OPPOSITION EVIDENTLY WORKING FOR COMBINE

Lack of Candidate on Whom to Center Support Causes Consternation to Those Who Would Defeat Leader.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The combination against William G. McAdoo found itself tonight, to use the language of one of the administration leaders "without any candidate on whom to combine."

BOTH PLANKS REJECTED. SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—Declaring to include in its platform any reference to the prohibition issue, the democratic convention rejected today both the bone dry plank favored by W. J. Bryan, and the elder, who also favored plank presented by the New York delegation.

MAJORITIES ARE HEAVY. SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—In quick and successive votes the democratic national convention today voted down by heavy majorities all attempts to amend the report of the platform committee and threw out all substitute proposals, including the bone dry plank by W. J. Bryan and the wet plank offered by W. Bourke Cockran.

M'ADOO LEADING. AUDITORIUM, SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The first two ballots taken on presidential candidates taken tonight by the democratic national convention were without a nomination. McAdoo led on both ballots, with Palmer second and Cox in third place.

PROCESSES IN TAKEN. SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The ballots on presidential candidates were taken tonight by the democratic national convention and W. G. McAdoo, Palmer and Cox finished the race on the first ballot.

nomination, a recess was taken until tomorrow at 9:30. The McAdoo people, asserting they were certain to put their candidate over on the fourth ballot, opposed the adjournment, which was taken on motion of former Representative Fitzgerald of New York. When it was put to a vote there was a loud chorus on each side of the question and Chairman Robinson declared it adopted, while some of the McAdoo supporters were clamoring for a roll call.

COUNTRY OF MIXED RACES

Best Qualities of Fifteen Great Peoples Declared Mingled in the Dwellers in Alsace.

As we came out of the square (at St. Amarin) little boys were bringing in armfuls of wood for their school-room stoves; others were already nobly scurrying home for dinner in the crisp, swiftness of the children were modified in ways varying, including now toward the elongated head, with pointed chin, dark hair, dark eyes and mantling color; now toward the round-headed, square-jawed, blond type, with full, dreamy, blue eyes. But under these modifications one felt that there was a persistent something that was their own, neither German nor French nor anything else, for all the mingling; the Alsatian root and stem, with an inalienable, peculiar life remaining in it, its very own, its race gift.

And this essential gift, this rich, diverse inheritance, had been received from each point of the compass. From the north, through the défilés of the Alps, the Great Latin tradition had infiltrated. From the north and east had come Germanic thought, with its mystical reactions, its metaphysical implications, its marvelous legends, and its romantic, chivalrous, noble and half gods. From the west, from Gaul, came grace and courtesy and the deathless wish for liberty. Was over a people more richly endowed?—From "Alsace in Rust and Gold," by Edith O'Shaughnessy.

WITCHES FEARED IN OHIO

Early Settlers Had Strong Belief in Their Power to Work Harm in the Community.

Belief in witchcraft was not uncommon among the early white settlers of Ohio, and domestic animals which were claimed to have been taken possession of by witches were sometimes burned alive in order to bring an end to the evil practice of witches. It was held that witches could not be exterminated in any other way. Howe's Ohio history records a story of this kind, said to be on the records of the common pleas court of Lawrence county. The story was brought out in the trial of a claim for imposition in a horse sale in 1828. The purchaser claimed that the bull he had bought, which he had taken possession of by witches were sometimes burned alive in order to bring an end to the evil practice of witches. It was held that witches could not be exterminated in any other way.

SPANISH DIPLOMATS

King Governor's Marriages. Spanish diplomats are forbidden to marry without royal permission by a decree published in the Official Gazette.

The object of the decree is to prevent diplomats marrying women without means or of undesirable reputation. Similar rules are applied to the case of naval and military officers and noblemen.

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH

Again and again during the war was insisted by all manner of authorities in England that one of the great efforts of the future should be in the direction of encouraging industrial research. This was, in fact, a wise decision, and Great Britain evidently has no intention of losing it. Already government department of "scientific and industrial research" has been established; while, according to the chairman at a recent meeting of the Institution of Electric Engineers, "universities all over the country, led by University college, London, are re-equipping their training departments."

