"MAKE TREATY ISSUE," WILSON; "LET'S COMPROMISE," SAYS BRYAN

"AW, GEE WHIZ!"

TWO LEADERS SPLIT OVER PARTY ISSUE

Sentiments Expressed at the Jackson Day Banquet
Diametrically Opposite

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS DISCUSSED BY MANY

Gerard, Owen and Others
Support Commoner's
View—Others Support
President's Attitude.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A split between President Wilson and William J. Bryan, over whether the league of nations should be made an issue at the coming election, topped off the Jackson day deliberations of the democratic party chiefs.

It came at the Jackson day dinner, as the climax of a day in which San Francisco had been chosen as the meeting place of the democratic national convention on June 15, and it charged the air with political electricity.

Wilson Stands Firm.
President Wilson, in his message read to the dinner, assembled in two separate halls, declared that the clear and single way out, was to submit the question to the voters, as "a great and solemn referendum."

Mr. Bryan, showing all the old time vigor with which he led the fight for the president's nomination at Baltimore in 1912, declared that the democratic party could not go before the country on the issue, because it involved a delay of 14 months, and meant success only if the democrats captured a two-thirds majority of the senate.

"The party," Mr. Bryan declared, "must secure such compromises as may be possible."

Bryan Not Candidate.
Mr. Bryan said that, unlike some of the other speakers, he had nothing to ask, but spoke from gratitude rather than in expectation.

"You will, therefore," he added, "not listen to me with the thought that you are listening to a candidate."

Mr. Bryan then read his prepared address, saying he would follow it exactly because it was written before he knew the contents of the president's letter.

As he proceeded, however, Mr. Bryan interspersed numerous extemporaneous arguments.

"What we remember," he said, "is the man with which he has denounced the republicans for seven months delay," he said, referring to the treaty, "what will be our answer to Europe now if we delay for another fourteen months while we consult the American people?"

"If I knew the American people," he continued, "they will never transfer to any foreign nation the right to say when our boys shall be conscripted."

When Mr. Bryan endorsed nationwide prohibition there was scattering applause and some laughter.

"My friends," he said, "I was prepared for silence on this point. But if this does not appeal to the diners present, I appeal from Philip Drunk to Philip Sober and lay the cause before the people who believe in prohibition."

The disagreement between the president and his former secretary of state, the first in public view since Mr. Bryan left the cabinet because he did not agree with the president's course in the diplomatic negotiations with Germany, was thus disclosed as a fact although it had been rumored and reported in the underground currents of national politics.

Crystallized the Issue.
In the opinion of the political leaders it crystallized an issue.

President Wilson, in his message, said that the way out, was to submit the question to the voters, as "a great and solemn referendum."

TO HOLD CONVENTION IN SAN FRANCISCO

Democrats Decide to Come West—
Republican Arrogance On Treaty Situation.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—San Francisco is the place and Monday, June 15, at noon, is the time for the democratic national convention.

The selections were made today by the democratic national committee at its quadrennial meeting. The committee at the same time unanimously adopted resolutions endorsing the treaty of Versailles and denouncing the "arrogant" republican leadership of the senate as having "earned the contempt of the world," by throttling the treaty for seven months.

After the committee went into executive session to select the convention city, A. F. Mullen, national committeeman from Nebraska, submitted a resolution proposing that the site requiring a two-thirds vote of the convention for the nomination of a presidential candidate be abolished, but it was tabled after some discussion.

Kansas City and Chicago were active candidates as the convention cities, but after the former had received 7 votes and the latter seven against it for San Francisco, Robert S. Egan, national committeeman from New Jersey, changed the vote of his state from Kansas City to San Francisco and a stampede in favor of the Pacific coast city resulted. The vote finally being made unanimous.

ITALY'S CLAIM TO FORME RECOGNIZED

City to Have Complete Sovereignty
Under League of Nations, According to Memorandum.

By the Associated Press.
RUGENSBURG, ATLES, Jan. 8.—Great Britain, France and the United States, concerning the Italian character of Florence, will grant that city complete sovereignty under the league of nations, preserving only a customs union with Jugo-Slavia, according to a memorandum concerning Dalmatia and Plume, recently presented by Italian power to Vittorio Scialoja, the Italian foreign minister. A summary of the memorandum, telegraphed by the Rome correspondent, is published by La Nacion today.

In the memorandum the United States, France and Great Britain, recognize as reasonable the demands of Italy with respect to the islands of Pelagos, Lero, and Lussini, off the Dalmatian coast, granting full sovereignty to Italy. The three powers concede to Italy a mandate over Albania and complete sovereignty over Albania with the hinterland necessary for its defense. The memorandum also suggests that these concessions appear to safeguard sufficiently the rights and aspirations of Italy.

