage or given credit to the manure you received. They say our land on the Twin Falls tract is too high. Two crops like this will pay for the best investment on the tract. You are not only making a handsome profit on the sugar beet crop, but you are doing a good deal in helping fight this winter battle of twenty tons of sugar beets with the average production of the Twin Falls factory to date is 251 pounds per ton of beets. Twenty times that means that you are producing 5024 pounds of sugar—the greatest fighting food that you can produce. This 5024 pounds of sugar will feed 50 steers on full ration of 74 pounds per annum for one year. The farmer on the Twin Falls tract I know, will realize the great shortage of this very important food and before they outline their crops for this year will not forget that they are doing a whole lot in the way of downing Kaiserism when planting a few acres to sugar beets.

New Republican Chairman Is Busy

Trying to Get All Elements of Party Together on Program for the Campaign

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Will H. Hays, new chairman of the Republican national committee was here today conferring with party leaders. Hays has in his hands the delicate task of "assimilating" all of the various factions of the party for a grand drive which will place the Republicans in power again. At the same time he must act in such a manner that politics will not interfere with the work of carrying on the war. "We are not making an assimilation, not elimination," said Hays, "indicating that he is taking as his first task the binding together of the factions of the Republican party." He gave evidence today that he meant to follow his words with action by making one of his earliest appointments with Senator Reed Smoot of Utah. Senator Smoot represents the conservative element of the Republican party, while Hays has always been believed to be a member of the more progressive wing. Later Hays expects to confer with Senator Boies Penrose among others. Although always believed to be a member of the progressive wing, Hays was elected by Penrose's influence.

One of the most delicate pieces of work which Hays has before him in Washington is an attempt to co-ordinate the Republican national committee and the Republican congressional committee. These two bodies for a number of years have acted independently to accomplish the same purpose—control of the Republican party in government. The Republican congressional committee has always conducted its own work for the election of Republican congressmen without aid from the national committee, and has regarded it as one of its prerogatives that it should not be interfered with by the national committee. Hays was given a reception last evening by the congressional committee and he will be in Washington in a few days. Another matter that will be settled during the Hays visit in Washington will be the selection of a city for the headquarters for the national committee. Many leaders desire to establish permanent headquarters in Washington. On the other hand there are others who believe it desirable to establish headquarters in Washington in times would give room for criticism on grounds that it is bringing politics too close to the seat of the war administration. Hays has not yet voiced an opinion, but he is an enthusiastic supporter of the war and has indicated that he will not be a party to any action which might be in any way construed as the introduction of politics into the conduct of the war.

E. G. Hornbrook will hold a public sale at his farm one mile south and one mile east of Berger on Friday, March 8th, after free lunch at noon: 8 horses, 3 cattle, 100 chickens and complete farm equipment.

LODGE ASSAILS ADMINISTRATION FOR FUEL RULES

ALSO ATTACKS FOOD CONTROLLER FOR FIXING PRICE OF SUGAR

Denies Reason for Such Department

"No Reason Why Food Administration Should Have Been Created," Says Massachusetts Senator.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The fuel administration, headed by Dr. Garfield, is "composed largely of amateurs," it has made a bad situation worse, and does nothing but harm and it has not any reason for existing—this scathing indictment was delivered in the senate today by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who also predicted sugar famine of an even worse character unless the present practices of food administration are discontinued.

"There was no need of the food administration, no reason why it should exist at all," said Senator Lodge, "and the powers, however able the purposes of their possessor might be, have been employed in such a way as to make a bad situation worse and do nothing but harm."

Senator Lodge made a vigorous plea for giving the people the whole truth about the conduct of the war, and strongly defended his right to criticize the administration. He deplored the habit of charging disloyalty against critics of the administration.

"I think it would be wise to omit attacks upon the patriots of other men as to the manner in which the war is being conducted," said Senator Lodge. "I think we are safe in assuming that the American people and their representatives are patriotic. Patriotism is not confined to those who have recently had the good fortune to be appointed to more or less important offices here in Washington. It is perhaps to be expected that they should be more or less biased and overcome by the solemn plausibilities of official rank and title, but they have no monopoly on patriotism."

Denouncing the interference of the fuel administration in coal distribution, Senator Lodge declared "no more reckless experiment could have been attempted nor one better calculated to make the railroad difficulties so far as coal transportation is concerned. In a moment, by action of the fuel administration, this vast network of distribution was suddenly thrown out of gear so that either it did not work at all, or worked very badly and clumsily. At a single blow they crippled and partially paralyzed the machinery of distribution and deprived themselves and the country of the great driving power of private enterprise, never so vital as in a period of disturbed distribution."