THE FIDDLE MEN

The two girls were talking, and one was deploring a recent experience. "He promised to teach me to drive but," she said, "and I wanted to do it in fine style, so I went uptown and bought me a very fancy pair of gauntlet gloves."

SWEETIE'S LAST CALL

I had an appointment with my heart beat on a rainy evening, and as I knew that because of the weather our evening would be spent in the no-drip put up my hair in curls, thinking that my tam would be enough casuallage. The tam was already in place when sweetie arrived, and off we went. It was warm in the show and without thinking I slipped the tam off. I can't describe the embarrassment when the light went on and my sweetie turned to gaze on my natural curly hair and was confronted with a head full of curls sticking up in different angles? He never came again.—Exchange.

THE ART OF PLEASING

The desire of pleasing makes a man agreeable or unagreeable to those with whom he converses, according to the motive from which that inclination appears to flow. If it comes from a desire for pleasing others arising from an innate benevolence, it never fails of success; if from a vanity to excel, its disappointment is no loss certain. What we call an agreeable man, is he who is endowed with that natural bent to do acceptable things from a delight he takes in them merely as such; and the affection of that character is what constitutes a top.—Richard Steele.

GOLD AND MELLIGON

Gold was used, for most part as a useful metal; for decoration and ornament; but it was often associated with religious thought. According to the legends, an egg of copper fell from heaven from which sprang the nobility; and after a longer period an egg of gold fell from which issued the Incas. Among the Choccos of Colombia, an important idol of gold was worshipped, and slaves were sacrificed to it at certain seasons of the year. The idol represented a woman, who was once human and gave birth to a child who became the creator.—Exchange.

STATE HAS HAD NINE CAPITALS

The first complete report made in connection with the Hatfield and Wake county community study shows that the state of North Carolina has had nine capitals as follows: Bath, Edenton, Brunswick, Wilmington, Newbern, Hatteras, Smithfield, Fayetteville and Raleigh. The reason for so many has in the custom, prior to 1701, of transferring the seat of government to the place of residence of the government or to the temporary meeting place of the assembly.

FIG CULTURE IN UNITED STATES

It is not improbable that this country will soon produce all the figs it needs. The interest is made by the chief of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, in his report on the progress of Sogona fig culture in California. Much of the success of this enterprise is due to the fact that the department has been able to maintain a capricious orchard at Loomis from which capriffs have been distributed free to growers.

DISTINCTION

General Grant said he would have cherished the distinction of being a successful man of business higher than the renown of a great soldier.

Being successful in business may well be looked upon as a distinction. Assuredly it calls for the coralling of all one's powers and possibilities, and unrelenting effort.

We have figured largely in many business successes. We want to figure in many more.

MOB'S ACTION SELDOM JUST

Henry Watterson Wrote Feelingly on the Brute Nature of Mankind, When Harped In Groups.

The people en masse constitute what we call the mobs. Mobs have rarely been right—never except when capable of being led.

It was the mob in Paris that made the Revolution pass. Mobs have seldom been tempted, even though they had small chance to go wrong, that they have not gone wrong.

The "people" is a fetish. It was the people, misled, who precipitated the South into the madness of secession and the ruin of a hopelessly unequal war of sections.

This is merely to note the mortal folly of man, most fallible when herded in groups and prone to do in the aggregate what he would hesitate to do when left to himself and his individual accountability.

Under a wise dispensation of power, despotism, we are told, embodies the best of all government. The trouble is that despotism, in action, if ever, wise. It is its nature to be inconsiderate, being essentially selfish, grasping and tyrannous.

As a rule, therefore, revolution—usually of force—has been required to change or reform it. Perfectibility was not designed for mortal man. —Henry Watterson in "Marce Henry," an Autobiography.

FORGERY A CAPITAL OFFENSE

Under English Law It Was Punishable by Death Until Comparatively Recent Years.

Forgeries are not modern crimes. In 1032, the fifth year of Elizabeth's reign, the British parliament passed a special act against forgery "to amend the small, mild and easy-punishment" then in force. By this act any person found guilty of forgery was sentenced to pay double costs and damages, was to be set in the pillory in some open market town, and there publicly to have both ears cut off, his nostrils slit and cut, and seared with a hot iron, "so as they remain for a perpetual mark of his falsehood."

