PLACE SEVERE RESTRICTIONS ON COAL USE

Government Urges People to Suffer Discomforts Until Terms Are Met

MANY INDUSTRIES TO BE DEPRIVED OF FUEL

Hope That 14 Per Cent Increase Will Bring Back Some of the Men to the Closed Mines.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—War time restrictions on the nation's use of coal, more stringent even than those applied during the war, were ordered today to stave off a fuel famine.

Moved by reports of diminishing coal stocks and striking danger of distress in numerous sections, the government sought to compromise with striking mine workers whose walkout forced the emergency, but asked for national determination of mine production and distribution until coal mining was resumed on its terms.

Administrator Garfield, acting in communication with the railroad administrator, gave notice that he had included in the first class of the war-priorities list...

Only for Essential Use. "It is necessary that coal shall be used only for essential purposes..."

Official said that the terms of the order as given were framed to allow the greatest possible use of coal...

To Hold Fuel Power. These arrangements, it was suggested, would all be maintained while they proved adequate...

There were hopes that the addition of 14 per cent in mine workers would result in setting signs of the men back to work...

What Builds a Newspaper

What has built the Twin Falls Chronicle? You have seen it grow day by day, week by week, month by month...

Types and presses and machines can be bought, but they cannot build a newspaper. Nor can money.

Fortunes have been lavished in the big cities from coast to coast in efforts to build newspapers—lavished and wanted.

Men have confidence in newspapers with which they do not always agree. Unconsciously they appraise the character of a newspaper—unerringly appraise it.

So, not by machines, and types, and presses, nor yet by money, has the Twin Falls Chronicle built, but by the fact that it would construct, not destroy.

Here is its determination: In printed pages shall be truthful; its opinions sincere; its news columns without bias.

With such a policy it draws to it a working organization of men and women who are not mere employees...

PALMER ASKS COUNTRY TO STAND FIRM

Attorney General Opposes Further Conferences Between Opposing Factions.

APPROVES GARFIELD'S CONSULTATIVE BODY

Declares Public Should Not Be Stamped Into Acceding to the Demands of the Striking Miners.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Attorney General Palmer, after upon the American people tonight to "stand firm" to be stamped by threats of lack of coal...

Mr. Palmer opposed further conferences, saying way increase proposed by Dr. Garfield, equalized the average miners' wage with the present high cost...

Mr. Palmer said that the grant the demands of the miners would make the cost of living rise three, winter, and the coal, would remain a higher cost of living for substantially three years...

In addition to this, Dr. Garfield suggested a consultative body to investigate more completely the situation, to be composed of representatives in equal number of the operators and miners...

Production to Increase. "In the meantime, however, the operators have posted the advance in wages proposed by Dr. Garfield, so that working miners will immediately receive the benefit of this increase..."

Any other plan to reopen negotiations for a new wage scale between the miners and operators would be of no value...

In the light of the present situation, the treaty should not be brought up for consideration...

SOUTH DAKOTA TO ENDORSE GEN. WOOD

Polindexter Told It Is No Use for Him To Attempt to Secure Endorsement.

By the Associated Press. PIERRE, S. D., Dec. 1.—At the close of a day of conferences and political activities in connection with the presidential preference conventions tomorrow, Senator Miles Polindexter of Washington, a republican candidate, rented a theater and addressed a mass meeting in furtherance of his candi-

Earlier he had charged that four men controlled South Dakota republican politics and were "running things to suit themselves." This brought a declaration from Governor Norbeck that he favored the candidacy of General Leonard Wood.

"I am for General Wood for two reasons," the governor said. "First, I believe in the man; second, I know that the republican voters of South Dakota want him."

The conventions to endorse party nominees for president will be held tomorrow and incidentally candidates for state offices in addition to expressing preferences for federal offices.

Senator Polindexter's address brought to a further spectacular close a day of conferences and public activities of delegates to three state conventions which will be held tomorrow to endorse party candidates for president and to nominate candidates for federal and state offices. The Washington senator declared that he had told him "it was useless" for him to attempt to bring his candidacy before the republican convention because the republican delegates were overwhelmingly in favor of Maj. Gen. Wood. Discussing the new state law which provides that state proposal conventions shall nominate candidates for the primary election and also may endorse party candidates for president, Senator Polindexter declared that although a lawyer and although he had read the statute, "I cannot say that I understand it."