Nevertheless, guided by a spirit of friendship, the powers will take into consideration other demands of Italy, especially the diplomatic representation of Zara, with respect to which a decision will be left to the population of that city.

WOULD BUILD BRIDGE FROM RIM-TO-RIM

Chamber of Commerce Mat-turing Plans for Long-Needed Structure.

PROPOSE STOCK COMPANY TO HANDLE CONSTRUCTION

Tolls Would Be Collected—
North and South Side Residents Much Interested in the Venture.

Plans looking to a rim-to-rim bridge across Snake river, just north of Twin Falls are being matured by the directors of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

For some time this matter has been under consideration by men of affairs in Twin Falls and the North Side, with the result that tentative plans have been agreed to, and efforts are out for financing the undertaking.

North Side Interested.
The bridge, of course, comprehends conference with the State Utilities Commission, which would fix the toll charges, but it is not anticipated that there would be any trouble in this direction, due to the public sentiment for the bridge, and the fact that only a reasonable toll would be asked.

Sheep men living on the north side, as well as those living or having properties on the south side, are vastly interested in the proposed enterprise, and assurance of heavy support are already at hand.

Could Sell Sufficient Stock.
Estimation of the passenger traffic have been made, and these assure ample revenues at a fair toll to pay handsomely upon the investment, from which there is reason to believe that sufficient stock could be floated to provide the cost of construction, with the employment of funds derived from the toll charges.

Two styles of construction have been considered. One type is the suspension bridge, similar to but heavier than the Hansen bridge. The other type is cantilever.

Murray Makes Surveys.
Engineer Murray, who had in hand the construction of the Hansen bridge, and who is in charge of the Rock Creek bridge which the city of Twin Falls is to build, has made a number of surveys of sites, and finds the place entirely feasible. The cost is estimated to be approximately $250,000.

The state will within the next sixty days open bids for the construction of the Owens Ferry bridge, which will open the way for traffic east and west across Snake river at that point. This work has been hanging fire for some time, but now seems in line for completion, within the coming construction season. This bridge will cost $75,000. It will be of inestimable value to travelers going through the east-west lines. Notice of the reformation of the state department to push his work was received by Secretary Wright, of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, and there was general elation felt among business men of Twin Falls and Burley.

DOROTHY GISH in "I'll Get Him Yet"

A Paramount Picture

That darned old railroad! She couldn't make him love her because she was a bloated railroad magnate—and he hated railroad magnates! Oh, Government Ownership! ## TIGHTENING THE PURSE STRINGS

In its last monthly review the Boston Federal Reserve Bank issues a stern warning to the public. It briefly mentioned economic and industrial conditions in New England at the close of 1919, then it made a statement which is quite as applicable to the other sections of the country as to the northeastern states:

"While there has been, no doubt, considerable saving from earnings, as evidenced by large aggregate deposits in savings institutions and investments in government obligations, nevertheless no one may observe without a feeling of apprehension the manner in which the enhanced purchasing power of the wage earners is being dissipated by irrational personal expenditures, especially when it is beginning to be coupled with requests for credit at retail stores by many who have never before known the meaning of a charge account.

"It is unlikely that any reduction in the cost of living will be forced upon the consumer by the voluntary benevolence of the makers of goods; it is certain that it will not come about through legislation, and if it comes otherwise than by a collapse of the existing economic structure such as would bring not reduced prices only, but reduced earnings and widespread distress, it can come only through individual sacrifices, foresight, and initiative, manifested by restricted expenditure and conservation of savings beyond anything yet apparent."

The temptations of the holiday season are behind us. Winter is nearly half gone and cold weather commodities that have served satisfactorily so far may be made to last the rest of the time. There never will be a more propitious time for turning one's back on foolish expenditure and facing toward the savings deposit window. It depends upon the individual wage earner and the manager of family funds to do this for himself, however. The warning and the advice have been given many times. It is time now for individual action.

TWELFTH NIGHT

Most Americans think of "Twelfth Night" merely as the name of one of Shakespeare's comedies, hardly considering whether the title has anything to do with the play or not. They have forgotten, if they ever knew, that it was the name of a holiday.

In the older countries, the festivities of Christmas lasted two full weeks beginning Christmas Eve and coming to a grand final wind-up on January 6, the twelfth night after Christmas. This is the day celebrated in the Christian church as "Epiphany," that is to say, the "showing" of the Christ-child to the Wise Men from the East.

In one American family where just enough of the custom lingers to take down the Christmas tree on New Year's day, making a little ceremony for the children of the "cleaning-up for the New Year" which accompanies it, but where the wreaths are allowed to hang in the windows six days longer, the mother looked out with surprise at the other windows in the street on New Year's eve, noting that this was the only one which still held any vestige of the Christmas celebration. By New Year's day, Christmas apparently had been forgotten; everything was "set" for the future.