The unhappy forger to finally lose all his possessions and be imprisoned for life.

In 1634, according to Edward H. Smith, in the Saturday Evening Post, forgery was made a "capital offense without benefit of clergy," which meant that a man might not escape the gallot on account of "high birth" in case he were convicted as a forger.

This continuous law remained in effect until 20 years ago, when many types of forgery were taken off the lists of capital crimes, along with such familiar offenses as burglary, brigandage, picking pockets and stealing bread.

Street Nomenclature.

The practice of giving numbers and letters instead of names to the streets and avenues of our cities is so familiar to us that it excites no thought, except of its convenience.

But it is a practice often remarked upon by foreigners as peculiar to the United States and as evidence of the matter-of-fact, unimaginative character of our people.

Historical dates have been called picturesque names for streets. The French set the fashion in this respect. Paris has its Rue du 28 Juillet and its Rue du 9 Septembre. This fad has spread even to South America. Buenos Aires has its Parque 3 de Febrero; its July Promenade, its 10th of November square and also its 25th of May street.

Tomb a Tramp's Home.

A tramp who had solved the present-day problem of where to live by taking up his abode in one of the old Roman tombs at Arles, on the Rhone gave two Dutch tourists the fright of their lives.

They had gone out to see the remains by moonlight, when suddenly out of a tomb emerged a human form which the moon caused to appear exceedingly ghastly. The tourists fled at top speed for the town, declaring that they had seen a resurrection.

The "ghost" was interrogated by the police and will be prosecuted for the French equivalent of wandering without visible means of subsistence.

ANCIENT CITY IS CHAN-CHAN

Today Nothing but a Mass of Ruins, but Many Fine Objects Before Pi-zarro Ravished Peru.

Chan-Chan is not, as the name would indicate, a place in China. It is one of the oldest cities in Peru, or in the world. The Chan-Chans who built Chan-Chan, are supposed to have been an elderly race when the Incas were yet barbarians. After a time the Incas became civilized and powerful and captured Chan-Chan. Then Pizarro came to plunder and sack the city and massacre the inhabitants. So much of this Chan-Chan history is detected from the remains of Chan-Chan and old Spanish narratives.

JEWISH TRADERS IN AFRICA

Are Known to Have Had Depots for Commerce There in the Fifteenth Century.

Jews of the fifteenth century had trading posts in northwest Africa and carried on a vast commerce with the natives from the Sahara to the Atlantic and from Algeria to the Niger, according to letters recently discovered by Charles de la Boniere, librarian of the national library in France, and published by the National Geographic Society. Hitherto it has been generally held that the Jewish trade in Africa was called the "dark continent" when Stanley and Livingstone penetrated it about a century ago.

Primitive Summers

New York university has come into possession of an original photograph of the first janitor of that institution, equipped with the gong and stick with which he called the students to classes. When the university was founded, January 8, 1869, the janitor was in the original building back of the city hall, there was, of course, no electric bell-ringing system. The responsibility of attendance at recitation was situated on the janitor.

"Sea Cow" Now Extinct.

The last male "sea cow" was seen to 1854—about a century after the first discovery of the species by white men. When fully grown the creature weighed as much as 8,000 pounds. These animals frequented shallows at the mouths of rivers in herds, and while feeding they drove before them their young, to protect the latter from danger. So tame were they that one could stroke their heads without objection on their part.

Small Boy in Hard Luck.

While Charles was sick and out of school his teacher and the pupils of his room were moved to a room across the hall from the one formerly occupied. On his return to school Charles went back to his old room. The teacher in class asked some of the little fellow standing by her table looking most forlorn, so she asked him what he wanted. He glanced up at her, then looked at the roomful of strange boys and girls, and said with a pathetic gasp in his voice: "I've been sick and now I can't find anybody here that 'longs to me!'"

HEN AND KITTEN CHUMMY

Really Remarkable Case of Friendship That is Vouched for by Woman Writer.

