Simple Yet Dignified Scene Ends Nation's Reception to General.

CUMMINS, CLARK AND GILLETTE GIVE TALKS

Army Head Responds, Declaring Experiences Over There of Great Value to Nation.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Revering its climax in a scene in the house chamber that drew added dignity from the simplicity of the setting, the nation's welcome to General John J. Pershing came to an end today when the thanks of congress and of the American people were extended to him and to the army he commanded.

There were no military bands or ranks of soldiers. But one flag, that draped on the wall back of the speaker's chair, was displayed. The only other touch of color was the uniforms of the high officers of the army and navy. And the warmth of the greeting he received, coupled with the fact that few Americans ever had been similarly honored, could have left no doubt in General Pershing's mind that it was the heart of the nation that spoke to him.

The house assembled early, but almost the entire gathering was made up of members, sons and daughters of members, added to the almost intimate character of the gathering.

After the senate membership, according to custom, had marched into the house chamber to find seats in the front benches, the senior officers of the general staff, headed by General March, took their places on the center of the floor, while Admiral Benson led the bureau chiefs of the navy to similar seats on the left.

Members of the president's cabinet filed in to take seats in the semi-circle before the speaker's desk, leaving vacant a score of chairs in the center for General Pershing and his staff.

"Mr. Speaker," announced the sergeant-at-arms, "John Pershing, general of the armies of the United States, and his staff."

Speakers, representatives and the hundreds in the galleries rose to give the main entrance to the chamber. The door swung back and the joint reception committee headed by Chairman Wadsworth and Kahn of senate and house military committees, respectively, and others, including democratic colleagues, and including Representative Mondell, majority floor leader, and former Speaker Clark, came in. Behind them walked General Pershing at the head of his staff. A roar of applause punctuated with a shrill "rebel yell" greeted him.

Marching like a soldier-on-parade the general strode to the chair in the very center before the speaker's desk reserved for him.

It was Senator Cummins who extended the first greeting.

PLAGE STORM DEAD AT THE 500 MARK

Property Loss Estimated At Nearly $1,000—Beach, Residence Section Heavily Damaged.

By the Associated Press. CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Sept. 18.—Rapid growth of the death list resulting from the hurricane and tidal wave that swept Corpus Christi and nearby points Sunday caused the heaviest among the relief workers and local officials tonight that the total dead would approximate 500 persons.

Much of the shore line of Corpus Christi and Nueces bays has not been penetrated by searchers while only a small proportion of the wreckage in this city has been moved. This and the continued absence of many persons unheard from since the storm, was responsible for the rising estimate of fatalities.

A thorough survey of the demolished section of the city today by The Associated Press correspondent showed "block after block" of the beach residential section without a vestige of the former beautiful homes that lined Corpus Christi bay.

In the downtown district utter demolition of some of the city's most important industrial and public plants marked an area extending for six blocks along the water front and more than a block in width, while beyond that block extending back toward the bluff section, every commercial establishment was damaged over a corresponding area two blocks wide.

The tremendous property damage is becoming daily apparent. Prominent business men and other trained observers predicted tonight that twenty million dollars would be a conservative estimate of the monetary loss of the Corpus Christi alone, on which it is reliably stated, not more than $100,000,000 insurance could be paid.

It was declared unofficially tonight that a number of bodies not included in available figures had been buried lately across Corpus Christi bay near Portland.

Bodies almost entirely those of Corpus Christi victims, have been found in the following places and buried:

It is hoped that this allotment will be raised without placing any heavy burden on any individual. This will come if there is the general response which is anticipated. The American Legion Post of Twin Falls has offered to cooperate in the work of handling the drive, and the help of the returned service men has been gratefully accepted by the Elks committee.

Duties for the drive have been received, and will be distributed as rapidly as possible over the county, those for Buhl and Piler having yesterday been turned over to Judge Shank in Buhl and to Ed Piler in Piler, who will have charge of the drive in their communities.

ADVOCATES NATION-WIDE BAPTIST FAITHS STRIKE

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A nationwide strike of Baptist clergymen today was granted higher approval was advocated in a statement issued here tonight by Charles A. McAlpin, a member of the national committee of Northern Baptist laymen.

