MANY UNUSUAL EFFECTS OF STORM ARE REPORTED

Freight Cars, Occupied by Women, Moved 200 Feet.

Occupants Are Uninjured.

By the Associated Press. SHINGFIELD, Mo., March 11.—Eleven persons are known to be dead, two missing and eight injured as the result of a tornado which swept through the valley of Turkey Creek near Branson and Hollister, in Taney county today.

William Fox lost four children killed and his brother three, in addition the wives of both men received injuries from which it is believed they cannot recover.

Mrs. Alva Howard and child living at Melva were killed instantly and William Jackson, living five miles southeast of Branson is dead. The sisters of Jackson were missing but were found later, one seriously injured. John Gross and his wife, living on a farm near Ocala, north of Branson, were blown away with their home and no trace has been found of either the house or its occupants.

See Broader Die.

Roadway Manky was carried 1,000 feet from his home at Melva, and when he regained consciousness on the opposite bank of Turkey creek, he saw his young brother, William, struggling in the water. He was too weak to give aid. Later the body of the brother was discovered down stream. The bodies of the Fox children, according to reports received here, were taken from Turkey creek, which had been swollen to large proportions by incessant rains last night and early today. Because of the rains roads were impassible, and there was no school in most localities today. Consequently, many children who were playing away from home, are believed to have been caught unawares by the storm and injured.

Sweeps Many Towns.

The storm was not confined to Melva alone. Reports of homes carried away, buildings destroyed and children injured continued to pour into the center of the stricken area tonight. The storms swept through a district including Melva, Kirbyville, Taneyville, Mildred, Ocala, Foreyston and Branson, although not so fiercely in the last two towns.

The entire area is well known to thousands of tourists who annually visit the Ozark region, which is known as the "Shepherd of the Hills" country.

Reports of the unusual effects of the storm were numerous tonight. A stock train of homes carried away from Branson and on which the wives of six workmen lived, was moved 200 feet down the track and the cars uncoupled, but none of the occupants were hurt.

The hotel at Melva was practically demolished, while six women were seated near the fireplace. Falling bricks, plaster and windows struck but one of these women, and she was not seriously injured.

WAGE COMMISSION IS DIVIDED IN REPORT

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 11.—The commission appointed by President Wilson to settle the coal strike has split definitely on the question of wage increases and hours of work.

The majority, Henry Robinson, chairman of the commission representing the public, and Lombard Pease, representing the operators, in a report submitted to President Wilson today, is understood to have recommended a general wage increase of approximately 25 per cent and that hours of labor remain unchanged.

John P. White, representing the miners, refused to concur. He is preparing a minority report in which it is reported that he will recommend a seven-hour day and a wage increase of approximately 35 per cent.

In advance of the publication of the two reports officials of the United Mine Workers of America would not discuss the probable course of the strike. Since the representative of the commission had refused to accept the majority decision, however, it was regarded as certain that they would not accept the settlement it proposes.

MANY ENJOY REVIVAL OF SPUD FEAST

Evening's Entertainment Featured by New and Varied Stunts by Legionnaires.

"SAMPLES" BIG HIT WITH THE BANQUETTERS

Taylor • Cummins, Graham, Sweeley and Others Speak. Hal G. Blue is Excellent Toastmaster.

With cheers and applause for stunts and for speakers, with music and enthusiasm, with spirit and with pride, Twin Falls men, under direction of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, last night revived the Potato Spud Feast.

Two hundred thirty sat upon the board. Two hundred thirty sat upon the floor. Two hundred thirty sat upon the stage. Two hundred thirty sat upon the platform. Two hundred thirty sat upon the balcony. Two hundred thirty sat upon the gallery. Two hundred thirty sat upon the roof.

Not An Idle Moment

There was not an idle moment. With spirit and with good humor, every feature of the program was carried out, that before 10 o'clock good night was said.

Examples' Points Hit

To the American Legion boys was assigned the task of entertainment. There was farce, there was comedy, there was extravaganza and there was music. A session of the city council brought the dinner to a realization because the action "Samples" on the program. From the moment the impersonated mayor called the meeting to order till final adjournment of the august body, there was lit following bit, all a scream, carried out in extravagant style, but without bitterness. There were some hits, some most prominent citizens in harmony, quizzed songs with local application, and then a meeting of the Highway District Board, which brought the house.