The strangest friendship that the writer has ever seen was that of a young Plymouth Rock hen and a white kitten. When the kitten was about two months old she was very fond of her hen ground in the chicken park, or wherever the chickens were. She was the friendliest kitten alive and showed a disposition to chum with every living thing. The hen was very particular in her choice to get out of her way. The hen in question, however, met her advances kindly and they soon became best companions. Many times a day they were to be seen sauntering together around the park. The hen would stand still while the kitten would rub back and forth against her breast. And while the kitten scratched for bugs and worms, the little white kitten was never far away. We do not know what was their means of communication, but they evidently had a satisfying one for they never seemed to tire of each other. They associated together to the exclusion of the other fowls and cats in the place. One seldom saw the hen with the other chickens, and the little white kitten absolutely deserted her little white twin. We sometimes wondered if the kitten thought she was a chicken or the hen believed her to be a cat. At all events, they were most congenial.

GREAT MAN NEVER HESITATES

Self-Reliance One of the Most Important Possessions That Can Be Acquired.

Insist on yourself; never imitate. Your own gift you can present every moment with the cumulative force of a whole life's cultivation; but of the adopted talent of another you have only an extemporaneous half-possession. That which each can do best none but his Maker can teach him. No man yet knows what it is, nor can all that person teach him. Who is the master who could have taught Slinkspere? Where is the master who could have instructed Franklin or Washington or Newton or Bacon? Every great man is unique. The Scripture is surely precisely that which he could not borrow. If anyone will tell me whom the great man imitates in the original crisis when he performs a great act, I will tell him who else can teach him. Do that which is new, and then you will not hope too much nor dare too much. Dwell up there in the simple and noble regions of his life, obey thy heart and thou shalt reproduce the Foreworld again.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

How to Treat Stammering.

Before the kindergarten section meeting of the National Society for the Study and Correction of Speech Disorders, Dr. Walter B. Swift of Boston, read a paper on the treatment of stammering in its very early beginning. Stammering in very young children often results from nervous stress and strain, great fright, the inhibition of others and sometimes from accidents. Almost all of these things can be prevented. The inhibition of another can be easily broken by the parents. Nervous stress and strain can be eliminated by proper home hygiene, which when put into practice has been known to stop stammering in two weeks. Great strain from fright can be avoided by having the friends of the children refrain from purposely frightening them, and after any unavoidable fright it can be minimized by proper conversation and advice after that fright has occurred. Doctor Swift asserted that one case with a cure was effected in two weeks.

Victory Worth While.

There's no satisfaction equal to the consciousness of measuring up to your duty. The man who does the merely ordinary things can never take the pride in his achievements men of vision take. They see what lies beyond the keel of calculating mortals. Struggle to them is second nature. They delight in hard things because they are hard. And to them some of the great victories that never tally long enough to be medals are the victories of the peaceful and the fearful. It may cost toil and struggle to land the crown men pray for, but they have no value without sacrifice. When my purchase rewards that demand the strain of every moment to win them, they are training the personalities in reserve that when set to work mark the Superman.—G.H.

Absolutism.

Absolutism, as practiced by a Catherine or a Napoleon, on an imperial scale, may dazzle the imagination. It is a system with limited scope. Historically, it is a well-defined stage in popular advance toward self-government. But as soon as even an imperfect form of constitution has been established, the efforts of absolutism appear to be confined. However, when Absolutism in its denouement holds a small state, it loses that appearance of concentrated power which is one of its chief justifications, and looks petty and mean. It seems to be actuated by fear, not by strength.—From "The Times of Cavour," by V. R. Thayer.

MAY REINSTATE WAR RISK INSURANCE

New Conditions Are Made Under Which Cancelled Policies May Be Renewed.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—A ruling terminating new conditions under which canceled or cancelled war risk insurance policies may be reinstated by former service men and women has been issued by the war risk insurance bureau.