"If it were still the pastor and his salary was not over the $300 per annum, which is the amount received by the average clergyman in our denomination, I would organize a union of ministers," said Mr. McAlpin, who predicted there would be a shortage of clergymen, seen today ministers and better compensated than millmen, window cleaners and day laborers.

RECALL HIRAM JOHNSON BACK TO WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Republican leaders made ready today for the fight to get next week on the German peace treaty and its scope of nation events.

Word was sent to Senator Johnson of California, author of an amendment to equalize the voting power of Great Britain and the United States in the league and first up for consideration to return here at once so that debate on the amendment might proceed Monday, with the hope of adopting or rejecting it by the end of the week.

Until this message to the California senator was sent by Senator Hatch of Idaho, after a conference late in the day with Chairman Lodge of the foreign-relations committee, the report had persisted around the capital that Senator Johnson might be appointed special warden. Senator Lodge declared there would be no vote on amendment this week, and opponents of the league were prepared to resist attempts to force one by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, leader of the administration's fight for ratification.

ANXIOUS TO FOLLOW WILSON. LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 18.—Before leaving here today for St. Paul, Minn., where tomorrow morning he will address the Minnesota Legislature on the league of nations, Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, said he feared developments in the senate's consideration of the peace pact at Washington would prevent him from going to the Lincoln capital next week.

As a result the indications are that he may be obliged to return east after speaking at Minneapolis Saturday night.

ELDER IS A TWIN FALLS VISITOR TODAY

Hon. Robert H. Elder, democratic national committeeman from Idaho, was in Twin Falls yesterday, and last evening on legal business.

Mr. Elder says that President Wilson's speech in Coeur d'Alene was exceptionally well received, and the sentiment there, among men and women of all parties, is with the president for the league of nations.

"My mission here is not a political one," said the national committeeman in a short speech. "I am here to report to this part of the state on local business. However, I was glad to meet old friends." Last evening a number of democrats of the city called on Mr. Elder at the Rogerson hotel where he was staying, and the lobby for a time during the evening took the tone of a political convention.

Mr. Elder leaves this morning for Jerome and Shoshone, where he will take the train for Boise.

MINERS TURN DOWN MOTION FAVORING NATIONS LEAGUE

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—Efforts to enroll the half million members of the United Mine Workers of America in the league of nations and advocates of immediate ratification of the peace treaty, without amendment, failed today when the miners convention rejected a resolution to that effect introduced by Secretary Treasurer William Green, one of the signers of the Manifesto of One Hundred, in favor of league presented by the organization leaders in the convention. Advocates of amendment and reservation to clarify or limit the conditions of the league were numerous, a strong anti-British and anti-Japanese feeling was evident among the delegates and the socialist and radical wing of the convention threw its strength against the resolution.

RAINS CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE TO ROADS IN SOUTH TEXAS

By the Associated Press. EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 17.—Heavy rains west of Del Rio, Texas, Tuesday were the cause of bridges and washed up sections of track over a 60 mile stretch of the Southern Pacific line between Sanderson and Del Rio, officials of the road announced here tonight. They reported that it would be two or three days before repairs can be made and that service resumed. Passengers are being detained over the Texas and Pacific railway to Fort Worth from here.

STEEL STRIKE ORDER TO GO INTO EFFECT

Executive Committee Refuses to Accede to Request for Postponement.

WALKOUT TO START ON SEPTEMBER 22

Leaders Mature Plans for Carrying Out Campaign Against Important Industry.

By the Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—The national committee for organizing iron and steel workers late today voted down a motion to rescind the action taken at Washington calling a strike of all workers in iron and steel mills not operating under union agreements next Monday.

The committee followed this by adopting a motion to affirm the action taken at Washington. Final adjournment was taken and the representatives of the 24 unions included in the national committee left for their homes to put the strike into effect.

In deference to Wilson. The motion to postpone the strike until after the industrial conference at Washington beginning October 6, was offered. It was announced, out of respect for the cabinet, that Wilson had requested Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to use his influence to have the walkout deferred.