He assailed the fuel administration's price fixing policy. "The result of the fuel administration's policy was to add to the already enormous railroad difficulties by creating chaos in distribution and adding to all this suspense, alarm and uncertainty due to fixing an arbitrary price. Even if we admit that they kept prices down, which is purely guess work, they brought coal famine with this nominal fixed price."

If the administration had kept hands off of price and distribution, Senator Lodge declared, "we would have been saved from the chaos and confusion into which we were thrown by the fuel administration's policy."

Regarding the sugar situation Senator Lodge declared: "In my opinion this shortage of sugar was artificial and caused by the attempt to establish artificial prices and by interfering to some extent with distribution. There is no sufficient evidence that there was a sufficient supply of sugar to furnish our allies, as we did, with what they wanted, and at the same time furnish ourselves with enough for normal consumption."

"If shipment is withheld and price fixing is indulged in again and sugar is diverted or held in part of the country, there will be a real scarcity, owing to the attempt of a commission in Chicago or Washington to change the character of the sugar, which is a real and serious scarcity when the scarcity period comes next autumn probably of a worse character and wholly needless."

Entente Diplomats Pleased With Japan

London Times Says European Allies Have Approved to Japan to Protect Asia From Hun.

(John Edwin Novin, Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Japan is about to take a big part in the war. High diplomatic representatives of the entente were fully convinced of this fact today. It is understood that conference was in progress in which it was decided what action the latest Russian developments has forced upon Nippon. Pending complete decision on this point, definite cables have been sent to be expected cannot be secured, but diplomats here and many high administration officials believe that the Japanese army will be sent through Siberia against Germany. It will support the loyal Russians who are expected to refuse to subscribe to the shameful peace the Germans are imposing in the Bolsheviks. But it is their best information regarding what is to be done will be withheld by Tokyo until its publication can give no hold to Germany.

It is considered certain, however, that Japan must interfere in Russia at once. In this connection officialdom was considering a carefully-analyzed memorandum in London Times today in which the entente was appealed to aid Japan in frustrating "Berlin to Tokyo" plan. This appeal at once made it plain that the interests of the allies as much as Japan demands that Germany be not given an outlet to the Pacific.

Officials having now fully accepted the fact that Russia is actually out of the war—and that complete German control cannot long be deferred, are re-adjusting bollocks and plans. It is very likely that the coming session of the supreme war council at Versailles will be the most important yet held. It will not alone have to deal with the situation on all fronts, but it will have to decide just what shall be taken to meet the menace of German occupation of Russia. This is due to the fact that one of the most noticeable features of the Russian collapse is the enormous booty which Germany will get.

Estimates vary but it seems certain that in this deal, which will be enormous stands of cannon and rifles with plenty of munitions and all manner of transport, including thousands of automobiles, tanks and motor cars. The big stores of petroleum in various parts of Russia also will be available for Germany.

How much use this captured war material will be to Germany is a matter of great dispute here. That among the captured materials will be much that is very badly needed in Germany is admitted. But officials still hope that a great part of the supplies already in the hands of the Germans will be used in the internal conflict within Russia.

Meanwhile the developments in Russia seem to have overshadowed the situation. Certainly officials say it has not brought peace any nearer. Cabinet members who have studied it, when asked whether the acceptance by the German imperial chancellor of the four fundamentals of peace, has not opened the way for continued negotiation, simply for reply, call attention to what Germany did while talking peace with Russia. This is what could be expected if the entente had not taken earlier decisive action at this time, they say. In consequence war preparations were hurried in Washington today as at no previous time in the war.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—There is a growing disposition here to believe that it is to stop to consider the danger to protect both her own interests and those of the allies.

All indications today were that Japanese government has been so-called coalition declared that everything was all right and that the firm would welcome a senatorial investigation.

Butterwrappers Printed at The Times Every Day In the Week at the Same Price

There are at headquarters some very interesting papers and bulletins on exhibition. The "Piano News," a paper printed in the French war zone by the American Expeditionary force, it was sent to Mr. McVicar by Charles Younger, an officer in the Escaudrie. These papers may be seen at headquarters by anyone wishing to see them.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Kennedy Packard, the current events department of the Twentieth Century club has made and donated for the refugee work, eight complete layettes. Unsolicited donations have been received at headquarters the past week. The Central West market donated $8.18, a percentage of its receipts during January. The Civic club of Eden donated $100 for military relief purposes. Judge F. E. Chamberlain donated $10.

On Friday of last week Mrs. J. E. White and Mrs. Edwards visited the Hazelton, auxiliary. Mrs. White addressed the junior auxiliary at the school in the morning and in the afternoon Mrs. Edwards delivered an address on military relief work to the ladies. After a pleasant day, Dr. Lentz brought the speakers back to Twin Falls in his car.

The class for those wishing to qualify in surgical dressing work met on Tuesday of this week under the leadership of Mrs. Edwards. Flier, Kimberly, Marfaugh and Hickett will organize classes in this work in a short time.