Hal G. Blue, as toastmaster, kept things moving with ease. His talks were full of good information, timely and his good humor infectious.

The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Newell S. Wight, was introduced and happily waived aside the opportunity to make a speech, contenting himself with the statement that he might, might say to be a "Twin Falls" man.

Taylor Cummins presented the invitation for help in the entertainment of the American Legion convention to be held in Twin Falls next month. He pointed out that Idaho is fifth state in the union in point of Legion membership, with over six thousand ex-servicemen enrolled under the banners of the organization. Of this number Twin Falls county, he pointed out, has one tenth. He bespoke for the guests of the city next month that royalty of hospitality which has brought fame to Twin Falls and pledged to talk of the love for the old town which again brings him to membership in our citizenry. Lifting one of the potato spud cards, he discussed the problems which come to the grower of spuds—the problems of marketing in any era influenced by freight rates. Eight thousand cars of spuds are shipped from Idaho each season. Given a fair freight rate and an even break in the market with competing states, and Idaho, he declared, would ship 80,000 cars per season. He detailed the differential in freight rates and emphasized the need for activity on the part of commercial bodies of the state in effort for an equalization of these rates. He was repeatedly interrupted with applause.

Toastmaster Blue told of SHOE PROFITS.

One of the most grievous factors of the recent high cost of living is the price of shoes. Everytime this subject is brought up, the shoe trade, from top to bottom, insists that there is no exorbitant profit in its wares—that current prices are unavoidable, on account of the high cost of labor and material.

Against this blanket denial may be set a report recently made of the business done in the last five years by a manufacturing concern in New York state which is said to be the largest producer of shoes in the world.

According to figures submitted, this company in 1915 made $2,174,340 net profit, which was 8.3 per cent of its gross sales. In 1916 its gross sales increased, and likewise its rate of profit, so that it made $3,669,797, or 10.6 per cent. In 1917 it made practically the same percentage of net profit on a still larger volume of sales. In 1918 its net profit dropped to 8.3 per cent on its sales, but the volume of production was so much greater that the profit amount to $4,398,187, more than twice what it had been in 1915. Then came 1919, the year in which the shoe industry was especially insistent that it was not making more than its share of profit. In that year the gross sales rose to $62,713,039, nearly three times what they had been in 1915; and the net profit rose to $9,731,580, representing a jump of 15.6 per cent of the gross sales.

When a manufacturer not only increases his production so enormously as these figures indicate, but at the same time takes nearly twice as high a percentage of profit on all he produces, it requires no business expert to tell whether or not it is a case of profiteering. It remains only to be shown whether the case is typical of shoe manufacturers in general, and to what extent this big producer's profit is multiplied by middlemen and dealers in being passed on to the consumer.

DO THEY WANT A BONUS?

One wonders how generally former service men agree with the testimony of Walter W. Burns of Green Point, N. Y., before the house ways and means committee, in the matter of relief legislation.

Burns maintains that "a money hand-out would simply be thrown away." He explains that hardly any former soldiers or sailors are without employment, that he is a member of the American Legion, and knows that many members are opposed to the demand now made in the Legion's name; that service men for the most part have thought little about the bonus question and do not know the effect that such a payment would have on national finances and taxation; and that so far as reward is concerned, the satisfaction of having fought to defend the country is enough; that "those who need a bonus would squander it, and those who don't would put it in a bank."

Somewhat corroborative is the statement of Representative Garner of Texas, that not one former service man in his district has written in favor of the proposed relief. It would be illuminating to know how the matter stands in other congressional districts.

Inquiry almost everywhere reveals the fact that many ex-soldiers are opposed to a "bonus", feeling that such payment would lower their self-respect. But there is no sure indication of how widespread the feeling is. It would be well if a referendum could be taken. What the majority of the service men voted for would not necessarily settle the matter, but it would help the public to make up its mind as to the propriety of any such payment.

GOOD SCHOOLS WORTH THE COST.

It is frequently charged that the chief reason why public schools in nearly every community are so far behind the need in teachers, teachers' salaries, buildings and equipment is that the average citizen is so indifferent or selfish that he refuses to foot the bill for improving conditions.