He did discuss, however, a portion of the statute which declares that candidates endorsed for office by proposal conventions should discuss and be involved with any other candidate or candidates who seek the office as independents.

In this connection he suggested that as General Wood is considered certain of endorsement tomorrow he was ready to return to South Dakota to discuss presidential issues with him should Wood become an avowed candidate for president.

Senator Polindexter briefly outlined his position on some issues. He declared himself in favor of providing adequate protection for Americans in any part of the world; he favored an immediate declaration of peace with Germany; reduction of war taxes as rapidly as possible; adequate protection of American industries from radical interference; no American military aid for Turkey or Armenia; and the making of assistance for devastated countries in Europe secondary in assistance to afflicted Americans and American properties.

After Senator Polindexter delivered his address in a local theater, which he hired for the occasion, members of the republican state central committee gathered in the evening to decide that the state convention would endorse Major General Wood tomorrow. Shortly before Mr. Polindexter's meeting it was understood that the republican delegates were considering a plan to not endorse any candidate for president. Such action would have enabled any candidate desiring to receive endorsement to file his nomination paper to January, and to have their names put on the official ballot in the electoral college.

There was no political development of importance this afternoon except Polindexter's speech. Democratic delegates and delegates to the Non-Partisan league state convention held conferences for state and national offices. South Dakota, normally carries a strong republican majority. It was expected that the three parties would announce tonight the probable states to be played before conventions tomorrow.

The republican state was considered practically decided upon this afternoon, according to state leaders. Governor Peter Norbeck is the only candidate mentioned for United States senator. Senator Ed S. Johnson will probably be renominated by the delegates. For governor, it is expected that the republicans will nominate W. P. McMaster of Yankton, and the democrats will select W. S. Graves of Avon. It was considered equally certain that South Dakota's three congressmen, two republicans and one democrat, would be re-nominated. C. Christopherson, Sioux Falls, in the first district; and Royal C. Johnson, Aberdeen, in the second district, are republicans. The democratic congressman is Harry L. Gandy of Rapid City.

PROGRESS MADE IN NEWBERRY CASE

Two of Those Charged Are True Bills After Pleas of Guilty.

By the Associated Press. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 1.—Unsettled progress was made today by federal officers in producing the way for an indictment of the 121 men, including United States Senator Frank H. Newberry, who were indicted by a federal grand jury here late Saturday on charges of corruption for the fraud and conspiracy in connection with the Newberry election campaign in 1918. Service was received on a number of those indicted and first arraignments were held before Federal Judge W. C. Johnson today. A dozen of the defendants are appearing in court.

Some of the men who were named on today when two of those charged in the true bills, but whose names did not appear in the indictment, Edward S. Carole, case-lawyer, Judge Sessions and pleaded guilty to counts contained in the indictments. These were William E. Rice, a Grand Rapids printer, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy, and Alie K. Moore, formerly a Grand Rapids newspaper man, who pleaded guilty to four of six counts.

Several others of the 121 whose names had been withheld pending service of the warrants, were expected they had been named in the indictments and appeared voluntarily in court today. They included George E. Rogers, former Grand Rapids attorney; George E. Wheeler, former county manager of the Newberry campaign; Charles Carpenter, former member of the Grand Rapids city board; and Roman E. Glorchester, who had been employed at a salary of $180 a month to work during the Newberry campaign among the Polish residents of Grand Rapids. All pleaded not guilty. Glorchester being held in $2,000 bail and the others in $1,000 each.

That a bench warrant had been issued for Senator Newberry was indicated today when it was announced that Clerk Charles Potter, of the federal court had furnished United States Marshal O'Connor with one of each of the 121 persons indicted.

could resist service, if he applied, on the ground of senatorial immunity.

Arrangement of the remainder of the defendants is expected to cover the entire week, but all those names in the indictments, Judge Sessions has announced, must appear in court on or before next Monday, December 8. Trial of the cases will not be permitted to drag. Judge Sessions indicated today, stating that in order will be made to complete them before the 121st presidential election. Judge Sessions is expected to preside at all of the trials.

