WILSON IS IN COLLISION ON PUGET SOUND

President's Launch Crashes Into Another—Executive Remains Calm.

PACIFIC FLEET IS REVIEWED BY WILSON

He Takes Charge of Oregon After the Destroyers Pass From Old Battle-Ship.

By the Associated Press. SEATTLE, Sept. 13.—Marking the first time a president of the United States has flown his flag in Seattle's harbor, President Wilson today reviewed the great Pacific fleet from the deck of the history-famed battleship Oregon in Elliott bay. The review followed the president's arrival from Tacoma and followed an incident which nearly resulted in serious consequences for the presidential party when the president's launch collided head-on with a naval war boat.

Arriving at the dock it was found the barge of Admiral Hugh Rodman, which was supposed to go awaiting the president, was not on hand. Commander J. W. Foster, personal aide to Secretary of Navy Daniels, promptly took over a naval launch on hand. Into this launch went the president and Mrs. Wilson, Secretary and Mrs. Daniels, secret service men, secretaries and messenger men traveling with Mr. Wilson.

President Hits Siren

As Commander Foster ordered the launch moved off the small dock beached over till the port rail was nearly under water. Starting ahead then the craft ran bow on into another launch, giving the presidential party a severe jar.

The review, first and most magnificent spectacle ever viewed by the thousands gathered here from all over the northwest, had another angle of the unusual when, at the close, the president, as commander in chief of the navy, virtually took charge of the Oregon, superseding Secretary Daniels.

The long line of destroyers had circled the Oregon when Secretary Daniels invited to Captain Frank C. Wettenhall, commander of the Oregon.

Wilson Takes Control. "Do you get underway now, Captain?"

"Just as soon as the destroyers have got around," the captain replied. "The destroyers are ho' to," President Wilson put in.

Captain Wettenhall took a look, faced about and touching his cap said:

"Aye, aye, sir."

The Oregon got under way for the return to the anchorage.

Later the president signed the famous visitors' log of the Oregon upon whose pages are recorded the names of many of the world's most prominent men.

DECLARES RED MANAGEMENT IS PLANNING TO PROFIT

By the Associated Press. CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—Louis H. Gillette, prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, received a letter today, signed "red and inf," in which complaint was made against the prices fixed for the world's series baseball game.

"It is evident that profiteering is now in the advance side of the ticket," the writer of the letter charged. "The prices are 400 per cent higher than those charged for the regular game."

"The idea in the plan of drawing ought to be the subject of a grand jury investigation. I regard it as a prohibitive scheme for the mass of ordinary men. The fans are being gouged by profiteers of the Cincinnati baseball club."

PERSHING GOES TO BASEBALL CONTEST

General Pershing Visits Baseball Game in New York and Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—With his headquarters as chief of the American expeditionary force re-established in Washington after more than two years in France, General Pershing promptly joined in the Saturday half holiday today and went to a track meet and a baseball game. He and his immediate staff spent hours in the open air under perfect weather conditions, in sharp contrast to the rush and bustle of their hours in New York and Philadelphia. Tonight the general completed the celebration of the dual event for him, his return and his 59th birthday, at a quiet family dinner at the home of his father-in-law, Senator Warren of Wyoming. The only official events of General Pershing's first full day back in the city which probably is to be hereafter virtually his permanent home as ranking officer of the army, were his brief conference with Secretary Baker and his inspection of the officers set apart for him, where the affairs of the American expeditionary force are to be wound up. He was eagerly hailed throughout the day, whenever he was recognized on the streets or elsewhere, but the most tumultuous greeting given him was at the war department, where clerks fairly mobbed him, clinging to his sleeves and thrusting eager hands to greet him. The general fought his way through manfully, but smilingly, and seemed to enjoy the battle and the warmth of the reception by these fellow workers.

TRADITIONS SMASHED

Of all the traditions broken during the war period, the one which we may be most certain will never return either in this country or elsewhere, is the old condition of labor. Nor is there any class of people, we venture to say, who wish to see old labor conditions re-established. Yet with an inconsistency not unusual perhaps, people are waiting for the old prices and cost of labor to come back near old standards.

TODAY BIG ONE IN S. I. BALL LEAGUE

Twin Falls to Fight Paul-Durley, Built—Professional Circuit Is Advised.

Today is the biggest day in south Idaho baseball history. Two games that are important to the fans of this section as the big series will be to Cincinnati and Chicago are to be played. Paul plays Twin Falls here and Durley plays Built at Durley.

