Eight families, the police declared, had been turned out when Mayor Testerman approached Albert Felts, the leader of the detectives and wanted to know by what authority their action was taken and by what authority they had arrested one of the miners.

Most of the men were employed by the Stone Mountain Coal company, whose mines form the principal industry of the community. Several weeks ago it became known that efforts were being made to unionize the mines, and two of them were closed.

WILLARD CONFIDENT OF RAIL OPERATION

Believes That Future Successful Operation Is Assured, He Says in Address.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Confidence in the future successful operation of the railroads of the United States under private ownership control was expressed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, in an address he delivered here today before the National Association of Manufacturers. If the new railroad law is applied as congress intended and if the railway managers so operate the properties as to fully meet the requirements of the public, he said, "we may reasonably expect that private ownership and operation of the railroads as an economic policy will continue in this country. If private ownership should fall the only alternative I am able to see is government ownership and operation, with all that the policy implies. Railway managers must for a time at least keep constantly in mind that private ownership is on trial and they must be determined that it shall win. They must study the needs of the public for transportation and make every reasonable effort to satisfy them. They must treat all alike and without discrimination."

That Willard repeated his recommendation made to the council of national defense in 1917 that "a nation should have a national transportation system and such a system should embrace and make proper use of all available and suitable agencies," he added that in his opinion, "this recommendation which he made as a war measure is equally pertinent and important in time of peace."

"We are fortunate in actually having in this country the essential elements of such a national system of transportation as I have in mind," said Mr. Willard. "There should, in the public interest, be the fullest co-operation between the several transportation agencies and in all cases that agencies should be preferred which can render the required service at the lowest total economic cost. If this policy is followed I feel confident of the future success of private ownership and operation of the railroads."

Having described the difficulties of the railroads in obtaining funds necessary for improvements, extensions and equipment which he said had been estimated at from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 a year, Mr. Willard said congress by enacting the Esch-Cummins bill, had corrected the "poorly contrived system of regulation which brought about a sickly condition of the railroads" but that "the patient is still weak and unable to stand alone." Personally, he said, he was in favor of the government owning the railroads which the railroads shall be permitted to earn, but he declared that "the railroads must be self-supporting before they can be expected to show signs of improved vigor."

"First of all," declared Mr. Willard, "the railroad rates and charges must be so adjusted as to measurably meet the increased operating costs resulting from conditions created by the war. Congress has given definite instructions that this be promptly done." After that he said it would remain for the railway managers to "so deal with the problem as to satisfy the reasonable requirements of the public. People in this country," he said, "in the past have had the cheapest transportation in the world. I think they are entitled to it in the future; at any rate I believe that under private ownership they will have it. They are also entitled to adequate transportation and there is an imperative obligation upon the carriers to furnish it. Inadequate transportation facilities would check production and tend to increase the cost of living."

Mr. Willard predicted that strikes upon the railroads would be less frequent as time went on since, in his opinion, congress had provided a definite and workable arrangement that should secure justice to the railway workmen.

"The public," said President Willard, "is entitled to expect an uninterrupted operation of railway properties. I believe the railway managers and the employees will be able satisfactorily to solve this (labor) problem. Perhaps not immediately, but certainly reasonably near future. If not, then to my mind, it will be the clear duty of congress to pass some kind of a law that will make the stoppage of railway trains, because of labor disputes, impossible."

THOUSANDS SEEK SEATS AT MEETING

Applications Received Far Exceed Available Space in the Coliseum.

CHICAGO.—Fifty thousand applications for seats at the republican national convention have already come in to J. W. Henley, secretary of the arrangements committee. Henley has been beseeched, cajoled, kidded and threatened into promises of "single positions. And before he is through he will be blessed and cursed because—

There will be only about 10,000 seats for the curious public when the big meet opens June 8. Henley's little job is to divide 50,000 into 10,000.

He is organizing a force of 200 door-keepers, composed mostly of men used to "holding the line." They are ex-soldiers.