The work of the sewing department has now assumed such proportions as to make necessary a committee whose duty it is to check the materials that are to be used, as they come in, and to check out the finished work. Mrs. M. J. Sweeley is at the head of this committee.

The sewing department is in need of a desk, and would be grateful to anyone who would loan them one. There have been shipped from the surgical dressing department and the machine room, the following: dressings and bandages, 376 T-bandages, 250 abdominal bandages, 200 many tailed, 300 four tailed, 250 triangular, 300 2 1/2, 15 okum pads, 1100 4x4 compresses, 1800 6x3 strips, 1650 sponges and 3100 compresses.

At Methodist Church Revival in Progress

Dr. Hart, a Spiritual Dynamo Who Electrifies Hearers With Convincing Logic and Persuasive Oratory.

The revival meeting at the Methodist church began last Sunday morning. Dr. Hart gave a fine interpretation of rare holy religion. Mr. Magann is really one of the great song leaders of the United States. Twin Falls is fortunate in having Hart and Magann in their midst.

Mr. Hart is a veritable human dynamo, a live wire with unlimited voltage. He electrifies his hearers from the beginning. His logic is convincing, his oratory is persuasive, and his word pictures are superb. He has humor and wit of a rare type. His faith is strong in his nature. His appeals to the higher life are almost irresistible. There is no hesitation from the beginning of the service to the end. His words flow like a torrent down the mountain side. He draws and holds his audience. He understands the value of attention.

Mr. Magann is a worthy comrade of the great preacher. He is a musical director as well as a soloist of rare ability. He preaches the gospel in song. His full rich baritone voice carries conviction to every heart. His songs with heart as well as art.

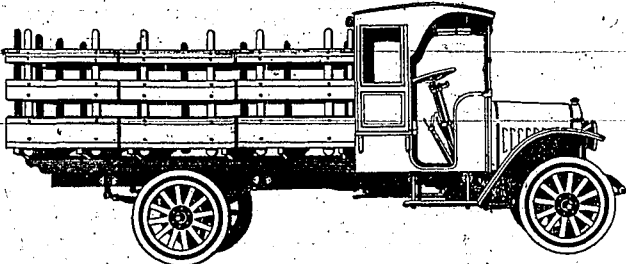

At the Sunday service as well as at the Monday night service the evangelist addressed himself mainly to the Christian people of the city, urging the importance and necessity of consecration and baptism of the Holy Spirit in carrying out the work of the Master.

Those who did not have the privilege of hearing Mr. Hart Sunday will read this summary with profit.

"There never was a time when there was greater joy among Christians here for the infilling of the holy spirit than now, when each man of the Christian man or woman is waiting and criticized by the fault-finding man of the world. The reason more people do not unite with the church is that they believe that they can live as well outside the church as in. In many life inside. In illustration of this point, if I were walking down the street of this city and asked an unsaved man I met who had given material to his head, the question: Do you believe in Christ? His answer nine times out of ten would be 'Yes, yes, I doubt the existence of a being who has such an influence behind him when here on earth, an influence that has torn down and rebuilt a church that has overthrown the ruler of the highest rule of civilization.' Going closer I ask him a second question, 'Do you consider the Bible as divine inspiration?' He answers, 'I consider the Bible the principles of which are founded all laws of right living and on which the constitution of the United States is founded. You sincerely believe in the divine inspiration of the Bible.' Probing still farther, I said, 'my brother, why do you not join us if you believe in our principles?' He shrugged his shoulders and replied that he could live better outside of the church than a great many people are doing inside. That is the main trouble. We as Christians do not live a life of purity and righteousness thereby giving the unbeliever an opportunity to criticize and find fault. The only way to stop this fault finding is to live such lives that there can be no just ground for it."

These services will be continued

More brains than metal are used in building this

MAXWELL TRUCK

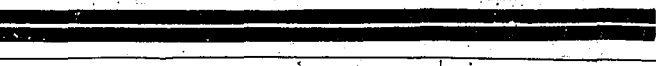

Brains are hard to find and come high, but they are the cheapest in the long run. In a great organization like the Maxwell Motor Company which, in four years, has done a business in excess of $100,000,000, there are many great minds.

These great minds have found a way to make trucks stronger, yet lighter in weight (more thought and less metal went into the truck). These great minds have found ways to build them better, yet at less cost.

That's one reason why you can buy a Maxwell for $400 less than any other truck of similar capacity in the world.

That's one reason why the Maxwell has a verdict of close to 100% perfect from its service record based on the 6600 Maxwell trucks now in use.