There was considerable discussion of the motion both yesterday and today. Emphatic speeches were made against any postponement. It was declared that neither President Wilson nor others who favored a postponement were cognizant of the actual conditions surrounding iron and steel mills. It was claimed that workers were eager for the strike, that they were discriminated against for union activities, and that the organized workers would lose confidence in their leaders if they turned back and deserted the men at this time.

Could Not Face Men. Some of the committee said that organizers who had helped build up the unions at steel plants throughout the country would not dare go back and face the men if the strike were called off.

The request of President Wilson to Mr. Gompers and the latter's committee to make the strike effective Monday morning, was proposed when the question of postponement came up. Those who favored putting off the strike realized that the effort to defer would fail before the motion was made, as they had sounded the sentiment of the committee and found it strong against such action.

Effective Monday Morning. John Fitzpatrick of Chicago, chairman of the national committee, after the meeting said plans had been formulated for making the strike effective Monday morning. He said there was nothing further to do now, but to let the men walk out. He added that the mills throughout the country were well organized and said he was confident that the United States Steel corporation, the principal point of attack, will have to recede from its position of declining to organize union leaders representing organized men in its plants.

Much of the time of two long sessions of the committee today was taken up with consideration of plans for the walkout. It was agreed that the national committee had wide power to conduct the strike, and plans were discussed for making the strike a unit of action among the 24 unions.

The question of assessments and financing were discussed too. It was also agreed to send to all iron and steel plants in the country the 18 demands for recognition by the workers. It is said the national committee will endeavor to reach an agreement with individual, also so-called independent concerns and if successful have the strikers return to such mills whose settlements are closed. It was pointed out that this would attack the unions in their right and help to bring those who have passed unharmed through the perils of the ordeal war in the history of the world.

SOLDIERS THANK GEN. PERSHING FOR A.E.F. WORK

Your entrance into France followed by an army which exceeded in numbers and surpassing in daring the most enthusiastic grapeheaves was the most impressive spectacle in all the annals of warfare. A little more than a year later, the United States had accomplished its mission, and when the day of armistice dawned, the high purpose, the admiration and held the confidence, esteem and affection of every country of the earth whose people loved justice, revered liberty and honored manhood.

"Upon that day the name of fame of the American soldier and the nation of his allegiance had risen to the highest point ever attained in the cause of humanity. May the Ruler of the Universe help us to maintain through all the stormy years to come the record and faith which you and your gallant army so magnificently won for America and her beloved institutions."

Gillett Talks.

Speaker Gillett followed: "Human nature loves to personify its ideals. And so we all rejoice to see personified in the commanding general the gallantry, the high purpose, the unquenchable determination of our crusading army. Those boys were our bravest and best. For those who fall we render tearful homage. For those who return maimed and crippled, we owe tender care and support. But for the great I have indeed gratitude and admiration, but my strongest emotion is envy.

They will be our heroes. "And in you, sir, their commanding general, we like to see typified the spirit of the noble army. As their fit representative, we representatives of the people, welcome you home. That I would not include that our welcome to you is entirely personal. Of all the details of your generalship you are not now qualified to judge. In due time that will be adjudicated by history. But we do know that you were eminently successful. For you made government in a foreign land, but had only to rely upon yourself. Even in what you said you were prudent. There was every chance for error. But, sir, if you mind them, either in policy or in statement, we have not heard of them. You have seemed to us not only a successful general heading, all his great powers without favor and without leniency to the one stern purpose of victory, but you have also shown a wise, discreet and sustained leadership. And, sir, I may add, that to those of us who know you it is refreshing, but not surprising, to find that after all the supreme power, the high station, the lordly associates and the unattained comradery to which you have been accustomed, you have developed neither arrogance nor affectation, but that you have come back as you went away, modest, straightforward, unspoiled.

Thanked by Clark.

The formal resolution of thanks was then presented to the general by former Speaker Clark. "Gen. Pershing war hath smoothed her wrinkles," he said. "And peace, with healing in her wings, like a gentle spirit now is brooding o'er a sore and storm-racked world. God be thanked! And you, General Pershing, you are a man of the world in this war, and blessed transformation—a consummation so devoutly wished by all peoples, kindreds and tongues.