The little ceremonial observance of the old ideas is a pleasant thing for the children, and it helps a little, perhaps, to keep them mindful that they have resolved to be "kind and cheerful, like Jesus and Santa Claus," this year. But the swift action is, after all, the characteristically American procedure.

It is this forward look which gives America its youth, its vigor, its success. "Forgetting those things which are behind, stretching out for those things which are before," America and its people "press onward for the goal" of their high calling.

Christmas is enjoyed no less keenly, makes no less deep a mark because its greens and tissue paper have given way at once to the budget books and garden catalogues of the new year. By Twelfth Night America is marching full tilt towards the spring.

SCHOOL FRATERNITIES

Several national college fraternities have voted to bar from membership any student belonging to a high school fraternity.

This is probably the hardest blow that the latter have ever received. A high school student who intends to go to college generally hopes to join a college fraternity, and if membership in a preparatory school "frat" is going to disqualify him, he will think twice before joining it. This action of the college fraternities, too, is more convincing than many of the arguments heard against high school societies of this sort. The college men know what fraternity life is. They are more inclined to see its good features than its bad ones. If, then, they pronounce the high school fraternity bad, that comes pretty near to settling the question.

To the ordinary "societies" that spring up naturally in every enterprising set of high school students there can, of course, be no valid objection. The institution objected to is the secret society, with its exclusiveness, its assumed mystery and its meeting place or club quarters removed from official supervision, all tending to youthful temptation, irresponsibility and neglect of school work. Secret societies may be all right for grown-ups, but there is a very proper prejudice against them for boys or girls in their teens.

YOU AND CAESAR

"Caesar never conquered Gaul save as his legions marched behind him. Columbus never proved that one could reach the east by sailing into the west save by the aid of the crew which manned his little flotilla, and the shipwrights who built it, and the men who stocked it for the long voyage," says an editorial in the Ladies Home Journal.

If you don't like the general profiteering, stop your own little share. If you don't like the general idleness and vacuous talk and lack of accomplishment, turn to and do that little odd job in the office or the house which has been waiting a suitable opportunity. There are no suitable opportunities for odd jobs. Do it now.

Your example, slight as it is, may set your neighbor to thinking. He may do a bigger extra job than yours, or forge ahead to a greater opportunity. His example may move others, and the circle, ever widening, will work the miracle you have been aimlessly waiting for.

If you want congress to save money by a budget, start to run your own affairs that way. How do you know it will work if you have no experience.

There is a story of a great preacher who one day thanked the Lord that he had been able to convert so many to righteousness. "It was not your eloquence" said a voice to him. "It was the humble friar who sat on the pulpit step and prayed."

INDIA GIVEN CHANCE TO GOVERN SELF

British Offer of Home Rule Comes Across After Black Hole, Snuffed Out Lives of Prisoners.

In 1756 Siraj-ud-Daula, Nawab of Bengal, attacked the British in Calcutta, capturing the city and penning 146 English prisoners in what afterward came to be known as the Black Hole. Before morning all but 23 of the prisoners were dead.

The Black Hole horror strengthened the British military arm, and within a year the natives were driven to the hills. Bengal and Bihar were English captures, and the foundation of the British empire in India was laid.

Step by step, often accompanied by battles with natives, British rule was broadened throughout India. It was strengthened. It was made as near bullet proof, dagger proof, insurance proof, as it was possible for the British government to make it. British commercial rule went hand in hand with her political reign. Indian business had its headquarters in London, and the seat of India's government was in London.

From the first there was Indian opposition to British rule. This Indian nationalism expressed itself in various forms. Riots were numerous. British officers were assassinated and boycotts against British goods were instituted. British rule treated opposition with an iron hand. Indian agitators were imprisoned, deported and executed. Sedition meetings were prohibited, and stringent laws were enacted regulating the manufacture and sale of explosives. The criminal code was modified to permit secret trials without jury of these accused of treason.

It was not until the twentieth century that the English sought to meet opposition with conciliatory methods. They began the appointment of native Hindus to minor governmental offices. In 1905 the British parliament organized Indian legislative councils, to which, however, legislative functions were denied, being permitted only to pass upon budgets, and to criticize executive acts. This for a time quieted Indian discontent. But it soon flamed up again, and two days before Christmas, 1912, an attempt was made to assassinate the British viceroy.

Indian known history dates back to 2000 B. C. For 3000 years Hindus governed themselves and attained a stage of civilization far superior to any then existing in what is now Europe or America.

This was followed by 156 years of Mohammedan rule, which began with the overthrow of native princes by the Sultan Mahmud of Ghazni. Near the end of the Mohammedan period Europeans made their appearance in India. The Portuguese came by way of the Cape of Good Hope in 1498. They were followed by the Dutch, British and French.