The contest in Twin Falls will take place at 1:30, an hour and a half earlier than is usual in this city. This is done in order to permit Paul team to leave here on the afternoon train. George Hart, has gathered together a line-up to be proud of today and "no foolin'?" The bunch will not only have one good pitcher on hand but will have two—Ambrose and Framback. The latter held Paul to five hits the last time he faced them. A surprise will be sprung when the infield taken the diamond. The bunch is showing class stuff all of the time these days.

The victory today will put the Paul team out of the pennant race and will, personally, send them to see the bunch from the little town there with the fireworks and originally win the plate championship from Durley

We also hope to see Twin Falls' win for the good of the game. While on this subject of baseball it is a pleasure to spring something on the fans of this section to think about—the organization of a professional league in this section next year, affiliated with the national association of minor league clubs—Class B or at least a Class D association. The game could be made to pay on that basis—with four teams—for the circuit would be the most compact in the country. Week day games would pay for themselves while the Sunday games would make money for the owners of the franchise. But one thing could spoil such a plan—the failure of Twin Falls fans to rally to the cause.

FIRE PREVENTION EXPERT IS COMING

Will Be in Twin Falls Next Tuesday—Low Front Blaze in Country Too Heavy.

J. W. Stevens, expert in fire prevention education will be in Twin Falls next Tuesday. The campaign in this state was opened Monday, September 8th, at Pocatello. The fire prevention campaign will cover two weeks in Idaho. In Pocatello Mr. Stevens lectured to the school children and the business men. He is accompanied by G. H. Barber, commissioner of immigration, labor and statistics.

Fire waste in America, according to Mr. Stevens shows an alarming inefficiency. It amounts to an annual tax of $2.51 for every man, woman and child in the country, while the per capita tax in Europe is only 25 cents. He says the people of America have become callous to the fire alarm call and little appreciate the fact that every fire of any volume increases the cost of living and adds to the weight of taxation. The annual fire waste of the United States approximates $250,000,000, according to Mr. Stevens, and during the year of 1918, reached the enormous sum of $317,000,000.

As part of the campaign being carried on in Idaho under the supervision of Governor Dwyer, a resolution has been issued by Insurance Commissioner Hyatt in which the crime of arson, both conscious and unconscious is brought out.

The Moral Risk

When the time comes to seek credit, a bank will want to know what you ARE as well as what you HAVE.

That's where the moral hazard comes in. And you can't establish credit over night. Rather, it is a matter of becoming KNOWN to your bank, of establishing confidence by the way in which you have kept your account, regardless of the amount you have to your credit.

Get acquainted—that's the first thing. Then develop that acquaintance into friendship. It will stand you in splendid stead when the time comes. Remembering also, that this bank offers you a complete banking service.

MIDDLE GROUND IS SAFE.

The president has gone from the White House straight to the ears of the American people with his plan for the League of Nations.

First as law and custom provide, he went to the Senate. Before that august, slow-moving body, he laid all his cards face-up-on-the-table. He told them the why's and wherefore's of the peace covenant, including all that he knew about the League of Nations, its purposes and its possible achievements. The president was very frank in his message to the Senate.

The Senate, or rather certain of the Senators, were quick to find faults. Naturally they found, for the peace treaty was penned by mortal hands, the product of human minds. It is not perfect.

The president pleaded with the Senators and Senators have talked, talked, largely with a view of advancing personal or political interest in next year's elections.

After weeks of such delay the president decided to do what he might well have done in the beginning—take the case to the people. The people have no axes to grind, and no political games to play. And they hesitate not in rendering their verdict.

Keen, observant newspaper men follow letters, with and following the president on his cross-continent trip, may the people's verdict be favorable to the League of Nations. They may the majority of men and women who have heard the president, believe with bin that the League of Nations is the best weapon against wars we now can take into our hands, and that opposition to the League of Nations is opposition to the principles of peace itself.

These newspaper men have ears close to popular sentiment—they are trained to hear and observe. They haven't one ear listening to a presidential bee's buzzing, or to a party caucus.

These newspaper men also add that there are murmurs of disappointment of that or that clause in the peace covenant. It is as we pointed out, a very human document. It was written by human hands and is full of human inconsistencies. But these popular objectors, while voting their disapproval, consider the possibility of making future changes, or correcting present mistakes, and they further concede the greater probability of making such changes if the League of Nations is in being than if it continues but an air castle, for it seems some of our Senators would forever have it so. All public action is a compromise of opinions and interests. It is so in domestic legislation, and it must necessarily be so in a treaty.