When the question was put up to Lexington, Ky., in just that way, and the citizens saw themselves as they appeared to others—more interested in the care of live stock and property than in their children—they promptly and cheerfully voted a $400,000 bond issue to start improvements.

In spite of former indifference and lack of necessary funds, Lexington had an up-to-date program for its schools, and has already laid the foundations of a progressive school system. There are open-air schools; penny lunches; a community center school with swimming pool, showers and auditorium; manual training and domestic economy classes for certain grades in all the schools; opportunity classes for irregular children; a junior high school, and buildings open to use of citizens. One feature in particular distinguishes Lexington from most southern cities. That is the lack of discrimination in school facilities between negro and white children.

Many a city looking over its own school record might feel that it had a long way to go before it could show itself as progressive as Lexington. If the Kentucky city now backs its good beginnings with ample funds for further improvements it may yet redeem its former poor record and lead the way for cities of its population in an effort to approach the Twin Falls standard.

FOOD IN SEASON.

A market gardener living near one of the large cities asks why people always hanker after high-priced imported food containing little nourishment while the markets have for sale lower-priced home-grown articles of much greater dietary value. He instances the demand of cucumbers, tomatoes and strawberries, just coming into the markets, which are abnormally high and not at their best in quality, but are finding a ready sale, while the grocers find it almost impossible to sell their remaining winter vegetables, such as parsnips, turnips and squashes, although these are of first quality, high in nutriment and comparatively low in price.

Of course the principle reason for the demand for the luxurious types of food about which the complaint is made is that people are tired of the heavier diet of winter and long for the lighter, fresher foods. But the point of extravagance is there. It is possible to have a varied diet of easily digested foods without turning from the vegetables and fruits which are in season to those which are not.

Certainly economy and a fair regard for the home producer, who must dispose of his stuff if he is to be encouraged to grow more, indicate the more practical method of buying for the table.

A lot of Chinese railroad workers have been holding up trains by committing suicide on the track. Reminds us, somehow, that maybe some of the statesmen at Washington are committing political suicide to obstruct the peace treaty.

PERU HAS FISH TO FEED ENTIRE WORLD

Curator of National Science Returns With Report of Many Wonders.

NEW YORK — Peru's coastal waters are teeming with enough fish to feed the world and her islands are all veritable bird sanctuaries, according to Robert Cushman Murphy, curator of natural science of the Brooklyn museum, just returned from six months' exploration in South America with 500 photographs and 10,000 feet of motion picture film. Mr. Murphy said that on one island he found "the most abundant seabird life on earth" as many as 400,000 feathered creatures of a single species.

The fisheries of Peru, he said, are unorganized and, although fish are plentiful, including such edible varieties as the bonito anchoveta, pejeray or snail, the conger (somewhat like a eel), the flounder and sea bream comparable to the American salmon, Peruvians literally "go hungry" because of their scarcity and high price inland due to the problems of icing and transportation.

A few miles off the coast, the returned explorer said, he laid down a net and drew it out of the sea filled with four varieties of the most delicious edible crabs. These crabs, he said, would furnish the basis for a big canning industry, both for home and foreign consumption, vast quantities of such seafood now being annually imported by the United States from Japan.

"The wonderful fish and bird life of Peru," Mr. Murphy attributed to the Humboldt current, a cold body of oceanic water which flows along 2,800 miles of coast. He made many observations of this current, he said, following those of Alexander Agassiz and Dr. Robert F. Coker of the United States Fish commission, planners of such work. Although Peru's proximity to the equator, he said, would cause some to suppose that it might have a temperature like that of Florida, its actual temperature was more like that of Boston. "The result of the interesting correlation between the Humboldt current and the abundance of fish and bird life," he said, "has been covered in more than 500 pages of data. He also brought with him sixteen cases and cages in many of which are specimens of curious marine and feathered creatures.