"No more politically appointed organists-at-arms, rushing their friends into an already packed house," says Henley.

Four stalwart doughboys will be on guard at each of the 15 doors to the Coliseum. Seat holders will be armed with badges and tickets. Nobody enters without both. They will not be distributed until the last minute, to prevent forgery.

National committee tickets are all located according to delegate representation, with corresponding decreases and increases according to size of states, distance from Chicago and "loyalty to republican standards."

"States that have strayed from the straight and narrow path of republicanism will be penalized in ticket distribution," says Henley.

Chicago gets 3,000 tickets in exchange for supplying up the money to stage the convention. On a pro rata basis, a $50 contribution to the convention entitles the donor to one seat.

The Coliseum will have a total of 13,289 seats. This is 1,046 more than have ever been available before.

Secretary Henley, former newspaper man, came from Indianapolis. He was secretary of the Indiana republican state committee in 1914 and is right-hand man to Will Hays, chairman of the republican national committee.

While the convention three-day circus is on, the Coliseum will be almost a city in itself. You'll be able to buy almost everything you want to eat or drink—except hard liquor—in the building.

For the first time in history a presidential nominee will be plucked without the aid of a bar and bartender.

A water company has been given a contract to set up nice, icy water coolers—several hundred of them—along the walls of the Coliseum. Water will be free. The drink contractor is figuring on supplying many thousands of gallons of cool, non-alcoholic water.

There will be a private lunchroom for members of the national committee. Another, in the basement, for the press. And outside will be hundreds of lunch stands erected by concession.

A Coliseum postoffice will be established. There will be a hospital for those overcome by natural and artificial heat. Also many lounging rooms, A. S. B. The phone system will connect the chairman of every state delegation with the speakers' stand and the press section.

The convention is to be humanized by means of an electric scoreboard and a phonograph arrangement so much higher.

everybody will know what's going on and who's shouting off all the lines.

"Will women delegates have to take off their hats when the republican national convention show begins?"

"May women smoke in the convention hall?"

Strickers for political etiquette want to know. Women will be represented by scores of delegates and alternates, a mighty host as compared to the comparatively few at previous conventions.

"I should think the women ought to remove their hats on the convention floor," said Secretary Henley of the arrangements committee. "They'll want to see who's performing on the speakers' stand and as will the men."

By all means put a ban on hats. Henley said smoking would not be permitted on the floor of the convention by men or women.

"We are providing additional rest rooms, for women delegates and spectators," said Assistant Chairman Madala of the Chicago convention committee. "I guess they can smoke there if they want to—just as the men do in the smoking rooms."

It will cost more than $150,000 in cash to stage the republican national convention exclusion of persons of known bad character.

It will also cost a lot of headaches, shattered ambitions and several million dollars' worth of mispent energy.

The 1916 convention cost $117,000. The H. C. L. hit conventions, too, to the tune of the Chicago convention committee, headed by Fred W. Toham, treasurer of the republican national committee, has set out to get subscriptions from Chicago business men of more than $150,000 to pay 1920 expenses.

"Labor costs may run the total and a phonograph arrangement so much higher," said Walter J. Malatesta, assistant secretary. "Big items include structural work of building seats in the Coliseum, the lighting system and decorating with flags and bunting."

The contract for dressing up the Coliseum for the nomination scramble cost $21,000 in 1916. This time it comes to $49,000. And $10,000 more for seating the building.

Music intended to keep up the patriotic pitch among delegates and tired-eyed spectators cost $1,800 in 1916. Now musicians get three times as much. It will cost $5,500 to keep bandmaster Armin F. Hand and his 40 tune jugglers going full speed at the June convention.

Printing costs more. Also tickets, badges, posters. Expert stenographers who will take down the nothens of words ground out by speakers will get high pay.

JUGO-SLAVS NAME TERMS ON FLUME

Include Some Modification of the Line as Drawn by President Wilson.