"What you and your gallant men did over there will be cherished forever as part of the precious treasures of the mighty republic. "You and your men did not fight to add to the area or wealth of our beloved country, but to uphold the principles of right and truth and justice. Our soldiers who died in the war did not die in vain, but to make men free. As long as the republic endures their graves in France will be sacred shrines.

"General, you commanded more men than any other American soldier ever commanded—more, we hope, than any other American will ever command, for every man and patriotic American most fervently hopes that our country will never be involved in another war.

"Your singular fortune has given you command of troops on three continents, America, Asia and Europe. In the world war, by universal acclaim your conduct was superb and makes one hundred and ten millions of Americans proud to claim you as our countryman. Of all your actions, the one for which we are most profoundly grateful and for which we love you best, was that you strongly and triumphantly insisted that you and your men should fight only as an American army and not merely as replacement troops for British, French, Italian or Belgians. That feat was the acid test of your robust Americanism. It infused all our hearts to swell with ineff-able pride and entitled you to our eternal gratitude. "Extraordinary military rank should be conferred only for extraordinary services in the field. In appreciation of your services, the congress, voicing the sentiment of the American people, have conferred on you in recognition the extraordinary rank of full general—the highest military honor within our power to bestow, and in honoring you we feel that we are honoring ourselves.

Thanks—From People.

"In addition to the permanent generalship, the congress has tendered you individually and by your officers and men an immense the thanks of the American people and of the congress of the United States—a rare honor for itself.

"The resolution of thanks is in these words: "The thanks of the American people and of the congress of the United States are due, and are hereby tendered, to General July J. Pershing for his highly distinguished services as commander of the American expeditionary forces in Europe, and to the officers and men under his command for their unswerving duty and valor throughout the war."

In conclusion the former speaker paid a tribute to his audience and explained why he had been selected to speak, saying:

"The oldest resolution of thanks was then presented to the general by former Speaker Clark. "Gen. Pershing war hath smoothed her wrinkles," he said. "And peace, with healing in her wings, like a gentle spirit now is brooding o'er a sore and storm-racked world. God be thanked! And you, General Pershing, you are a man of the world in this war, and blessed transformation—a consummation so devoutly wished by all peoples, kindreds and tongues.

General Pershing's Speech.

Acknowledging the honors conferred by congress, General Pershing said: "I am deeply sensible of the privilege of appearing before you as a representative of the American expeditionary forces and am filled with emotion at the sentiments that have been expressed. This honor affords me profound gratitude as a recognition of the achievements of our splendid army. In receiving at your hands an expression of the approval of our people I am richly rewarded.

"A final report of the organization and the operations of our armies will be made by me at a later date. In the manner in which this great force developed into an instrumentality for victory is well known to you. The burdens that fell to the lot of our soldiers have been heavy, and the way beset by many obstacles, but faith in the righteousness of our cause and trust in Almighty God have given us courage and inspiration.

"The trials of battle demanded Spartan endurance and utmost self-reliance. We have never faced a more difficult task, nor borne greater hardship and never have troops shown a finer spirit of willingness, or more resolute purpose.

"The might of America lay not only in her numbers and her wealth, but also in the spirit of her people and their determination to succeed at whatever cost. While every man who went to France courageously did his part, behind him were millions of others eager to follow, all supported by a loyal people who deplored themselves to sustain our armies and succor our allies. Whether billeted in French, Belgian or Italian villages, or in the camps of England, our young men have left behind them a standard of frankness, of integrity, of business and of helpfulness, which will live the other nations of the world a finer belief in the sincerity of our motives.

"The benefits following from the experience of our soldiers will be broadly felt. They have returned in the full vigor of manhood, strong and clean. Through their patriotism, discipline and association they have become virile, confident and broad minded. Rich in the consciousness of honorable public service they will bring into the life of our country a more intelligent devotion to the duties of citizenship.

"To you, gentlemen of the congress, we owe the existence and maintenance of our armies in the field. With a clear conception of the magnitude of the struggle you adopted the draft as a surest means of utilizing our man power. You promptly enacted wise laws to develop and apply our resources to the best effect. You appropriated the fabulous sums required for military purposes. You made possible the organization and the operation by which victory was achieved.