Packers Kept Lobby to Fight Laborers

Opposed Eight Hour Law—Better and Egg Men Protest—Swift Succeeded at Regulation at Gallery Play.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Letters telling of the maintenance of a lobby to fight the proposed eight hour law for women and to compromise if necessary on nine hours were barred today by Attorney Francis J. Henry at the federal trade commission investigation of the packers. Letters were also read giving instructions to increase negro laborers in the yards by 15 per cent.

Another letter concerning Joseph J.

Healey, chairman of the industrial commission that site on cases relative to injured employees was to the board and afterward Healey had asked Wilson & Co. to make a donation to a church bazaar at which his wife conducted a booth. The letter held out that other packers had contributed as a "necessity."

Following charges that the packers had packed "Whiting with fifty dollar a year men, Wisconsin and Missouri butter and egg men are here today to throw light on alleged attempts to monopolize their industry.

Producers from the Chicago butter and egg district were to go before Joseph E. Davies, of the federal trade commission, today, in the probe into the packing industry.

Attorney Henry planned to introduce further letters in support of his contention that the food administration is honeycombed with men friendly to the packing interests.

"Gallery play" was the term used by Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co. in referring to the government's suggestion for the fixing of maximum prices on food commodities, according to a letter introduced by Henry at a federal trade commission hearing here yesterday afternoon. "Although some of this is gallery play" the letter said, "when we say we are in favor of setting the maximum prices I repeat it is only proper to do so and I believe the government wants to do so."

"I am well satisfied that they don't want to do so and are not going to—at the same time it does not make any difference."

CALDWELL CASE AT APRIL TERM OF U. S. COURT

WILL BE TRIED IN ACCORDANCE WITH CIRCUIT COURT RULING

Duty of Water May be Determined

Foreclosure Suits Will Probably be Determined by Test Case Immediately After This is Argued to the Court.

The famous Salmon tract cases will be presented to the United States district court, presided over by Judge Frank S. Dietrich, at the April term in Boise. The case of A. E. Caldwell et al against the Salmon River company, the original suit, will come up on April 29. This case will be tried according to the rules laid down by the United States circuit court. The duty of water may again come before the court under the instruction of the court above. Following this, the foreclosure cases of the company against C. E. Hollister and A. E. Caldwell will be tried. It is believed that action on other foreclosures will be prevented by injunction, in order to stop the running of the statute-of-limitations, and that the cases named, which cover the legal points involved will be made test cases similar to those argued. Secretary Ray Beauchamp, representing the settlers, and their attorney, Judge C. R. Holtzwell, were in Boise this week when the cases were set.

Draft Treaties About Concluded

Secretary Lansing Notifies Congress Action Being Taken by the Allied Nations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Conscription treaties similar to those signed with Great Britain and Canada are practically concluded with France and Italy, Secretary of State Lansing informed the house this afternoon in a letter read by Chairman Flood, of the foreign relations committee. "I have just received word from our ambassadors at Rome and Paris," Lansing writes, "that the negotiations are at an end and that after a few changes in wording, have been made the treaties will be ready to sign." Secretary Lansing made no further objection to consideration of the alien shucker bill at this time. Flood said he believed that the bill as it is to be amended will be acceptable to the senate department. The United States has treaties obliging it to exempt the natives of Argentina, Costa Rica, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Paraguay, Serbia, Spain and Switzerland, Secretary Lansing said. Many protests from these countries have been met by the United States national—who had been conscripted.

"The president has found it expedient in the conduct of foreign relations," he explained, "to indicate his willingness to discharge neutral aliens under certain circumstances after they have been brought under his jurisdiction as commander in chief of the army."

The very fact that these men must be taken before they can be discharged constitutes a violation of our treaties, Lansing declared. "Moreover," he added, "significantly, the act has given rise to reports abroad that this government is impressing neutrals into its armed forces—a report which has apparently been seized upon and advertised by enemy propagandists with a view to irritate the sensitive feelings of certain foreign governments." The gain in conscripting these men is more than wiped out, in Lansing's opinion, by the dangerous possibilities to which it gives rise.

Activity of Farm Bureau circles is very manifest today. Special Appraiser Roberts is here for the federal farm appraisal on certain lands on which loans have been asked, and is going over the territory with the local board. Advertising a Sale!

IF you don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill, you'll expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your advertisement while seated at his breakfast.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your side. The extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad, and it's a good ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after.

It may be no money and it's the thing that does the business.

Don't think of having a special sale without using advertising space in this paper.

ENGLISH GAS MORE DEADLY

HAMMOND, Ind., Feb. 27.—Wilfred Hughes, back home to recuperate from the effects of gas at the battle of Clinchy, declared today that he had never seen a German except as a prisoner, although he was in the trench two months. Hughes after being gassed was left for dead on the battle-field until a stretcher bearer stumbled on him and kicked him into consciousness. He declared that English gas is more deadly than German.