By the Associated Press. BIRMINGHAM, May 14.—The main points in the program of the Jugo-Slavs for a settlement of the Flume question, to which Anton Trumblich, the Jugo-Slav foreign minister, has been authorized to tell the House that Jugo-Slavs will agree, are given in a dispatch sent by La Nación's Rome correspondent.

These include some modification of the line as drawn by President Wilson, including recognition of the line in favor of Italy in the region of Scutari with the object of removing the frontier farther from Trieste, and the inclusion of Mount Maggiore, assuring Italian defense of Pola, and acceptance of the sovereignty of Italy over the city of Fiume, with the port under the control of the League of Nations.

The correspondent says with respect to the Jugo-Slavs' assignment of Fiume, that that island have subscribed to a declaration that they will emigrate in force rather than lose their Jugo-Slav citizenship, and that therefore it is probable Laosa will be exchanged for the island of Cherso, Istria, the population of which is part Italian.

It is asserted by the correspondent that the most difficult part of the negotiations will be with reference to Albania.

"The Serbs claim the administration of at least Northern Albania," says the dispatch. "They will not present objections to the possession of Scutari by Italy, but President Wilson is vehemently opposed to an agreement between Italy and Jugo-Slavs for the defense of Albania territory. It appears, nevertheless, that with respect to Albania the Jugo-Slavs are not taking into consideration the approval of the president of the United States."

FIRST DEATH OCCURS IN FAMILY OF 20 CHILDREN

By the Associated Press. RAPID CITY, S. D.—The first death in a family of 20 children, the youngest of whom is 26 years old, occurred when Ernest J. Smith died here recently.

The father of the family, 77 years old, still does all the work on his hog farm in the suburbs of Rapid Falls. He has never had need for the services of a doctor. The father came to the United States from Germany in 1877 when he was 14 years old. He served four years in the civil war. He was twice married. To his first wife were born nine sons and four daughters. Three sons and four daughters were born to his second wife.

Each of the sons now weighs more than 200 pounds. Ernest's four grandparents each lived to be more than 80 years old. Highest cash price paid for poultry. Independent Market, Twin Falls, Tn. Th. Sat. Want Ads Bring Quick Results.

BOND INVESTORS WELL OFF.

Most of the lamentation over the low price of Liberty bonds is unnecessary and rather absurd. The current market price of bonds is important only to those who want to sell them. To those who do not want to sell, who bought the bonds to keep and who intend to keep them, it is of no importance at all.

To such people, the real investors, the bonds are serving the purpose they were intended to serve. The interest is paid regularly, every quarter; and though comparatively small, as interest rates are measured in these days of inflation, it is tax-free in most cases, and far higher than the rates that government securities bore formerly, or will bear hereafter. More important than that, perhaps, the principal is absolutely sure—something not true of the stock investments whose present high dividend rates make bond-owners envious. And all in all, this same investment in war bonds, from first to last, will doubtless make more money for those who stick to it than a similar amount would make for the average investor if scattered through the list of securities that are now making so brave a show.

It is unfortunate that the man or woman who must sell bonds at this time stands to lose on them. Such people are prone to think that they have been cheated; and in a way they are right, because the government at first gave assurance that it would maintain the bonds at par, and possibly would have been maintaining a big fund and using it to steady the market.

However that may be, let no one who is able to hang onto his bonds waste any tears in self-pity. He got what he paid for, and is well off, and will lose nothing as long as he stands pat. And when the bonds mature, and he or his children get back the principal, it will be worth a good deal more than it would be in these days of balloon prices.

GOOD ROADS MOVIES.

It is becoming quite the thing for any state or section of the country that desires a little publicity to achieve its place in the national eye by getting out motion pictures of its industries, its thriving cities and its spots of scenic beauty or historic interest. Such films show chiefly the bright and prosperous side of life in that region.

Virginia is using the movie for another purpose. The Virginia Good Roads Association is planning to make movies showing Virginia's lacks, particularly her need of good roads.

These pictures are to bear the title, "Virginia's New Hour." Their main purpose is to arouse the people of the state to the desirability of a state system of roads, to meet present transportation needs and to prepare for the greater needs of the future.