Mr. Murphy called attention to the guano for fertilizer deposits of Peru, which he said, may be doubted by the conservation methods devised by Francisco Dallen, a Peruvian, who is described as "one of the most far-sighted and able economists in the world." In furtherance of Mr. Dallen's plans, the explorer said, he advocated increasing the breeding area of the guano producing birds, at present confined to fifteen islands, the largest of which are the Chinchi and Labon, and where deposits of fertilizer 150 feet in thickness have been found. The value of the guano deposits, he said, was also due to the Humboldt current, the cold winds from which, blowing over the arid land, preserved the fertilization qualities of the bird manure. Mr. Murphy, whose work was aided by the Peruvian government, said the islands might be entered by dynamiting the cliffs into the sea. He also urged the stoppage of guano gathering during the "courtship" of the birds. The guano, he said, is dug by natives in the interior of the islands and carried in small railway cars to the coast where it is put aboard ships. Exportation of the fertilizer, he said, was being held up on account of high ocean freight rates. The guano birds were enumerated by Mr. Murphy as the white breasted cormorant, (commercially worth $15 a pair in Lima); the pelican and two species of gannet. By actual computation of the nests of some of these birds per metre on one of these islands he estimated that more than a million of that one species inhabited it. Mr. Murphy said that the ancient Incas of Peru highly prized the guano birds and penalized with death anyone who killed one. Many of the motion picture films he brought back, he said, showed the life history of the seabirds as well as the guano fisheries and the guano industry.

In the period of 1840 to 1908, Mr. Murphy said, many of the birds were killed off and it is only in recent years that efforts have been made to conserve this important resource of Peru. President Leguia, and other prominent men, he said, have encouraged foreign scientific men to visit Peru for the purpose of ascertaining the best conservation methods. A steam tractor and two launchers were placed at Mr. Murphy's disposal upon his arrival at Lima, and from there he conducted his researches and experiments. Guano, he said, is the best fertilizer known for sugar cane and before the war vast quantities of it were shipped to the United States through Charleston, S. C. Peru heretofore not only for growing sugar cane, but for rice and cotton.

Ocean freight rates, Mr. Murphy said, might be affected by the competition which has sprung up since the close of the war. Within the last six months, he said, eight or nine steamship lines—Dutch, French, Italian, British, and American—are now stopping at Peruvian ports. As an instance of recent freight costs, Mr. Murphy cited the case of a Curacao airplane occupying a crate not much larger than would be required for an automobile and upon which the charges were $500. Mr. Murphy, who is 34 years old and a graduate of Brown university, is a director of the explorers' club. His expedition to Peru was aided financially by the American Museum of Natural History and the American Geographical society.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF MAN FOUND NEAR TRACKS

By the Associated Press. BLAIR, Neb., March 10.—A man apparently about 30 years of age and carrying a registration card bearing the name of "Henry Eugene McNally, Kenosha, Wis.," was found early today at the railroad station here in a dying condition. He died 20 minutes after being removed to a hospital. It is thought death was caused by poisoning. When the man came to Blair or how long he had been at the station is not known. IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat Also, Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast.

Your back in need excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys stop you must help them flush out the body's various waste or seek for a real salt person. At first you feel a dull ache in the kidney region, and suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach pain, sour, tongue coated and you feel chemic-like twinges when the weather is bad.

Get less meat, drink lots of water; also get a real salt person. At the coming of J. J. Salts, take a table-spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for 30 years to clean aged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. J. J. Salts is irreplaceable, caused in-

SEEKING TO BAN ALIENS FROM STATE

Build Chamber of Commerce Passes Resolutions Urging Action by Legislature.

BOISE, March 11.—At a meeting of the chamber of commerce this afternoon resolutions were adopted urging the governor and state legislature to frame laws that will prohibit the leasing and owning of lands by aliens. The resolution also seeks to forbid through legislation, the residence of aliens within the state.

The resolution recites that "the alien is an undesirable resident of this or any other community; is a menace to the welfare of the country and its people and is objectionable as a neighbor because of his low standard of morality and acknowledged lack of appreciation of the high American ideals"; and that "whereas the steps taken by the United States government have failed in their purpose because of a too gratuitous and magnanimous attitude which savors of a lack of knowledge of the real harm being inflicted upon the powerful future affect of an influx of this character in great proportion and anticipating seriously the terrible industries of placing our territory as immediate neighbors to and competitors with these undesirable aliens who threaten the power of the nation by their ever increasing numbers, the crushing influence of the yellow peril"; it is resolved "that every possible precaution be exercised to prevent the coming into the community of any individual, firm or corporation which permits itself to be the employer of this class of character of labor."

The woman with tender skin dreads March because it is likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Get an ounce from your druggist and brush the freckles. Money back if it fails.—ADV.