Throughout the war the president reposed in me his full confidence and his unflinching support simplified my task. The secretary of war made repeated visits to the front, and I am deeply grateful for his wise counsel. Through his tireless states, bureaus and departments, with all their personnel, are deserving of respect and acknowledgment for the ability with which their problems were met. The officers and soldiers who served at home are entitled to their full share in the victory. "Our army performed brilliant part in transporting troops and supplies and in maintaining sea communications. The army was co-operated overseas with safety and comfort and with incredibly small loss. "A special tribute is due to those benevolent men and women who ministered to our soldiers at home and abroad. The welfare societies maintained by a generous public, gave us invaluable aid. In our hospitals the surgeons and nurses served with skill and fidelity.

"Business and professional men abandoned their private interests and gave their services to the country. Devoted men, women and even children, often in obscure positions, zealously labored to increase the output of ships, munitions, war material and food supplies, while the press and the pulpit stimulated patriotic enthusiasm.

"Our admiration goes out to our war men allies whose tenacity after three years of conflict made possible the effectiveness of our effort. Through their loyal support and co-operation, a genuine spirit of comradeship sprang up among us which should firmly unite the peoples as it did their armies.

Most Remembered Helms.

"The cheerfulness and fortitude of our wounded were an inspiration and a stimulus to their comrades. Those who are disabled should become the affectionate charge of our people, whose care they so richly earned. Let us in sympathy remember the widows and the mothers who today mourn the loss of their husbands and sons.

"Our hearts are filled with reverence and love for our triumphant dead. Dured in a hallowed ground which their courage redeemed their graves are sacred shrines that the nation will not fail to honor.

"The glorious record made in our treasured ideals will be a precious heritage to posterity. It has welded together our people and given them a deeper sense of nationality. The nobility of the republic and its institutions in the test of a world war should fill with pride every man and woman living under its flag. The great achievements, the sacrifices of our army and our people belong to no party and to no creed. They are the republic's legacy to be sincerely guarded and carefully transmitted to future generations."

THOSE EXCESSIVE EXPORTS.

Evidence accumulates that in the export trade which was so great a cause of satisfaction in the early war years, the American people have been having too much of a good thing. The latest and perhaps the most trustworthy witness in this matter is the federal reserve board, which ought to understand American financial conditions if anybody does.

The board declares that exports have had more to do with the causing of high prices than has currency inflation.

The great volume of exports, the board explains, "has given rise to a situation which is conventionally described as a 'favorable' balance of trade because of the large excess of goods exported above those imported, leaving a resulting balance of indebtedness to be met.

"Looking at the matter from the point of view of the ordinary American consumer, however, the effect of such 'favorable' balance of trade is far from favorable to him. Buying by the American consumer in competition with the export demand undoubtedly has been a major cause of rising prices in the post-war period in the United States."

Strong corroborative evidence is found in the fact that goods whose prices have risen most in this country are precisely the kinds of goods exported in greatest volume; namely, foodstuffs.

Contrary to the usual American attitude, therefore, there is considerable satisfaction expressed because such exports have fallen off in the last two months. This decrease may have been the leading factor in checking the rise of prices. Then along comes the government campaign against profiteering, followed by the new harvest, and prices begin to tumble.

SEA TRAFFIC INLAND.

A committee of experts has pronounced feasible a plan for making docks and harbors along the Great Lakes accessible to ocean-going steamers.

If carried out, this plan will bring a large part of the middle and western part of the country directly into contact with foreign trade. It will do away with much expensive hauling by rail and small boat, and eliminate the transfer of goods to ocean steamers at the ports, which is always an expensive part of such shipments. Also the saving in time will be considerable. As a passenger route, too, this way of taking the trip to Europe will be desirable to unhurried tourists. It will enable the traveler bound abroad to make the trip down a system of lakes surpassing any other in the world, down the St. Lawrence river, or possibly the Hudson, and so on across to Europe.

Widening and deepening of the Welland canal will have to be a part of this scheme. The canal has long been too small to serve the purpose it should.