THE BOYS IN THE OTHER CAR

Calcutta the largest city, has a population estimated at 1,500,000. Bombay, next in size, is about as large as Cleveland or Detroit. Madras and Hyderabad, third and fourth, have slightly over 500,000 each.

India's population is estimated at 325,000,000, nine tenths rural. The religion of two-thirds of the population is Hinduism or Brahmanism. Mohammedanism claims seventy million believers. There are ten million Buddhists, nearly all inhabitants of Burma. There are more than three million Christians, the result of British and American missionary efforts.

Before British rule came to India, education was limited to the so-called higher caste, the Brahman. The lower castes were held fit for hard labor only and deemed unfitted for education. British rule brought schools. Gradually the school system was extended to the lower castes, but even at this day less than one per cent of the population possesses an education equal to that of the American school child in the eighth grade.

India, better than any other country, sees the sharp distinction between classes of people and there, like in no other place, is it so impossible for a child of one class, or caste, to step into the next higher. "Once a laborer, always a laborer," for generation after generation for all time—that is the native India doctrine.

There are the very wealthy, the native rulers who hunt elephants in royal style, who live as kings in royal magnificence and who pride themselves on their wasteful extravagance; to whom the lives of a thousand natives of a lower caste mean less than that of a favorite hunting pony. These native princes often have purchased precious stones for royal favorites while at the time millions of natives were starving.

Famine is no new or strange word in India. In the last quarter of a century 18 famines killed 25,000,000 natives. It was while millions were starving and while the bubonic plague was slaying other hundreds of thousands that the native princes staged the great Durbar at Delhi, a combined British-Indian reception at which the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall represented the emperor and empress of India.

William Dwyer of London, long a resident in India, wrote a book entitled "Prosperous India," in which he called attention to the fact that while the average daily income of the people of India in 1850 was estimated at four cents per person, it had fallen to two cents per person in 1906.

M'ADDO ASSAILS REPUBLICAN RECORD

Declares Democratic Victory Assured if Leadership is What in Its Attitude.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—In a telegram from Wichita Falls, Texas, read tonight at the Jackson day banquet, William G. McAdoo, assailed the work of the republican congress as a "sorry record of dismal failure," and declared the success of democracy in the presidential election this year was inevitable if leadership was wise, vision undistorted and sympathy with the masses preserved.

"Republican leadership has demonstrated startling incapacity to deal with the great problems confronting America and the world," Mr. McAdoo's message read. "Nine months of republican leadership discloses no constructive, humanitarian or statesman-like act."

"Pence defeated, war prolonged and hundreds of thousands of needless deaths inflicted upon helpless children, women and men in Europe—a ghastly tool to exact for partisan political ends."

"The railroad problem bungled and the promise of a real or permanent solution through bills now in conference. The public interest is not protected, while increased rates, inefficient transportation and general dissatisfaction will result."

"War taxes have not been reduced as they should have been if republican leadership had proven equal to the task."

"The great problems of international finance have not been grasped. The important questions of social justice which cry aloud for attention find no spokesman or champion among the republican leaders."

"We must keep up the fight for the prompt restoration of peace through out the world. Democratic leadership must seek to bring about reduction of war taxes, effective treatment of pressing international, financial and economic questions, sympathetic and vigorous consideration of the problems of social justice, constructive effort to improve relations between labor and capital."

"We must strive earnestly to promote the welfare of our soldiers and sailors whose valor and patriotism saved the nation, and we must not stop until equal civil and political rights are secured for American women in every state."

"Conscienceless profiteering must be resisted by every lawful means. We must adhere to the democratic principle of the largest measure of governmental non-interference in the legitimate affairs of the people."

"We must stand for the vigorous protection of the just rights of American citizens in every foreign land."

LITTLE ROCK BUYS PLAYER.

HERRMANN QUILTS AS COMMISSION HEAD

Will Step Down From His Office February 11—Surprise to Fans.

By the Associated Press. CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8.—August Herrmann, for more than 16 years chairman of the National baseball commission, has resigned. His resignation, which was presented at the annual meeting of the commission here today, is to take effect at the earliest possible date, not later than the joint meeting of the National and American leagues, called for February 11, in Chicago.

The announcement was made in a written communication addressed to B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, and John A. Heydler, president of the National league, who, with Herrmann, compose the commission. Herrmann said he could no longer serve as head of the body any longer after the joint meeting of the two major leagues. Nothing was given out at the close of the executive meeting to indicate what prompted Herrmann to tender his resignation. It had been reported that Heydler had been instructed by National league club owners not to vote for the re-election of Herrmann, but Johnson was known to be friendly to him and to desire that he continue at the head of the commission.