There will be pictures demonstrating the benefits of good roads upon commercial and industrial success. There will be others carrying the story of the value of good roads still farther, showing how they affect the social, religious and educational life of the people. Backward sections retarded in development by poor roads will be ruthlessly filmed along with the sections which have made great advancement because of their fine highways.

Here is a form of propaganda which should prove as interesting as it is helpful. The contrasts between thriving regions with networks of good roads and regions where there are no roads or very bad ones will no doubt be found sharper than the average citizen realizes. The pictures will present this contrast, and the object lesson will be driven home far more effectively than it could be by any amount of literature on the subject.

COLLEGIATE FLYING.

The first intercollegiate aviation meet has been held. Flyers from 11 universities participated. Yale won with 9 points. The events included acrobatic flying and rising and landing contests. The altitude flight had to be called off on account of cloudy weather and a strong northerly wind.

It is news to many people that aviation has been added to the long list of collegiate competitive sports. The Intercollegiate Flying association, however, is not merely a new athletic club added to the list for the sake of furthering college spirit and rivalry. Its members are reserve officers of the United States air service. Their races and meets will not only keep up their flying practice, but will also help to interest other college men in this newest of sports. All of which is very fine for developing general interest in aviation, improving airplane types and helping the public to become familiar with the flying machine.

So far this country has lagged behind Europe in use of the airplane for all purposes, particularly for freight and passenger transportation. Intercollegiate flying should quicken general interest in the whole subject and practice of aviation.

IN PRAISE OF WORK.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon is not often thought of as a preacher, but he preached a good sermon on his eighty-fourth birthday. Asked for a birthday message to the American public, he said:

"Men wiser than I long ago said that the first blessing of earth is toil; and the second blessing health, which wealth cannot buy. I accept both, and believe the first contributes much to the second.

"At eighty-four I can wish no greater blessings to the present and coming generations than those of work and health. They are the two things in this life that make it attractive and contribute to longevity and happiness. The dream of idleness or lack of necessity for labor is an idle dream.

Could any sage have hit more accurately the big need of the hour? Here we have a world suffering for lack of innumerable things which cannot be obtained without labor, and apparently a majority of the people ignoring facts and seeking more leisure instead of more work. When will the average man learn again the lesson of Adam, that work is not a curse but a blessing, and the chief cause and fundamental condition of progress, health and happiness, for a nation and for an individual.

A MINISTER FROM CANADA.

The establishment of direct diplomatic connection between Canada and the United States is soon to be realized. Announcement has been made at London, Ottawa and Washington of the forthcoming appointment of a Canadian envoy suited to the requirements of the situation.

This official will not be a mere appendage to the British embassy. He will be the direct, responsible spokesman of Canada, acting independently of the British ambassador in matters affecting only Canada and the United States. More than that, he will be a sort of assistant ambassador and will act for the ambassador when the latter is absent.

It is fitting recognition of Canada as the right arm of the empire of which Great Britain is the head, and also of Canada's right to deal, as an American democracy, with the other American powers in purely American problems.

Augusta, Ga., reports that a salary increase from $3,000 to $5,000 has been "forced upon" its mayor. To think that any office-holder would tamely endure such imposition!

CLIFF DWELLERS' CIVILIZATION FOUND MUCH IN COMMON. COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—That the civilization of the cliff dwellers of the Mesa Verde and Hlo Grande countries of New Mexico had much in common is the conclusion of J. A. Jeannon of this city, who recently completed a search of the dwellings of this prehistoric people.

Mr. Jeannon took to the national museum at Washington 24 large packing cases of relics to back up his theories regarding the cliff dwellers and obtained a commission from the bureau of ethnology for further research work in the Indian mounds.

"We obtained many specimens of pottery," Mr. Jeannon said, "some of which are believed to be the very oldest specimens from pre-Columbian peoples in America. They were of crude, undecorated sandy paste. The research work is believed to have 63 complete vessels.