For generations the problem of ocean traffic has been felt to be of little concern to inland Americans. So has the development of the harbors along the Great Lakes. But when the ocean steamer sails directly from Europe into the heart of America, the question begins to concern people never interested before and every farmer and manufacturer who has goods that are needed for the home market becomes interested.

THE TRAFFIC GAME.

Play the street crossing and traffic games with the children at home, and thus help to avert accidents when they go out upon the streets.

With mother coming down the living room as a trolley car at full speed and brother Jim as a motor truck and father as the big traffic officer who can stop them all so little brother and sister can cross in safety, the question of caution on the streets becomes at once interesting and real to the child who hitherto regarded "safety first" as only one more parental slogan to be forgotten as soon as the house is out of sight.

The same game can be played out in the yard, and it may be that the neighbor who is a little careless in his driving will stop for a minute to watch, and go away with a new idea in his head.

It is just another application of that old saw about the way which is long by precept and short by example. It is worth trying, in the hope that what the child learns happily in play will remain fixed in his mind when he needs it and save him from disaster.

SIX PLUCKY BOYS.

In these days when the whole world is charged with extravagance, and the average young boy and girl expect to begin life where their parents left off instead of doing a little old fashioned digging for themselves, it is good to hear the story of six young American students.

Not one of these boys has any supply of money at all, yet they have studied art all summer, painting like mad, day in and day out. They have kept a roof over their heads—a room upstairs over a little grocery store, by the way. They have managed to get food enough to live on. Each one contributes $2 a week to a common fund which furnishes food and fuel. This winter they are going to Bermuda to study and paint.

These lads expect to become painters. They undertake no outside job which means luxurious living and good clothes. They do only such temporary work at odd jobs as will enable them barely to subsist. Their time is devoted to mastering the art which is their ambition.

They will never lack real friends. They will remember these days as the happiest of their lives. They may be successful, and then others will call them "lucky." Plucky is the word, though, and it is a pity there are not more like them.

NO POLITICS IN POSTOFFICE.

It is said that there is a plan in the post-office department to modify the appointment rules, allowing the postmaster general to choose among the four applicants of highest standing instead of naming automatically the one standing highest in the civil service examination.

There may be some slight reason for permitting a discretionary choice. It may happen now and then that a candidate may have unusual ability to pass good written examinations without having an equal amount of executive ability. Conversely, good executives some times have trouble in passing formal examinations. But surely this problem can be taken care of in the examinations themselves; if there is no provision in the rules for proper acknowledgment of executive ability, in establishing an employee's standing such provision should be made.

To establish so wide a range of choice as is indicated in the proposed plan would certainly be to open the postoffice door again to politics. That was the ancient evil of the department. For generations it seemed incurable. Now that it has been pretty well eliminated, the public can not tolerate any backward step.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Interference by a man in the audience to President Wilson as a traitor brought cheers from many of the thousands of men and women who attended an Irish mass meeting in Brooklyn tonight. "Eamon de Valera," president of the Irish republic, received an ovation of several minutes when he came to the platform. He attacked the language of nations as a "British trick." When another speaker asked: "How can Wilson say 'we will leave Ireland a dirty matter'?" A voice called "that's enough about that traitor!" and insults followed. The names of Field Marshal Haig, Lloyd George and Carson, also were listed.

WILSON SAYS PACT ENEMIES MISLEAD FOLK

Do Not Give Idea as to the Contents of Treaty, Claims President.

AGAIN DECLARES IT BOON TO LABORITES

Means Freedom to Countries That Never Before Had Opportunity to Gain Just Liberty.

By the Associated Press.
OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 18.—President Wilson told an audience here tonight that the people had been "unfairly and I sometimes fear deliberately misled," as to the contents of the peace treaty.

In an address interrupted many times by cheers he said that any man who discussed the treaty on the basis of small and technical objections would in the end be "overwhelmed" by public opinion.

Mr. Wilson spoke before a crowd which jammed the auditorium here, with its seating capacity of 13,000. Many stood in the aisles and in the rear of the galleries.

For the second time during his trip

The Great American Home

A MAN DOESN'T KNOW HOW BRAVE HE IS UNTIL HE'S PUT TO THE TEST.