The action by Herrmann undoubtedly came as a big surprise to his associates on the commission and certainly to the baseball authorities who were expected to Cincinnati by the meeting.

This was because in his annual report submitted earlier in the day, and which was approved by the other members, Herrmann strongly advised against making any change or reorganization of the commission. "I have based this view upon the fact that the club owners were not agreed on what should be done, and because a United States court decision in the Baltimore federal league club suit had held the commission illegal."

John E. Bruce, of Cincinnati, secretary-treasurer of the baseball commission, announced that he did not wish to serve in that office if Herrmann was not re-elected as chairman. Outside of minor cases the commission confined itself to a discussion of alleged baseball gambling. It was said that these charges would be allowed up in a thorough manner and threatened suit to the satisfaction of the baseball public.

BOLSHEVISM ATTACKED BY GENERAL PERSHING

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 7.—"The time has come for activities against these dangerous growths known as anarchy and Bolshevism," General Pershing said here tonight at a public meeting. He declared persons engaged in the objectionable activities should either be converted or deported, and suggested that education possibly might do much toward changing the attitude of many not friendly to the government. The meaning of the constitution first should be taught. "While he believed there will be days of unrest, General Pershing declared he is confident the patriotic citizens and those who fought in the world war will stand and wisely solve the problems as they come up."

The general paid a tribute to Iowa's troops, and also spoke highly of the American Legion.

Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Activity on the part of exporters together with unfavorable advice on the car situation led to material upturns today in the corn market. The close was unsettled. 1/2c to 1 1/2c net higher. May 13 1/2c to 13 3/4c and July 13 1/2c to 13 3/4c; oats gained 1/4c to 1/2c. The finish in provisions was unchanged to 25c up.

Seaboard export concerns outbid Chicago dealers who were reaching after corn in Illinois and Iowa. This fact greatly impressed the bulls, and no likewise did the knowledge that many of the cars unloaded at elevators here showed urgent need of repairs. It was said that efforts to distribute government wheat to mills were at the expense of the corn movement. Over night advances in the price of flour and hogs tended further to give strength to corn. Besides, wheat and rye sold at the highest level yet this season. Profit taking, though, on the part of holders of corn, brought about considerable of a setback at the last.

Export demand gave independent strength to oats. Moreover, sellers appeared nervous owing to scantiness of stocks and to our scarcity. The provisions market was firm in sympathy with higher quotations on hogs and grain. Liberal shipments of packing house products were noted.

STEEL STRIKE IS OFFICIALLY ENDED

Walkout Commenced in September Brought to Close by Union's National Committee.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 8.—The strike in the steel mills and furnaces called September 22, and which at its inception involved 257,000 men, was officially called off tonight by the national committee.

The announcement was contained in a telegram sent to the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor in Washington, to the heads of all international unions interested and to the organizers and field men in all strike districts.

The telegram was signed by John Fitzpatrick, chairman; Chas. J. Davis, vice president, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers; Edward J. Evans, International Union of Electrical Workers; William H. Brown, International Union of Machinists; and William Z. Foster, secretary of the committee.

Mr. Fitzpatrick declined to discuss the action of the committee, but Secretary Foster said:

"The strike has encouraged the steel trade unions to redouble their efforts. It has been proved that the men in the steel industry can be organized and they have secured the confidence of men in other unions."

The offices of the committee here will be maintained for about a month while the business of the strike is being wound up, and the commissary department will continue to look after needy former strikers and their families until the men have obtained employment. When this work is done, Mr. Foster said, offices for the organization of the steel trades will be opened here.

Plans for this work, Mr. Foster added, have already been formed and include meetings in steel towns, publication of a bulletin with a circulation of 150,000 weekly, and personal canvass among the men.

Reviewing the strike, Mr. Foster said that it had its inception at St. Paul in 1918 and he was called in as secretary of the committee then formed to organize the steel trades. All preliminary work was completed and the strike called September 22 last. Nine states were affected and 257,000 quit work. Steel company executives said they were not surprised that the strike had been called off, as the strikers have been drifting back to work for several months. Many mills, it was added, had long been able to operate full time with full forces, the principal trouble being the lack of common labor, which formed the backbone of the strike.

TWO LEADERS SPLIT OVER PARTY ISSUE

term for himself and neither did he make any formal announcement of his intended retirement to private life as some had forecast he would. Mr. Bryan said nothing tearing on any ambitions toward a fourth presidential nomination, although it was widely predicted he would.

There were a dozen or more other speakers at the dinners and their views on whether the league should be made a campaign issue were either divided in favor of the president or Mr. Bryan or else they did not touch on the subject at all.