A formidable array of legal talent is expected to appear when the trials of the indicted men begin. According to popular belief here, this will be early in January. The date for beginning the trials will be fixed in federal court here, probably next Monday.

According to present plans, Senator Newberry, his brother, John S. Newberry, Paul H. King, of Detroit, chairman of the Newberry campaign committee, and other leading figures in the case will be represented by Attorneys Martin W. Littlejohn, of New York City; James C. McLean, of Detroit; and George E. Nichols, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

"TRUSTING A GUY"

A story in a current magazine, dealing with conditions in a big industrial plant, centers about the company doctor and a union leader. The doctor is one of those inspired medics who has the human gift, and who, along with his patching of bodies, does much to patch home conditions, and minds and souls.

As to the unionist, "The man's passion for the union was inborn in his soul. He had begun by serving one after another three masters of the old school who lumped their men with their material and cared about nothing except the price metal products would bring. He found the union the one ring of steel with which the worker could surround himself. Any breach in the ring invited a mortal wound to himself, his family, his kind. The things proposed involved changes, therefore they were fraught with dangers for the union. They would lift the men forward to new and better ground, the doctor argued. To new ground—that was the thing that stalled McDonald. The leaders held the union safe only so long as they felt familiar and beneath their feet."

Through a long, hard strike and many difficulties the story leads. And at the end the union leader advises the men to arbitrate. "What he had witnessed—the succoring of his famished people by the enemy—was something having no place whatever in the world in which he had labored and bled and made his fight. Wherefore, he had felt himself swept along into a world that was new. The length and breadth and manner of it, were bewildering, but there was one thing that gave him his bearings, for it shaped into his vision like a great, square stone. It was a sort of corner-stone he saw, of the new world's existence. A guy could trust a guy!"

In all present labor troubles it is well to remember that there is a heritage of a time when the capital guy was not to be trusted by the labor guy. If sometimes now the shoe is on the other foot, it is but a normal reaction from that bad time.

The new boss must wipe away the old prejudice by steadily, over a long period, perhaps, showing himself worthy of trust. People are human, whether working by hand or brain. An atmosphere of mutual distrust is as unpleasant for the one as for the other. Labor troubles of all kinds can disappear only when everyone is comfortable because "A guy can trust a guy."

POSTAGE AND PENNIES

Bills pending in Congress which provide for the reduction of the local postage letter rate from two cents to one have been approved by Postmaster General Burleson. This means that a letter mailed in any city or town would be delivered anywhere within the limits of the local delivery system for one cent. It does not affect letters going beyond the local office. This provision was at one time in force. Burleson says that "the present two-cent charge on that class of mail exceeds the cost of handling," and he believes the reduction should be made because the postal service should not be conducted for profit.

There are two sides to this matter, however. While no one wants to pay more for postage than is necessary, it seems rather absurd, in view of the existing state of postal finances, that any reduction should come about because a little money is made on one trifling branch of the service.

If there were funds available to give the carriers and other postal employees a fair wage, compared with other kinds of labor of equal standard, if wages were high enough to attract to the service somewhere near enough employees to handle the work efficiently, then, if one branch were paying a profit, that profit should, of course, be taken off and the consumer be given the benefit of the reduction.

But, suppose this matter of the local one-cent postage were submitted to a vote of all the people most affected by it? Take for example, stores and corporations sending out thousands of statements monthly, whose mailing bills of hundreds of dollars, would be cut in half by the one-cent local postage rate. Would they not vote in overwhelming numbers, to have this money retained in the postal service and used where it would do a little good in improving the quality of the mail deliveries?

GERMANS MUST LEARN CITIZENSHIP

One of the lessons which the Germans must learn before they can really achieve a position of respect and power in the world, is self-government. They have been a docile crowd of servants, obedient to their rulers for so long that they are at a loss now that governmental responsibility is thrown upon them as citizens. This fact is made strikingly apparent in recent accounts of German attempts at reconstruction.