The president was introduced by a woman, Dr. Aurelia J. Reinhardt, president of Mills college of Oakland, presenting him as one to whom the international affairs of the country might be safely entrusted. When he rose to speak some one shouted "we've with him!" And many shouted in chorus "yes."

This was the first treaty, said Mr. Wilson, whose purpose was not to serve governments but "to serve people." All the peoples of the world, he declared, at last have seen a vision of liberty and had drawn up a treaty for the peoples, "and the fortunes of children everywhere." It was for the benefit of those of future generations, he asserted, that the document had been formulated.

Gives Liberty to Oppressed.

The "characteristic" of the treaty, asserted Mr. Wilson, was that "it gives liberty to people who never have won it for themselves." Had the world not already been rent by the great war, he said, the world would have been amazed that such a thing were possible. He declared it meant the end of the dreams of every imperialistic government in the world.

For one thing, continued the president, the treaty attempted to internationalize all of the great waterways of Europe. He said that in effect it proposes to "cut out" every influence of national privilege.

Discussing the labor section of the treaty, he declared there was being set up a new standard of labor for the whole world, under which laborers would be regarded as human beings and treated as they ought to be treated.

It is that concern, he mentioned the woman's act passed by congress a few years ago.

Reveals Labor Conference.

The international labor conference to be held in Washington next month was recalled by the president and he was cheered when he added:

"We are waiting to learn from the senate of the United States whether we can attend it or not."

In short, said the president, the treaty provided an "organization of liberty and mercy" for the world.

Referring to Germany's temporary exclusion from the league, the president said if the autocratic German government were revived with a Hohenzollern on the throne, Germany forever would be excluded from the league and from respectable society.

Royalty Out of Business.

"The Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns are permanently out of business," added Mr. Wilson, while the crowd cheered again.

There were more cheers when he referred to the withdrawal feature of the league covenant and said that should the United States go into the league "with a seat near the front" he would be invited to take a front seat immediately.

Turning to the arbitration and discussion features of the covenant, the president said it invited all the nations to lay any grievance before the jury of humanity before going to war.

"If you think you have a friend who is a fool," he added, "encourage him to hire a hall."

Oh You Hiram Johnson.

Some one in the gallery shouted, "Oh, you Hiram Johnson," and the crowd laughed and cheered.

America, foremost of all the nations, said the president, declared it as one of the principles on which she entered the war that there should be no more wars.

"Why do we debate details," he asked while the crowd cheered, "when the heart of the thing is sound?"

The league of nations covenant, President Wilson said in his luncheon address today, "is the masterpiece of Divine mercy and peace and good will."

Continuing he said, "I believe in Divine Providence. If I did not, I would be crazy. If I thought the direction of the disordered affairs of this world depended upon our finite endeavor, I should not know how to reason my way to sanity. But I do not believe there is any body of men, however they concert their power or their influence, that can defeat this great enterprise."

STEEL STRIKE

about agreements with larger concerns.

Confident of Outcome.

Among those who expressed confidence of a successful outcome for the workers was W. B. Rubin of New York, formerly of Milwaukee, general counsel for the committee. He reminded newspaper men that in 1776 the forefathers fought against taxation without representation, and added that in the strike the slogan would be "no labor without representation."

The following unions were said to have been represented at the meetings of the national committee:

Blacksmiths, boiler makers, and iron ship builders, brick and clay workers, bricklayers, plasterers and masons, bridge and structure foot workers, cooper, electrical workers, foundry employes, iron, steel and tin workers, machinists, metal polishers, mill, mill and smelter workers, molders, pattern makers, plumbers and steam fitters, quarry workers, railway carmen, sawyers, sheet metal workers, stationary firemen, steam and operating engineers, steam shovel and druggists and switchmen.

The twelve demands of the steel workers are:

Right of collective bargaining.

Reinstatement of men discharged for union activities.

An eight-hour day.

One day's rest in seven.

Abolition of the 24-hour shift.

Increase in wages sufficient to guarantee an American standard of living.

Standard scales of wages in all trades "and classifications of workers."

Double rate of pay for all overtime, holiday and Sunday work.

Check-off system of collecting union dues and assessments.