Chief of Speeches.
The gist of their speeches might easily be epitomized in this fashion: Senator Owen: Ratify the treaty with or without reservations.

Former Secretary McAdoo: An arrangement of republican administration, but no expression about the league.

Secretary Daniels: Mr. Bryan is entitled to credit for the league of nations treaty because his peace investigation conventions were the ground work for it.

Senator Hitchcock: Honorable compromise on the league question, a flesh fight.

Senator Owen: Immediate ratification, and proceed with reconstruction legislation.

Chairman Cummings: "Invincible impulse" are carrying the democratic party each day nearer and nearer to victory."

Governor Cornwell of West Virginia: American institutions are in danger of being overthrown by the unchecked growth of a higher authority.

Vice Chairman Kromer: "We accept the game of battle."

Governor Cox of Ohio: "The old guard is in control of the party (republican) which it will well wrecked by its greed."

Attorney General Palmer: "The war will not be over, in fact until the issues which it has raised are passed upon by the great court of appeals in America and the judgment of the people is entered."

Former Ambassador Gerard: The country demands that both sides get together, that a compromise be made and peace given to the world."

Former Speaker Clark: Democratic accomplishments during the last six years entitled the party to a long lease of power."

Two Meetings Necessary.

The host of democrats on hand for dinner had swamped the available accommodations of any one hotel in town and the party was divided into two dinners at two separate hotels a block apart. National chairman Cummings presided at one and Vice Chairman Kromer at the other. The dining rooms were packed, tickets were at a premium and there were many disappointed ones who had to content themselves with awaiting their turn at the doors.

Both dinners began with toasts drunk to the health of President Wilson, the guests elevating goblets of cotinane river water.

Speak At Both Meetings.

The same set of speakers addressed both dinners, going from one to the other in various order. At some time during the evening both parties of diners were addressed by Senator Hitchcock, Governor Cornwell of West Virginia, Governor Cox of Ohio, James W. Gerard, Senator Underwood, Secretary Daniels, Former Speaker Champ Clark, Attorney General Clegg, Mr. Olsen, Senator Pomerene, Senator Kromer and William J. Bryan. Former Secretary McAdoo's telegram and President Wilson's message were read to each.

Everyone Is Excited.

Everybody at both places was buzzing with suppressed excitement to know what President Wilson and Mr. Bryan were going to say. There were rumors of a split in sentiment between the president and his former secretary of state over the peace treaty question and the air seemed to be full of electricity.

When Chairman Cummings in his opening speech declared, "tonight we invoke the militant spirit of Andrew Jackson," there was a roar of applause and cheers, and another when he declared the democrats looked forward to the campaign of 1920 with the utmost confidence. Led by representative Hiram of Alabama, the diners rose and cheer the chairman's reference to President Wilson's "wise leadership."

"Our Cause Is Sacred," he said, "and the contest is but the measuring of our own spirits. For the present, we are enduring with what patience we may, an interlude of republican inactivity. The American people have paid, and are still paying, a staggering penalty for the election of a republican house and senate in November, 1918. Since that time all the processes of government have been impaired, the work of reconstruction has been delayed, the development and extension of American business has been prevented and the peace of the world has been imperiled."

"Contrasted with their patent impotence we place our unparalleled record, in peace and in war, enriched by a leadership which has carried America to greater heights of prosperity and honor and success than she has ever known."

Chief Wilson's Message.

There was not a sound in the dining hall when Chairman Cummings began reading President Wilson's letter but there was vigorous cheering at the first reference to failure of the senate to ratify the peace treaty.

Another and greater outburst greeted the president's statement that personally he did not accept the action of the senate in failing to ratify, as the decision of the nation.

"The Gang's All Here."

Everybody stood at the conclusion of the reading and cheered. "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" was sung. "Hail" started the diners up again, the demonstration equalling several minutes.

At the other banquet hall, Vice Chairman Kromer's first mention of President Wilson's name brought the diners to their feet cheering, and the reading of the president's message frequently was interrupted by cheering and rebel yells.

Attorney General Palmer declared that the president, in his letter, had "put his finger on the raw spot in our body politic at this hour."

"The hope of peace," he said, "has been blasted by the judgments of men who hold their political fortunes above the world's need."

Hitchcock First Speaker.

Senator Hitchcock, first of the favorite sons to speak, declared the republican party would not attempt to repeat democratic law.

When Senator Hitchcock declared that "if the republicans throw this treaty in the next campaign, we are ready to take up the gauntlet," the diners shouted approval.

Declaring the women voters eventually would give the democratic party credit for securing woman suffrage, Mrs. Olsen said suffrage workers had won the reputation for the ballot ever since the Civil war, but not get until the democrats came into power.