Committing the government of a nation to the hands of a hereditary ruler seems to work beautifully as long as the ruler is wise, honest, good and ambitious only to promote justice and honor in his own country and in the world. But that combination of qualities seems to be rare indeed in divine-right monarchs with absolute power. For a long time the Germans, while so ruled, seemed to be the most efficient and prosperous of nations. Then the greed and ambition of their masters plunged them into a disastrous war and left them stranded with little ability for self-government or political initiative, or even liking for the task.

They cannot get really on their feet, develop a true national self-respect and attain an honorable place in the society of nations until they have learned the science of self-government from the very beginning and built up an individual and public consciousness which can be relied upon in a crisis to think straight and fast and so to reach just and wise decisions.

From a current "horoscope" we learn that people "should sign papers only after mature judgment," that "money, while having fair prospects, is fraught with dangers from rash action," that under present signs "there is likely to be much political and industrial controversy," and that those in employment if undeniably deserving may receive benefits." What a wonderful thing is astrology!

The dancing mania is here again. They used to credit this mania to booze, and now they credit it to prohibition. The solemn truth is that people dance simply because they like to dance, and it's a form of intoxication in itself, which hasn't anything to do with alcohol.

There is going to be an egg show at Harrisburg, Pa. What's the idea? To give people who can't afford to buy eggs a chance to look at some for a moderate fee?

POLAND HAS SIX KINDS OF MONEY

Organizing a Bank, American Observers Say; New Nation is Ending Tangle Extremely Well.

WARSAW, Poland—Poland has the same general financial problems as the other new nations that have recently sprung out of the war, and in addition two tremendous complications: First—The national composition of the inhabitants of three nations which had entirely different money, tariffs, laws, methods, taxes, etc.

Wherefore, Poland still has no settled financial or commercial policy. But she is doing everything she can to settle the money system, taxation and tariffs, make one economic and financial unit out of three, and improve her exchange rate. She has two currencies in her favor. She has used up less than one percent—taken less in loans—than any other European country engaged in the war, and she now has at the head of her financial building, a shrewd and experienced state financier, Finance Minister Bilinski, former finance minister of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

"Money reform" is progressing. The new Polish monetary unit will be the "zloty," (pronounced "zwoy" long o) and zloty notes are being printed now—small ones in France and large ones in England. The one-hundredth part of a zloty will be a "groz."

The value of the zloty will probably be the same as the French franc, which is 19.3 cents.

When these notes will be put in circulation is not yet known; the original date planned is far past already. Meantime there are a half-dozen kinds of money in circulation.

Polish marks, some printed in Poland, some in Germany, ear rubles, Kerensky rubles, Lithuanian rubles, put in circulation by the Germans, Austrian crown and German marks.

In the east rubles are worth more than marks; in the west marks are worth more than rubles; some places bear rubles are worth more than Kerensky rubles and some places the Kerensky rubles will buy more.

Even inland trade is hampered by the differences in money values and systems, and they complicate foreign trade.

Bilinski has taken several steps to improve and steady the rate of exchange on the Polish marks, which are the notes usually heard abroad. He has started to bring foreign currency in the country under government control.

A new national bank, the Bank of Poland, is being organized, with a capital of 10 million zloty. This capital is to be made up by (1) gifts to the treasury, many of which are expected to come from Poles in America; (2) immovable property in Poland of state banks of the former empire; (3) the balance from the liquidation of the present state bank; (4) 50 per cent of the net profits of the new bank.

American observers who have studied Poland since the beginning, all say she has done and is doing exceedingly well, but unification of three different systems of everything is a big job and naturally the Poles have had no chance in the last century to gather the experience, technical knowledge, and organization and administrative methods that would be so valuable now. Germans and Austrians and Russians ran things before.

POLES ARE SOLVING THEIR RAIL PROBLEM

American Funds Aid Experts Helping to Establish System Owned by Government.

By Harold E. Reichel. WARSAW, Poland—Poland has about 9,000 miles of railways, 2301 locomotives and a proportionate number of cars, against which there is not a single bond or share of stock outstanding.

It is a vast free national railway system, probably the only one in the world.

When Poland came into her liberty she simply took the railways and rolling stock which her judges regarded as German. Austria, Italy and Belgium began operations with a clean slate. Nobody had to be compensated.