Under the ruling applications for reinstatement made within 18 months of discharge and prior to January 1, 1921, need only be accompanied by 120 months' premiums and a statement that the applicant is in as good health as on the date of the discharge or resignation. No medical examination is required. After January 1, 1921, and until July 1, 1921, in cases where insurance lapsed or was cancelled prior to July 1, 1920, the applicant must forward two months' premiums and also the report of a full medical examination made by a licensed physician at the applicant's expense. Insurance lapsed or cancelled after July 1, 1920, may be reinstated on statement of physical condition within three months; after three months and within six months the application for reinstatement must be accompanied by a short medical examination certificate and after six months and within 18 months by a full medical examination certificate. Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR. During all the years the Ford Model T One Ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have had no complaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford One Ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford One Ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts, the demand for the Ford One Ton Truck would not be as large as it is, because people are not buying trucks which do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford One Ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. # MRS. IRVIN TO FILE FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Mrs. Bertha V. Irvin has tonight stated that she will this morning file her intention to seek the republican nomination for representative in the 2nd congressional district.

BRYAN IS SILENT ABOUT ACTION OF CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—William Jennings Bryan said tonight he would make no statement as to his attitude toward the action of the convention on his plate beyond that he was surprised at the vote cast tonight.

Mr. Bryan said he regarded the demonstration when he finished speaking as a personal tribute. It was not a manufactured affair, he added. The band did not play, he said, having orders not to do so.

The Nebraska would not say whether he would support the ticket. The convention will be held at Omaha, he said, but he would not indicate for whom he would vote in the convention tomorrow. He did not even know whether he would go to the auditorium tomorrow, he said.

CONVENTION POINTERS

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—William J. Bryan, beaten decisively in his attempt to deliver the administration platform.

President Wilson's supporters in full control at all strategic points. The convention will be held at Omaha, he said, but he would not indicate for whom he would vote in the convention tomorrow.

The "Meatloaf" movement steadily gaining favor as "the glacier" to use the language of its supporters. Evidences of a stiffening of the movement against it. These brief sentences epitomize the situation as it was early this morning.

When the convention, after a grilling 10-hour day, voting by heavy majorities bowed over all attempts to alter the administration platform and finished its first two ballots, the leaders were McAdoo, Palmer and Cox in that order, with votes scattering among 20 other candidates.

The night and early hours of the morning were spent in hurried conferences of the "Meatloaf" people strengthening their lines and predicting victory on the early ballots this morning while the attempted coalition against the president's non-law was making every effort to find a rallying point to stem the tide which seemed to be threatening to sweep him onward toward the nomination.

GUESTS ARE DISAPPOINTED

SAN FRANCISCO, N. J., July 2.—Thirty wounded American soldiers from a relief hospital in New York who arrived here today on the steam yacht "Victoria" as guests of Sir Thomas Lipton were disappointed when it was announced that the Commodore, V. V. Challenger for the America's cup race this month, would not race today against his rival here, the 22-meter "Shamrock."

The race was on the challenger, but in place yesterday, it being changed again.

AWAITING INSTRUCTIONS

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Acting Secretary of the Navy, Benmont Lockwood, today gave his commission to Secretary Daniels at San Francisco in regard to Rear Admiral H. C. Dickson's recent attack on Mr. Daniels and Assistant Secretary Woodcock was not received by the secretary until today. No reply is expected, therefore, until tomorrow or possibly later, Admiral Coontz said, adding that he would take no action until he received the secretary's instructions.

SEARCH REPORTERS TOO

TOKYO, July 1.—Premier Hara found the Imperial receipt formally opening the diet today. Owing to the bomb explosion in front of the main gate of the house of representatives Wednesday, the building was guarded heavily today. All persons attending the session, including reporters, were searched as they entered. Guards surrounded the residences of the cabinet ministers throughout the day.

MUSICIANS GET INCREASE

CHICAGO, July 2.—A 50 per cent increase in pay was awarded the musicians in all downtown theaters today by the Chicago Musicians' association. Music theaters will be without orchestral music after tomorrow night, as the musicians declared as the A. M. P. association refused to accept the increase.

GAIT VARIES WITH SPECIES

It May Truthfully Be Said That No Two Animals or Birds Walk Exactly Alike.