Governor Cornwell brought a laugh at the outset of his address by remarking "I have no desire in the regrettable absence of our president to sound a keynote or seize a party organization, and I hope this will relieve some of the other democrats here tonight."

Attack Adamson Law.

The governor said he was satisfied that "passage of the Adamson eight-hour law was an unfortunate event." "I have stood for the basic eight-hour law," he said, "but I feel it is wrong for congress to legislate wages and hours of labor."

The diners gave the governor a tremendous ovation and it was several minutes before he could proceed. When he concluded he was surrounded by democrats seeking to congratulate him.

During the cheering of Governor Cornwell word spread that Mr. Bryan was coming, and there was a general craning of necks, but Chairman Cummings introduced Governor Cox of Ohio, a favorite son, and cheering broke out anew.

At the conclusion of Governor Cox's address Attorney General Palmer entered the hall from the other banquet room and was greeted with applause, which was renewed when Chairman Cummings announced he would read a telegram from William J. Bryan. At the other banquet room former Ambassador Gerard was speaking. He said the world was crying for peace and that if no reservations to the peace treaty could be agreed upon "we should adopt the peace treaties of William Jennings Bryan."

Underwood Not Candidate.

Senator Underwood, who announced today that he was not a candidate for president, said it was wise to remember that the democratic party, through its long history, had never entered a campaign for the mere purpose of victory or for winning the spoils of office. It lived because it stood for certain fundamental principles, he added.

"There is one issue that the democratic party will carry to the country this year," he declared.

"The president has defied it beyond recall. The democrats stand for reservations that do not destroy the covenant. There is but one course—to take the issue to the country for another congress to determine."

Palmer Makes Issue.

Too much evidence as to America's part in the war has been submitted, Attorney General Palmer said, for the case to be withdrawn from the jury now.

"The great war is still a living fact," he said. "The hopes of the world for peace have been blasted by the judgments of men who hold the political fortunes above the world's need. The war will not be over in fact, even if in name until the issues which it has raised are passed upon by the great court of appeals in America and the judgment of the people is entered."

"The record which has led to the house of the war was written by the democratic party. Even that record we shall stand. The part which the republican leaders have chosen to play has been merely to criticize our methods, belittle our achievements, investigate our victories and rob America and the world of their fruits. Let them stand alone upon the record. They laid at our door America's unpreparedness. It may be true that in the narrow military sense we were not ready. But the war fought not by armies, but by nations."

Relinquing the offer of $10,000 made by the republicans for the best platform, Mr. Palmer declared that if the opposition stood upon its record, the platform would be composed of planks promising to "undo all that the democratic party has done."

Mr. Cummings declared that "invincible impulse" were at work "carrying us each day nearer and nearer to victory."

Owen Predicts Agreement.

Senator Owen predicted that an agreement on the treaty would be reached in the senate with reservations that would not "do serious harm to the treaty."

He said he sympathized with President Wilson's position for, in view of the chief executive's pledge to the foundations of the league of nations covenant through the arbitration treaties negotiated by him as secretary of state.

In view of published reports that the three times nominee of the democrats for the presidency again applied to lead the party in a campaign, Mr. Daniels' statement created one of the most interesting moments of the dinner.

"The declaration (of independence) and the covenant (of the league of nations)," the secretary said, "are the two living light foundations of liberty and peace. It is the glory of the democratic party that through Jefferson and Wilson we have given those foundations for all time for safe navigation upon all seas."

Former Speaker Clark reviewed the accomplishments of the democratic administration, saying it had put more constructive legislation on the statute books in six years than the republicans had in the quarter of a century preceding.

Introduced as the law and order governor of West Virginia, Governor Cornwell in delivering his address at the other banquet hall was given a second ovation.

"You've been friendly to labor, but he fair to the American people who are not organized," he said amid prolonged cheering.

Hitchcock Will Push.

In his second speech, Senator Hitchcock referred to reports of his candidacy and remarked that he was like the visitor in Scotland traveling on a third-class ticket who was required to get out of the stage coach and help push it over the hill.

"It's that way with me," he declared, "for in this fight I expect to get out and push."

In his second speech, Mr. Bryan said present democratic banquets were far different from those of past years, a "mighty change having taken place since the bums retired and the women took their place."

Mr. Bryan, the last speaker of the night, said he was glad to follow the active politicians, but felt "like the superannuated minister to whom the preachers used to turn with a request that he pronounce the benediction."

Were there no other considerations, he said, he would be glad to sit down "and let this end as a love feast."

"But I have passed the age," he added, "when I'm soliciting your favor, and I'm not so much interested in what may happen to myself as I am in winning the fight that is before us."

Mr. Bryan said he was in perfect accord with the president's course in going to Paris because he was fighting "single-handed and alone against the selfish interests of the world."