That is the bright side of the Polish railroad situation.

The other side is 42 per cent of the 2301 locomotives are in the repair shops; many of the cars need repairs; the Polish railways are made up of remnants of three entirely different systems, and it is still impossible to move food and materials where they are needed and when needed.

Added to this, the army requirements are great; rail schedules are imperfect and there is, of course, an operations deficit in the budget.

General Pilsudski, the chief of the Polish state, told me that "when our transport difficulties are solved, the worst will be over."

The peace conference gave Poland a corridor to the Baltic sea, although the whole Polish shore is sandy and has no good ports. But this corridor is especially valuable in the access to the Danzig free state, where Poland gets free use of the great, historic port.

The great inland waterway of Poland, the Vistula river which flows into the Baltic at Danzig. The new Poland is largely in the Vistula basin.

The government plans extensive improvements to increase transportation facilities and end the floods, but these improvements will be in the plan stage for years to come. Meanwhile the river is especially valuable for floating timber.

Poland already has the nucleus of a great network of canals and plans to develop the completion of the system.

The transportation ministry is studying the use of motor trucks. They could be put into use at once. They could be shuffled about to meet the most urgent needs. And they might prove a permanent find; more valuable for many purposes than little railroads.

The government is getting the opinion and advice of some of the best railroad men in America. The United States lent Poland the services of Col. A. B. Barber, and including Col. S. Gaskill, an operations expert of the Pennsylvania lines, and Major T. Ryan. All these men had big parts in the recent building and operation of the American railroads in France, that fed the Pershing fighters.

The Poles have bought 150 engines from the Baldwin Locomotive works; and negotiations are in progress for still more. The Baldwin contract runs to more than seven million dollars and treasury bonds were accepted as security. Frank W. Morse, formerly general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, is in Warsaw in charge of a staff of Baldwin men.

JOHN MCGRAW IS PLUNGING AGAIN

He Filled in 1910, But He Is Back With More Dollars to Gambol For Clients.

By Fred Turbyville.

John McGraw seems to be the proudest of the boys in the American and National League. John McGraw has started his "40th year" for the 1920 season. McGraw is the first to go before another National League contract is made to the most. He looks like John McGraw. McGraw is ready to buy any kind of a ball player that would look good to him. McGraw is not at all sure sums of money are mentioned in an ordinary baseball man would speak of a bag of peanuts. McGraw says if he can win a ball. Evidently New York baseball fans are for a pennant-winning ball club and nothing else. John got a late start last year. McGraw is on the job again for the 1920 season. The Reds have had long known that Charley Slocum and Sherry Magee would not be among their "first year" picks. That is where McGraw comes in. He

JOY TURK EMPIRE IS A SOUND ONE

View That Ottoman Empire Is Bankrupt Is a Misleading One, Say Experts.

CONSTANTINOPLE—American experts, who have investigated the financial condition of the former Ottoman Empire, say they are convinced that it is fundamentally sound. Several considerations are advanced in support of this contention.

First, it is stated that the popular point of view that Turkey was bankrupt before the war was purely created artificially for the benefit of foreign financial interests with the object of frightening other countries away and for political reasons of establishing a puppet.

The fact that Turkey was always able to secure loans is cited as evidence of her financial soundness. Though against this may be advanced the observation that she was a political union with various members of the empire who were played, one against the other, and that financial support was granted by other countries.

It is pointed out that Turkey did not default on her indebtedness in any of her recent years, but figure for the year 1918 and 1919 are not available. The fact that she has not defaulted in any of her recent years is cited as evidence of her financial soundness. Though against this may be advanced the observation that she was a political union with various members of the empire who were played, one against the other, and that financial support was granted by other countries.

For Americans who are considering the mandate question or of doing business here under whatever government may be established, it is pointed out that the above facts show Turkey is already adequate to conduct the old government and that with good government, the old Ottoman Empire would have never financially straggled.

Before the war foreign investments amounted to the equivalent of $1,075,000,000, of which $783,200,000 was in the public debt and loans to the government and the difference in private enterprises and concessions.