Principle of seniority to apply in maintenance, reduction and increase of working forces.

Abolition of company unions.

Abolition of physical examination of applicants for employment.

SEND LETTER TO WILSON

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—The steel workers' national committee, late tonight made public a letter it has drafted and sent to President Wilson, giving eleven reasons why it could not comply with his request to postpone the steel workers' strike called for next Monday. The letter also recites the conditions of the workers and expresses faith in the president's desire to bring about a conference with employers.

"We regret that for the first time your call upon organized labor cannot meet with favorable response," the letter states. "If delay were no more than delay, even at the cost of loss of membership in our organization, we would urge the same to the fullest of our ability, notwithstanding the men are firmly set for an immediate strike. But delay here means the surrender of all hope."

The Moral Risk

When the time comes to seek credit, a bank will want to know what you ARE as well as what you HAVE.

That's where the moral hazard comes in.

You can't establish credit over night. Rather, it is a matter of becoming KNOWN at your bank, of establishing confidence by the way in which you have kept your account, regardless of the amount you have to your credit.

Get acquainted—that's the first thing. Then develop that acquaintance into friendship. It will stand you in splendid stead when the time comes. Remembering also, that this bank offers you a complete banking service.

BULGARIA IS PUNISHED AS OTHER ALLIES

Terms of Pact much Stricter to Those Signed by Austria.

MUST MAKE PAYMENT OF HEAVY REPARATIONS

Territory to Be Ceded to the Principal Allies for Disposal as They See Fit.

By the armistice terms, Bulgaria is required to pay as reparations two and a quarter billion of francs in gold within 37 years. Provisions are made for the creation of an inter-allied commission, on which Bulgaria is represented but to have no vote, and the same committee for reparations coming through this commission, to be established by the German peace treaty.

Bulgaria agrees to return to Greece, Rumania and the Serb, Croat and Slovene states, the records, archives and articles of historical and artistic value which were taken from those countries during the war, and livestock shall be returned within six months. An special compensation for the destruction of the Serbian capitulations, Bulgaria shall for five years deliver 50,000 tons of coal annually to the Serb, Croat and Slovene states.

The financial clauses are similar to those of the Austrian treaty and provide penalty over the charges against Bulgaria for reparations. The amount shall be given to the extent of all armies of occupation of the allies, and to services of the external pro-war Ottoman public debt. Bulgaria renounces the benefits of the Bucharest and Trianon treaties and agrees to surrender the moneys and securities received according to those treaties.

Rumanian Frontier Same.

The frontier with Rumania remains the same as before the war, although it is understood the question of including Rumania to cede to Bulgaria that portion of Dobruja which is wholly Bulgarian in character will be taken up later. The frontier on the west with Serbia is modified in four places to the advantage of Serbia. In the Tzopok valley at the north, Bulgaria cedes to Serbia an narrow strip of territory sufficient to provide for proper policing of the important Serbian railway running through that valley.

In the vicinity of Dragoman pass, Bulgaria cedes a small strip of territory to protect Klaj from Bulgarian attack. A little further south in the vicinity of Vranje, where the Bulgarians in the present war occupied the city, Bulgaria cedes to Serbia the entire strip of territory which makes possible the defense of northern Serbia. Bulgaria is required to cede a small area of mountainous territory sufficient to protect the Serbian frontier from similar (?) in the future. At the south of this, frontier where a projecting lobe of the Bulgarian territory comes within six miles of the same vital railway, Bulgaria cedes the western projecting lobe to Serbia so that her frontiers are removed 10 or 12 miles eastward.

The most extensive territorial changes is to the south. The frontier with Greece remains the same except for slight rectification to afford proper protection to the Greek town, Western Thrace, formerly controlled by the Bulgarians, and the way to the Aegean sea. In return to the principal allies and associated powers, Bulgaria agrees to accept whatever disposition of this territory the powers ultimately decide on. It is stipulated that whatever solution is adopted, an economic outlet to the Aegean sea will be guaranteed to Bulgaria, the powers having the right to retain all or part of the territory to Bulgaria, transfer part to Greece, or to leave it to remain under Western Thracian in an international state, or to make any other solution ultimately agreed upon."