Amid applause some one yelled "hurray for the president" and there was a confused cry "hurray for the president" and "hurray for Bryan."

"I believe it is the duty of the democratic party today," said Mr. Bryan, "to get the best compromise it can and let the republicans bear the responsibility if peace does not come."

Mr. Bryan said he had been "do-lighted" with the efforts of Attorney General Palmer to put the proffitor out of business.

He said the democratic party could provide a better solution than anti-strike legislation for the labor problem. He suggested a system of tribunals for settlement of labor disputes.

Relinquishing his belief in government ownership of railroads, Mr. Bryan concluded by suggesting a system by which the big national system would be operated by the federal government with the states operating the smaller lines.

Although the banquet did not end until 2:30 a. m. practically all of the diners remained until the finish.

AERIAL MAIL SERVICE.

OMAHA TO THE EAST

OMAHA, Jan. 8.—Air mail service between Omaha and the east was established today when Walter J. Smith arrived here from Chicago.

With an airplane loaded with first class mail, Smith established a record of 255 minutes flying time and arrived in Omaha one hour ahead of schedule. Farr Nutter met with misfortune in the flight east and was forced to land 37 miles east of Des Moines, on account of engine trouble.

Smith made the journey from Chicago to Iowa City in 105 minutes and from Iowa City to Omaha in 125 minutes. The distance by air from Chicago to Omaha is 440 miles. Smith averaged 111.6 miles per hour for the entire distance.

LOCAL DEMOCRATS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Many Plan to Make Trip to City of Quixotes Next June.—May Charter Car.

When word reached Twin Falls to the effect that the democratic national convention will be held in San Francisco, local democrats were quick to plan a trip to the city of quixotes for the event.

One party has already been arranged for. This party will consist of James L. Bothwell, Thomas M. Robertson, Asher B. Wilson, W. Orr Chapman and R. H. Stevenson. The party will probably motor through if the roads are in good condition. Otherwise, the trip will be made by rail. Other parties will no doubt be organized, and Twin Falls county will probably have representation by nearly a hundred of the faithful.

The suggestion made last night provides for a party large enough to charter a sleeper to be parked at Price's, there to be occupied by the members of the party during the week of the convention. If this plan is adopted, the gentlemen named above may abandon their plan for an automobile trip and enter this larger crowd of unfettered enthusiasts.

Postmaster M. A. Stronk, Former Sheriff Frank M. Kendall and probably representatives from both the Filer and Ingham are expected to join the party if a car be chartered.

NEEDLESS SACRIFICE OF TROOPS, CLAIM

General Sherburne Says Lives Lost Armistice Day Because Orders To Attack Not Revoked.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Lives of American troops were needlessly sacrificed on armistice morning because the American high command at Chaumont did not specifically revoke previously issued orders to attack, Dr. Gen. J. H. Sherburne, of Boston, former commander of the artillery brigade of the Ninety-second (negro) division, today told a house subcommittee. General Sherburne strongly condemned the methods of what he referred to as the "general staff gaud" at Chaumont, criticizing particularly a "dominating triumvirate."

Corps, division and brigade commanders stood in such "pitiful fear" of the Chaumont staff that they did not dare, in most cases, to revoke on their own authority the order to attack on November 11, even though they knew it was a moral certainty that an armistice had been signed.

"The order to attack stood," said General Sherburne, "and the only other order that came through relative to armistice operations, that I even knew of, was an order that 'at 11 a. m. November 11 a hostilities must cease.' No commanding officer could possibly interpret that as a cancellation of the previous order enjoining for an attack during the morning of the 11th. Most units fought right up to 11 o'clock, some of them against machine gun operations. A few commanding officers did risk court-martial and hold back, but they did it on their own responsibility entirely."

The general staff system, the general declared, dominated the entire army and kept commanding officers from corps commanders down in perpetual fear of being sent to the rear in disgrace.

CONNOR REPLIES TO CHARGE.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 8.—Replying to the reported assertion of Brig. Gen. John H. Sherburne, a national guard officer of Boston, before a house investigating committee that "responsibility for the loss of American lives through attacks ordered on armistice day should be charged to American headquarters," Brig. Gen. Fox Connor, member of General Pershing's staff and chief of operations in the American expeditionary forces, said that General Sherburne's idea of the war appeared to coincide with that held by many other persons, namely "that the war ended before it ended."

"Marshal Foch had issued orders that all attacks already begun should be pressed on that day. The allies could not afford to take any chances. We were placing our armies in the best possible position in the event Germany failed to sign."

"As for the attack in which General Sherburne and the Ninety-second division, to which he was attached, participated, that attack was launched at 5 a. m. November 11, just one hour before American general headquarters had been informed that the armistice was signed. The signing took place at the exact moment of the Ninety-second's attack."