The bulk of these concessions was in the hands of the Ottoman government, many of them were issued before the war so that all of the money never reached the treasury. Inquiries of the Treasury Department have been made and it is believed to have been paid to European banks and in general to the various bond holders to get their support for the loans.

It is stated that the loans did not reach the treasury as they were held in European banks and in general to the various bond holders to get their support for the loans.

As the debts did not, on the whole, create sources of new revenue and therefore the public debt continues to increase.

Grain

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Increased activity regarding coal shortage all day good deal today to give an upward swing to the corn market. The close was unsettled 1 1/4 to 2 1/2c higher. With December 139 1/4 to 138 3/4 and May 142 1/4 to 132 1/4. Oats gained 7/8c to 1 1/8c. In price, the finish varied from 17c decline to a rise of 22c. Corn traders showed an excited disposition to anticipate that as a result of dual strike developments the fulfillment of crop to primary centers would be more restricted than has heretofore been deemed probable. The fact that there was no word delivered heretofore on December contracts tended to focus attention on the handling of the stock of corn in Chicago and so did the comparative scantiness of receipts and offerings. Higher and weather conditions unfavorable. In the last hour, though, the advance of corn was somewhat checked by announcement that one of the chief industrial buyers of corn had withdrawn from the market. Export rates and a decrease of the visible supply, total added firmness to corn. Provisions averaged higher with corn and hogs despite talk by packers that the winter cost of hogs would be less than $12.00 a hundred weight.

RESUME TRADING WITH HUN NATION

Great Britain and United States Vie With One Another in Seeking German Trade. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Since the signing of the armistice, the United States and Great Britain have resumed busy trading with Germany, as shown in reports made public today by the department of commerce. Exports from the United States to Germany for the first ten months of the year totaled $52,420,095, and imports from Germany $4,914,737. Great Britain, from the signing of the armistice to October 31, exported to Germany goods valued at more than $200,000,000 and received imports from Germany valued at $1,085,000. Of the total American exports to Germany $20,653,521 were exported in October. Officials of the department of commerce stated that although Great Britain apparently has started off with a cash, the United States was overhauling her rapidly. Exports from the United States to South America amounted to $30,280,245 in October against $17,441,621 a year ago. Argentina registered $13,874,154, or nearly three times as much as in October, 1918. Brazil at $12,275,000, received almost six times as much as a year ago while Chile at $2,479,233, was 2 1/2 times by almost a million dollars. Imports from South America to the United States for October amounted to $68,287,091, of which Argentina contributed $23,773,398, Brazil, $24,171,680, and Chile, $5,818,231. Europe, with a total of $447,398,253, received the largest amount of American exports in October. Imports were greatest from Asia, totaling $118,836,811 for the month.

PYGMIES' PICTURE GALLERY

DUITSHOORN, Cape Province. Cave man of bygone ages have left the imprint here of a curious artwork that has long been the subject of scientific research. The history of the disappearing pygmies now practically extinct, is woven around drawings found in caves eighteen miles from Oudshoorn. Part of the Smithsonian African expedition went through here on the way to Fort Elizabeth. Oudshoorn is only 187 miles from Cape Town, but it took more than 28 hours for the automatic railway engine to bring us here. The Cango Caves, considered the finest stannite caverns in the world, still retain many examples of Bushman art, although numerous samples have been removed to other museums. Crude, though faithful, pictures of animals and men were drawn ages ago by the dwarf bushmen on the walls of the caves. In most cases natural colors have been applied. The drawings have been used by scientists in an attempt to trace back the origin of the disappearing race, which is entirely distinct from any other in Africa. The Cango Caves, discovered in 1870, are in the limestone base of the Zwartberg mountains. The caves have been explored for two miles into the mountains, but they appear to extend miles farther. Electric torches cannot fully illuminate the large caverns and one has to pay out macramut ribbon in order to provide a fiery guide back to the entrance.

JUDGE HULPS CANDY IS NOT DEADLY WEAPON

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—In the case brought against Miss Elizabeth Young, a woolen mill striker, charged with assaulting William Patton, a foreman, with a handful of chocolate drops, the court ruled the candy is not a deadly weapon. The case was dismissed.