The horse strikes his gait with a cheerful, steady and strong step; the cow is uncertain in its moving, lolling and lagging in its gait, "The loving herd walks slowly over the land." The man trudges and heaves a dull eye on the earth as it journeys along. The sheep trots, and bleats as it passes, while the goat springs aloft almost heedless of its footing. The gait of birds on the level varies a great deal. There is a sort of majestic carriage in the rook, stepping over a crumbling furrow. The red-footed pigeon trips it daintily; the heron stands, as if to think, and moves with staidness within its narrow bounds. The dog casts a covetous eye, uttering a cry now and without thought; while the cat advances a dainty paw, as if distrustful of the ground. The hen scratches, and passes to look round, as if bewildered; while the parrot lifts its foot with seeming pride, and as if the earth were honored by its moving upon it at all. The pig takes ground anyhow, and without heeding, turning about, careless whether right or wrong. The little white scurrying mouse wanders from one path with something of the hesitancy of a blown leaf; while the rat assures the ground to be its own possession, and prows about with confidence and menace. Of all animals the more bounds upon the earth upon its herbage, and brows it the whole day long. As Wordsworth noted, the hare "runs races in its mirth."

LAMB THAT GREW ON TREE

According to the Talmud, Remarkable "Plant Furnished Food for Our A Very Remote Ancestors.

How often, is the wish expressed that money grew on trees? Why not wish for lamb to grow that way, for according to the Latin translation of the Talmud of Jerusalem, that ancient book law and custom, wonderful tender and eatable lambs did grow on trees.

This work, remarks a writer in the New York Evening Sun, tells of a New York Jew, the Jewish, which was formed like a lamb. From a crotch in a father's coat, "it" leaves their issued steam on which the zoophyte grew, so the story goes. In every respect it was formed like an animal suspended on a stalk within the radius of which it grazed. It devoured all the herbage which it was able to reach within the circle of its tether, and then unless some overventurous animal came near enough for it to snatch the lamb morsel it starved.

Our remote ancestors hunted the lamb at great risk, for historians tell us that the lamb had not earned its reputation for gentleness then. It was extremely ferocious, especially if it had exhausted its provender. The only way to overcome it was to cut its stem by well-aimed darts or arrows sent from a safe distance. Once the stem was severed the animal fell to the earth soon to die, and the successful hunter could safely come forth to carry his game back to his cave home.

Slaves in 1788

Slavery existed in nearly all of the English colonies from an early period until shortly before or soon after the Revolutionary war, and the African trade was openly tolerated by the British government. In 1788 there were 282,000 slaves in the colonies, scattered from New England to Georgia. Slavery was not prohibited in Massachusetts until 1780, nor in Vermont until 1777. The United States census of 1850 showed 310 slaves in Connecticut, 10,851 in New Jersey, 15,017 in New York, 705 in Pennsylvania and 103 in Rhode Island. Slavery was gradually abolished in the northern states, but in New Jersey still 97 slaves in Connecticut, 7,557 in New Jersey, 10,808 in New York, 211 in Pennsylvania and 48 in Rhode Island. The census of 1850 showed the disappearance of slavery in all the northern states except in New Jersey, which still had 236.—Indianapolis News.

Immense Rubies

An immense ruby, weighing 400 carats, is reported to have been found in Turin, but it was broken into three pieces, and the report is that one of them was sold to the California firm for $233,333. A fine ruby, known as "Gringa Dok," or the Dragon Lord, weighed 45 carats in the rough, 22 carats after the cutting process, and was said to be the finest of its size ever seen. In 1857 a stone of 40 carats was found and in 1850 one of 304 carats, according to Bauer, who treats the discovery of the 400-carat stone previously mentioned as simply an unverified report.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"The Father-of-Jests"

"The Father-of-Jests" is Joseph Miller, an English comedian, who was born in 1684 and died at London in 1738. The collection of jests known as "Joe Miller's Jests" appeared originally in 1720 as "Joe Miller's Jest Book, Or the Wit's Vade Mecum, etc." It was made by John Mottey, and received its name unwarrantably from Joseph Miller. It was popularly said that Joe Miller never made up a joke in his life and could neither read nor write. Most staid jests are now known as "Joe Miller" from the fact that it is supposed to have at some time emanated from this source.