For months the controversy over the peace treaty has been a battle between extremists. At last there is a prospect of senators and citizens meeting on middle ground and agreeing to a compromise which will preserve the chief merits of the treaty and at the same time remove its bitterest and most objectionable features.

This compromise requires, on one side, the surrender of the demand for ratification of the treaty without qualification of any sort, and on the other side, the surrender of all demands for formal amendments that would endanger its acceptance by the other powers. It means that ratification of the text as it stands, with explanatory "reservations" setting forth what extent the United States will consider itself bound by the provisions that have aroused most criticism in this country.

It looks at present as if the so-called "mild reservationists" will win. They are the middle-ground senators of both parties. Whether from restriction or party expediency or both, they seem capable at last of seeing the need of compromise in this country. The "bitter-end" opponents of the treaty, who sought to kill it entirely, have given up, or will be obliged to give up. The president and his group, favoring absolute and unqualified approval of the treaty, must also yield, to the extent of accepting a set of reservations mild enough not to cripple the League of Nations or dishonor the United States.

Both sides can afford to do this. Present action is not irrevocable. There will doubtless be gains and opportunities hereafter, as there has been in the case of the constitution of the United States, to make, whatever abundances experience proves to be desirable to strengthen or weaken the bonds of the League.

WILL BUILD NEW HOUSES IN NEW CITY ADDITION

More residences are to be erected in Twin Falls immediately to relieve the present existing home shortage. On 16-acre tract adjoining East Lawn addition, the Eel, Wilkinson, Frank Lumber company proposes to construct the dwellings, getting for a start this fall so that some of the homes may, if possible, be ready for occupancy this winter. The work will start on the excavations as soon as the land is surveyed. The lumber company proposes to build home structures costing approximately $5,000 each. There will be 48 lots in the addition, each being 50 by 325 with plans for widening where the demand require. The number of houses started this fall depends upon the working force that can be obtained. Plans have been completed for connecting with the K. W. R. addition with city improvement and sanitation features. Water connections will be connected and connection is to be made with the lawn sewer trunk. After the addition is to have paved streets.

JOHNSON ASSERTS WILSON INACCURATE

American Principles Scrampled In charges California Senator in Talk to People.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 12.—President Wilson's demand for the immediate ratification of the peace treaty and League of nations covenant, made when he was here a week ago, was answered by Senator William W. Johnson of California tonight in an address before a large and enthusiastic audience at Convention hall.

Senator Johnson was welcomed to the home city by Senator James A. Reer by a non-partisan citizens committee of 100.

R. E. Hall, a democrat, called the meeting to order and introduced E. F. McJimney of Springfield, Mo., a republican, who acted as chairman and presented Senator Johnson to the audience.

Among the 600 out of town visitors was Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas.

"It is difficult to think that the president spoke otherwise than ironically in much that he said to you here in Kansas City," said Senator Johnson in beginning his address.

"His opening sentence, forgetful apparently of other utterances, and of the facts, assumes a like forgetfulness on the part of our people."

"The initial remark to you was: 'I came back from Paris bringing one of the greatest documents of human history. One of the things that made it great was that it was permeated throughout with the principles to which America had devoted her life.'"

"The facts, the incontrovertible facts, make the issue with Mr. Wilson the American principles to which we were devoted and which he so eloquently voiced, opened covenants, freedom of the press, guarantee of reduction of national armaments, impartial adjustment of colonial claims, destruction of every arbitrary power, self-determination, no special alliances, justice to the weak, no people to be handed about from sovereignty to sovereignty as if they were property, no territory to change hands except for the betterment and liberty of its people, were one by one sacrificed to old world diplomacy and the secret barterings of our intelligentsia.

"It is difficult to think that the president spoke otherwise than ironically in much that he said to you here in Kansas City," said Senator Johnson in beginning his address.

Aurora Mardiganian Herself

She is the Armenian beauty who escaped to America after two years of unspeakable adventures in the hands of Kurdish Raiders, Slave Markets and Turkish Harems. Although the newspapers have given her story pages of space the National Committee chose the screen as the most vivid medium of bringing home to the American people what their Christian sisters endured in ravished Armenia. The resultant screen epic has been truly called

"AUCTION OF SOULS"

From the book "Ravished Armenia" which is Aurora Mardiganian's own story substantiated by facts from official reports of Viscount Bryce, the British Investigator, Henry Morgenthau, the American Ambassador, and the chiefs, who had been carried off into captivity,

With a courage past belief, Aurora threw herself into the part of motion picture heroine in her own life history. For the sake of the love she bears her people, this young girl lived over again all the horrors of those years of deportation and hunger and misery worse than death.

From the New York Sunday American—
This girl (Aurora Mardiganian) who had been held captive in the harems of the wealthy Turks, had been dragged to the tents of wild Kurdish chiefs, who had been carried off into captivity, slung on the saddle of an Arab raider, who had been purchased by a slave dealer and sold on the auction block to the highest bidder.

REPUBLICANS ARE URGED TO SUPPORT PACT

President Declares He Will Read "Riot Act" to Those Who Talk Politics.

RELATES STORY OF AMERICA IN THE WAR

Cheering Crowd in Street Almost Drown Out Voice of Speaker in the Big Auditorium.

By the Associated Press.
 SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 13.—Declaring the purpose for which the United States entered the war as they were set forth and greeted by cheers in his war message, President Wilson told the people of Washington today that the issue squarely facing the country in the treaty debate was whether that program should be carried through or abandoned. He called to mind also the cost in money and in human life by which the war had been won, and asserted that those opposing the treaty now proposed "that the sacrifice should be of no avail."
 Speaks at 7:30 p. m.
 In the first day of his stay of more than a week on the Pacific coast, Mr. Wilson spoke during the morning at Tacoma and then came to Seattle in time to review the Pacific fleet in the afternoon and address a banquet meeting at the arena at the evening. In both cities he was cheered by crowds that thronged every point of vantage to get a glimpse of him. He will rest tomorrow at Seattle.

Repeating many of the arguments he has used previously against nullification of the treaty by reservations or amendments, the president again appealed to republicanism of the country "to forget that there is an election in prospect. It was an American program which the treaty proposed, he said, and to be an American was a thing bigger than being a republican or a democrat." He asserted his purpose to read "the riot act" to any one who let political conditions dictate his course in relation to the treaty.

At a public dinner which he attended before going to the arena, Mr. Wilson said he had been impressed by the uniformity of opinion among the people from ocean to ocean.

"There is no essential division," he said, "in the thought or purpose of the American people. No amount of abuse will set them off their balance. All the world was looking to the United States to put world affairs on a settled basis he said, adding that the world would not be disappointed. Fourteen hundred tickets had been distributed for the dinner.

Some Empty Seats.
 At the arena, which seats 6,300, there were a few empty seats when the president began speaking, but many were standing. When Mr. Wilson entered the crowd rose and cheered him for more than a minute when he was introduced by Mayor Fitzgerald there was a longer demonstration.

On the stage were Secretary Daniels of the navy department and Admiral Rodman, commander of the Pacific fleet.

The president began by saying he had heard that one of the former advisors of the German government saw in some aspects of the treaty a hope for an outcome that might be pleasing to Germany. All over the country, it is becoming more and more evident, he asserted, that the pro-German element was pleased at some of the things that had developed in the treaty discussion.

Asserting he had no doubt that in the end the cabinet would accept its responsibilities in regard to the peace settlement, he said he was fearful of the effects of some of the things that were being said.

Keen Up Honor of Chees.
 Applauds repeatedly increased the crowd, while outside the hall a grove against which the police had closed the doors, kept up such a roar of cheering that his words were sometimes drowned out. Pounding on the walls and doors, the crowd vainly trying to get in, at last settled down to shouting in unison "we want Wilson."

The president dignified to remark that the "applause is welcome, but inopportune."

The president was cheered when he said the idea of the length had come originally from republicans.

"When the republicans take that road I take off my hat and follow," he continued, "and I don't care whether I lead or not."

barometer was at 29.68, a drop of one point since seven o'clock. Strong waves from some of the beach waves were splashing on the seawall at places where the rip rap in front of the wall was high. The city's sewerage system empties in part into the bay, and because of the high tide some of the waste water, wet and salt water, was backed up at two points.

Although definitely determined that it swept inland at a point on the coast west of Burwood, observers tonight were still unable to locate the storm, its velocity or direction.

As a precautionary measure, the Louisville and Nashville railroad into today cancelled all east coast trains.

FLOODING LOW PLACES.
 WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Reports to the weather bureau here from the ventral tonight said the tide was rising rapidly, water was flooding low places on the island, and people were fleeing to the city interior.
